And, we come to the image of light. In my case I use the image of a florescent light. It’s because the first time I had mother teach me magic I imagined something like a round florescent light. You need to convert mana to light. Here the incantations “keirechi” and “shiraku” floated into my head. Combining them all together and it comes out to the incantation, “tozu.borusu.nobun.keirechi.shiraku”. In this case, you can create a white florescent-like light of about 40W for roughly 5 minutes and consume 1 MP with void magic.

This is an incantation that belongs only to me. They differ based on the person. I remembered back to the healer at Bakuddo village older woman Shaymi at this point and realized that what she was using was most likely not a real incantation but a pose to increase the feeling of virtue to it. Furthermore, if you reverse the spell for {Light}, (to “rizu.burumando.behezu.romirugorun.dyumaku”) then you can use the reverse magic {Darkness}. Since both {Light} and {Darkness} were spells I could previously use it was easy for the incantations to float into my head.

If it was a spell I couldn’t use (didn’t know), then it wouldn’t be as simple as this.

For example I didn’t know about the spell Invisible Familiar {Safe Servant}. It’s a lost spell that is part of the {Conjuration} and {Summoning} systems. This is a spell that lets you summon an invisible servant that can carry things that aren’t very big of up to about 10kg.

It can’t move over even a slight bit of difference in surface level and if it takes any damage at all it disappears but if you create it using earth magic, wind magic, and void magic, it lasts for about an hour. It seems it can even keep up with me if I start running in a sprint. Depending on how you use it, it seems it can clean tables, chairs, and things that aren't all that dirty on a simple level, so it somehow seems like a spell that could be useful in a plain sort of way as well.

Thanks to Karl's coaching I was somehow able to use it and simultaneously learn the incantations through {Divination}. Next up you chant the incantation and learn the mana efficient method of using it but it comes out to this super long incantation, "zu ritto.rebi.ka tagu nia. heru kon do. hei roki ki fu.shizu miffa do~n.baru.goru.kiru mu.kuri neru.besu ku.ji jami.heru to nin shu.kejumanmaru.churifu.devin.warisuto". It's necessary to recite that at a certain speed and furthermore within a fixed time. In the first place it's difficult to even remember. Next time I should bring along a note pad.

However, while making mistakes, and getting caught up countless times during reciting the incantation and I was able to properly understand how to use the mana for it. Once you can understand that much it's a lot easier. It's the same as riding a bicycle that I mentioned in the past. An assistant for supporting with it is necessary at the start but once you somehow are able to ride it after that it's fast. Rather the assistant or supporter start to get in the way. Learning spells is something like each one of them is trying to learn to ride a new bicycle. It's considerably difficult until you're able to learn it but once you learn it you can improve all on your own.

After using several spells as I learned the incantations and I was able to understand well why the systems of magic were split up. Even though they're different magics there's several common words between them that I noticed. According to Karl, realizing that seems to be the most basic of the basics.

"In other words dividing it up into 13 systems based on the usage of mana is for this reason?"

When I said that,

"There's no way it's that simple right. However that way of thinking itself isn't mistaken."

And said a bit sarcastically.

After that, I was able to get him to teach me one of my objectives that was the spells {Detect Magic User} and {Telepathy}. Since I don't have any catalyst for it, it's suspicious whether I was really succeeding with it but that can't be helped. I was able to confirm that I was properly learning {Telepathy} that didn't need a catalyst though.

It seems that you need a transparent gem in the shape of an orb with a diameter of at least 10 cm or so in order to use {Detect Magic User}. It's necessary to somehow get my hands on one of those. I thought about breaking the teleport crystal rod and using that but it's impossible because it's not at least 10 cm. Even when it comes to buying one, I'm sure they're not simply selling something that large. There's no other choice than to explore the dungeon and find one. If I can find a raw ore then rather than selling it I'll have a skilled artisan polish it for me and use that as a catalyst, there's no choice other than that. According to Karl he said that it's possible to find crystals in the dungeon of Baldukk after all.

It was already long since night at this point but the light shining down in the fairy village was the same afternoon as usual. Since I thought it was strange I tried asking Karl about it and, and held his chest high while saying that. I went through quite a bit of trouble getting him to stay with me without going to sleep up to here. I brought along a total of 20 dried fish but there's no way they could eat that much. I ended up having to give him the portable stove magic tool, leftover dried fish, and threw in some magic stones, and the failed hard candy like thing I brought along just in case and I was finally able to get him to stick with me this far.

“What's night? I don't know anything about that. After all I've been here since I was born.”

Furthermore, I tried asking him if there was any sort of spell to escape from abnormal mental conditions that increase fear like the Roar the Horned Bear uses that have been a worry of mine for many years. And then he told me there was a spell called {Afraid} and the reverse spell of that {Remove Afraid}, which are close to that but I can already use the spells {Afraid} and {Remove Afraid}.

Those are spells that trigger something like hysteria and recover from that so it's completely different from opposing terror. After all I guess the only method to deal with Roar is to be higher level than the opponent or have a reasonable amount of MP. I can't take it easy.

Incidentally, Karl's older sister Mila didn't wake up. I got him to promise to get her permission before I come next time in September and I was chased out of the fairy village as I left. I checked my clock magic tool after leaving and the date had changed.

Chapter 124: Comb

Year 7444, Month 5, Day 3

The end of the days off. Starting today we're exploring the 6th floor again. Thanks to the information I gained during these days off, the dungeon isn't simply a place for me to gain treasure, but it's become a place where I can obtain the catalyst needed to use a spell in order to negotiate with the one who used this {Report} on me. It will change the amount of fighting spirit I'm putting into it.

Since I was supposed to be in the capital until yesterday, I paid everyone's wages before the break started. There's no way I'd let there be any delays in payment. I was eating a chicken roast, some eggs, and a badly made muffin for breakfast while looking around at everyone's faces. Yeah, I can feel that everyone is energetic from their expressions. It seems they were satisfied with their days off.

"Come to think it, that guy supposedly died."

Ralpa is saying to Zenom and Zulu next to her. What is she doing talking about dead people this early in the morning...It's not like she said it to me, so I'll just ignore it.

"Hn?"

"Who did?"

Zenom put some egg on his muffin while and Zulu put some pepper on his egg while responding.

"Remember, after we came here..Nn~ It was around the time we went to the 2nd floor, so it's those guys that came to Baldukk a short while after Maruso entered our party, right? That Tiger-man noble who came from outside of the country."

I guess there was still some roast remaining on a rib. Ralpa said while taking the bone out from her mouth.

“Ah, that young guy called Rokis or whatever? He was the son of a Marquis or something right? Did he die?”

Zenom finishes his egg muffin while saying.

“No, not Rokis but one of his followers. The male Rabbit-people named Biku. I think it was a short while after Maruso joined us. When Zulu came along with me shopping, didn’t it turn into a fight? Don’t you remember? Zulu.”

“..I don’t remember. In the first place there were a lot of people who picked fights with us over Koloil-sama around that time so we got into fights often.”

I guess it’s that, do you remember every time you’ve eaten bread? type of thing. It’s true I don’t remember them all either. Honestly speaking, I don’t remember getting into an argument or fight with Rokis and the others either. Other than that one incident in the dungeon the other day. It’s not unreasonable that Zulu doesn’t remember.

“I see. Well it’s fine. And, that Rabbit-people died in the dungeon fighting against an Ork it seems. But, since it was after they started to retreat they weren’t able to recover the corpse.”

Ralpa is talking while she uses the bone she pulled off the rib as a toothpick. Is this girl really a woman? I feel like I’m about to be stuck with some serious doubts. I’m sure Bel and Toris are stuck together as usual so they haven’t noticed but Gwine is frowning as well. I’m sure my expression isn’t much different from Gwines as well.

“Isn’t it something that happens often? Was there something that seemed strange about it?”

Angela said while putting some roast chicken between her muffin. Zenom is focused on eating his completed egg muffin.

“It’s not particularly unusual. I think that Biku just let his guard down. Ah, Kalstalan-sama can I use the pepper?”

Zulu, isn’t that too much pepper? I’m amazed you can calmly eat something like that.

“Well you would think that right. But you know, I don’t know if it was the 1st or 2nd floor but since Orks will run away all on their own if you defeat or injure one of them, so depending on how you think about it goblins and gnolls are more dangerous right. I guess he must have been hit in a pretty bad place.”

It’s true it’s just as Ralpa says, Orks and Hobgoblins have a decent amount of combat ability individually but since they specialize in group combat, if they even take a bit of damage it’s often they start to retreat. Gnolls sometimes show signs of that as well but when it comes to goblins they just keep charging at you so you could say they’re more troublesome. There’s times when weak adventurers are eaten. However, putting aside newcomers, it’s unusual for an adventurers with enough ability to make it to the 2nd floor to get killed by an Ork. Though it’s not that there’s few enough of them for it to be unnatural though.

“Al-san, why is Ral like this? I don’t think she was like this in the past but I guess people really do change..”

Gwine is putting ham on her muffin as she talks to me.

“Really though...I don’t know about in the past but she was only putting on a feigned face for the first few days after I met her. After that it was always like this.”

Ralpa was watching as I responded to Gwine like that but she didn’t say anything. After all it’s the truth. I bite off a bit of the roast chicken leg while making a face that said “I haven’t spoken any lies” but it seems Ralpa decided to ignore us and she’s still continuing to talk to Zenom and the others.

From the other side of Ralpa and the others,

“Really, stop eating just meat and eat some eggs as well.”

“Eh~ I don’t like eggs. I just took them for your sake.”

“Eh..Is that so? Thanks. I love you.”

“Of course I do too. That’s why if you’re not going to eat that chicken I’ll take it.”

“That is no~good~.”

And I hear a strange conversation that I’m not sure if I’m envious of or not.

The couple of Toris and Bel are as annoying as usual this morning. I've just decided that you two are standing at the front until the teleport room on the 3rd floor for today.

.....

Year 7444, Month 5, Day 8

After returning from the dungeon last night I slept a full night and today I was able to relax and take a break. Right now I'm having dinner with everyone. This "Murowa" is a good bar to relax where their selling point is the skewers they offer while you have a drink. Since it wears away at your nerves quite a bit exploring the dungeon for 5 days straight, the day after getting back we don't feel like doing anything. I'm lenient towards them spending their time sluggishly and self-indulgent. Even then one of my slaves and myself never miss out on running for about two hours though. Recently I've been seeing the faces of Toris and Gwine when I go for my running in the mornings as well. Since the course and pace differs by person it's not like we're running together.

This time we weren't able to get our hands on anything big while exploring the dungeon. It was just the magic stones from monsters. Since normally this is only obvious, it's not something to get depressed over but since I got quite enthusiastic about exploring the dungeon I was a bit disappointed. Ah, really, I wonder if a raw gem crystal won't come out already?

"Today you know, when I was eating together with Gwine at "Rasurun", I heard about it again."

Ralpa is talking about some sort of information she heard about again. No, it's not something as refined as information. It's like the rumors you hear at the well-side gatherings. Are you a housewife?

"About what?"

Bel tried asking Ralpa. Just ignore her there. Toris and I exchange glances and Toris started pouring some lukewarm beer from the pitcher into my mug. I asked the Laios waitress for two more pork skewers and poured some beer back into Toris's mug.

After the waitress went and gave the order to the kitchen with her swinging beautiful long scarlet hair and then she sat down “next” to Zulu who was sitting alone at the next table over and started talking about something. Why didn’t she sit across from him?

Angela, Gwine, and Zenom are getting excited about the topic of the beard Gwine has started growing recently. It’s a beard which you can barely tell has started growing if you look closely at the bottom of her jaw and below her nose. It sounds like a conversation to comfort Gwine who is worried about it. Zenom is giving his opinion of “A woman with no beard has no charm” but it seems she doesn’t approve.

Toris is skillfully eating some dried ibodi with his {My} chopsticks. I’m eating keiswago in fish and vegetables also with {My} chopsticks while (I get a good impression that Toris is also properly using chopsticks~) drinking some bear as well.

“And you know, this time it seems it was Joni. You remember right? I think it was last winter, ah, since it was last year before we met Toris and Gwine so it should have been after the new year. It’s the Tiger-man who tried to pick a fight with us to hit on Bel at “Danfulu”.”

It’s the voice of a rumor loving housewife.

“Eh~ I can’t remember. There’s too many.”

The voice of a rabbit who is putting on airs.

“Is that sarcasm?”

“No, it’s not sarcasm I really can’t remember.”

“Yes I know, you’re popular after all.”

“N~ That’s not the case~”

“And, it seems it was the other day but that Joni supposedly died. It seems it was a trap. That crossbow one. So there really were people who get caught in that~ I need to be careful as well..”

He~ so that guy died? The one that tried to pick a fight with me. Getting caught up in a trap and dying, he really was an idiot. Before I noticed the dried ibodi that Toris had in front of him had turned into a bone as if it was eaten by fairies, and Toris was looking at that with a difficult face.

“What is it?”

What is he making such a difficult face for?

“Eh? No, this sea bream, I mean ibodi was pretty good so I was thinking of ordering another, or maybe getting some boiled with vegetables like Al-san.”

He sure is worrying over something weird.

“Hn, then, I’ll give you half. Order an ibodi and then give me half.”

After I said that and,

“Is that fine? Then let’s do that. Excuse me~”

Toris happily responded and called out to the waitress but she’s sitting on Zulu’s lap at the table next to ours. Work.

Even then the waitress reluctantly was running a finger along Zulu’s chest as she went to take Toris’s order to the kitchen. After noticing Toris and my glances Zulu looked the other direction and brought his mug to his mouth. You, the contents of that are either tea or water right?

“Though, if Ralpa’s story is true then wouldn’t that mean Rokis-sans party is in need of people. If two people were killed then they have 8 people right now right? If they were doing it with 10 people then in terms of combat ability things might be pretty harsh for them right now. Well it’s not something for us to worry about but I wonder if they’ll buy some slaves or something.”

“I wonder about that~ If I remember correctly, weren’t there only 6 of them when they came to Baldukk? A short while after that they teamed up with a group of four and become a full party. Though they might have just bought 4 combat slaves. Won’t they just scout some random guys or purchase someone?”

“He~ I guess their leader is doing a pretty proper job? Well I’m sure it’s fine as long as they’re earning.”

“I don’t know about that far~ But if they’re still at the 1st and 2nd floor I’m sure they aren’t making much. Isn’t it impossible to properly earn anything until the 3rd floor?”

“Then I guess for now they’re just good talkers? I’m amazed they keep up at it even though they don’t have any achievements.”

“No, since they were able to make it to the 2nd floor in a year and a half they’re still pretty quick. I’m sure they’re reasonably skilled.”

.....

Year 7444, Month 5, Day 18

It’s the final day of our three day break. After we finished up our cooperation training and were about to take a slightly early dinner. We met up at the restaurant “Rasurun”. In order to leave my equipment and get lighter before going to eat the five of us other than the slaves were walking on our way to Boil Manor.

“You’re Greed-san right, from the {Slaughterers}?”

There was a young Laios woman who called out to me in front of the inn. Just when I was thinking I had seen her face somewhere before, I remembered. She’s the one from Rokis’s party. Candice.Hash, level 8 huh? The eldest daughter of the Viscount Hash. I wonder what her business is?

“Yes, I am but do you have some business with me?”

I faced the woman Candy and replied. Everyone from the {Slaughterers} and is watching over.

“There’s something I want to talk about for a bit, so I would like to borrow some of your time but..”

She’s saying it with some reservations but she’s properly looking me in the eyes.

“It’s fine. What is it?”

After I replied and Candy made a slightly relieved expression before continuing her words.

“Umm, could you please act as an agent for us with Ronslail?”

“Ha?”

“As a matter of fact..There have been quite a few deaths in our party recently...Another one of our combat slaves died in a boss room on the 2nd floor today...That’s why it’s came to discussing about purchasing a new combat slave..”

Ah, I see now. Since recently the “Slave Store, Ronslail” that I purchased Angela and Zulu from has made quite the name for itself. After all it was the store that provided two front-line slaves for the {Slaughterers} so it’s gotten quite famous for that, any adventurer who has a decent amount of money would prefer to buy their combat slaves not from the exclusive shop “Tani Company” but it’s been the recent trend to purchase combat slaves from “Slave Store, Ronslail”. Supposedly it even requires making reservations there now. It’s great that her business is flourishing.

Even now that elf madam occasionally calls out to me that she’s gotten her hands on some good slaves. Come to think of it since we started spending 5 days in the dungeon our bags have increased quite a bit. It might be good to buy a slave for carrying baggage and keeping lookout of our bags.

After thinking for a bit I,

“Wait just a moment.”

I said to Candy and turned around to everyone and,

“Come to think of it, I’ve heard it’s convenient to have someone to carry bags right?”

I tried asking everyone that.

“That’s true..”

“Yeah, it’s always tiring on the way.”

“Always forcing Maruso to prepare the meals as well you know..”

“Someone who is better than Zulu at massages would be good.”

“It would help if we had one.”

They’re saying things like that.

“Then, after we change lets go and try buying one. Go ahead to “Rasurun” and wait for me.”

I said that and since Gwine and Toris haven't seen a slave trader before they're coming along but "If Toris is going then I think I'll go too" is what Bel said so I just said "If you want to come then feel free.", but for some reason they all seemed a bit excited. Purchasing a slave doesn't feel all that much different from hiring an employee with extremely few human rights. Since Ralpa and Zenom didn't seem interested at all they decided to go and wait at the restaurant.

"Excuse me, sorry for making you wait. Since it was just right we've decided to purchase 1 slave as well. Shall we go together? I'll introduce you."

And Candy was happy after I said that to her. Well normally not many people would do this after all. It's something like sending salt to someone that could become your rival after all. But, honestly speaking the strength of our party isn't really related to the work of the slaves so selling a favor to a reasonably skilled party isn't too bad. Putting it bluntly, there's no way they could become a "serious" rival for us after all."

"Umm, I'll call for the leader right away. We'll be waiting in front of the store, so we'll see you there soon as you please."

"Yeah, we'll head over after we finish changing as well."

I said that and split ways with her.

After quickly changing, putting on some neat clothes, and putting just my sword in the belt on my waist it was just as I saw Ralpa and Zenom head towards the restaurant.

"That part, so they've lost close to four people in these past two weeks right?"

"If they recklessly try to challenge an opponent then those things happen. It's not unusual."

"Well, in our case since we have Al after all."

"That's true. His decisions in the dungeon are correct. Since he's trying to make sure we don't overdo it all the time. Even then we're still earning that much."

They were saying things like that. It's because if we were to overdo things the only one remaining alive in the end would be just me.

Together with Toris and the others, we started on our way towards "Slave Store, Ronslail".

.....

I talk about the time I bought Zulu and Angela with Toris and the others as we head towards "Ronslail" and in front of the store Mittorig.Rokis and Candy from just now were waiting. After we got close Rokis approached and greeted us.

"Greed-san, I'm sorry about this. Since it seems you're going to introduce us to Ronslail..we're really saved. Really thank you very much."

"No, please don't mind it. I was jsut thinking about buying one myself."

I said that and entered the store.

The madam of the store is standing listlessly at the reception desk smoking as usual until we entered the room and she trots over to us.

"This is, Greed-sama. Welcome to our store. Please come sit over here."

And she suggested the sofa to us. I urged Rokis on and the two of us sat down on the sofa. Candy, Toris and the others are standing behind us.

"Yo~ How is business going? It seems you've gotten quite big or something.."

I started from recent news.

"Yes, we have quite a bit. Thanks to you we've gotten quite a few reservations so right now we're stocking up even more than before. Recently the number of combat slaves we deal in has exceeded the total number of labor, sex, and general slaves. We have quite the reputation going for ourselves right now. Up until now we've only dealt in a total of about 30 people per year but thanks to you it exceeded 40 people last year. The increased amount was all combat slaves. Hoho Ho~"

That's quite amazing~ an increase of more than 33%. Well given the location I'm sure it was 10 combat slaves until now and the remaining was a total of 20 mixed slaves or so.

“That’s quite amazing. However..I guess that was my mistake then..So there’s something like reservations..”

I already knew but I said it as if I was troubled.

“Oh? You were here to purchase for the first time in a while? That is certainly a problem. Unfortunately we don’t have any stock of combat slaves right now..”

The madam said with an expression like she was really troubled.

“Ah, today I didn’t come intending to buy a combat slave. Well, there’s no problem with it being a durable slave either way but this time I want slave that exclusively carries bags a {Porter}. Please show me your stock. You should be fine on general use slaves right? Also, this is the son of Marquis Rokis who is an adventurer in Baldukk as well. The one who wishes to purchase a combat slave is him but..I guess that’s a problem. I’m sorry about speaking so selfishly but I wonder if you can’t speed up arrangements for him?”

“Oh, is that how it was? If it’s an introduction from Greed-sama then I can’t just ignore it. However, right now we don’t have any stock of combat slaves so..We intend to get some stock around the end of this month but..I’m very sorry.”

The madam said and politely lowered her head to Rokis. Hey now, you can’t increase your stock of combat slaves until the end of the month, doesn’t that mean they’re already sold from reservations the moment you get them?

“Eeh!!? Is that so..can we make reservations for them?”

Rokis tried asking the madam.

“Yeah, of course you can. Is it alright if inquire with you at your inn? Depending on our stock we’ll send a messenger out. Since this time it’s an introduction from Greed-sama, we’ll let you check them before other customers.”

Oh~ It seems she’s being considerate for me. Sorry about that~

Rokis showed the madam his status and gave the name of the inn he’s staying at before leaving the store. This time he put in a reservation for three combat slaves. If it comes to the son of a Marquis I’m sure he has some money. Is what I was thinking but it seems he's resolved to throw down all of his assets. Candy gave a detailed listing of their budget down the last bit of it.

Well something like the state of other peoples wallets doesn't matter at all.

Rather than that, it's finally time for her to show me their stock of slaves.

"Ah, Ronslail-san. Since it's an exclusive {Porter} slave I want one that isn't too old or young. A male in his mid-20s to mid-30s would be best. I have no intention of letting them fight so they don't need to know how to use a weapon. But, it would be best if they have quite a bit of strength and stamina. Also, if it's someone who can cook and do massages that would be good as well."

After hearing my extravagant requests the madam put her hand to her jaw while thinking.

"Al-san, is it fine if they're not a combat slave? If they were attacked while watching the bags then.."

Toris called out a bit worried.

"No, it's not necessary. It's not like monsters come out after all and either way if another party attacked them alone there's no helping it. It would be pointless even having them resist. Regardless of whether they're a combat slave or general slave they won't survive a situation like that. And there's no need to let them participate in the combat while we're on the move as well. I have no intention of bringing them along to the 6th floor which seems dangerous either."

It seems the madam was waiting for me to finish replying before she said.

"Please come over here. I'll prepare them now but unfortunately I can only prepare two people who meet those conditions right now."

We all followed after the madam and were let into a room in the back. After waiting for a short while the madam brought back two men.

Lorence.Giberuti, Level 4, 26 years old, Dog-people race.

Mathew.Basshisu, Level 5, 32 years old, Human race.

Both of their conditions are good and they seem pretty healthy. But, I don't even need to go to the point of using Identify. Giberuti is the better choice because he has Super Sense of Smell. Though Basshisu isn't a bad choice either and his strength is a bit higher than Giberuti, but since Giberuti is young I'm sure he'll surpass that soon.

"What's the price of these two?"

"They're both 3,500,000 Z. They weren't born as serfs but rather they were servants of a carpenter in Rombertia. Since they didn't have much talent with carpentry and this time it's the request of none other than Greed-sama, this time you also introduced a customer to me, it's a good deal on them."

3,500,000 Z huh? I guess you could say it's the average price for a general slave who doesn't have an occupation and wasn't a serf.

"Is it fine to talk to them?"

Bel asked the madam.

"Yeah, please do."

The madam smiled while responding.

"You two, what are your names?"

"I'm Lorence.Giberuti."

"I'm Mathew.Basshisu."

The two of them honestly responded. That's only obvious huh?

"Have you entered the dungeon before?"

"I have not."

"Never."

That's only obvious as well.

"Can you use the sword or spear?"

Gwine started asking as well. However, that's too unreasonable.

"I've never held them before."

"I can't use them."

Well, it's not like there's a big difference between them, so it doesn't matter either way. I almost want to just say you all decide. However these guys, I can't help but feel they're just asking out of interest.

"Do you smoke?"

"No."

"No."

There's no way a slave would smoke something like a luxury good~

"Can you cook?"

"Yes, it's a specialty of mine."

"I can most things."

Well, it was one of my conditions after all.

"What about massages?"

"I was educated on it by my previous master."

"Is it really fine!?"

Hey, why are you looking at Bel? I reflexively looked at Toris's face. He's glaring displeased. That's only obvious. This human is no good.

It should already be fine right.

"Then..Yes, 3,500,000 Z. We'll take the Dog-people man."

"Yes, I've certainly received it. We'll have the proof of sales prepared by tomorrow morning. Will you visit the temple tomorrow? Or on another day?"

"Yeah, I'll come to receive him tomorrow morning, so we'll do it after that. Hey, let's go."

.....

Year 7444, Month 5, Day 19

Before heading to the dungeon we went to "Slave Store, Ronslail" and picked up Lorence.Giberuti and then just like headed towards the temple to get the naming ceremony done. We purchased a huge a shoulder basket and had him carry everyone's clothes, food, and luggage. Everyone is still holding a small bag of their own stuff but it's the one we had prepared with three days worth of preserved food (1kg of dried meat or so) and some other small things so we're much more agile than before.

We entered the dungeon before noon and not quite as late as midnight but just before 10 at night we were able to arrive at the teleport room of the 3rd floor.

.....

Year 7444, Month 5, Day 20

We've made it to the teleport room of the 5th floor. Up until now it took us around 12 hours to clear through the 4th floor but we were able to shorten it by close to 1 hour. That's a splendid thing. Giberuti is a pretty cheerful guy and everyone is already calling him Larry. At the very least by purchasing him the amount of time we spend gathering magic stones on the way should be shortened a bit as well. And above all else it's nice that we don't have to carry so much bulky things as well. Four days worth of underwear and things ends up coming out to quite a bit to carry and the food is quite heavy as well. Including him that's 5 days and 4 nights worth of preparations, including extras a total of 140 meals and if you include the pots, stoves, and buckets it weighs around 50kg. Of course if we just had one person holding all that then it would slow us down from the start so we split up to about 2-3kg per person.

With this everyone only has to carry a bag that weighs about 5kg each but even from the first day everyone's belongings got quite a bit lighter. Also since everyone had to throw their bags down during combat until now we couldn't bring along things like eggs but this time we can eat eggs even in the dungeon and our bread or vegetables won't get smashed throwing them either so I'm sure our meals will improve as well.

Our second night in the dungeon last night was already a few times more comfortable than it has been. Giberuti's skill at cooking was quite something. Maybe I'll buy a slightly better stove. Though he wasn't as skilled as Zulu when it came to massages he was still pretty good. Hmn, I'm glad I bought him. I wonder how much I should make Giberuti's wages? Since he's not a combat slave, I guess 20,000 Z (2 silver coins) should be plenty as a monthly salary.

.....

Year 7444, Month 5, Day 21

“Please put your seal here.”

I check over the estimate that was handed to me and make sure there's no problems. Yeah, it's fine. The price is good as well.

“Here.”

I pushed the X-stamp seal on it and sealed it with the mark of the company.

“Thank you very much.”

Inoue took the estimate document from me and headed towards the scanner. I'm sure he's going to turn it into a PDF and mail that to the other party. I returned to my process of producing materials for a sales meeting next week. I've been producing materials all day since before lunch without eating. The Wednesday's before a meeting are always like this. I need to finish making it by today and make sure it gets the {OK} from the department head by the end of the week.

I can have my subordinates produce the detailed graphs and tables but the composition of the materials themselves can't be done by anyone but myself. The trends of orders from last month and the remaining stock, the predictions for this month, the reasons why we arrived at those numbers. It's troublesome but it can't be helped. The one who reads this out at the meeting is the department head who is an executive but if a question comes up it's the duty of my the assistant head to offer an explanation.

..I guess I'll take a break.

I take a cigarette out of the suit I had on my chair, grabbed my lighter and started towards the smoking area.

I light my cigarette and take a puff, I look out the window at the scenery with the cigarette in my right hand. It's been raining since this morning. It feels like my feelings will start to sink.

“Kawasaki-san.”

Hn? I turn around and Shiina was there.

“Thank you for your work, here, please take this. I bought it on accident.”

Oh~ this is the brand of coffee that I like. The vending machine at our place was changed with a different one last week so there's been a number of cases of pressing the wrong button and purchasing the wrong thing.

"That's kind of you. Thanks."

(....v.....m...e..)

?

.....

Year 7444, Month 5, Day 24

After returning from the dungeon the other night I was tired so after having dinner with everyone, we left Gwine and Ralpa the heavy drinkers and including me all returned to the inn to sleep. Judging from their appearances they probably didn't return until late at night. The next morning when we were having breakfast the woman of leisure, well-side housewife Ralpa was talking.

"Just listen! This time it was Tim who was done in it seems. It seems he stepped on a trap on the 1st floor while they were fighting against a Giant Spider in a room. He just make reservations for three slaves the other day right?"

"Ral, it's hard to tell from just that. It seems that another person from Rokis-san's party died. It's probably because they were impatient and went to the 1st floor with just 6 of them.."

Gwine supplemented it.

"He~ that's quite foolish. Even though it wouldn't have been too late if he had just waited for the slaves...However, even reasonably skilled guys will die from traps huh? That sure is dangerous, we need to make sure we're careful as well."

Toris said while sighing after hearing that. I agree completely.

"And you know, it seems that Tiger-man who is the son of the Marquis finally had some thoughts on it so he decided to just properly do cooperation training until the slaves come without entering the dungeon."

For some reason Ralpa was saying amused by it. If you just think about it a bit that's true.

"Ral, who did you hear about that from?"

Bel said that.

"Hn? The guy I drank with yesterday. I forgot his name but I think he was a pretty good guy."

"Ralpha, since you're not a child anymore I won't say it too strictly but that is..is it a proper guy?"

Zenom said that uncomfortably. What is this old man saying?

"Ah, you don't need to worry. We had Gwine there who's strong with alcohol, so we just drank together."

"Then that's fine but.."

Hey now, don't be getting talked away~

"Zenom-san, Ral might seem like this but she's pretty level-headed, you don't need to worry."

Angela offered a helping hand to Ralpha.

"Maruso, you might say that but..Larry what do you think?"

Zenom threw the conversation to Giberuti with his slightly grim voice.

"I still don't know much about Ralpha-san so..But, I can say this much. I doubt there are many people who could be an opponent for Ralpha-san. After all, master and the others are the top adventurers in Baldukk the {Slaughterers} right? I heard about it from Zulu-sama."

Giberuti responded with a light tone, but I see, so Zulu said that. You, haven't you gotten quite boastful? Come to think of it Zulu is quietly eating at the edge. However, his expression looks pretty dangerous. Those are the eyes of a lion aiming for it's prey. Of a male that doesn't hunt though. Zulu's view is aimed towards the Laios woman with green hair working in the kitchen. Was the waitress of "Murowa" just playing around? This guy...No wait. It seems he was looking at the lamb leg that was hanging down in the kitchen. Sorry about that, Zulu.

However, I feel like something is off.

What is it?

I'm quietly bringing my thick cut bacon to my mouth alone.

The fragrance spreads out in my mouth and nose. It's delicious.

Was there something in the conversation that felt off to me?

It's not strange that Zulu doesn't use pepper. He only puts a ton of pepper on eggs. It's the usual that Ralpha is talking about pointless rumors as well. It's also the usual that Zenom is worrying about Ralpha. There wasn't off about what the newcomer Giberuti said either.

Then, what is it?

Isn't it just a common story about how Rokis's party is breaking a bit at a time like the teeth of a comb? Is it the way they died? It's a common story to die while fighting monsters or getting caught in traps. There's always at least one person like that per month. There's even stories about groups being completely wiped out so it's not all that unusual that they would be concentrated in a party like Rokis, I'm sure that with less members their synthesized combat ability was reduced and they were less cautious of the surroundings after all...

Trap?

Chapter 125: Trap

Year 7444, Month 5, Day 25

Morning, I woke up before daybreak and before having breakfast I think while running. Angela is keeping up behind me as I run. These guys, don't they get tired of that? Just like this Zulu and Angela switch out daily under the pretense of fortifying as my bodyguards. The only times they don't come with me are long holidays like the end of the year and when I go to the capital, also if I'm just randomly wandering around the town.

It's not like they're particularly causing any trouble for me so if my slaves can relax better like that then I'm just letting them do as they please. It's not a bad thing to run after all. It leaves a good impression that as long as I don't talk to them first they have no intention of interrupting my thinking as well. I run up the crater-like hills surrounding the town of Baldukk as a warm up and once I get to the summit of the crater I increase my speed running the roads. I wonder if I can't increase my Endurance a bit more already? I started running when I was 10 years old but I've still only gained 1 point in Endurance from my daily running.

There was an early dawn sky when we left but it's gradually started to get brighter. After breakfast yesterday, because of the exhaustion from the dungeon I took it easy for a day and thought about various things. In regards to the continued casualties in Rokis's party.

Since I'm sure that Rokis's party had enough ability to make it to the 2nd floor, even if their members were in their late teens to early 20s, I didn't think they were all that foolish(or reckless) in their behavior. Since they were able to make it to the 2nd floor they should have properly been producing a map and being reasonably careful.

However, it's a fact that you never know what will happen in the dungeon and as a result of that there were some casualties. If I remember right then the first one was the Bunny-man died in combat to an Ork. Next was the Tiger-man who died from a crossbow trap. I don't know if the Bunny-man died on the 1st floor or the 2nd floor but since they're a party that goes to the 2nd floor it should have been there. In regards to the tiger-man the crossbow traps come out on the 2nd floor as well so it's a very possible story.

After that, two people have died in boss rooms on the 2nd floor. It's unknown if they died as a result of the combat or traps but just going off information from the surface there's nothing strange there either. If it's at that level, it's really something that happens all the time.

However, the next one is the problem. On the 1st floor, while in combat with a Giant Spider in the boss room, one more died from stepping on a trap. It takes some guts to enter the dungeon after 4 people had already died and combat ability has dropped but it's not all that strange. It was after he made reservations for three combat slaves after all, I'm sure he wanted to earn even just a bit. In the first place, we only had four people when we first challenged the dungeon. And if it's at the level of the 1st floor it's not like there aren't people who enter it alone so it's not all that strange.

Giant Spiders are a large spider that have a body of around 50 cm, they're individual combat ability isn't as high as Gargantuan Spiders. However, different from Gargantuan Spiders when they come out in the boss rooms they come in groups. They have poison as well and are reasonably fast so depending on how you think about it they could be seen as more troublesome than Gargantuan Spiders. However, they don't usually have webs in their nest like the Gargantuan Spider so if you make sure to fortify your defenses they aren't all that much of a problem. Unless they manage to jump on you and bite somewhere there's no armor or clothes you won't take much damage either.

That's why, if most adventurers have confidence in their skills they can just kill them in one thrust of the speed or quickly run through the room shaking them off. If you were to say something extreme then as long as you properly fortify your defenses it will take time but even some newcomers can deal with them. I doubt there's any newcomers who properly fortify their defenses though. Their magic stones are roughly the value of 2 goblins each and since they have poison, it's common to just run past them or ignore them, that level of monster. After all antidote medicine is 20,000 Z (2 silver coins) for even the cheapest ones. And you never know when other monsters might come attack you while you're fighting them so most people just choose to run past them.

The reason why Rokis and the others chose to fight against the Giant Spiders, I can only imagine as to being they thought they wouldn't take much damage and if they're careful they could retreat before any other monsters came, though that itself is fine. Even when it comes to stepping on a trap in combat, it's not a good thing, but well it happens. There are times when you can't always pay attention to your feet in combat after all. There's no surprise you might step on a trap if there is one. The problem is that trap was supposedly in the boss room.

Up until now, at the very least until the 6th floor we're at we've never discovered anything like a trap in one of the rooms. I guess you could say there's something small that is similar to that though. Though I think the possibility we just overlooked them is high. I think that that but somehow I can't just accept that. The only time traps that come out that kill in a single hit are the crossbows starting from the 2nd floor. Even then it's only if you take it to the face, neck, heart, or vital organs, in many cases it won't kill you instantly. Though in reverse you could say it's plenty enough to kill you.

The only traps on the 1st floor are pitfalls, unless you fall in head first they shouldn't be anything that you would lose your life from. Since it seems to have been in combat, it might have been possible when he had some momentum going he tripped and rolled in head first, is a possibility as well but in that case I wonder if they would say "stepped on a trap"? Well, that was just something Ralpa heard from rumors, so I don't think it's all that trustworthy but...

In the first place if you interpret "stepped on a trap" as "activated the effects of a trap" then it's no problem. The problem is that trap was in the boss room on the 1st floor and it's unknown what kind of trap it was. In some meanings you could say it's only common sense that it's either a pitfall or alarm if it's a trap on the 1st floor (even on the map we produced of the 1st floor there's nothing but those two types) but I can't deny the possibility there's even a crossbow. There's even worse traps than that on lower floors after all, it wouldn't be unnatural at all if a huge metal ball suddenly came rolling, the ceiling suddenly falls, or some spears come flying. I've heard that there's a case on the 2nd and 3rd floors where the wall is a pitfall (if you lean on it then the wall pushes in), as well.

I wonder if we should investigate it?

If you think about it realistically then I'm sure it's impossible. However, after thinking about it this far I realized that what was bothering me was something different. Or rather, since I just don't want to think about it I was thinking more about investigating traps. I noticed it yesterday morning. In the first place the first victim the Bunny-man, they say he was killed during combat with an Ork. I wonder if this is true? It's hard to imagine a party of adventurers who can make it to the 2nd floor dying to a monster other than the boss rooms.

Putting aside some newcomers, these are guys who were exploring the dungeon for over a year. It's unthinkable that they let their guards down and their skill shouldn't be bad either.

Were they killed by someone else while in combat with the Ork? Since it seems they retreated they weren't able to confirm the corpse of the Bunny-man. Whether it be a sword or spear wound, an arrow, or maybe even spell (If it comes to {Air Cutter} or {Winder Cutter} from a glance they look like sword wounds). In any case, they aren't idiots so if they notice the situation is a disadvantage to them they'll start running. If during combat with multiple orks someone were to fall, it makes sense they'd run if they can. Just like Orks do in that case.

The second victim, I heard that the Tiger-man who picked a fight with me died from a crossbow trap. I wonder if this was during combat as well? During a time when they're fighting with multiple monsters the guy next to them makes a mistake and falls. After the combat when they check him and there's a bolt from a crossbow in one of his vital organs. There weren't any other monsters. Ah, this guy, so he stepped on a trap huh? Otherwise someone else stepped on the trap and the bolt unluckily hit him. Here..after searching there's a switch nearby. This is a trap.

It's not strange thinking that way. Rather it's only obvious.

It's the same for the ones after the third. The fact that they died during combat was the same as the first and the fifth one is said to have died from a trap but it's not said to be a pitfall. The only trap that's come out with a specific name so far is the crossbow. A considerably shocking death through falling into a pitfall it would be stranger for them not to mention it.

Shit. Is this the revival of {Bright Blade}. If you're going to ambush the opponent then you want at least two to three times the enemy in numbers. Since if you don't crush them all at once you it's easy to end up taking damage on the attacking side. You gradually reduce their numbers starting from those with the flimsiest equipment, once they've been reduced to a certain number you wipe them out all at once. Since the limit that you can enter the dungeon with is 10 people the first objective would be to reduce them to 5 people or less.

Previously, the timing that {Bright Blade} attacked us was perfect. A powerful enemy like the {Frost Lizard} appeared, we used magic consecutively to get rid of the gargoyles, and all of the {Slaughterers} were focused on attacking the {Frost Lizard}. After some amount of damage was done to the {Frost Lizard} they tried to use focus fire on me who seemed to be out of mana and can use magic, next up would have been to finish off the archer next to me right away. By that time the rest of the party would have been exhausted from combat with the {Frost Lizard} so they would have had trouble dealing with a sudden attack. The only method for the {Slaughterers} to survive in that situation would be at best to have the dwarf girl using the spear move around to guard the rear while somehow quickly finishing off the {Frost Lizard} then all trying to attack at once.

If I hadn't been there, no, if I had been out of mana then the probability we would have been wiped out was really high. However, that was a strategy that could be used because we were in combat with the {Frost Lizard}, no, because we were in combat in a boss room on the 5th floor. And in the first place, the {Slaughterers} only have 8 members. Putting aside the vampire that came out on the 4th floor, if it's just at the level of the 1st or 2nd floor one person can remain to keep the monster in check while the rest of the members could have done some damage to {Bright Blade}. Of course, in the end {Bright Blade} probably wouldn't lose but if there's a possibility they would take some kind of damage I'm sure they wouldn't try initiating such a reckless attack.

It's only obvious but {Bright Blade} has already been wiped out so it's someone new.

I don't know how they're following after Rokis's party but it's not like there's no methods at all. I'll try thinking about the several methods that are possible.

A.

1. First off they start by doing something to reduce the number by even one. This is fine even if it's a coincidence.

2. Next time by coincidence as well..

..It's only obvious that's impossible. What kind of out of the world probability would that be?

B.

1. First start off by somehow reducing their numbers my one. This is fine as a coincidence.

2. After the next time, one of the attackers uses the spell {Invisibility} and sneaks in when they teleport together.

3. Use a crossbow and watch out for the chance during combat..

..Rejected. {Invisibility} is a spell I wouldn't even know if I hadn't heard about it from Karl. I can't imagine there are many people who can use it. There's also the problem of the duration and their equipment.

C.

1. Have one of their allies sneak into Rokis's part. Bribing one of them is fine as well.

2. After that..

..How are they going to meet them in the dungeon. It's impossible. Rejected.

D.

1. Have one of their allies sneak into Rokis's party. Bribing them is fine as well.

2. That person looks for the chance and shoots a bolt from a crossbow at them.

..It seems difficult but it's probably not completely impossible. It doesn't have to be a bolt but magic is fine as well. After killing them if you pretend to be the first one to discover their corpse and point to a bolt nearby it could work. On hold.

E.

1. Go ahead and wait in the teleport room on the 1st floor for them.
2. Split the party into multiple groups, while they're in combat aim or guys who are spacing out they aim for with a crossbow and kill with a bolt. It would require a considerably high level of skill.
3. In this case, they wouldn't have had their eyes set on Rokis's party from the start. It's possible that they just happened to succeed twice and after that they tried putting priority on them as well.

It's an extremely difficult thing to manage but not as much as A. It doesn't just have to be the 1st floor but if they wait in one of the areas leading towards the center of the dungeon not far from the teleport room then it's not a completely impossible method. Though they would need enough skill to deal with the monsters on the 1st floor alone...On hold.

F.

1. There's a method of using the teleport crystal rod that I, no, that isn't commonly known. For example if you chant the same incantation as the previous party you can teleport to the same location...Since there's supposedly people that have tried this that shouldn't be the case but there might be some method that isn't known.

I'm sure the probability is low. For the time being, On hold.

G.

1. There's someone who has some sort of Unique Ability that let's the attacker know the current location of their target.

It's close to F but this would make them a reincarnated person. If I think about the number then after all it seems like a low probability. It's also unnatural that they wouldn't notice us, or we wouldn't notice them while wandering through the town as well. If it's a Japanese then they would probably try coming to talk after all...Well, for the time being, On hold.

H.

1. One of the attackers can use some kind of spell that can determine the location of the target.

It's about the same as B. {Locate Object} or {Locate Mammal} I guess..For the most part it's pretty unlikely. Rejected.

The one's to take into consideration as a possibility are from D to G but F and G..I wonder about them. It's pointless to even start thinking about in the case that it's one or both of those. Particularly F. In this case, they would have a method to send a large scale unit into a single area of the dungeon so it would be unnatural for it not to be known. Ah, I guess it's pretty meaningless if they can't use it past the 2nd floor huh? If it's just a matter of clearing through the 1st floor then 10 soldiers would have no problem after all.

Well it's fine. I should think if there's any other methods in regards to D and E. It's about time for my running to end.

.....

I have breakfast together with everyone the same as usual while concentrating my thoughts. It should be fine to ignore G and H on this occasion. There's not much meaning in just thinking about it. The one with the highest probability is probably E. I'm sure it could go even in combination with D. In the case that it's combined with D, it would take several months to get close to them or sneak someone in but it's not something that can't be done. In that case, if the attackers were alone or few in number then the reason might be related to a grudge as well, in the case it's also a mix with E..I can't abandon the possibility that it's related to a grudge but there's also the possibility that it's a job, as well. Of course, even if they're alone it's possible it's a job.

"What is it? Making such a complicated face. Did something happen?"

I guess it's because I was making a frown while thinking and not really participating in the conversation.

Zenom called out to me with a worried voice.

"Yeah, I was thinking a bit about Rokis and the others."

Ralpa jumped on after hearing my words.

“Ah, after all it was bothering you? I thought it was strange as well right.”

He~ so you did too?

“I wonder if that’s the case, it sounds just like a story you can hear from anywhere though.”

Angela entered the conversation.

“As a matter of fact, it was bothering me a bit as well. Particularly the part about a trap in the boss room, isn’t that unnatural?”

Bel added as well.

“Ah, Bel you think so too? Up until there were no traps in mon-rooms right? That’s why, I thought this was a really serious matter, yeah.”

After all Ralpa noticed that part as well. However stop abbreviating things like mon-room.

“Ah, if you put it like that, that is true. There were no traps in monster rooms up until now.”

Toris agrees with Ralpa and Bel.

“However, Kalstalan-sama, isn’t that just that we haven’t been able to find them until now?”

So Zulu agrees with Angela huh?

“Since it’s not like we’ve seen all of the rooms up until now..Hn? However, since around the 4th floor we’ve seen pretty much all of them..It’s true I don’t think there were any traps.”

Zenom said seriously.

“But, in that case then what in the world..Ah.”

Judging off Gwine’s expression it seems she arrived at the same possibility as I did.

“Probably..It’s just probably but I think there’s someone targeting Rokis’s party.”

I bit off a piece of my bacon, left my oatmeal with salt and pepper flavoring to the side, and took a sip of bean tea before saying that.

“Yesterday, I’ve been thinking about it since then..”

I said all of the things I just organized in my head since yesterday while running. Excluding B, C, G, and H. Since I’ve started to become able to trust Zulu and Angela if we weren’t in this place I wouldn’t mind telling them about it though. Giberuti is here as well.

“Hmn, if you put it like that then that feels like it might be the case as well.”

Bel agreed with me.

“Certainly, if you say it like that then that seems to be possible.”

Toris thought of it as well.

“I wonder what their objective is?”

Gwine said her thinking one step ahead.

“If you were to think about it normally then, it’s probably a grudge. Maybe they’re resented by someone for something in the past?”

Zulu shows a glimpse of his hasty thought processes. Though I wonder if it’s really a good idea to hastily come to a decision. That is still plenty a possibility.

“That Rokis-san is the son of a Marquis-sama from somewhere right? Isn’t it assassination or something? I don’t know about Rokis-san’s siblings, father, or mother but if the Marquis-sama is a minister that isn’t the lord then it could be their political opponent or something. Depending on the case it could even be a job from his family to reduce the members of Rokis-san’s party in order to call him back home, or something like that.”

Giberuti who was quiet until now said that. Huh? This guy, he can think things out pretty well.

“Larry, you, weren’t an idiot? Since you’re always so frivolous I thought you were a bit out of it.”

There’s only one person I know who calmly say things like that. That’s why you’re still getting into so many fights.

“That’s rude. I’m not an idiot. I have a head that can properly think about things.”

Giberuti responded a bit angry. When he faced Ralpa his drooping ears jumped up a bit. Even though he’s a 26 year old bro I thought it was a bit cute.

“Forgive her, Giberuti. Just as you can see, she left her brain in her mother’s stomach. She’s a pitiful child. You can tell the hardships Zenom went through right?”

I said that to Giberuti to calm him down and continued my words.

“Ralpa as well I’m always saying it right. It’s your convenience to think that way but stop putting it into words every time. The atmosphere will get worse. In the first place it’s not amusing. Shut your mouth for a bit. Let’s stop with this conversation already. It’s not like we’re the ones being targeted after all. It’s not guaranteed that Rokis is being targeted either. Even if that is the case, it’s just a matter of ROKis giving it his best to repel that. That’s the end. Let’s stop there.”

After being told that by me Ralpa was a bit displeased but she just pouted her lips and started to sulk. It’s true it might seem like she’s reflecting a bit but I really wonder. I’ll give her points for obediently remaining quiet though.

.....

Year 7444, Month 5, day 27

We’re entering the dungeon again starting today. I wonder if Rokis was able to get his hands on some slaves? Just past noon the other day, from a glance I could see them doing cooperation training in a vacant lot on the edge of town but there was five of them. However, I haven’t seen them since yesterday. I’m sure they got their hands on some. I wonder if they’re entering the dungeon yesterday and today? I wonder if they noticed that they’re being targeted? Well even if they have realized if they don’t enter the dungeon they can’t earn anything. Since it’s easy to tell sooner or later they’ll curl their tails up and run home, if they don’t want to return home then there’s no choice but to enter though.

Just like usual we smoothly cleared through the 1st and 2 floors, we took slightly early lunch in the teleport room on that 2nd floor. Next to all the guys that are chewing away at dried meat and preserved foods we're crunching away at a cabbage, spinach, and garlic stir-fry with salt and pepper seasoning while biting into chunks of pork in a delicious meat soup. We took a two hour break to regain our energy while being looked at with stares of envy and teleported to the 3rd floor.

We crushed the first monster room and cleared through the second one with no problem either. On the third room there were four {Cave Gorillas} so we struggled a bit but we were able to wipe them out without any injuries. And we charged into the fourth room.

It was something we already knew before we entered the room but this is a room with something like torture devices. A bed with something like handcuffs and shackles on it, an {Iron Maiden}, a pitchfork, some pliers with spines on them, a wooden horse made from metal, some crosses and other devices for waterboarding, some of the wooden parts seem to have degraded a bit but large devices are scattered throughout the room. We've never tried entering a monster room of this type until now.

But, the moment we entered the room and just in case I was taking a look around it happened. There were six passages that lead into the room but all of those exits suddenly had some kind of metal cage fall down sealing us in the room!

The only ones who made it into the room were Zulu, myself, Gwine, and Toris us four. The remaining five are still outside of the room. I ran up to the iron bars but let alone Zulu, I can't even open it with my strength. This is bad, we were split up! It was only a brief moment that I thought that, Bel and the others who were outside were yelling warnings.

We turned around in a panic and I caught sight of a large silhouette raising from the bed approaching over here. It's height easily exceeded two meters, close to two and a half. Before I even said anything Zulu and Toris fortified the front while Gwine went on guard with her spear. I went into stance with my bayonet while, said that and had Toris and Zulu charge forward.

"We'll meet the enemy a bit closer to the center. It's difficult for Bel to support us."

The silhouette is closing in on us with large steps. If I look closely it has something like surgical scars and incisions all over it's body and it's skin is like patchwork. The thickness of it's right and left hands, and right and left legs are slightly different and the length of it's right and left hands are slightly different as well. {Frankenstein} huh? It's wearing pants that are close to a worn-out cloth and while it's wearing something similar to a shirt only a small port of it is remaining so it's almost useless in terms of defense. It's basically one step above being naked.

【

【Male/4/4/7444 · Flesh Golem】

【Condition: Incisions】

【Age: 0 Years Old】

【Level: 14】

【HP: 313(313) MP: 20(20)】

【Strength: 40】

【Agility: 20】

【Dexterity: 25】

【Endurance: 100】

【Special Skill: Thunder】

【Special skill: Magic Resistance 100】

This is no good, this guy is the dangerous type. In the first place, he's still unharmed but his condition is incisions what in the world?

“Everyone disperse!”

I give the order and start kneading my mana. He has a special skill called Magic Resistance but putting aside fire or wind, something with substance like an ice or stone spear should have an effect. I created some ice in {Frankenstein}'s surroundings. After all it was pointless huh? In the first place, I was intending to freeze his entire body but the moment all of the water that gushed forth touched {Frankenstein}'s feet it disappeared and the magic seems to have failed partway. So Ice is no good huh? In that case.

“{Stone Javelin Missile}”

Since it seems dangerous I sent five of them flying. {Frankenstein} clenched both of his fists and raised them above and then crouched down as if he was going to smash them into the ground all at once. What is he doing, this idiot? Before his fists can reach the ground my stone javelins will reach his head and his open back.

This will do a lot of damage!

The moment I thought that the stone spears disappeared without a sound the moment they hit.

What?!?

“Master!!”

Angela’s yell echoed at as she had both of her hands on the iron bars.

His hands hit the floor. Sparks are shot off between his two fists and in an instant that followed along the ground until it reached me.

This is!...n’t bad.

The electricity passed by my feet and hit the wall behind me then went in a different direction.

Ah, it’s the rubber-sole boots huh? Excluding Giberuti we’re all using boots that have rubber soles.

I guess we should be fine as long as it doesn’t use something like {Lightning Bolt} that shoots through the air?

Zulu who was about 5 meters to the front of me on the right jumped over the wooden horse and charged at it with his bastard sword while letting out a battle cry. On my left side about 7–8 meters away Gwine is taking the pin out of her bag and dropping it on the floor before going on guard again with her spear. A bit to the left of that Toris has already thrown his bag down while holding his long sword in his right hand is charging along with Zulu.

I can’t fall behind them. I throw away my bag as well and prepare my bayonet then dashed towards {Frankenstein} at my full speed.

Along the way an arrow hit {Frankenstein} in the head. It’s reinforcements from Bel. That’s helpful. His HP dropped to 310.

There's only that much damage even though it hit his head!?

I saw Zulu jump in as he swings his bastard sword from the right side of my vision.

{Frankenstein} raised it's left arm and blocked that. Zulu's sword sunk about halfway into it's left forearm. It's HP dropped to 301.

Toris ran in and started cutting at {Frankenstein} from the left.

Just the same as {Frankenstein} blocked Zulu's attack it blocked it with it's right arm. HP 296.

I overtook Gwine and while both of {Frankenstein}'s arms were sealed I stabbed into the right side of it's stomach with my bayonet then used all of my power to pull it out towards the right side. Something like entrails came out of the wound. HP 284.

Almost simultaneously Gwine's spear was thrust into the center of it's chest and immediately pulled out. HP 277.

I went to roll through the space between Zulu and it's left arm where Zulu's ken was still stuck.

However, of all things! {Frankenstein} forcefully waved it's left arm to the inside! Of course while Zulu was still holding on to his sword! Even after Zulu was thrown into me he still had hold on his sword. In my case since I was hit by Zulu's body I ended up falling to one knee collapsing on the ground. I don't know what happened to Toris.

Shit!

I quickly corrected my posture and using the force of standing up I hit Franken (it's annoying to say) with my gun-stock in the jaw. HP 275.

And, then Franken's HP started to drop quickly. HP 270, 265, 259, 253, 248.

It seems that Toris is cutting away at it's back. I guess it was a blessing that he doesn't have as much strength as Zulu, Toris was able to pull his sword out right away.

I quickly jumped backwards while maintaining some distance and simultaneously ordered Zulu.

“Zulu, use it!”

In exchange for replying to me Zulu let out a tremendous war cry of gogaaa~~!!!! while cutting in at a high speed. HP 228, 210, it seems he cut it's left arm off from below the elbow. Even then Zulu's gale-like attacks continue. However, it's blocking all of Zulu's attacks with the remainder of it's left arm. 208, 205, 203. The left arm Frank was using to block Zulu's attacks is all worn-out. Unfortunately he wasn't able to do much damage at all along the way. It's probably because there's almost no HP remaining in his left arm.

I charge in a bit late and stab, cut, twist, kick, and smash it as well. HP 194, 192, 191, 181, 179, 177.

Another arrow hits it's head. HP 174, 171. We've finally gotten it down halfway.

A spear is stabbed into it's chest and pulled out. HP 163, 155.

It's right arm was swung down. I managed to dodge it by lowering my head but it seems it was aiming for Zulu who was on my right. He took a direct hit when he was about to swing his sword again and Zulu went flying. I quickly heard the sound of Zulu's large body hitting something.

““Zulu!!””

”“Zulu-sama!!””

I couldn't hear Bel's voice but she's probably firing the bow. We can't rely on Zulu's Instant Speed anymore. I dodge the fists that was returning and this time focused my attacks on it's left left.

“Aaah!!”

Gwine's voice rings out. Her spear was grabbed and thrown away. Gwine runs towards the direction her spear was thrown in a panic.

Someone fired a {Fire Arrow} into Franken's face but jsut the same as the stone javelin it disappeared. It was probably Ralpha.

I cut into it's left inner thigh and thin cut while pulling out and jumping backwards. HP 149.

HP 144, 138. It's Toris's attack. I guess it's started to annoy him but after I took a bit of distance Franken turned around to face Toris.

Hn? Special Skill: Magic Resistance 93 , it seems it's not an invincible barrier against magic. However, I would have to hit it with magic another 93 times huh? I think that number is probably the number of times it can resist but there's no time to leisurely be opening the sub-window.

This time I start attacking it from behind like Toris did. There's a number of deep cut wounds on it's back.

"oooh~!!"

I put some fighting spirit into it as I stab in with my bayonet and kick off to pull it out. HP 130. I don't know if I was able to crumble it's posture a bit but it's attack with it's right arm missed Toris. An arrow stabbed into it's left shoulder. HP 128.

Once again with bayonet, this time I stab into the back side of it's right leg, twist it out, and cut into it. HP 120, 118, 110. Shit it's movements don't get any duller at all. Frank swings it's right arm down towards me as I'm attacking it from behind and misses. Another arrow stabs into it's upper arm. HP 108.

It continues swinging it's right arm without paying any attention to the arrow. I heard a sound like Goshi~!! and Toris went flying but stopped just before he hit the wall of the room.

"You-chan!!"

"Toris!!"

"Kalstalan-sama!!"

I can hear multiple screams from the other side of the iron bars.

It seems Toris let go of his sword but he's still breathing and desperately trying to stand up.

"Yaaaa~!!"

Around the left side of it's back ribs Gwine's spear stabs into it. So she already made it back? That's admirable of you. HP 100. Franken didn't make the foolish mistake of following after Toris and turned around to me. With Gwine's spear still stabbed into it. I guess Gwine couldn't pull her spear out. That spear just barely spun over top of my head. Th..that was dangerous~

It's arm swings down aimed at me. It's not a good idea to think about taking it on. I'm sure I'll just end up being smashed away like Toris. I succeeded in dodging with a hair's breadth.

However, my posture collapsed. If it goes like this then I might take the back of it's fist on it's way back.

Ei~ it can't be helped. I use wind magic to create a lump of air between Franken and myself. In an instant I was blown backwards. As expected I saw Franken fall over in a somersault. Thanks to my rubber protectors I didn't suffer any injuries from the stone floor but it still hurts. I saw Zulu stand up using his sword as a cane in the edge of my sight. I use Identify on Toris and he still has about 30% of his HP remaining but his condition is bone fracture. From a glance his left hand from the elbow below are bent in the reverse direction and his left leg is strange as well.

This is bad! If his leg is broken then he can't move. I quickly jumped up and after preparing my bayonet I charged at Franken again. I returned Identify to Franken as well.

“Nuaaaa~!!”

I naturally raised a groan. I showed as if I was going to stab into it but used wind magic to my immediate left to shift the position of my body. Soon after that I used wind magic against my back to suddenly accelerate. Since I'm not using the palms of my hands to activate the magic, the mana efficiency falls a bit and it requires some concentration but I practice daily for cases like this.

It's a sudden acceleration that feels like my bones are creaking but my bayonet was magnificently able to stab through it's chest with full momentum. HP 85. I quickly twisted my body and with all my power kicked off while pulling it out. Franken staggered back two or three steps but quickly gained it's balance again. It fixed it's stance as well. It's coming to attack me while swinging it's right arm and the remnants of it's left arm.

I dodge with a paper-thin difference and thrust my bayonet in, then pull it out while mowing it down, I move around while holding it in check.

Several arrows hit Franken in the head one after another. HP 78, 75, 72, 69.

Zulu..Shit..Still not here?

Zulu is starting to charge in once again after standing up and preparing his stance but his speed has dropped quite a bit. I watch as the left arm passes by and dodge the punch from the right arm. Some black blood is flying around as it tries to kick as well. I put a kick into it's leg that's the center of it's balance and when Franken's kick weakens I received it with my gun-stock. Making use of that momentum I hit it in the stomach with my gun-stock and cut it's upper body with my bayonet when it's posture collapsed. HP 60.

I quickly raised the magazine portion of it to hit it in the head. HP 59.

Predicting an attack by it's arm I curled my body up to let it's arm cut air and then used the force I stood up with to stab into it's abdomen with my bayonet and immediately pulled it out. HP 51.

After stabbing into it's abdomen again Franken's upper body fell forward and a {Tomahawk} sunk into it's left shoulderblade with a dobo!! HP 42. Either Ralpa or Zenom. Either way that was nice!

Zulu swung down his bastard sword again there. HP 32. Oh~ He was able to cut off it's left arm from the shoulder.

Unable to endure it Franken fell to one knee but quickly rose back up used it's remaining right arm to pick up it's left arm and started swinging that around like a club.

Zulu is calmly dealing with that.

It seems before we noticed we had moved close to Toris. It would be bad if we involved Toris who can't move like this. I order Zulu "Endure!" and thrown my bayonet down before running to Toris and immediately using {Cure All} on the bone fracture in his arm and leg while going over to grab Toris's long sword that was on his side.

I hold Toris's long sword in both of my hands as I turned around to Franken.

Frank who was in combat with Zulu tried to evade Zulu's attack and ended up turning around to face him from the front.

Gwine's spear that was still stabbed into it's back circled around almost hitting me from the right this time. That was dangerous~

It was good that I crouched down suddenly and evaded it but if it's like this then I can't attack right away.

Franken is swinging his right arm with it's extended reach like crazy.

Shit, this location is bad. I'm sure Toris can't move right away either. I need to somehow move the battlefield.

I rolled past Franken on his side and went to attack his flank. However, I was blocked by the extended reach of his arm and couldn't hit him well with the sword. It seems just a bit of Zulu's attack landed. HP 30.

Without missing the moment Franken's posture collapsed I went all out stepping in and cut at him with the long sword. It went well. HP 22. I quickly jump back and stand on guard with the long sword again.

There it starts groaning while swinging it's left arm that was cut off again. I somehow was able to dodge it by ducking but it was my limit just dodging it. I jump up just a bit again and fixed my stance. However, Toris is right by my side. Zulu seems to have found an opening and is stabbing in with his bastard sword. HP 18. An arrow hit him. HP 15.

However, it seems it was shallow. After pulling his arm back Franken went to swing his arm straight down. This trajectory is bad!

It can't be helped. It shouldn't be anything that kills me.

I use magic in the space between Franke, Toris, and I...another {Tomahawk} hit Franken in the upper arm again! though I don't know if that was faster or my wind magic.

I think they were almost the same. However, the {Tomahawk} that hit Franken's upper arm sped the speed it was swinging down a bit. I certainly was able to activate my wind magic but I completely hit the arm.

Thanks to that I ended up flying in a direction I wasn't predicting. Almost right behind me. There should be a wall right behind and hitting directly would be bad, wind magic..I wasn't able to make it in time and hit the wall.

However, there wasn't much impact at all. But, of all things!

There is a trap in this room!

It's a pitfall.

Not to mention it's the type that falls inwards when you lean on the wall!

I felt like I heard a sound like kin! ring out through the center of my head.

Shit, ah?

O?

Oh?

Falling!?

I used wind magic with as much force as I could but it didn't send me back up..It's not activating!

Be!!?

I bounced on the slippery floor. Is it not that deep?

Go!!?

I rebounded off the floor and bounced again. It's slanted!

Gu!!

This is bad!

Why!?

I frantically tried to grab onto the floor but it was slimy and I ended up slipping.

Ga!!

Gi!!

Gu!!

Ge!!

Am I the ball of a game of pinball!?

Wind magic..It's impossible huh?

Chapter 126: Mana Exhaustion

{Meteor Swarm} (All Elements Lv.9, Consumes 4,500 MP)

It creates a swarm of mysterious objects that have a diameter of 10m and smashes them into the target. Super dangerous.

Al there's still some cheats remaining for you!

Year 7444, Month 5, Day 27

I gave it my best desperately trying to cling to the protuberances on the floor but they're at best a light uneven slope of about 10 cm and the surface is slimy so there's no way to grab on to them. It's to the point where it was good luck that I somehow managed to shift my posture so I was sliding down with my feet first and my head up. I quickly perceived that the lid of the dark slanted pitfall closed from above.

Because, up until now there was some slight light from the entrance but now it's completely shut off into darkness. This is bad, Identify..and just as I was thinking that I saw some small amount of light from my lower body but! just as I thought that both of my legs were standing properly on the ground. Of course, I still had the momentum remaining so I ended up rolling along just like that.

I touched the floor and felt the sensation of solid and dry dirt. Then I'll use the spell {Light}..I can't use it. In that case Identify, I can't use that either! What does this mean!? I suddenly started to feel helpless in the pitch darkness so I started to search around for the long sword I had let go of before I realized it and started crawling around but I couldn't find it.

Shit!! What in the world!? is this.

I can understand that I fell in something like a pitfall. I also know that the lid of it closed right away. Along the way down I saw a bit of fine light but..was that, teleportation huh!? Is this not the 3rd floor that I was on until just now!?

I looked upwards and yelled out "Hey!" but there was no response.

I thought I might end up calling some monsters over so I thought again and stopped yelling but the impulse to scream out remains just as large as before. We were just a bit away from defeating Franken. I wonder if, those guys will be alright? I think they should have been able to defeat it in another one or two hits, so I want to believe that they're fine but..Somehow I suddenly start to feel uneasy about it.

Come to think of it, since it seems I've survived the immediate emergency, it might just be my imagination but I feel hungry..I'm hungry! Ah,aaaa,aaa,aa.... Shit! This feeling. It's mana exhaustion!

This is bad, this is bad, this is bad. This is very bad!

Following that I intensely want to have sex.

The desire to sleep has quickly started to come on as well.

I guess it's because I was in a situation where I didn't even have the time to worry about feeling any desires until now. Otherwise, the anxiety I felt around the time I hit the ground was caused by running out of MP as well?

Ah, my bag. There should be three days worth of preserved food in my bag but..It's not here! I should have been carrying it on my back..damn it! I pulled out the pin and threw it aside before charging into Franken. Then, in that case the emergency use antidote and healing potion that I put into the pack on my D ring..I guess it was no good that I had put it inside of a leather bag but the medicine bottle feels like it shattered inside the bag.

Then, in that case..Ah, shit, I feel hungry and my crotch is raging with violent energy. I took off the crotch protector portion of my rubber protectors. It hurt since it was hitting. Of course I'm still holding the crotch portion that I took off. There's no way I'd throw it away right. However, with this my only belonging is the flask I had hanging from my tassets on the opposite side. It seems that this one is safe but it's empty. No, there might be one or two drops of water remaining though.

My weapons are..the brass knuckles in the fists of both of my gauntlets and the throwing needles built into the simple shield on both of my arms for a total of 20 of them, and the knife I have fixed to the band on my right thigh. It seems my safe is safe as well.

However, I'm tired. Boiling. Hungry. If it was just one, since I'm already an adult I'm sure I can still endure it. However, for all three primary desires to come at once, what kind of torture is this? If I felt like it I could at least take care of sexual desire but if I was attacked or killed by a monster in the middle of that, for an eternity..rather if I die here there isn't even a next era.

Ah, but, I've been rolling over here and there while screaming.

If there was a monster nearby then it's strange that I wasn't long since attacked.

Then, in that case I guess there aren't any monsters nearby, in other words... The moment I feel like I'm able to start thinking clearly, the feeling of wanting to satisfy my desires gets stronger to where I can't hold it back. Shit, shit!! Be cool! The feeling of starvation is terrible!

I'm tired!

I want to do it!

I was able to think "No matter what I do isn't staying in the center of the room a bad idea? with the little remaining ability to think I had. It would be good if I can make it to the wall but I don't know which direction the wall is in.

I'm hungry!

I want to do it!

Tired!

Ah, really, I don't mind if I die so just let me eat something! I remember back to the food I ate on a trip to a hot spring ryokan once. The raw whitebait was delicious. Why am I only remember small fish?

I'm tired!

I'm hungry!

I want to do it!

Damn it, I miss my bed. Water bed, why aren't you here for me right now! If you would let me lay down right now even if it was 10,000,000 yen..in an instant. Come to think of it I wasn't the bed faction. Beds make me remember the SDF and I never liked the sensation of springs. I liked to spread out a futon and sleep on that. The light blue pillar cover is mine...

I want to do it!

Tired!

I'm hungry!

I remember that one girl who was a prefect match for my type that I only got a glance of back at "Ritton" in the past. I wonder if this is the decline of consciousness level? For some reason just her face has turned into Miki's face when she was younger. No, it's not like Miki's face was particularly my type though. I guess I've more than half started to fall asleep.

I lay down face up with both of my hands covering my face. The inner band of the protectors on my knuckles hits my face. The rubber hurts chafing against. Since it was irritating I took off the protectors on both of my hands. Ah, my throwing needles disappeared. I guess they didn't disappear?

I rub my face with my leather gloves. It seems I was drooling before I realized it. It's like rubbing saliva all over my face. My breathing has started to get heavy. I bite down on the fingertip of my right hand and pulled it out of the glove. The apprentice of Boil Manor properly washes and dried it in the sun but the smell of sweat still isn't completely gone.

I use my right hand without a glove to take the glove off my left hand. I loosened the fastener on my helmet and took my helmet off as well. I lifted my upper body up and scratched away at my head with both hands.

In any case, I want to fill my stomach, embrace a woman, and sleep like the dead. Saying it additionally I feel terrified of this true darkness where I can't see anything at all. Could it be that my eyes have just lost sight completely? Maybe the {Light} is properly shining and Identified activated just as it should have as well? I think my sense of touch is normal and my senses of smell, hearing, and taste are the same. Just one, my sense of sight isn't working properly. Ah, I wish I had at least been carrying a lighter magic tool.

I lay my upper body back down on the ground again while scratching. I feel like various things are gradually not mattering anymore as my desires become more maddening. In the next moment, I suddenly like I touched something hard where I had my hand stretched out. What is it? I nervously touch it with my hand and I was able to figure it out right away. It's a sword. I can't tell if it's Toris's long sword that fell down with me or not but it's properly got the shape of a sword.

If it's this then..I might end up damaging my only remaining main arm that is my knife but I resolved on it. I crawl around while drooling and after finding a hard rock with a diameter of about 10 cm and I took the knife out off my thigh before swinging my knife down with all my force.

On the second try sparks flew out in front of my eyes.

The sparks left behind a vivid afterimage and disappeared in an instant but the sparks are proof that my five senses are still working normally. In other words, the symptoms right now aren't an abnormality with my eyes, and it's not just a situation where I'm hungry, want to have sex, or tired either. It's 100% that I've run out of mana. If I don't take some rest then even if I endure it recovery is pretty unlikely.

I return my knife which probably has a chipped blade now to the scabbard on my thigh while fumbling with it and make sure it's fixed with the band and then I gathered my belongings scattered in the surroundings. I put my gloves on top of my gauntlets and above that I put the crotch parts of it and made a simple pillow, then I put the sword I picked up next to that.

I don't know if this is a reasonable place to get some rest but rather than trying to crawl around in the darkness getting some rest seems like the better choice. I can't do anything about the feelings of starvation but I relieved myself while drooling and then laid on my side. The last remaining thought process I had was to bring my sword closer to my side..is what I think but I probably just reached out towards it. Without even trying to concentrate on it I was pulled into a deep sleep.

Right now, if I were to be discovered by a monster I'd definitely be a goner.

.....

Kachin! The good feeling sound of opening my lighter rings out as I lit up my cigarette.

I inhale a breathe of smoke deep into my lungs and slowly exhale it out.

Miki who was laying with her head on my left arm and hugged closer to me.

It's our 10 wedding anniversary day.

I just finished giving her {Sweet 10 Diamond} ring after saving up in my secret stash for a while along with money I won from co-workers in Mahjong.

Although, since we're a married couple that both work and don't have any kids (can't have any) so we aren't all that troubled with money. It's true it cost over 1,000,000 yen but the amount of I won from Mahjong covered about half of that.

"Hey, why did you buy something like this?"

Miki looks at the ring stuck on the side of her wedding ring on her left hand while asking. As expected she doesn't have a grasp on even my wallet but since she has a grasp on my salary and savings situation so she was quickly able to guess that it doesn't match up with what I can normally afford.

"Yeah, it's from my secret stash. I had been saving up for it for a while."

"Fufu."

She looks at the ring while putting her head on my chest and let's out a happy voice.

I touch her hair silky hair and comb through it feeling the good sensation of it.

"Hey.."

"Yeah.."

I took another puff of my cigarette and pushed it into the ash tray.

I face my body to the left and grope her good shaped breasts that still haven't lost their shape.

They're a bit wet from sweat.

I push down my wife and cover her lips with mine.

"..Nn..the cigarette's..ah..."

(....de..na.....no..)

?

.....

“Guboe~!!!”

It’s an attack!

It seems I was attacked while sleeping!

I feel like I was suddenly hit in the stomach with a hammer.

It feels like the hammer is still on top of my stomach and I’m being held down.

“Ghit~!!”

I frantically tried to reach for my sword but it wasn’t within the range I could reach. The tips of my fingers were only able to touch the protectors I was using as a pillow.

I stretched out my hands to the foreign object on my stomach and tried to move it away.

The hammer on top of my stomach raised a voice.

Ei~ move!!

I struggle around and push it away.

It seems the opponent has started hitting back.

“Damn it!”

I roll around in the darkness, I somehow was able to secure the freedom of my body but I don’t know where my sword is, and I don’t have the protectors for my crotch or arms. In order to not make a sound I slowly reached my arm out to the knife on my thigh. Simultaneously I confirm that I can calmly make decisions. At the very least I was able to rest for over 1 hour it seems.

In the past, I tried using Identify periodically on brother and sister after they fell asleep after using up all of their MP and checked their MP so I know well how it works. After falling asleep MP will recover to about 6 in 3 hours, after that it rapidly starts to increase in the amount it recovers and in about an hour after that MP fully recovers. Incidentally, during the final 10 minutes 75% or so of that recovers. If I didn’t have more than 2 MP remaining then it would be bad but judging off this feel I should have close to 6. In that case..I can use Identify. I activated Identify vision.

Just like usual the brightness of the things in from of my sight increased. I was relieved that I was able to use Identify with no problem but the thing that was in front of me that increased in brightness was something like an overcoat or robe. If I shift my glance a bit and I saw an opening of the front of the robe where clothes are. I shift my glance up a bit.

I can tell they have the bottom half of their face covered in some type of cloth like a mask. If I don't look a bit up at their face then I probably can't use Identify. However, in the next moment,

"..Elf? No, it's different. You're too tall for a Dwarf either. It seems that your eyes can see in this situation but you aren't a monster right?"

And started talking to me. It's a somehow stiff {Common Language}. It seems it's an opponent that I can talk with. If I can talk to them then I can earn some time. First I need to confirm my own condition.

"I'm a human. Since you can see in this situation then does that mean you have Infrared Vision?"

I responded like that while quickly using Identify on my hand that doesn't have a glove on it.

【Alan.Greed/5/3/7429】

【Male/14/2/7428 ▪ Human ▪ Viscount Greed Family Second Son】

【Status: Normal】

【Age: 16 Years Old】

【Level: 21】

【HP: 177(178) MP: 4(7442)】

【Strength: 29】

【Speed: 39】

【Dexterity: 27】

【Endurance: 29】

【Unique Ability: Identify (MAX)】

【Unique Ability: Gift of Natural Talent (MAX)】

【Special Ability: Earth Magic (MAX)】

【Special Ability: Water Magic (MAX)】

【Special Ability: Fire Magic (Lv. 8)】

【Special Ability: Wind Magic (MAX)】

【Special Ability: Void Magic (MAX)】

【Experience: 1336232(1430000)】

So my MP is 4 huh? In other words I should have had 5 so I must have rested for close to 3 hours. If this guy had come falling a bit later...However, since I was woken up with only a half-incomplete amount of sleep I feel like it's considerably low but this 4 is the normal amount of mana for a 16 year old. And my experience has increased by quite a bit as well. It seems they were able to defeat Franken. It would be good if no one died though.

I quickly returned my glance and used Identify on the other person. The upper and lower parts of their face are covered in cloth like a ninja and I can only see their eyes.

It's like only their eyes are floating in the darkness.

【Midu~ritto.Chizumagurol】, 【Level 10】, 【Dark Elf】!? And..and.. 【Unique Ability: Unit Organization(Lv. 6)】, there's some clearly shining red characters there. It seems they're suffering from some light blunt trauma as well. If I look closely and unexpectedly their maximum MP is over 250 though it's currently at 0. I'm sure it'll get painful pretty soon, they might already be having trouble enduring it but I'm amazed their holding that back. It's quite the willpower. In addition if I look closely their eyes are black as well.

"You're a Japanese person right?"

I tried talking to them in Japanese.

"..!! Ku. Why..why do you know that language? Gu..I thought I was the only one who knew it but.."

What is it? This person? I'm sure they're in pain because their MP is gone but what are they saying?

"You, what are you say..Well it's fine. I won't attack you. And, it's probably pretty painful right?"

Just in case I removed the knife I had fixed on my belt while saying that.

Since their face was hidden within their robe as they faced down my 【Identify】 was cut off.

I wonder if I should 【Identify】 them once more?

No, even if I don't use 【Identify】, it's terrifying not be able to see anything.

My MP is getting severe (If I use it once more it'll become 3) but I used 【Identify】 once more. It seems like the person in front of me is a reincarnated person but somehow they aren't very clear. I should remain cautious.

It seems they're loosening the string on their robe around their neck. Their breathing has started to get heavy.

They took off the robe and started to remove the hood of their black clothes. Their gloves seem to be the same type of long leather gloves as mine.

"I'm going to use {Light}."

I said that and used {Light} on the ground between Chizumagurol and myself. I didn't bother waiting for a response.

Suddenly the surroundings got brighter. Since I had my pupils wide open, just in case I closed my eyes before using {Light} but even just the light coming in from between my eyelids was enough to blind me for a short period.

I'm sure it's the same for this Dark Elf as well.

I slowly open my eyelids.

It must have been quite bright for Chizumagurol after taking off the hood. They're covering their face with one hand.

Just as I expected the hair that was hiding behind the hood was a glossy black. Their ears are a bit pointed almost like an Elves (I guess it's only obvious because Dark Elves are Elves too though).

Just from the glance of skin I could see it was light violet color and if you were to put a portion of that skin up to my own it's a disgusting color as if I would have been poisoned there.

They slowly move their hand while trying to block the light from their face as they lower it.

During that time I'm vigilantly scanning the surroundings.

There doesn't seem to be any monsters in the range the light stretches..

There also doesn't seem to be any walls in the range of the light either..Shit.

The ceiling is..It's high but for the time being it seems to reach. I guess around 30–35 meters?

My protectors and weapon..are over there. I felt relieved. After all it was Toris's long sword.

While I was restlessly looking around the surroundings, Chizumagurol who was looking at me suddenly fell forward and started holding their head while groaning. I panicked a bit seeing that state but in order to remain cautious I didn't approach them. Just in case I used Identify once more but it was still just 【Condition: Blunt Trauma】.

Is it some kind of feigned illness?

However, soon after they let go of their head that they were holding they remained crouched over while looking straight at me.

"I've remembered a little bit."

Chizumagurol said that in Japanese. However, at the same time it seems like they're desperately trying to endure the suffering from being out of MP and they had a stiff smile on their face with sweat pouring down.

I feel like it's somehow a nostalgic smile.

I only have 2 MP remaining.

Chapter 127: Dark Elf

Year 7444, Month 5, Day 27

“Ah, I guess that’s..great.”

While looking at Chizumagurol’s face on their knees while looking up at me with a starving glare saying things that I don’t get like “I remembered”, I somehow got a nostalgic feeling from it.

However, I can’t remember well. This face, I’ve seen it somewhere...

“Ffu.....Talking...Nn...Saw face...Suddenly various things..Ah...I remembered but..Uu...God..this..sort of thing..Han..Kka..Kawa..ki,san..I am..”

Eh? This person, just now, they were about to say my name from my past life right? They know me...

Who is it?

Miki? there’s no way that should be the case! Their facial features are completely different after all, and they were about to call me “Kawasaki-san. In the first place she would never have such a disgusting color like this. There’s no way she should! She must not!!

Yumi? My girlfriend from high school? No, it’s probably different. I’ve seen her face at high school reunions since we both were adults but at that time she called me “Kawasaki-kun”, I think.

“I..I’m hungry..so..Yeah!!..a bit..tired..a aa...th..is..ku..n..wa?!!”

Ryoko? My girlfriend after that? I think that’s even less likely. I’ve heard that Ryoko married and left the country with her husband who works overseas.

“P..lee.ase..an!!..and..fa,fa..st..u..ku...”

The Dark Elf is embracing their body with both arms like they’re trying to endure it.

...

“Nn!!” they faced down.

.....

“A..aa!!” They raised their face and looked at me. Their eyes were wet with tears.

.....!

Is this..Shiina?

“You..are you Shiina..?”

Putting aside that unnerving light violent skin color there’s some facial features remaining from Shiina my subordinate in my past life, or at least I feel like there is. Since I don’t know her face from when she was 15 or 16 I couldn’t remember right away.

“Nn..Yes..It’s Shiina.. Ngu...And...Fu...I was...finally able to... meet..aaa..Cu..cute..wwaaaa..Nn..Su...Subordinate...re..reward..Nnn!!”

I thought she was enduring it but it seems she’s groping her chest with her left hand. After all it’s Shiina.

“Sorry but there’s nothing to eat and no matter what the situation I have no intention of embracing you. Though if it was about three hours ago it would have been dangerous.”

I ruthlessly declared to Shiina as she was suffering from mana exhaustion and drooling with her 10 cm or so long characteristic pink forked tongue for elves sticking out with about 3–4 meters between us on the other side of the {Light}. Just going off of the details from Identify there’s no she’s a useful talent and I believe I’ve already got an understanding of her personality and tendencies. As long as she hasn’t changed a lot I can trust her as well. Probably even among everyone I’ve met up until now, no, since I still don’t know of any other reincarnated people I haven’t met yet.. so she should be the person I can trust the most on Orth.

“Th..That..can’t be..a..aaa..nn..kuu...Already..already...”

Even if you look up at me with that sort of heartrending face, things that are no good are no good. Even if your face has gotten quite a bit better looking from the Elf blood mixed the inner-company romance of Greed Company (for the time being my three slaves are automatically, and the rest of the members are for convenience sake employees) already has it's stomach full with Bel and Toris. In the first place, it's too soon for me to get with a single woman.

“P..Plea..please...I can't...endure...nnnnn!! Aaah!! Always..endur..fu~aaan!!”

She bit the fingertip of the glove on her right hand and took it off and then moved that right hand between her legs and started moving it. Ah, I guess I was just like this until a short while ago?

“So...So..many years already...Aa!! Ku!!kuu~n!”

While making sure to be vigilant so nothing suddenly attacks, I pick up the stone that was shining with {Light} cast on it in between Shiina and I while saying.

“Yeah, that is, hmm. I'll look that way so do something about it yourself. After that you should go to sleep right away. I'll sleep as well. Alright?”

I caught a glimpse of Shiina who is almost sitting in seiza while rubbing her legs together restlessly and I went to pick up Toris's long sword. Give up.

“A, aaa! Th..This is!!”

Uwa!! What is it so suddenly? Don't surprise me like that. Shiina moves her limbs like an inchworm as she crawls along bringing her face close to ground a bit nearby. What is she doing, this girl? I'm a bit interested but since it's not related to work, and furthermore since she's currently suffering from mana exhaustion I know it's nothing good.

“N..suu~!! Nwaaaa~!! Th..This scent is, chestnut flowers!? Coul..could it be tha..aro..around here Kawasaki-san did!!?”

Shiina is rubbing her face against the ground while snorting her nose smelling the scent.

“Uoohey!! Stop that!!”

I spontaneously yelled but without even paying attention to me, Shiina continued to move her right hand stretched out between her legs at a high speed.

“Aaah~ Wuun!! It’s already dry..it’s not remaining anymore..a~n!!Kuun!!”

Shit. This is no good. I can’t watch anymore of this!

“Aa!! I..I can’t stop! Ah, this..co...coming~”

In a panic I threw the sword and stone to the side and rushed up behind her. I grabbed her left hand that was groping her breast and her right hand that was rubbing between her legs while she was licking the ground(!) and grabbed Shiina by the hair before forcibly pulling her away, then used a hand-to-hand combat choking move to apply pressure to her carotid artery. I quickly grabbed Shiina’s long hood that was on the ground nearby and after spinning that up thin I tied up her wrists behind her back, just in case I also pulled out her short sword and threw it in a place a bit of distance away.

Around 30 seconds had passed by that point. It wouldn’t be strange for her to wake up at any moment. I quickly felt around her body to see if she had anymore weapons and after all she had weapons hidden all over the place it seems. 8 knives, four throwing darts, a strange pipe..is this a blowgun? What’s up with this girl, she has a mountain of weapons on her.

“Ha!!!?Aaah!! Th..that can’t be to tie me up!! Tying me up of all things~!! Bohe!!”

After waking up right away Shiina for some reason was looking at me with wet eyes filled with expectation. That idiotic looking face for some reason rubbed my nerves in a very wrong way and pissed me off so I put in a light kick to her stomach and shut her up.

“Shut up!! I don’t have those sorts of hobbies~!! Stop saying it so cheerfully!”

After all this girl, might be person I should avoid putting any faith in the most...

She’s twisting her body and I can’t really determine if she’s enduring the pain or enjoying it but I gathered up all of the weapons I could from there and turned my back to Shiina who was making wet puppy-dog eyes that looked like they were clinging on me along with an expression filled with lust as she was breathing heavily, and then walked away from there.

“Aaah!! That’s so cruel!!”

“Shut up~! Idiot! Just go to sleep already!! This is an order!!”

Shiina continued saying something rolling around in agony but after a short while it finally got quiet. Since both of her hands are tied up she shouldn't be able to do anything. In any case obediently go to sleep.

I considered using 1 more of my remaining 2 MP to use {Light} once more and check her condition but since there wasn't much meaning I stopped. I wonder if it's because my remaining MP is so low? I thought about keeping watch but somehow I suddenly felt like it was just idiotic.

Just in case, I used the {Cantrip} Alarm clock to wake me up in 5 hours and after moving outside of the range of Shiina's Infrared Vision (Shiina is level 10 so if I move further than 30m she shouldn't be able to see me but I moved over 50m away) and then laid down on my side and closed my eyes. I thought it was a bit careless but everything other than that just started to feel idiotic.

.....

Year 7444, Month 5, Day 28

I opened my eyes hearing the Alarm Clock {Cantrip} ringing in my head. I think it was around 4pm that we fought against Franken. After that I rested for about 3 hours and just now I rested for another 5 hours or so. I guess it would be just around the time the day changes? It's only obvious you could say but there's still nothing but darkness stretching out. I wonder if it's because I put some distance between us but I don't seem to have been attacked by her..desires?

I cross my arms and look at the {creature} who's lukewarm body temperature I can feel from my back sleeping facing me on the lower right side. It seems the tentacles from such a {Creature} had stretched out to my body. Since I was surprised just in case I checked my pants but all of the buttons were still properly done up. Nn? I feel like something is covering my body..The robe huh? This girl..even though I should have tied her up, she somehow managed to untie it at some point. I thought about using the spell {Light} to make it bright but it's already been about 5 hours since then. I might wake up Shiina...Well I guess it's fine. I'm sure she's slept plenty as well.

I use Identify and use the spell {Light} to light up a rock that's about 20m away and after gently removed Shiina's left hand from my body, I carefully crawled out of the robe that was covering Shiina and I and after crossing my arms I took another look at her. Since I moved away from her Shiina's expressionless face is facing the right as she sleeps almost as if she's dead.

I don't know the common sense of dark elves but as usual her skin color still looks like a disturbing light violet color as if she's a rotting corpse. Well, since the light violet color is uniform throughout her entire body rotting corpse might be saying too far. The dark elf that I saw previously in Rombertia had a much deeper skin color, a violet that was closer to black and their hair color was pure white with not much pigment but I guess this is because Shiina is a reincarnated person?

If I look closely there were a lot of old scars remaining on both of her hands after her gloves were removed. I wonder why she didn't use a {Cure} type spell soon after she was injured? Putting aside {Cure} if she used {Cure Light} or {Cure Serious} then she should have cleanly been able to heal them before the wound turned into a scar. It's difficult to imagine that she couldn't use healing magic with this much MP and level of magic skills.

I didn't notice it just now but there's a deep cut wound that seems to have healed from her left nostril up along her cheek to her ear. Other than that I guess it's because she has the similar blood that Toris does, her facial features are quite good looking. I think that Shiina was decently good looking in her past life but soon after she entered the company my impression is too strong of her when she was always nervous, didn't properly say things, looking downwards, and had a dark impression so I've never thought of her as beautiful or cute. I've only ever treated her as a subordinate and a good spirited friend. Of course, thinking she's my cute subordinate and thinking she's cute or beautiful as a woman are completely different things to me.

"Fu..."

I let out a sigh and stroked Shiina's short hair that doesn't even go down to her shoulders. I only got a glimpse but she has some large wounds down the right side of her forehead as well that were already healed. Come to think of it this girl, she better have properly recovered her MP before she came over here?

【Midu~ritto.Chizumagurol/5/3/7441】
【Female/14/2/7428 ▪ Dark Elf ▪ Lail Kingdom Commoner {Lilac}】 【Status: Blunt Trauma】
【Age: 16 Years Old】
【Level: 10】
【HP: 105(110) MP: 252(252)】
【Strength: 16】
【Speed: 24】
【Dexterity: 19】
【Endurance: 17】
【Unique Ability: Unit Organization (Lv. 6)】
【Special Ability: Earth Magic (Lv. 4)】
【Special Ability: Water Magic (Lv. 4)】
【Special Ability: Fire Magic (Lv. 4)】
【Special Ability: Wind Magic (Lv. 4)】
【Special Ability: Void Magic (Lv. 5)】
【Experience: 139298(150000)】

Hn? It's only vague but I feel like Speed and Endurance are high. Since she has that many wounds all over her body I thought her HP would be pretty high but... All of her magic levels are about to level pretty soon as well. Her skill levels aren't that high taking into consideration her MP (even though I say that, they're still at a level capable of using it with her fingertips so it's still plenty good) I wonder if there's some sort of reason for that?

【Unique Ability: Unit Organization {Party-zation}; the user can organize a unit {party} with them self as the leader when in contact with any target. The number of people that can be included in the organization is equal to the level of the ability plus one. In other words, the maximum number of people is the user plus ten, for a unit organized with a total of eleven people. Furthermore, the duration of the ability is a number of hours equal to the level of the ability plus one.

The user can reuse the ability during the duration in order to extend the length of the duration as well. In that case the remaining duration will be cut off. Furthermore, the user can cancel the effects of the ability at anytime during the duration and freely exclude any member of the unit.

It's necessary for the target to open their heart towards the user in a way similar to that of a friend or family and must focus their awareness towards the user. During the effect of Unit Organization the members of the unit will gain the following privileges. However, the leader that is the user of the ability can freely select whether or not to provide the members with below privileges.

1. Able to grasp the approximate(10% margin of error on both angle and distance) direction and distance from other members.
 2. An increase in ability values of the members of the unit equal to the number of members.
- .Up to three people can gain 1 bonus point to Dexterity including an additional bonus of 1% increased experience points gained.
 - .Up to five people can gain 1 bonus point to Speed including an additional bonus of 2% increased experience points gained.
 - .Up to seven people can gain 1 bonus point to Strength including an additional bonus of 3% increased experience points gained.
 - .Up to nine people can gain 1 bonus point to Endurance including an additional bonus of 4% increased experience points gained.
 - .Only when there's a unit of ten people can all gain 1 bonus point to all ability values including an additional bonus of 5% increased experience points gained.
 - .The bonuses stack.

Including the above-mentioned, the leader that is the user can freely issue orders to the members individually(to multiple members otherwise everyone simultaneously) . However, the orders can only be sentences made up of a single word and the number of times the orders can be given during the duration of the effect is equal to the level of the ability. This number of orders is only applied when a unit is organized. In other words, bear in mind that when reusing Unit Organization to extend the duration of the effect this number of orders that can be made is not recovered. Furthermore, the members of the unit have no obligation to obey the orders. These orders do not rely on sound and are issued directly into the head from the leader the moment they wish for it as they call out to the consciousness of the member, so the member will only be able to understand the meaning in a language they understand.】

Hm~n. This Unique Ability is pretty useful.

I don't know if it decreased because I hit and kicked her or if it was lower from before that but the fact that her HP was reduced by a bit bothered me a bit so when she wakes up it's fine if I use healing magic on her bruise. I looked once again at Shiina's quiet sleeping and just in case checked my status again. After making sure my MP had properly recovered just when I had stood up to go and pick up the stone I used the spell {Light} on.

"Ah..Ka..Kawasaki-san.. Just now was, that is..I showed you something very unsightly.."

"How long have you been awake?"

"Since about an hour ago or so."

Shiina lifted her body up from laying on it's side and said while embarrassed and fidgeting. If you were awake then call out to me when I woke up.

"..For the time being gather your belongings. We'll start talking after that."

I went to the stone I used {Light} on and then picked that in order to gather my belongings scattered around, my helmet and gauntlets..Huh? my gloves and crotch parts are missing. Huh? They should have been placed together but... when I was looking around and,

"What's wrong?"

She must have noticed it, Shiina called out to me.

"Ah, no, my armo..the pants portion of my rubber protectors are mu.."

"I was properly warming them up for you. Being the loyal subordinate, that I am was!"

While breathing heavily Shiina took off the crotch portion of my protectors. It's true it's warmed up by Shiina's body temperature but...She seemed to be holding her chest high proudly when she handed it to me.

"You're telling me to, wear this?"

"Of course. Now, please do, use it while it's still warm."

Ah, really..Like I could wear something like this! And I really want to yell and throw it to the ground but because my MP has recovered I guess, I couldn't put any feeling into it.

“No please don’t~ looking at the portion I was wearing so intently. Isn’t it embarrassing? Ah, also please take these as well.”

She took my gloves out from the cleavage of her ninja clothes and handed them to me. She’s holding both of her hands to her cheeks and twisting her body embarrassed. Your entire existence is an embarrassment. In the first place, this, better be dry? If it’s wet with some strange fluid I’ll seriously punch you. Well I guess I can’t afford to say such extravagant things right now...I think. I let out a sigh being unable to help it before pulling up the tassets of my armor. However, this girl, even though her waist is definitely thinner than mine and she didn’t have any rubber protectors on her upper body, how was she able to wear tis? Even if she closed the belt on the sides I think it would slide down but..Ah..She clamped down on it between her thighs and legs..I don’t really want to wear this anymore~

.....

“You’ve gathered all your belongings right? First off respond to my questions. Your questions are fine after that. Alright?”

I put on my gauntlets while saying that with a slightly serious face.

“Yes.”

Shiina responded with a serious face. The time for playing around is already over.

“Did you enter this dungeon alone? Do you have any allies?”

I check the throwing needles in my gauntlet while saying.

“I was alone. I don’t have anyone I could call an ally.”

Shiina is checking her knives one at a time while placing them where they go on her body.

..I’m closely looking at Shiina’s eyes but she doesn’t seem to be lying.

“Do you know where and what floor this is?”

“I don’t know. I fell into a pitfall trap and came down so..”

So she did as well huh?

“I see..It’s the same for me. You can you talk in Ragdarios Language right?”

There’s no large abnormality with Toris’s long sword.

“Yes, I can speak it. I studied from a young age.”

She confirms her throwing darts and puts them on her thighs. It seems there’s still some room to spare on her thighs so she must have already used some.

“Hn, got it. I think it’s fine right now but just in case let’s talk in Ragudarios language {Common Language} from here on out.”

I use the spell {Light} on the stone where the light disappeared from once again.

“I understand.”

Nn?

“What is it, you’re close. Move a bit further away from me.”

“Isn’t it fine? There’s no one here other than us two. And we were reborn after the accident right? Then..it’s largely difficult for me to say but..the madam is no longer around right? Then, in that case..m..me.”

Shiina slides over to me with her nostrils widening. I unkindly push her back and,

“Really, what is it, that’s true but you know. And, your {Common Language} is somehow strange. If you were to say that then it’s just “difficult for me to say”.”

I said that and glared at her.

“Ha~ It’s strange? However, I’ve already gotten used to talking like this so..”

Shiina said while looking slightly down.

“..Well it’s fine. There’s no meaning if we can’t convey things. “Return to Japanese.””

“Yes.”

“You said you remembered right? What did you remember?”

I confirm my knife with a crack in the blade and then put it into it’s scabbard before fixing it with the band.

“Things about before I was reborn. I remembered the life of Shiina Junko. Of course, I still have memories since after I was reborn as well.”

“Huh?”

What is she saying?

“I’ll explain it in detail later but I didn’t remember much of anything at all after I was reborn. I only could remember Japanese and the names of some things. I didn’t have any memories about my life at all.”

Shiina said while confirming a small knife that was hidden inside of her leggings. This girl, so that’s how she escaped from being tied up?

“Nn..That’s hard to..I guess it’s fine for now. Next. When did you enter the dungeon Baldukk? You just said you don’t have any allies but did you enter alone?”

Suddenly Shiina’s atmosphere changed.

“If you were to ask when I entered this time then it would be about one day ago. If you are asking since when I started entering then it would be around the end of the last month. Also, I only enter alone. I don’t have any allies after all.”

I heard about it just before as well but it’s convenient that she doesn’t have any allies.

“So it’s not like you’re in a party somewhere right?”

“Yes.”

“Then next. What floor have you entered up to?”

“The 2nd floor.”

Ho~ So she made it to the 2nd floor alone..Though if I think about her MP and level of magic skills then it’s probably no problem.

“What’s your Unique Ability?”

“..”

Shiina made a serious face while looking at me with upturned eyes but,

“It’s called Unit Organization {Party-ization}. Until I remembered I only understood things about the surface of it but now I think it’s a useful ability.”

And said like she had resigned to it.

“I understand, for the time being up to there is good. We can slowly talk after we leave the dungeon. Is there anything you want to ask about?”

I put on my helmet and tighten it up while asking.

“Yes, there’s several things, but for starters.”

Shiina made a serious face.

“Why did you suddenly talk to me in Japanese?”

! Shit...

“I tried remembering back to it but it seemed strange to me. Kawasaki-san is a human right? You shouldn’t have Infrared Vision..and even if you did you shouldn’t have been able to see my face. It doesn’t seem like you have Night Vision either. Even if you did have that I can’t imagine that you could see in situation with no light at all. I thought it was some kind of spell that I don’t know but..if there was a spell like that then it would be too strange that a Dark Elf {Dyulo} doesn’t know about it. Is it a Unique Ability?”

This is very bad. Shiina calmly said while looking into her blowgun pipe before returning it to her waist.

“You’re trying to cover it up I see. If I look at your hands I can tell. How many years do you think I worked together with you Kawasaki-san? The times when you’re touching the nails of your other fingers is when you’re gathering your thoughts to try and hide something.”

This girl is troublesome...

Chapter 128: Miduchi

Year 7444, Month 5, Day 28

“..”

Shiina who has finished confirming her equipment is watching me with a serious face while I'm remaining silent.

“It's not like I intend to blame you for anything. If you want to keep it a secret then I won't tell anyone, I just found it strange. If you don't want to say then that's fine.”

Shiina quietly said that. And,

“But, that you won't trust me is a bit..that is..lonely...since 16 years have already passed since then, I guess it's not unreasonable though. But, I just remembered a moment ago. That's why I can remember it like yesterday. I was on my way to my appointment with Sexton Company when a train drove into the bus I was riding. But, I can remember the events like it was yesterday.”

She said that and made a sad smile.

“..Ha..I guess it's fine if it's you..It can't be helped, I'll reveal the trick. Promise that you won't tell anyone.”

I scratch my cheek and said that and Shiina's face suddenly got cheerful.

“Of course. It's a secret between just the two of us. Yeah, I won't tell anyone.”

That's certainly true but..when you say it, it just feels unpleasant right. I look at Shiina in the eyes while saying.

“It's called Magic Acquisition. Quite literally it helps learn magi“Supposedly people who can calmly tell lies have psychopathic tendencies. Who do you think I am? Please don't think that I the Dark Elf, “Rank 1 warrior class”, Shiina Junko, no, “Miduchi the Silent” would fall for such a simple strategy.”

! This girl..after all I thought it was strange that she was entering the dungeon alone but she's no longer just a simple person, I guess that's what this mean? Though I don't really get "Rank 1 warrior class" or "Miduchithesilent"...but, psychopath, you...Though I don't feel like it's all that incorrect. The first time my heart got a bit disarrayed but I explained it away by saying it was for Myun's sake and I didn't hesitate at all when I killed everyone from {Bright Blade} the other day.

Well if I was bothered by something like that then I wouldn't even be able to get involved with a single war from here on out. I already know. In the first place, if you say that then all of the heroes in the world would be psychopaths after all. I'm aiming for that as well. Whether it be Orth or Earth the people who can calmly kill living creatures or monsters that have arms, legs, a head and walk upright is messed up in the head somewhere. That goes the same for you too, Shiina. Since you're inside the dungeon after all.

“..”

“..”

The silence continues for a few seconds.

“Why can you say that's a lie? Is there some sort of merit for me to lie to yo“There are merits, a lot of them. Also, I'll say it any number of times but please don't think that I don't know much about Kawasaki-san. Please don't underestimate me. How many times do you think I accompanied you during sales? When Kawasaki-san tells lies while doing sales, he always makes sure to properly look at the other person's eyes. Didn't you previously say it before? “When you tell lies you need to fortify your resolve so even if it's just for that time you're even lying to yourself.” like that.”

...

“I was always working by your* side for eight years. I was always watching you. Even if you try to deceive me it's pointless. If I combine Shiina Junko's feelings and the 16 years I spend as a dark elf training my skills of observation and discernment then I can almost perfectly see through the lies. It's fine if you decide not to tell me as well but please do not tell me any lies. I also do not intend to, no, to only you I will absolutely never tell any lies.”

..Anata*, huh?

How long has it been since I was called that?

I suddenly remembered Miki.

“I’m sorry. Seeing through them is probably limited to only you. But, it seems I already confessed my feelings to you just now. I remembered what I said and did after running out of mana last night and since it was so embarrassing my tension went up that high and became like that though...

Kawasaki-san, about you but..I love you. These 16 years since I was reborn I can’t do anything about the fact that I forgot it, but I really love you. Since I understood we were reborn as a result of that accident..I was able to say it because I knew that your wife is no longer around..that’s why I can say it. I’ve always loved you since many years ago. Please at least...at least don’t lie to a woman like this. I’m begging you.”

...

“Why are you remaining silent? You already realized my feelings since a long time ago right?”

“I already knew. Obviously...There’s no way I wouldn’t realize right?”

We were both adults after all, I was married and had my own family. There’s no way it’s something that could be said and I had no intention of confirming it either.

After hearing my words Shiina raised her face up a bit and shed some tears.

“Thank goodness...So they were conveyed. Just a bit..this is..something I’m happy about.”

She said that while looking at me.

I can’t lie to you right.

I kept company with her without thinking in terms of advantages or disadvantages.

Of course it wasn’t the relationship of a man and woman though.

I took a deep breath and then opened my mouth.

“It would be better if you don’t learn the name of the ability. I’ll explain it later but I’m passing it with other reincarnated people as Magic Acquisition. Since I’m sure you’ve already met God so I think you know though.”

After I said that far and Shiina,

“Reincarnated people! Somehow that’s a cool name~ Well if you say it like that then it’s certainly strange*. Also, I’m sorry. It’s true I met God but as a matter of fact I don’t really remember much from that time...All I remember is that the people who died in the accident were reborn on Orth and the method to use my Unique Ability, also that I was carrying some kind of large problem and it seems God lent me a bit of a hand in doing something about that. Incidentally I think that this large problem is probably referring to my memory loss.”

Said that.

“I see. If you don’t remember then that can’t be helped but the growth rate of reincarnated people is higher than that of normal people. This is“Ah..I somehow was able to remember that.”

Ah, I see.

“..When your body level increases things like your mana increase but the degree of those increases is high, is basically what it means.”

“Body level?”

“It’s fine so remain quiet for a bit and listen. I won’t teach you about it.”

“Excuse me.”

Shiina who was nodding with a ho~ ho~ while listening suddenly apologized with a shun~

“In any case, in order to increase this body level you need to gain various experiences...Like killing living creatures. Almost certainly when a certain amount of that is accumulated you level up. My Unique Ability is like a bonus to increases how easy it for these level ups to occur and right now I can probably grow at about three times the speed of other people.”

“..”

What, is with that expression? Could it be you’re doubting me? I swear I haven’t said any lies.

“..”

I look back at Shiina.

“..And?”

Shit.

“About what?”

Since it's a bit amusing I think I'll try to pretend to have forgotten.

“It can't be explained with just that right? There's a continuation right?”

That's an expression that says she won't forgive evading the question. Ah, the eyes of a Dark Elf are just like an Elf's her eyes are slightly slanted like Toris. I change my tone of voice a bit while saying.”

“Ah, really. You're as troublesome as usual. But you know, if you hear this then you won't be able to go back anymore, I won't let you. I won't forgive betrayal and I won't forgive telling others. Think that you'll be tied to me for the rest of your life.”

After hearing that Shiina shed some more tears from her eyes and opened her mouth. And, that face was smiling.

“Aha, what are you saying? Do you think I would say anything that would inconvenience Kawasaki-san?”

...

“Something like that doesn't matter at this point. But, after hearing that I wanted to know even more. That means I can stay by your side for the rest of my life right? Or else does Kawasaki-san think that I will betray?”

...

“How about it? Please respond to me.”

“..I don't think so.”

Just a bit, I'm feeling a bit annoyed that I was able to reconfirm once again that I trusted this girl this much. Shiina was happy after hearing my response.

“Then, even if I were to go somewhere you won't think I've betrayed you right?”

I thought about it for a bit before saying my reply.

“..I probably won’t think so. I think I’d probably just think there was some kind of reason for it and I’m sure you wouldn’t expose the secret on your own.”

“I might end up revealing it after being tortured?”

“That can’t be helped.”

“We haven’t met for 16 whole years. Is it okay to trust me that far?”

“Is it no good?”

“There’s no way it’s not good! That can’t be..Trusting me so easily..Aren’t you an idiot?”

“I’m sure I’m an idiot.”

“Indeed an idiot.”

“Yeah, an idiot.”

“I love you.”

The idiot is you. Don’t cry.

“I don’t love you, unfortunately.”

I said it while smiling.

“I already knew that..But, even if you don’t say it right now..”

I let out a large sigh and opened my mouth. It’s about time to finish things up.

“I saved a kid during the accident on the train. I received that kids Unique Ability as well. You don’t need to remember the name of this one either. Just remember them all as Magic Acquisition...The reality of this one is a power that can see through the true nature of things. It’s something that’s close to an expansion on Status Open. That’s why I know that your name is Mizweritt.Chizumagurol, your body level is 10, your elemental magic skills are all level 4, void magic is level 5, and I even know your experience points. Let alone your Strength and Speed, I can see things like HP and MP which are vitality and mana turned into numerical values. In addition saying it and I can see the specific details of Unit Organization {Party-zation} as well. The fact that you still have some bruising remaining as well.”

I finally confessed it. Shiina quietly listened to my conversation but her expression gradually turned to shock I knew like a high speed photograph. Right now her face is making three Os with her mouth and eyes open.

“What’s that? Amazing, or not, it’s creepy, Unfair. Cruel.”

“..I thought you would say that. It’s completely something like cheating after all.”

“But my name isn’t Mizweritto. It’s “Midu~ritto”. Please stress the accent not on the Du but on the Mi.”

The Zu’s and Du’s are pronounced vaguely different in the {Common Language} but, ah, I see.

“Yes-yes, “Midu~ritt” right. Is “Mili” fine? Or is “Rizu” better?”

“If possible I’d like you to call me “Miduchi”. Also, please teach me Kawasaki-san’s name.”

I forgot.

“It’s Greed. Alan.Greed.”

“Then, is it “Al”?”

“That’s right but..”

“What is it?”

“Being called my nickname by you is somehow..”

“Don’t mind the small details. You won’t be able to rise up in the world like that.”

“..”

“I’ve confirmed all of the things I wanted to confirm in a hurry. After this please slowly let me hear various things once we confirm our safety.”

“..Yeah.”

I somehow don’t feel satisfied with this.

“Please relax easy. If you saw my skill levels then you should already know but I’m strong. My power level is 530,000. We will definitely be able to get out.”

“Ah, I see.”

I can still transform about three more times though.

“Then, please excuse me for a bit.”

Miduchi said that and touched my cheek. For an instant I felt like Miduchi suddenly appeared really close to me but I’m sure it was just my imagination. However, I guess this is Unit Organization. I somehow or other feel like Miduchi is close by me.

“..Thank goodness. It went well. Al..If I was hated then it would have failed.”

Idiot.

“My heart is vast. No matter what happens there’s no way I’d hate you right? Let’s go.”

“Yes!”

The two of us stood up and started walking.

Heading towards the surface.

.....

It was good that we got enthusiastic as we started walking off but the room is far too wide and I can only light up about 30-40m with {Light}. Let alone something like an entrance to a passage, I still can’t find a single wall. We keep walking and walking but it’s just this plain dull and dry ground stretching out.

“It’s suspicious if we’re even following straight ahead.”

After I said that and,

“Certainly that’s true. Should we split into two groups for a bit?”

Miduchi said that and crouched down to put up a stone and used {Light} on it. We both turned around with our backs facing and we can see the same light from over our shoulders so we know we’re moving in an almost 90 degree angle in a different direction, we can also tell the approximate distance and direction thanks to Unit Organization. It will split up our combat power but it can’t be helped.

We hold on to our rocks with {Light} cast on them and the two of us split up in two different directions.

.....

Around the time I had walked for about 12 minutes the words “gather” and “don’t hurry” appeared inside of my head. There’s already a considerable amount of distance between myself and Miduchi. The reason I was able to know it was 12 minutes was nothing more than a guess based on the duration of {Light}. She must have either found something or something must have happened. I can see a small light far into the distance. According to Unit Organization there’s a distance of around 420m to that light, Miduchi. Since we were both remaining reasonably careful of traps our speed is around 30m/minute. If I were to compare it to how fast we proceed through the passages of the dungeon then it’s quite a fast pace because I feel a bit impatient to escape as soon as possible.

I changed my direction straight towards the light Miduchi is holding. It would normally be faster and safer if I ran straight towards her down the path I originally took but I didn’t have the confidence I couldn’t follow the same path back. Since she sent the order “don’t hurry” it’s probably not an enemy attack so it should be fine if I slowly make sure it’s safe as I walk over.

I was able to safely make it to Miduchi but there was just some normal chain-mail that wasn’t strange at all and a single long sword inside of a crumbling scabbard laying around. The values on both of them aren’t anything special they’re pretty common goods.

“Al-san. Here, look at this.”

Yeah, I’m looking at it. I Identified it as well. However, I don’t think it’s something make an uproar over in this situation. If we were to bring the chain-mail back it would probably have a value of over 1 gold coin so you could say it’s a lot of money but it’s not a good idea to carry a lot of things back when it’s just the two of us in this situation.

“What about this?”

“The sword wasn’t drawn. Just from what I can tell the chain-mail has only passed time as well and there’s no holes in it either. I think it’s only rusted because of the corpse of the person who died. There’s nothing that could be called damage on it so it seems they weren't killed from combat."

That's certainly true. In that case, what was the cause of death?

"Most likely wasn't it starvation? Since this room is so large. If they can't use magic then it's even possible they would just keep wandering around in circles."

That's true.

"I thought about it in regards to that but I'll use an attack spell from the flame or fire type. If I use it normally then it can go about 60 meters or so and if I change the angle I could try and figure out if there's a wall with 60 meters. I called Al-san because I didn't want to surprise you by suddenly using attack magic."

I gave up on using attack spells to investigating taking into consideration the possibility it might carelessly call some monsters but I guess it's true it's the same for the light. I only decided to go with her suggestions because in the worst case if a monster comes then we can throw the stone with {Light} on it up in the air as high as we can then run away as fast as possible.

"Yeah, if you've prepared yourself for it, then I'll do it. The range of my magic is farther than yours. And..look."

I create a {Flame Javelin} and added a {Missile} to it then sent it flying. It's the place to show my Void Magic Lv. MAX. I can do the same thing with 10x more efficient use of MP. Of course it's just for the void magic portion of it so it doesn't raise the amount of damage it does. It's common for {Flame Javelin Missile} to use 9 MP for the level 3 fire magic and level 6 void magic but in my case I can do the same thing for 3.6 MP. If I use the same 9 MP then in terms of speed(acceleration power) I can increase it by 5 times and I can increase the range by 5 times as well. Of course the void magic remains 0.6 MP like that, it's fine to just make the size of the warhead bigger and raise the power of it. This time rather raising the power, the range is more important though. I thought it would be a bit strange to increase the range too far so I just decided to go with an adequate 3–4 times farther.

I have it doing a lap around us at about 200m in the surroundings. After we were unable to see the {Flame Javelin} once I had it turn back around. At the very least there's nothing about 200m in our surroundings. Once it returned back in front of us I released the guidance and sent it flying ahead of us. It continued flying another several tens of meters from the inertia and then fell to the ground. I think it probably flew around 250m?

“Mi..Missile..And it even had extensions to it’s range..the level of your magic must be considerably high..I had confidence in my mana and magic skill levels as well but..this is..somehow.”

Miduchi is surprised. That’s only obvious. Extending the range itself is fine if you just put in two or three times the MP but since Missile requires a void magic of at least level 6 to use after all. That’s why sister surprised everyone when she took the exam for the knight group and was able to pass just from the level of her magic skills.

“It should be quite better than just sending it flying right. Also, we definitely won’t end up circling the same area. We just need to do this.”

I poured even more mana into the {Light} on the rock in my hand this time I didn’t increase it with continuation this time but extension. Increasing the duration with continuation has far better MP efficiency in comparison but it’s troublesome if you intend to use a different spell during that time. There’s no change to the way the light itself looks. I used 100 times the normal amount of mana, used 100 MP to increase the duration of the effect by 10 times (Other than attack spells the effect doesn’t increase proportionate to the amount of MP you add to it. It increases with a square root.) With this it will last for 50 minutes.

“This {Light} will last 10 times longer than a normal one. And, just like this.”

I used a normal {Fire Ball}. I sent it flying about 100m and it went a bit further thanks to the inertia and then fell to the ground and exploded. Burning stones glowing red were sent flying around. I’m sure we’ll still be able to see the light for about 10 minutes or so.

“Let’s go to there and leave a {Light} rock once more. If we just keep proceeding like that then at the very least for 50 minutes or so we should be able to proceed in a straight line. After that I just need to use {Light} again before the duration of the effect disappears.”

I said that and started advancing forward.

“..Ha~ I’ll lose my confidence, really. Exactly how much leeway do you have in your mana?”

“Easily more than 10 times yours. That’s why it’s fine for you to relax and come with me.”

“Ten..Ten times..Exactly how much is that? My mana is said to be reasonably high though..”

Miduchi’s shoulder dropped down. It was then.

“Ah..sorry~ I feel like I need to take a shit.”

“..Really~ It can’t be helped. I’ll face this direction so please do it quickly.”

I’m not Ralpa but it’s best to say things honestly. It’s been a good amount of time since I ate lunch after all, so it can’t be helped I’m sure. I quickly left everything out that I could and used water magic to wash my ass and then dried it before pulling my armor back up and putting my protectors on. The period of time it took a mere three minutes. I’m sure a trick like this is impossible with plate-mail or splint-mail. Incidentally I buried the shit that came out with dirt.

“Sorry for the wait, now let’s go.”

“..That was fast. Pla, no, so that is rubber armor..”

“Yeah, it’s light and durable, it’s easy to take off and put on and to clean as well. It’s nice right?”

“Ha~”

“What? Do you have no interest?”

“That isn’t the case. But, our first priority right now is to escape from here.”

“Well, I guess that’s true. By the way, are you fine?”

“About what?”

“Toilet.”

“While Al-san was sleeping I went in a place a bit of distance away.”

“I see.”

There’s no need to be careful around her anymore than Ralpa. She’s something like a wife in a different way than Miki.

.....

I wonder if around one hour has passed? We just dropped the third and fourth rocks with {Long Duration Light} on them. We've probably advanced about 2Km while shooting {Fire Balls} in a random direction I guess? My MP has cut around 6,800. Since we found another person who starved there doesn't seem to be any monsters at all so I'm talking with Miduchi about various things. Like our lives after we reincarnated, the topics for conversation have no end.

We've finally started to become able to see the wall ahead of us. The wall is stretching out slightly slanted even further on both the right and left sides. Now then, what should we do?

"Hey, dungeon beginner. We won't follow along the wall. There's not much that I can think of judging from this width though. It's might first time seeing a room this big but I know of one room that's this class. It was round in a shape. Can you guess what I'm worrying about?"

"That's only obvious. The fact that an entire floor of the dungeon has become one giant room right?"

"That's right. Then do you know what way we should move?"

"There should be a teleport crystal in the center of the dungeon. If the wall is in a circle then if we follow straight along a right angle we should be able to arrive there."

"That's right. Although, there's still plenty of possibility remaining that the entire floor of the dungeon isn't a perfect circle. If we can't find anything by the time we arrive at the wall on the other side then this time we'll need to walk along the wall."

"I understand."

I was about to start walking off with my back to wall but if this wall is really the outer circumference then it should be a diameter of about 10Km and the circumference should be about 31.4Km. In order to check if it's really perpendicular I had Miduchi back up about 200m from the wall. When facing the wall I used the spell {Lightning Bolt} towards the wall. The lightning went straight towards the wall and rebounded.

If it accurately comes back at me then it's okay to think that it's perfectly perpendicular. If I use the spell {Lightning Bolt} normally then it has a range of about 80m and I can extend that up to 800m but as expected that's too far. It should be fine at 5 times the range. Even with this while it normally costs 12 MP to use it only costs me 10.

I try shooting it several times while making small adjustments to the angle... This should be fine. The {Lightning Bolt} splendid reflected back to right in front of me. So it's this point huh? I used {Fire Wall} towards the wall from the same point. I didn't increase the range this time. I just increased the duration. With this it should last for about 100 seconds. However, with this I was able to draw almost a straight line from the wall. If we place some {Long Duration Lights} along here then even after the flame disappears thanks to the {Long Duration Lights} we'll still know that we're heading in straight line from the wall.

.....

Just as we predicted, I don't know what floor this is but it's basically one entire floor made into a giant room. While carrying our hungry stomachs we continued walking for close to three hours before we finally ran into something like a large cylinder shaped outer wall. There were several pieces of equipment from people who starved in the past along the way to here. In order to go all the way around it in worst case we'll need to walk another 300m or more.

We continued to take small breaks with the wall to our back while adjusting the direction we were moving.

"I wonder if the teleport crystal is on the other side of this wall?"

Miduchi asked anxiously.

"Yeah, probably. If there isn't then you and I are already...Since we can somehow do something about water, we'll last about a week. We'll need to find a method to do something during that period."

"I've started to get hungry right."

"..Since we've only had water to drink after all.."

“Since it’s just the two of us after all..”

“That’s true.”

I regret throwing my bag down at this late point.

“I want some proteins.”

Miduchi licks her lips illuminated by the light. It was an obscene movement that sent a shiver down my spine.

“Sure I want to eat some meat as well.”

“Al-san can let out some proteins right?”

She’s just sticking the end of her forked tongue out of her lips and moving it like small scissors. That’s quite skillful.

“Huh?”

“You can let some out right?”

I don’t know a spell like that.

“I don’t know a spell that conveni ah...you bastard~ I’ll kill you, shut up. Rather~ you’ve changed quite a bit. Or else is this how it really is?”

“Didn’t I just say a slightly {adult} joke? I was just trying to make the mood more cheerful.”

Don’t say it so disappointingly. I hit the wall that’s towering over my back with the palm of my hand while,

“It’s about time we head off. There should be some place on this that will let us inside.”

“Yes~~ So the break is already over..Ha~~”

Don’t get sulky with that creepy skin color.

“It should be plenty to rest for five minutes. Don’t complain.”

Chapter 129: The Gazer

Year 7444, Month 5, Day 28

We leave the 30cm or so rock with a square like characteristic in the place we were resting until now along the wall as a landmark and then started walking with the wall along our right side. Miduchi is still holding a different {Light} rock. After walking for a short while there was an opening in the wall and you can tell it's a passage further inside.

"It would be bad if we suddenly approach and there's something inside. Shouldn't be return once and try checking the other direction for passages as well?"

Miduchi said. There's no reason to be against it.

"That's true, I think it's probably fine but it's true the probability is high something is inside. Let's try going around to the other side once then?"

I said that and turned around.

We pass by the place we were resting until just now and continued even further along the wall with it on our left side. Judging from the distance we walked, we'll have ended up making one full lap around the pillar pretty soon. Ahead of us I can see the passage entrance.

"It seems we returned. There's nothing else we should go and or look at. Let's go."

"Yes."

"Fundamentally the rooms in the center of the dungeon where the teleport crystal is are around 30m in every direction. However, this pillar has a diameter of 100m or so. It's possible there's a monster inside. Let's make sure we remain cautious."

"Of course."

Miduchi holds her short sword in her right hand and the {Light} stone in her left hand. I'm still holding Toris's long sword in my right hand as well. We carefully stepped foot inside of the passage. The width of the passage is roughly 3m, the height of the ceiling is around 4m I guess. The passage itself seems to have a length of around 10m? 10m ahead the walls and ceiling on both sides disappear. It turns into a large room with the floor stretching out.

"Be careful of traps."

"Yeah."

We slide our feet as we proceed. Since {Light} cut off once along the way Miduchi reused it again. In addition I had her make two extra {Light} stones that I'm holding.

We stepped foot into the room. Since it's inside of a large cylinder, I guess it's a doughnut shaped room? In the front I can see something like an even thinner pillar than the one we just entered that's around 40m. Judging off the thickness of this 100m or so pillar that we walked around and the 10m length of the passage we just passed through, it's outer area should be around 80m, and inner diameter around 40m, with a width of about 20m a doughnut shaped space, furthermore inside of that there's another 40m round pillar in the center is how it's structured.

My intuition is telling me. There's a boss in this room! I quietly whisper to Miduchi.

"Stay behind me on the right side. If you can see a monster then anything is fine hit it with some magic. Alright, stay behind me on the right."

"Yes."

Since both Miduchi and I are right handed. We're holding our weapons in our right hands. Then I need to remain on the side where her heart is.

And, soon after we stepped foot inside of the doughnut I threw the two stones we had used {Light} on ahead of time in both the right and left directions about 20m. I guess it heard the sound of that falling. I could see something drifting in the center of the passage(?) of the doughnut shape on the right side. There's no mistake it's a monster. I identified it in an instant while using an attack spell.

It's {Lightning Bolt}. In an instant from my left hand electricity surges and reaches in front of the monster, and then it bounded 50–60 cm in a different direction! It can't be, again!?

【

【Asexual/25/7/6444 ▪ Death=Tyrant kin】

【Status: Normal】

【Age: 999 Years】

【Level: 25】

【HP: 1114(1114) MP: 347(347) 】

【Strength: 20】

【Speed: 27】

【Dexterity: 89】

【Endurance: 24】

【Special Ability: Infrared Vision】

【Special Ability: Magic Reflection 24】

【Special Ability: Slow Beam】

【Special Ability: Sleep Beam】

【Special Ability: Charm Beam】

【Special Ability: Floating Ray】

【Special Ability: Petrification Beam】

【Special Ability: Bleeding Beam】

【Special Ability: Fear Beam】

【Special Ability: Disintegration Beam】

【Special Ability: Death Ray】

【Special Ability: Venom Beam】

“Run away!!!”

Just as I said it I ran back the way we came. The speed it's floating over here doesn't seem to be all that fast but there's no way to know if that's it's full speed. Miduchi and turned around the right side and ran away at full speed.

The passage that took us close to 2 minutes to pass through on our way we ran through in less than 2 seconds, when we arrived near the pillar I said “Over here!!” and ran towards the last {Long Duration Light} rock we had placed in a dash. It was a good thing in this bad situation that we placed random rocks with {Light} on them in various places so we didn't end up tripping or falling over.

Around 400m from the entrance passage of the pillar, it's almost like an airfield at night with how the light from the {Light}s are lighting up our path. We couldn't do anything other than hide in the darkness a bit away from the light while keeping watch.

"A..Al-san. Just now you used magic while running right?"

What are you asking at a time like this, really.

"Yeah, I can do it. Since I trained to do it."

I replied to it irritated.

"Is that a Unique Ability as well?"

Ah, for that sort of reason.

"No, this one is just the results of seriously training on a daily basis for a number of years..!"

We were whispering in a low voice but I put my head on top of Miduchi's head(I can't see so I just guessed where it was but it doesn't seem to have been mistaken) pushed her down to the ground, while I laid down as well.

The monsters that slowly came out of the passage had a diameter of just over 2m and a blackish-red body that was something like a rugged sphere floating in mid-air. From the top of the sphere there was a number of things like tentacles growing off of it. And then..in the center of the sphere there was something like a large opened eyeball. Underneath that I can see a number of fights like a large atrocious looking mouth. It's floating around here and there near the entrance of the passage as if looking for it's prey. Even though it has an eye can it not see visible light?

"Ah!! That is behol.."

Do you know about it? Miduchi.

As expected of a Dark Elf I guess. Though I know what's expected of them.

"Right now, I'm looking at it. Quietly.."

I'm sure Miduchi remembered my Unique Ability, she quietly held her breath.

“It’s race is Death=Tyrant.King, HP is 1114, MP is 347. Age is 999 years old, level is 25...It has so many special skills that it’s a pain to try and read them all out..”

I whisper in a low voice.

“They’re all beams right?”

“Eh...Yeah, not all of them though. Most of them are beams. I’m amazed you knew that. I’ll check over as many of them as I can before the {Light} cuts off.”

I said that and opened the sub-windows of 【Identify】.

【Death=Tyrant kin: The result of a species of Eye=Tyrant race turning undead. One of the special skills it possessed before turning undead Magic Resistance was weakened into Magic Reflection, and in comparison for only being able to use it a number of times equal to it’s level, reductions in HP from aging are lost. Also, the characteristic large eye in the center of it’s body almost completely turned into a mineral crystal upon turning into an undead and it’s ability Anti-Magic Ray was lost but simultaneously it’s weakness was also lost. Furthermore, it’s vision has weakened and it only has half the range of 1.5m per level remaining in it’s Infrared Vision. As a result of the eyes on the ends of it’s tentacles rotting and becoming dull the only remaining vision it has is the halved Infrared Vision from the large eyeball in the center of it’s body. Furthermore, since it’s brain has also rotted it’s intelligence has decreased considerably and it’s thought process has fallen to less than the level of a wild animal. Since that is the case, it is best not to think that conversation or negotiations are possible. Nevertheless, there are differences between individuals abilities depending on the state they were in when turning undead.】

I’ll open the second stage sub-window and check it as well. There seems to be quite a few places I can open it up but for the time being I’ll check it’s previous race. It would be good if something like a weakness is written down though.

【Eye=Tyrant: A magical living creature. It doesn’t possess the ability to reproduce. It has a spherical body covered in a chitin like that of the shell of a crab and large single eye in the center of it’s body. In every direction stretching out roughly 15 degrees in a cone from this eye it shoots off an Anti-Magic Ray. Just as can be seen this large eye is the weakness(it takes triple the normal damage when done directly to the eye) but it has an eyelid. Also it has fangs in its large mouth and specializes at biting as well. It possess ten tentacles from the upper part of its spherical body and each of those can use a different type of magical beam in a straight line. The varieties of beams are delay, sleep, charm, float, petrify, bleed, fear, disintegrate, death, and strong poison but all of them are the result of a magic effect. As a result of that, just the same as Magic Resistance and the various types of vision the special skills require the use of mana just like when using magic. The range is equal to the Anti-Magic Ray that comes from its primary eye and increases by 2m per level. Its extremely intelligent but by nature is fundamentally evil and extraordinarily crafty, it almost never acts impulsively. Its normal vision can pick up visible light including Infrared Rays, Radiation Rays, and X-Rays.】

Aaah!! That eyeball bastard returned to the passage..I guess using 【Identify】 anymore than that is impossible. I wanted to check its special skills as well...

“Fu...That thing is..dangerous..”

Its more powerful than any monster Ive encountered up until now. Things like Franken or the Vampire are just like babies compared to that. It seems that a lot of parts of it have weakened since it was alive because it turned undead but its still not an opponent I can relax against. However, its extremely big that I was able to properly use 【Identify】 unlike up until now. However, a mineral crystal...I definitely would like to obtain it here.

“Al-san, that thing is a Behol..{The Gazer}. It has a meaning like looking or {The Gaze}. And it even has a suffix like er added to the end of the characters combining verb and noun. Being able to see the real thing..Im deeply moved.”

Is this girl an idiot?

In what world is there an idiot being moved seeing a monster..right in front of me.

“Isn’t that English? Not to mention the auxiliary verb isn’t even necessary. Well, I can’t say youre wrong though.”

“Adding the {The} is a form of beauty and to make it easier to understand. The reason its English is..and, Huh? Didn’t you notice it? All of the monsters that appear in this world are like the ones that come out in games and legends?

Most of the characteristics match up as well.”

Ah, that, I’ve heard about it from Kuro in the past as well. Well, I wasn’t surprised hearing that in the first place since there’s magic like Status Open though.

“I had lost my memories of my life but I hadn’t lost knowledge about these sorts of things so that’s how I managed to survive fighting against monsters up until now.”

What’s with, this girl, she’s even more useful than I thought. Something like a dictionary. Come to think of it she did say she liked games...

“You, plus 1 point.”

I said it while feeling a bit of admiration.

“It’s fine if you praise me even more.”

Don’t say it so proudly. However, there’s no mistake it’s nice.

“What’s it’s weakness?”

“It doesn’t have one. If I had to say then it would be the large eyeball in the center of it’s body.”

...

“After all I take back the point. But that thing, it seems it’s an undead. It feels like the ones that aren’t undead and have a living body are stronger overall. It seems it has the ability Magic Reflection but it seems it can only use it another 24 times, and the other beams I think we can do something about with {Anti-Magic Field}. Since they’re beams ice is out the question but if we can at least make it so it can’t use Magic Reflection anymore then we should be able to just bury it or something.”

“Hohou~ by the time you just mentioned HP or MP and stuff but is that number high?”

Since I hadn’t brought up(most of the topics were about our upbringing. Since there were quite a few corpses that starved with no signs of combat, in order to natural increase our understanding the topics came to our lives until now) explaining ability levels up until now in our conversations it’s a question that’s only obvious.

“It’s HP was..1100..Well just over 1100 and a few points. Putting it frankly it’s absurd. In the case of a human, the peak is at 30 years old or so but even then it’s 110 or around 120 for someone with a lot. I’m sure it’s because your level is high for your age so you have 110. After that, it also had close to 350 MP as well, this is abnormal. A first-rate sorcerer has around 50 or 60. I don’t know why but you have 252 though. Well, I can more or less guess though.”

I gave a quick and easy to understand explanation of the numbers.

“Uhya~ that is quite~ high. But, what should we do?”

“There’s no choice than to run or fight but the inside of that pillar should be a room and it seems that thing is the boss of the room so there’s no choices. Since it doesn’t seem like we could evade it while running pass to grab the teleport crystal with our backs to him. That’s why there’s no choice but to fight.”

If it’s me then even if it’s a bit of a waste of MP I could create an {Anti-Magic Field} on my back, and above all else I can run while using but so technically there is the option of evading it and running. However, that mineral crystal is too captivating to give up. If it’s a crystal then it would be the best. Crystals are minerals right?

“I’ve come up with a rough strategy. Since there’s only two of there’s fundamentally only two strategies we could take. One is to run into the teleport crystal further in and teleport. However, if there’s no crystal rod in there then we’re done for so it’s rejected.”

“That’s true.”

Even though were up against an opponent with no real weakness, I was a bit surprised but Miduchi honestly agreed. Although, even if you can’t see the details of Identify like me, if you have as much MP as she does I think it’s only obvious to think you can win but..I don’t think the opponent is that easy.

“And, the remaining option to “fight and win” is what we end up at but we’re going with a strategy that can’t really be called one here. Since there’s tentacles above it’s body.”

“It uses beams right? The brutal types that kill you, turn you to stone, or to dust.”

This girl really knows well.

“I’m amazed you know that...That’s right. However, it seems that this is an effect of magic so it should be possible to block it with {Anti-Magic Field}. That’s why I’ll become the shield. You should stay behind me and when you see an opening attack it with magic. 24 times, in worst case if you hit it with magic 25 times then it shouldn’t be able to use Magic Reflection anymore. After that we’ll finish it off with magic. Listen well, make sure you don’t run out of mana. If you lose control of yourself in combat you’ll die.”

“I already know that much, really..But, if I have to hit with magic over 20 times then I can’t put any power into it?”

“Isn’t it fine even if there’s not much power in it?”

“Then I think that should be fine.”

“Ah, also, since it’s probably in the shape of a doughnut so we’ll slowly move back while going around in circles. If possible I’d like to create a dirt wall to block or hide from the beams but don’t put much expectations on that. Even if it’s me I can’t use a different magic while using {Anti-Magic Field}. In the worst case if it comes to a dead end then it can’t be helped. I’ll surround it in an {Anti-Magic Field} so if it comes to that..you beat it to death.”

“If it comes to that time then if possible I’ll cut off the tentacles from the eyeball. It’s the conventional method of combat against {The Gazer}.”

“I see, got it. Then, for the time being I’ll prepare four rocks with a long duration {Light}. I’ll hold those. I’ll scatter them around while moving through the doughnut to use for light. While I’m doing that you just focus on using attack spells on it. Only during the start I’ll use an attack spell as well. I think I can probably land eight hits on it. Got it?”

“..I understand.”

An amazed response came back. I’ve practiced using up to eight warheads at the same time with my javelin-type attack spells.

“Alright, let’s go.”

I stand up while saying.

We’ve already gotten it to use Magic Reflection once but I don’t know what kind of timing it will recover them. We need to hurry. Even if it comes to burying it with ice or dirt I can’t imagine how it will work because of Magic Reflection. It might even end up scattering ice and rock over here causing us to be in danger. It’s limited to the final resort.

And, I took into consideration hitting it with consecutive attack spells from outside of the range of it’s vision which has supposedly gotten weaker but I couldn’t adapt it because it’s unknown what the differences are remaining between individuals. It would be best to think that the range of Infrared Vision differs based on the length of each tentacle as well. I can’t forget that depending on the direction of the tentacles it might even be possible for it to see a distance of up to 75m. Unless we were to hide behind the pillar in the center there’s no way to hide from a distance of 75m.

Even if we suppose that after turning undead it’s vision has dropped to the bare minimum, if we cling to the inner area of the doughnut then it’s almost entirely in it’s sight.

.....

We returned once again to the the side of the entrance of the passage on the pillar while remaining vigilant. The guided lamp like {Light} we used on the way has long since disappeared but the rocks with {Long Duration Light} are still remaining so we followed along those and returned back to the pillar again. Just in case I create some more {Long Duration Lights} and placed them around the base of the pillar.

And, just as planned I made another four {Long Duration Light} rocks and quietly peeked into the passage. Obviously it’s close to pitch black and I can’t see well. If I remember correctly, then it already can’t see visible light so I don’t think it will react to the light from the {Light} and felt a bit relieved on that point.

I quietly stretched out my left hand and lit up the passage with the {Long Duration Light}. After all it’s not in the passage itself. It must have returned to it's original position (?) after losing track of it's prey like a normal room boss. I turned around once to nod at Miduchi and after gathering my resolve took a step into the passage.

Soon after we entered the doughnut shaped room I threw one of the {Long Duration Light}s inside.

It's there.

It's about 60m further on the right side of the doughnut. It's in a position where it can hide behind the pillar in the center.

I can only see the large spherical body and eye and a large mouth with no slits. It's just floating around as usual but it seems to have reacted to the sound of throwing the rock it's slowly started turning around.

Without a moment's delay I launch some {Flame Javelin}s into it. In an instant eight flaming spears reached the eyeball bastard but after all bounced off and disappeared. I created an {Anti-Magic Field} with almost double the mana of the eyeball bastard, 700 MP before the spears reached it and made it into a board shape to create something like an anti-magic barrier. This amount of mana and shape is one I've used a lot in the past against sister during training so it didn't even take 1 second to activate. I'm already in the realm of masters.

And I looked at the eyeball bastard with 【Identify】. 【Special Skill: Magic Reflection 17】. Damn it, it seems that while we were taking our time it's number of uses remaining recovered. I guess that means at longest it recovers one per 10 minutes. Well that should be fine.

It seems Miduchi is firing off {Flame Arrow}. A flaming arrow flew past my right about 1m away. I quickly transformed the {Anti-Magic Field} stretching it to the right. The {Flame Arrow} splendidly was about to pierce through the eyeball bastard but this ended up bouncing towards the ceiling and disappeared as well. Another 16 times huh? The eyeball bastard completely finished turning around. Now, it's time for the real thing.

A small amount of lightning-like light came off my {Anti-Magic Field} barrier as proof that it was able to negate the magic. I'm sure this is some kind of beam. The eyeball bastard's MP went from 347 to 335. It's not all that strong at all but I take one step backwards.

Following that something like a red light was given off by one of the dull eyes on a tentacle from it's upper body. It was blocked by my {Anti-Magic Field} in an instant and I wasn't able to see the light. So there's transparent beams as well... Although even if it was colored no matter how I think about it, it's impossible to evade a beam of light that's been fired.

This..Will Miduchi really have enough time to stick her face out and fire off attack spells?

"Hey, it's a change in plan. Ah, no, it's fine. Since it doesn't seem like there's any gaps it's fine if you don't attack. We'll just keep backing up like this."

Thinking it would be bad like this I maintained my {Anti-Magic Field} barrier while we returned to the passage. During that time it seems we took about five hits from beams. The eyeball bastards MP is dropping rapidly and is already at 276. I'll take on all of your beams and cut off your MP.

I guess as expected the eyeball bastard only has about the intelligence level of a wild animal, it just keeps firing off the beams consecutively. Lightning is being given off of the surface of my {Anti-Magic Field} one after another. The speed it's floating towards us at is about pace an adult can speed walk. The eyeball bastards MP is already 151. We're maintaining a distance of about 30m from it while slowly retreating backwards around the doughnut.

Around the time we retreated about ten steps, it finally seems to have given up on firing beams. However, the eyeball bastard still has about 64 MP remaining.

This is bad. I guess even wild animals won't just keep blindly attacking. Once it realizes that it's pointless, what will it do next...I guess there's no choice but to aim for it's openings.

"What should I do? Should I try firing spells at it?"

"Since you can't use missiles that's not good. If you even leave the shadow of my {Anti-Magic Field} for an instant you'll take one of those beams.."

"However.."

We glare at each other while walking backwards at a quick pace. After all, this speed is this guys limit. We've almost gone about 1/4 of a lap around the doughnut.

Ah~ I want an anti-personnel landmine {Clay-more}. If I had a landmine I'm sure I could damage it with that. Since I'm sure this thing can only reflect magic. One day I should think about developing the delayed fuse, including an electrical fuse and electric detonator. If it's electricity then I can make it with {Lightning Bolt} after all...Though if it's the electric current and voltage of {Lightning Bolt} there's no way I could send it down a metal wire that's only a few hundred meters.

There's no meaning in thinking about things I can't get my hands on right now. We're in a state of lull but I don't want to go into a battle of attrition. I guess we should try going all out and moving to the edge of the outer wall, where it should just barely be outside of range of it's Infrared Vision before attacking? Since I'm sure the beams are equal to the range of it's sight so it should only have about 1.5 times it's level remaining, so if we're at least 40m away from it..I considered it from the start but if I suppose there's no difference, then even just making a small error on the distance will mean death. After all I guess it's rejected.

Nn...

Miduchi can't use {Missile}. I can use it.

And Miduchi has all of the elemental magic skills.
She should still have over 200 MP remaining as well.

"Hey, you, can you use a power {Anti-Magic Field}?"

"I think I can probably use it but since I haven't really practiced it much it will take some time, but I, can't use magic while walking."

..I guess it's no good...

I didn't really want to do it but I guess there's no other choice than to wait for him to approach or approach from our end and after wrapping him in {Anti-Magic Field} we attack. I wonder Magic Reflection works on {Anti-Magic Field} as well?

No, wait a minute...

Chapter 130: First Time

Year 7444, Month 5, Day 28

“It will take time, around how much?”

If it's just several tens of seconds then I can probably earn it. If it's at that speed (the speed an adult and walk quickly) then if we just do a lap around the doughnut depending on the course we might be able to earn three or four minutes.

“Probably over 10 minutes..”

So it's no good.

Then how about this?

“Let's pull it closer and then throw the rocks with {Light} cast on them at it without letting them touch my {Anti-Magic Field}.”

“Eh? I understand.”

I'm sure she has some doubts about it but it's good she obeys right away.

Miduchi quickly picked up a random rock and used the spell {Light} on it. Simultaneously I threw the second {Long Duration Rock} I had into the center of the passage in order to secure light.

I guess because I had been standing still, the eyeball bastard had already approached to within 10m.

The rock with {Light} cast on it hit him right in the center of his muddy white eyeball with a thud. There was no change to the rock. It's HP didn't decrease and there's no change to the number of uses on Magic Reflection either. I guess it doesn't reflect low-threat magic?

We raised our speed again a bit and increased the distance. Something we can throw..20 throwing needles and a knife with a chipped blade. Miduchi has a total of 9 knives. 4 throwing darts. Blowgun. We don't have anything decent..If Bel was here we could have her shoot consecutive arrows from behind the anti-magic defense wall though...

Even if we try using the blowgun with wind magic instead of blowing into it according to Miduchi due to problems with the durability of it, the power can't be increased very much. Maybe I'll challenging the production of metal air gun when we get back. In the past I made several varieties but according to the stories I heard about crossbows it's power was below that. Due to problems with the shape of the ammunition there was too much air resistance. It ended up being single shot but I went through quite a bit of trial and error to prepare my bayonet.

I made an iron pipe and then put an exclusive arrow in from the back. Then put some cotton in the middle or back of the arrow and use your fingers to seal the remaining side and use wind magic from that finger. It will only fly about 40 meters or so and there's a limit to how much power it could have. Though because the arrow will have cotton on it, it will quickly decelerate. Even if you raise the level of wind magic your hand will come out of the pipe this time and it's pretty much the same in the end, since you can't aim there's no meaning to it. Integrally speaking it's a bit better than just blowing a blowgun with your breath but in the end I gave up on it.

In any case no matter what we throw that we have onus right now it can't do any damage to that eyeball bastard. If we were to throw our swords and it hit right then it might be different but if throw it once it's over after all.

"It's fine already, next is..I'll get even closer to the inner wall. You hide behind {Anti-Magic Field} while making dirt walls in an appropriate location on the other side of him from the pillar. The height will be where I can hide from them and a width of 1.5m should be plenty... now, go!"

"Yes!"

After confirming that Miduchi had run off I glared at the eyeball bastard again. He's still looking atrocious as usual. I'm sure if I were to release {Anti-Magic Field} here even once I'd die in an instant. I really want to make fighting in close combat while holding my long sword and using {Anti-Magic Field} at the same time my last resort. After all his Magic Reflection takes effect around 50—

60 cm from his body. Since I don't know what will happen if {Anti-Magic Field} touches it, I don't have any method of attacking while maintaining that much distance. I'm sure if I were to jump over the {Anti-Magic Field} even if I stab it, if a beam hits my hand I'd probably die. I raise my speed of moving backwards against thinking I should increase the distance to 30 m or so.

"I did it!"

I heard Miduchi's voice that she's finished the work.

"Alright, standby just like that. I'm going to move into the inner walls so you follow along it as well!"

I threw down the third {Long Duration Light}. Suddenly I looked the left where the pillar is acting as the core of the doughnut and I can see a passage just like here. The passage bends directly to the right and obviously I can't confirm the teleport crystal.

"I'm 5m behind you. I made the wall about 2m to my right."

Miduchi called out to me.

"Alright, pull back at the same speed as me. Just before you can't see me anymore stop. Once I'm hidden behind the wall count to 20 seconds and let me know."

"Yes."

A wall appeared in my field of sight. The eyeball bastard is about 30m ahead.

I quickly hid behind the wall and released {Anti-Magic Field} before using a new magic.

It's a spell I just had Karl teach me at the start of this month. I've still only practiced it using the standard amount of mana but it should be plenty.

"{Delayed Blast Fire Ball}"

Of course it's also possible to use this like a normal {Fire Ball} but it's true worth is that there's no need to fire off the warhead. Or to be more correct you send it flying but since you're just moving it about 1 cm it's not much different from not moving it. You can set the time on the delay before it explodes, and quite literally like a landmine, it's possible to match the timing up for when it explodes. This time I'm setting the time. After all I can't let go of {Anti-Magic Field}. I was able to create 10 of them in the 20 seconds before Miduchi gave me the signal. I set the timer on all of them to 5 seconds later and then used {Anti-Magic Field} once more before quickly retreating along the inner area of the doughnut.

It seems the eyeball bastard lost sight of me since I was hiding behind the wall but must have guessed I was behind the wall. Without floating around in that spot it kept moving without slowing down over here. It's already in a place about 5m away. 4 more seconds.

It seems to have sent off a beam of light towards me after I appeared from behind the wall and some lightning ran along the surface of my {Anti-Magic Field}. Oh~ I forgot to Identify. It's MP is 51 huh? Alright! Another 3 seconds.

With {Anti-Magic Field} still deployed I quickly retreat. There's only about 2 m between the dirt wall and the inner wall of the doughnut. The only way for it to chase after me is to follow along the outer side of the wall. Of course it could fly over it as well. If it uses Magic Reflection to reflect the wall then that would be even better. Another 2 seconds.

There's also 10m of distance opened between it and myself. Miduchi has grouped back up with me as well. Another 1 second.

Come!

I saw it fly over the dirt wall. The moment before it landed all of my {Delayed Blast Fire Ball}s exploded at once. Along with a loud noise the burning rocks were sent flying all over the place including my direction but were blocked by the {Anti-Magic Field} and disappeared long with the lightning.

There's no choice other than to repel these.

It seems that he's still unharmed. However, just as planned his Magic Reflection changed to 6. It's a success!

When I'm reflexively taking a triumphant pose and,

"Alright! We'll do that once more. Go and make some more dirt walls just the same as before!"

I said that ordering Miduchi and then we started retreating again. While I was at it I threw down the last {Long Duration Light}. It's about time we've done a full lap...

Just like last time I had behind a dirt wall again and this time I used a different spell. If it has emotions then it should be getting quite impatient about right now. If it doesn't have any then I don't mind at all though. Well it would have been fine to do this with the dirt wall just before but it was critical to get the number of uses on his Magic Reflection below 8 uses so it can't be helped. If it's 8 then just one attack of my attack magic will take it out.

"Clone {Mirror Image}"

I activate the spell for 10 seconds or so and 6 clones of myself appeared and ran in both directions out from the wall. Right away one of them took a green beam and disappeared. The second one took a blue beam and disappeared. The third one took a yellow beam and disappeared. The fourth one took a pink beam. The fifth one probably took a transparent one. The sixth one...Isn't disappearing!! I quickly released the {Mirror Image} and used {Anti-Magic Field} once more. After leaving the wall I used Identify. It's MP is 1!

Take that! This rotting eyeball bastard {Rotten.Eye.Ball}!

I wonder if that remaining 1 MP is really just a decimal point? It's just using Floating Beam to keep itself in the air right? One of it's upper tentacles was always facing itself.

I made a ferocious smile with my teeth showing while releasing the {Anti-Magic Field}.

Since it can't do anything, even then it's still trying to float over here and use it's only remaining weapon that is to bite with it's fangs.

I calmly used attack magic.

{Fire Javelin}

Eight {Fire Javelins} went flying towards it's body covered in a chitin shell. Six of them were deflected but the remaining two pierced through it's shell and let off a boiling sound from the structure of it's rotting body cooking. I felt like I could smell the scent when you cook crab or shrimp with an outer shell. I guess it wasn't its vital point, or in the first place it may not even have a vital point but each hit only did about 100 damage.

"We can already do this. You finish it off."

I said that to Miduchi and she used magic as well.

The same {Fire Javelin}.

However it's only one. Even then the damage is the as mine (that's only obvious though) 100. One more and even further one more. She's already dealt 300 damage to it. Her elemental magic should have leveled up. I thought about identifying her but I should remain watching the eyeball bastard. This thing's HP is still just over 600. Come to think of it when we were up against Franken our damage was strangely low. After it's HP enters the negative I'll try punching it to confirm it.

It's HP smoothly decreases. I'm saying "Another three hits..two hits..for the final one use a weak attack." and giving out instructions to Miduchi, it's HP went to -9. The moment it's HP went into minus the eyeball fell to the ground and stopped moving.

I said "Let me punch it once." and approached the eyeball bastard and then swung down Toris's long sword with all the force in my right hand. HP is -85. I was able to do 76 points of damage. Since it seems like the defense of it's shell is pretty high you could say that's about appropriate. Then, in that case I guess that Franken's original defense was just abnormally high.

"After heating it once more it should completely die. However, wait just a minute. I want to read everything."

I said that and opened all of the sub-windows of the Death=Tyrant.King before reading them.

I see now, it's strong. However, it's certainly not an opponent that can't be beat. Since it was just Miduchi and I this time we were able to win without any victims. If you don't mind victims then if you have a unit of about 50 people and surround it then I'm sure about 30 would be incapacitated but in the end you should be able to beat it from all sides. Though putting it in reverse, if you wanted to get rid of this thing you would need 50 people who all attack it simultaneously and it's necessary for them to be prepared for more than half to be taken out. If it's a living Eye=Tyrant then I'm sure even more people would be needed but it shouldn't be impossible to kill them. No, I guess even then it's impossible, if it's living it seems they're tremendously intelligent after all.

Hmm...

Well if they end up running into one in the dungeon when I'm not around then I'm sure they'll be wiped out...I guess it's fine.

"Swing your sword a number of times checking the sensation and weight of your sword before you kill it with that. Once you kill it try checking the differences swinging after."

After I said that and Miduchi nodded before repeating swinging her sword a number of times. It seems she's doing something like combo techniques as well. After that she walked close to it and dealt the final blow to the Death=Tyrant.King.

Then she started swinging the sword again, after testing out her combo techniques she seems to have understood.

"Level up was it..I feel like my body has vaguely gotten lighter but it's certain if you don't pay close attention to it you wouldn't notice..Honestly speaking, if I wasn't told about it I definitely don't think I would have noticed it. Even after I was told I was still half in doubt about it."

Just as I predicted, it gave a tremendous amount of experience points. It's level and HP were high, and it had a large serving of special skills after all. It seems it was over 40,000 originally, and since I have the bonuses from the 1% and Gift of Natural Talent, even though I only did about 20% of the damage to it I got around 22,000 experience. If I had been the only one to damage it I'm sure my level would have gone up.

【Alan.Greed/5/3/7429】

【Male/14/2/7428 ▪ Human ▪ Viscount Greed Family Second Son】

【Status: Normal】

【Age: 16 Years Old】

【Level: 21】

【HP: 178(178) MP: 4829(7442)】

【Strength: 29】
【Speed: 39】
【Dexterity: 27】
【Endurance: 29】
【Unique Ability: Identify (MAX)】
【Unique Ability: Gift of Natural Talent (MAX)】
【Special Ability: Earth Magic (MAX)】
【Special Ability: Water Magic (MAX)】
【Special Ability: Fire Magic (Lv. 8)】
【Special Ability: Wind Magic (MAX)】
【Special Ability: Void Magic (MAX)】
【Experience: 1358264(1430000)】

【Midu~ritto.Chizumagurol/5/3/7441】
【Female/14/2/7428 ▪ Dark Elf ▪ Lail Kingdom Commoner {Lilac}】 【Status: Good】
【Age: 16 Years Old】
【Level: 11】
【HP: 116(116) MP: 92(257)】
【Strength: 17】
【Speed: 25】
【Dexterity: 20】
【Endurance: 18】
【Unique Ability: Unit Organization (Lv. 6)】
【Special Ability: Infrared Vision】
【Special Ability: Inclination Sensing】
【Special Ability: Earth Magic (Lv. 5)】
【Special Ability: Water Magic (Lv. 5)】
【Special Ability: Fire Magic (Lv. 5)】
【Special Ability: Wind Magic (Lv. 5)】
【Special Ability: Void Magic (Lv. 5)】
【Experience: 172656(210000)】

Now then, since we've finally been able to take a deep breath, there's some important to do. First off is the magic stone. I don't really want to dissect this rotting shell but I can't overlook it.

It took over an hour but we took the magic stone out. It was considerably heavy and a hue that you could almost call it pure white. The value when I identified it was 1...12,345,678..Seriously? If I were to sell it wouldn't that be close to 100,000,000 Z! Rather~ I wonder if a magic tool shop in Baldukk would really buy this? Up until now the most expensive magic stone hasn't even exceeded 4,000,000 Z once. It's suspicious even for the capital.

After that is the main event. There was a magnificent globe shaped crystal that came out from the large center of it's biggest eyeball. It's a big help that it doesn't require being polished but it has a diameter of even over 30 cm. The weight is easily exceed 40Kg and feels like it might even be close to 50Kg. I can't easily carry it around. There's no other choice than to roll it but I don't want to damage it.

I wonder if there's no other choice than to do it here...

I don't think a new boss will appear for at least 10 hours but I think we should at least go one floor above.

Also, it's only obvious but there was nothing else that was worth anything. I thought there might be crystals inside of the eyeballs on the tentacles but that wasn't the case and they were just filled with a gooey gray fluid.

We tried investigating the room in the hole in the center of the doughnut but after all the teleport crystal rod was standing on a pedestal there. However, there was no incantation floating in it. I wonder if that means this is the lowest floor and you can't proceed any further than here so there's no other choice than to return to the surface? We went through quite a bit of labor to carry the crystal ball over and I somehow managed to hold it with one hand while holding the crystal rod together with Miduchi and chanted the incantation.

"Return us."

.....

The location we teleported to was the corner of a teleport crystal room that I haven't seen before. The walls were made of rocks almost like sandstone and there was fine sand along the floor making it a bit hard to walk. However, it should cause any damage to the crystal and this place should be safe for the time being. I guess you could even say it's suitable for the urgent business. I exchanged glances with Miduchi and I guess all of our tension up until then dispersed, we both fell backwards exhausted on the floor. Since the place we fell backwards to is the same white walls of the dungeon and a ceiling of about 10 m that gives off light there's no need to use {Light} anymore.

The sand that's a bit of distance away from us giving off a light the further the distance it is from us but it still looks like each individual grain is giving off a shining light so it even has a sort of illustrious beauty to it.

It would be fine after we return to the surface as well but I doubt anyone would hear things here.

I lean my back against the wall and placed the crystal ball on my right side. On my left Miduchi stretched out her legs in the same way.

"Since we can finally relax and talk..Let's talk about the things we were holding back on until now.."

After I said that and Miduchi hung her head down a bit, and said that in a small voice.

"Yes.."

"Since I didn't know when it would come to combat until now I intentionally didn't try asking...I didn't want to cause any disturbance in you after all. If it's something you can talk about then I'll listen. Though I won't force you to say it.."

".."

Miduchi isn't saying anything.

"Well it's fine. I can imagine it for the most part. I've heard about that "Rank 1 Warrior class" being an assassin job after all...You were attacking the party of Rokis, the son of some noble right?"

"That is...Umm.."

After hearing my words Miduchi looked at me once but quickly hung her head down again. Positive huh?

"..It's not like I'm angry over it. That's your job right? Godu~guru-san was it? You need medicine for your older brother right?"

“..Yes.”

Miduchi responded with a voice that was about to disappear.

“How much do you need?”

“Eh?”

“That’s why I said, how much do you need to buy that medicine?”

After hearing my question Miduchi hanged her head down and said in a whisper.

“..Twice a day, he needs to drink medicine, made from a special mushroom called Rakuhogg, it costs 10,000 Z..It costs 7,200,000 Z per year. Even then my older brother’s body just keeps getting weaker..If my uncle and aunt hadn’t been taking care of him he already wouldn’t be able to walk on his own. That’s why, if I don’t take on lots of jobs there’s no way for me to buy the medicine..you’ll look down on me right. I’m killing people all over the place to save my older brother. I’ve already long since gotten numb to it, I can kill without even thinking anything. I’m a murderer.”

It seems it’s true that as long as you pay money Dark Elves will take on assassination jobs. It was a rumor I had heard in a bar so I didn’t put much trust in it.

“Even I’ve killed people as well. I wouldn’t particularly think anything about that at this point. Don’t worry about it.”

“But..”

“There’s no but or anything about it..I’m sure it was painful up until now..”

“Eh? I’ve never thought killing people itself was painful. Since I was educated and trained that way after all.”

Miduchi said with a confused tone of voice. What was that, really~ Even though I thought to comfort her with a bit of a good feeling to it and it’s this. Even further Miduchi, “Though it was painful since I remembered the life of Shiina Junko, and there’s such a large difference in values and how we’ve spent our lives. If I just remained Miduchi then it’s true I had various complaints but I had already come to terms with killing people as a job so I didn't think anything about it."

and declared that. I see.

"Here, you can have this. Take it with you. If the value is normal then it should be close to 100,000,000 Z. If it's you then you should be able to sell it directly to the country right?"

I said that and gave her the magic stone of the Death=Tyrant.King that we gathered.

"Eh? But.."

"It's fine. Even if I held onto it I don't have any place I can sell it. In the first place, you dealt most of the damage to it."

"..Thank you very much. It's a big help."

After receiving the magic stone Miduchi courteously lowered her head.

"Yeah, don't worry about it."

I said that and continued my words.

"And, did you finish up your job with Rokis?"

"..Yes. I was finally able to finish him off. The job this time" "It's fine, you don't need to say that far. However, let me ask one thing. How were you able to specify Rokis's location inside of the dungeon?"

Up until then Miduchi had been looking at me but she faced ahead of her and looked at the teleport crystal rod.

She casts her head down a bit and takes a deep breath, before finally, clearly speaking.

"..It's hard to say....I seduced one of his party members."

While I was quietly looked at Miduchi's face and a slightly unexpected response came back.

"Seduced you say, you did?"

I really can't imagine Shiina being able to do it but I guess that means that if it's Miduchi she can calmly do it.

“Even if I’m like this I’m still an Elf after all. In my hometown I’m considered unsightly but my face isn’t all that bad right? And, just look, my breasts are unusually large for an elf after all..”

She said that a bit embarrassed and made a sad smile. A single line of tears was shed down the side of her face from the direction she was facing me. She sure does cry often. It’s true her breasts are plenty above a D cup and are quite large for a 16 year old Elf. However, if you were to see Bel you’d fall over backwards.

“..I’m dirty..And I used the Unique Ability I used on you today to form a party with them. Of course I made it so the man I seduced couldn’t tell my location from his end. I laid in wait in the 1st and 2nd floors. While hiding in the darkness I got rid of them using throwing darts and the blowgun. I used magic as well..”

“I see..How does it feel when you can tell the location of party members that are on a different floor in the dungeon?”

I wanted to change the topic.

“I don’t know.”

“Eh?”

I wasn’t expecting this response. What does she mean she doesn’t know?

“The dungeon is a strange place. I can only determine the location of members who are on the same floor. I can tell if they’re on a different floor or outside of the dungeon but I can’t tell what direction or how much distance there is.”

“Hmn..”

There’s nothing more to ask than this. It’s fine as long as the mystery is solved. And, I didn’t want to listen to anymore, I don’t want to see anymore of the pained face she’s making.

“I see, got it. And..”

I grabbed Miduchi’s arm as she was sitting on my left and pulled her over to me.

“If you don’t like it then say, just as you wished, from now on you’re my woman.”

Her forked tongue moved passionately inside of my mouth...

Simultaneously I dug out my wallet from my large pocket on the right thigh of my pants.

I only have one, damn it...However..this is..I guess this is the suspension bridge effect? No, the dangerous has long since passed. Well, now that it's come to this it doesn't matter at all.

.....

“That was my first kiss.”

“I see.”

So the blood of dark elves is blood as well. The blood has rushed to her head and her cheeks are a light pink color. No, it might be more correct to say light red-purple.

“Thank you very much.”

“Don't say something like thanks.”

We were laying on top of the fine sand while talking. Miduchi has her head on my left arm and is facing here while wrapping her left leg and left arm around me.

“After this is, about me, probably about both of us. Have you heard of a spell called {Report}?”

I shifted my body facing the left and looked at Miduchi's face from the front.

“{Report}? No, I've never heard about it.”

I'm sure. I'm sure it's necessary to confirm first here. I've tried coming up with random excuses in order to use {Anti-Magic Field} on the heads of each one of the reincarnated people in my party a number of times but not one has the light in my hand disappeared. During those times I convinced myself that “It's not like they would have the magic cast on them forever. I'm sure it's just a time they aren't using it.” However, right now I'm confident of it.

“Just watch.”

I used the bare minimum {Anti-Magic Field} with my right hand and held it to my head while concentrating on the {Report}.

I look at Miduchi's face who's eyes have gone wide seeing the things that occurred in front of her and I use {Anti-Magic Field} once more while holding my hand to her Miduchi's head and tried concentrating on the {Report} that should be cast on her. Just as I predicted, the {Anti-Magic Field} lost it's effect and dispersed along with a small flash of electricity.

I brought that hand just like that before Miduchi's eyes.

Miduchi has her eyes wide open while looking at the palm of my hand in front of her in shock.

"It should be related to your memory loss as well. There were a lot of things you remembered once you saw my face right? I've forgotten about a number of things as well.."

I guess my words as I was calmly talking didn't enter Miduchi's ears, and was whispering in a daze. I'm sure it's only obvious you would be dumbfounded over it.

"Eh? This..Magic is cast on..."

"Hey, for now put your clothes on. This magic called {Report} is troublesome and you know.."

.....

We spent a bit over ten minutes putting our equipment on while I explained the details of the spell {Report}. Miduchi was so surprised over things that she couldn't say anything. It's not unreasonable.

"And there, that's where {Detect Magic User} and {Telepathy} come in. I don't know if it's alright to call it by chance, or whatnot, but I was able to get my hands on a splendid crystal ball to use as the catalyst. I can already use both of these spells myself. Prepare your resolve, I'm going to use them."

"Eh? Wai..Wait just a minute. That can't be, so suddenly..It's a {God} or a {Demi-God} right? At least let me prepare myself mentally."

She said in a panic interrupting me.

“Prepare yourself mentally? Something like that, always make sure it’s prepared. So you don’t panic when the time comes. I’m starting.”

I said that and started to concentrate on the spell, kneading in the necessary mana. A shining light started to come out from the center of the crystal ball.

Miduchi is looking at the radiant crystal ball as well.

Gradually the radiance from the crystal ball calms down and something like an image of a marble pattern of yellow, or violet, or some limp black appeared and turned into a steady single image..What is this?

Chapter 131: Love

Year 7444, Month 5, Day 28

The image that was shown in the crystal ball in the end was the single color of black. Even though I say that it's not like something like a pitch black piece of paper is showing but rather something like bristle. It might be closest to say it's something like the black fur from the surface of some kind of animal. What is, this? The image of the camera is too close. Once I thought that it's started to slowly zoom out.

Some kind of soft looking surface of skin like velvet and it feels like thick hairs are growing all over the place? Zoom out some more. Even more. The image being transmitted to the crystal ball from the camera (or something like that) is extremely slowly moving backwards from the target as I try to command it to in my head.

"What is it? This?"

Miduchi is raising her voice in doubt but something like that, I want to know.

It's zooming out at such a slow speed that it's irritating and finally the surface of the body which the hairs were growing has started to take shape. The left and right sides of the image were cut. The hairs seemed to have been growing off of something like a rod? The rod like thing with hairs on it..Is this a leg? This, is the leg of some kind of insect.

"Huh? No matter where you look from it's the same image.."

He~ Is that so?

The number of legs increased. Since I don't have anything to compare it to in the image I can't tell the size of it at all. The range that's being projected is gradually stretching out...What was it again, that's right, I guess you could say it's something like a large black spider a {Tarantula}. It has hair growing after all. The large ones can get up to like 30 cm when they stretch their legs out. In the past I saw them on a nature program with my wife. Yeah, it was just like this.

I've started to get it.

Miduchi is looking at the crystal ball with a strange face.

"What is it?"

"Ah, no~ it's nothing. But..Ah..Aah~!"

"Do you have any idea what it is?"

"It's the symbol of my country."

"?"

The camera has considerably backed away so I can tell quite a bit. This is an insect..rather a spider. It's the legs of a spider. It's showing the lower body starting from the legs of a spider. The image in the crystal ball shows four legs on each side and there's something like long white hairs along the hairline so I can't tell for sure...But, this is strange? If I remember correctly the legs of spiders are supposed to grow from it's chest towards the grown and they stretch out at the joints, but it seems this is different. I feel like something is growing directly out of the surface but can't tell for sure. However, rather than something like that for it to have been a spider...

"Is it this thing? This thing used {Report}..."

I've spent countless years living on Orth and for these past two years I've lived as an adventurer I've seen a number of different monsters. I had confidence I wouldn't be surprised by most things but this surprised me. I mean, it's a spider. Are you saying a spider used magic?

Is what I was thinking but as it gradually continued to zoom out I've started to get it.

This thing, it's a spider but not just a normal spider.

I noticed that I was entranced in looking at that appearance. Neither Miduchi nor could utter a single word. Let alone that, before I noticed it Miduchi was prostrating herself towards the image in the crystal ball. Do-geza-r*. There's someone's back growing from the back of the the spider legs!

Then in that case, there's mistake this person is the one who used {Report} on us. Then in that case, I should use {Telepathy} here. I immediately started kneading the mana. Since it was such a large crystal ball I forgot but this spell {Detect Magic User} is on a time limit. That's why once you use it, until the duration ends it will remain cast, though thanks to that you can use other spells during that time.

Finally I was able to see almost the entire image from the camera. It feels like it's showing the image of a person sitting holding their knees from behind. No, even if I say person it's not a human. That is..a Dark Elf. The long pure white hair growing from their head is covering all over their body because they're facing downwards and the amount of it was enough to cover down to the legs of the tarantula. The length goes down to just above the waist. Since their back is bent over and their posture is facing down right now, if they were to properly stand up and stretch their back out it would probably go down to their butt.

The spider legs are stretching out as if hiding the shape of the body but from the skin that can be seen here and there you can tell there's some curves and you can see the waist line as well. It's easy to tell it's a woman from behind. Since they're hidden by their hair the ears can't be seen but judging from that deep purple skin color close to black there's no way they can't be a Dark Elf. Most likely they're hiding their face in their hands that are crossed in front of their knees, the camera moves irritatingly slow as it moves horizontally but since the face is still hidden I can't see it. Incidentally, since it's not directly showing in my eyes there was no effect from Identify.

Beautiful.

It's become a common expression but I thought they were a beautiful.

I can't tell their face but just those limbs are plenty.

Simultaneously it was like I was hit with an electric currency, it suddenly flashed into my head.

{God}, {Demi-God}...

After all this is, this person is one of them.

It was to the point where I forgot about Miduchi who was still prostrating herself to the ground next to me for a moment but I somehow was able to regain my composure and start fortifying my resolve as I knead mana. My {Telepathy} spell is finally completed.

“{Telepathy}”

I can tell that a line for talking was opened between myself and the target in my head.

I could see the Dark Elf in the crystal ball flinch in reaction.

.....

I started talking to the Dark Elf woman who's gradually started to raise her face in the crystal ball using {Telepathy}. Obviously it's necessary for me to say the words with my mouth while speaking.

“I'm sorry for suddenly calling out to you. My name is Alan Greed. I would like for you to listen to my conversation for a bit but..”

Do you have time right now? Or is it fine? are things I can't really afford to say. If they were to say “No” then that would be the end of the conversation after all.

“Don't wake # $, I was sleeping (. I'm still looking at dream = ~ Nn? {Common Language} huh..”

A displeased voice echoed into my head. However, in the next moment, my eyes went wide open and I was at a loss for words.

“Eh? Alan? Alan Greed!?”

The Dark Elf said that and suddenly raised their face.

That face was,

It's certainly that of a goddess, or rather could be said to that,

from what I could see in their late 20s,

..However,

..There was some Japanese mixed into it,

..Reincarnated person!?

No,

This person is,

This person is,

Rather,

This is,

There's no way I could forget,

Someone I could never forget,

"Miki!!"

I couldn't help but grasp the crystal ball on the sand in front of me with both of my hands.

.....

I guess she noticed from my sudden shout, I noticed Miduchi flinched next to me but I was way beyond that at the moment. My head is filled with chaos. Why, is Miki's face on that Dark Elf with legs like a tarantula? Even if it is Miki she looks more than 10 years older than us. Since she heard my name and reacted to it she should know about me. Since she used the spell {Report} it's certain she must have had some sort of interest in me. Come to think of it with Miduchi I just..I wonder if that's cheating? However, 16 years have already passed. It's to the point where recently I can only remember Miki's face from the time around when we got married when it left the greatest impression on me.

"Alan Greed.. "Takeo-san?" ..{Telepathy} huh.."

While giving off a type of bizarre ambiance that could be called divine, she distorted her posture and fixed the way she was sitting.

I only noticed at that point but it seems that the lower parts of her legs from below the knees have fused together with the stone floor. I somehow thought that the portions below her knees had become something like a strange plant growing from the stone ground.

"Miki..Is it you? It's me!"

I grabbed on to the crystal ball from both sides and while standing on one knee I couldn't help but raise my voice.

"Dear, is it you? Takeo-san? From where?"

"Face to the left, show me your face better."

After the Dark Elf looked over here, I couldn't help but think I was looking at Miki's face from the front. The mole just below her left eye. And the other mole that's just below her right lip that have changed to a creepy purple color. And three moles that are in a triangle in the center of her chest between her breasts and jaw. Of course just like Miduchi her face isn't exactly the same face as Miki's that I remember. There's some elf mixed in and her face has become more beautiful but her skin is even deeper purple than Miduchi and the eerie color is the same. Her hair is certainly beautiful but it wouldn't be wrong to call it pure white. However, that is, Miki. I was confident of it but after seeing her from the front it changed to strong confidence.

"Eh? Miki you say..Eh? Isn't it "her majesty Lilus"? Eh?"

Miduchi is still prostrating herself while whispering in a daze.

"Wh..y, you..Why.."

While I was getting distracted, the appearance of Miki shown in the crystal ball regained her composure and even smiled while calmly speaking.

"That's amazing. So you noticed it. And, this, you're watching with {Detect Magic User} right? I'm amazed you knew it. You must have given your best."

"A, ah.."

"I want to meet you. But, I can't move from here anymore...And, probably... Rather than that, first I need to tell you right. My name now is Lilus. Lilus.Zugutomore."

"Lilus..Zugutomo~re?"

I repeat the name she just said like an idiot.

"After all! Your majesty Lilus! Al-san, please lower your head!"

After hearing my words Miduchi grabbed on to my arm.

"Ah, Eh? It's fine, it's alright."

“There’s someone else there right?”

Miki said.

“Ah? Yeah, it’s Shiina. Do you remember? She was my subordinate. A number of times together with..”

“..I remember. It’s “Chizumagurol” right? I know her well.”

“Eh? Why?”

“For just a moment, tell Shiina-san to put her hand to her forehead and say “anku”. It will make it so I talk to with her. You directly touch Shiina-san as well.”

“Miduchi, put your hand to your forehead, and say “anku”.”

“Y..Yes.”

After hearing my words Miduchi pulled something out of her pocket in a panic and made a pose like she was praying with it to her forehead.

“Can you hear with this? If you can hear then would you respond?”

Miki said that. These were words aimed at Miduchi I guess.

“Wa, Waha..Is it “Li, Lilus your majesty”? I..Iam..Eh? Japanese? Eh?”

A portion of her words were in the language here but when she was questioned in Japanese, Miduchi was surprised after responding in Japanese and seems to have understood quickly before continuing her words.

“I am the “Rank 1 Warrior class Midu~ritt.Chizmagurol”. “Your majesty”. I’m humbly pleased to be able to greet you. Since my current mission has been completed, I will return to “Erurehei” rig“It’s already fine, Shiina-san. I’m sorry.”

“Eh? Huh? Eh?”

Miki cut in partway through Miduchi’s words and Shiina-Miduchi is confused.

“Shiina-san. I am..Kawasaki Miki. The woman that was, the wife of Kawasaki who is there. I was happy when you were in “Erurehei”..but, I’m sorry. The one who sealed your memories was me. I had a premonition that a reincarnation would occur and I waited countless years. This time for sure...The moment you were born, I immediately peeked into your dreams when your consciousness was still hazy. There was my husband, when I saw Takeo-san. I couldn't endure it. I unintentionally, looked at everything stealing them. Japan was so nostalgic, the one who sealed everything was me. I'm really sorry. In the distant past, the person I loved...About Takeo-san you too...But, judging off your appearance it seems you've remembered a bit. I know it's strange for me to say, but I'm glad."

".."

Neither Shiina or I could say anything.

"Probably, you don't have much time right? I really do feel sorry but please allow me to leave apologizing at this. I'll tell you as much as I can. Since I don't have any time either."

"Hey! you, what are"Dear, sorry. But for now please listen. If I remember correctly, it was just before I was about to turn 70 years old, so it was around 20 years after Takeo-san had passed away. I went on a trip together with Rentaro-kun and his children and along with the Yuji and Naoko-san couple. When Rentaro-kun's children were about to get into an accident I saved them and died."

Yuji was Miki's younger brother and Rentaro-kun was his son, in other words our nephew. When I died he had just become a middle school student. Since we didn't have any kids we were quite affectionate towards Rentaro. We doted on him so much that Yuji-kun and his wife had to stop us sometimes.

"When I realized it I had been reborn on Orth. Far in the east, in a country of elves called Robans that no longer exists. I think it was around 1,300 years ago from now that I was reborn on Orth. Well since I was an old woman I only thought that it was lucky I was able to be reborn. They've long since died already but I got married and gave birth to children as well."

I see, so she was able to have children..That's great. I felt a bit of tears come to my eyes.

"There were various inconveniences but you could say I was happy. But, when I was out hunting together with the girls of the house next door my village was attacked by the army of a neighboring country. When we returned two days later from hunting it was in a terrible state. My husband and child died at that time. My child had still only just turned two years old."

...

“Those of us who survived swore for revenge. We organized a resistance and opposed the Kingdom of Myurushia that had invaded. I was somehow able to make it through thanks to my Unique Ability but it took me 10 years to destroy Myurushia. Around that point the only one remaining alive from my village was me alone. But, I guess you could call it reparations, or a reward for that, I was no longer a normal person. I was released from the realms of {mortality} and became an {immortal}. Though I say that it’s not like I had become invulnerable. After that I ended up marrying another {immortal} named Zugutomore.”

I’m sure my mouth is hanging wide open.

“I’ll summarize it since it would get long but since I wasn’t able to have a child with Zugutomore, Zugutomore went into a rage and was about to kill me, so I killed Zugutomore first. After that, various things happened and I moved to the west of Oladd and decided to settle down there. After that a considerable amount of time passed..700 years, no, I think it was around 800 years ago. In the form of inheriting the deaths of two {Greater Deities} named Sharaizudan and Neral I turned into a Dark Elf and a {Demi-God}. In other words, I’m the original ancestor for the Dark Elves and Shiina-san could be said to be one of my distant descendants.”

I’m sure that Shiina’s mouth is wide open as well.

“And, even more various things happened and we arrive at the present but starting from here is the main story. Listen well. Though there might be some things you already know. Everyone who is reborn is endowed with a certain amount of disposition. The easiest thing to understand is probably the “Unique Ability”. Also, level up. When the ability level of “Unique Abilities” reach their highest level, MAX their hidden ability is released. Whether you know or don’t know this will become the small deciding difference so make sure you don’t forget it. After that, there’s growth to mana, but it seems you realized it so that should be fine.”

It seems like she knows everything.

“It seems like you know a reasonable amount about these things. After that is the reincarnations from Japan. It happens once every couple hundred years, people from various eras in Japan are reborn. The only ones I know from modern day Japan is you two and myself though. Did you know? The one who created Rombert Kingdom is Minamoto no Yoshitsune who died in Kinugawa. I've met and talked to him before. It seems that Benkei from the same era was reborn as well but he seems to have died before meeting Yoshitsune."

Wh, what was that?!? Ah, come to think of it Karl said something like Kurojo. I guess that was the Kuro Hogan of Kurojo?

"There was several other people as well. Of the famous ones Yagyu Mitsuyoshi reincarnated as well. Though I killed him directly myself. It seems that occasionally there's times when several dozen people are reborn all at once as well. In that case, it's often that the Unique Abilities are distributed so what I just said might become considerably important. Fundamentally when all of the people who possess Unique Abilities dies and a number of years pass another person is reborn."

You, just now, said something pretty outrageous.

"Then, you, don't have a Unique Ability?"

"I said it at the start right. I have one. It seems I'm not included in the count anymore since I became a {Demi-God}. Up until then the period where there was one or two people was the longest. In any case, it's something important. Don't forget it. If the level of Unique Abilities increases then their hidden abilities are released. Even if your Unique Ability is known, whether you know this or not the superiority is decided, so make sure you definitely don't forget it."

"Yeah."

"It might be about a good time. I'm in Erurehei. But, I think I'm going to die already pretty soon. I'm somehow able to maintain my appearance and youth but my mana is about at it's limit. I probably won't even last another few more days I think."

"Eeh!!?"

Hey! What does that mean!?

"Also, even if I say I'll die that doesn't mean I'll perish. In another several years, several decades, or depending on how things go even several hundred years I can revive. That's why there's no need to worry about me right now. After all I'm a {Demi-God}. However, it's impossible for a while. I'm looking forward to meeting again. But, right now there's no time, so please listen carefully. Shiina-san, I'm really sorry. Just before I was about to die you were born right below me, so I ended up losing myself. You two had plans to meet up after the accident right? I continued to use the spell {Report} starting from Lail increasing the distance looking for you. I was finally able to find you five years ago. I slowly and gradually aligned to your consciousness. But, I'm sure I caused some trouble for you by causing you to forget various things right? I'm sorry."

Miki said apologetically while lowering her head in a different direction.

"After that, Shiina-san. I'm sorry about peeking into your heart at my own convenience but please look after this person. I'm sure it's not something that can easily be forgiven but, please, please I'm leaving it in your care."

"Such a thing, those words are a waste for someone like me, no, but..Lilus..Miki-san, madam. I, I am.."

It's fine if you don't say it. Though it's also fine if you say it. But, in that case I'll say it.

"Miki, right now Shiina, is my woman. I didn't think you would be in this world after all.."

"Yeah, that's right. When I saw Shiina-san and you a short while ago I thought that might end up the case. If it's between two people who reincarnated then they can have children even across different races. Since I've seen countless people I already know. It's a normal child though. It would be good if you can have a child as well. They're cute...It seems I'm at my limit. Normally {Demi-God}s aren't allowed to concern themselves with {mortals}. It's fine to one-sidedly peek, give orders, or kill them but conversation is no good. Because it ends up providing too much information. I've somehow been trying to make sure that it isn't exposed but it's really about to get bad already."

"Shiina-san. It's a bit of something business related but I'll tell you about it. If you want to pass your opinion with the elders then in front of them say anku and sing the Japanese national anthem. It's just a bit but I think it will be of help to you. However it's only while in Erurehei. If you say you were called in front of the royal palace and sing there it will be fine. I'll do as much as I can in my remaining time. Lail Kingdom is my child. Since it's my precious, child after all. I'll do something about the royal road construction of paradise plans as well. After that, Takeo-san, when you're meeting with the fairies teleport from below. While you sing the Japanese national anthem. That's the incantation for teleporting. I'm sure that associating with them is difficult but they're fundamentally righteous existences unlike me so I think they'll teach you various things. Think carefully before you reveal your "Unique Ability" to anyone. Particularly the "Identify" type. Even if there's a temporary discord there's a high possibility you'll end up gaining the trust of your allies in the end but in the worst case if the information is exposed they're the first ones who are targeted. Since there's no such thing as a magic to make up for that. If among your enemies someone pays my country a lot of money to assassinate you unless there's a considerable reason they can't turn it down after all. Also, be careful of the reincarnations in Devas Kingdom. One day an obstacle for you"

It seems we ran out of time.

A crack appeared in the crystal ball and just as I thought it had turned to dust even that dust disappeared without a trace.

Miduchi and I couldn't do anything but stare at that spectacle in a daze.

It seems that Miki had already realized my dream several hundred years ago.

I feel both mortified and happy.

I put my arm around Miduchi's shoulder while I'm unable to hold back the smile that naturally came to my face.

It was a nostalgic and warm feeling.

It's true that several memories were sealed.

Miduchi even had almost all of the memories of her life sealed away.

However, while I don't know how Miduchi feels about it, I'm not angry.

My wife had become a God before I realized it and even just a bit tried to help me out.

It's plenty if I understand that much.

Even if it's impossible right now, I won't be able to show a good face if I'm not at least a King by the next time I meet her.

In order for you to feel as proud as your first husband does.

Chapter 132: Surface

Year 7444, Month 5, Day 28

While looking at the remains of the crystal ball that crumbled and scattered I contemplated for a short period before trying to use {Anti-Magic Field} as if I remembered it. On both my head and Miduchi's head the blue spell light continued to shine.

"Well, that is, how do I put it, it's weird for me to say but sorry about that."

I showed my hand with the light still on it while saying.

"..It's fine. Since I'm still alive like this..and I understand the madams feelings as well. She wasn't able to tell us about it in detail but she reincarnated in an era 1,300 years ago...Soon after getting married and having a child an army from a foreign country invaded and I'm sure she lost her family them...After that I don't know what happened..She lived for several hundred years and even made it to a {Demi-God}...And then another countless hundreds of year. It was at that time that I was born right near her, at first she might have just felt like confirming a bit but after peeking inside of my memories you were there. I'm sure, it was nostalgic, and a variety of emotions suddenly overflowed as she indulged in and looked through everything."

That's true but the one who was the direct victim of it was you right...

"It's not like I have the experience of living a life like that so it's not like I'd really know but...But, I think that surely that's the case. Like it's not unreasonable, and can't be helped. If she saw all of my memories then she should have been able to imagine that you reincarnated as well. I think that it was quite difficult."

That is~ not a hard amount of time and work to imagine. And, after spending several years she finally found me I'm sure.

".."

“..”

“Thanks for thinking like that.”

“No..”

Miduchi looked downwards. She might be saying that but I’m sure her feelings are a mess.

I have no right to say anything more though. Even if it wasn’t my intention it’s a partner I was separated from 16 years ago. Furthermore, 1,300 years have passed for Miki, honestly speaking I’m just happy she still remembered and cared about me.

“By the way, Miki..Is Lilus a proper King?”

It’s nothing I particularly need to ask about right now but I wanted to change the topic.

“It’s my first time seeing her majesty’s face. According to the stories I’ve heard the last time the elders..the elders are like the ministers of Lail Kingdom but the last time they met her was far in the past as well. I’ve even heard that the current elders haven’t directly met her.”

So she wasn’t. No, I guess it’s not a problem if the country is still properly being managed even like that.

“Hmn..Let me hear some stories about Lail Kingdom. I’ll tell you all of the things I know about Rombert Kingdom as well..”

.....

I think we probably continued talking for another 2–3 hours. Our stomachs finally started growling so we decided to return to the surface. I guess it’s just after noon right now? I’m sure everyone is worried.

“You’re, returning to your country right? Around how far away is it? When do you think you’ll be able to return?”

“Erurehei..Mount Kinru is 1000Km away from here, so it’s not that much. But it’s still considerably far. I think if the trip on a horse is favorable then it takes around 4 weeks? There’s quite a few mountain paths after all.”

It's quite far. since I was suddenly curious about it I tried asking midway through the conversation.

"Do you have a horse? If you don't the "It's alright. I have a horse. I've left it in the care of my inn right now. I'll dispose of the magic stone I received when I return to my country..retire from my job..confirm the condition of my brother, and if everything is good I would like to return right away but.."

"Do you feel bad for your older brother? Seeing Miki, no the King..and she was going to die wasn't it.."

"I think I would like to return as fast as possible but.."

Miduchi said with a slightly serious face and depressed voice.

"I'll still be here in Baldukk for the time being. We might not even be able to reach this floor in a year or so..not that I know what floor it is though."

".."

"That's why, don't worry about it. It would be good if your older brother gets better."

"..Yes..But, even though we finally met again..be..because of my circumstances.."

Don't make a face like that.

"It's fine. Rather than me right now worry about yor brother..Alright! Let's go!"

I stood up cheerfully to try and remove the slightly depressing atmosphere and stretched my hand out to Miduchi. Miduchi's hand was hard from the sword callouses.

.....

"Return us."

How many times we have teleported up until just now again?
One..Two..Three...

"Nn..Since when was Unit Organization cut? Isn't that strange?"

Since we were dazed out in the process of repeating teleportation to the upper floors I didn't notice it.

"Huh? Come to think of it.."

By the time we realized the effect of Miduchi's Unit Organization had been cut off.

I guess because Miduchi was spacing out?

"Well, it's fine since we're leaving already though."

"Wa, Yes..But, that..I'll use it once more."

"Nn, we'll it's fine. Let's go, "Return us.""

I think we probably teleported one floor higher. I can recognize this room. I guess that means the teleport room we were just in was the 7th floor?

"This is..I've come here several times. It's the teleport room on the 6th floor..If we teleport using rod then we should be on the 5th floor next."

"..In, other words, I guess that means we fell down to the 14th floor?"

"Probably. If I felt like it I still have the map so I'm sure I could get there again from the 3nd floor but..I'm already sick of mana exhaustion. Though it might not drain your mana if you teleport from the 13th floor. That place is.."

Even if all our members carry enough food and jump in from the {warp hole} in the bottom of the pitfall, I'm sure it would just be the start of an orgy. Putting aside the other guys there's no way I could make Zenom and Ralpa do that. They might end up killing themselves.

"In any case, let's return to the surface right and get something to eat. I'll introduce you to everyone."

Miduchi hung her head down for a bit before opening her mouth.

"..No, let's split up here. I'll rest here for a bit to kill some time and then return to the surface. I'll properly greet everyone once again when I return. Early tomorrow morning I'll leave Baldukk from the road to the East."

...

"I see, got it. In the worst case if it takes time for you to return and I'm no longer in Baldukk, my older sister is in the first knight group in the capital. Her name is Milhaia. Don't forget. Also, I said it before but I have a company in the capital. If you fight a patrol guard and ask them the location of Greed Company I'm sure they'll tell you where it is. Either way is fine so show this there and use my name and you can rely on them. If I end up leaving here then I'll tell both of them my destination before going. I'll go to the exit of the Eastern road tomorrow morning at dawn. At least let me see you off."

I said that and handed the Marquis Webdos's plate that I always had on me to Miduchi. The date it was issued (Year 7442, Month 4, Day 13) and the Marquis's signature is carved into it. And I gave her my name with the chipped blade. I'm sure the people of Bakuddo know that knife belonged to me. It's not particularly high quality but in the past, it's the name I've been using since before I cut off my own appendix.

After watching her precious put those away in her bag, we kissed lightly once more and I teleported myself.

..So this is the sensation of Unit Organization across floors huh...It's true that the direction and distance suddenly become vague and you can't tell anything but that you're in the same sort of structure.

.....

The time was around 4pm when I left the dungeon. When the guard of the tax official Church-san recognized me he was openly surprised, and I'm sure it was intentional, he raised a loud voice.

"Isn't that Greed-san from the {Slaughterers}? So you were alright!"

Uwa, what's with that publicity?

"Eh? Didn't he die?"

"I heard he was killed by a monster."

"Aaah!! It's true!"

"The path, open up the path!!"

"Isn't he doing fine? Who was it, the guy who said he was heavily injured."

"Master!"

"Shit..He isn't dead after all!"

"{Slaughterers}! Amazing~!"

“We can hold out hope as well right!”

“Hey, what in the world is going on here!?”

Since it wasn't a time when there was a lot of people around it was that much of an uproar but I was surrounded by a reasonable number of people.

“Greed-san, your allies returned early this morning. Everyone, left me a message saying if you return to please come to the inn right away. It seems like it was quite difficult.”

I guess this person extended his shift past noon just to tell me that?

“Church-san, thank you very much. I'll immediately return to my inn.”

I replied while grasping the hand he stretched out to me and politely lowered my head. After raising my head again I saluted him and turned around to start walking the road to the inn. The crowd surrounding me opened up the path.

Zulu and Giberuti were standing at the end of the opened path. Since the path finally opened up they came running to my side.

““Master!””

“It seems I worried you two. Sorry about that. Is everyone safe? Zulu, is your injury already fine?”

I look down at the two kneeling before me while saying.

“Yes, everyone..is safe. It seems that I was healed by Koloil-sama and Ral. I'm already fine.”

I don't know if he's overcome with emotion but Zulu said that while choked up. However, you, really can't be called alright. Since Bel only just learned {Cure Serious} it should take her quite a bit of time to activate it. I'm sure they just covered it up by overlapping {Cure Light} right. Even your HP is only at 92.

“Here..”

I crouched down to Zulu and used {Cure All} on him. Since healing magic had already been used on him his HP recovered to full.

“I'm hungry. Let's go.”

I said that and smiled at the two of them.

Zulu made a face like he was greatly relieved and Giberuti was considerably pleased.

On the way back to the inn I asked the two of them what happened after that. I bought four pork skewers from a stall and I'm putting the meat and fat filled with nourishment into my stomach.

"After master fell into the trap, I ended up taking a powerful hit and was knocked out."

Zulu said apologetically. Then, I wonder how they defeated that Franken? Though in the end I managed to use the spell {Cure All} on Toris at the limit, Toris should have had bone fractures in both his arm and his leg. For a while, at least for half a day he shouldn't have been able to decently move from the pain. Did Gwine finish it off? Or did Bel shoot it with arrows through the door? Thinking that I tried asking Giberuti. Since he was outside of the bars he should have calmly seen it.

"After master fell into the hole Zulu-sama was knocked unconscious. Since Kalstalan-sama had been badly injured he couldn't properly move and there was no effect from magic. Since it was suspicious whether throwing the axe or our remaining weapons were having any effect it was only Koloil-sama's bow. We weren't able to do anything but cheer on Gwine. However, there, Kalstalan-sama let out a war cry of "ooo!!" after picking up master's short spear that was on the ground and attacked the {Flesh Golem} together with Gwine!"

So this guy has talent as an actor as well. He reported it to me one bit at a time with quite a bit of presence and feeling. Quite an amusing fellow. However, of all things. Though in the end I had used healing magic on him, he still should have had a fractured arm and leg. I'm amazed he was able to move even through that pain. Toris's willpower is quite something.

"I guess the {Flesh Golem} was already considerably weakened. When the thrusts from both of them stabbed through back and front and it stopped moving just like that. After that, Kalstalan-sama seemed out of energy because of the pain and couldn't properly move. Zulu still had no consciousness. Gwine stabbed into the golem like crazy and Koloil-sama kept shooting arrows into it half in a rage as well until the bars finally raised up."

So that's how it was?

"Koloil-sama and Ral quickly used healing magic on Zulu-sama to heal him but Zulu-sama didn't regain conscious and stayed just like that."

Fu~mu. Since Zulu was hit twice by it and had suffered major injuries multiple times, I'm sure they weren't able to completely heal him. Though even if they did heal him it's not related to regaining consciousness.

"After that, under the leadership of Zenom-san we gathered rope to try and rescue master. The first one to volunteer among the light women was Maruso so we tied the rope around her waist and lowered her into the pitfall to explore it but..that is..."

Giberuti turned red a bit embarrassed. Waha~n.

"I was unconscious so I didn't see it but it seems that Maruso started acting strange. I heard that Larry soothed her."

Zulu replied instead. It's a safe way of putting it but I can imagine. I'm sure that everyone was able to imagine I was in a pretty bad state after running out of mana as well.

"Giberuti, thanks for your work. Well just think of it as a side benefit."

I grin while saying that and Giberuti was a bit embarrassed but grinned a bit as well.

Due to symptoms of mana exhaustion things turned into an uproar after Angela entered the hole. They quickly pulled her back up but it seems that Giberuti was made to be her partner in a corner of the room. I tease Giberuti who as making a face like he wasn't unsatisfied with it and what was really surprising is they didn't relate that pitfall to running out of mana so they tied to rescue me once more. Though I say that everyone was in a hurry since I had fell into the hole at that time, and there were injured people as well. It would be stranger for them to realize it right away.

"When I was, that is, soothing Maruso they decided on the next person. Gwine the one with the smallest build and weight volunteered but in the worst case if there were any monsters in the hole she wouldn't be able to use her spear so Ral volunteered, and in the end Zenom-san acknowledged that."

After that according to Giberuti's story it seems that Bel volunteered as well. However, Ral used a mysterious logic that she should be lighter because of the difference breast size and forcibly got everyone to agree but after they lowered Ralpa into the pitfall the moment they started hearing a suspicious voice they gave up on rescuing me from the pitfall. After everyone carefully pulled Ralpa back up, Zenom knocked Ralpa unconscious and they tied her up.

After that they waited for Zulu to regain consciousness (it seems it took around 5–6 hours) while waiting for Ralpa and Angela who fell asleep to wake up as well, they carried Toris who couldn't move to the teleport room on the 3rd floor and since it couldn't be helped escaped the dungeon just like that.

"Of course we took the magic stone from the {Flesh Golem}. Right now Zenom-san is holding on to it."

"I see, I caused quite a bit of trouble for you all."

"No, it wasn't much at all for me.."

Giberuti said shyly. I guess that's true. It seems they were finally able to return to the surface at 4 am this morning. After that in two hour shifts they waited for my return. First it was Zenom and Gwine. Next it was Bel and Giberuti. After that was Ralpa and Angela. And after Toris and Zulu, Zulu kept remaining and Angela and Giberuti kept shifting places while waiting it seems.

.....

Along the way, we stopped by "Shuni" where the slaves are staying and picked up Angela. When I called out to Angela who was doing maintenance on her leather armor in her room and she showed a smile I've never seen before as she kneeled before me. I thought she would start shaking her tail but there wasn't even a sign of that, after seeing her tail that didn't move an inc and I thought, "I see it was a meaningless return".

However, I was happy that Angela seemed overjoyed by my return. I thought, so she really had this much emotion and,

"Sorry I caused you to worry."

I said that,

“No, I thought it was pointless to worry when it comes to master. However..however, I’m glad you returned safely..”

and seeing her crumbling expression I felt a bit apologetic.

I was a bit worried if she would be aware of Giberuti but there was no problem on the surface and she acted just as he normally does. It’s not something I can say to people at this point but I was satisfied since I didn’t want my slaves to have some unnecessary discord. Come to think of it, it seems Zulu has a woman as well, and Giberuti and Angela are already adults. At the very least shouldn’t I started providing Angela with condoms? I’m sure she would want to occasionally buy a male prostitute and let loose as well.

Putting that aside, I ordered the three slaves to go ahead and make reservations as a restaurant and I headed towards “Boil Manor”. I need to hurry and let them know and put everyone at ease.

.....

In front of {Boil Manor} the apprentice was doing some evening sweeping. He made a surprised face when he saw me and was about to greet but I stopped him and quietly opened the door. I exchanged glances with the head clerk at the counter in front and put my finger to my mouth, gesturing to be quiet. It seems he understood right away seeing my grin and the clerk smiled lightly while pointing upstairs from the lobby. I guess everyone is in their rooms.

Soft steps. Since I’m still holding Toris’s long sword with no scabbard I feel like a robber sneaking in. I even have my rubber protector helmet on so I’m in all black as well. A smile naturally appears on my face. Should I scare Ralpa first or start with the annoy couple of Bel and Toris. Gwine is a good choice as well. Ah, Gwine might be in the same room as Ralpa.

I quietly walked up to the third floor and walked in front of the door to Gwine’s room. Since it would be like an idiot if she wasn’t in the room I softly put my ear to the door...I can’t hear any sounds at all. If shes not here then Gwine might be in Zenom’s room. I guess I’ll try going to Toris and Bel’s room before returning to the 2nd floor?

I go in front of Toris and Bel’s room while not making any footsteps and was about to put my ear to the door again. But, wait a minute. If the two of them were doing something right now, wouldn't I just be a voyeur? Since they're always stuck to each other after returning from the dungeon...It's started to feel idiotic, I give up.

It feels somewhat strange returning to the lobby once and getting the key to my room as well. I normally walked down the stairs and after getting to Zenom and Ralph's room I knocked. In the first place Zenom took over command of trying to rescue me and oversaw their return. After all no matter how I think about it I should go to Zenom's place first. I was getting too excited after being able to return safely.

"What is it?"

I hear Zenom's voice. I reached out to open the handle on the door. I heard the sound of someone in the room come running with bang! the door opened. Gwine was standing on the other side of the door.

"Al-san!"

After Gwine saw me she yelled in a loud voice and jumped at me. Even though she's got a small build she was heavier than I imagined. Rather~ I'm holding on to Toris's sword with no cover. That's dangerous!

"I've just returned. Zenom, let's take Al!"

Zenom who was sitting in a chair in the room stood up and yelled after seeing me.

"It seems I caused you to worry. Thank goodness! Really thank goodness! I thought if it was Al-san you be alright! I was so worried!"

Gwine is overcome emotion as she yells looking up from below while still clinging to me. There's tears overflowing from her eyes. I can hear footsteps coming from the upper floor as well. It seems that Bel and Toris noticed. I put my hands on Gwine's shoulders and said "Sorry about causing your to worry. Thanks." and entered Zenom's room.

"Zenom, I heard from Zulu and the others. It seems you went through quite a bit of trouble to try and save me..Thanks and sorry about that."

“Don’t say any thanks. It’s only obvious to try and save our precious employer from a crisis. Rather than, we’re actually quite sorry that we weren’t able to help you. Sorry about that.”

“There’s no need to worry about that either...I think you already know but if you guys had entered the trap just like that things would have gotten pretty bad. It was quite difficult for me as well.”

I laughed while saying that to Zenom and he laughed as well.

“I’ll go and change really quick. I need to return Toris his long sword as well... By the way, where’s Ralpa?”

Right, Ralpa wasn’t in the room.

“Ral is, umm..”

For some reason Gwine is having trouble saying things.

“Ralpa is drinking at “Rabei”. If you heard from Zulu and the others then I’m sure you already know but I hit Ralpa and knocked her out but when she woke up she struggled quite a bit. Right now we’re in the middle of an admirable parent and child fight. Sorry but Ralpa brought along Al’s spear with her. We collected your bag and it’s right here.”

Zenom said that and pointed to my bag in the corner of the room. Oh I see..that is quite something.

““Al-san!””

Toris and Bel appeared from the door that was left open. Just the same as Zenom and the others the two of them have already changed into normal clothes. No, or maybe they just put them on? However, it’s probably impossible to properly put clothes on this well in that short period of time. It’s probably just my unpleasant unjust suspicions and they were originally wearing them. After seeing me the two of them couldn’t hold back the smiles.

“Yo~ It seems I caused you to worry” “I’m glad you were safe! See, I told you he would be alright!”

“Yeah, that really was the case! Are you uninjured?”

Bel and Toris and ran to my side and took my hand while cheerful.

“I’m alright. Ah, that’s right. Toris, here’s your sword. Thanks to it I was saved.”

In the end, I only swung it once against the eyeball bastard after it fell to the ground but it’s true it was useful and it also lightened up how powerless I felt. Soon after I fell, in the pitch darkness I still remember how reliable it felt touching this sword.

“No..Al-san. Not just in regards to Bel, I have a debt I can’t return to you. Al-san saved me life. Really, really thank you very much!”

Toris properly held my hand to the point of it hurting a bit while saying that.

“Don’t worry about it. Rather than I heard from Giberuti and the others, after that you stood up and finished that Franken bastard together with Gwine. That’s amazing. I’m amazed you were able to stand up. It’s quite splendid.”

“No way...I was just desperate at that time. In reality I don’t remember it well.”

“You don’t need to be so modest. It’s fine for you to feel proud. In the end the reason why no one died was thanks to Toris and Gwine right? Rather I’m the one that’s grateful.”

I said that and thanked Toris and Gwine.

“Franken? Somehow it fits perfectly. When we took out the magic stone and looked at it’s status it said {Flesh Golem} so we’ve just been calling it a golem.”

Bel said that and laughed. Only Zenom was making a face like he didn’t get it but he must have realized it was something from our past lives pretty quickly.

“Rather than that Al-san. Please go to Ral’s place. She should be in “Rabei”. Without letting anyone approach she’s been drinking there since lunch..”

Bel said. Toris and Zenom exchanged glances and Gwine was grasping my hand with a complicated expression.

“Please go see her...No matter what I say she just acts annoyed..”

Gwine said while looking up at me. I wanted to shower and change but I guess I can’t do that.

“I’ve made reservations at “Dorureon” so everyone go ahead there. I’ll head there after picking up Ralpa as well.”

I said that and took my helmet off, after getting a bit lighter I started towards “Rabei”.

Along the way my sensation of the direction and distance to Miduchi suddenly returned. It seems she just left the dungeon. I wasn’t worried at all but somehow I felt relieved.

.....

After arriving at “Rebei” and there was a single fool occupying the table in the center of the store hunched over. The waiter quickly came over to me and said “Today, umm, we’re reserved by that customer over there.” It seems this employee doesn’t know my face. They must be a newcomer.

“It’s alright, I’m an acquaintance, I’ll bring her back with me so no need to worry. And is the bill of that customer ready?”

“Eh? I see..”

The waiter heard my words and said it with a relieved expression, and,

“We still haven’t received payment.”

said that.

“Then, please prepare a bill.”

I said that and walked up standing behind the heavy drinker.

She’s pouring some alcohol down her throat while sitting in the center of a table which eight people could comfortably drink at, Ralpa was hugging my bayonet on her lap as she sat. She’s just as sloppy as usual.

“Al..Why..It’s fine..There’s no way he’d die.”

I’m sure she’s worried about me in her own way. However, in that case wait near the entrance plaza like Zulu and the others...Though it’s just like her to do this.

“Hey, “drunk”. You’ll change “Dorureon” into a fish market.”

I said that and put my hand on her shoulder.

The youth alcoholic patient slowly turned around and confirmed my face.

Her face was a mess with tears and snot. If I look closely there's some puke on the left side of the floor(the floor of the restaurant is a dirt floor) as well.

I made a dry smile while sitting on the opposite right side of her.

"A!!!"

What a loud voice.

"What is it?"

While her breath stinks of alcohol and puke, the drunk shifted her right leg to the ground and fixed her posture on the chair so she could face here. Simultaneously she put my bayonet on the table.

"You were..safe right."

She stretched both of her legs across the chair while here yes went wide, this alcohol drinking monkey that speaks human language.

"That's only obvious. Who do you think I am?"

I'm the leader-sama of the {Slaughterers}. Like I would die that easily.

"Idiot."

Shut~up. The idiot is you.

"The bill will be 24,500 Z."

The waiter called out after totaling up the bill. I took out my wallet and handed them 3 silver coins (30,000 Z).

"Use the change for cleaning up."

Putting it frankly a restaurant of this class is stupidly expensive but I guess you could say it was pretty cheap for reserving it to herself.

"Thank you very much."

After the waiter received the payment they quickly retreated to the back.

"Come on, stand up. Let's go."

I put my bayonet over my shoulder, while Ralph looks up at me with clouded eyes. I'm sorry about causing you to worry. And, thanks.

"I can't stand. Carry me."

Eh~ what a troublesome fellow. However, I can't just ignore her. Even I'm tired just returning from the dungeon though. It can't be helped.

"Che..Here."

I said that and crouched down with my back facing Ralpa. Even though she's a woman a single person is extremely heavy. However, don't understand my 29 Strength. Painful things are still painful but I can still walk while carrying a drunk Ralpa. My Endurance is 29 as well.

About ten steps from the restaurant and I felt lukewarm alcohol smelling liquid flow down from my neck to my back. I should have at least taken off my rubber protectors...She threw it all up on the inside, aren't I the only one who has to deal with this disgusting feeling. Rather I should have just used {Neutralize Poison} without feeling like it was too troublesome. It seems that not using it when drinking too much in order to keep that from becoming a habit has ended up turning against me. Things like Strength or Endurance didn't matter at all.

After that, I quickly used {Neutralize Poison} on Ralpa and since it couldn't be helped I returned to "Boil Manor" once to take a shower and change.

Along with an apologetic and depressed Ralpa by the time we arrived at "Dorureon" everyone was already getting served. Obviously I forbid Ralpa from anymore alcohol tonight and I enjoyed some delicious food and alcohol. I remembered while drinking and talking with everyone but it seems that the day after tomorrow is judgement day. Come to think of it, I had completely forgot it was the judgement day of Bikkens the survivor of {Bright Blade}. Well, I'm sure it'll be execution.

I talked about how the trap I fell in lead to the 14th floor.

"14th floor.."

Everyone was at a loss for words after hearing what I said. Everyone excluding Ralpa was drunk from the alcohol and showed expressions of admiration. It remained in my impression how Ralpa alone closed her lips trying to match with everyone else. Hey, don't look at me with a strange expression. I decided to talk about the fine details tomorrow once again after the alcohol is gone.

.....

Year 7444, Month 5, Day 29

We drank until midnight but thanks to {Neutralize Poison} and the alarm clock {Cantrip} I was able to open my hours by 4 in the morning. I headed towards the Eastern road from Baldukk with just my bayonet.

There's one horse under the moonlight and a single silhouette holding the reins.

It's Miduchi.

After recognizing me Miduchi got off her horse, hugged me, and we said our farewells.

"I want to return as fast as I can."

"Yeah."

"You pleased give it your best as well."

"Yeah."

I somehow can't reply with anything but these half-assed responses.

"Ah, that's right. About Unit Organization."

"Yes?"

"You still haven't cut it off right?"

Thanks to I was able to tell when Miduchi left the dungeon after we split up. It's true a short while after I left the dungeon I felt relieved because I was suddenly able to tell the distance and direction to Miduchi.

"Eh..Is it no good unless I turn it off?"

Don't make such a worried face.

"Just leave it right like it is. Extend the duration on it every day and in the worst case if something happens let me know. Right away..I guess wouldn't work but I'll come running. In the worst case, if in relation to anything you need to include someone else send me the order “addition”, and cut off their awareness of me before you add them.”

“Yes!”

With this, at the very least we can both feel that we’re still safe at anytime.

“Go on your way and come back. I’m waiting.”

“Then..”

Around the time Miduchi finished climbing the outer rim of the crater, the sun had started shining down into the shadow.

It looked like she turned around once but I quickly was unable to see her any longer.

Chapter 133: 14th Floor?

Year 7444, Month 5, Day 29

After seeing off Miduchi I returned to “Boil Manor” again to leave my bayonet, changed into my under-armor, and put my rubber protectors on. I went through that sort of thing. I do have the feeling that I can afford to rest from my training for today at least but I can’t let my greatest asset my value get weak. I’m considerably mentally exhausted but if you were to ask if I’m physically exhausted that isn’t the case. I walked countless Km inside of the dungeon but my body has already reached the point where something like that isn’t much at this point.

Since it seems my training time was a bit later than usual Angela came to get me from “Shuni”. Angela was waiting while looking tired in front of “Boil Manor”.

“Morning, is the alcohol all out?”

“Yes, I’m alright.”

After exchanging greetings in order to warm up a bit we slowly ran towards the outer crater. Once we entered the summit {training road} (the name I’m calling it) we raise our speed to the usual but for today I’ll maintain this pace for a short while. I wanted to talk with Angela a bit.

“Hey~ Angela.”

“Yes, what is it?”

“How, are you in regards to Giberuti?”

“..What do you mean by how?”

Her face is a bit red. Either she’s embarrassed or it’s simply from the running?

“No, when you tried to rescue me, you guys did it right?”

“Well, we’re the same race after all, I wasn’t against it. If that wasn’t the case then even if it was me I wouldn't so easily..”

“Hm~n.”

You say that but when you're out of mana you feel like anyone is fine as the partner. Anything that can be eaten, or anything that seems like it could be eaten you'll feel like trying to put into your mouth after all. Since she might have had a bit of reason remaining she probably avoided Zenom, Toris couldn't move from the pain of the bone fractures. Zulu was unconscious and couldn't move either. Since the only one remaining was Giberuti, I'm sure there wasn't any room for choosing.

Honestly speaking, I'm not such an ogre that I'd talk about the morals within the party when it comes to mana exhaustion. Even when it comes to me if the partner is a goat if it's biologically female when I'm out of mana I might feel they're fine to do it with. If there's someone who can unconditionally endure that I would respect them. However, you can properly remember the memories from that time and you can completely remember your actions and the things you felt at that time. What I'm worried about is whether or not you'll end up regretting doing it with a partner you didn't want to.

“Then I guess that's fine, sorry about asking something boring, forgive me... Let's go.”

I said that and raised my speed.

We did one lap around the outer summit and then returned to Baldukk descending the road along the riverside. Roughly 25Km in just around two hours. Right now even if I'm fully equipped I can run mountain roads at this speed. Putting aside Zulu and though Angela isn't wearing any armor I'm amazed she can keep up with me. After we returned to “Boil Manor” I said to Angela, and returned to my room before getting a rubber bag and returning.

“Wait just a minute.”

“This is something that works as a substitute for a pig's bowels, there's 10 of them inside. You know about pig's bowels right?”

When I said that with a flat voice and no emotion and her face suddenly turned red,

“Eh? Ah..Ha.. I know but..that is...I, I haven't used them, very much.”

She said it while quite embarrassed. What's with her, did she always have this sort of face?

“Nn? You don't know how to use it? Then hand it to your partner. Once you cut the seal use them all right away. The water inside is fine to lick but it rots easily. If it's during the season right now it would probably hold out about two days. Make sure you save the remaining ones. And throw them out. Also, the only one I'm providing these with is you. Don't tell the others about this.”

“..Yes.”

I handed Angela the rubber bag while her face was red and,

“Well, that is, how do I put it. I'm sure there are times when you want to let loose as well. Be careful not to get pregnant. It's not definitely safe with this but it's incomparable to not using them after all.”

I said that and without properly listening to her response turned around and walked off. I'm sure it's my obligation as their owner to manage the slave's condition as well. But, I saw it, so you make that sort of face when embarrassed.

.....

That day after breakfast was over and everyone was relaxing and drinking some tea, I opened my mouth.

“Ah, that's right, Giberuti. You should go to Greed Company in the capital right now. The locations is here.”

I said that while handing him a memo.

“Go to the capital and find a random patrol soldier..if possible someone who seems to have a decently high social standing and can read and hand them that memo while asking the location of the place and I'm sure they'll tell you. There's rubber products left inside of the store so you should be able to tell it right away. Tell the people in the store that you're my new slave and greet them before coming back. In addition buy some boots for yourself. The money is..fine I guess. No, take some. Here.”

I said that and handed him one golden Shu (250,000 Z).

“Buy about 5m of rubber cloth with the change and bring it back. Also, it’s fine for you to eat lunch today using it as well. Come back before dinner.”

Giberuti consented and left the restaurant.

“Now then, let’s have a different conversation. The story about after I got caught in the trap. Let’s change locations. We’ll head to “Boil Manor”. Zulu and Angela you two come as well.”

I said that and started walking towards “Boil Manor”. Along the way I bought sandwiches for lunch for everyone as well.

.....

As expected if eight people enter my room it feels quite crowded. It feels a bit cramped but it can’t be helped. I move further into my room and sit on a chair, Ralpa, Gwine, and Bel sit on my bed. Of course it’s a straw bed so even if I’ve made them take their shoes off I don’t want to let the guys sit down on it. On the other side of me Zenom sits down on the remaining guest chair and next to Zenom Toris, Zulu, Angela are sitting on chairs brought from a different room.

“It’s going to be a slightly long story so get comfortable.”

Everyone is focused on me. I can’t even hear a single cough. They must have wanted to hear about it quite a bit.

However...

“As a matter of fact, there’s two types of people in here..”

Everyone is looking at me. Huh? Well I guess it’s fine.

“People born with memories of their previous life, and people that were not..Zulu, Angela. I didn’t tell you two about it until now but other than Zenom, us five..Ralpa, Gwine, Toris, and Bel all remember things from before we were born.”

Huh? Huhuh?

“Why aren’t you surprised at that?”

It's particularly strange that Angela and Zulu aren't surprised at all. Do they think I'm saying some kind of boring joke?

"We heard about it yesterday."

Zulu calmly responded.

"Eh?"

"After we left master in the dungeon, everyone carried the peevish Ral to this inn. Since it was together with Kalstalan-sama who couldn't move it was quite difficult."

Angela said. What about that? Angela continues opening her mouth.

"After we carried Ral into the room, she and Zenom got into an argument."

I looked at Ralpa and Zenom surprised. And then I looked around at Toris sitting next to him and Bel, Gwine, and finally Ralpa on the bed.

"I mean.."

Ralpa said with a sulky expression.

"Eh?"

Really what does that mean?

"I mean, it's because we abandoned you and left the dungeon, so I said to Zenom. "Because he's a reincarnated person, because he's not a person of Orth did you abandon him, he's an ally right, if it was Al then he definitely wouldn't abandon us.""

Eh? What's that? What, are you saying? I'm sure my mouth is definitely wide open right now.

"I couldn't help, but say something I shouldn't have..Sorry..I'm sorry."

Ralpa lowered her head to me looking down.

".."

This girl...

"Ralpa. What was it that you weren't supposed to say?"

"Eh? That is, the fact that we're reincarn" "That's wrong.""

I think I said it with a considerably strong tone of voice.

“That’s, the wrong answer. It’s fine if you said something like that. It’s the individual’s choice if the ones who hear it believe it or not after all...Of course for the time being there’s more harm in saying it so not mentioning it is the better choice. But, just as I was about to say I thought it was a good time to tell Zulu and Angela about it. After all we’ve already been together with these two for close to two years. I’ve understood their personalities and above all else I don’t think they would betray us. However, you, so you said something like that to Zenom, you retard! You, step down from there! Spend the rest of today in “seiza” on the floor while listening, you idiot!”

In a rage I stood up and pointed to the floor in front of Ralpa while yelling. I glared at Ralpa while breathing with my shoulders.

“Before that apologize to Zenom! You, do you know what kind of feelings zenom..Shit! Bel! Toris! You two as well! you two..even though you’re adults don’t overlook this..”

It’s completely collateral damage to Bel and Toris but I couldn’t hold back. Gwine couldn’t hide her fear of my sudden threatening attitude. It seems that Ralpa finally realized from being yelled at by me and, said that while lowering her head to Zenom. Her face was half-crying but who cares. Reflect on things. Zenom made a bitter smile seeing that and nodded. I sat back down on my chair and looked at Toris while saying.

“Zenon..Uh..Father..I’m sorry.”

“Does Giberuti know?”

“No, I don’t think he knows. Zulu, Maruso, about yesterday did you mention it to Larry?”

Toris turned to Zulu and Angela while asking.

““I haven’t said anything.”

I put my left elbow on my desk and put my forehead against my left hand while listening to the reply.

“Then, the two of you already know right..”

I confirmed with Zulu and Angela.

“I think we have inquired about the outline of things.”

Zulu acted for both of them and replied.

“..Got it. Is there anyone other than us that has heard about it?”

“I don’t think anyone did. Soon after we left the dungeon I asked Larry to go and buy some medicine for pain relief and soon after that Gwine and I jumped out and check the pedestrian traffic. We properly confirmed that no one else was in the guest room at that time as well. It was a time when almost no one was in the inn and it was soon after we had returned and given the head clerk money to go and call a healer for us just in case.”

Bel replied. If I remember right these guys returned early morning. The night must have ended as they returned to the inn somehow or other. Was it after the guests for the inn went to get breakfast?

“I see..then that’s fine. If Bel confirmed it then it’s probably alright...Then, I’ll skip over things in regards to us..Continuing off. I’ll return to the conversation. First I’ll start with an outline.”

I look around at everyone before opening my mouth.

“That trap was a special trap. The moment you get caught in it your mana starts getting absorbed it seems. Since the inside was slippery and slope with almost no footholds so once you’ve gotten caught there’s almost no chance of climbing back out. Let alone that it’s probably best to think that it’s impossible to stay still inside of it. And then, once you’ve started falling down the slope for a short while you’ll be teleported even though there’s no crystal.”

I took a sip of water.

“The destination of the teleport is almost definitely the 14th floor. Though I just determined that based on the number of times I teleported while returning so I don’t know if it’s the 14th floor in the true meaning of it. However, for convenience sake I’ll be calling it that. And, I was teleported to somewhere on the 14th floor. I think you can imagine but I writhed around from the mana exhaustion and somehow managed to rest for three hours.”

I run my fingers through my hair lifting it up. Since I properly have Bel periodically cut it for me it's not sloppily growing out.

"And, when I was resting one more person came falling down from the trap on top of me."

I heard the sound of everyone swallowing.

"..That person was..a Dark Elf" "Ho~ a Dyurou huh? That's unusual!?"

Zenom said.

"Zenom, there's still a continuation. Just listen. Their name was Chizumagurol but..their real name is Shiina. And they were a subordinate of mine in the past."

Everyone was surprised as if lightning had struck through the room.

"Ho~"

"Al-san..that means..does that mean?"

"The same as us."

"Japanese!"

"A reincarnated person huh?"

"Hm~n.."

"Yeah, that's right. She always used to give her best at her job but it seemed like she had trained quite a bit even now. She was wearing clothes like a "ninja" though. Well, it's only obvious but her mana had run out and it was troublesome, I used something the cloth from her hood and tired up before letting her rest."

Somehow I feel like Ralpa and Gwine's expression got a bit softer while they were glaring at me.

I wonder if it would be best to tell these two that I'm dating her?

"After that..from here on is the story I wanted to let everyone hear today as well. The 14th floor was largely different from all of the floors we've seen until now. First, there was no walls throughout most of the floor. You can think of the entire floor being one large spherical room. And the floor didn't give off light. That's why it was pitch darkness. I don't think even Zulu's {Night Vision} would be able to see. The only thing that probably would have been effective is Infrared Vision.

After that, in the center of the floor there was something like a 100m or so “doughnut” no, something like a ring that was like the boss rooms up until now, and that ring was where the teleport crystal room was. There were no teleport incantation on the crystal in there. That’s why I think there’s a high probability that was the lowest floor but it might have simply been a branch floor or dead end.

I walked around quite a bit after falling there but other than the monster in the boss room in the center of the floor I didn’t encounter any monsters. There were several corpses of victims from that trap in the past but they all starved to death. Since there corpses weren’t laid waste to all so normally..Right, I don’t think monsters that appear in the halls appear there.”

I took another sip of water.

“During the time right after I fell down since I had no mana I wasn’t able to create even a single bit of light. It was to the point where I thought my eyes had been crushed at first. And, it was during such a time that a dark elf suddenly fell down on my from above that’s why at first I thought it as a monster attack. Since I had gotten a bit of rest by then I had some mana and was able to make some light and confirm their face right away. Since they had run out of mana as well I tied them up pretty soon and I went back to sleep so I could completely recover my mana as well. After that when we safely recovered our mana, the two of us cooperated to escape and searched around finally finding the room in the center.”

I cross my legs while sitting.

“It was a considerably powerful monster but we somehow managed to defeat it and escape. That Dark Elf my previous subordinate had something remaining she had to take care of in her hometown so we separated ways for once. It might take several monsters or maybe even a year but she intends to group up with us eventually. Since everyone doesn’t know her I won’t say to trust her right away. But, because of a certain reason I completely trust her from the top of her head to the ends of her nails. She’s definitely my ally.”

I leaned forward putting my jaw on my crossed arms.

“What I want you to remember from here is that after this accident, in the worst case the same, no, in the case you get caught in a similar trap. Listen well, by no means should you move around. Monsters won't come out. In the case you run out of mana..I'm sure various things will be difficult but curl up your body and go to sleep. Also, absolutely do not try to defeat the boss monsters in the center room by yourself. I'll definitely go to rescue you so just wait until then. Think that the boss there probably can't be beaten unless I join you. Also, if there's too many people there will be victims as well. It's difficult if including me there's not at most 2-3 people. Make absolutely sure you don't forget this."

Since the rescue group that comes afterwards will definitely run out of mana it would be perfect to carry around two 1m or so ropes to tie them up. After that is a lighter magic tool I guess. Since things like that we could gather together into a pack smaller than a flask if I prepare an exclusive pouch for them it should be fine.

And, I finished with the concluding words.

"This time, various things happened but the reason I was able to somehow return was largely thanks to the fact that I was able to recover my lost mana. And the fact that I had one other person with me who could use magic as well. Well, it's still harsh even if you can just use magic. It's not guaranteed that the same boss would be there next time as well but in the off chance that the same boss appears, then me and..I guess so, at the very least someone who can use magic a bit better than Bel is required otherwise we can't win. I'll talk about the details of this boss later but honestly speaking if I was alone it would have been difficult without a spear. I think it would have been seriously dangerous with just a sword. Even if I had won it's very possible I would have been heavily injured. It's repeating but I'll say it again, if you get caught in that trap make sure you don't move as much as possible and just rest and try to calmly wait for help to come. I'll definitely go."

After hearing this story everyone's bodies shook from the terror.

"However, as I said just now, if there's someone who can use magic then it's fine but I think if it was a master archer like Bel and they have plenty of armor that might work as well."

After this I talk about it in even more details and take questions while responding. For example, like this.

“About that boss but I understand that if Al-san and I are there we can defeat it but why is it bad if there are other people?”

“Yeah, about that. It’s main body is a large..slightly over 2m in diameter sphere. And, it floats with a large mouth and fangs, and a single large eye. There were several tentacles growing from the top of the spherical body and it fires off magic in rapid succession from there. If you can deploy an {Anti-Magic Field} I think that a party from a knight group would have easily been wiped out.”

“No way~!”

“I’m sure I just had good luck this time. Since it came down to a test of endurance and in the end my mana exceeded that eyeball bastard so I was able to hold out until it couldn’t use magic anymore. Ah, it’s name was Death=Tyrant.Kin. Since it was undead it smelled bad. I think I was largely able to win because even it’s brain had rotted and all of it’s actions were pretty idiotic.”

For example,

“Hey, that Dark Elf person is Al’s acquaintance right? Even if they have something to take care of in their home town, is it no good to put that off? I wanted to try meeting them..Speaking of Dark Elf, when we were searching for Toris and Gwine I caught sight of one but I haven’t talked to any.”

“It seems her older brother has a severe illness. She came to Baldukk to earn money for the medicine and got caught in the trap. Since the magic stone we got from the Death=Tyrant.Kin this time was pretty heavy I gave it to her to pay for medicine.”

“Hmmn..But, I see. If it’s something like that then it can’t be helped~”

“You’ll be able to meet her eventually. When that time comes get along well with her.”

Or,

“Al-san, that is..It’s extremely difficult to ask but..even if it’s Al-san’s guess it’s fine but for example, I mean for example. About that trap but if Bel and I were to fall together it would be fine. And if Bel and Al-san or Bel and Zenom-san, when opposite genders fall I can imagine what happens but if two men or two women were to fall..that is, what would happen? How did things go with the dark elf?"

Huh? Did I say that Miduchi was a man? Well it's fine. I'm sure he'll be surprised when he sees the real person.

"Toris, you..Don't ask such creepy things..Miduchi..ah, this is something like a nickname of the dark elf but I immediately tied them up and rolled them around so I didn't bother listening to everything. Since I've experienced I think you can somehow imagine it. Ralph and Angela can probably imagine it as well? Though I don't think the type of thing you're worrying about would happen. Some maddening level of extreme desires come in waves but it's not like you completely lose your sense of reason either. Though you become quite loose in general, as expected I don't think it goes that far."

"I think it's just the same as master says as well.."

"Me too, as expected.."

"Even if Toris is a good looking guy, he doesn't look like a woman after all..So just accept that as being the case."

"Please excuse me.."

Or,

"For it to be a single floor made into one large room..I feel like even I would get lost. What do you think?"

"No, there's no way I could know something like that. Sorry."

"I guess that's true.."

Or,

"Hey~ Al. What floor did that Dyurou get caught in the trap on?"

"Supposedly the 2nd floor. Somehow I feel like there's one on the 4th, 5th, and 6th floors as well though..That's why I talked about it today."

"After all huh..I guess we need to be careful of the walls in the rooms as well..Or is it fine as long as we don't lean on them..”

“Yeah, also we need to make sure we aren't thrown or knocked back like me. It's of great attention to make sure you're not sent flying by the boss {Cave Great Boar} on the 6th floor from now on as well.”

Or,

“However, master. For there be such a terrifying trap as that..We need to take a second look at our individual equipment and make sure that even during combat we don't remove the bare minimum.”

“Yeah, for sure. It would be best to make something like an exclusive pouch. At the very least one days worth of preserved food and if possible a flask, lighter magic tool, and a rope of some length I guess.”

“It doesn't seem like very much at all.”

“Yeah, Zulu, afterwards I'll give oyu come money so go with Angela and pick out a good pouch for everyone.”

“I understand.”

Or,

“Master, I've never seen a Dark Elf before but is their skin color really different from everyone else?”

“Yeah, it seems that normally it's deep~ purple and most of them are close to black. Their hair color is often white or very low pigment colors. Since this time the one I met has the same blood mixed in as us their hair color was black and their skin felt more of a light purple though.”

“He~ so their skin color really is that different. That's unexpected.”

“Since I lived in the capital I've seen them a number of times but it was more surprising to me that there were people with large ears and tails. People of the dog-people and wolf-people races even have four breasts after all..”

“People with a lot of them even have up to six.”

Or things like that.

Along the way, we had some lunch and continued talking into 3 in the afternoon. Around evening, Larry safely returned and we all had dinner together. Larry brought along 249,520 Z in change. They gave him the rubber sole boots and rubber cloth for free it seems. Well older brother still hasn't returned so I haven't decided on a sale price yet. But this change, I guess he didn't pocket it...Hm~n.

.....

Year 7444, Month 5, Day 30

Today is the judgement day in Baldukk. I'm sure {Bright Blade} will be completely wiped out with this. It ends up like this because you tried ambushing me in the dungeon. It doesn't particularly matter how much you attack people but we aren't such nice people to just take that quietly. In the first place, even the representative of nice the sister from {Black Topaz} was pleased that their portion will increase thanks to the decrease in rivals. Sister-Anderson isn't a saint. After that when I ran into her in a bar she was in a good mood drinking and causing an uproar with her party members.

Since it's necessary for me to stand as a witness I put on some nice clothes and put my sword at my waist before going to the plaza in front of the government office. Of course I haven't repaired my protectors and helmet which are evidence. Toris and Bel split up the evidence and brought it along. It's been close to two years since the execution of Derenola who attacked Bel, I've gone out for greetings during the judgement days but as usual there's an amazing number of people.

It seems that judging from the emblem this time the second knight group is in charge of security. It's not guaranteed that the commander is here but since I'm sure they'll become a customer in the near future I should probably greet the one in charge.

Though no matter what I do I need to greet his majesty the King first.

I told the knight group soldiers guarding the entrance to the government office that the head of Greed Company has come and would like to greet his majesty and had them confirm my status.

Chapter 134: Grasping the Chance

Year 7444, Month 5, Day 30

I went to greet the King and also greet the commander of the second knight group. The King, “Yo~ Greed. It’s been since the start of the new year. I wasn’t in the castle when you came last month...Molin and the other’s said to say Hi. By the way, it seems you’re involved in this incident again. I heard a bit of it the last time I came to Baldukk for a report. What was it again, the {Murderers}? Ah, right the {Slaughterers}. If it’s the {Murderers} then they’re the one’s being judged right. In any case you’ve gotten quite the dangerous nickname. It seems that there aren’t many who can make it to the top ranks in the dungeon in this short of a time right. I guess it means Greed has become quite a famous. It’s only obvious some people will be envious I’m sure.”

is what he was saying while grinning. You, intentionally said it wrong didn’t you.

“Leaving the jokes to about there, I’m glad you were fine. {Bright Blade} were one of the top adventurers in Baldukk right? Even I had heard the name before. Though I forgot until I received the report this time. What? Could it be, you’re actually quite strong? Well, you know I, even then was quite relieved you didn’t die. Since you, sell us such a good thing, and you’re quite the amusing fellow after all.”

“Ha, thank you very much for your kindness, I’m greatly obliged.”

While I was lowering my head it seems the commander of the second knight group whispered something in the King’s ear.

I’ve only seen the face of this commander before.

“It’s fine, it’s like I have my balls being grasped by this guy after all. There’s no need for being so stiff at this point...Eh? Ah, is that so? So you’ve fought against Logan huh? You even won against Bittwaz? I guess that’s not just quite but considerably strong. Ah, if I remember right your older sister is in the first knight group and you were pulled out by your older brother as well? Then, it makes sense that you can reach the top magic stone earner at that young age. If you find any sort of amazing~ magic tool then bring it to me. I'll let you have a reward. If it's something good then like with Viscount Grimson in the past it's fine if I let you become governor of one of my territories as well."

It seems I had a grasp on the King's balls at some point. I guess that's technically true though.

"Wa ha."

I humble myself with my head still lowered.

"Come to think of it, it seems you placed the headquarters of your Greed Company in Rombertia. Logan was so pleased he was doing some sort of crazy dance. Make sure you sell some armor to the other knight groups and not just the first knight group. Right~ Valmort. You think so too right?"

After the King said that he looked at the commander of the second knight group who is guarding him. This person as far as I can tell is a slightly thin middle-aged Tiger-man a bit past his 40s. As expected I can't use Identify because my sight will wander in a strange direction.

"Yeah, I would definitely like to make use of that armor in our group as well. Greed-san, it's fine if it's only a bit but please send some our way. I used to be in the first knight group as well after all, isn't fine?"

Viscount Valmort said that and smiled at me.

"Ha~ I guess so, I'll think about it.."

Hmn, it's not completely impossible. If it's one or two suits then I guess it's fine~

"Also, "Saya" was it? Sell that to us as well. When I went to "Emerald Duke Crab Reception Hall" the other day, I was surprised. That one with the emblem of the royal family on it, that's nice isn't it."

"Right!? That's the greatest isn't it! Greed's place really made something good. Greed, you know, I'll say it a number of times but I'll make you into at least a sub-Baron or something so quickly quit being an adventurer and make more “Saya”. I’m sure everyone would be pleased to buy them so you could live your entire life off that.”

“With all due respect your majesty, I have something I would like to do. Though I am terribly sorry to decline so many times..”

“Ho~?”

Viscount Valmolt made a voice like he was interested.

“I’m sure it’s just nothing special right? Or is it that? You want to earn big as an adventurer? If it’s not that then are you like the idiots around there who admire Rogmokku.The.Pitviper or his majesty George?”

The King threw down his legs shifted his ass with one of his elbows on the armrest of the chair sitting sloppily back while saying it.

“..”

I couldn’t do anything but face downwards and make a bitter smile. It seems my dream is an idiotic dream. Though it hurts that I can’t deny that.

“Your majesty, for you to bring up admiration for his majesty George. In the first place, everyone young man dreams of one day becoming like his majesty George, Rogmokku.The.Pitviper, or Kolakt King {Wizard.King}. Saying that I was one such young man who seriously admired them when I was in my teens as well.”

I don’t know if it was a follow or something Viscount Valmolt mentioned the general debate. In the first place, I still haven’t responded yet. After the King looked at Viscount Valmolt he opened his mouth as if to make fun of it.

“What’s with you, could it be you’re saying that seriously? I won’t say it’s completely and utterly undoubtedly impossible though you know, but no matter how you think about it isn’t it unrealistic?”

Well, that’s what’s normal right.
The King further,

“Even that Viscount Grimson when he presented my grandfather the previous King with the wand that let’s anyone use {Fire Ball} there was talk of giving him a territory but in the end he chose to become the governor you know? Well the territory was in the Dirt Plains. I’m sure that intelligent Viscount Grimson looked up to his majesty George in the past as well. But you know, the territory we’d be giving you is either the Dirt Plains or somewhere in the north, that we cut off from another place in the past. If you try making a country in a place like that there’s no way Guranan or Devas would remain quiet about it right. Of course, since we have to show face as the ones who gave you the territory, unlike them we wouldn’t lay a hand on you but if they attack you we wouldn’t come to your rescue either. If your territory ends up captured by Guranan or Devas we’d take it back with full force but if it comes to that then it’s ours again. Though since old man Grimson isn’t an idiot he already knew something like that.”

and said that. That’s only obvious. If a small independent country like that were to stand on the verge of collapse it would desperately resist, and I’m sure the invading force wouldn’t be unharmed either. After it’s been weakened the army of Rombert Kingdom would invade and then it would just return back to original. The King returns his sight back to me and,

“That’s why Greed. I won’t say anything bad so make Greed Company even bigger. And sell even more “Saya”. Right, isn’t that better?”

and said that. After hearing that Viscount Valmort,

“Your majesty, it’s not as if Greed-san said he wanted to create a country..”

and calmed down the forwardness.

“Eh? Ah, that’s right. But what about it Greed? In reality, aren’t you looking up to his majesty George and Rogmokku King, Rogmokku.The.Pitviper?”

and the King said. Commander, you don’t really have any room to talk.

“Ha..That is..”

While I was still humbling myself I was about to respond that I looked up to them. But I stopped myself.

“Eh? What? Are you serious? I’ll teach a brat like you though. It’s true that if it’s a high ranking noble over a Viscount then it’s fine for them to go independent. The surroundings might not recognize them but as a result they'll end up having to recognize it after all. But from that point on it's the same as being a foreign country. You might end up being attacked by your original country and if it's connected to a different country that one might invade you as well. And no one will come to save you at that time. If a freshly made small country can single-handedly repel the armies of the country it belonged to until then and other foreign countries than it's a splendid independent country though. But, that's just a matter of, IF they can manage it."

The King said that while drinking a sip of the tea he had at the side of his chair.

"There were countless cases of that even up until now. Even if you don't go independent it's a pretty common story of entire territories switching sides to a different country as well. It's annoying but Marquis Junkel's territory is one example of those."

Just now, the King said Marquis Junkel but to be more accurate they're a Count. In the North of Rombert Kingdom there was a territory and right now it's switched sides to Granan Empire. Originally the territory around there was something that Rombert Kingdom waged a war against Granan Empire invaded and captured. During that time, the one who ruled that territory was a person called Count Junkel. Midway through the invading war Count Junkel abandoned Granan Empire and switched sides to Rombert Kingdom having them recognize the territory as his own and they were conferred the rank of Marquis from Rombert Kingdom. That person ended up switching sides again returning to being a Count of Granan Empire. During the last hundred years or so that's happened a total of five times it seems. In some meanings you might even call it Junkel Dukedom or Count-dom. Since it's become like a vassal country of Rombert and Granan back and forth, it's even possible that they aren't even properly paying the taxes.

It seems that there's a few large and small territories like that along the large border of the country.

I think I talked about it before but along the border with Devas Kingdom in the south there's a number of hidden pioneering villages so there's probably quite a few places that aren't properly paying taxes to either side.

“If you’re interested then, if it’s a village under direct control of the royal family along the Dirt Plains then I’d be fine with selling it to you for 10,000,000,000 Z.”

Of course I’m sure that’s just a joke though. A single stingy village along the remote regions of a place like that where there’s often conflicts going on for 10,000,000,000 Z is way beyond making a killing...However...

“10,000,000,000 Z is it, as expected that’s quite expensive..”

I made a dry smile while looking up at the King.

“Hahhawwa. No, if you really pay 10,000,000,000 Z then it would be fine to get you an adequate territory along with it. If it’s a country that can oppose Devas for several years after that then it’s entirely good for me after all...Oh? Isn’t that a good thinking? I wonder if some fool won’t buy one from me?”

“Your majesty..I really can’t imagine there’s actually such a person as that though..”

Viscount Valmort grumbled while shaking his head.

Originally I intended to found my country to the East rather than the South being exposed to the threat of Devas. Unlike the Dirt Plains it seems it’s true that the territory is considerably barren though so there’s been no conflicts between Rombert Kingdom and Bakuruni Kingdom or Kanbitt Kingdom to the East in the past couple of decades. Even the last conflict I heard about was on a smaller scale than the conflicts always occurring with Devas. I thought that if it’s the area where these three countries are bordering then it’s surrounded by mountains so it would be even less likely to get involved in conflicts.

Since the areas around there are ruled by County Rinflait who isn’t very wealthy, I was thinking of paying some money and as insurance get married to an appropriate woman to create a relationship in the area and buy a territory around there. Even then if you pay 10,000,000,000 Z then I think you should at least get a single mountain and an area the size of Kanagawa prefecture with some change. After all it seems that just the area of Count Rinflait’s territory is considerably vast. With the change it would be fine if I buy some slaves and if I make the first 10 years or so tax-free then I’m sure some second sons and daughters of commoners would move in as well.

Putting aside rubber, if there's a mountain then I'm sure I could found a country by manufacturing and creating an industry around metals somehow. I'm sure I could even do agriculture as well. I just have to have the serfs make terraced fields. Normally it seems to be impossible due to the flow of water but I can create it with water magic after all. If you give me a month I'm sure I could make Lake Biwa. Though there's no level ground that wide in area. If we pull some water from the river we can make a reservoir. If it's just providing the water during the period of that construction, it's not impossible.

However, Dirt Plains huh? Up until now I've had Devas in my head as a threat so I didn't take it into consideration but it seems it's considerably fertile and if we can endure things for two years or so I might be able to make it work. Ah, come to think of Miki, No, Lilus said, "Be careful of the reincarnations in Devas Kingdom. One day they'll become an obstacle for you." or something like that...I guess this means, even if I try to found my country in the East eventually they'll become a hindrance? Otherwise regardless of whether I found a country they'll try to lay some kind of hand on me? It's probably the latter.

While I was in the middle of thinking a bit, Viscount Valmort and the King continued talking about trying to profit by selling the Dirt Plains to a noble inside of the country and how no one would buy it. The moment their conversation stopped, I looked for the timing and interrupted.

"Your majesty, I'm very sorry while you're in the middle of your conversation but I still have yet to earn such a large amount of money as 10,000,000,000 Z, nor have I found any useful magic tools."

"That's only obvious. Eh? What? You haven't seriously gotten interested have you?"

Then don't make such an amused face.

"Yeah, not yet at this time.."

"Ho~?"

After hearing my response the King's atmosphere suddenly changed to something strict and he lowered his tone of voice.

"Since you're saying not yet at this time, then that means from here on out you intend to do something like that?”

“Yes.”

I looked up at the King and properly pronounced it so there was no mistakes in hearing.

The King fixed his posture in the chair and leaned forward a bit.

“Just in case, I’ll say it once for you. Greed, you know, it’s true that I intend to stand by the things I’ve said. Since a King just becomes a joke if they go back on their word even once. However, while it seems you’re earning quite a bit right now but if you mention 10,000,000,000 Z then it’s a truly large amount of money. It’s true that the Dirt Plains is a good plot of land but there’s skirmishes going on between Devas there all the time, and you know that if your territory ends up being occupied once my army takes it back it returns back to belonging to my Rombert again right? Even if you make some clatter after that I won’t pay any attention to it.”

“Ha..Of course.”

“It’s fine if you understand though. You, I thought you were someone who could see a bit further ahead...If I remember correctly, your company has a red license right? Wouldn’t it be a good idea to leave it your older brother who’s rumored to be superior while you still can? I’m fine as long as I can buy “Saya”. Though you still had some room to grow, I guess in the end you’re just a brat huh? I’ve lost interest. It’s already fine so leave.”

“Ha...Please excuse me.”

I guess I disappointed the King, Thomas Rombert the Third, he’s just waving his hand urging me to leave the room so I honestly left. However, I took his word.

“..Hey, Greed.”

The King called out to me after I had turned my back. I turned around and took the pose of a retainer before replying.

“Ha.”

The King made a slightly strict face.

“Just now, I made a fool of you. For the time being you can’t turn around my assessment of you. If you’re mortified over it then either find a useful magic tool or get 10,000,000,000 Z and hand them over to me. In that case..if you can do that then I’ll take a better look at you again, I’ll even take back that I made fun of you and apologize.”

“Wa ha.”

“At best strain yourself on it.”

And I withdrew from the audience room of the government office in Baldukk. Holding my chest held high.

.....

The judgements were held starting noon but just as expected Bikkens from {Bright Blade} was executed. The equipment of theirs that was confiscated by the knight group of Baldukk who has the right to police was returned to the rightful owner who turned the tables on them (in other words, me).

Just as the curtain of night started to fall, the enforcement of all punishments had ended (after my portion of seeing through the enforcement against Bikkens ended I was wondering around checking out stalls but I returned to the inn to change into normal clothes), and a messenger came from Viscount Valmort calling me out. It’s simple to find “Boil Manor” where the {Slaughterers} stay in this town after all.

When I arrived at the highest quality inn in this Baldukk “Elm Tree Manor” and the one in charge of guarding the King, viscount Valmort was waiting for me. Ushered in by him I saw down on the edge of a sofa in the lobby. So there’s even sofas in “Elm Tree Manor”. Though it’s not like there’s springs so it’s just filled with feathers or straw and is just a bit better than a wooden chair in terms of comfort.

“Greed-san, in regards to the matter of selling armor to the second knight group, I’m depending on you for that.”

Viscount Valmort politely started talking.

“Viscount Valmort, I’m a sub-noble and just as you can see I’m young as well. Since it’s not like we’re before his majesty there’s no need to, speak so politely..”

“That’s certainly true but you’re the head of Greed Company. And Greed Company is an importance company for our country which sells armor to the first knight group. Since from here on out we the second knight group want to have do business dealings with you as well, this much is only obvious.”

Eh? I don’t remember promising to make any deliveries to the second knight group.

“However..there’s a limit on the quantity of armors we can produce..I don’t know if we can provide a quantity that satisfies you..”

While I’m holding back on my words and,

“That~ I understand that much. It’s fine even if it’s only one suit at once. For starters wouldn’t you take orders from the sub-commander classes who are in the field? Please do.”

Viscount Valmort said that and politely lowered his head to someone who could be the same age as their own child.

“..”

“I was convinced of it after hearing about the matter during the judgement today. I took a look at the rubber armor presented as evidence. Even though it’s that light it has enough defensive capability to deflect arrows. It’s something that’s definitely necessary for the second knight group which sees a lot of live combat.”

The second knight group is different from the first knight group in that they’re in possession of a formal infantry unit so they have an organization where there’s a mixed regiment with units from all of the knight groups from the second to the fourth that take part in combat. Well if you normally speak of an army then this is how it would be.

Since the first knight group are the elites there’s no many chances for them to directly enter the battle field and take command or cross spears. Of course, if it’s necessary they’ll stand at the front and fight. They’re strong after all. In comparison the second knight group is the main combat force in the conflicts with Devas. The command of the entire battlefield itself is usually done by a knight from the first knight group but about 1/4th of the members of the second knight group are constantly included in patrol groups that protect the Dirt Plains. Obviously it's not as if there aren't the armies of the nobles included in patrolling the borders but they aren't normally stationed out there. After all, there's more cases for direct combat for the members at the ends than the first knight group.

"..I understand. However, the limit is one suit every three months. In regards to the price, delivery date, and measurements I'll get into contact with the knight group at a later time."

After I said that and Viscount Valmort made an openly relieved face.

"Thank you very much. It's really a big help...And, in regards to the matter this morning but don't take it too to mind. His majesty was pleased with Greed-san. His majesty wouldn't say something like that to someone who he was really disappointed in. Either he would just remove them from their position without saying anything or if it's far unusual and they buy his anger..he'll have one arm cut off. He won't kill them though. I've only heard stories about it and haven't actually seen it though."

"..Is that so."

"After that, his majesty was saying it. If it's you then you might be able to obtain an amazing magic tool like Viscount Grimson or a large sum of money. And he also said this. You're the only person that his majesty can freely talk with. One of the few men who know of his majesty's size through "Saya"."

Viscount Valmort cheerfully said while laughing. It's true that around the summer of last year since his majesty isn't an L size but is still larger than an M size it was necessary to make a custom condom exclusively for the King. I was forced to make the model in front of the King. The requests were extremely annoying and fussy like just a bit bigger, or smaller and such. Though he was extremely pleased that I made it ribbed. I'm sure there's a difficult smile on my face.

"He also said he won't lend you a hand but he said to make sure nothing becomes a hindrance like the incident this time. I wonder how in the world we're supposed to make that happen?"

Viscount Valmort said while laughing quite amused at it. Certainly that's unreasonable. Pulled along by his laugh I couldn't help but laugh as well.

"I see..then I need to put fighting spirit into it. I'm sure it would be quite thrilling to have his majesty apologize to me after all."

I said that had a short chat with Viscount Valmort.

During the time Viscount Valmort and I were talking in the lobby it seems that the King was watching a bit from the upper floor. Since it was from behind me I didn't notice.

Chapter 135: First Wife

Year 7444, Month 5, Day 30

After we all finished dinner, I told the slaves to go and receive the equipment of {Bright Blade} that is supposed to be returned to us tomorrow. If there's anything of good quality then it would be fine to just use it like that as well. I'm pretty sure there was banded-mail and ring-mail included in the armor as well. In addition to purchasing some new leather armor for the members who's has started to damage it would probably be good to make use of those.

After dinner, I paid the slaves their wages for this month and after they separated from us, I pulled along Ralph and Gwine who wanted to go drinking and we returned to "Boil Manor". And then, once again we all gathered in my room.

"I thought we should talk a bit more about things with only the people who know the details a bit deeper. It's about Unique Abilities."

I sip at some bean tea while switching the topic to Unique Abilities and everyone in the room that was pointlessly chatting until then quieted down and looked at me.

"Nn~ this is extremely difficult to talk about...Well just listen."

I guess there was something that they didn't get with my way of putting it, everyone was making slightly mysterious faces.

"Including organizing it, I guess I'll talk about it once more...We were all born on the same day, in the year 7428. It's the same day we died as well. It was an accident and if we died instantly then it's only obvious. Though there might be people who didn't die instantly as well but I can't say anything in that regards. I can't imagine that every one of the victims in that accident died instantly after all. It wouldn't be strange for some of the people to have died in the hospital...It could be possible that only the people who died instantly were reincarnated to this Orth, though that might not be the case either."

“Haven’t we already talked about that quite a bit already?”

Ralpa said that. Certainly it’s quite late to be mentioning it.

“That’s true. However..It seems that the only ones who reincarnated to Orth isn’t just those of us who became victims in that accident.”

After I said that and Ralpa opened her mouth shocked while looking at me. Everyone else is in a pretty similar state.

“Obviously I think you’ll find it strange right. Why I know something like that.”

I continue my words after seeing everyone slowly nod.

“We talked about it a bit yesterday night but..Obviously that’s not all of the story. First, I guess I should start talking about it in sequence based on the dates...However, listen well, there’s no guarantee the things I’m about to talk about are correct. Even the things I heard could be fake. But, for the most part I think there’s conformity in the things I heard. First, things started 1,300 years ago. It might have started even further back than that or might have really been 1,300 years ago. I personally think it’s just one story in a history of things that’s continued since even further in the past.”

I looked around at everyone before opening my mouth.

“1,300 years ago a single Japanese person reincarnated to Orth. However, they weren’t a Japanese person from 1,300 years ago. They were a person who lived in the same era as us. They were a woman named Lilus and an Elf. She was born in a place far to the East of here, a country of Elves that no longer exists. I’m sure that woman had the same sort of confusion and conflicts as all of us but somehow or other she was able to adapt and she probably had a considerably amount of luck as well. She was safely able to become an adult, get married, and have a child. The child grew up a bit..around the time it turned two years old she was out hunting together with the girls of the village. Several days later, when Lilus returned to her village from hunting the scene she saw was her village trampled by an invading army of a nearby country and all of the villagers killed including her family.”

Gwine’s eyes went wide while she’s holding her mouth.

“She pledged to get revenge and centered around the survivors of the village organized a resistance. I don't know the specific details but I think things would have been pretty difficult. It seems that she spent countless years and finally was able to destroy the country that invaded."

Zenom has his arms crossed and his eyes closed as he patiently listens to the story.

"Around that time the only survivor from her village was just Lilus. I'm sure all the other people must have lost their lives in the fights up until then. And, I don't know how, or why but it seems that either as reparations or as a reward for that she gained eternal youth. Supposedly she wasn't immortal...Hey, don't look at me with such suspicious eyes. I still haven't finished."

Ralpa took a pose exactly like Zenom and was looking at me with a questionable expression.

"And then, it seems she ended up marrying a different man who was also eternally young. I don't really know when this happened. And, it seems that the partner she married wanted a child but she wasn't able to have a child. It seems that husband even tried to kill Lilus in a maddened rage...Yeah, that's right, he's an insane bastard. However, since she felt that she was in danger she ended up turning the tables on and killing him."

Bel is nodding with a serious face. For her breasts to ride on her crossed arms..as expected. It might have just been my imagination but Toris seemed uncomfortable. You, could it be you said something to Bel?

"Just like I explained at the start, Lilus was on the Eastern side of the Oladd continent but it seems after that she moved to the West. And then we skip ahead a bit in time. It was about 700–800 years ago from now, so I guess around 400–500 years after she was born..It seems that some Gods with power named Sharaizudan and Nelal died. Eh? I don't know why they died. In any case, it seems that it took the shape of her inheriting the deaths of those two Gods and she turned into a {Demi-God}. That time, she supposedly turned into a Dark Elf..This is nothing more than my imagination but I think that maybe Lilus killed those two Gods."

Zenom suddenly opened his eyes and then closed them again.

"In other words, it seems she's the founder of all Dark Elves."

I said that and took another sip of bean tea.

“After that, Lilus gave birth and increases the Dark Elves creating a country I’m sure. Though I don’t really know. She called herself the Queen, and gave out several specific jobs while countless years passed. Just like that time passed by... Even though she was a {Demi-God} since she had still become a God she noticed that occasionally there were reincarnated people like us being reborn on Orth.

It seems that reincarnated people are born several years after the previous reincarnated people, basically the generation that is in possession of Unique Abilities end up dying. Supposedly only after that are new reincarnated people born. When they’re born it seems there’s cases of just one being reincarnated or cases like us with a number of people. However, I’m sure there’s most likely multiple. Since there’s probably some who died while children or who she never ended up meeting in their whole life so she probably just didn’t notice them. In her case, since she had become a {Demi-God} it seems she was separated from the frame of normal reincarnated people even though she had a Unique Ability. What can be imagined from this is that from the time Lilus was born until she turned into a {Demi-God} several hundred years later no reincarnated people were born.”

I change the way my legs are crossed and shift my posture a bit.

“And then, once upon a time..I think it was probably a bit over 500 years ago from now, Lilus met a young human man. The young mans name was George Rombert. Right, the founder of Rombert Kingdom, Rombert the First himself.”

Zenom opened his eyes in surprise.

“I’m sure, Lilus recognized it right away. That he’s a reincarnated person as well. It seems she talked with him a bit. I don’t know if she only met him once or more often after that though. However, I think she might have given him various advice so it would be unnatural if she only met him just once and probably talked to him a number of times. It could be possible they had some sort of point of contact even. Rombert Kingdom has a lot of aspects in it’s systems of management of the country that are different from other countries. For example the military organization. I’m sure that the fact that the nobility and soldiers are a different set of rankings is related to the advice Lilus gave. I think there's various other things as well. The qualifications for companies and the shape of politics. Fundamentally the nobles are ministers who are appointed by the King and roughly governing over things but the rankings of the officials at the end are already decided and even commoners and free people can get promoted pretty high on that end. I think that's something pretty abnormal for Orth. ”

“Certainly, I've heard that there's various things that are different in Rombert Kingdom from other countries..”

Zenom said seriously with his eyes opened. I nod at him and then continued my words.

“I think that George Rombert was wise. I'm sure he was originally blessed with military talent but without getting arrogant from that, he accepted Lilus's advice, and just like this he made Rombert Kingdom a large country that's lasted 500 years. Listen and be surprised at his name before he was reborn, he supposedly said it was Minamoto no Yoshitsune.”

Toris, Bel, Ralpa, and Gwine suddenly got noisy. I'm sure just Zenom has no clue but that can't be helped. Ralpa is explaining to Zenom that it was a famous military commander in our past lives. I waited until everyone quieted down.

“Is it already fine? Ah? It seems that Musashibo Benkei died without meeting Yoshitsune. Yeah. The continuation. It seems that after Lilus became a {Demi-God} she was able to sense the signs when reincarnated people are going to be born. And even more time passes..500 years. It seems that Lilus senses a single reincarnated person born below her feet. That was, Chizumagurol. My subordinate from the past that I met in the dungeon the other day. It seems that Lilus was surprised when Chizumagurol was born. Up until then she had met and seen a number of reincarnated people but it was her first time meeting someone from the same era as her after all..”

Toris, Bel, Ralpa, and Gwine the four of them are closing their eyes or looking into the distance while trying get a feel for Lilus's feelings.

“I'm sure she was happy. It seems that soon after she was born she used magic to peek in on her memories and see what kind of person she was. That magic is called {Report} and it's spell that's already been lost now and uses a tremendous amount of mana. When the spell is used on the target while they're sleeping or the level of their consciousness is low, it forcefully displays memories that strongly remained in their impression. And then, as compensation for that the target's memory is sealed. Eh? I don't know if the memory that was looked at itself gets sealed. In the first place, it seems that even I don't have enough mana to use that spell {Report} at all so I can't use it. Lilus obviously knew about that. But, since it was nostalgic and heartrending she couldn't help but continue to use a powerful {Report} to indulge in them. Since Chizumagurol was still a baby that had just reincarnated into Orth, there was no way she had any memories of a life on Orth. It went to the point where finally Chizumagurol had all of her memories of her past life excluding her knowledge sealed away. In other words, during the time she was a baby she forgot most of the memories she had lived in her life up until then..”

Gwine's eyes went wide while she's holding her hand over her mouth again.

“But..But, I understand her feelings.”

“Yeah, I understand that person's feeling as well. I'm sure she wasn't able to hold it back..”

Bel and Toris are supporting my wife Lilus.

“Certainly, that's true but..forgetting your life because of that..is painful I'm sure..”

Ralpa whispered.

“Well, forgetting is a faulty way of putting it. Just like I said in the start, the memories are just sealed and not completely forgotten. In reality, when Chizumagurol met me she remembered the considerable portion of her memories. I'm continuing..after looking through the memories of Chizumagurol's past life Lilus noticed something. The fact that Chizumagurol didn't reincarnate alone.”

I took a glance around at everyone's state. There was no one making strange faces. I was a bit worried someone would interject. I'm saved.

“A certain person was in the memories of Chizumagurol. That person was someone Lilus was intimate with during her time on Earth. Since that person was in Chizumagurol's memories even if she knew it was no good Lilus couldn't stop looking at Chizumagurol's memories. That person was, Lilus's husband in Japan."

"Ah..that is..might not be..impossible."

"Yeah..I can't criticize her..but.."

Gwine and Ralpa said.

"Th..That is.."

"No way~!"

It seems that Bel and Toris might have realized.

".."

Zenom still has his arms crossed and is making a difficult face with his eyebrows raised.

"..Lilus noticed the possibility that the man who was her husband could have reincarnated on Orth as a baby. However, her body was already in a state where she couldn't move freely. Quite literally, her legs were rooted to the ground. Since it couldn't be helped she made use of that spell {Report} and used it blindly one at a time..from one person on Orth after another..she slowly looked into the memories of various people while searching...

I didn't say it just now but this spell {Report} is easier to cast the closer the target is to the caster in terms of physical distance and it also has relation to how deep into and the number of memories they can see but..just like that the memories get sealed as well. The further distance away they are the more difficult it is and it uses massive amounts of mana for a weak effect. I'm sure it was an exhausting amount of work...

After 10 years she was finally able to find them..after looking into their memories and finally being able to specify her husband I think she was quite happy. Even if she's a {Demi-God} she's not omnipotent. In order to meet him she would have needed her husband to come to her place. There was no other way to talk than that...She had already reached her limits in mana and while it was temporary she was about to die as well. It seems she overdid it quite a bit somehow aligning her mentality just to say "I'm here, come and meet me.""

Everyone has quieted down tilting their ears to the story.

“Now then, the story changed a bit from here. I was able to notice it vaguely but I had some memories that were disappearing. The first time I noticed it was shortly after we came to Baldukk. And then, in a strange place I noticed that I had a powerful spell, one to the level that even I couldn’t remove cast on my hand. After that..I gathered information from various places..and there’s some coincidences here as well but if I have another chance I’ll mention it..In any case, I realized I was under the effects of a powerful spell that I couldn’t release myself so I thought the only option was negotiate directly with the caster. In order to negotiate a conversation was necessary. I decided to use a spell called {Telepathy} to talk to them but it’s necessary to be able to see the target in order to use the spell {Telepathy}. In order to do that I needed to use a spell called {Detect Magic User} to look at the caster.”

I took a sip of bean tea to wet my lips.

“This {Detect Magic User} isn’t so easy to use. It requires a crystallized mineral that’s as transparent as possible in the shape of a sphere to use as a catalyst. Honestly speaking, that’s the reason I had been frantically looking for crystals or diamonds recently...When I fell to the 14th floor, I defeated a monster eyeball called Death=Tyrant.Kin but the insides of that eyeball had crystallized. Of course I took it. On the way back..I think it was probably the teleport room on the 13th floor I immediately made use of the crystal ball to use the spell {Detect Magic User} and I saw the face of the caster in the crystal ball..”

I want some cigarettes...

“I’m sure you already get it right? Miki, my wife appeared...I talked to her using {Telepathy}. Almost everything I just talked about now was from my wife..things I heard from Lilus herself.”

Silence took over the room. You can only hear the sound of slow breathing.

Zenom is still crossing his arms and it seems Toris is following after him with his arms crossed and eyes closed. Bel and Gwine have their eyes cast downwards but their eyes are red with tears in them. Ralpa is just staring vaguely into the mid-air.

I put a bit of a gap between it and opened my mouth again. Up until here is just the preface after all.

“Even with a crystal ball this large I wasn’t able to talk to her for very long. That’s why, what I just sopped about now is almost all of it. For starters I’ll say it, but I, won’t go and meet my wife now. It seems that even if I do go I wouldn’t be able to meet her after all. Since she’s far away I wouldn’t make it in time. However, {Demi-Gods} are different from normal people they’re still Gods. It seems she’ll revive again in another several years or decades. It’s fine since if I’m still alive at that time I can meet her. That’s why..don’t worry about it.”

After I said that everyone looked at me with painful faces. So you all cared about me that much. I’m grateful.

“And, this is some new information that I had gained but this is finally the main part. It’s about Unique Abilities. When Unique Abilities reach the max level..it seems you can use a hidden ability for them when they reach level 9. Is there anyone who’s noticed it? I had noticed it. The hidden ability of Magic Acquisition that I noticed when it reached the max level is..I’ll mention it later.”

There was a feel like things tripped for a bit but that’s only obvious. After seeing everyone’s reactions I thought to change the details of what I was going to say. And, I thought that Bel would raise her hand as well.

“Bel. Is there anything that you’ve noticed?”

“..Yes. As a matter of fact I’ve had that sort of feeling since a short while ago. When I’m using Shooting Intuition, if I concentrate even further while using it I feel like the hitting rate gets even higher.”

Ho~? The last time I Identified Bel..when was it again? However, I guess the time I read the details of her Unique Ability was around the time we met...I’ll shift my sight a bit so it doesn’t feel unnatural and try Identifying her.

“He~? Toris, Gwine what about you two?”

【Unique Ability: Shooting Intuition; an ability which makes the intuition of the user sharper and raises their accuracy when shooting. At level 0 it gives a correction of 5% to their normal shooting capability.....has no effect on the abilities of the device used to shoot or the distance or force of the projectile fired with it.The expanded ability at MAX level is that by consuming another additional 1 MP there’s an additional 50% correction added to the shooting ability of the user.】

I see.

Also, the only ones who's Unique Abilities are at MAX level are Toris and Gwine. Ralpa is close to level 8 but it's still level 7.

Toris is twisting his head. I tried Identifying him but there was nothing that had particularly changed. I wonder if the expansion ability only blooms if you continue using your ability even after it reaches MAX level? It feels like Gwine is somehow hesitating on it. I wonder if maybe she's noticed it as well?

【Unique Ability: Geographical Memory {Mapping}; The details of all terrain seen while using this ability can be stored in memory. Also, during use of this ability you can understand when you've entered a terrain that you've previously stored.....visual information is falsified, the falsified information will be stored in memory. The expanded ability at MAX level is while viewing a terrain already stored in memory(this works even in the case the ability is already in use), if the the user is currently inside of that terrain they can comprehend their current location in both first-person and bird's eye view.】

Hohou. In Gwine's case, it doesn't require any additional MP.

“Umm, it's just somehow but recently I feel like I have..noticed something as well. During the time I'm imagining the map in my head, I can understand where my current location is on that map.”

Umu...However, since Bel and Gwine honestly reported theirs I have no choice other than to say mine as well. Out of the options I had already prepared in advance I pick the one that is most suitable. Honestly speaking, putting aside Bel or Gwine I didn't think they had noticed it. Even I wouldn't have realized that I was earning experience points towards my magic skills if I didn't observe it using Identify. I still don't know what kind of expanded ability Identify has after all. That's why, I thought to go with the maximum amount of compromise on this end as well.

“So Toris hasn't noticed anything? I see. In my case, it's become even easier for me to learn new spells. This is a bit different from up until now. It's true that up until now I was able to learn new spells. If that wasn't the case then I wouldn't be able to make use of as many different types of spells as as I do.”

I took another sip of bean tea before opening my mouth again.

“For example, if there’s a spell A here that I don’t know. The easiest method for me to acquire this spell A is to have it actually used in front of me and then directly coach me on how to use it. This is the same as everyone right? The next easiest way is to just have someone use it and not receive any coaching. The next method is to only be told the details and effects of the spells. However, it’s only obvious but in all of those cases there’s the prerequisite of how much mana each of those spells use. I think you can understand that including me this is the same for everyone.”

Everyone is nodding.

“But, particularly in the case of the last method, if it’s just that it’s quite difficult. Even when I have Magic Acquisition it’s considerably difficult to do. My mother was my teacher in magic. She was only able to use the elemental magic fire and water. My mother had no method of coaching me on using spells that require earth or wind magic. However, in my case, just as everyone knows, since I have a lot of mana the number of times I could do trial and error was extremely high. I repeated trial and error countless times and slowly made them my own.

I’m sure that after everyone started training with magic there’s countless things you could have noticed but using a new spell itself isn’t all that difficult.

However, that’s only in the case that spell actually exists and you’ve seen it used in front of your eyes. Using the example from just now even if there’s a spell called A that you know the name of, if you’ve never actually seen it then in most cases you’re still doubting it’s existence somewhere in your mind. Even though I just mentioned the spells named {Report}, {Detect Magic User}, and {Telepathy} I don’t think you’ll be able to use them with just that.”

I shifted my position on the chair again before continuing.

“However, my Magic Acquisition ability let’s me reasonably become able to use a spell just by learning the name and effect of it in a short amount of time. And then, the hidden ability that was released by reaching the highest level, it’s just somewhat but it makes it easier for me to develop my own spells. I haven’t put any effort into it yet but I think I’m going to make a new spell using this.”

I grin while looking around at everyone.

“It will be an expansion of {Status Open}. I think it would be good if I can see peoples {Status} without touching them directly. Particularly, if I can see things that only the person them self could see until now like Unique Abilities, special skills..and if I could see the levels of magic it would be the best. It would be an advantage in searching for reincarnated people, and from here on out, I think it would be helpful in finding talents to make my country.”

Gwine seemed like she had something she wanted to say.

“Gwine, is there something you want to say? What is it?”

“..Wun, I was just wondering how that would be useful?”

“Gwine, think carefully about it. I think it would be extremely useful. For example, if you caught a glimpse of someone that seemed to be Japanese in the town. If Al-san can use the spell he just mentioned there then he can tell if they’re a reincarnated person without even being noticed by them. This advantage is big. It’s an unpleasant way of putting it and I don’t want you to take it the wrong way but before the other side even notices you could grasp their weakness if possible and start surrounding them before they know it. If you can do that then even if they refuse negotiations it’s possible they’d be forced to become allies. After all there’s no guarantee everyone will sympathize with Al-san, I’m sure there’s cases where people normally want to do their jobs or live with their families as well. It would be big if we could make people like those into allies.”

Toris said. And then, Bel continues to open her mouth.

“Since the two of us have already made our decisions, it’s a bit late to be saying anything at this point but rather than grasping the other persons weaknesses, I’m sure we can find things that would be of merit to them and get them to become our allies. It’s big that we can find merits that are tailored closer to the interests of the other person as well. Of course, even if the other person isn’t a reincarnated person it’s big that we can find out their name and family ahead of time as well.”

Next, even Ralpa added on as well.

“If you can see monsters as well then it could be convenient..like special skills. Since magic didn’t work on that {golem} from the other day..”

Zenom says while his arms are still crossed.

“..However, even if you can make a spell like that, we can’t tell anyone about it. I’m sure anyone would dislike knowing you can use {Status Open} freely on anyone at anytime. Just thinking about it is creepy.”

“That’s true.”

I make a bitter smile while replying.

“However, please rest easy, Zenom. I don’t think it would be so easy to use right and left. It’s just my guess but I feel like it would use a considerably amount of mana. Even if I can do it I don’t think it’s something I could use a number of times. It feels like it would be more of a decisive technique. When it comes to using it on monsters in the dungeon unless it’s a considerably powerful enemy it would just be a pointless waste of mana. It might not be all that useful in combat.”

And then,

“I don’t know how much time it will take for me to complete it as well.”

By explaining it not as the Unique Ability, Identify, but rather just a type of spell then I should be able to decrease the amount of evasive feelings they get in regards to it. Furthermore, if I make it so that it uses a considerable amount of mana then even if they ask me to teach it to them they won’t be able to use it. Almost like the spell {Report} to me.

“Sorry but that’s about all of the information I heard from my wife. It would be good if Toris can notice the expansion ability to his Scales.”

I said that and finished things up.

“Now then, the next thing. This morning, I talked with the King. Putting it frankly, there’s a reasonably good story and one that’s not very good at all. I guess I’ll start from the reasonably good story.”

Everyone is focused on me again.

“It seems that fundamentally, it’s {OK} for me to create my own independent country at my own convenience. And, buying a portion of the royal territory..is a weird way of expressing it, but I guess that’s fine, if I can buy some , then fundamentally Rombert Kingdom itself won't attack us if we don't take any hostile actions towards them first. Though they won't save us even if we're attacked by countries other than Rombert."

Ho~ and I heard sighs of relief from everyone.

"That's wonderful isn't it. It's big that one large points of grief has disappeared!"

Toris said. That's certainly true.

"Ah, that's right. However..I was beaten, after all that old man King isn't an ordinary guy."

After I said that and everyone leaned forward a bit.

"From here on is the news that isn't very good. Like I just said, buying some of the royal territory from the King is fine itself. Though it might be considerably smaller than the edge of the East like Count Rinflait's territory but it's not a territory as barren as there. Or rather, it would be fine to say the land itself is quite fertile. However, there's several large problems. For starters, the problem of money..It's 10,000,000,000 Z. Otherwise handing over a useful magic tool that rivals that amount."

".."

I'm sure they had somewhat predicted it. It's for that reason that we're still tirelessly exploring the dungeon.

"The next problem is the fact that it's a territory in the Dirt Plains."

""Eeehh!!?"""

That's only obvious.

"That's right. It's common knowledge but there's conflicts with Devas Kingdom there all the time. It seems fine if we don't take into consideration attacks from the Rombert side but I'm sure things won't go that way with Devas. And then, the problem that is inclusive of that. Bel and Zulu were born in Devas. Zulu is fine, but Bel, it might be possible you would have to cross swords with people from your own country. Or rather, I'm definitely sure Devas would try to lay a hand on us so it's not just a matter of possibility. If it comes to that Bel, can you fight? It will be a death match to protect our land. Depending on the case since the Koloil family is a Sub-Baron they might participate in the attack.”

I said while making a sour face, and everyone, was looking at Bel’s face. Gwine is looking at Bel quite worried. However, only Toris isn’t looking at Bel and is standing together with her looking at me.

“Al-san. When I turn 20 years old I intend to marry Toris. If it comes to that then I won’t be Bernadette.Koloil but Bernadette.Karlstalan. And I won’t be the second daughter of a sub-Baron but I will be the first wife of Count Kalstalan in the country that Al-san makes. No, the Kalstalan family that Toris leads in our new kingdom will aim to be a Marquis, so I’ll become the first wife of Marquis Kalstalan. If the Sub-Baron Koloil of Devas Kingdom offers their allegiance to us then I’d like to accept them but if that’s not the case then that would make them invaders. What is there to worry about a Marquis of the Kingdom fighting against some invaders?”

I was worrying about whether you could separate things inside of you. First wife (candidate).

However, you sure are intense. Somehow I’m a bit worried about Toris, but Toris is standing composed next to Bel.

After hearing Bel’s declaration starting with Zenom, Ralpa and Gwine were all dumbfounded.

However, I’ve certainly been shown the resolve of you, you two. Someday prove it to me.

“..That is..excuse me on that. Sorry..forgive me.”

I’ll definitely offer you some good conditions.

“..Fu~ Since Bel and Toris are saying that then I guess there’s no grief on that end. However, it’s very possible that it will come down to some serious conflicts. Honestly speaking..I have to question whether the Dirt Plains is really a good choice..It’s not like I’ve actually seen it after all.”

By the way, since you’re saying first wife does that mean you’re resolved for second or third wives? you. You’re seriously intense.

Ah, I see. I forgot to mention it. Maybe because there was this, she gave up and was saying things like first wife?

“And then, sorry, I forgot to mention it. It seems that when it’s between reincarnated people even if they’re different races they can have children easier than normally. My wife..Lilus mentioned it. It seems she saw several pairs of them as well.”

Bel and Toris made surprised expressions while exchanging glances and smiled.

I need to make sure to properly mention it later. Don’t forget to use condoms...

After that, we all got into a debate about whether the Dirt Plains were better, or the East is better as our conversation continued late into the night.

Chapter 136: Bracelet

Year 7444, Month 6, Day 1

The emergency use pouches that Zulu purchased were the type of you put on your waist in other words {Waist Pouches}. If you swing the pocket of the pouch around to your back then while you won't be able to put much into it, I'm sure it won't get in the way either. From now on whenever we're training we'll make sure to keep this pouch on as well.

And, it's an important point but we were all greatly reflecting on things in regards to the incident this time.

That is the importance of a shield.

If we had a shield even if taking on the attacks of that Franken were impossible, we might have been able to deflect them. Up until now since I've always taken into consideration the usage of weapons I didn't take shields into consideration much. One of the causes for that is because I just end up freezing the lower bodies of most monsters in ice.

Since we've come across such a high-quality large round shield in good condition we took from {Bright Blade}. The largest one took a direct hit from my {Chain Lightning} and it was fused to the left hand gauntlet of the guy holding it so we had to throw it away so the only one remaining was this 50 cm in diameter round shield. I'm sure we should make good use of this.

And, while I say that even the shield requires a considerable amount of training to use.

Among our current members the only ones who have received any sort of real combat training is me, Zenom, Toris, Bel, and Zulu.

In regards to usage of the shield we've all learned a little bit but as a result of our practice matches the one who was able to make the most technical use of it was Bel.

Thanks to how high my physical abilities are I was able to use it somewhat but it hurts being unable to use my bayonet and even if I switched it to the long sword since both of my hands are sealed the neck is that I can't use magic anymore.

It's not particularly that I definitely can't use magic without my hands open but if I point the palm of my hand or tip of my finger I can use it with far less concentration requires, so I want to make it so I can open up one of my hands easily when needed. It was more or less similar for the other three as well but among them Toris was the one who was comparatively decent.

Bel's main weapon is the bow so she's out the question.

Even Toris is a comparatively decent possibility is just comparatively decent. Since Zenom and Zulu rely heavily on their physiques and strength, in some meanings it felt like they were several levels inferior.

In the first place Zulu uses the two-handed sword and while Zenom uses a one-handed axe, he often swings it with both hands to land powerful blows. Even if I look around at the other members the only one who is completely using a one-handed weapon is Angela.

And if we mention that Angela, she's never tried using the shield up until now.

As a result of discussing it with Zenom and we came to the conclusion that it would be faster to purchase a combat slave who can use the shield.

However, I wonder if there's a combat slave who's learned how to use the shield?

If it was a former soldier like Zulu then I guess it's not impossible...

While I've told "Slave Store, Ronlail" to get into contact with me at anytime if they get their hands on slaves who were taken prison during war, up until whenever she's gotten stock of them, it's always been at a timing we were in the dungeon so I wasn't able to purchase them. I thought of the possibility of reserving one but when it comes to reservations it would be bad if I don't buy them regardless of what kind of person it is. If I'm going to buy one then I want to choose and see their skill first.

Hmn, I wonder what we should do about this...

However, I want person capable of using the shield. If we had someone who was completely devoted to defense then we could make even better use of our formations. If we at least had a person who can last against that Franken for a couple dozen seconds, without taking any major injuries...

Evading all of it's attacks is a considerably unreasonable demand. Even I who specializes at evading the opponents attacks can't continue to dodge them for very long while standing right front of it. There's no helping taking large steps back or jumping to the side. There's no way to fit cooperation with others into that.

It had enough physical strength to send even Zuulu flying. Even if it's impossible to receive they might be able to endure it by deflecting them. If it was a large shield then either taking it while the arm is still drawn back before it reaches it's maximum power or deflecting are the only ways I can think of, so it's probably unreasonable to try and stop it in one position without letting it move very much.

.....

Year 7444, Month 6, Day 2

For the time being, I stated my wishes of a war combat slave who can make use of a large shield to the madam of "Slave Store, Ronslail". After hearing that the madam said "You make difficult requests as usual.." with a troubled smile but I can't compromise on that end.

I said it would be fine even if they were a bit expensive while leaving, "Slave Store, Ronslail".

We don't have anyone who can use the shield but just because that's the case we can't neglect exploring the dungeon.

We made orders to have the metal portions of the two suits of banded-mail we got from {Bright Blade} and have those reattached to the leather armor of Toris and Zulu, I also had them use some of the metal rings to change Zenom's leather armor into ring-mail as well. Due to problems in terms of physique if we were to have the other members armor modified as well it would require some major modifications so they couldn't be helped. The leather ring-mail would have been fine for Gwine as well but since there was also the problem of stamina and she disliked the idea of heavy armor as well.

In regards to weapons the high-quality long sword went to Toris and the high-quality short sword believed to have been used by the leader Demitoridas went to Bel.

There was also what seemed to be a pretty high-quality spear as well but it was a bit too long for Gwine to use. Since it couldn't be helped we decided to cut the handle of the spear a bit shorter. Angela used one of the broad swords. Furthermore, there were four high-quality bows but since Bel preferred the one she was used to we decided to sell all of those. She gratefully accepted the arrows though.

We don't have much to do during the week until the armor is complete. Since we can't afford to just play around during that period we were massacring monsters on the 1st floor everyday.

.....

Year 7444, Month 6, Day 30

It's almost summer. It's been about a month since Miduchi and I split up.

I wonder if she's already reached her home town?

I can always feel her existence in a direction to the Southeast.

No news is the proof of good news.

Come to think of it we found our first magic tool when we were in the dungeon the other day.

It was something like a large-scale stove that a ramen or Chinese restaurant might use in my previous life.

However, it only ended up selling for 3,000,000 Z.

It seems that the one who bought it was the ultra high-class restaurant in the capital "Rokiddo". It's certainly a good price for a magic tool. I don't want just a simple magic tool but an article of magic {Magic Item}.

.....

Year 7444, Month 7, Day 18

Today, finally we found a magic tool with a decently high value.

In an altar room on the 5th floor we killed off the {Gargoyles} same as usual including the summoned boss 13 {Orkish Ghouls} and got our hands on it. It was just the right item for being in the middle of summer right now. The {Refrigerator} we discovered was just like the two-door type that can hold about 100 liters from our past life. Obviously the doors is just an expression and there was no {Freezer} included in it. There area on the top where the {Freezer} normally would be was a place to put magic stones inside.

【Refrigerator】
【Beech Wood.Iron】
【State: Good】
【Manufacture Date: 18/7/7444】
【Value: 12800000】
【Endurance: 492】
【Ability: Internal Temperature 4 Degrees;1489 value/1 day】
【Effect: Able to refrigerate goods stored inside for preservation. No humidity control function.】

Oou! 【Value: 12800000】!
It's even a bit higher in value than the magic stone of that eyeball bastard. I wonder how much it will sell for? I brought it into a major company(Since it's a company managed by Duke Sandak, I can relax a bit since it's from my mother's family) in the capital right away. I doubt I can sell it through Greed Company. After all I don't have any customers.

Surprisingly there was a buyer for it the next day. The sale price was 150,000,000 Z. Just as we decided from the start, even taking away the companies 15% margin for acting as the middleman that's 127,500,000 Z. Even if we take off the luxury tax of 10% it's revenue of 115,000,000 Z. If I also splurge on the bonuses for the members close to 100,000,000 Z remains.

I couldn't help but think of doing some partying at the "Emerald Duke Club Reception Hall" but since I remembered Miduchi I stopped with it. However, there's some idiots in the world. They paid more than the value in money for it. Well, right now it's summer after all, since there's nothing like a balance between supply and demand so I guess it's not all that strange?

However, in order to continue using this {Refrigerator} it costs 15,000 Z or so per day in magic stones?

I wonder what in the world kind of rich person bought it?

I'm sure it's a high ranking noble, but as expected they're amazing.

.....

Year 7444, Month 8, Day 10

After killing the {Cave Great Boar} that was summoned in an altar room on the 6th floor and this time what came out was a {Freezer}. I think our luck is improving recently.

【Freezer】

【Beech Wood.Iron】

【State: Good】

【Manufacture Date: 10/8/7444】

【Value: 16000000】

【Endurance: 391】

【Ability: Internal Temperature Minus 12 Degrees;2630 value/1 day】

【Effect: Able to freeze goods stored inside for preservation. No humidity control function.】

Come to think of it the {Refrigerator} we obtained the other day had a manufacture date on the same date we found it as well. I wonder what in the world that means. I thought about it, but I can't help but think that the dungeon is making them. It doesn't particularly matter though.

This time just like last time I brought it into the major company managed by Duke Sandak. And then, just like last time I received notice the next day that it was sold. It seems it sold for 200,000,000 Z. Even though it eats more magic stones than the {Refrigerator}, the places that have money really have it. Even after paying taxes I still have over 150,000,000 Z. It's revenue that largely exceeds 130,000,000 Z even after paying out bonuses.

Miduchi still hasn't come back yet.

I can still feel her presence from the Southeast so I know she's doing well. Since it should take close to one month for a one-way trip, it's very possible she isn't using a horse on the trip back as well. I'm sure it'll take at least one more month and there's probably quite a few things she needs to do in her home town as well. Particularly there's the condition her older brother is in. It might be best to look at it as taking a year or so.

.....

Year 7444, Month 8, Day 15

Today is O-Bon and the anniversary of the end of the war. It's only obvious but no one is paying any mind to it.

I forgot about it as well until I was talking with Toris while we were camping in the teleport room on the 3rd floor the dungeon and he mentioned it.

Incidentally, we still haven't cleared through the 6th floor of the dungeon. However, I think we've explored about 60% of the whole?

Recently when I talk together with Toris just the two of us, it's often complaints about Bel(When I talk to Bel with just the two of us she complains about Toris. I'm not the parents of you two though).

Since it was almost entirely close to speaking fondly about Bel my stomach was full but it's good that it seems things are going pretty well between the two of them. While they say quite a bit the relationship between them is extremely good. Even though I say that since they still look 16, in my eyes it still just appears pleasant.

Rather than that what I'm troubled over is Gwine. It seems she gets distracted extremely easily and she's always wandering from here and there. I don't know if it's because she's originally Japanese but she doesn't seem to pay too much mind to the race of the other person either. Dwarves, Humans, Elves, Laios, Tiger-man, Wolf-people, her range of interest is extremely wide. If you were to ask it seems she particularly likes men with large builds. As expected it seems she's showing some restraint in regards to Toris and Zulu but the moment she sees an adventurer from a different party that's a bit good looking she starts squealing over them.

It seems that she's worried over her beard that's been growing but either she's completely gotten used to it or given up on it, recently she doesn't pay any mind to it. Since she was discussing with Zenom about methods of trimming her beard and tools for it, she even seems to be interested. Zenom didn't seem all that dissatisfied in teaching her either so he discussed quite a bit with her it seems.

According to Zenom, it was late for Gwine's beard to start growing and she looks young compared to the average female dwarf. Furthermore, invitations from the top team organized entirely of dwarves {Gehenna Flare} are considerably intense, she's completely refusing them but she's seen as an idol for the members of {Gehenna Flare} and occasionally goes drinking on their wallets. Incidentally, it seems her recent favorite is one of the dwarves who's close to 30 from {Gehenna Flare} that has a build larger than the average dwarf.

I thought there might be some developments between Angela and Giberuti after that but it somehow seems she doesn't have any interest. She's indifferently spending her daily life. However, she occasionally comes to receive condoms so it seems she's getting a decent amount of release.

Giberuti is as cheerful as usual and now he's completely taken up the position as the mood maker of the party. The food he makes is popular with everyone and even though he's boiling, baking, and frying the food for everyone in the same pots and pans, it seems he's changing the seasonings vaguely to match each of our tastes.

It appears that he doesn't have the traits of wastefully spending his wages much as well so I can see him preparing seasonings on his own quite a bit as well. Also, his skill at massages has increased and he's finally reached Zulu's previous skill. It's true he's not useful in terms of combat but while it's only been about four months since he joined us he's already becoming an indispensable member.

It seems things are going reasonably well between Zulu and the crimson haired Laios waitress at "Murowa".

Around noon on a day off the other day, I saw the two of them flirting under a tree in a vacant lot while I was walking around Baldukk. If he says he wants to marry her then I wonder if I'll have to buy that sister? Well, I'm sure she's cheap so it's fine though.

Ralpa is..Well I guess it doesn't matter.
She's the same as usual.

She sticks with Gwine and goes drinking with {Gehenna Flare} on their wallet, goes drinking with Angela, goes drinking with Zenom, drinking with Toris, drinking with Bel, Drinking with Giberuti, drinking with me, cheerfully drinking with random strangers, she's really always drinking.

I don't know if this is one of her talents but I've almost never seen her paying money for her own drinks. Only Zulu since it seems he doesn't drink. However, this girl, I don't think the amount itself is all that much. Whenever she drinks she's always drinking beer or things with a low alcohol level and almost never drinks things like vodka. At the very least she doesn't make it to the point of drunkenness where she throws up. The only time she drinks that is when she's with me. It's probably because I can use {Neutralize Poison}.

Furthermore, excluding Zenom and Giberuti before I realized it everyone has started running together with me.

Zulu and Angela used to do it in shifts of one day each but now they both do it everyday as well.

Even yesterday we were all running around the outer crater of Baldukk. By the way this summer, my Endurance increased by 1.

.....

Year 7444, Month 8, Day 18

We clear through the 4th and 5th floors and setup camp in the teleport room of the 5th floor. Even now the only ones who are using this room on a frequent basis is us {Slaughterers}. Very rarely some of the top teams show their faces but according to Giberuti who's watching our bags they immediately teleport to the surface.

Since we're getting our hands on some decent magic tools and camping in the teleport room on the 5th floor, it's already known throughout Baldukk's adventurers that we're challenging the 6th floor. In both name and reality we're considered a top team. If we can find a proper {Magic Item} then I'm sure the people complaining would disappear as well. Though no one has ever complained to me.

In preparation for exploration of the 6th floor tomorrow, we passed through the 4th and 5th floors today and in order to relax we ate some meals and got a massage to ease our muscles. Just in case we still keep lookout in shifts the same as usual to remain cautious. Today, I'm on shift together with Gwine.

"Gwine, recently it seems you're quite fond of your beard."

"Eh? Yeah, somehow at first I hated it but recently I know it already can't be helped and I've started to think that it isn't half bad like this either. Just, since it still hasn't properly grown out it's a weakness that it's difficult to play with."

Gwine laughed while saying that. It's only obvious that female dwarves grow beards but I still feel something is a bit off about a Japanese girl growing a beard on her face.

"Hmn, what kind of shape of beard do you want to make it?"

"I guess, recently what's been popular is the fork. I want to try making the fork as well."

The fork is fundamentally where they don't shave from the bottom of the chin and let it grow, and when it gotten to a decent length you split it up with some sticks. It seems it's fine to have or not have sideburns and a mustache as well. The major one is where it's split in two in the center of the jaw but there's quite a few people using even more sticks as well. But, if it doesn't at least have a length of 10 cm or so it's not very cool. Since currently Gwine has only just reached a length of about 5 cm the fork is too early for her.

"Yeah, that huh? The mistress of the leather artisan was doing? Hers was split into four."

"Yeah, that's right. If it grows out to that length then I could play with it everyday."

Eh? Since beards are stiff compared to hair I thought it was almost fixed in the form. Is that incorrect?

It seems she noticed my strange expression, Gwine,

"Ah, it's true that the beard is stiffer than hair itself but there's some medicine to make it softer. Among dwarves it's often used to change the form of our beards. I had Zenom-san teach me a good store as well."

said that and caressed her beard. Come to think of it Zenom changed the shape of his beard this winter. Up until now he's just left it growing without shaving it at all but now he's shaving above and to the sides of his mouth. Though the length below the jaw itself hasn't changed at all but it seems to have a bit of waves like a perm. I thought it was a considerably cool looking beard that suits Zenom.

“Hey~ is it fine if I touch it a bit?”

“Eh? It’s fine, please do.”

I tried touching the beard growing out of Gwine’s jaw. It’s certainly stiff but even then it’s the beard of a woman. It feels a bit softer. Hohou~ It’s still straight hair but it’s true that you could play with this in various fashions once it gets longer. Maybe I’ll grow one out when I get a bit older as well. I used my other hand to touch my own jaw and simultaneously confirmed that it still hasn’t grown at all.

.....

Year 7444, Month 8, Day 19

Starting today we’re stepping foot in order to explore the remaining areas on the 6th floor. Just as usual, it takes quite a bit of time but we carefully advance forward. We pass through several rooms, just as I started to feel disappointed there was no altar room again today, just as I hoped we arrived at an altar room. It might just be my imagination but it feels larger than the usual boss rooms.

I can confirm some gargoyle statues on the other side of the altar in the center of the room. I instruct Angela and Zulu who was wearing his banded-mail charge in at the front, the remaining members will split up the formation to fight the summoned boss.

On the right flank there’s Zulu and Angela and the left flank there’s Zenom, Toris and Ralpa in front, Gwine protecting the middle. Bel and I are watching over and supporting with spells from the back.

In order to be extra careful I bury the gargoyles up to their heads in dirt. A portion of it I make into stairs for Zulu and Angela to charge in easier. And, I make sure that I can freeze things at any time.

Now then, it’s finally time to start combat.

Zulu and Angela energetically take off running in order to mow down the heads of the gargoyles. And Zenom, Toris, and Ralpa run towards the altar trying not to be left behind. Just a bit later than them Gwine takes off with her spear. I immediately used water magic to create some water while stretching it out so it's not in the way, after it arrives at the altar I start kneading in some fire magic mana to change it to ice and..What is that?

Suddenly something like a stalagmite was summoned in front of the altar. I don't think it can move but in any case to prevent it from moving I froze about 1m or so of it in ice.

It looks like a stalagmite in the shape of a bullet with a thickness of about 1m and height of about 2.5m. And, it was quickly established that it's not just a normal stalagmite. The white eye looking portion about 2m up on it suddenly opened a single large eye and glared at us. And about 70–80 cm below that around the border of where the ice was a large mouth appeared.

In any case it's an opponent we've seen for the first time.

“Don't let your guards down!”

And I call out to everyone before using Identify.

【

【Asexual/1/6/7328.Yellow Hand Roper】

【State: Good】

【Age: 116 Years Old】

【Level: 16】

【HP: 264 MP: 32(32)】

【Strength: 35】

【Speed: 1】

【Dexterity: 84】

【Endurance: 39】

【Special Skill: Drain: Strength】

【Special Skill: Entangle】

【Special Skill: Paralyze】

【Special Skill: Immune.Electricity】

【Special Skill: Half-Damage.From.Temperature】

Uho. This one is the dangerous type as well. And, shortly after I thought that, unexpectedly the stalagmite stretched out eight tentacle like things like thin ropes out from the middle of it's body of which four each mowed down Zenom and Toris. If it's something as thin as that then I doubt it will do much damage.

However, the two of them who were whipped let out something like groaning voices of “Uo!!?” “Gumu!!?” and fainted on the spot.

Is it paralysis!?

“Toris!”

I can hear Bel’s scream. And immediately to my side the sound of a bowstring ringing.

However, of all things! The arrow was slapped down by the tentacles flying midway towards the stalagmite.

It seems like Ralpa was somehow able to dodge the tentacles and..No, she didn’t just skillfully dodge the tentacle but she even succeeded in smashing her {tomahawk} into it. “Gao~n!” a scream like that came from the mouth of the stalagmite. Ralpa immediately rolled to try and make some distance.

Following that Gwine stabbed into the center of the stalagmite with her spear.

I’ll finish things my specialty {Lightning Bolt} as we...【Special Skill: Immune.Electricity】?!? Shit! I cancel the spell and send five {Stone Javelin} flying. Bel’s already pulled a new arrow out of her quiver and is preparing to fire it.

“Bel! Switch to magic!”

I said that without enough leeway to look in Zulu and Angela’s direct while firing off some stone javelins.

If I look closely the base of the tentacles that is the bullet shaped stalagmite were originally all over the place but now they’ve moved across the surface and all eight of them are facing over here.

With a number of thuds my stone javelins stab into the stalagmite. It’s HP cut past half. However,

“aaa!!”

While making a voice like that the tentacles captured Gwine! This is bad. It would be extremely troublesome if she was used as a shield.

““Gwine!””

Ralpa and Bel yelled at the same time.

I prepare my bayonet while running towards Gwine at full speed.

In any case I need to cut off the tentacles and free Gwine.

Simultaneously I made five more {Stone Javelins} and sent them flying.

Just to my side a {Flame Arrow} that Bel seems to have fired passed by me.

Wha!?

Another new eight tentacles stretched out from the stalagmite and seemed to have cooperated with the original eight tentacles to smack down all of the stone javelins.

However, the {Flame Arrow} luckily managed to stab into it's body.

"Uaaa!!"

I heard Ralpa's voice. It can't be, you better not have been caught as well right!?

I finish cutting off the two tentacles that were restricting Gwine while yelling "Fall back!" and this time I start using fire magic to freeze the stalagmite.

Bakin! with a sound like that it seems I succeeded in freezing the entirety of the stalagmite.

However, I was only able to relax for a moment,

"No~!!!"

The sound of Ralpa's screams echoed out. It seems it can still freely move the tentacles sticking out of the ice.

In the corner of my sight the tentacles have wrapped around Ralpa's right leg and lifted her upside down.

Shit!

I run towards Ralpa while cutting down two tentacles outside of the ice. Simultaneously I used {Wind Cutter} cut off a different one. There's still another 10 more?

"Ral!"

I heard Angela's voice. In other words they must have finished things with the gargoyles.

"Oaahh~!!"

I cut down another two tentacles while yelling and continue running towards Ralpa.

I guess Ralpa still hasn't been paralyzed, she has four tentacles wrapped around both arms and legs and she's flipped upside down but she's struggling. She's got an expression of terror on her face and is letting out a loud voice with no meaning.

Angela and Zulu are cutting their way towards Ralpa in a different direction from me.

However, it seems that Zulu wasn't able to evade an attack from the tentacles so he took it to the face and appears to have been paralyzed as he fell to the ground.

"Maruso! Behind you!"

Bel's shout ends up futile, Angela was paralyzed as well by the same tentacle that paralyzed Zulu as she collapses. However, during that period Angela cut down tentacle as well.

It seems that the tentacles that can paralyze are already decided.

"Al-san!"

I heard Gwine's voice. Simultaneously a tentacle wrapped around my left leg. I somehow managed to succeed in cutting it off just before being pulled away. Since my posture had collapsed I fell just like that and while rolling on the ground I used {Wind Cutter Missile} to cut down one more.

I quickly jumped back up and started running towards Ralpa again. Other than the four restraining Ralpa there should be two more tentacles freely moving around..another tentacle came flying at me from the flank after I got up. I somehow managed to evade it but I wasn't able to cut it off. My posture ended up collapsing and I ended up having to roll across the ground again.

Bel ran past my side.

It was in that moment, I suddenly noticed I could hear a strange noise, so I looked over there and was shocked.

The stalagmite had grown new tentacles inside of the ice and seemed to be shaving away at the ice from the inside of it. There's not a single bubble, it's supposed to be highly transparency ice but around midway through where the tentacles grew it's turned white and muddy. It seems even be using the mouth-like thing.

This thing, is shaving away at and eating the ice from the inside!

I need to hurry!

After I stood up I saw Bel get paralyzed and fall in front of me. There's a tentacle wrapped around Bel's neck and it seems a bit of the tip of that had entered her mouth. In a panic I cut it off and pulled the tentacle out.

Since her eyes are moving it seems she really is just paralyzed. Ah, it would have been best if I made everyone wear helmets. Whether it be the shield or the helmet, defense is important. The only place on my body where bare skin is visible is my face. I'm sure unless I take a hit from the tentacles here it can't paralyze me.

"nn!!"

I heard Ralph's voice. And I saw her body go flaccid. Shit, even she was paralyzed.

It seems that Ralph was paralyzed by the tentacle that entered from the side of her leather armor and below her clothes.

However, your tentacles are just the four that you had wrapped around Ralph and the one you used to paralyze her.

Once again I use {Wind Cutter Missile} to make five war heads and run off. Ralph was released and dropped. If it was just like that she would have fallen on the ground head first but I somehow managed to catch her in the last moment. There's a warm liquid coming from Ralph's crotch. I'm sure it was terrifying.

Seeing Ralph I lost control of my {Wind Cutter Missiles} and they fly off somewhere but this should already be fine. The tentacle that paralyzed Ralpa and aimed for my face when I was rolling on the ground came flying towards me. It sure is an idiot. I used Ralpa's body that I was holding as a shield to block the attack from the paralyzing tentacle and used {Wind Cutter Missile} once more to cut down the remaining five tentacles.

"Gwine! Move everyone far away!"

I said that and used {Remove Paralyze} on Zulu. In a few seconds the magic activated and after Zulu woke up I told him the same thing.

I splashed some water over Ralpa with water magic and used the same {Remove Paralyze} on her, and next I used the spell on Bel and then Angela as well. Since Toris and Zenom are far I'll put them off.

Now then, I put my bayonet on my shoulder and turned around to face the stalagmite that's trying to eat it's way out of the ice from the inside and then pointed both of my hands at it. The moment it opens a hole I should be able to finish it off by using spells consecutively there.

.....

After finishing off the stalagmite, I used the spell {Remove Paralyze} on Zenom and Toris as well and then I looked up at the small shrine on the altar. There's something inside of it. I immediately reached out and grabbed that while using 【Identify】. Ah, for the time being I've already finished identifying all of the stalagmites special skills. 【Special Skill: Drain: Strength】 seems to cut the victims Strength in half for a period of time equal to the users level. 【Special Skill: Half-Damage.From.Temperature】 seems to be an ability that halves the damage from ice and fire. I thought that the attacks from the ground other than the paralyze were particularly dangerous because of Drain: Strength but it seems they'll somehow recover in less than a day.

【Bracelet.Of.Dead.Body.To.Water】 【Gold】 【Condition: Good】
【Manufacture Date: 19/8/7444】
【Value: 800000】
【Endurance: 20】

【A bracelet with water and void magic mana infused in it.】

【Once a day the magic water conversion can be used. However the target is limited to corpses of living creatures. There's no limit to the quantity that can be decomposed at once but the volume is limited to a total of 10m^3 .】

On the surface of the bracelet “nuhireki” is written in the {Common Language}. And it has an incredibly delicate relief carved into it. The relief has a person standing, a person laying on the ground, and next to that there's the bracelet with a pitcher overflowing with water lined up.

Eh? This is..I know this.

..I guess the difference is there's no restrictions on it huh? Also, the speed it refills with mana is 10 times faster.

“Al, what is that?”

Zenom asks.

“This, is something I already know about. It's a {Magic Item} that lets you change corpses to water.”

“Ho~? So it's a {Magic Item}! Isn't that good!”

The words {Magic Item} ran through the party. However, it doesn't have a very high value at all right. It's value is only about 8,000,000 Z (8 gold coins)... No, it's certainly a lot of money though.

While we were dissecting the stalagmite in order to find the magic stones from an organ like the gizzard two rubies the size of thumbs and three agates rolled out. All five of them were spheres.

I thought of using the mana in the bracelet to change the remaining corpse to water and called it an experiment. Rather than me using it someone who can't use magic is more suitable. I handed the bracelet to Zenom, had him put it on his arm, and touch the corpse while saying “nuhireki”. In the blink of an eye the corpse turned to water. Though I have no intention of drinking it.

This, I wonder how much it will sell for?

Author's note: Status.

【Bernadette.Koloil/4/4/7429 】

【Female/14/2/7428 ▪ Rabbit-People ▪ Sub-Baron Koloil Family Second Daughter】

【Status: Normal】

【Age: 16 Years Old】

【Level: 13】

【HP: 126(126) MP: 84(84)】

【Strength: 18】

【Speed: 27】

【Dexterity: 19】

【Endurance: 18】

【Unique Ability: Shooting Intuition(MAX)】

【Special Ability: Earth Magic(Lv.3)】

【Special Ability: Water Magic(Lv.3)】

【Special Ability: Fire Magic(Lv.3)】

【Special Ability: Void Magic(Lv.4)】

【Experience: 338942(350000)】

【Gulinel.Akdam/2/7/7429 】

【Female/14/2/7428 ▪ Dwarf ▪ Rombert Kingdom Duke Rombert Territory Registered Free Person】

【Status: Normal】

【Age: 16 Years Old】

【Level: 12】

【HP: 132(132) MP: 28(28)】

【Strength: 23】

【Speed: 15】

【Dexterity: 27】

【Endurance: 22】

【Unique Ability Mapping (MAX)】

【Special Ability: WInd Magic(Lv.2)】

【Special Ability: Fire Magic(Lv.2)】

【Special Ability: Void Magic(Lv.3)】

【Special Ability: Infrared Vision】

【Experience: 266235(270000)】

【Torkelis.Kalstalan/13/5/7429 】

【Male/14/2/7428 · Elf · Viscount Kalstalan Family Third Son】

【Status: Normal】

【Age: 16 Years Old】

【Level: 13】

【HP: 130(130) MP: 43(43)】

【Strength: 19】

【Speed: 25】

【Dexterity: 22】

【Endurance: 20】

【Unique Ability: Scale (MAX)】

【Special Ability: Earth Magic(Lv.2)】

【Special Ability: Water Magic(Lv.2)】

【Special Ability: Wind Magic(Lv.2)】

【Special Ability: Void Magic(Lv.3)】

【Special Ability: Infrared Vision】

【Experience: 278194(350000)】

【Ralpha.Firefreed/25/12/7429】

【Female/14/2/7428 · Human · Firefreed Family Eldest Daughter】

【Status: Normal】

【Age: 16 Years Old】

【Level: 14】

【HP: 139(139) MP: 21(21)】

【Strength: 20】

【Speed: 25】

【Dexterity: 23】

【Endurance: 22】

【Unique Ability: Spatial Understanding (Lv.8)】

【Special Ability: Earth Magic (Lv. 3)】

【Special Ability: Fire Magic (Lv. 3)】

【Special Ability: Void Magic (Lv. 4)】

【Experience: 367256(450000)】

【Zenom.Firefreed/5/4/7416】

【Male/19/1/7402 · Dwarf · Firefreed Family Head】

【Condition: Good】

【Age: 42 Years Old】

【Level: 18】

【HP: 125(125) MP: 9(9)】

【Strength: 25】

【Agility: 10】

【Dexterity: 28】

【Endurance: 22】

【Special Skill: Infrared Eyesight】

【Special skill: Small Magic】

【Experience: 820269(950000)】

*Some decreases due to aging

【Dadino.Zulu/3/6/7442 Dadino.Zulu/20/7/7422 】

【Male/24/5/7421 ▪ Lion-People Race ▪ Viscount Greed Family Owned Slave】

【Status: Normal】

【Age: 24 Years Old】

【Level: 14】

【HP: 148(148) MP: 5(5)】

【Strength: 26】

【Speed: 25】

【Dexterity: 14】

【Endurance: 24】

【Special Ability: Small Magic】

【Special Ability: Instant Speed】

【Special Ability: Night Vision】

【Experience: 361099(450000)】

*Some increases due to age

【Maruso.Angela/15/8/7442 Maruso.Angela/12/8/7422 】

【Female/14/9/7422 ▪ Dog-People Race ▪ Viscount Greed Family Owned Slave】

【Status: Normal】

【Age: 23 Years Old】

【Level: 13】

【HP: 120(120) MP: 5(5)】

【Strength: 17】

【Speed: 25】

【Dexterity: 13】

【Endurance: 19】

【Special Ability: Small Magic】

【Special Ability: Super Sense of Smell】

【Experience: 329231(350000)】

【Alan.Greed/5/3/7429】

【Male/14/2/7428 ▪ Human ▪ Viscount Greed Family Second Son】

【Status: Normal】

【Age: 16 Years Old】

【Level: 21】

【HP: 180(180) MP: 7442(7442)】

【Strength: 29】

【Speed: 39】

【Dexterity: 27】

【Endurance: 30】

【Unique Ability: Identify (MAX)】

【Unique Ability: Gift of Natural Talent (MAX)】

【Special Ability: Earth Magic (MAX)】

【Special Ability: Water Magic (MAX)】

【Special Ability: Fire Magic (Lv. 8)】

【Special Ability: Wind Magic (MAX)】

【Special Ability: Void Magic (MAX)】

【Experience: 1419825(1430000)】

【Lorence.Giberuti/5/5/7444 Lorence.Giberuti/23/10/7419】

【Male/1/9/7418 ▪ Dog-People Race ▪ Viscount Greed Family Owned Slave】

【Status: Normal】

【Age: 26 Years Old】

【Level: 4】

【HP: 104(104) MP: 6(6)】

【Strength: 15】

【Speed: 18】

【Dexterity: 10】

【Endurance: 15】

【Special Ability: Small Magic】

【Special Ability: Super Sense of Smell】

【Experience: 16246(18000)】

Side Story 22: In the Case of Hikami Kyouji (Age 29 at time of accident)

That day, Hikami was sitting in a seat on the train dazing out the window with his right hand on top of his camera bag left in the seat beside him. Since it was an outgoing train just after noon it wasn't all that crowded and since he was in the front seats the vacancies stood out so his camera bag wasn't in the way. Today after this there's a boring photography job for a supermarket brochure in a studio in the center of the city.

It was good that he managed to find a job as a cameraman of a tiny studio but the exhausting work continued to the point where he didn't even have time to sleep, he finally started to realize that if he doesn't change his occupation it will be difficult to marry the woman he was living with but..that was already five, no six years ago. However, his hobby from the time he was a child intensified, and the pride that he was able to graduate from a specialty school for photography made it difficult to step foot on the adventurer of looking for a new job and occupation. The woman he was living with separated from him soon after that.

Another train passed by in a different direction. The windows shake from the wind pressure and awaken the consciousness that was nodding off, Hikami thought (ah~ even though I'm tired~) and looked around in the car of the train. It's the usual scenery of inside a train. Come to think of it I bought a magazine. It's a monthly camera magazine. I should have put it inside of my camera bag. I open the zipper on the bag and after taking the magazine out and after turning it over I notice an advertisement page. It's a high-class digital camera that was just released last month by a major manufacturer. It seems the lens are compatible with the ones I'm using right now.

(Wun, I want it~ During times like these, if it was the studio of a major company I wonder if they would buy it as a company expense~)

While thinking those sorts of pointless things I try my eyes down on to the advertisement.

And, it was just then that the train seemed to hit the emergency breaks. There was too much inertia against the breaking, Hikami grabbed his precious camera bag right away and ended up plunging into the person who was sitting in the seat next to him. And then, unable to endure the impact he was thrown out of the seat and to the front of the train and...

.....

For a short while after that, Hikami was confused. What in the world happened?

He was able to imagine that something probably ran into the train he was on at that time and it caused an accident but there's no method for him to confirm it. I think this is probably a hospital or something but I can't really tell. The words I can hear from my surroundings is mostly a foreign language and I can't grasp the meaning. While the feelings start to gush forward, he quickly raised a crying voice like a baby.

Once it reaches this point it's difficult to even calm the feelings down. However, soon after raising a crying voice and woman who seems to be a nurse soon came and caressed his head and body while saying something. What was even more unexpected was she picked him up a number of times. Hikami's eyes still couldn't see very well so he was terrified that it was a huge woman with a lot of power.

Soon after he was finally able to realize that he had become a baby and comprehended(not that he was a baby but the fact that a woman was lifting him up) it but he wasn't able to understand at all why in the world he had become a baby and furthermore was surrounded by foreigners.

After that when Hikami was able to come to a bit more of a decision he finally ended up sucking on the breasts of the woman who appeared to be his mother. They were largely swollen breasts but not much milk was coming from them. After sucking one dry he was quickly moved to the next one. After he finished that one he was moved to one more slightly smaller pair of breasts. After drinking from all four of them his stomach was full so he fell asleep right away.

(I wonder why this woman has four breasts?)

Hikami thought that but thanks to that he was able to be raised without starving. There's no reason to complain about it. Though rather than a complaint he just felt it was strange. Come to think of it, I wonder when it was again, in the past there were humans had the remains of multiple breasts, I remembered I had heard that, (so I guess this is that?), and accepted it just like that.

Furthermore, he was able to learn some words that seemed to be his own name. Mamin or Marumin.

.....

There's no glass windows or television. Of course, no electricity as well, the lifestyle with not even any light brought back energy and leeway to Marumin's heart. With no need to be chased around by the boring jobs of the day, how many months did it take for him to realize he had stepped foot into his new life. He was able to understand that and simultaneously he understood that he was reborn in a place that wasn't Earth.

While the people of his family look like humans from a glance, on both sides of the head where there should normally be ears, a bit above that, right, there's ears dropping down almost like those of a Saint Bernard or Retriever and they even have a tail with long thick looking fur. After nervously confirming there was even a similar pair of small ears on his head and something like a tail had even grown out. If he concentrates on his ass a bit and he was able to make it shake a bit as well.

(It's aliens)

His family was a person who seems to be his father and a woman who seems to be his mother, both of their faces appear Western but their ages only seem to be about 20 years old or maybe a bit above that. He also had an older brother and sister who weren't all that distant in age. They're probably children born within a year of another. I guess that means it's a family of five including me. The mother seemed to have a difficult time taking care of three young children but she always makes a happy expression.

It seems the father goes out early in the morning for work and his face can't be seen very often in the afternoon. He comes home late in the evening and after taking dinner, the entire family goes to sleep early. There's almost no amusement, a lifestyle that just barely gets by could be imagine but that might not be all that incorrect.

(Ah, these sorts of things, didn't they call them {slow life}. A lifestyle like this might not be half bad either.)

Of course Marumin's recognition is mistaken (these sorts of things aren't called a slow life) but to Marumin living in a remote region taking part in a daily job of agriculture or fishing is what he thinks is a slow life.

.....

Once the heart gains some leisure then along with that curiosity starts to expand. Marumin though (I wonder how far this planet is from the Earth), or (I wonder if there's any constellations(Though I haven't gone out at night even once so I don't know if there's constellations in the first place) in the sky that I know) these sorts of things. However, rather than those sorts of unimportant questions, he thought he should start with the more pressing questions as well.

I wonder what the people who leave in this area are doing to make a living. Even when I occasionally go outside of the house, I can't see any houses around. It's just densely growing trees. Although, once every couple of days it seems there's a visitor so there should be more houses somewhere nearby. We siblings are brought along naked and left alone inside of the fenced yard, it's not unusual for our mother to leave the house as well. Since the area inside of the fence is about six tatami mats it's plenty for three children to play around.

About one year has passed since Marumin was born. He's figured out his father's job already. It's a lumberjack. He cuts down trees in the forest, removes the branches, and then it seems he sends them down the river as lumber. In addition to cutting down trees it seems there's also materials for fragrant wood so he occasionally searches for high value branches as well. I guess this is something like a large bonus? He's also figured out that a village isn't too far away. When his mother is in a hurry taking into consideration the round trip time and it's at best 2 Km away. It's like there's something like paved roads so it might be even closer though.

Since there's not many chances to hear conversation he isn't making much progress with learning the language but he's started to understand over half of the details of the conversations of his father and mother.

Once day, a horse pulling a carriage came along. The horse always comes within the fence that the children are left in and packs something into the carriage. It seems it's the tree branches. I guess those are the ones that are worth money, after finishing packing the load into it the man who seems to be the owner of the carriage pays his father. So I guess this is aromatic wood.

And then, another month or so passed since then. His mother's stomach started to expand again. Marumin showed admiration (as expected of a dog they create children quite easily~).

.....

Marumin has already long since finished weaning and it was when his mother was feeding him something like wheat rice gruel. Marumin notices there was some abnormality with his body. A strange amount of force entered his jaw and it was difficult to open his mouth.

.....

Marumin thought the incident the other day was just his imagination but even after one day had passed the symptoms didn't get any better. Let alone that even the voices of his older brother and sister irritated him and he got upset. Up until now since his older brother and sister were still young, he mostly looked at it with broad-minded eyes but for some reason today it echoes through his head and is unpleasant.

He ate a bit of food and then slept out of spite.

.....

Morning, his mother woke up before dawn to prepare breakfast. While looking at that from the side Marumin clearly felt a strong sense of fatigue, he could feel a stiffness in his face. A winter morning, since he didn't feel any appetite at all he thought of drinking some cold water to get refreshed but somehow it's difficult to open his mouth, he managed to drink a small amount of water but still didn't feel any better.

Unlike his older brother and sister, since Marumin wasn't difficult from the moment he was born, his parents were surprised at his change but they didn't pay much mind to it then.

.....

Noon of that day, since the weather was good his mother opened the window, brightened by the light, she couldn't hide her surprise as seeing Marumin with a stiff expression clenching his mouth. At the same time a certain word floated into his mother's head.

“Tetanus”

It's nothing particularly strange on Orth. A common disease. However, the rate of infection and fatalities are extremely high, especially for infants it exceeds 80% and even ends up killing close to 90% of them. It's a disease where even if they recover they end up blind. Furthermore, tetanus is a disease that even kills 50% of adults who contract it, an extremely frightening disease. The cause is unknown but it's comparatively common for children who plain the mountains or dirt, farmer families, and newborn babies to contract.

The only salvation is that if the healing spell {Cure} is used early on in the stages then the rate of survival is considerably higher.

His mother ran while holding Marumin the village healer 1 Km away.

There was no time left to delay.

How many days has it been since Marumin started showing symptoms. She ran through the mountains as fast she could while being careful of swelling stomach.

By the time she finally was able to knock on the door of the healer, his mother was covered in sweat. After his mother jumped through the door, she explained the situation and handed over as much compensation as she could, and then the spell {Cure} was used on Marumin.

It seems the symptoms were improved just a bit and it might just have been her imagination but Marumin's expression seemed softer as well. Marumin was grateful that his body had stopped hurting a bit and couldn't hide his surprise. After all, it's the first time he saw magic since he was reborn.

Up until now he had only thought of something like magic as unscientific.

When he was brought into the healer's place he thought he was being brought to a doctor.

Though that thinking was largely mistaken but when he heard his mother explaining the symptoms to the doctor he heard the words, "magic" and "Cure" often and thought (magic..magic, magic!?).

He watched the hand of the doctor that was held up to him in a daze and a blue light was given off before a warm feeling flowed through his body, simultaneously he felt his body get a bit more comfortable. He managed to fall asleep from the relief.

.....

Evening, the doctor used magic on Marumin once more. He felt like his body got a bit more comfortable again. (Ah, thank god. It seems like it was a disease but with this I'll be saved right?) he thought like that.

However, while he returned to a temporary lull state, could he be relived over this?

Otherwise, is it the same as magic in the children's book he read in Japan where everything is fine now? Marumin couldn't decide.

.....

The next day, his family came to healer's house and watched over him. It seems that I'm hospitalized and Marumin finally realized. The healer used magic once an hour while drawing a cold sweat on their forehead. Each time his body felt a bit of relief but the symptoms aren't improving but rather getting worse.

(Isn't this doctor a fake? Even a curse is fine so just use some kind of medicine..)

Since his consciousness still remains clear, Marumin thought that but he couldn't put it into words. The muscles in his jaw got stiff and no matter how he tries he can't talk. In the first place he couldn't properly talk but since his mouth is stuck shut and he can't move it freely it's even more so.

.....

The doctor looked after him without sleeping (just using magic periodically though) but in the first place the disease had progressed too far, otherwise the power of magic wasn't enough is unknown but Marumin's disease got one stage heavier. All of the muscles in his body, particularly from his neck to his back are stiff.

He's still a one year old infant but it's not like he has no muscles as well. He can feel his body bend in an arc. (it..it's pain..it hurts..)Marumin thought but even conveying that was difficult. Shortly after magic is used it temporarily gets comfortable but in order to overcome the disease plenty of nutrition is necessary. It would be best to eat something when he can move his mouth. Thinking that, during the few minutes his body got comfortable he tried to eat and drink things. Even if he can convey how much it hurts it probably wouldn't be improve the situation. Marumin though (there's no other choice than to do what can be done). The only thing he can do is to intake nutrients without missing the chance. Thinking that he ate as much as he could and drink as well. The amount of both was pretty small but it should be better than not absorbing anything.

.....

The next day, the symptoms advanced even further, Marumin is in a condition where he can't breath. His mouth is swollen shut, since Marumin's body is curving into an arc he probably won't be saved anymore. An expression of sadness can be seen on his parent's face as they hold him, the healing spells the healer provides shift to just providing relief.

(What in the world is this!? Is this really serious!?)

Marumin thinks.

The irrationality of this world, he cursed all of fate for being reborn just to experience this agony.

(I haven't done anything bad enough to experience this much suffering!)

Since his consciousness was clear, it was that much more cruel.

Since his mouth is swollen shut it's like his expression is stuck in a bitter smile, and the muscles from his face to the tips of his toes are curdling.

It hurts.

All of the muscles from the back of his head to his waist are convulsing and stiffening up.

It hurts a lot.

All of the muscles stiffen up leaving him in the posture of an arch.

It's already..no good..please just kill me.

And then, Marumin "finally" succeeded in letting go of his consciousness from the severe pain.

Side Story 23: In the Case of Futami Daisuke (Age 30 at time of accident)

(Ha~ I don't want to go back..I just want to go home like this..)

Futami Daisuke thought while sitting in his seat on the train. The one sitting next to him was Mitsuse Kenji who's one year younger than him. On the other side of Mitsuse Kenji is his older brother Mitsuse Ryouichi. Since they say there's a five year difference between them he should be four years older than Daisuke.

Early yesterday morning, the section chief of a company that Daisuke's company does business with passed away. Starting from noon today he attended that section chief's funeral together with Kenji and they just happened to run into Kenji's older brother at that funeral. As expected they couldn't cheerfully exchange business cards at the location of a funeral so after some greetings the three of them attended the funeral and then after they offered the gifts of condolence from the company, the three of them got some lunch together and then got on the high speed train to Shinjuku. They finished up exchanging business cards and greetings during lunch. All three of them took off their black neckties then and had already switched to normal neckties. Since he's from a completely different company and industry and there's no connection points, honestly speaking he didn't want to be with him.

Daisuke doesn't have much of a disposition for getting along with people for the first time. However, when he can at least explain it as sales talk he has the bare minimum skills and can do proper greetings and talk reasonably as well. It doesn't quite go to subordinate, but he also understood the necessity of showing his face in the funeral for his junior Kenji who just took over business with the other company last month.

In the first place, the section chief who passed away had a far longer relationship with himself and since he was already in the hospital when Kenji took over, Kenji himself didn't have any familiarity with him. When he met him before he was hospitalized you wouldn't even think he was sick.

(Cancer is terrifying. In just a few months it can kill a person I guess..)

Yesterday, it was the first thing Futami thought after being notified that the section chief had passed away. If I remember correctly, he was in his 40s and it's too soon to die. I need to make sure to keep an eye on my health, and thought it would be a good chance to take another look at his normally indulgent lifestyle. Though he just thought it.

In any case, I knew that today I would have over half a day crushed by the funeral so I managed to complete my work tomorrow but once I return to the company there's a lot of things remaining I need to do. I feel like I just want to give up go home and lay around before working hard at my work starting tomorrow. However, I already know that won't work. There's several estimations and documents on products that I need to submit today.

While his arms were crossed and eyes were closed Daisuki tried not to think about anything troublesome. Next to him the Mitsuse siblings were having a family conversation. Daisuke doesn't really like Mitsuse Kenji that much. Or to be accurate he's stopped liking him. When he finally reached his second year at the company, Mitsuse was a junior who just joined, he goes a bit diagonal at times but he's easy to talk to and similar himself seems like the type that "does their job in the best way while not letting it known they're cutting corners".

He arrives at work as close to the work time as possible and leaves the same way. His business estimation is barely along the lines of "bad" but it's not to the point of being fired. He's accepted his job as just a method to provide for enjoying his days off in places away from the company. Of course, there's people who give their best at their jobs as well but what point is there in getting promoted. If you enter the management above a section chief then overtime pay disappears. It's not particularly that he hates overtime but he just feels life is better spent enjoying oneself during that time. Since he's satisfied with his current income he doesn't see a need to greedily earn overtime.

When he first joined the company, Mitsuse Kenji showed a similar way of thinking. It's not like he was particularly close with him but they were just two people one year apart in the same duty. Since they both had somewhat similar ways of thinking he felt some empathy towards him.

However, 3–4 years ago Kenji changed. He suddenly started to do his job vigorously, communicating within the company, and joining his superiors for golf on the holidays. At first it was just at the level of showing his face in the golf competition the section chief and other managers held. He only thought, “Ah, he must like golf~” at that time. A short while after that he started seriously do his jobs and became independent in sales, he had become a splendid core employee.

At Daisuke’s company the employees automatically become senior staff at 30 years old and four years after that they become section chiefs. After that it’s necessary to grab their promotion with their own abilities. It’s a system of mainstream companies that’s been used since the past and their company is one place it unusually still works today. He thought Kenji was aiming for something above section chief but it seems he got married and had a child so it was his sense of responsibility towards his family that brought it about. Since Daisuke himself didn’t have a girlfriend let alone a wife, his thinking didn’t reach that far.

He skillfully conversed with his superiors and was well received among the female employees as well. Since Kenji’s face was originally pretty good he quickly became a central person in the department. Any time he scheduled going camping or skiing people would rush to join. The female employees all would say, “If Mitsuse-san is going I’ll go as well”.

He had somehow become a {super salary man}. Mitsuse’s older brother he just met today also gave off the scent of a {super salary man} as well. During the funeral itself of course he didn’t speak much but going off the conversations and greetings during lunch, it felt like it stabbed Daisuke’s in an uncomfortable place of his heart.

(Recently, I haven’t been really good at dealing with Mitsuse but this older brother is considerably as well. I can’t help but think they’re living in a different world from me.)

Thinking that, he thought it’s not like he’ll be interacting with him from here on out so just tried to kill time by pretending to be asleep on the train. Even if really falls asleep that wouldn't be a problem either.

He was thinking about things like this 20 minutes before he really ended up losing consciousness.

.....

When was it that I finally felt like I was able to make it in this world? Around the time I was 5 years old? Or even earlier? Futami Daisuke, otherwise known as Varudemaru. Nabasukasu swings the hoe down into the dirt as he uses the towel wrapped around his neck to wipe the sweat from his forehead. Right now, he's just passed 8 years old.

During the night of the other day, after finishing his job in the fields, he ate some dinner and then saw a strange dream after falling asleep. In his dream an existence calling itself God talked to him. Up until then he had started to think his previous life was just a dream but he found out it really happened and he understood that he was reborn in this world after an accident. The only thing he had that made him think he was different from other people was that ability to think and those memories were actually something real. About the Unique Ability that even when he tried discussing them with people they said he was lying. He found out that those things really his own and that his growth rate exceeded other people in that world.

Varu remembered back to his life since he was reborn. Soon after being reborn he had no idea what was going on. After a short while he finally accepted that he was reborn and found he was the child of a serf, and then for a period of time shocked. He particularly found the fact that his family including himself had only four fingers shocking but since it seemed like he as just born as that sort of race and not a cripple he was relieved. Nevertheless, as he actually came to know his life from here on out, he started to think that this wasn't too bad itself.

Certainly farm work is heavy labor but there's a large number of people among the slave standing and his treatment wasn't as bad as what is commonly imaged of it. If it anything it was closer to exactly like the lifestyle of farmers and peasants in Japan in the past. There is the unfortunate aspect of being a target for being bought or sold but as a matter of fact that sort of stuff almost never happens is something he realized soon after. It doesn't seem all that difficult to completely normally live, work, get married, and have kids. If it comes to the second or third sons then it might get a bit more difficult but he was born as the eldest son of this family.

He luckily was able to grow up without a single illness, and while his meals weren't very high quality particularly when compared to Japan from his past but he was provided enough calories to get keep up with his labor. The commoner squire family that owns his family aren't bad people as well. There's also no sign that the lord of the village Viscount Bofitto rules severely or taxes them heavily.

Varu was reasonably satisfied with his current circumstances and the rewards he will earn from here on out. Certainly he has almost no days off but since he's doing farm work in a world with this low of a civilization level so that can't be helped. And when he actually tried doing it agriculture was interesting in some ways as well. They properly grow for the amount of work you've put into them and when the season comes they bloom and return as crops. In that sort of meaning he can feel a bit of worth in doing it.

It's unfortunate that he had no sort of knowledge related to agriculture at all. Of course, he has almost zero knowledge relating to fishing, foresting, and hunting as well. During his infancy he looked down at everyone as barbarians while feeling good about himself. However, in the end for him to go on living in this world, he was more than made aware of the fact that he doesn't even reach the feet of those barbarians in terms of knowledge and way of thinking so in the end he accepted it and the fact that he devoted himself to accepting it ended up helping him succeed.

Right now he's just believed to be the completely normal child of a serf who's a bit smart. As a matter of fact he's thought he wanted to challenge suggesting new types of farming equipment various times but in the first place since the only ones he knew of were the hoe, the plow, and the sickle he was shocked. Other than that the only things he knew were tractors and harvester machines and scarecrows or other things to keep harmful vermin away.

Since there were originally scarecrows in this world there was nothing left he could do. Though the tools seemed to be made of metals different from the ones he knew, since there's no proper blacksmith in the village, there was nothing he could do about it. In regards to livestock he found it strange that they weren't being used for farm work but when he heard they were too expensive it made sense.

And when he reached 4–5 years he found out about “Status open” for the first time. After his younger brother received the naming ceremony he noticed it when his mother confirmed it with “status open”. Varu knew there were various English words mixed into the language of this world but even then he was surprised at “Status open”. At the same time he held interest in it and tried mimicking his mother and said “status open” while touching his little brother.

【Mitchell.Nabasukasu/25/3/7433】
【Male/19/12/7431】
【Gnome.Rabbu Family Owned Slave】
【Special Skill: Inclination Sensing】

Varu's eyes went wide in surprise seeing the blue window that floated up. In addition he tried using it on himself.

【Varudemaru.Nabasukasu/3/4/7429】
【Male/14/2/7428】
【Gnome.Rabbu Family Owned Slave】
【Special Skill: Inclination Sensing】
【Unique Ability: Resistance(Corrosion.Energy Drain)】

It's only obvious but his own information appeared. However, at the very bottom there was something added in red characters. He had heard the words skill before. He felt like he had heard the words Inclination Sensing before as well. However, what in the world is this Unique Ability? After thinking about it for a bit Varu tried asking his mother.

“Hey, mother. What's a special skill?”

When she was asked my Varu his mother smiled while rocking her baby and,

“Oh? Didn't I tell you before? It's a skill that we Gnomes are born with. No matter where it is or what the situation we can tell if things are tilted or how much they're tilted. If you think strongly about Inclination Sensing in your head then you'll understand. Though since Varu is still a child you probably won't be able to tell for very long, you should try it on a hil later.”

and said that before soothing Mike who just finished his naming ceremony.

“Then, what about Unique Ability?”

Varu asked once more.

“Unique Ability? What’s that?”

His mother found it strange and tilted her head after hearing it.

“When I used status open there’s both the 【Special Skill: Inclination Sensing】 and 【Unique Ability: Resistance(Corrosion.Energy Drain)】 listed.”

After his mother heard Varu’s response,

“Eee..let me see..status open..What is this child saying, there’s nothing like that. There’s only Inclination Sensing.”

and said with an amazed face. And then,

“Really, I need to change Mike’s diapers..Varu, go and make some rope.”

and said that before ending the conversation. However, it certainly says 【Unique Ability: Resistance(Corrosion.Energy Drain)】 at the bottom. He tried pestering her but she wouldn’t listen. That night he tried asking his father as well but after confirming the same response in the end he was just scolded with, “Don’t lie.”

After that he tried asking about it from various people but in the end no one could see the 【Unique Ability: Resistance(Corrosion.Energy Drain)】 at the bottom of his “status open” so he couldn’t find an answer to it.

Several years after that while Varu thought it was strange that “even though I can definitely see it” before he noticed the Unique Ability was brushed away to gather dust in the corner of his mind.

His parents didn’t think Varu would lie about it but they’ve heard of something like a Unique Ability and even if you mention Resistance(Corrosion.Energy Drain) they had no idea what it is so even if it wasn’t a lie they just thought their child was saying something stupid. In the first place, lies are something that’s said with some sort of objective and Varu has no benefit from saying such a lie, nor was anyone at a loss from it. They thought it would be plenty to just tell him not to lie anymore.

Since Varu himself wasn't an idiot he knew there wasn't anymore point in bringing it up as well. In the first place, he couldn't understand any meaning in being resistant to corrosion or energy drain so it's certainly nothing to insist on to the point of being called a liar and just decided to remain quiet about it.

And then we return to the beginning, when he met God he tried asking about it. And then, certainly Unique Abilities exist and furthermore the unique ability Resistance(Corrosion.Energy Drain) is something special that only he has. He also heard that the usage itself is something that automatically activates when he takes that sort of attack that would harm him. Also, when he tried asking if there was any sort of compensation to using it and he also heard it uses every time it activates.

It was regretful that he ran out of question time while asking about mana but he found out that by training you can increase your mana amount. This information matched up with all the information he had obtained until now. In other words, mana increases with the increase to levels of magic special skills.

At the same time Varu was both satisfied and discontent. Since it seems that he'll only meet God that one time. He thought it was good luck that he didn't meet it right after or within a few years of being reborn but he also found it unlucky that he couldn't predict it and wasn't able to properly gather the questions he wanted to ask.

If you were to meet it soon after being reborn there's no way to ask about Unique Abilities after all. You would end up running out of time asking where you are and why you're there, or how to return to the previous world. Of course, that sort of stuff was explained at the start but there's no way to resist asking and it's even likely they might end up asking the same question multiple times.

In comparison to that, he thought it was good luck to meet at 8 years old when he didn't have much lingering attachments towards the previous world. He was able to ask about things relative to his "current" and "future" lifestyle. If he didn't think of this as good luck and be satisfied with it then that itself is a punishment. However, if he knew about it ahead of time he could have prepared the details of the questions more carefully and gained more information. This is unlucky if you think about it but there's no way he could have seen the future so hoping that far is just a luxury.

Honestly speaking, the first thing he should have asked is the definite method to obtain the magic special skill. If Varu definitely didn't have any talent with magic and can't gain the skill, then that sort of response would be OK as well. In that case he could have made questions that were an advantage to his life from here on out. In that sort of meaning things regarding his Unique Ability were low priority. It would have been equally important to ask things like the sale price of crops next year, or the tools used by the village, or the locations of seeds for crops he knew of from Japan.

In the end he wasn't able to hear information about anything that would be useful to his lifestyle from here on out. The only bit of information he was able to gain was that there seem to be monsters that use an attack where his Unique Ability Resistance(Corrosion.Energy Drain) would be useful. That sort of information is almost useless to just go on living. So what about it? Even if there's a monster like that it's just a matter of not going near them. In the first place, since Varu is a serf he doesn't go to war and something like fighting monsters is for the ruffian adventurers and he'll never take part in it from here on out.

The only things that could be called a harvest for Varu from that time was that he found out that similar to himself other victims from that accident were reborn in places far away and that during level up there's a slightly larger bonus compared to normal people.

.....

Several days after he reached his 17th birthday, Varu got married. The partner was the third daughter of the squire family that owned Varu a gnome girl who was 1 year younger than him. For serfs getting married and having children is in some meanings an obligation. Since it directly relates to increasing the fortune of their owners after all. The population of this Namin village is close to 1,000 people. It might already be plenty to call it a town. It's said to be along the southern edge of the Dirt Plains and it's an abundant village blessed with fertile land. Without being troubled in things to eat and since it's still barely on the Rombert Kingdom side of the conflict area, it's a village that's been able to smoothly develop.

Up until now a number of families have moved to the pioneering village in the North. Most of them are the second sons or later of serfs and their families. Though they're serfs, since Varu is the eldest son of the family it's unlikely he'll end up having to move. That's precisely why even though his owner knew that their daughter would drop to the serf standing they still let her marry Varu. The girl who became his bride Mimensu was a lovely girl who never stopped smiling.

Soon after marrying Mime she got pregnant and gave birth to the eldest daughter. If she grows up smoothly then this daughter will some day take a husband that inherits the Nabasukasu family I'm sure. Since they're serfs there's nothing that is shown in their status though. Soon after she got pregnant with the eldest son but unfortunately that eldest son died soon after birth. He thought that one of the causes for it was that they were allowed helpers during the birth but even if he complains it won't change anything at all. In the first place, both Varu and Mime are still young and in their teens. He thought they could still make plenty of children from here on out.

Varu had adjusted to the lifestyle of a serf to the point where he was able to think that. One of Varu's siblings had died soon after birth as well. In the first place when it comes to living in this Namin village it's unusual to be lacking in food so as long as the child is properly born their chances of dying are less than average on Orth. It's fine to exclude death by starvation. If they just remain cautious of disease and can smoothly grow up to 6–7 years old then it's safe to think they'll grow to adulthood.

And then, his second daughter was born. After that, the eldest son was born as well. Surrounded by three children and a cheerful wife, while he still has siblings that live with them, Varu was considerably happy with his life.

Up until that moment.

Chapter 137: Watching The Match

Year 7444, Month 8, Day 19

Since we managed to get our hands on a {Magic Item}, I decided to cut our plans short and return to the surface. Honestly speaking, I just want to get rid of this {Bracelet.Of.Dead.Body.To.Water} as soon as possible. Either way I already know it's effects using Identify so it's the point where I don't even care to investigate the small details. I don't want for there to be anything even small that makes me like it or think it's useful, is my strongest feeling. I don't want to be in possession of it.

We returned back to the teleport crystal on the 6th floor and teleported into the teleport room on the 5th floor. After telling Giberuti who was waiting for our return, about the item we found this time and he was happy and cheerfully started cleaning up the camp.

While glancing at that from the side I started discussing with Zenom and Toris. The details of the discussion are only obvious. What to do with the {Bracelet.Of.Dead.Body.To.Water}, the treasure we found on our exploration of the dungeon this time. Zenom and I had the opinion of selling it off but Toris said we should wait to sell it. I already know what Toris is trying to say. I understand but you know...

It's certainly a bracelet that can be pretty useful but honestly speaking I don't want to think that it will be useful at all. I already know about it's effects thanks to Identify. It doesn't have any ability other than to change a certain amount of corpses to water. In the past, I've actually used after all. Even as a final method to obtain water it's almost completely useless because there's my water magic. I'm sure it's certainly useful in situations like a couple months prior when I had my mana absorbed or scattered from the trap but even if you held this bracelet and jumped into that trap I feel like it would absorb the mana from the bracelet as well and either way you'd end up having to wait a full day.

In the past I thought a variety of methods that it could come in handy. Though the most conspicuous of those wouldn't be of much use until after my country is made. For example, cleaning up after a war. Before the dead enemy soldiers end up becoming the source for disease you can completely clean them up without a trace. Though if it's once in 10 days then it's not a very large number but even then it will reduce the amount of work needed to do be done burying them. It's not something that's very necessary to me right now but I'm sure it's one effective method of using it.

If they were a spy or assassin then there's also the merit of leaving almost no evidence from a corpse but I don't think this one is very necessary to me right now as well. There is the method of handing it to Miduchi when she returns and having her assassinate someone, but it would be fine if I just conduct myself so something like that isn't necessary. She isn't suited to being an assassin. Probably if I were to tell her to do it, she'd give me an immediate reply. However, regardless of what her own thoughts are on it, I don't like it.

If I have something like this on hand, then I might end up feeling like relying on Miduchi. In that case it's best if it's not around in the first place. I'm sure I feel like that somewhere in my heart and that's why I want to sell it.

"In any case, we should hold on to it for a short while and properly confirm it's abilities. Al-san you said you saw the same {Magic Item} in the past but do you already know to what degree and frequency that would could be used? Also, even if you do know that there's no guarantee this {Magic Item} has the same level of abilities."

The things Toris said were just as I imagined, a completely reasonable opinion. Even the abilities are considerably powerful on this compared to the one that Myun had. It doesn't restrict the user and it can be used more frequently. I think that the amount it can convert to water was the same though. It can't be helped...

"..That's right, it's just as Toris says. It would probably be good to experiment with it a bit to raise the price up...And..I think it's important to know the limits of the abilities of a {Magic Item}. For starters, I'll talk about the similar {Magic Item} that I know about."

“Fumu, if you’re going to say that then I’m sure that’s true. Certainly there’s no need to hurry.”

While I was hesitating a bit as I responded, Zenom showed admiration and changed his opinion after hearing what Toris said and found it strange how I was glaring a bit.

“..First off, the bracelet I know could only be used once in 10 days...And then..it doesn’t matter if there’s magic stones included in the corpses or not. If you don’t take the magic stone out then that gets converted as well..That’s why, it shouldn’t be useful to omit the need for disassembling them..”

The tone of my voice dropped a bit. Suddenly, I remembered Balk the adventurer who came to Bakuddo in the past to get into contact with Myun. As expected Toris noticed that my state was different from usual. He was looking strangely at me. I just continued pretending not to notice that. In addition, I though it wasn’t necessary to say that it was restricted on who could use it and didn’t require a command word to activate.

“The amount that could be converted at once was limited. Just going off my intuition and it was an amount equal to about 10 times the amount you can make with level 4 elemental magic..about 1/3 of the amount of level 5..and, I guess that’s difficult to understand. An amount equal to the normal size of..I guess so, it can change about 100 people the same size as me into water. If all of the corpses are in contact it should regard them as one large corpse...I said it just now but the only thing that is converted to water is just the corpses. The clothes and armor that the corpses are wearing remain just like that..the definition for a corpse is whether it’s listed as a corpse on {Status Open}..that’s why, it probably can’t be used to kill undead. It has no relation to the degree of damage to the corpse...it can be used while the individual’s name is still appearing or even after it changes to just their race it still has effect.”

Well, there’s no way I’d feel guilty over Balk at this point but he was still the opponent of my first time. I probably won’t forget him for the rest of my life.

“..”

Zenom and Toris exchanged glances while listening to my dry speech. They’re reaching to the part about the individual name. It seems I caused a bit of a misunderstanding. Though that's fine as well.

"The items that we can to confirm are, I guess, the frequency of use and the amount it can convert. It's fine to test if it can be used against undead as well but since I don't want to touch ones still moving, you do it since your the one who suggested it Toris."

I laughed while saying.

After cleaning up the camp and returning to the surface it was past 4 and getting close to 5 in the afternoon.

.....

Year 7444, Month 8, Day 20

Just in case, we went to the 1st floor and tested the bracelet out. The bracelet of Myun I mentioned could be used with a frequency of once in every 10 days but since it was worth trying we tried waiting one day and entered the dungeon soon after eating. Since I just want to finish this and sell it off right away, and I already know it will be possible to use it again by this evening, I said we should confirm it's abilities right away. Since there's no real enemy for us on the 1st floor the members were me, Zenom, Toris, and Zulu, just the four of us.

I gave the women the day off today. Use times like this to conveniently all have your periods. Since we didn't have the special skill Super Sense of Smell we couldn't find monsters at all.

I used the spell {Audible Clamor} and lured over monsters. After repeating that 10 times, we had monsters gathered up like a small hill. If we're going to do it, it's more efficient to investigate the limits on how much can be converted as well.

Goblins, Gnolls, Orks, Hobgoblins we piled up over 100 of these stinky corpses, and managed to gather an amount that I think probably won't completely be converted and have some left over. I can handed Zulu the bracelet and had him use the magic infused in it. Obviously, since we don't want to become like wet rats, we're watching over from quite a distance away. Zulu came along knowing he'd get wet so he isn't wearing his armor from the start. Zulu looks considerably foolish with only the lower party of his body in under armor.

Of course, since we had the time we made sure to take the magic stones from all the corpses we placed together other than the goblins. Well, there were Orks as well, so we needed to at least gather enough money to pay for the entry tax for today.

Zulu raised his hand and gave the sign.

Nothing is happening.

I pulled out my clock magic tool and the time was just before 3 pm in the afternoon. We're going to test it every 30 minutes after this. Yesterday, I think it was around 3 pm in the afternoon when we changed the Roper to water. We should probably be able to use it again pretty soon. I almost want to put it inside of a lamp or something that tells if it's finish charging.

30 minutes, just as I had identified we were able to confirm that the majority of the corpses were converted to water. Even the ones we didn't take the magic stones from had properly become water as well.

Just in case, after Zulu tried touching the remaining corpses that didn't change to water and said "nuhireki" once again I collected the bracelet and that was the end of today's experiment. When I was collecting it and saw the soaking wet Zulu I thought.

(He..He's huge...)

Since it somehow pissed me off I immediately used the spell drying to dried him off. It's a good thing we didn't bring along the women. Somehow I don't want to show it to them. It's bad for their education..or I guess it's fine. They're already adults. But, it would have been the best to let Bel do something like this. It's extremely unfortunate there's no artificial fibers or cottons that are soft, durable, and thin like a T-shirt.

.....

Year 7444, Month 8, Day 21

In order to test it against undead we had to descend to the 3rd floor. It's annoying but it can't be helped. We started towards the 3rd floor with just us men again. Around the time we passed through the 1st floor, (Huh? Wouldn't it have been fine if we had all entered the dungeon together?

Since it would have been fine to test as a side while exploring) and I noticed that. Since it's just a matter of changing one zombie to water there's no getting wet either.

Well, it's too troublesome at this point so I guess it's fine.

Just as I had guessed, moving zombies couldn't be changed to water. It was necessary to definitely stop their movement and have it showing {Corpse of} and {Corpse of Goblin Zombie} on it, that sort of bizarre expression displayed before we confirmed that it could be changed to water. Incidentally, when I Identify them at first their condition is Death (while they're active as undead monsters, their condition is Good when HP isn't being reduced) and other than that the contents of the Identify are normal, afterwards, when I identify them as an object and they become {Corpse(Goblin)} as the name, the condition changes to damage(since they're zombies it's not good condition like a normal goblin corpse), and the creation date(probably the date they turned into a zombie), and value is also displayed.

It should already be fine.

We're returning to the surface right away but Zenom and Toris are whispering about something with a difficult face.

.....

That night after everyone finished eating dinner opened his mouth.

"Al-san. After we try using that bracelet another couple of times do you intend to sell it after really confirming if the frequency of use is once per day?"

"Hn? Yeah, I was thinking of that though.."

"Isn't it fine not to hurry and get rid of it right now? I think it's considerably useful. Certainly it's limited in use in the dungeon but I think it will definitely come in handy in the future. Isn't it best to hang on to it?"

Yeah. I already know that. But you know...

"I think so as well. Al, is there some kind of reason why you don't like that bracelet?”

Zenom participated in the conversation.

“No, not particularly..”

“Then there’s no need to hurry and sell it. Isn’t it fine to only sell it if we really need money or we can find something better? We’re really not troubled in regards to money so there’s no need to hurry on the bonuses.”

Zenom said it kindly. It’s not that sort of problem though..I guess it’s fine.

“N..I see, got it. Then we’ll hold on to that bracelet without selling it.”

“Yeah, that’s good.”

“That’s right.”

Zenom and Toris said at the same time. Certainly, there’s no need to force myself to sell it right now.

Though I already knew that.

.....

Year 7444, Month 8, Day 24

Starting yesterday we entered the dungeon again and are just about to break into what’s probably the last room on the 5th floor. It’s that one room with an altar. I went and took a look at the room before returning, and I started giving out orders for the usual formation of Zulu and Angela taking care of the gargoyles while the rest of the members attack the altar. Bel and I are support.

Since it’s already something we’re used to, I thought of starting off with just the gargoyles heads outside of the dirt and told them that. And, I also instructed the altar team to take their time a bit on charging in. I was thinking of sealing it in ice at the same time as it’s summoned. That’s why, this time I’ll have Bel start on helping with the gargoyles and once a monster is summoned by the altar I’ll freeze it.

After confirming things once again and just as we were about to slowly turn around to head towards the room.

We could hear the sounds of shouts and combat from the room.

Including me, everyone was surprised and exchanged glances but immediately realized.

Another party of adventurers charged in first.

“A~~a, we were beaten to it.”

Ralpa said disappointed. Certainly that’s true.

“How unfortunate..”

Toris whispered regretfully while putting his long sword back into it’s scabbard. I am too.

“Wun, even though I thought about buying some clothes if we found something good...”

Gwine sharpened her lips. Even with her beard growing it’s somehow a charming gesture with that small body.

“It can’t be helped..”

Bel said while returning the arrow to her quiver. It can’t be helped indeed.

“Hmph, it’s unfortunate but the first one to it is the winner so it can’t be helped. Since we have the chance how about we frankly just go and watch the battle?”

Zenom said carrying his axe on his shoulder while rubbing his pink jaw beard.

“Yeah, I agree. If it seems like it’ll draw out then we could eat something like as well. Hey, Giberuti, is there something simple we can eat?”

“If you’re fine with some simple sandwiches then I can prepare them right away in 5 minutes.”

It’s quite strange to start eating while watching the desperate struggles of a different party from a safe place. It was often done to us on the 2nd and 3rd floors when we charged into rooms first after all. Or rather, unless they request for assistance, it could cause misunderstandings so it’s basically an unwritten rule of Baldukk not to do anything until then.

Particularly, this is the 5th floor. Even if we mention other parties there should only be the top teams here. Since there’s no way they could be slacking off against a room boss on the 5th floor we should be able to see them fighting at full. It's a good chance to find out their skill.

We all started chatting while looking in at things from the entrance. As expected we won't go to the point of sitting down. We're remaining standing. Since the width of the passage is about 8m there's still room even if all 9 of us line up side by side.

Now then, I wonder who stole our prey that was dangling right before our noses?

Oh?

Oh?

If it isn't sis Anderson.

"Huh, Black Topaz?"

"That seems to be the case."

"Oh~ That's the {Frost Lizard}. I wonder what they'll do? Are they going to run?"

"Aren't they going to run? In that case, we might still have a chance at it."

"It seems they've noticed us."

"For the time being it might be good to prepare for combat. Giberuti, after all never mind on the food."

"Yes, I understand."

"They aren't running.."

"How unexpected, so they're going to fight.."

Since we thought Black Topaz might run we remained ready for combat just in case. However, please stop with running away before doing anything at all. It's dangerous for even us to fight without taking the initiative. And just as I was thinking that, unexpectedly it seems that Black Topaz chose to fight.

Anderson glanced over here for a moment but immediately went back to concentrating on the combat and her allies while using magic.

It's {Flame Javelin}.

Without missing it's mark it hit the ice monster, AKA, {Frost Lizard} in the flank. Her subordinates are boldly fighting against the gargoyles one on one and the remaining three are charging at the {Frost Lizard}.

Ah.

One was sent flying by the tail. However, of the remaining two one has a kite shield and long sword on the front and the other is in the back with a spear facing off against the {Frost Lizard}.

The one who was blown away somehow managed to stand up.

Oh? That is...

Anderson lifted a crossbow from her feet. She went into a stance on one knee and immediately fired it. The bolt once again hit it's target without missing and didn't just stab into the flank of the {Frost Lizard} but embedded in close to the base of it. After all projectile weapons are strong.

"He~ A crossbow huh.."

Bel whispered in admiration. What? After all are you interested?

She threw down the crossbow after firing a bolt and lifted up one more crossbow she had sitting at her feet, and once again entered the posture to shoot. Once again, the bolt was embedded close to base in the flank of the {Frost Lizard}.

"It's no good just ending it at once shot. And, they need to start from crushing the eyes."

Zenom said while forsaking her. Isn't that a bit harsh? Since they're still doing some proper damage to the enemy from the start, that should be plenty. Don't use Bel as the standard. In the first place are you the one saying that? Toris and I were exchanging glances and bitter smile from above Zenom's head.

However, as expected it has quite the amazing power to pierce in close to the base. But, even with that the {Frost Lizards} HP is still only at half. Since there's no more crossbows, I wonder what sis Anderson will do? Does she still have MP remaining? Thinking that I took my eyes off the {Frost Lizard} and went to Identify Anderson.

Oh? That guy sure is amazing~ He was a Laios the same as Zulu and wearing splint-mail, a bro just before his 30s wit ha huge battle-axe was taking on the gargoyles and managed to sink his axe midway into the head of one of them, he took out a gargoyle in just one hit.

““Ah!””

”“Oh!””

A voice was raised from my party the {Slaughterers}. It wasn't in regards to the guy who splendid took out a gargoyle. It was because the {Frost Lizard} used it's ice breath. The human with the kite shield in a defensive role in front of the {Frost Lizard} gradually started to freeze as I returned my sights to him and was rendered unable to fight.

“Oh my~”

I couldn't help but let my voice out as well.

“Guoo~!!!!”

The Laios who was swinging his battle axe to finish a gargoyle just now turned around and let out a battle cry while going to help the Wolf-people sister using a spear and they finished off another gargoyle in no time at all. After that they quickly turned around and went running to help out the human who was rendered unable to fight with the {Frost Lizard}. It seems he used his special skill Instant Speed. But, it's already about to end. I think it would be smarter to finish off one more gargoyle before it ends.

Sis Anderson seems like she's going to use magic against the {Frost Lizard} once more as she faces her hand towards it and is concentrating. A blue light overflows from her right hand and a {Flame Javelin} is sent flying towards the {Frost Lizard}.

It was fired with nice timing but the {Frost Lizard} managed to evade it taking nothing more than a scratch. Sister is still planning to use magic without learning.

The elf man who was blown away by the tail at the start has gone on guard with his long sword and kite shield again and rejoined the battle.

“Hmm”

I can hear Zenom's composed voice. If Zenom is composed then it should be fine.

“Hpmh..they aren't all that much.”

Ralpa crossed her arms and commented on them conceitedly. I couldn't help but make a bitter smile. Well, I thought so as well so it's fine.

"But, Bal-san, he's so cool!"

Gwine said. You, just because he's big and strong you think they're all cool. Ah, Bal is the Laios using the battle axe.

Once again I returned my gaze to the combat. Just now, the three Wolf-people woman, Elf woman, and Dog-people man fighting the remaining two gargoyles gained the advantage in their fight. It seems like one of the remaining gargoyles is considerably weakened so they should be able to finish it off soon.

In regards to the {Frost Lizard}, the Elf man, Laios man, and Human man are taking it on. It feels like the leader Anderson is backing them up with magic. If you can only use fire and water magic then it limits the magic you can use for support so it seems quite difficult.

It doesn't seem like the guy who was frozen in frost has died yet. If it's about 20 minutes then while he might get frostbite it's still possible to take care of it with healing magic.

"Oh!!?"

And just as I was thinking that while watching the battle the {Frost Lizard} used ice breath again. Aa~, it's no good if you don't defeat him before you let him use his ice breath..Look, this time the human using the spear behind the Laios in front was frozen.

"Gioooo~!!!"

However, as expected Anderson is still the leader of one of the top teams. She managed fire a {Flame Javelin} into it's mouth. With this it shouldn't be able to use it's ice breath anymore. If they slowly damage it without letting their guards down they should be able to win.

"Just a bit more! Everyone, give it your best!"

After Anderson used a spell she called out like that to her party and pulled out her short sword before charging at the {Frost Lizard}. She only has 13 MP remaining. Since her maximum MP is 31, it totals up to just the {Flame Javelins} portion that she used.

“Hn”

Zulu and Angela let their voices out for the first time. It seems that Dog-people man and Elf woman were properly taking on one of the gargoyles while the Wolf-people woman used her spear to finish one off. It's already three versus one. It's defense is already to shit. If it starts getting hit from all sides by the three of them then it's just a matter of time. It seems that the gargoyle is the one struggling.

After Anderson charged up to the {Frost Lizard} she, put in a yell like that as she cut at one of it's front legs. The elf man on the other side from her didn't miss the chance it was focused on her attack and attacked with his long sword as well.

“Ya~!!”

“It seems they decided it.”

Toris said. Yeah, certainly that attack just now was the deciding hit I'm sure.

A few minutes after that, when they finished off both the {Frost Lizard} and remaining gargoyle the members of Black Topaz were breathing with their shoulders. The only ones unharmed were the leader Anderson and the Wolf-people sis, everyone else has minor and major wounds.

I had everyone wait there and I slowly approached Anderson. While the members of Black Topaz including Anderson remained cautious of me they didn't take any hostile actions. Well, if it's this person's party then it's only obvious.

“I took a look at your fight. Congratulations. If you'd like we can use the healing spell {Cure} on you?”

Anderson opened her eyes in surprise hearing my words and,

“Eeh..that would help. But, is it fine?”

“Of course it is.”

After I said that I called over Bel, Toris, Ralpa, and Gwine and had Ralpa and Gwine use {Cure} and {Cure Light} once each, and Toris use {Cure Light} four times. I had Bel use {Cure Serious} twice. Me? I used {Cure Serious} the same as Bel, twice. A total of four uses of {Cure Serious}, six uses of {Cure Light}, and two uses of {Cure}. I'm sure we were able to reasonably heal all of their wounds.

It seems that the guys who were frozen that we used {Cure Serious} on were able to recover without any frostbite. Though the pain will remain for a while so that can't be helped. The other people seemed to have their wounds sealed quite a bit thanks to using healing spells over 10 times as well. It seems like all of the members of the {Slaughterers} figured out my intention and they used magic while pretending to take over 10 seconds to activate it. Alright, that's good.

It seems that the members of Black Topaz lost their nerve seeing all 5 young members of the {Slaughterers} using healing spells and including sis Anderson they were all surprised. Particularly the fact that Bel and I used {Cure Serious} so casually, their eyes went wide. At the very least I exposed the fact that the two of us can use at least three types of elemental magic with that after all. As a matter of fact Toris can use three types as well though. Though since his levels aren't high enough he just can't use {Cure Serious} yet.

Well, I doubt there's any loss any selling a favor to the softhearted top team Black Topaz. I'm sure if it's these guys then they'll advertise us all on their like, "The {Slaughterers} are crazy. All five of them can use magic." And then no more idiots like {Bright Blade} will try to put their hands on us again.

"Well then, we'll take our leave here...I'm praying for the good luck of Black Topaz."

"Umm, let us thank you.."

Sis Anderson called out to me saying that but,

"No, this much doesn't require any thanks. If it's this much mana then we should be able to recover it in about 1-2 hours after all. And you showed us a valuable fight against the ice monster.."

And I said that leaving the spot while declining the thanks. Honestly, I wanted to know the contents of the shrine they were going to obtain but as expected going that far.

Now then, if we walk for another hour or so we should be able to arrive at the teleport room on the 5th floor.

Chapter 138: Reserve Strength

Year 7444, Month 8, Day 24

After we arrived at the teleport room of the 5th floor we immediately started making preparations to camp. I used earth magic to make our beds and after we finished dinner preparations, showering and changing, we all licked our lips at the food Giberuti finished making.

“Today was disappointing right. I wonder what came out of the shrine on that altar?”

Ralpa is saying petty things as usual. Isn't it already fine on the 5th floor? We're exploring the 6th floor starting tomorrow after all.

“I'd like to think it wasn't anything special.”

Bel responded. That's right. It's fine if we just think that.

“But, the people of Black Topaz..They struggled quite a bit.”

Gwine changed the topic. Certainly they did~ The spear user in their party was only a bit better than Gwine in their movements. Even the guy who was using a kite shield and long sword on the front, putting aside his shield, his sword wasn't even up to Toris's level. If it's just that then even if I don't use magic I should be able to take on two of them with just a single long sword. If it's fine to use my bayonet then I should be able not just deal with three of them but I might even win.

“That's right. That Laios man who was using the battle axe, while it was quite showy along the way, he's the type who can't do anything but use brute force after all. If you look at their overall abilities I think Zulu is much better.”

Zenom bites into the roast chicken seasoned with sauce using salt as the base. Hey old man, that's your second one. There's only two of these per person you know.

“That's true..it looked that way to me as well. After that, that woman who is the leader, what was her name again? Ah, Anderson-san. It seemed like her skill with the bow wasn't that great either."

Toris responded to Zenom. Hey now, didn't Anderson do plenty well. Even you're using Bel as the standard like Zenom just now. I'm telling you Bel is just abnormal~ Ha~

"No, Anderson's skill with the bow wasn't that bad right. As proof of that she managed to properly land both of her shots right? If you think about the chance of it missing while trying to aim for vital points then it was doing plenty. Even that Laios, his decision after using Instant Speed wasn't the greatest but there's no need to be that harsh..Zenom and Toris aren't your viewpoints too severe?"

I said that while amazed. Ah, this leg meat is delicious! It's not just salt. It has an even deeper flavor to it. Giberuti..you were a good purchase.

"Hn?"

"Huh?"

Zenom and Toris are exchanging glances. Huh? Did I say something strange? Zenom and Toris are making slightly difficult faces. Ah, so that was it was about.

"Nn~ so it was about that. It seems like I made you two strain yourselves a bit. Thanks. But, it's fine even if you don't worry about it too much for now. And, I don't think I want to make adventurers into my subordinates. Even if I had them they'd only be useful for something like forced reconnaissance or so. And it's not too late to start thinking about stuff like that when it's required. Of course~ if there's a good talent then I would want to scout them out. But, that's still a story for quite a while in the future."

I said that and bit into the leg meat again. It's seriously delicious, this.

"Hmm, certainly, I might have been in a bit too much of a hurry."

"Right."

Toris laughed a bit embarrassingly after being nudged in the side by Bel.

.....

After we finished dinner, we had some relaxing tea while getting massages in order from Giberuti. It's still only been about 2-3 hours since we arrived here.

Around 6 pm I'm sure. Recently it doesn't even take us a full day to clear through the 4th and 5th floors like before. Though as expected no matter how used to them we get there's no way to clear through the 4th to 6th floors in just one day so there's not much meaning even if the speed we clear through gets a bit shorter. Well, it's good that we have more time to relax after we finish the 5th floor so that's fine.

It's a weird way of putting it but we've started to feel like this teleport room on the 5th floor has become an exclusive room of the {Slaughterers}. Since we're spending close to half of each month sleeping in this room it's completely started to feel like our own home and we've even decided where everyone is sleeping ahead of time at this point, we even went a bit overboard and a short while after I bought Giberuti we had him carry some rubber cloth in a couple of times and made a small simple bath for washing our feet.

We can continue relaxing like this until 8 pm or so and after that we can leave things to Giberuti until around midnight while resting. After that we have four shifts in groups of two for 1 hour each to lookout. Around 4 in the morning we all wake up and eat, take a simple shower in order and then departing for the 6th floor just before 6 am is our usual schedule. Tonight I'm on the last shift together with Bel from 3–4 am. Since the amount of time we have to remain awake to keep lookout was halved, and the fact that we can all get at least 4 hours of sleep and completely recover our of mana, just that had plenty of meaning in purchasing Giberuti. Up until then due to the rotations of our shifts there were times when mana hadn't full recovered by 4 am. It might seem like Giberuti's sleeping time is short but he's probably making up for that with afternoon naps.

.....

I was woken up at 3 in the morning by Ralpha and Angela. I guess it's time to change shifts for keeping lookout. I take off my eye mask and crawl out from my blanket. I grab my bayonet while still in my under armor and barefoot and yawn while walking to the area that's become the kitchen. I put some cold water into a wooden cup and drank it all at once. Along with a ringing sensation in my temple that cold water woke me up all at once. Bel is drinking some cold water the same way next to me. It sure is convenient being able to use water and fire magic right.

After that I used earth magic to create something like a bench where we could sit down and, we greeted each other before going into a short daze. Since we’re the last in order for night watch, it’s not like we’re going to be sleeping again after this, after this we’ll just take an adequate shower and put on our armor.

“Morning.”

“Good morning.”

“Is it fine to go ahead first?”

“Yeah.”

Bel put in a word with me before going to take her shower first. Since both Bel and I have plenty of MP we can get away with using level 3 water and fire magic and level 4 void magic for a total of 10 MP on our morning shower. It recovers in about 1 hour after all. Thinking about the drainage our shower facility is about 1m higher now. I made a foundation from dirt and stone and then we placed boards on top of that. We tilted several of the boards just a bit. There’s a light slope on the lower ones and it stretches to about 20m outside of the room. The slope sinks in a bit and I cut off a piece of rubber cloth stretched out thin to lay out in it so you could say for the time being it functions plenty as a drain.

I felt a bit like taking a piss but as expected it’s not good for both of us to move away while were on lookout duty. I’m sure Bel’s shower will only take a few minutes so I’ll just wait. Ah, I’m in the faction that it’s no good to do while showering. It still remains in my memory that my parent’s in my past life properly disciplined me to do it in the toilet. It’s already been 16 years since then, I wonder if my parents are still alive? If they are then both of them would long since be..88 years old I guess?

Hn? Come to think of it Miki should still be alive as well. And, she’s in this world too, no, was in this world. So there was two of her existence for at least close to 60 years? I could have sworn that Orth was just a different planet or something somewhere in the vast universe but...No, I have some memory of an SF that I read in the past. It seems that time isn't uniform throughout the universe. Let alone that if you exceed the speed of light you end up getting younger or something...I guess it doesn't particularly matter though. There's no way I would understand from just thinking about it, and I have no method of investigating it after all...

The sound of the shower behind me stopped. I guess she's done. Ever since I gave her that present, Bel has bought some thick towels with her own money like a lady and properly wipes her body. I often dry her hair with my magic as well. Of course I don't use something like a towel to wipe my body. I just dry my entire body in an instant with magic and it's over.

Shortly after, I can hear the sound of Bel putting on her underwear and clothes and it seems she's come out of the shower room.

"Sorry, before I dry your hair I've got to go to the bathroom."

"Ah, please do."

I go down the passage we've setup as a bathroom and turn down the first corner to the left facing the corner wall as I started to take a piss. And, then I immediately noticed. Someone is approaching. Is it Bel? Wait a bit longer for me to finish up. Even I managed to wait for you to finish your shower.

"Al-san!"

I heard Bel calling out to me from the right side, the direction of the room. Simultaneously I heard the footsteps of Bel running over from the room.

Eh?

"Al-san, someone is coming!"

Bel's voice is coming from my right.

Eh?

I reflexively turned just my head around to the left. After being told I realized that several people were coming closer from further in the hall.

Eh?

I look at my hands. There's a light yellow fluid flowing out that can't be stopped. Ah, the fat is gradually being removed from the Martian*.

Eh?

I look behind to the right. Bel is coming running down the hall.

Eh?

I look behind on the left. The silhouettes that were approaching from further down the hall appear to have stopped.

I felt relieved.

“Al-san!”

I look behind on the right. Bel is already 10m or so away.

Don’t look over here. I can’t stop suddenly.

“Uwa, Bel! Don’t come over here!”

She already has her short sword in her hand. She’s holding it inside of the scabbard and hasn’t drawn it though.

Bel comes to a stop.

The only sound coming from the hall is that of a liquid hitting the ground. What kind of torture is this. But I guess it’s still good luck that at least it wasn’t the large one?

Eventually the pitiful trickling sound came to an end and I was finally able to put it away. I immediately used earth magic to bury and hide it.

I forcefully swallowed the awkward feeling and after looking at Bel nodded and used {Light} on a rock further down the hall. Those guys are...

“{Sun Ray}..”

Bel said in a whisper. Certainly that’s the case. About 40m ahead they’re standing, it’s {Sun Ray}. I looked at them for a few seconds and then went to Bel’s side, just as I was about to put my hand on her shoulder I realized I hadn’t washed my hands yet so I stopped. Instead I called out to her.

“Let’s go back.”

I said that and we returned the teleport room.

.....

After returning to the teleport room and I guess the members of the {Slaughterers} got used to it on the 3rd floor teleport room but they were still boldly covered in their blankets. Since I started to feel a bit like testing it out, with a normal speaking voice I, tried saying that. Unexpectedly everyone quickly opened their eyes. Ralpa even woke up right away and grabbed the {tomahawk} that was sitting on her side. Even though she should have just fallen asleep..I’m amazing she was able to wake up.

“Everyone, wake up.”

“We have a guest.”

I said that and took a seat on the bench-like seat. I want to wash my feet and put my socks and shoes on...Bel grabbed her bow and arrows and crossed through the room in long steps before taking up a seat in the corner.

Soon after the members of {Sun Ray} entered the room. A total of 8 people huh? They all have a cloth dyed gold on their right arm. I can see the mark of a Torii on the surface of the shield one guy is using as well. The emblem of the party is the Torii mark. Although, the only top team with something like a party emblem is them. After they all entered the room they made surprised faces seeing how comfortable the corner of the room we were in looked but they went to a different corner to start making preparations to camp. Seeing that we were pretty surprised as well.

“So they’ve caught up with us huh..”

Zenom whispered. That’s right. The fact that they aren’t returning the upper floors and are preparing to camp means none other than the fact that they intend to aim for the 6th floor. I wonder if we should quickly clear through the 6th floor already and aim for the 7th floor? Right now, we’ve filled in about 60% of the map of the 6th floor. Honestly speaking, if it was just making it to the 7th floor then it wouldn’t be all that difficult. Since if we teleport from here about 50% of the time we end up on a floor we’ve been to before after all.

However, wait just a minute. They also say, “a beggar in a hurry will receive less”. Up until now we’ve always aimed to complete at least 80% of the map before heading to the next floor. It can't be helped hurrying over something like this. Other people have their way of doing things and we have our way.

"I'm sure these sorts of things happen. However, we who have Gwine have been exploring the 6th floor for quite a while. Even though they're one of the top teams, we won't be overtaken so easily."

And in the first place, there's quite a few members of {Sun Ray}(if I remember correctly it's about 15–16 in total). Up until about six months ago it seems like they were doing rotations but recently they've started splitting their party into groups as they cleared through. Though there's a groundless rumor that the reason for that is us.

"They've been exploring the 5th floor since before we came to Baldukk. For the past six months they should have been splitting their team up while exploring. It makes sense why their clearing speed is faster than the other top teams. In that sort of meaning you could say that we're far stranger."

I said that and stood up. Since it doesn't particularly seem like they intend to fight with us, in that case then I thought of taking a shower right away.

"Since it seems fine, you can all rest at east until it's time. And, it's fine we depart a bit later today as well. I'm going to take a shower after drying off Bel's hair."

I said that before drying Bel's hair and then after entering the shower room, I took my clothes off. I put my clothes into the basket and hung it on the wall. I quickly took a shower and then used magic to dry my entire body before putting my clothes on. After leaving I put my socks and shoes on as well. I put my rubber protectors on and after confirming that Bel has finished putting her leather armor on, I exchanged glances with Bel and started approaching where {Sun Ray} were preparing to setup camp.

The members of {Sun Ray} noticed I was approaching and faced me so I called out to them after getting a bit closer.

"Just now was...sorry about showing you something quite unsightly...I'm Alan Greed. I'm the leader of the party {Slaughterers}. I recognize you all as {Sun Ray} but who is today's leader?"

There's no decided leader in {Sun Ray}. It seems they take turns among several people.

Of course it's not as if all of them take turns being the leader though.

I guess they heard my words, I heard a voice from behind me.

"I'm the leader. My name is Binsukol.Zemyunel. Do you have some business with us?"

So today it's this guy huh? He's a Dog-people man and his age is around 27–28. If I remember correctly his level was 17. I turn around to him and open my mouth.

"No, it's nothing significant. You might already know but on the 6th floor {Cave Boars} appear. Since their noses are good I suggest you take a shower before going to the 6th floor. If it's alright with you then I don't mind if you use the shower facility that we've prepared. It's made so that as long as you have someone who can use water magic of at least level 3 then you can take a shower with no problem."

After I said that and Zemyunel said while surprised.

"Oh~ is that so. It's our first time on the 6th floor. Thank you for the advice. Also, I'm grateful for letting us use your facilities."

He said that and lowered his head.

"No, it's fine. Ah, if you don't know how to use it then please ask my slave that will be remaining here. Well then."

I said that and returned to the encampment of the {Slaughterers}. What encampment?

After that, when it became time we all ate breakfast and then took showers in order before teleporting to the 6th floor.

It seems like {Sun Ray} only leave one person to keep watch.

Chapter 139: Undesirable Role

Year 7444, Month 8, Day 25

After we teleported to the 6th floor we started exploring the same as usual. We poke the ground with a long stick while remaining cautious of all directions, if there's a teleport trap we follow along the walls of the passage to avoid it as we proceed. And then, after entering the 5th monster room we've found for today, we froze the lower bodies of a group of {Quad-Hand Apes} that appeared before killing them and after unfreezing them it was just as we were gathering the magic stones.

The time was just past 3 in the afternoon or so.

“Al-san! Someone is coming!”

Gwine who was being cautious of the passage shouted a warning.

There's three other passages than the one we used to enter the room but Toris is watching the passage we entered and one other, and then Gwine was watching the remaining two. One person came staggering into the room from one of the passages Gwine was being cautious of. After the intruder saw us surprised yet prepare for combat they threw down their spear and held up both of their arms, and cried while screaming. Fumu. She has the dyed golden cloth on her right arm.

“Thank god! I'm not a monster! I'm Ginger from {Sun Ray}! What in the world is going on with this floor!? Please save me!”

【Virginia.Newman/15/8/7418】

【Female/24/6/7417 ▪ Human ▪ Newman Family Eldest Daughter】

【Status: Normal】

【Age: 27 Years Old】

【Level: 14】

【HP: 92(123) MP: 6(6)】

【Strength: 17】

【Speed: 20】

【Dexterity: 18】

【Endurance: 18】

【Special Ability: Small Magic】

【Experience: 393156(450000)】

At the very least her name doesn't seem to be a lie. And it's true that I saw her face this morning as well.

I watched as Angela carefully approached her and picked up her spear before opening my mouth.

“Certainly, you seem to be a member of {Sun Ray} but..are you alone?”

Zenom stands on my left. Zulu is still gathering the magic stones and while Bel casually went to the corner of the room, Ralph moved around her surrounding her on both sides. Toris and Gwine are each continuing to remain cautious of and observe the passages.

“I got separated from my part..everyone, I wonder what they're doing, I don't know what's going on. We suddenly were attack bed a wild boar monster and when everyone was fighting suddenly the wild boars increased. I moved away a bit to avoid the charge of the wild boar and suddenly I was alone! What's going on? When I realized it after that I was in a strange place..”

Ginger said that while facing the side and after unfastening her helmet and holding it in her left hand, she bit the nail of her right hand. It seems like she's considerably reached her mental limits from that expression and facial color.

“Well, calm down a bit. I'm sure it's difficult though. Right now we're being cautious so it's alright. Ah, if you're fine with water then please have some.”

After I said that and Ginger stopped biting her name and took the flask I gave her before taking two large sips.

“Thank you. I've already calmed down..”

I signal to Angela to return her spear and then started thinking, what should we do. It doesn't particularly matter if we just bring her along like this as well. Even if we lost along the way I think we should be able to arrive at the teleport room on the 6th floor in about an hour. And after that just like that she can return to the 5th floor or surface.

“What should we do?”

Zenom started talking to me. There’s no question about it, there’s no option other than to bring her along right. We could just abandon her, or steal all of her equipment and leave her unconscious here and no one would ever know but I’m not a robber or a yakuza adventurer like {Bright Blade}.

“It can’t be helped right.”

After I said that and Gwine remained cautious while saying.

“Is it fine?”

She might be able to figure out the methods to find teleport traps, how to avoid them, and a small portion of the path to the teleport room on the 6th floor. Furthermore, in the worst case there’s a monster room ahead of here we would end up having to fight without freezing the monsters. Well, unless it’s a considerably powerful opponent it doesn’t particularly matter though. In the past, I remember the adventurer we saved on the 1st floor from the slimes.

The common sense of Baldukk is normally to just split up a bit of water and food and say “Then, be careful now” before splitting up. Otherwise have her pay a reasonable compensation. It’s said that a reasonable compensation is roughly five times the the compensation paid to a guide. The market price of a guide for one day is 100,000 Z (10 silver coins) on the 1st floor. 200,000 Z on the 2nd floor. Though there’s no people willing to act as guides past that. Well, you could consider it the premium compensation of a limited express guide. If you were to go off that standard then since this is the 6th floor it would be 600,000 Z and then five times that amount for 3,000,000 Z. It’s quite a large sum.

I glanced at Gwine from the side and then returned my gaze to Ginger before opening my mouth.

“If it’s food and water we can split up some with you. We’re about to head towards the teleport room on the 6th floor but if you wish then we’re fine if you come along with us. However..”

I checked Ginger's state after saying that far. She's probably already no good alone. It seems her mentality was pretty close it's limit alone so sooner or later she'll die.

"If you'll bring me together with you to the teleport room then I'll give an expression of my gratitude..how about 500,000 Z?"

Hearing that I was about to burst into laughter but I somehow manage to remain expressionless and cover it up.

However, Zenom who was next to me broke into laughter.

"Bufu..Hey you. What kind of joke is that? This is the 6th floor. Since you're in {Sun Ray} I think you know common sense though. Or did no one in {Sun Ray} teach you any common sense?"

"..I know it's not enough. But, 500,000 Z is my entire fortune that I can pay right now."

Ginger said while biting her lip. Ah, come to think of it there was the rumor that the members from {Sun Ray} donate most of their income to the temple. I guess that was true?

"Ginger-san, do you know the market price?"

Toris said in a flat voice.

"I believe I know it. Since this is the 6th floor...I guess around 4,000,000?"

Ho~ She estimated it even higher than I did. Well, it is a floor that almost no one has stepped on until now so I guess she thought a bonus would be required as well. I,

"It seems that you're 3,500,000 Z short but...What do you intend to do?"

said that and crossed my arms.

"..That is..I'll sell my spear and armor.."

Ginger said that while biting her lip. Yeah, as far as I can tell it does seem to be of a decent quality but even if she sells her leather armor and spear it shouldn't reach 3,500,000 Z. Even a brand new high-quality spear is only about 800,000 Z (if it comes to the level of being considered a special grade then it's not strange for them to be 5,000,000 — 6,000,000 but no matter how I look at it that spear isn't one) and even brand new leather armor is at most 700,000 Z. When it comes to used goods even if they've been properly maintained, putting aside the spear, since leather armor has to be matched to individual size they're dirt cheap. Even at best it'd be a matter of whether you can get 100,000 Z for it.

I look at Ginger who is lost on words while thinking. There is one more method that technically exists. Selling yourself. You end up becoming a slave but it's possible to earn a decently large sum of money. Particularly in her case, since she was a member of one of the top teams it wouldn't be strange at all for a slave trader to buy her for 10,000,000 Z.

Eh? Why don't I buy and use her? If she could use the shield then I would have done that but the spear is~ We only have room for one more person and won't we be full once we include a shield user? It's not like we can exclude the reincarnated people and Zenom is out of the question. Zulu and Angela have become quite useful and including their personalities and the fact that they know we're reincarnated people I can't exclude them either. Giberuti? Don't be an idiot. If we don't have a {porter} then what are we going to do about supplies?

Furthermore, you never know when Miduchi will come back as well. It might still take another couple of months though. Since we'll have Miduchi's Unit Organization at that time, I think we'll be fine even if it increases for Giberuti's spot. It's fine as long as we can group back up in the teleport rooms on the 5th and 6th floors after all and even if acted independently from the {Slaughterers} party I would probably be fine. And in regards to the {Slaughterers} party even without me as long as they have Miduchi they should be fine as well.

"I understand. Even then that amount is fine. However, it's the price of your life. The portion you're lacking..how about we have you pay it with something different.."

After I said that and Ginger,

"Something different?"

and said as if repeating me. And then Ralpha,

“For example, like your body?”

and said before bursting into laughter. Would you please remain quiet already. I glare at Ralpa and intentionally acted in admiration, and whispered in a loud voice. Ginger flinched.

“..That isn’t half bad either. Since she seems to have trained properly and her muscles seem quite flexible.”

“Al!”

“Al-san!”

Ralpa and Gwine shouted. Ah, you two are seriously loud~

“Shut up~ you idiots. Stop talking about such pointless crap and remain quiet. Now then, Ginger-san. {Sun Ray} is making a map right? It’s famous that you all bring back quite good ores. Obviously, you’ve filled in the places where you’re gathering them right? Then there’s no problem~ I won’t say to give us your map. It’s fine if you just let us secretly transcribe it when we return.”

and I said that while smiling. After hearing my remarks Ginger,

“So you were aiming for the mining location..I’m sorry. The floor maps are managed by the leaders. A normal member like me can’t even look at them normally let alone borrowing them is even more impossible. And I can’t betray my allies..But, if you’re really fine with my body, then after we return you can embrace me as much as you like.”

and said that after facing downwards. Hmph, it seems their party has a reasonable amount of unity.

“Ah, there’s no need to worry about what that idiot was saying. I don’t have even the slightest bit of that sort of intention. However, in that case we’re quite troubled.”

As a matter of fact I’m really troubled.

Ginger is getting depressed repeating, “..not even the slightest bit..”, but when I already have Miduchi it’s not like I could do something like that right. Even if it was before I met Miduchi, I wouldn’t say something like that.

It’s not particularly that I want chump change like 4,000,000 Z. It seems she’s got a decent amount of skill but I wouldn't really want her as a combat slave either. I also wouldn't want to do what I please with her body to make up for the remainder either. In the first place, how many times would that even add up to being her partner...Calculating from 3,500,000 Z and if it was going to the average cheap brothel in town that would add up to several hundred times, maybe even a thousand times. If we could at least get our hands on the information about the vein of ores then it would be plenty in return but judging from this it looks impossible. Ah, I guess I could just have her create a debt. But, it's not like something like a bank exists and she probably would only be able to borrow from other members of {Sun Ray}. If they refuse then that's the end of it.

How troubling...It can't be helped~ since this is an unusual case, here I'll... and, Bel who hadn't spoken a word in the corner up until now approached our side.

"There's no end to it..Al-san, please leave this to me."

Bel said that and without waiting for my response walked out front.

"..Ginger-san. If you don't want to become a slave then please pay with your heart. Right here and now the price of your life is 4,000,000 Z. Pay the 500,000 Z and the remaining 3,500,000 Z you should return to us someday in your actions. Right her and now please swear your loyalty to our leader, Greed-san."

Just when I thought she came out from the side Bel started casually saying something outrageous. However, what is she saying..."swear your loyalty" what does that even mean?

While everyone is dumbfounded, Bel continues her words.

"If you can do that then there's no need to pay the money you can't afford. It's fine if you sell your heart here. As compensation for your loyalty, we'll save your life...Ah, of course we don't need something like a contract. It's possible for you to betray us and it's also possible for you to obey here and then pretend not to know later. But, once we realize that or are left with that sort of impression, what happens next I'll leave up to your imagination."

No, you, what are you deciding all on your own...It's fine though you know. While we've frozen up hearing Bel's statement, including Ginger no one could say a single word. While we were all like that Bel continued even more.

“Please decide on your own if you think this is cheap or expensive. We won’t force it on you. It’s fine if you want to sell yourself as a slave and pay the remaining 3,500,000 Z as well and if you can’t pay that large amount, it’s also fine for us to split up here as well. In that case, if you try to follow after us you’ll become an attack target though. Of course, if you have some method of obtaining the money soon after we return then that’s not a problem either. Please decide right now, whether you’ll pay, or won’t pay, if you will pay will it be with money, or something different.”

After saying that Bel shut her mouth and stared at Ginger. When a beauty makes a cold face and says cold things it really makes you shudder. However..even if you don’t take that sort of method..Well I guess it’s fine. Sorry about that, Bel.

“Bel, don’t drive her so far into the corner. Ginger-san, for today we’ll give you the special bargain of 500,000 Z. Since we would have originally gotten the income of 4,000,000 Z I’ll have to pay the members a bonus. As expected we can’t do it for free. And it will end up teaching you some of the tricks to getting through the 6th floor after all. Ah, I won’t particularly stop you from telling {Sun Ray} about that when you return. If you want to talk about it feel free. There’s nothing special I’ll do about that. That’s why, please relax. We’ll definitely return you to the teleport room on the 6th floor.”

I said that and looked at Zulu who’s still gathering the magic stones. One more huh? I returned my gaze back to Ginger and she’s making an openly relieved expression. I don’t know whether this goes far enough to be considered a favor to her. Well, even if we just abandoned her to her death it would be the source of some bad dreams as well.

While waiting for Zulu to finish gathering the magic stone, we started down the passage which seems most likely to lead to the center of the 6th floor that Toris was watching over. Along the way we were attacked just once by a group of 5 {Vampire Bats} but just as would be expected from one of the weakest monsters on the 6th floor we wiped them out in no time just by stabbing them to death with no magic.

The reason the ceilings of the 6th floor is so high is probably because these {Vampire Bats} are here. When they suddenly come swooping down at you if you calm down and use {Light} in front of their faces you can cause them to flinch and you can tell where they're flying for the next five minutes as well. After that you just need to wait until they come down aiming at someone and stab them with a spear or sword, or Bel can shoot them with her bow.

We ran into several teleport traps along the way but we were able to get past them easily by going through the sides and soon after we arrived at the teleport room on the 6th floor.

“Now then, let's return shall we?”

I said that and grabbed on to the crystal rod. Once I confirmed that everyone had grabbed it including Ginger, we returned to the teleport room on the 5th floor.

.....

After returning to the teleport room on the 5th floor there were only four people excluding Giberuti. Excluding Ginger that means three people weren't able to return. The leader Zenmyunel is among one of the four that returned. Ginger returned along with us and the members of {Sun Ray} including the leader Zemyunel let out a shout of joy after being surprised but the leader Zemyunel immediately came over to me and lowered his head.

“It seems you protected Ginger. I offer you my thanks. Thank you very much.”

“Ah, please don't worry about it. We've already properly received her thanks. There's no problem.”

“Eh? I see.”

Zemyunel said with a slightly confused face. I,

“By the way, I've heard the circumstances from Ginger-san. It seems that three people still haven't returned..”

said that and changed the topic.

“We took quite a bit of damage..It seems that the 6th floor was still too soon for us.”

I don't know if it was too soon but if the situation I heard about from Ginger is correct then it's not surprising. I'm sure you were surprised over all the firsts right? It seems like you have bad luck as well. However, you brought us quite the useful information. I'm greatly thankful for that. After all it seems that the destinations of the teleport traps on the 6th floor are random. Though if you hold hands while jumping in at the same time you might end up together, we really don't feel up for testing it out.

“I really can't say anything...It would be good if your allies can safely return.”

I couldn't do anything more than say that with an unfortunate face.

“Come to think of it, you just said you've already received thanks from Ginger but I can't imagine she was in possession of that much money though..”

Zemyunel made an expression as if inquiring from us as he said it.

“Yeah, we haven't actually received it yet but we received a promise to accept 500,000 Z from her over the incident this time.”

After hearing me say casually Zemyunel,

“500,000!? For just that much...”

and shouted that. Hearing that the other members of {Sun Ray} were wondering what was going on and looking over here. Ginger explained that “The {Slaughterers} brought me to the teleport room on the 6th floor for just 500,000 Z”. They raised equally surprised voices.

“If she says she can't pay anymore than that then it can't be helped. It doesn't feel very good to just leave someone to die after all.”

and I shrugged my shoulders while replying.

“Umm..As a matter of fact, I know this is very rude, but today when I talked with everyone about going to the 6th floor..”

Zemyunel started to talk hesitantly. About what?

“If one of you were to seek our help on the 6th floor how much would we require to save one person and..”

Hmph. Well anyone talks about things on that level lightly.

“And, as expected since there’s a lot of danger to the 6th floor, we thought it wouldn’t be cheap, and..”

That’s only obvious. Even I thought about 3,000,000 Z at first.

“We came to the conclusion that 4,000,000 Z per person still wouldn’t be worth it..”

So that’s why Ginger said 4,000,000 Z. I get it.

“But, it seems I just heard you saved Ginger for 500,000 Z and..”

It’s about the cost of saving someone on the 1st floor. But it’s fine.

“Really..Thank you very much.”

I waved my hand while turning around as if saying not to worry about it and returned to everyone else.

Bel properly left an impression on her. They say there’s nothing more expensive than free. Ah, I guess it still wasn’t free huh?

Chapter 140: Ideal

Year 7444, Month 8, Day 25

After I returned to where everyone else was I thought to take a shower and feel refreshed but it was right after Gwine had jumped into the shower room. For her to take one before me, what a shameless girl, is what I was thinking but after giving it more thought Gwine was especially careful on the way back not to reveal her Unique Ability to Ginger. Yeah, for today Gwine has earned the right to first shower I guess...Next is, Bel. And after that next would be Toris. I guess I'm fine later. I'm not all that tired either way.

"Bel-san, hot water~"

It seems that after taking off her leather armor and clothes Gwine entered the shower room. Bel says yes-yes~ while putting some hot water into the bucket above the back of the shower room. Zenom still has his armor on as he relaxes a bit sticking his feet in the foot bath. Ralpha and Angela are helping out Toris to remove his banded-mail. They hang the armor that's been taken off on the armor stand against the wall and after that each one of them checks their weapons for damage. Giberuti seems to have lit up the stove magic tool. The vegetables and meat he cut up is sizzling as it echoes through the room.

I feel a bit sorry for {Sun Ray} but it's the peaceful daily life of the {Slaughterers}.

After I went to Giberuti's side and,

"This time we'll return tomorrow or the day after tomorrow, so don't worry about the remaining amount of ingredients and make some for them as well."

said that before pointing at the five members of {Sun Ray} who were whispering about something with my chin.

Giberuti smiled and,

"I understand, master."

said that before adding more vegetables and meat to the frying pan. The large pot on the stove next to it was lit as well.

“About how long will it take before it’s ready to eat?”

and I asked that,

“About 15 minutes.”

the reply came back. I guess about the time Bel finishes her shower. I take off my rubber protectors and after returning to my under armor I said to Bel, “Next, Bel you take yours. Also, thanks for today. Since it was a good chance. I’ll make good use of it.” before starting to check my bayonet. As a matter of fact I didn’t even use it once today but checking it is still necessary. After confirming there’s no problem really quick and I started towards {Sun Ray} on the other side of the room. It was just as they were digging through bags in order to prepare their meals. It was good timing.

Judging from the guy who pulled it out first it seems their meal is something like rock hard soba with some dried meat and a single cucumber. I guess it’s still better than those shitty disgusting cookie-like preserved foods.

“Zemyunel-san, if it’s alright with you, would you all like to join us for a meal? We have something warm. And after your meal, feel free to take a shower as well. You’ll feel refreshed.”

I said that and smiled. Zemyunel,

“No, I’m grateful for the offer but, however, to go that far..”

and started trying to show some reservation but,

“Please don’t hold back. And, the food that we went out of the way to prepare will go to waste.”

and I replied like that while smiling at their other members including Ginger. The members of {Sun Ray} exchanged glances before waiting for Zemyunel’s decision.

“I understand. Please allow us to rely on your kindness. I would definitely like to eat together with you.”

After confirming that Zemyunel replied like that I turned around and went back.

.....

Zenom and Ralpha, Toris and Bel, Gwine and Angela, Zulu and Giberuti, each of them share their tableware in groups of two, if we take out the one remaining set then that should be good for the five of them to share. Me? Of course I use mine alone. The meal was a stir fry of meat, vegetables with onions, cabbage, pumpkin, carrots, bacon, and then a warm soup made from dried meat as well.

“It’s nothing but please warm yourselves up.”

I said that and started eating. The members of {Sun Ray} started off showing quite a bit of restraint but after all it seems they were hungry and it was their first proper meal in a few days, so they quickly started devouring it.

The food disappeared in no time at all but I think we were able to provide plenty in amount.

“No, Greed-san. You not only took care of one of our members but even a meal..It was delicious. Thank you for very much. It’s been about four days since we had a warm meal so we were all happy.”

Zemyunel said while handing the tableware to Giberuti. Matching up with him the members of {Sun Ray} all said their thanks as well.

“No, please don’t take mind of it...By the way, it’s a slightly rude question but what are you planning to do about the members that still haven’t returned?”

though I said that, it’s nothing more than a social courtesy. There’s no method of searching for them so there’s no other method than for them to return to their teleport crystal or make it to the teleport room on the 6th floor on their own abilities. Even if we blindly try to search the 6th floor the chances of discovering them are pretty minuscule. Zemyunel made a difficult face after hearing my words.

“..It can’t be helped but searching is probably impossible. I intend to camp here for a few days while waiting but we only carry around one day worth preserved food on each of us. Even if they drag out eating it three days is the limit I’m sure..”

Well, that's probably true. I,

"Let's just pray that the three of them didn't end up in different locations. Two people rather than one person, three people rather than two people, the chances of them safely remaining alive will increase."

and I said with a serious face encouraging them.

"That's right.."

and Zemyunel said that facing downwards. It's only obvious but he's probably feeling responsible. That's right, it's almost 100% your responsibility. If you just listen to and investigate even bit of the rumors you can learn that on the 6th floor teleporting occurs even though there's no crystals. Or Rather, it's stranger that an adventurer of this town doesn't know about it. It's unbelievable that just they didn't know about it. Obviously they were probably careful.

While it can be said there's no helping the fact that another monster suddenly intruded during combat, the fact that you couldn't take charge of the members enough to keep them from running away to avoid it in that situation is your problem. I don't know how {Sun Ray} chooses their leaders but if this is the first leader they send to the 6th floor then there's probably no good talents among them. After all they're just adventurers.

"Well, please don't get too depressed. How about taking a shower and feeling refreshed? Koloil-kun prepare some hot water."

It's fine to reflect on mistakes but it can't be helped worrying about it forever. Rather than that, what you need to think about it is the best way to camp here as long as possible waiting for your allies. If I was you, I'd have all of my allies give me their food and the rest of them return to the surface ahead of time to hold out even just a bit longer. Otherwise if you have the leeway, start negotiations for us to sell you some food.

Obviously we already have preparations made in the case that one of our members gets caught and separated from a teleport trap. Including the slaves everyone is already holding a copy of the portions of the map we've already made and if possible they're supposed to leave signs on the ground while heading towards the center, if they end up feeling in danger then they should focus on protecting themselves and move to a place they think is safe, and then they should remain there without moving waiting for help as long as possible. Particularly before we had finished more than 50% of the map we paid extra care that we definitely wouldn't end up splitting up. That's the biggest reason our exploration speed was slow. Though I think that Gwine could return all on her own.

If the one who gets separated is me then I told them to not worry and just wait either on this 5th floor or leave Giberuti and wait on the surface or if it's someone other me, then we'll leave just me and Giberuti and the rest will all return to the surface once and try to hire a porter to carry as much food as possible and somehow make it back to here. It's more efficient for me to search alone and even in the chance that they manage to return here while I'm searching since Giberuti is here I can relax and focus on it.

That's why, when we returned bringing along Ginger I found it so strange there were four people there. I don't think that Dog-people race only have as much intelligence as a dog but is this guy an idiot? is what I thought. If I hadn't called out to them first, they were all about to eat together just now.

After I mentioned it, after all they must have wanted to change the mood so Zemyunel decided to take a shower. Since she was instructed by me Bel stood up and headed towards the shower. I offer tea to the remaining members as we try to talk about cheerful things.

"He's a good leader right. It seems he's truly worried about the members who were separated."

I said that while in the top of my mind Miduchi's words, "it seems that people who can casually tell lies are paranoia" floated up. I guess paranoia is an exaggeration. A psychopath huh? Either way is fine. I don't really get it and going off my feeling they're both the same madmen so there's not much difference.

"Yeah, even though Ben is young he's quite the leader. His command in combat is accurate as well. Well he's a rising member and a trump card of us Sun Ray."

The 30 year old human male replied. However, even though you're already at 30 and you're still at that level huh?

If I remember correctly he uses a round shield and battle mace. I don't remember his name but I think his level 16...Ah, Harukein.Fumiz, level 17 huh? If this guy had been the one who had gotten separated instead of Ginger then I would have gladly made him fall to slavery since he can use the shield.

"But, Greed-san you're quite the person as well. Even though you're this young, you saved me for an amount that is almost free."

Ginger said while showing some reservations towards Bel. Bel is making hot water and putting it into the bucket with an unconcerned face like nothing happened. Furthermore, all of the members of the {Slaughterers} had bitter smiles on their faces. The only ones who were nodded as if deeply impressed were Angela and Zulu. Rather~ youth has nothing to do with it right.

"No, it's unpleasant to abandon someone who came seeking help after all... And it wasn't anything that required much effort."

I said as if I was embarrassed. Each of the members of {Sun Ray} started thanking me.

"No~ it's not something that can be done so easily. We couldn't have said anything even if you abandoned Ginger. Really thank you."

"Just as rumored you seem to be quite the good person. As expected of one of the tops of Baldukk."

"Honestly speaking, I thought Ginger would end up becoming a slave. But it's quite good that prediction was wrong."

Is there nothing but idiots in {Sun Ray}? If it was {Verdure Brotherhood}, {Black Topaz}, or {Gehenna Flare} then these idiots wouldn't even be qualified to join them. Things like thanks and flattery you can say as much as you want when we return to the surface.

I make sure not to show how amazed I am on my face while continuing my words. It's fine just to make good use of idiots. Well since even these people are "a corner of the top teams" so they're not just idiots. I'm sure they can fight reasonably well and they should have gained experienced in the dungeon as well.

"By the way, I think it would be good if all you take a shower after Zemyunel-san as well. If you shower in warm water I think your feelings will calm down. Particularly Ginger since you experienced something quite frightening.”

I said that and smiled again.

“That’s right. Please let me do that. I certainly felt refreshed after the shower before noon.”

Ginger said. I heard from Giberuti when we got back but it seems that two of the three who haven’t returned yet used water magic. Even though it’s summer I ‘m sure that just a cold water shower in the dungeon is harsh. Something like the mana from fire magic will recover right away so isn’t it fine to head out after taking a break?

“Please feel free to use that as you wish from here on out. It’s true that it’s refreshing but even more than that the wild boars on the 6th floor are sensitive to smells after all.”

“So that’s what it was! Shit!”

The one who suddenly raised his voice in comprehension was..Jerutodo.Ramires. 24 years old. Level 13 huh?

“It’s Bogu. Didn’t he not take a shower because he said it was cold. Because of that wild boars came consecutively..”

“Ah...”

“Come to think of it..”

“Certainly..”

At first I was a bit surprised but it made sense. So there was one guy who didn’t take a shower? Honestly speaking I don’t know if it’s really all that related but since there’s no way other than asking the wild boars, this is quite convenient. All of the members of {Slaughterers} are doing it and nodding. You’re all quite the actors~

“There’s that sort of reason for properly taking a shower and getting rid of the smell before going to the 6th floor.”

Toris came out explaining it.

“Just as our Greed said just now, the wild boars have a sense of smell on the same level as dogs. That means it's on the same level as the Dog-people's Super Sense of Smell..Most likely you all took several days to make it up to here in the dungeon right? Of course, there's probably members who got some blood on them as well. It's important to wash away all of that."

and Toris courteously said. The four members of {Sun Ray} are nodding in admiration.

"That's why we spent quite a bit of work to create this sort of facility you can take a shower in here."

and Zenom continued off of Toris's words.

"I see now.."

"Wun..I see.."

"It does seem necessary."

"We need to do something about this as well."

Hmhm, I'm happy that you think that way.

"That's why it's a facility that you can't lack for exploring the 6th floor. Please don't break it when we're not around."

Gwine tilted her head a bit while smiling as she said. If there was no beard then it would be a bit better but..Well it's fine.

"Ah, of course. Honestly, I didn't think it was that important.."

"It's unthinkable to break it if we can use it as well."

"We need to make sure to tell everyone else when we return."

"We might need to leave someone to lookout like everyone from {Slaughterers} as well."

Yeah-yeah. Please do that. We'll eventually be heading towards the 7th floor and eventually aim for the 8th floor like Rombert the First. I want to make sure to maintain this base on the 5th floor for that time.

"I'm glad that everyone from {Sun Ray} are good people. With this I can rest easy."

Ralpa spoke while trying to use her most formal words. I nodded to Ralpa and then lowered my head while looking at the members of {Sun Ray}.

“We’re really saved that everyone has recognized it. I would like to continue with a good relationship from here on out as well.”

Seeing me with my head lowered the members of {Sun Ray} said in a hurry.

“No way..you saved one of our members, and even the shower..”

“Please raise your head. The ones who should be lowering their heads is us.”

“That’s right, we’re the ones in the position who should be requesting to let us use the shower.”

“It might be good for everyone to put forth some money and buy a slave to keep lookout like the {Slaughterers}.”

Yeah, please definitely do that. Since we can then keep moving forward without worrying about it.

While we were all having a conversation like that Zemyunel finished taking his shower and returned.

“What is it? What were talking about?”

After hearing that the members of {Sun Ray} started explaining to him how important the shower is to exploring on the 6th floor and that they need to keep a look out on it as well. If it was {Verdure Brotherhood} or {Black Topaz} I’m sure things wouldn’t have gone this well. However, with this you could say we’ve created a bit of an established fact that {Sun Ray} and the {Slaughterers} are cooperating on the front in some ways. Two of the only five top teams are teaming up.

Even if it’s the {Verdure Brotherhood} or {Black Topaz} with their true ability I doubt they would be willing to go as far as breaking the shower or putting their hands on the lookout Giberuti. About the only way to properly take us on would be for the remaining three top teams to team up together. And as far as I can tell that’s most likely impossible. After all, they all have considerably strong characteristics, particularly the {Verdure Brotherhood} who have confidence in their own abilities.

They have the basis and confidence that they were the top on the earnings front up until now. If we see each other’s face in a bar then we’ll have a drink together and make jokes but that old man Virhaima is probably the type that doesn't trust anyone. It's just my intuition but he probably doesn't even trust his own party members from the bottom of his heart. If it comes to that then I'm sure the remaining Black Topaz and {Gehenna Flare} would find it difficult to team up as well. Even if it's that sis Anderson she can calmly make decisions based on loss and gains. Rather than carelessly trying to compete with us she'll probably try to sway over here.

Since the members of {Gehenna Flare} are all dwarves just the same as usual, I'm sure they wouldn't want to make Gwine into an enemy as well. Even in worst case they'd remain neutral and in a good case while I'm sure they have no intention of getting familiar it's probably fine to think they wouldn't treat us badly.

Since {Sun Ray} were one of the more unique adventurer groups in Baldukk I thought that if something were to happen from here on out these guys would be the key but after all that was the case. No, it's not like a conclusion has come out yet though. It was just according to rumors these guys are donating almost all of their income and they almost never go drinking or to brothels like other normal adventurers. Though it's probably not that they "don't" but rather that they don't have any money and "cant".

That's why they don't have much of a contact point with other adventurers. I've been able to get along decently with the members of the other four top teams. That's why, I can roughly understand, what kind of people they are, what they're interested in, and what their values are and I'm sure they do the same for me. However, when it comes to {Sun Ray} they don't come along on almost any socializing and just follow their own path. Putting aside the facts even if it's just from appearances, I think it would be big to show as if we're working together with them here.

"Ho~ I see now. Certainly it's a plausible story."

After hearing the story from his allies Zemyunel is nodding to himself. Now then, I wonder what kind of conclusion the leader Zemyunel will come to.

Incidentally, if I was him I'd avoid coming to an immediate decision here and earn some time by negotiating with the other members. Of course while making sure to appear friendly to our side at the same time. After that, if possible negotiate with our side and request some funds to convince my allies with. It would be fine to say you yourself need it as well but it would be even more effective if over half of the members of {Sun Ray} were against it or someone in a higher position was against it and the money is needed to convince them or something. Of course the aim itself isn't the money.

By doing that they could even if just a little limit the options of the {Slaughterers} and while it's a weird way of putting it, appeal that {Sun Ray} isn't just one big rock as well, if they're lucky they could cause some negligence for the {Slaughterers} side. Even in worse case it would act as a check that they're not idiots.

"Greed-san. It's an offer I'm extremely grateful for and I myself would like to accept it right away but I need to confirm the wills of the other members first. However, right now I need to wait for the members we've separated from so I can't get in contact with them. I'll formally give you a response at a later date. I'm really sorry but I feel quite apologetic that I can't give you an immediate response. But, I think I'll definitely be able to give you a good reply."

Zemyunel apologetically lowered his head while saying that. Hm~n.

"No not at all, please don't mind it, it's fine for you to decide after discussing it with everyone. However, I don't think there's almost any demerits for you all as well."

I smile while responding. It seems that Ginger is taking a shower after Zemyunel.

.....

Year 7444, Month 8, Day 26

The next day, we woke up early in the morning at the same time as usual, ate breakfast, took a shower, and after putting on our equipment, we were about to start exploring the 6th floor again. When I noticed it Zemyunel had woken up and come to greet us.

"Be careful.."

"If, we happen across someone again we'll bring them back here."

“I’m very sorry. The five of us have no confidence on the 6th floor..”

“No, please don’t mind it, well then.”

We all grabbed on to the crystal rod and I chanted the incantation.

“kizutore”

.....

According to Gwine it seems that this is an area we haven’t been to before. After confirming that there’s no monsters in the surroundings we followed her words of “it seems like this direction would be best” and started advancing forward.

“Hey, Al. Do you intend to team up with {Sun Ray}?”

Ralpha said.

“Since they don’t seem like bad people, they’re fine as a partner to team up with though.”

Toris said. Somehow there’s something strange about that way of putting it.

“Right. However, I’m amazed they can manage things with a leader like that.”

Zenom said. I agree but if they’re independent of others then it’s not all that much of a problem after all.

“But, don’t they give off a better feel than the other parties?”

Bel said. Ho~ in regards to what?

“If it’s me, then I would prefer {Gehenna Flare}~”

Gwine said. You just aren’t thinking anything at all right. Don’t say it from your interests. For the time being let’s stop here.

I intentionally didn’t respond and waited for everyone to say their thoughts but as a result it seems to have settled that they’re the best ones to team up with. Yeah, if everyone has accepted that then there’s no problem. It would be fine if I decide to come out harshly on it but if possible I’d like for them to think about it, discuss it, and come to a conclusion on their own. Particularly these guys.

“Yeah, my opinion is almost the same as everyone else. They’re probably the easiest ones to cooperate with. Making them ideal is the fact that they have even more in numbers and on top of that we’ve already sold a favor to them. It should be a bit difficult for them to assert their opinion towards us. And, even if I say cooperating with them, it’s not like we’re going to get along and explore together. In the first place I’m sure they’d refuse that as well. It’s just the problem of managing the teleport crystal room. In that case I think they’re still better than the selfish guys who you never know what they’ll end up saying.”

I said that and looked around at everyone,

“There shouldn’t be almost anything that’s bad for them either. If they’ll even buy a slave them that might just cost a bit, at that level. Since they’re exploring the 5th and 6th floors they should have at least that much money to use. It’s just a matter of whether the story is worth that much of an expense. At the very least if I was one of the members of {Sun Ray} I’d think about cooperating. After that is just the problem of cooperating in what way. Everyone, just in case remain careful of the members of {Sun Ray}. You never know where they might come to try and split us up at after all. Though I probably don’t think they’ll try to do something like that.”

and said that, then started walking again as if saying that was the end of the conversation.

Chapter 141: Younger Sister

Year 7444, Month 8, Day 26

Just the same as usual, without doing anything special or hurrying along our way, we indifferently explored the 6th floor of the dungeon and then returned to the 5th floor. There's no way we'd end up running into the members of {Sun Ray}. Yesterday Ginger just had really good luck. I didn't think we'd run into them either way. There's no empty headed members among our group who thought we'd run into the members of {Sun Ray} either.

Just, since there's definitely at least two members among the three missing who can use water magic at least at level 3, it's not impossible for them to somehow make it to the teleport room on the 6th floor with just them.

That night, when we returned to the teleport room on the 5th floor, we just confirmed once again with Giberuti that of course no one had returned. Even then Zemyunel and the others lowered their heads to me. Well I'll accept just their feelings. You could say that honestly lowering your head is splendid but it's not like they lose anything from lowering their heads. Even I lower my head as much as is needed at times like these and if it's necessary I would even dogeza. If I was told to lick their shoes I would gladly lick them.

When I tried quietly asking Giberuti and they apparently tried to teleport to the 6th floor a number of times but stopped just before it seems. They're really no good. You should just leave one member remaining in the case they really come back and the rest of you should go and hire a guide or something. If it's just worrying then even a child can do it. If you were to properly pay us money then even we wouldn't be against seriously helping out.

Or else is it that? Was there a family member among the members that were separated? In that case they should think about it even more. I guess Zemyunel's confidence in his own strength is the type that causes him to get drunk on himself. The so-called, I'm a good leader because I'm worried about my members. I'm not the only thinking things like that, the other reincarnated people in our group have scorn in their eyes as well. Of course he doesn't show even a bit of that attitude openly though. Zulu, Angela, and Giberuti aren't specifically scorning him but,

"They should just sell themselves already to make money and request master."

"That's right, if they serve master like that then it would be fine."

"..I see. As expected of Zulu-sama."

And they're saying some strange things. But, even that is one method I'm sure. If they don't see that much value in saving them to go that far then they should just give up already. Though I don't need the type of person who can't even thing of, execute, or negotiate over something like that right now.

Hn? I guess that means my three slaves are considerably superior? No, it might be better to think that their way of thinking was influenced from interacting with reincarnated people. Putting aside Zulu, even Angela had a strange of way thinking at first after all.

Incidentally, it seems that they ate their own food at lunch today. Obviously I let them eat dinner with us. After we finished eating I discussed whether we should return today or make it tomorrow but everyone agreed that we should continue exploring tomorrow. I mean, in the off chance that we manage to discover them then it's quite lucky. As expected from their food situation that I heard they shouldn't be able to properly last until the day after tomorrow. At best they'll last through the end of tomorrow.

.....

Year 7444, Month 8, Day 27

Once again today we teleported into the 6th floor being seen off by {Sun Ray}. Obviously I let them eat breakfast with us. Since we ended up teleporting into an area for the first time again like yesterday, we just continued exploring like that. We passed through several monster rooms and it was just after we finished eating lunch at around noon.

We were poking the floor as usual and just about to proceed. It was a long passage connected to a lot of other passages. Bel said, “sh” and closed her eyes while concentrating on her ears just as we were moving down a slightly wide passage like that. However, she twisted her head as if it was misunderstanding and said, “It seems it was a misunderstanding. I’m sorry.” since we were ready for a monster attack we lowered the level of caution and proceeded ahead again.

After continuing for a short while, I couldn’t see anything other than a curve to the left about 10 meters ahead. Just like that we followed the path along to the left and I continued using Identify vision to look ahead and I saw a silhouette about 200m ahead in the passage. Bel must have reacted their talking voices just now. I got a bit excited thinking it was a survivor from {Sun Ray}. Obviously the only one who’s noticed for now is just me. However, they sure are far. I guess it would be fine to Identify after we get a bit closer. If possible I’d like to get within 50m and see their face before Identifying. It would suck if their names and faces get mixed up after all. If I look closely there were two shadows. One of them has their back against the wall in the passage and is sitting down. The other one appears to be sitting facing them taking a break.

After we proceed a bit further I’ll try warning everyone.

Thinking that we continued proceeding. When we approached to about 150m Bel said “sh” in a whisper again and everyone stopped in order to not interfere with Bels concentration. “One..three..” Eh? three monsters? So she wasn’t reacting to their talking voices!?

“I can’t hear them anymore. They were teleported!”

The moment we all heard Bel’s warning everyone stuck their backs to the walls of the passage and held their weapons. Certainly it’s true it’s not limited to just their conversation. The other wall of the passage Ralpa, Gwine, Zulu, and Angela have their backs to it and this time it’s me, Zenom, Toris, and Bel. And several seconds later a {Cave Boar} appeared from behind on our side and just kept going for a bit like that but quickly decelerated and started to change directions. It’s a chance!

“{Stone Javelin}”

”{Flame Javelin}”

"{Stone Bolt}"

"{Flame Bolt}"

Ralpa, Bel, Toris, and Gwine all fired off their spells at the ass of the {Cave Boar} leaving good sounds as the warheads stab into it one after another. As expected if it takes four attacks from attack spells it should be dead. I doubt it's still alive.

"Alright, everyone, you did..Ralpa!"

Wow, it was a bit delayed but this time another {Cave Boar} appeared from ahead of us (in other words, the opposite side from the direction we just attacked) and started charging at the back of Ralpa who just used magic. Shit... I won't make it in time freezing it! I need to stop it's movements in one shot!

"{Stone Catapult}"

In a hurry I overdid it..The telephone pole over 10 meters long and 30 cm in diameter gave off a roar as it nailed the {Cave Boar} to the wall almost like an example insect specimen pinned down. Adding to that it pierced through the wall on the other side as well. The {Cave Boar} was only a few centimeters from reaching Ralpa. Obviously since the {Cave Boar} had it's heart pierced as it was stuck to the wall it died instantly.

Th..that was dangerous...If she were to take a direct hit as expected Ralpa wouldn't die but she was saved from a severe injury. When Ralpa realized and turned around her face twisted in surprise.

"Wh.."

"Al-san.."

"Master, that is.."

Ah, come to think of it, it's the first time I showed everyone this class of spell. Something like that doesn't particularly matter though.

"Nn..It seems everything is fine now. I heard the sound of something hit a wall far away."

Bel was surprised by the telephone pole but she remained calm as she declared it was safe so while we temporarily lightened our guard, the sound just now was no comparison with the usual sounds of combat after all. After all it's dangerous to suddenly have intruders in the middle of combat. I erased the large stone spear like a telephone pole and the {Cave Boars} corpse fell down with a thud. A~~a, if it's like this then we probably can't gather the magic stone. Isn't it embedded deep into the wall along with it's heart? Even if it's undamaged it's troublesome and I don't want to spend time digging through the smashed pieces of flesh in the hole in the wall either.

Since everyone realized that there was quite a bit of sound from the combat just now they all looked up.

It should be fine to not worry about attacks by {Cave Boars} for right now but {Vampire Bats} might come flying. Also, there's no way the people sitting down ahead of here wouldn't notice either. I tried looking down the passage with Identify vision. The guy with his back to the wall remained the same but the one sitting across from them stood up and is on guard with their weapon facing over here it seems...in that case the guy sitting down is injured? Then 【Identify】 should be fine.

【Corpse(Human)】 【Human】 【Condition: Good】
【Creation Date: 26/8/7444】
【Value: 10】
【Durability: 1】

So they died yesterday..either the damage was terrible or it's after they already took out their magic stone.

“Be careful, there's something there.”

Just in case I warned everyone and used 【Identify】 on the one with their weapon out.

【Binnodo.Gekudo/2/8/7421】
【Male/14/4/7420.Human.Sub-Baron Gekudo Family Third Son】 【Condition: Bruising.Stab Wound】
【Age: 24 Years Old】
【Level: 14】
【HP: 69(115) MP: 4(17)】

【Strength: 17】

【Speed: 20】

【Dexterity: 17】

【Endurance: 17】

【Special Skill: Earth Magic (Lv. 2)】

【Special Skill: Water Magic (Lv. 3)】

【Special Skill: Wind Magic (Lv. 2)】

【Special Skill: Void Magic (Lv. 3)】

【Experience: 371240(450000)】

Yeah, it's certainly a person from {Sun Ray}. I've heard their name. Everyone tensed up hearing my warning and they're looking all over the place while on guard. Even after waiting a few minutes, it seems there's no attack from above so we took the magic stone from the {Cave Boar} and collected a bit of meat in addition.

Now then, I guess we should move forward.

After advancing a bit Angela,

"It's true there's something there...Is it a person?"

she twitches her nose while saying. If I look further down and Gekudo is holding his sword while looking around restlessly. He must have heard the sound of combat and even if it was only a moment saw the flame from the magic. After that, he might not have seen us because we're slowly advancing while remaining careful of traps but he should know that someone is definitely nearby. Most likely, he should think it's either his allies in {Sun Ray} or us and might be cautious of an attack from us. He might just be hesitating on whether to raise his voice and ask our identity.

"Is it a person from {Sun Ray}?"

Ralpa said in a whisper.

"It would be good if that's the case."

Gwine whispered a reply. Yeah, it's a person from {Sun Ray}. This time it would be good for sure if they have some money. Since it seems he's from a sub-Baron family we can hope for more than Ginger.

“Most likely, there’s a person. I can smell the scent of blood as well. They might be injured.”

Angela said. They’re injured as well but the guy who’s blood you smell is already dead...Well that’s just the right timing for a statement.

“I’ll try calling out..Hey!”

I could see Gekudo flinch 100m ahead. He replied right away.

“Hey! Over here~! Hurry, please hurry and come!”

Yes-yes.

“There was one!”

“Yeah!”

Ralpha and Gwine raised cheerful voices.

“Don’t make such loud voices. Let’s hurry just a bit, let’s go.”

.....

Shortly later we arrived at where Gekudo was located. Gekudo looked considerably exhausted but after seeing us, and, it seems he was just a bit surprised but he honestly sought help. Yeah, well, that’s fine.

“!!..{Slaughterers}. I’m begging you. Just as you can see. If possible then I’ll do anything as thanks.”

Everyone is waiting for my decision.

“..What about that person?”

and I said while looking at the corpse in a posture sitting down. It seems like Gekudo is injured as well but it’s mostly bruises and the bleeding from his scrapes has long since stopped. There’s no need to heal him in a hurry at this point.

“Ah, o, my little sister. I’m begging you, can we please carry her up to the surface? I’ll pay my entire fortune. I don’t mind if you take my weapon as well. If you say that it’s still not enough then even if it’s just my little sister’s magic stone..it’s this but..could you please bury this on the surface? Just as you can see, I'm begging."

Ho...

As I look down at Gekudo lowering his head and begging to take his little sister's magic stone to the surface I thought. I'm sure older brother would do this as well... No, if it's older brother then in the first place he wouldn't fall into this foolish predicament huh?

I crouched down in front of Gekudo and after matching eye level with him, I put my hand on his shoulder and opened my mouth.

"Please raise your head. After that..you should bury your little sister yourself. Can you stand?"

I glanced over at the corpse and it seems there's a large hole in the flank. A piece of leather armor that seems to be the same as the one she was wearing was on her side. You can tell magic was used to try and heal the wound on the side. And after that, there's bite marks that appear to be from {Vampire Bats} all over the place as well. The front of her clothes were closed but there's blood from where the magic stone was taken out as well.

"Yeah.."

Gekudo stood up along with me standing up and,

"Zulu, Angela. Carry this person. Carefully."

and I ordered the two slaves. It seems that Zulu will carry the corpse. He had Angela hold his weapon. I used {Cure Serious} on Gekudo twice and his HP recovered to 87 and,

"500,000 Z is plenty. We saved Ginger-san at this price as well. By the way, could I ask your name?"

and said.

"Eh? Ah, so you'll save me as well! I'm very sorry. Thank you very much. My name is Binnodo.Gekudo. Please call me Binsu. My little sister is Yuriel."

I guess he didn't hear it like that? Also, even if you tell me the name of the corpse..Honestly I don't have any attachment to her..though I get his feelings.

“Please don’t mind it. I’m Greed. Alan Greed.”

“There’s no one in Baldukk that doesn’t know of the leader of the {Slaughterers}. Greed-san, I’m grateful.”

I’m sure that’s true but for the most part there’s the courtesy.

.....

It took close to three hours but we were able to make it to the teleport room on the 6th floor.

“Binsu-san. We haven’t tried teleporting while holding a corpse up until now. That’s why, it’s possible your little sisters corpse might not come along to the 5th floor as well. In that case please pardon us on that.”

I think it’ll probably be fine but just in case I thought to say it. If it comes to that then Zulu would have had quite the bad luck to pointlessly carry some heavy luggage for three hours.

“If it comes to that..it can’t be helped. Of course, I feel nothing for gratitude towards all of you.”

Is that so? Then that’s fine.

“Return us.”

.....

The members of {Sun Ray} were pleased to see Binsu return together with us to the teleport room on the 5th floor. We were able to teleport back with his little sister’s corpse with no problem. Zemyunel came over to offer his gratitude as if crawling. Yeah, just saying it is free after all. If I was you I’d say as much thanks as needed as well. If you add together the total for both Bins and Ginger, 7,000,000, Z, then it’s a cheap price to pay to sell a favor.

..Is what I thought but you can buy a single horse. Shit, after all it’s a ton of money.

I thought without complaint the first shower was fine going to Zulu but as expected he’s still a slave. I’m fine and I think the other reincarnated people would be fine with it but you never know what Zenom would think. Well, going off the proper order it should be starting from me. Though I feel like I'm the only one bothering over the order of the shower, but that is that this is this.

After taking a warm shower I thought a bit while checking my bayonet. It shouldn't be all that bad to raise the favorable impression (?) of a top team like {Sun Ray}. If these guys will protect the shower on the 5th floor then I'm quite grateful for that. If we were to fall into a crisis, I don't think (since there's no one further than us, in that case there's no other choice than for us to save ourselves, even if they had more skill than us they wouldn't normally come to our rescue) even for an instant they'd come to save us but if they feel even a bit indebted to us then that's a profit. After all we overlooked several 1,000,000 Z. Work for at least that much.

Binsu took his little sister's corpse and it seems he's returning for now to bury her magic stone.

I won't say anything cold like there's no point to the corpse if you have her magic stone. Since I'm sure no one would want monsters eating the corpses of their family. Even if you're lucky they'll just be absorbed by the dungeon and above all else, rather than himself Binsu said he wanted to bury his little sister's corpse, or even her magic stone on the surface. That disposition is excellent.

Just before we went to sleep Ralph said "Thanks for today." When I was wondering what it was about, it seems it was how I turned the {Cave Boar} into an insect specimen pinning it to the wall of the dungeon. I can't remember such small things like that every time.

.....

Year 7444, Month 8, Day 28

It was one day soon but we decided to return today. There should still be one member of {Sun Ray} remaining but if you think about the amount of food they were holding they should already be at the limit. And we should have already sold them plenty of favors. However, couldn't we at least hit an altar room in the end?

..We didn't hit one. Obviously we never ended up running into the last remaining member. We just made clear the traps on another course through the 6th floor. No, just that is plenty though.

We explored until evening and after withdrawing our camp, I made an apologetic face while telling Zemyunel that we would be leaving. Eh? Of course I erased all of the raised dirt that we use as a bed. It's only obvious right? Let's return right away, have some alcohol, and go to sleep. After all, the night of the day after tomorrow I'm entering the dungeon again and heading towards Karl's place.

Chapter 142 (Reverse Chapter 133)

Year 7444, Month 5, Day 29

Just past 4 in the morning. When it was still early morning before the light from the sun started to appear.

There was the silhouette of a single person on a horse at the Southeastern edge of the town of Baldukk in the King's Direct Territory of Rombert Kingdom. Shortly after another silhouette appeared to approach that silhouette. The silhouette on a horse got off it's horse after noticing the approaching silhouette and became one with the silhouette that was approaching. For a short while the two silhouettes remained overlapped before they split into two and then when one of the returned to the horse, it proceeded along the road leading out of the outer crater of Baldukk.

The distance to the summit of the outer crater in a straight line is roughly 1.5 Km. Since the road goes tilts along with the summit the actual amount of distance is a bit father. Almost straight to the East from the Southeastern side, the riding silhouette continued along the road at a steady pace towards the summit. After taking about 20 minutes when it reached the summit, the light from the rising sun was finally starting to shine through on to the silhouette.

Basking in the light from the sun the rider looked at the bright sun and then turned around just once. It seems that the silhouette it just split ways from is still standing in the same place seeing this side off. After facing ahead once more the face of the rider was making an expression twisted from lingering attachment. slap the rider slapped both of their cheeks before changing their expression and properly looking ahead as they descended the hills basking in the light from the sun.

After basking in the sunlight you could tell that the rider wasn't just a person. The black hair isn't particularly uncommon, but their face and hands were an unbelievable level of purple skin color. What in the world is their race? If you were to just look from a glance then you could determine that they're not a race of this Orth. If it's deep purple skin then you could say they are a Dark Elf which some people call the Dyurou but the skin color of that rider was difficult to compare to that of a Dark Elf. It's even lighter, a purple color that borders on purple-blue. If you were to forcefully try to match them up then you might be able to consider them an Elf, or around there. Since other than the color of their skin, they still have the racial characteristics of the Dark Elf that they were born from.

Basking in the sunlight as they descended the road, the rider was slightly trembling. If you were to see the tears overflowing from their eyes then you would be able to tell they were trembling as they tried to endure sobbing.

What in the world saddened the rider? Was it going separate ways from the silhouette from just a moment ago?

However, it's not just sadness that is reflected in the expression of the rider. A form of joy could also be seen floating in their expression. But, at the same time an inexplicable expression as if they're confused could be seen as well. Putting it frankly it's eerie.

.....

"Ha..I still can't get used to it.."

Miduchi mumbled to herself. The large amount of confusion that occurred since the other day still hasn't settled within her. Up until now..other than the memories of her life and experiences since she was born, she's confused over the seal on the memories of what could be called her past life suddenly being released.

Certainly she has confidence she can state that her personality is just this one. However, she also felt that her personality from the memories in previous life was a bit more proper than her current one.

Thanks to the seal on the memories of her past life being released the inside of Miduchi's head is completely jumbled up. The instant the seal on her memories broke, a sharp pain ran through her head as if she had been stabbed and it was to the point she had to crouch down. That was, while she was also experiencing the symptoms of mana exhaustion, a pain and shock so intense that even she a dark elf who had been trained as a rank 1 warrior since childhood couldn't endure it. And then, she was able to comprehend thanks to all of the memories of her past life that were released all at once. This is once again, certainly another life that I lived.

Most likely, Miduchi's personality received some influence from her memories and changed up until now but the base hasn't changed at all. The confusion at that time was large and it most likely was washed into the most comfortable direction, in other words the memories of her past life as Shiina Junko and that personality. That only makes sense, it was her first time experiencing such a large amount of mental disorder and since her personality as Midu~ritto.Chizumagurol was horrified by that disorder, it might be more correct so it was almost an instinctual self-defense mechanism that it handed over the leadership to Shiina Junko.

After that, for the hour or so while her lost mana was recovered while resting, the organization of the released memories of Shiina Junko and the integration of personalities with Midu~ritto.Chizumagurol occurred. The result of that, their personality ended up almost in the middle of the two and in some meanings a new type of special Orth person with the memories of a Japanese person was born. Of course this wasn't something that consciously occurred. It's something that happened naturally. Therefore, in actual fact you could say she experienced a total of three personalities in a short period of time, that of Shiina Junko, Midu~ritto.Chizumagurol, and Miduchi which could be called the middle between them. It's only obvious but she can't recognize the multiple personalities.

After she reached the bottom of the hill Miduchi raised her face properly looked ahead and after fixing her grab on the reins kicked off the sides of the horse. Other than her work clothes her saddle bag has various types of weapons and some other luggage stored away, on her back she has a short bow and quiver. Her limbs are covered in leather armor and above that she has on a hooded robe.

In order to not carelessly lose the plate she borrowed she put it in the pocket below her armor and has her knife on the belt attached her to her right thigh.

(However, the design of this armor is lame..)

In the memories of her past life there was a lot more cool and showy armor. Though a lot of it had strangely high levels of exposure so even she wondered about those types but even so the design of the leather armor she's wearing right now was unfashionable. Of course, even before her memories were released she had memories of goods like that but up until now she's never paid any attention to the appearance of things like that at all. She's only made use of things that were durable, cheap, and last a long time.

It's only obvious that Midu~ritto understands that Midu~ritto has her own circumstances, she thinks that it can't be helped. However, she Junko thinks, (You're a woman right? You need to fix your appearance a bit more proper). The personality that has knowledge of and understands both of their circumstances, she Miduchi couldn't do anything but calmly (It can't be helped since there's nothing other than this right now. But let's at least make some new armor. In any case this one is almost at it's life span from how worn-out it is) think this like.

While she was riding alone on the horse, Miduchi's expression was busily changing from crying, smiling, breaking out into laughter as her as Midu~ritto and her as Junko's memories were being organized. Putting it simply since Miduchi was just a personality of her as Midu~ritto and her as Junko mixed together, she was able to accept the people and her parents she was close to in her past life as well as common sense as fresh things. Even the man that Junko had been concerned with she was able to accept him as a target of longing without any sense of discomfort.

Longing? No, it was already no longer longing. Yesterday I got my hands on that man. I was able to exchange feelings with that man and gain a deep sense of satisfaction. I only just embraced him and was able to feel his warmth. She as Junko is thinking (Isn't it already fine, we could still return back now and stay together with him). However, she as Midu~ritto thinks (My older brother needs me. I can't just ignore him), and they keep running parallel. In any case, Miduchi thinks (things will end up however they do).

No matter what the case she doesn't have any intention of taking her time to slowly return to her home town. The route which normally takes over four weeks she'll cover even just a day faster and after selling the magic stone she received for money, she'll leave that money to her uncle and aunt, and resign from her job. And then..even a single day faster she wants to return to Baldukk. However, will you really leave behind your older brother? There's still some conflict remaining.

"The madam is the same as well..It's so cruel, it's too much."

She just wanted to try saying it. Simultaneously she remembered the refined appearance of her majesty the Queen she saw yesterday and almost was about to fall prostrate while still riding her horse. She somehow managed to endure just lowering her head. After regaining her composure and calmly thinking it over Miduchi realized that it might not have been all that bad of a thing that her memories were sealed.

(If my memories were still remaining then I'm sure I would have definitely failed..I definitely wouldn't have made it as a rank 1 warrior...Even if I had managed to survive around now I'd be making a living as a part of the service ranking making mushrooms I'm sure. If I was careless it wouldn't even have been strange for me to die during the warrior training..)

Miduchi remembers back. The time when she was Shiina Junko, it's not like she was particularly bad with physical activity but she wasn't skilled at it either. It wouldn't be strange to say she was average. However, if it's just that level of physical abilities and stamina then let alone rank 1, she can declare with confidence that even rank 3 warrior would have been completely impossible. Let alone that, just thinking in terms of simple fighting, she would have been below even the lowest service ranking people. Even if she had been raised while still in possession of the memories of that Shiina Junko, it wasn't hard to imagine that she would have had quite the pathetic fate of losing her life during that first training when she turned 7 years old.

"Uhe..After all I might not be able to hold my head up.."

Once again she naturally ended up speaking out loud. At the same time she remembered. Her majesty Lilus who she respects and loves said that it was fine to have a child with that person. There's no problem with interpreting that as her being approved of. Her face changes to a grin. At the same time she notices a heat gathering in her abdomen.

"Nya wa wa"

She naturally caresses her face. Feeling the scar on her cheek with her left hand she gets depressed.

(He didn't say anything about my scars..)

While she was it she touched the scar on her forehead,

(As expected I wonder about this scar?)

And she thought that.

(He was young..So that's how his face looked..I could tell from a single glance though)

The face she remembers is the one of the man she just separated with. Though there was some of the characteristics of an Orth human mixed in and he had red hair but for her Miduchi, no, it's a special face that there's no way she, Junko, would mistake seeing.

It's not that he's particularly handsome. Even going off of her aesthetic sense as Junko there's countless other people with more attracting faces. However, to her that face is number one.

Now then, I want to reach the town of Renbisu by today. Since the roads of the King's Direct Territory in Rombert Kingdom are reasonably maintained I can probably make it.

.....

Year 7444, Month 5, Day 30

There's a single silhouette departing "Wagaya Manor" of Renbisu early in the morning. Of course it's that of Miduchi. The land continues with gentle slopes but there's some varying levels of ground. She should be able to make it to Torei village by noon of today. It would be best to take lunch at Tobai village just before that. Miduchi thought things like that while advancing on her horse.

Pretty soon the sunlight completely started to appear and around the time it lit up the colorful green fields, it was just as she decided to let her horse drink some water from the large river. A short break. After drinking some water her horse regained it's stamina. It's the most efficient to let it rest for a bit every 40-50 minutes.

(I didn't know something like this)

Miduchi thought that while getting back on her horse and then continued along the road.

.....

A short while after noon, she finished eating the oatmeal, bean soup, and a bit of pork in her lunch at a restaurant in Torei village before paying the owner of the place the fees. While the owner took the money he looked at Miduchi and,

"Are you a Dark Elf? Or an Elf?"

And started frankly talking to her. As a matter of fact two months or so prior, when she ate at this village she was asked the same question.

"I believe myself to be a Dark Elf but..for some reason my color is light. I'm sorry, it's difficult to tell."

When Miduchi replied apologetically the owner,

"It seems like you've experienced quite a bit of hardship..Here, take this with you."

And handed her some bread.

"Thank you very much. But I'm already used to it."

And Miduchi lightly replied like that before taking the bread, and putting it into her saddle bag on her horse that was tied to the stake in front of the store. Up until here things were completely the same as two months ago.

It's not particularly like dark elves are hated. There's people who are living normally after leaving the country and people who are working as warriors for regional lords in foreign countries as well. If you were to ask the only ones who really know that they make a living taking jobs as assassins are those of the higher ranking nobility. And even then it's not like they're hated or looked down on just because they're Dark Elves. In the knowledge of Shiina Junko that hadn't disappeared there was some that Dark Elves are often hated but she found out that wasn't particularly the case when she had her first job as a rank 1 warrior class together with the woman that was her senior.

"Come to think of it, I saw you a while back. Are you returning to your home country?"

Miduchi was surprised that the owner remembered her while, (Well Dark Elves are unusual after all) and understood it. At the same time, "Yeah, since I finished my job.." and replied while smiling.

"Ah, peddling huh? Then, be careful."

And the owner replied back.

The common image of Dark Elves is that of merchants. Since the mushroom types they grow are the ingredients for various types of medicines. They make medicines with those, or carry the ingredients before producing them to towns that are of a decent size(the capitals of high ranking noble territories) while selling them. The things they stock up on are centered around cloth and a portion of food items. Also, they stock up on weapons as well. Things like specialty goods and minerals that are produced and different between each region and it's not just limited to Dark Elves so there's nothing strange about it at all.

When it comes to business all of the neighboring countries will freely let them pass if they show the company license that is issued by Lail Kingdom, otherwise known as the Dark License, it's a completely black license that the contents only appear if you use the spell {Light} on it. There's other licenses with a similar validity as this among other countries as well. The Type 1 license of Rombert Kingdom and the Blue License of Devas Kingdom, the proof of company for Kanbitt Kingdom, it differs in name based on the country but many countries have some sort of proof of approval to do trade between countries.

In Miduchi's country, Lail Kingdom, there's no clear difference between social standings like nobles, free people, or slaves. The elders that are treated as the highest in position, along with the service rankings, and those who act as merchants all members of Lail Kingdom are considered Lilac, a ranking of commoners among neighboring countries. It seems to be the Queen's policy but that Queen is seen as a living God.

After Miduchi found out the detailed circumstances of the Queen she understood it. She probably hates a society based on social standing like nobles and slaves and wanted to make a society that was centered around a single race with no difference in social standing. She doesn't know if that's actually the case but Miduchi decided to think like that. The reason why the elders and acquisition rankings are inherited is unknown but she thought it was most likely proof of the original citizens or something on that level. Also, it's only as far as Miduchi knows but the only two countries that don't let the authority of noble rankings overlap with that of the army or officials are just Rombert Kingdom and Lail Kingdom.

In the countries like Devas, Kanbitto, Korakuto, and Guranan, etc... unless they're exceptionally superior in terms of commanding an army it's basically impossible to make it to a higher ranking and if they aren't a noble or have some kind of peerage then it's impossible to become over an intermediate level official.

After becoming a rider once again Miduchi controls the reins as she proceeds down the road. The sun has passed the midway point. I want to make it to the next village within 3-4 hours. From here there's Tongodo village. It's small but it should have had an inn as well.

(It would be good if there's a room available~)

.....

Year 7444, Month 6, Day 17

After passing through Count Faruergaz's territory she entered

Viscount Mongoto's territory. Until her home town, Erurehei of Kinru mountain there's about 100 Km left. Since the majority of that is made up of steep mountain roads it's necessary to prepare for it to take at least 4 days but she was able to return at a good pace. She was only attacked by monsters twice up until here. The first time the horse was afraid so she had no choice other than to get off and fight with magic. Since the opponent was orks after just defeating one of them the remaining ones started to retreat.

The next time was just the other day, when she was passing through the forest she encountered a large swarm of {Green Slugs} in the process of moving. In a hurry she turned the horse around and took a detour around them.

However, once she's made it this far it's just one more breath away. If she puts about two more days of work into it then she'll enter Erurehei, the area of influence of Lail Kingdom and not have to worry about monsters much at all. Since the rank 3 warriors enthusiastically patrol around it should be safer than Viscount Mongoto's territory.

.....

Year 7444, Month 6, Day 20

She finally entered the area of influence of Lail Kingdom. If she's fast then she should be able to arrive at the entrance of Erurehei by tonight. Also, she recognizes this place as the only area in the world she can somewhat relax while camping. She didn't camp out even once up until here. Starting from here there's no need to take being attacked by monsters into consideration as much. There's wild animals but it's said there's no large predators.

While feeling relieved as she spent about two hours ascending the road, a sudden attack occurred at that sort of time.

The plate that she borrowed from that person protected her body.

She felt apologetic that it was damaged and bent out of form but thanks to the plate that was in her pocket below her armor she was saved from a serious injury. However, for them to attack a Dark Elf in this place..Miduchi immediately jumped off her horse and took her sword out of the saddle bag before using the flat end of it to tap the butt of her horse.

(Thieves huh..For them to attack a Dark Elf in the vicinity of Erurehei, are they idiots?)

Even though she was being attacked, since she ended up not suffering any injuries there was even composure that could be seen in Miduchi's expression. Depending on how things go the attackers could end up experiencing a fate worse than death. There's a high possibility that severe amount of reparations could be billed to the place of origin of the attackers. Of course, it's not as if there aren't monsters that use the bow and arrow as well but the chances of that are extremely unlikely.

After the arrow, the bullet of a spell came flying. If you think about it with common sense there's no way it would have the added effect of {Missile} included in it. After lowering her posture to avoid the flaming arrows that came at her she jumped into some bushes on the side of the road to hide herself. She put her short sword on the ground and took out her bow and an arrow from her quiver.

There's already no trace of composure remaining on Miduchi's face.

(The opponent is..It can't be)

Chapter 143 (Reverse Chapter 134)

Year 7444, Month 5, Day 28

"..Nn..Then, I need to start pretty soon"and, I need to fix my language as well.."

Lilus whispers that and used magic. It's an action that will reduce her amount of time remaining in the present world but it's not like she'll really die. She's just temporarily moving over to a different dimension {Other.Plane}. She'll spend a period of time there and then come back. Even she doesn't know how much time will have passed when she returns over here. A few years, a few decades, or over one hundred years.

With a smile that could be considered self-derision on her face she started mumbling about something after using magic.

The magic she's using right now is {Instruction}. It has the condition of the side receiving the orders undergoing a special ceremony first but other than that it's an extremely convenient magic. Of course the caster can freely select the target matching the conditions. It's fine if the target is just one person or even multiple people. This time 10 people were selected as the targets.

"I wonder if this is fine..it would be good if they properly take care of things while I'm gone though..since it's my first time as well..if I say anything too attentive and they might be troubled..Ah, I'm looking forward to what the town will look like when I return..after that is..just in case I guess that's necessary as well.."

How to avoid the regulations, whether there's any loopholes to it,

Lilus held her finger to lip for a short period while thinking and used magic another couple of times.

And then, with a slightly satisfied smile on her face she closed her eyes.

.

.

Several days later, in the Queen's bedroom of the depths of the palace in Lail Kingdom, leaving just the hole where it's masters legs were rooted the room was empty. Leaving all of the valuable treasures and expensive various types of items in place, the room was left just to quietly wait for the return of it's master.

.....

Year 7444, Month 5, Day 28

Lail Kingdom claims an enormous tunnel beneath Mount Kinru as it's territory. In their sole capital of Erurehei it's always dark. Of course there's lighting tools that make use of magic stones here and there but it's a number far too few to light up all of Erurehei and the wasting of magic stones is strictly forbidden. It's not unusual for the lighting tools that are for the purpose of street lights aren't actually lit up. The buildings are mostly made up of dirt and stone walls that were gathered from the enormous tunnel and since it doesn't rain the roofs are made by just stretching a cloth over top.

Erurehei is a capital made by digging a tunnel in the mountains but since their population isn't all that many, there is some leeway in space. Though that's the case, the average family lives together with 7-8 people in a building with three rooms and total area of about 30 square meters. If there's a member of the warrior rank in the family then it's slightly easier for them to be allocated a a bit larger building.

Also, it's something that almost never occurs but among the small number of families that marry and are allowed to start a new household they're allocated a cramped house with an equally less amount of rooms.

In that sort of environment, the comparatively splendid building(of all things it doesn't use cloth but has an actual roof) excluding the palace that is the government building, the young elder Fantodu was taking care of paperwork in the luxurious 10 square meter individual office room when he quickly reacted to the voice echoing through his head, jumping to his feet and prostrating himself in the direction of the palace. It's an instruction from her majesty the Queen that is said to occur at a high pace when it's once in every 10 years or so. Fantodu remained prostrate for a short while and after the voice echoing in his head was finished he stood up. It's necessary to discuss the instructions with the other elders and start making adjustments to execute the details right away.

After leaving his office room in the government building Fantodu went to the meeting room in order to discuss with the other elders. There were already five other elders seated in the meeting room and he was the sixth person. The remaining four should arrive shortly as well.

The other senior elders that were already seated can't hide the excitement from their expressions. Though they aren't trying to hide it either. That's the same for himself. It was a direct instruction from her majesty the Queen that you may or may not hear even once in your life as a part of the lineage of elders.

Furthermore, the instructions this time were concrete and above all else the amount of time they heard her majesty's voice was quite long compared to what was heard from previous senior elders.

The prime elder who's in their 10th year as an elder this year,

Elder Webundo took over as speaker and after everyone had gathered started to speak.

"Everyone, it was great of you to gather like this without anyone saying anything. I'm grateful. I'm sure everyone has already heard but the divine orders have been handed out from her majesty Lilus. From here on out, we should move to allocating duties in order to accomplish the divine orders."

Everyone nodded while looking at Webundo. The only thing reflected in their faces was the delight of being able to execute a direct order from her majesty the Queen.

"Starting off with the first order, in regards to increasing the amount of edible fungus. Just as her majesty stated if we can't increase the production rate by 2% within one year then no matter how long passes our population won't increase. We need reports and ideas for improvements..

.
.

..And also, the training of each rank of warriors. Rank 1 is fine but wasn't there worry that the quality of ranks 2 and 3 are falling..This year there's already been two casualties among rank

3. Certainly you could say it's an alarming problem."

"However, one of the two was caught up in a cave-in while checking on the construction of a new tunnel and the other one was from an attack by ogres while escorting the acquisition ranking during sales!? It was reported that there was an ogre mage mixed in with them as well...I actually found it admirable they managed to restrain it to just that much damage."

Fantodu who has the role of managing the missions of the warrior rankings objected. It's where he would prefer if Yoretto his senior that's of the same warrior ranking and in charge of military and public orders to back him up in the argument. He continued, "I think it would be difficult to raise the abilities of the warrior ranking anymore than this but.."

And said some complaints. Hearing that Yoretto,

"Then the one who should be criticized for that is the one who was leading the escorts during that sale. Who was it at that time..Ah, Chizumagurol huh..So that was her first escort mission huh? If they're lacking in experience then I'm sure there's failure as well."

And said while forsaking her. Fantodu couldn't endure those details and tone of voice. Fantodu is still before his 30s, since he just entered as an elder this year and was the youngest of the elders so he thought he should restrain himself but he couldn't help but open his mouth to object. In the first place that wasn't Chizumagurol's first escort mission. If it was her first then she should have been escorting along the fixed route where ogres don't appear.

"Yoretto-dono, what in the world does that mean? Are you saying we should let rank 1 warrior class Chizumagurol take the punishment for that? She was the only rank 1 from the iwaganeeresade 68 period. Even if that wasn't the case there's only a mere 29 rank 1 warriors who are still active duty. I'd like to avoid pointlessly crushing her."

I wonder what in the world this person is saying, or at least thinking that I couldn't endure it.

"Fantodu, do you not think that letting one rank 1 take the blame and tightening the discipline of ranks 2 and 3 which have far higher numbers is an effective way of thinking about it? Certainly, her majesty Lilus stated that rank 1 was fine. However, wasn't it ranks 2 and 3 that she was worrying about? In the first place, aren't the rank 1 warrior class just assassins that can use all elemental magic. It's not like they're particularly special either. A misunderstanding from the number mixed into their classification..Oh, I don't intend to criticize something that her majesty decided but.."

Hearing these words of Yoretto, Fantodu thought, (You're just saying those things because you couldn't even become a rank 3 warrior class though..) and was displeased with his thoughts.

Certainly the elders are an exception but Yoretto joined the course for cultivating the warrior class during his childhood. Since Yoretto has an older brother above him, that older brother was believed to become the elder. Unfortunately Yoretto's aptitude towards magic techniques was low and he was only able to acquire one elemental magic. For that reason, he only experienced a short two years of training and was removed from the warrior class training course, it was believed that he would spend the rest of his life as a part of the service ranking.

However, just before Yoretto turned into an adult, his five year older brother that hadn't become an elder yet ended up being poisoned by a monster while inspecting the surrounding territories for the rank 3 warrior class and passed and away. He hadn't experienced being an elder, in order for someone to become an elder they normally start training at the side of an active elder from just before the turn into adult around age 13, and it's been customary to perform training to become an elder in the future but the elder his older brother was with just happened to be performing an inspection that day and since Yoretto's older brother was there when the monster suddenly attack he ended up being poisoned, it was completely an unfortunate accident.

However, Yoretto was ashamed of the fact that he wasn't even able to become a rank 3 warrior and ever since then would harshly criticize the warrior classes. The period he became an elder was in his mid-40s but from the start he strongly volunteered to be in charge of the warrior classes.

Fantodu replied with all he wanted to say and decided to compete from a different dispute point. He already knew that it's rude to interrupt while the other person is still talking but while he's an older senior, publicly they're elders of the same position. It won't be considered impolite so easily.

"The rank 1 warrior class which we've invested budget, time, and starting with excellent instructors a large number of people into is a treasure of our country. And also, the warrior class is the only existence we have to earn foreign currency. That so easily.."

While Fantodu was desperately objecting to it Yoretto opened his mouth from the side.

"I can't imagine that there's a very big difference in abilities between rank 1 and rank 3 warriors though. It's just a matter of them being able to use a few more spells right? I don't think it's something to be so concerned over.."

This isn't the truth. Certainly the initial training lifestyle including rank 2 and 3 warrior classes all receive a training curriculum closely covering drills over magic and close combat techniques. However, there's a large gap between the absolute amount of time spent training. Holidays are different but they only train for roughly 5 hours a day. Of that training starts 6 in the morning and the magic lecture only last for about 1 hour, 4 hours after the start of the training at 10 am. After the lecture they're quickly made to exhaust their mana and before they go to sleep they eat an early lunch and then sleep for about 4 hours before returning to their houses.

However, once they switch over to the rank 1 warrior training curriculum, they fundamentally live in a dormitory other than holidays. Since a single days training time stretches out to 16 hours. Of the entire training time the magic lectures only take up around 4 hours and the remaining 12 hours is harsh combat technique training that's like hell. The amount of time they have to sleep is from around midnight until 6 am. All time other than that is spent in training with instructors that have three shifts and don't quite make it to man to man but it's time spent undergoing extremely deep training. It's often that the instructors are former veteran rank 1 warrior class people who retired.

In regards to chances for live combat after being assigned a position rather than ranks 1 or 2, rank 3 warriors end up with overwhelmingly more chances to combat and defeat monsters while patrolling the territory so it's not completely different from reality that one might think rank 3 is far higher in abilities from a glance though...

After seeing the debate start to go into a circle the speaker

Webundo opened their mouth.

"It's already fine, there's things that should be taken into consideration for both of your remarks. It exceeds my duties but I'll add my own views to this. We'll have Chizumagurol herself who acted as the leader undergo a hearing and then it's fine if we decide for ourselves whether the decisions of her command were proper. We'll have the head warriors of each ranking participate and take their opinions as reference as well. Is Chizumagurol in Erurehei?"

Fantodu replies to Webundo's question.

"Currently Chizumagurol is independently on a type 4 headpiece mission. I believe she's in the dungeon of Baldukk in the Kingdom of Rombert right now.."

Yoretto supplemented that reply.

"Type 4 headpiece is the assassination of a low ranking noble. It's necessary for the target do die an accidental death or take the shape that the surroundings don't believe it was an assassination."

"I already know something like that. And, when is the deadline until?"

When Webundo asked again Fantodu replied again.

"Since it's six months after we accepted the job so..Through the end of July."

"Do you think she'll succeed?"

"..The target is the son of a Marquis of Kanbitto and an adventurer. I'm sure they have allies as well and it seems they'll be in the dungeon of Baldukk so..Monsters will appear as well..I can't help but say it will be quite difficult."

Even then Fantodu had already decided that Chizumagurol would be able to do it. It was an expression with confidence.

"What's the compensation?"

"15,000,000 Z. Of course we've already received the payment in advance."

Hearing that Yoretto snorted with his nose and ridiculed as he said.

"Hmph, just that much huh? Our countries foreign currency income reaches 20,000,000,000 Z. Of that what the rank 1 warrior class is earning is just a mere 6-7%, on average it's no more than 1,300,000,000 Z. It's 500,000,000 Z more than the amount we make from sale of surplus magic stones but...Regardless the yearly budget for cultivating the warrior classes exceeds 3,000,000,000 Z. The majority of our countries income is earned by the acquisition rankings selling crops that the service rankings are producing.

Since it's this occasion, I think we should cut the training costs for all of the warrior rankings from rank 1 to rank 3. There's 29 rank 1, 48 rank 2, and when it comes to rank 3 there's even 193 active duty members you know. That's a total of 270 people. If we cut all of the classes by about 20% and sent them around to the service ranking wouldn't we earn far more?"

There Fantodu(why does Yoretto-dono see the warriors as enemies to that extent?) held such doubts once again. Since he started as an elder this year, he's held pride in his first job of governing the countries military affairs and the warrior classes that oversee the public order.

However, Yoretto has his own expectations as well. Of course, if he were to say he doesn't hold feelings of inferiority towards the warrior class rankings, then that would be a lie. However, rather than that what he's thinking about is the financial expansion of Lail Kingdom. Taking the numbers from just now as an example and among the rank 1 warrior class about 10 of those are always acting as the escort leaders of caravans for the merchants. Just the same there's around 10 from rank 2 as well and 80 or so from rank 3 are always acting as escorts as they act away from the country. This is something that can't be helped.

Of the remaining 15 rank 1 warriors, roughly 35 rank 2 warriors, and over 100 rank 3 warriors, isn't the only ones absolutely necessary roughly 30 of those from rank 2 warrior class to act as gatekeepers and 12-13 groups of 5 rank 3 warrior classes, roughly 60-70 people for patrolling inside of the territory? If you think about rest then it's fine to be a bit more. Of course, while there's few of them even the rank 1 warrior class earns some foreign currency so around 10 would be necessary.

Incidentally, in regards to labor costs, the rank 1 warrior class costs a yearly average of around 8,000,000 Z and that's over double the cost of the elders. It drops sharply at rank 2 and is around just 1,800,000 Z. When it comes to rank 3 it settles around 1,200,000 Z. However, in the case of the service ranking, the average annual income is around 600,000 - 700,000 Z. You could say it's an income that's only feasible in Lail Kingdom which is almost completely self-sufficient. What they purchase mainly consists of clothing, weapons, and various metal products and there's a small portion of luxury and hobby goods but those are extremely limited.

In Yoretto's opinion, he wants to increase the income from the service ranking which makes up the majority of the population by even 1 Z. Just by increasing the disposable income potential by that much increases the money in the country and increases the scale of the economy. For that sake it's necessary to increase the size of the production base but he's read that if they were to move strong adults from the warrior ranking to the service ranking then they would be able to increase production beyond just the number moved. After all, the fate of the 3,842 people of Lail Kingdom are guided by just these 10 elders. Having the warriors who have leeway in their strength dig out tunnels, take the allotment of physical work, and increase the seedbeds for fungi directly connects to an important increase in production.

By saying that he had such intentions in his chest and acted as the supervisor of the warrior rankings.

"Yoretto, leave things around there. If the views of you two are different then that's something all of us will decide on. We'll wait for Chizumagurol's return and have the leader at the time of the escort once again report to us. If on top of that the blame is with Chizumagurol then we'll have her take responsibility.

However.."

Webundo's discussion still hasn't ended.

""However?""

And Fantodu and Yoretto raise their voices to get urging a continuation.

"I find it difficult to think that the members of the rank 1 warrior class are that inferior. Prior to Yoretto becoming an elder I've taken charge of the warrior ranking before as well so I intend to know a reasonable amount. All of them are extremely loyal towards our country Lail Kingdom and in possession of extraordinary abilities...Fumu..Since this is the final topic on our agenda, there should be no need to worry about time. Call for Zageruforu."

Zageruforu's full name is Edomarin.Zageruforu and is the current head of the rank 1 warrior class and is a veteran warrior that's 35 years old this year. With beautiful white hair almost like snow, skin that is deep purple almost completely black in color, and eyes that have a suspicious lavender glow to them, he's the ideal Dark Elf. Obviously, his abilities as a warrior are suitably high as well.

In about 10 minutes Zageruforu appeared in the meeting room. Even though he's not on a mission he has his leather corset armor that's dyed deep blue on and is wearing his short mantle that goes down about half of his back.

He's taller than the average dark elf at 185 cm and is quite the big man.

"All elders, I have appeared before you as you have requested."

After Zageruforu said that greeting them Webundo called out to him.

"Zageruforu, we were thinking we'd like to have you explain things about the rank 1 warrior class Chizumagurol. Explain to everyone about Chizumagurol. Since we don't want to give you any preconceived notions we'll explain the reason after. First off, we want to hear an explanation with no reservations."

Being ordered by an elder that's in their last year of office, Zageruforu opened his attractive lips.

"Ha...Chizumaguorl is my..Yeah, since I was from the uzuuroboride 97th period so..she's a woman that graduated the education training process 19 periods my junior as a member of the iwaganeeresade 68th period and two years prior was official appointed. If I remember correctly during the education training process she was always at the top. Up until now she's had independent missions twice and cooperative missions three times, escort missions..if I'm remembering correctly she's accomplished them about six times. Among those, one cooperative mission and two escort missions were while she was an apprentice. There was nothing that could be considered a mistake her work...

Her personality is introverted and she prefers to be alone but this is believed to be as a result of her first independent assassination mission clashing with a member of her same class who she ended up having to kill. Nevertheless, she hasn't had any difficulties in her jobs up until now. Her abilities with spells are just a bit above average, I guess you could say. Though that includes a note of taking into consideration her current age of 16 years old though. Since her void magic is level 5, it's around there I'm sure.

Also, she's enthusiastic when it comes to training and is never negligent in her training even when off duty. Her normal close combat abilities are reasonably good but due to problems in experience as well, she's still a bit below the average of the rank 1 warrior class. In regards to the crucial assassination techniques she's plenty skilled and already above average. Of course, she still isn't at my level though.

Furthermore, it's believed that the majority of her compensation are being used for medicine for her older brother with a weak constitution and the person herself lives a lifestyle with just the bare minimum equipment. I think she's a good young lady with filial piety towards her older brother. Well, her hair is black and her skin color is light so she's not to my preference and I wouldn't think of putting a hand on her."

Hearing Zageruforu's explanation Webundo said a bit surprised.

"Ho, that's a considerably high evaluation. And also, so Chizumagurol was still 16 huh..Ah, you did say the 68th period of iwaganeeresade."

The other elders are exchanging glances and talking in a whisper as well.

"Umm, is there something with Chizumagurol..."

Zageruforu asked timidly.

"Umu, it's about the incident where Chizumagurol was acting as the escort leader and one of the rank 3 warriors lost their life, an opinion has come out to have her the commander take the blame for lacking in ability so.."

Hearing that reply from Webundo, Zageruforu said in a panic.

"Wha...What are you saying!? I've properly received a report on the details but that was an inevitable situation! They were attacked by a group of ogres while passing through a valley!? An ogre mage was included in them and there was a total of 5 ogres!? Even when it comes to the might warriors of the rank 1 warrior class, it's not a situation that can be settled without any damage. That time, Chizumagurol's elemental magic levels had only just reached level 4 and she could only use arrow type spells plenty, it should have taken close to 5 seconds for her to active Javelin. Let alone that for her to use Arbalest she would have required several minutes! In sort of situation she has to protect the load, her subordinates, and the members of the acquisition ranking!? Even her subordinates were only at the level where the skilled ones could somehow use Javelin! Also, there was no damage done to the essential load or the members of the acquisition ranking!"

In response Yoretto laughed scornfully while saying.

"Fumu. A mighty warrior huh? However, if she ends up taking damage from just 5 ogres then isn't she nothing special at all? Aren't you treating the rank 1 warrior class as too special? If you look at them as warriors, there's no big difference between 1, 2, or let alone 3 right?"

Hearing that Zageruforu's eyebrows went into a frown as he objected.

"Yoretto-dono, what are you saying! Certainly calling them mighty warriors might be exaggerating but normally escorts are performed with two warriors. Since it seems that in the past there was no rankings to the warriors so you could change it to say that it wouldn't be incorrect for there to be two rank 1 warriors. If we were to follow in that example then one rank 1 warrior is equal to a single rank 2 warrior leading six rank 3 warriors.

If it's just that much then they can fight them sufficiently!

There's that much of a gap between their abilities! That's why they're rank 1!"

There's probably exaggeration included in these remarks. No matter how skilled of a person they are, there's no way they could match up to seven opponents who have received decent combat training. If they give their best then one person and put in some desperate effort you could say it would be a good performance for them to bring two of them down with them. If you think about it with common sense it's normal to think the side with seven people will take no damage.

However, Zageruforu thought (This complete amateur who doesn't even know how strong just one ogre is!), while objecting in retort to the inflammatory words. It was a big failure.

"Ho? Head warrior Zageruforu. If you're going to say that much then how about we prove it? You said that Chizumagurol was of the 68th iwaganeeresade period right. Well then, just as you said she should be able to win against one rank 2 warrior and six rank 3 warriors from the same iwaganeeresade 68th period right? Of course I'm sure it would be difficult to gather them with just members of the iwaganeeresade 68th period. It's fine if you mix in some members from Jorounefiridi 124th period and taranchurarikosa 80th period as well."

Hearing that starting with Zageruforu, the other elders stirred as well.

"Wha!? Do you intend to make dark elves perform a death match with each other over a reason like that!? Are you go crazy!?"

"Yoretto, are you, sane?"

"Something like that, isn't that just uselessly decreasing our countries forces!"

"How foolish, no matter how you think about it one versus seven wouldn't be a proper match."

While indifferently waiting for those jeers to pass by Yoretto opened his mouth to reply.

"..Of course, something like a death match is outrageous. It's a practice match. Since they'll use real weapons I'm sure there will be some injuries though. Going to the extent of taking lives over something like this, that itself is nonsense. If the one known as Chizumagurol is superior then that's fine, it's fine if we just have them suspend it right away. If that isn't the case then it's just a matter of fighting until she can't move anymore before stopping. However, in that case, my remarks from just now should pass and she should cut the number of warriors by 20% from rank 1 to rank 3 and send them around to the service ranking, we should be aiming for an increase in production to food."

Hearing that Fantodu objected.

"That itself has no relation at all. Just because a rank 1 loses in a fight against seven people we decrease the number of warriors? I don't understand the meaning. I don't think that her majesty's feelings are something like that though. In the first place wouldn't that end up reducing our forces for the Royal Road Paradise Construction Project!"

"Fantodu, I understand what you want to say. However, isn't using her majesty's feelings as a comparison cowardly. Of course, with my humble abilities it's difficult for me to guess her majesty's thoughts. But, her majesty mentioned it. In preparation for the time that comes, the country, particularly increase the food production. Earn money and make the economy more robust, like that. Our countries doesn't have surplus in population. Where would it be good to pull out that manual labor power from? The warrior classes have plenty of stamina as well. They can even use magic. Obviously I have no intention of saying something so foolish as all of them. Even if it's just taking 20% of those with the lowest level of skill from each ranking, we could greatly increase the speed of expanding the tunnels and with just that we can increase our production rates."

Yoretto indifferently replied. Putting it frankly it's close to an absurd reason. Even he understands the importance of the warrior classes plenty. However, there's not enough people. There's no money. Even the her majesty Lilus said this. "My children, the time of the Royal Road Paradise Construction Plan is close. Make preparations. Make food, circulate money, give birth, increase." Well, content at that level is almost close to a preface. Whenever there's an {Instruction} those are the first words they're generally told. However, this time just the usual one or two words of instruction wasn't enough. After the usual words from just now she normally ends things with a line like "put priority on expanding the 22nd tunnel."

However, this time there was even more details and they covered a variety of subjects.

Certainly included in that there were the words, "Rank 1 is..fine.

Deal with the drop in quality for ranks 2 and 3." as well. Yoretto was thinking of "dealing" with the drop in quality of the warriors by including them into the service ranking. If the remaining warriors brace themselves and make efforts in their training, as a result the quality should increase. If it's for that sake then just a single sacrifice {scapegoat} from the rank 1 then I'm sure there's no problem and just thought like that. Additionally he can harass the members of the rank 1 warrior class that are paid a high salary just because their abilities are only a bit higher.

In comparison starting with Fantodu the other elders were thinking of taking a look at the time required for training and revising the details, also taking another look at the curriculum for the education training process in order to "deal" with it.

Neither of them are largely mistaken.

Yoretto is hoping that the rank 2 and 3 warriors cooperating to defeat a rank 1 warrior will connect to an increase in confidence and their training after that will reach greater heights. Of course it's not as if he just simply hates rank 1. It's certainly true that their abilities are high and even Yoretto recognizes that. However, he thinks that they should make use of this chance to reduce their wages a bit more as well. Half is going too far but if they can reduce it to an average of 2,000,000 Z then that will leave 60,000,000 Z to float. They can increase the annual income of the service ranking by 20,000 Z per person for that portion. Certainly the amount of foreign currency that can be earned in their lifetime is overwhelmingly higher for the rank 1 warrior class. It's fine that their compensation is higher than the elders as well. However, he's always thought that isn't it just a bit too much.

Also, while it's just one or two people every few years but he loathes the people who choose to leave Erurehei and live outside of the country as well. Those sorts of people are largely made up of the former warrior classes. While they're in the outside world as escorts they end up feeling the appeal of other countries than Lail Kingdom. This is believed to be an alarming problem as well. However, included in her majesty Lilus's words today was "Don't follow those who leave and just let them be free." as well. That's why for now they have no intention of saying anything about the people who leave the country.

However, things that are necessary for the Kingdom, things that they believe are necessary must be asserted. Every chance that can be used should be used.

.....

Year 7444, Month 6, Day 1

Fantodu and Yoretto were giving out instruction to the seven people lined up in front of them.

"..For that reason, you should always remain on guard as you carry out your decisions. Other than those who have this mark tied on them don't let them pass the fourth checkpoint. Capture them alive. However, caravans are different. Also, you must not harm anyone other than dark elves. Starting from this moment of today for the next two month, this is all your orders!"

""Ha""

A sharp reply came back from the seven people.

After dispersing, Yoretto called out for rank 2 warrior, Harugozon of the Jorounefirdi 124th period, who was going to become the commander and talked to them.

"I said that just now but rank 1 warriors are different. The opponent has a considerable level of skill as well. If you don't attack them with the intention to kill you all might end up being killed."

After saying that he patted the shoulder of Harugozon who was young and tense as he stood at attention, then from an unseen angle he grinned with a smile.

(Right now, other than the those escorting caravans there's only two rank 1 warriors outside huh..It's unfortunate but die, No..I guess that's indiscreet..We need to make sure they're at least seriously injured..)

Chapter 144 (Reverse Chapter 135)

Year 7444, Month 6, Day 1

After giving out the instructions Fantodu returned to his office room and called out the head warriors of each ranking. With the rank 1 head warrior Zageruforu at the front, the rank 2 head warrior Akein, and rank 3 head warrior Emyuddo were all quickly called to gather in Fantodu's slightly narrow office room. They're all older than Fantodu. In an already cramped room, while feeling the pressure of the three head warriors, even then Fantodu somehow tried to maintain his dignity as he opened his mouth. Obviously since he's younger he spoke politely.

"Yesterday, just as we notified you, the command was given by warrior inspector general Yoretto. Just a moment ago with rank 2 warrior Harugozon as the command an interception unit with a total of seven members were given the dispatch order. As the assistant inspector general, no, as a single citizen of Lail Kingdom I don't think there's any order more foolish than this. I'm sure that the inspector general has his own way of thinking but I have my own thoughts as well. I would like to proceed with this discussion as if everyone already understands the circumstances. If anyone still doesn't understand then please come forward now. I'll explain everything."

The rank 3 head warrior Nemerukoru. Emyuddo her long light blue hair swayed as she stepped forward. Just the same as Zegeruforu, she's a female warrior wearing leather corset armor dyed in high quality black and crimson with a mantle that goes midway down her back. Her skin color is considerably deep. Emyuddo appeared nervous as she opened her mouth.

"What I was notified about was commencing a practice match against a member of the rank 1 warrior class as they return from the outside. I wasn't told as far as the reason."

Just the same the rank 2 head warrior Dyusukuri.Akein stepped forward with his slightly reddish hair fluttering. While he's also wearing leather corset armor but that armor is dyed black and yellow green. He isn't wearing a mantle.

"I haven't heard about the reason either. I thought that we would receive an explanation about it here though"

Hearing their words Fantodu made a face as if he expected it and nodded.

"..I see. I'm glad I asked. The reason is far too worthless. First off, the warrior inspector general is of the thoughts that he wants to make Lail Kingdom even larger and more abundant. Of course, I am too and I'm sure everyone thinks that way as well. The matter this time is a dispute over the method of how to achieve that. The warrior inspector general believes that in order to make the kingdom even more abundant we need to increase our production ability. Up until here is fine right."

After confirming that the two head warriors who stepped forward nodded, Fantodu continued.

"For that reason, the warrior inspector general is of the thoughts that it would be best to cut each of the warrior class numbers by 20% and allocate those numbers to the service ranking in order to increase our productivity...Yeah, without a doubt that's what he's thinking. I think that you all already know but ever since the warrior inspector general took up his role he's been advocating that we should reduce the number of warriors.

Since the assembly of elders has continued to push back against it, there hasn't been much of any change at all to the number of warriors but he's still been advocating that. And then the other day, we received divine instruction from her majesty Lilus. The details were over a number of topics unlike ever seen until now. However, among those the warriors were almost not mentioned at all. The only words she offered us were "Rank 1 is fine. Deal with the fall in quality of Ranks 2 and 3." was just that."

Hearing that Akein and Emyuddo looked down making mortified faces.

In their eyes they were directly referenced by her majesty the Queen in the "fall in quality". Certainly they haven't just been playing around but it's true they've felt a drop in quality compared to 10 years ago as well.

"Hearing this what do you think? Do you have any ideas on what to do?"

Fantodu questioned the two head warriors.

"I would like to increase the amount of time for training. I'll discuss the details afterwards with rank 3 head warrior Emyuddo but in order to make the most effective use of the extended time I would like for the two of us to devise some means."

Akein replied.

"We should urgently revise the details of the training and on top of closely investigating them, we should abandon the standardized training and focus on growing each individuals strong points while also having them overcome their weak points."

Emyuddo replied as well.

"That's true. I think we should start off with things like that.

However, it seems that warrior inspector general would have preferred the effects be shown even sooner. He's thinking about having 20% of the warriors with the lowest abilities of each ranking retire and include them into the service ranking. I think that he's most likely aiming to pull out the motivation of the remaining warriors through that act as well. And then, in the case it really comes to that, I'm sure the morale of the remaining warriors will drop a bit. What I think was raised as a plan to avoid that is for the rank 2 and 3 warriors to defeat a rank 1 warrior."

Of course it's not as if all Fantodu's guess is on the mark but Fantodu said with a confident expression while looking at the two head warriors. Akein and Emyuddo couldn't hide their surprise. Only Zageruforu was making a bitter face as he stood in the back.

"The basis for those thoughts of the warrior inspector general-dono being "There's no difference in the abilities between each ranking of warriors. The only difference is their skill with magic." is something I'm sure you already know. I dare to question this but what do you two think in regards to this?"

Fantodu caressed his grey hair which isn't very appealing as a Dark Elf while asking.

"If it's ranks 2 and 3 then I think it's fine to say that's largely correct. Of course if you properly make the comparison then I think that rank 2 is slightly above rank 3 in some ways...Nevertheless, whether it be simply martial arts and obviously magic as well they're not match for rank 1. If they're going to be a match for rank 1 then..if the opponent is just one then, at the very least they would need at least three people to challenge them at the risk of their lives. It would be while preparing themselves for two of them to be killed or suffer heavy injuries though. Obviously it would also be necessary to make preparations under favorable conditions as well."

The rank 3 head warrior Emyuddo said. Hearing that the rank 2 head warrior Akein nodded as well.

"It's almost the same opinion as myself. Zageruforu rank 1 head warrior. How about you?"

After accepting Emyuddo's answer Fantodu questioned the rank 1 head warrior who was still standing disappointed in the back.

"..I'm of the..same opinion."

Zageruforu twisted his face in regret as he replied.

"Ho? I remember you saying that seven people of rank 2 and 3 would be plenty to challenge them but..."

Fantodu said it disagreeably. He still took it personally how Zageruforu made a slip up in his words the other day. He thinks that if something unnecessary hadn't been said it wouldn't have gotten this complicated.

"Well it's fine. As a matter of fact the things I just said were a statement that Zageruforu rank 1 head warrior said in front of the assembly of elders. It ended up taking the shape of the warrior inspector general taking it as his pledge."

While the two head warriors eyes went wide, Fantodu continued his words.

"The order has already been given out to prevent the infiltration of any dark elves who don't have the yellow ribbon as a mark tied on their arm from making it above the 4th perimeter of the mountain. According to Zagerufory head warriors report there's two targets. It's possible that both Dendudasu and Chizumagurol will return from outside within the next two months.

I've heard that it's very possible both of them will have finished missions bringing us over 100,000,000 Z in foreign currency. I'm sure they're tired from their long journey as well. If they were successfully able to achieve their mission then the moment they enter Mount Kinru it's possible to think that they'll let their guards down. The order just now is something that might end up injuring those such brethren. Killing them has been forbidden but there's no way Dendudasu and Chizumagurol would know about that. Do you know what this means?"

With silence as their answer Fantodu looked at the three head warriors and continued his words.

"I think that this worthless, unhelpful order is clearly a mistake.

However, something that was announced by the warrior inspector general-dono who's in a position above mine doesn't make mistakes.

Anyone who doesn't want to hear what I'm about to say now please leave this room right away, I give you permission to return to your jobs. There won't be any special disadvantage to it.

Just, please think carefully about it. What can be earned from the warriors injuring each other. We will end up losing 20% of the total number of warriors as well. Of course, since they'll end up servicing our country through the service ranking I'm sure it will still raise the national power of our country. Nevertheless decreasing our precious active duty warriors who have gone through training by 20%, I wonder how we are supposed to accomplish the Royal Road Paradise Construction Project from here on out. When her majesty Lilus gives out the proclamation for the Royal Road Paradise Construction Project, please think about what sort of meaning it is to reduce the warriors who are the vanguard for that.."

After confirming that no one seemed like they would leave the room, it's something he already expected but Fantodu breathed a sigh of relief.

"Now then, once again I the assistant warrior inspector general declare that I have finished explaining to you the reason for the practice match this time. It's not like I was particularly forbidden from it but I just wanted each of you head warriors to know. From here on out is just me speaking to myself."

Fantodu said with a serious face.

"After this for a period of two months, I think it sure would be nice if some warriors with free time were to start wandering around in the area of the 4th perimeter without the mark on them. I sure do wish someone would even cut time out from sleeping to always been wandering around the areas between the 3rd and 4th perimeters. Since the commander chosen this time rank 2 warrior Harugozon is from a branch family of the warrior inspector general, I'm sure he'll try to faithfully follow through with the order but even they need to take some rest. It sure would be nice if there was people wandering around to the point where they can't get anything like rest~ And then, in the off chance that something like a practice match were to start, if someone yells "It's a practice match!" in the area to call their allies that would be great. If there's any injured people in the area it would be great if they could use some healing spells~ Hey, it's just for two months. It's not a very long time at all."

He looked around at the three head warriors and finished saying just that last thing to himself.

"Obviously, I would like for the head warriors to forget to eat and sleep and carefully patrol the 3rd and 4th perimeters as well."

And then, while he is younger than them but he made a elder-like expression while glaring at the head warriors and, "Hn? So you were still here huh? It seems I spent too much time talking to myself. Everyone leave the room and return to your official duties."

And said that while taking out some expensive paper for documents.

.....

Year 7444, Month 6, Day 20

(..But..Why?)

The inside of Miduchi's head was confused from the attack she's receiving. However, she can't just remain confused either. In any case understanding the situation can be put off. Something like the situation is something you can slowly confirm while doing everything you can do. She lowered her body low in the bushes she rolled into on the spot and started preparing an arrow with her bow. The moment I can see the opponent even if it doesn't hit it's necessary to keep them in check. If the opponent falters then I can move over to those other bushes that seem a bit easier to fight defensively from, in the case they don't falter then this time just like I was just attacked, this time it should be fine if I fire a {Flame Arrow}.

However, the {Flame Arrow} from just now was a speed slow enough to normally be avoided. I guess they don't have any intention of killing? It's not as if that first arrow was aiming for a vital point either. If they're serious then it's best to aim for the face or heart on the first shot after all. They aimed that for the stomach. By chance I had the plate I borrowed under my armor in my clothes pocket so I was able to block it without any damage at all but even if I didn't have the plate I'm sure I would have been injured but putting aside {Cure Light} for an arrow wound to the stomach, if it's {Cure Serious} then there wouldn't be any risk to my life.

It would be a different matter if poison was smeared on it but there was no poison on it.

She was able to decide that far in an instant but in any case there's no other choice than to hold out for now. I somehow want to jump into the entrance of Erurehei but there should still be quite a bit of distance remaining. She quietly took off the arrow before putting it on the ground and then grabbed two bottles from her waist with her right hand. There's a special chemical in both of these bottles and when you mix the contents together a red smoke is given off. She placed one bottle on the ground and then if she just pours the contents of the second bottle in there the red smoke will start to raise right away.

It's something like an emergency smoke signal for dark elves. No matter what they're doing when dark elves see this smoke they're obligated to go and save them. Fundamentally the ones who use it the most are rank 3 warriors who are fighting monsters or hunting along the mountain paths. It's common to remain within 20-30 m windward from where you use it but there's no absolute to it. It's more often the case that you can't continue to remain in one place while in the middle of combat with monsters after all and it can also be thought that there won't be any place just right to wait windward.

Miduchi hesitated over whether to use the bottle of smoke. It's simple to use it but at the same time it gives away your location to the opponent.

If you don't use it then it's possible to tragically be killed as well.

In the first place is the opponent..Alone?

In the case there's multiple of them, even in the worst case

Miduchi thought she didn't have any chance of winning. She remained to the ground holding her breath, while Miduchi couldn't do anything but that she hesitated and started thinking.

The only thing Miduchi can rely on right now is the small bottle in her own hand.

She also had doubts about what kind of reason this sudden dilemma was occurring. At the very least, it's difficult to think that she would be targeted by someone within the area of influence of Lail Kingdom. Well then, is it a monster? That's unthinkable as well. There's not even a 1 in 10,000 chance that monsters that can use not only the bow but also magic would be wandering around here.

While she keeps remaining close to the ground going in circles with her thoughts the situation isn't changing for the better. Miduchi quietly looked around the area and returned the smoke bottles to her pouch.

"Oh~ another practice match huh! Give it your best~!"

She heard that sort of voice from the distance. There was a considerable amount of distance from that voice but it echoed out as if it was trying to teach Miduchi that a practice match was taking place. Hearing that while Miduchi was somewhat able to accept it, there was still points remaining that she couldn't understand.

(Practice match? But, why are they aiming for me? In the first place, there never should have been a practice match in a place like this up until now..)

Thinking that, she carefully continued to look in the direction the arrow came flying. If a practice match is really taking place and she was mistaken as the target for that then it's not as if she wouldn't understand the attack from just now. However, she couldn't make sense of why they would suddenly start a practice match without notifying this side. After all if Miduchi were to counterattack in the case she doesn't know anything, her first consideration would be taking the lives of their opponents as she counterattacks.

(Something is strange..)

While she was thinking that and quickly a person appeared in her sight. It still hasn't been 10 seconds from the first arrow.

She almost reflexively went to use {Flame Arrow} but stopped herself. The opponent is the same dark elf as her. She's seen their face before as well. If she remember correctly that's the young rank 2 warrior Harugozon. There's two people behind, some other young rank 3 warriors are abiding by him.

(Eh? Why is a rank 2 warrior in a place like this?)

Miduchi surprise is something only obvious. The rank 2 warrior class normally act as so-called gatekeepers protecting what could be called the front entrance of Erurehei, their mission is to guard the surface entrance and several of the secret entrances. There's no way they would be forgiven to leave their position and wander around in a place like this. Of course, it's possible they could be off duty and using their day off to do some training alone but even in that case it's unnatural. You could say that equipment is strange for training. After all, they don't just have a bow and arrows but they're equipped with long swords on their waist.

They've properly got their leather armor on and the way they're scanning the area without letting their guard down is hard to call training.

(This location, that appearance, is it really a practice match...Otherwise it's live combat?)

"There's seven people after all! Be careful~!"

Miduchi can hear the voice from a moment ago again. It's closer than last time.

(Eh? A warning? Is it aimed towards me? What's that? What's going on? I don't understand the meaning..)

That's only obvious. Even though they're performing a practice match there was notification to this side, not to mention for some unknown reason they're even so politely telling the number of attackers. Harugozon and the other's faces twisted detestably hearing the voice. It was to the point where she might even have heard them clicking with their tongue.

(If it's seven people then..Other than the three in front I guess one on each side..If even further they have one in direction to the back then they would have me surrounded..So the three approaching from the front are the decoy huh?)

"We've secured the horse~!..Chizumagurol huh!? It's a practice match! Don't kill! It's alright!"

Along the way the voice echoed out as if it was in a hurry.

She thought it would be fine just letting her horse go but she's thankful that they secured it. After all among her precious business tools stored in it's saddle bag is the especially heavy magic stone. The size is around that of an adult's fist and it's weight is over 6 Kg. Just one of those could easily rival over 10 years of her annual income.

Simultaneously she also felt she was able to relax a bit. It seems true that she's really being challenged to a practice match. And, if that's the case then there's only one thing to do. Even if it's just a practice match losing is annoying. Miduchi sticks out her forked tongue to lick her lips once before thinking of the area where they would be circling around from and without worrying about hitting just fired her bow, then at her full speed hid her body behind the trunk of a tree nearby.

"She's in the shadow of that tree! Pin her down!!"

Harugozon's order echoes out. While Miduchi was hidden behind the tree she took some distance and confirmed above her and then in a hurry used earth magic to create a doughnut shaped wall surrounding her to act as an improvised shelter. Right now Miduchi's elemental magic is level 5. She create 30 cubic meters of dirt in one use.

The inside has a diameter of 60 cm, the walls a thickness of 1.5 meters, and a height of over 3 meter as she shaped it like a gun barrel. She can't afford to take her time. She has to decide the match before they throw dirt or water inside.

Immediately after she climbed up the dirt about 50 cm and used level 5 wind magic at her feet. In an instant 30,000 cubic meters of air appeared and taking into consideration the 1.5 meter height of the gun barrel Miduchi was sent flying over 20 meters into the air. Below her the improvised gun barrel and shelter was smashed to pieces sending a cloud of dusting flying into the surroundings of where she was.

During the 2 seconds or so until she falls 10 meters to the surface how many times can she shoot {Lightning Bolt}? If possible she wanted to hit at least one person surrounding her. Then at least make one person from the decoy group unable to fight through electricity.

She flew into the air and while Miduchi was making a twisted face she sent pale blue lightning flying from her left hand.

Chapter 145 (Reverse Chapter 136)

Year 7444, Month 6, Day 20

Bashi!!

Along with a sound as if the atmosphere is being cut the electricity from {Lightning Bolt} surges out of Miduchi's left hand and stretches towards one of the dark elves that was trying to circle around her knocking them out in an instant.

Since she's only poured the standard amount of mana into it the damage isn't enough to cause instant death. It should have just paralyzed them.

Bashi!!

Again the same sound from before rings out, this time the electricity jumps from her right hand. The target is one of those coming from the front, rank 2 warrior Harugozon. The warriors who are below rank 2 can't use {Anti-Magic Field} due to reasons relating to the number of elemental magic skills they were able to learn. Although, even if they could use it, there's no way they would have mastered it to the level of being able to deploy it faster than electricity either. Without missing it's aim, the electricity hit Harugozon in the abdomen and knocked him out on the spot.

For Miduchi since she's taking on multiple opponents she'd like to use {Chain Lightning} which splits up after hitting it's target but her wind magic only just reached level 5 the other day.

Consequently, since she's barely used it before it, she can't activate it in an instant, let alone that when it comes to {Chain Lightning} putting aside the attacks that split up, unless you've achieved mastery with it the first direct hit will almost always deal enough damage to seriously injury or kill so it wasn't an option in the first place.

The reason she used wind magic to send herself flying into the air as well, it was to momentarily move outside of their sight and gain the 2 seconds needed to use magic. She'd like to send one more hit flying but it's already the limit. She'd like to use wind magic a number of times to gain a soft-landing but she can already confirm several hands and bows being aimed over here. In order to camouflage her landing point she uses wind magic consecutively going parallel to herself and went to great pains to try and shift her landing point from mid air to a location she can't be noticed.

Miduchi's wind magic shakes the bushes and trees that have a height of over 10 meters around both sides of the road Miduchi was following and generates a miniature typhoon. Even if it couldn't be considered high quality if she wasn't wearing proper leather armor and had the hems of her pants inside of her boots it would have been a disaster just like the robe she was wearing from the wind. The robe was already reduced to nothing more than scraps and strings since the first wind she used to ascend and is now basically a mantle swaying on her back. However, it might have been thanks to this robe that she was able to receive the wind easier.

There's no need to even evade the arrows that are flying, their trajectory is bent by the wind magic and the warheads of the spells end up being blown in a different direction as well, thanks to that she was somehow able to land without taking any damage. Since she ended up rolling about 5 meters from the impact of the landing, it's not as if she didn't take any damage at all from the fall but the fact that she didn't suffer any bone fractures or sprains was just as she was aiming for. Miduchi ignores the pain surging through her body from the landing as she stands up right away and dashes at an intense speed up Mount Kinru towards where she heard the voice from just now.

However, while she's knocked two unconscious there's still five people remaining. While things have gotten a bit better compared to the start, there's still no change in the situation of being outnumbered. She's paralyzed them through electricity but if they can just use earth and water elemental magics at level 4 then as long as they have time there's no problem with them being able to use the spell {Remove Paralysis}. The possibility that sooner or later they may return to the battlefield can't be ignored.

"Over there!!"

When Miduchi ran off she heard that voice shout from behind her.

It's one she recognizes. It's the voice of a male rank 3 warrior that was the same age as her. During the education training process they spent just the first year together. What was his name again?

(In your case..you're magic results were bad right..)

She glances behind and hides behind an adequate tree while smiling and after waiting for the timing jumped out. She's already got both of her hands aimed at the target. And, between Miduchi and her pursuers a blue colored gas springs forth.

"It's {Stun Cloud}!! Be careful!"

Someone else shouts. Idiots. You should have either silently taken a detour around to avoid it or immediately stop your feet and use an attack spell...She uses the {Stun Cloud} that's already started to disperse as a decoy as she uses spells consecutively.

"{Quagmire}"

Miduchi poured five times the normal amount of mana into it and created a bog with a length of 2 meters and a width of 10 meters on her right side. And then, on the opposite side she created a similar bog as well. Miduchi's mana has already reached the point where it feels like she can only use cloud type attack spells two more times. It seems it would be best to use arrow type spells on those who get caught in the bog rather than cloud type. She didn't want to harm them but it can't be helped.

Several {Flame Arrow} and {Stone Arrows} fly towards Miduchi. She quickly evades those by rolling and then plunges into some bushes higher up from where she was while checking to see if any fools get caught up in her {Quagmire}.

"Uwa!!"

"Eh!!"

"Kyaa!!"

Just as expected three people ended up getting caught. While the three of them have their legs caught in the mud and can't move freely she hits them in the abdomen with {Stone Arrow} and this time intentionally makes some loud noises while jumping out of the bushes as she shows herself running towards the summit of Mount Kinru.

(It should be fine since there's no one who would die over something of that level. Though I'm sure they wouldn't be able to use magic from the pain.)

She holds her breath, hiding her presence, crouching down in the bushes while taking a throwing dart out of the chest of her leather armor, then took a characteristic bottle out of the pouch at her waist. There's a paralysis poison inside made of ganbi grass leaves and the blood of the green tree frog. She dips the edge of the dart inside and then quickly puts away the bottle and(I haven't officially heard that this was a practice match, so it's fine right) and makes excuses for herself. The place to aim is either the neck or chest. As close to the head as possible is best.

Without even giving them time to use magic, her aim is to let the paralysis poison reach their brain and knock them out.

Since it's a pure poison, the superior point of a poison is that it will temporarily numb the brain as well. If it was a paralysis poison that is based on a magic effect then it wouldn't go this way. Since martial arts and spells stand out the rank 1 warrior class which specialize in those portions are said to be stronger than the other warrior classes but true strength is this sort of knowledge. The recipes for the various drugs and how much of their strong and weak points you understand. There's a wide variety of knowledge that is only stated to the rank 1 warrior class.

If I hadn't used up the last of my caltrops during the assassination mission this time then it should have been even easier. However, I was lucky to be able to reduce their numbers down to just two more who can fight properly.

(Seven people, and if that wasn't a lie, that is...)
While thinking that Miduchi thought that the opponent was seven people as well.
Either they lost sight of me or, she carefully holds her long sword on guard in her right hand with her left hand stretched out as she looks around the area and found a male rank 3 warrior about to pass by several meters on her side. She smiled as if she just waits for another 10 seconds she can aim for the back of his neck with a dart.
(Ya~!!)
From Miduchi's hand the dart is thrown and stabs into the back right side of the mans neck without missing it's mark.
His left hand reflexively stretched out to the nape of his neck where the dart hit but the man then fell to both knees and collapsed.
One more left.
It's regretful that her bow and arrows went somewhere while she was flying through the air. However, if it's just one more person then she should be able to somehow deal with them. Rather than letting things drag out, even if it's a bit dangerous she should charge in and finish things off all at once. If she leaves them alone the two who were hit by the initial {Lightning Bolt} and convulsing might be able to recover.
She carefully scans her surroundings but wasn't able to find the remaining person. Miduchi switches her remaining dart with the paralysis poison on it to her right hand as she stands up and moves to the side of the opponent she just rendered powerless with the other dart, she sticks her blade up to the neck of the fallen opponent and provokes the remaining person.

"Hey coward who suddenly attacks without informing the reason! I'm right here! I only have one knife and dart remaining! Now, come out and have a match with me!"

She raises her voice and continues.

"If you don't come out then in 5 seconds I'll kill this man!"

Five~!"

The groans of the dark elves who got stuck in the bog and took Miduchi's attack spells echo around the area.

"Four!"

She can hear the sound of a horse coming from higher up the mountain. It should be the person who raised their voice and informed her of the danger just now.

"Three!"

A {Stone Arrow} came flying from her left shoulder. Miduchi easily avoids that. Next an arrow will probably come flying.

Just as predicted an arrow came from the same direction. If she already knows the direction it's coming from then it's easy for Miduchi to avoid an arrow. Around 30 m away there's a single dark elf woman preparing another arrow on her bow.

She charges towards her. Of course she doesn't aim at her in a straight line. She runs along a slightly shifted path. The instant an arrow was fired in the position Miduchi was heading, she lowered her the posture of her body and threw the dart she had while rolling.

The woman avoids the dart and draws the long sword from her waist as she throws down her bow. Miduchi looks at her remaining knife and after quickly fixing her grip on that she lowered her stance while going on guard. Seeing that the woman remembered the Miduchi's only remaining weapon was her knife. A bit of composure could be seen in her tense face.

With the knife still at the ready in her right hand Miduchi ran towards the woman. The distance quickly was closed..the woman used wind magic right in front of her and send herself flying. And then, before it could be noticed she threw the knife in her left hand aimed at Miduchi. With a hair's breadth, the fact that she was able to use the knife in her hand to repel that was in part thanks to good luck.

The rank 3 warrior class woman used wind magic once again against her own back and this time charged in at a tremendous speed with her long sword in hand. She instantly used wind magic in front of her and while pulling back a bit herself, distances the woman coming from in front. In reality she'd like to use earth magic to make a wall here but it takes several split seconds from the moment the wall is formed until it raises up from the dirt. She had no other choice than to give up on it because the distance is too close.

While confronting the woman with several meters in between, Miduchi lowered her back and changed her stance so her right hand is sticking out as she remains ready with her knife. The woman is on guard with her long sword in her right hand and she has her left hand meeting the side of that. In order to use attack magic at this distance it's meaningless unless you have a level of mastery on that man's level. The activation time that the dark elves define as mastery level is less than 1 second but even then it takes several fractions of a second. Of course, even then as they get closer to the top of the sorcerers the activation time gets that much faster.

The woman licks her lips with her forked tongue. She must have confidence in her sword skills.

Contrasted with that Miduchi was expressionless.

The two of them step in at lightning speed and while in passing, a clear sound rings out.

The blade length of Miduchi's well maintained and sparkling knife is only a mere 15 cm.

The length of the blade of the woman's long sword is about 80 cm.

They step in once more and both of the blades were brandished.

Silver light intersects and this time a shrieking sound rings out as both of their movements stop.

Their blades are locked together.

The knife with a short grip can only be handled with one hand so it was an overwhelming disadvantage.

The long sword the woman was using was normally supposed to be used in one hand so the grip is short but even then there's enough room for her left hand.

While they're pushing back against each other Miduchi's stance continues to get worse.

In comparison the woman gradually gains an advantage in her posture pushing back.

The match seemed as if it had reached it's conclusion.

"Shit!! Where are you!?"

It seems Harugozon has already recovered.

Depending on the elemental magic types they have the other victim of {Lightning Bolt} might recover soon as well.

Sweat drips down Miduchi's face.

However, in the next moment, the woman's eyes went wide as she tried to raise her voice but was unable.

Her own right arm which was holding her long sword, there was a dart being held by Miduchi's left hand stabbing into it.

The paralysis poison smeared on the dart quickly started to take effect and she lost the power in her right hand, just as she thought she was losing the advantage in her posture and the paralysis circulated through her body.

If she were to try and raise her voice here she felt like she would lose all the power in her body all at once.

However, it's already only a matter of time.

Even that's at best a few seconds.

"I didn't say that I only had one dart remaining. Being unprepared is your greatest enemy."

As the woman lost all of her strength and collapsed Miduchi looked over her with cold eyes and said.

She quickly stole the woman's long sword and started moving while keeping low.

Her aim is the last remaining one, most likely the commander

Harugozon.

As a matter of fact Miduchi already has almost no mana remaining.

She may be able to use 3 or 4 more arrow type attack spells.

It won't work for anything more than restraining.

However, Miduchi(This is plenty to manage) thought that. Putting aside a veteran, when it comes to fighting against rank 2 or 3 warriors one on one who aren't all that difference in age from her she couldn't think of any reason she would lose. Even just now she skillfully deceived the opponent and overturned the disadvantage in equipment.

It's fine if she calmly does it the next time as well. There's already almost no disadvantage in equipment. She returns her knife to it's scabbard on her thigh and tightens her grip on the woman's long sword while moving without making a sound. The name of Miduchi the Silent isn't just for show. Among the rank 1 warrior class which is filled with masters, Miduchi's techniques at erasing her presence are already able to rival the veteran warriors at her young age of 16. She's capable of plenty for rank 1 head warrior Zageruforu to put his seal of approval on just her assassination techniques.

"Isn't that already fine! Isn't it already Chizumagurol's victory!?"

Hey, Harugozon! Heal the injured!"

Rank 2 head warrior Akein appeared from somewhere and declared.

Just a bit behind that rank 1 warrior class Kurozakku was leading Miduchi's horse and happily grinning.

"Ku...I understand."

Harugozon's voice appears from just a bit of distance away. She can hear footsteps running nearby.

Miduchi was,

(So that voice from just now was Kurozakku-san huh?)

thinking that while still keeping the long sword in her hand as she approached the two and said.

"Kurozakku-san. Rank 1 warrior, Midu~ritto.Chizumagurol has successfully finished the type 4 headpiece mission and just returned. Afterwards I will report the details to head warrior Zageruforu but this is..Umm..."

Kurozakku who was grinning until just a moment ago nodded hearing Miduchi's words and said something to Akein. Hearing that Akein nods once and,

"Chizumagurol. I'm sorry about the sudden practice match...Ask about the reason later. I need to heal the injured."

And said with a slightly apologetic face. He quickly changed his expression to a more severe one and,

"Harugozon! I'll look after everyone in this area! After that you bastard! Even if the opponent was a rank 1, what in the world is meaning losing seven versus one! After this I'll retrain you from the start myself! Prepare yourself!"

And shouted that before heading to the woman that was Miduchi's opponent just now.

Seeing Miduchi make an expression like she had no idea what was going on, Kurozakku said.

"Thank you for your work. First off let's return to Erurehei. I'm sure you're exhausted from the long journey, I really would love to let you get some rest right away but after you take a shower and get refreshed appear before the head warrior and receive an explanation. However, you did quite well against seven opponents. I'm sure he'll praise you. I guarantee it."

He said that while showing his teeth as he smiled.

Chapter 146 (Reverse Chapter 137)

7444, Month 6, Day 20

"Fumu..Well then, with this we call an end to the hearing of rank 1 warrior Chizumagurol. Chizumagurol, from here on out devote your loyalty to Lail Kingdom as well."

The speaker elder Webundo said that concluding things and Miduchi went to open her mouth to reply in understanding.

"Webundo-sama, please wait. We still haven't finished with the judgement of the practice match today!"

One of the elders, warrior inspector general Yoretto stated a difference. Currently in this location other than the subject of the hearing Miduchi, there's the 10 elders, and additionally the the three head warriors as well as the head of the rank 2 warriors that was escorting the caravan and Beindoru the head of the acquisition ranking. In the first place they discussed the source of the problem that is the details of the escort mission at the start of this year and the hearing concluded without any particular problem. During that time, Miduchi and the other warriors remain keeling with their heads lowered only allowed to speak when their opinions are requested. In the not particularly spacious corner of the assembly of elders meeting room there were five warriors and one other kneeling so it was considerably cramped.

Miduchi couldn't help but find it strange. In regards to the hearing this time as well, it was just a matter of conveying the details she had reported to the head warrior after completing the mission. No matter how anyone looks at it the fact that they were able to minimize the damage to just one rank 3 warrior who was escorting was largely thanks to the efforts of the escort leader Miduchi taking command and each of the other escorts. Exactly where was there any fault that a hearing needed to be performed. Of course, the hearing was something like a formality and it quickly progressed and just now ended without problem though. Up until another problem was raised again here, excluding just one person everyone on the spot didn't have any doubts that it was the conclusion of this strange ceremony. It was quite literally just about to end now. It was then that the elder Yoretto warrior inspector general accused Miduchi.

"Even though it was a practice match, I've heard that rank 1 warrior Chizumagurol didn't just use horukutokiso but also used magic to injure her brethren. Isn't this fine as rank 1 warrior Chizumagurol's loss?"

Regardless of whether it's fine or not. Miduchi doesn't care about the outcome of the practice match at all.

If you want to say it's a loss then a loss is fine too. She can't accept it but it's certainly true she used the natural paralysis poison horukutokiso which is forbidden from practice matches so if you want to determine it as a loss because of that then it's fine to think that can't be helped. After all she already understood that it was a practice match at that point.

Rank 2 head warrior Akein raised a groan on Miduchi's side.

"~~! Yoretto inspect general. I can't agree with that. The matter this time, both rank 1 warrior Kurozakku and I were watching from the start. Exactly what about that was a practice match! Without knowing or being told anything, even though she just finished the hard for to finish a mission in a distance land, when an exhausted warrior finally returns home if suddenly ambushing them with seven opponents without asking questions is within the realms of a practice match then I wouldn't have any choice but to accept it though."

Yoretto warrior inspector general coldly looked at rank 2 head warrior Akein and,

"I don't remember permitting you to speak."

And said that before looking at Webundo once again. Miduchi was still thinking (It seems that rank 2 head warrior Akein is covering me but if it's like this then his position will get worse. Will things be fine if I just accept my defeat?) she had no idea what was going on. In that case then it's best if things are concluded even just a bit better here.

"I request permission to speak."

And Miduchi said while looking at warrior inspector general

Yoretto. Since no one was giving her permission she continued looking at Webundo. After seeing Webundo consent with his eyes and a nod she opened her mouth.

"It's certainly true that I used horukutokiso in the practice match just now. I did it in order to render my opponents powerless without injuring them as much as possible but if you're going to decide the outcome based on that then"Chizumagurol!"

The one who raised a loud voice interrupting Miduchi's statement was rank 1 head warrior Zageruforu.

"No, I officially permit you to speak. Rank 1 warrior Chizumagurol..continue speaking."

It seems it's not a good idea to just obediently accept my defeat from the practice match just now.

"Ha, practice match is an abbreviation for practice combat. It's something that is modeled around real combat and normally rules don't exist. Even more, I was ambushed without being given notice that it was a practice match. I was hit in the abdomen with an arrow at the start..by chance I somehow managed to defend against this but following that I was attacked with attack spells. By that point, if I hadn't had any leeway I don't think the fault would have been with me if I had counterattacked with all of my ability and killed the opponents. In actual fact, I rendered all of the seven people who attacked me unable to move."

"You! This unsightly failure! There would be no fault for killing your own brethren you say!?"

(This is bad. It's true I might have said too far.)

Since she was already too used to hearing it during her childhood

Miduchi's sorrows told ht tale of how she no longer feels anything to the remarks of "unsightly failure". Mentioning it additionally, thanks to the events of the other day she's gained some leeway her heart so in the first place she's gained a sturdy barrier and resistance against abusive statements and didn't take any damage from words like that at this point. Her girl power had become infinitely low.

"Webundo-sama, permission to speak."

On Miduchi's side rank 1 head warrior Zageruforu requested permission to speak in a deep coercive voice. Seeing Zageruforu, Webundo said just the single word "Permitted" to give permission.

"Ha..Inspector general Yoretto. There's several things I want to say but first of what does that statement "unsightly failure" mean?

Appearance isn't requested from warriors. An apology for Chizumagurol. After that, the matter this time, the largest responsibility is with myself for making a statement that could be taken as a pledge at the start.

Nevertheless, no matter who looks at it the practice match ended in Chizumagurol's victory. The rules of a practice match don't matter at all this time. If you were to bring that up then I can't help but think the fact that they suddenly performed an ambush without any notice is a problem as well. Even though that was the case

Chizumagurol won and just now it was proven that she accomplished her escort mission without problem as well.

Therefore the reduction in the warrior class is "That's plenty.

Remain quiet."

Assistant warrior inspector general Fantodu interrupted

Zageruforu's statement.

"From there on is the job of us elders. Head warrior...Now then,

Yoretto-sama, in regards to rank 1 head warrior Zageruforu's statement just now..First off of course there's the apology for the rash remarks you just made but why are you so insistent on reducing the numbers of the warrior class? In order to increase productivity, it's certainly important to increase the numbers of the service ranking. However, aren't you acting somewhat impatient on it?"

Yoretto was listening with a cynical face but he opened his mouth to reply.

"..What do the other elder members think about it? Aren't you taking her majesty Lilus's words too lightly? Her majesty raised an increase in the production of food as the number one point. We must carry out with it no matter what sacrifices we have to make. Since our countries human resources are limited after all.

..These past 100 years the population has only increased by a mere 400 people, that's only 10%. The mortality rate of newborns is roughly 30%. Even if we have three children that comes out to the population almost not increasing at all. You could say that the cause of that is entirely the problem of food. Other than leaving the bare minimum number of warriors, exactly what are you saying is the problem with moving them to the service ranking? That itself is what I can't accept."

Yoretto quietly started talking.

"The other day I stated that our countries income of foreign currency was 20,000,000,000 and of that only 2,000,000,000 is earned from the warrior class including through the sale of magic stones. Certainly I'll recognize that there's some improper portions of this expression."

After saying that he wet his throat with some water.

"The purchase of glass bottles for cultivating mushrooms and the purchase of all sorts of materials. Of course the purchase of equipment for the warriors to use as well. Since the ingredients for medicine isn't just mushrooms after all. All of those purchases cost money. It's not like the horses that are used while trading can eat mushrooms either. Even the cost of feed can't be made fun of. The cost of feed for just 30 horses is 25,000,000 Z a year on straw.

Therefore, just as you know it's not as if we have 20,000,000,000 in profits. Our expenses reach 17,000,000,000 after all. If you include the compensation we pay our citizens as an expense then it's already at the limit with 20,000,000,000. We can't save anything more than tear drops worth of money towards the foreign currency reserve. We need to earn even just a bit more money in order to escape from this situation."

While Yoretto's tone of speech has already changed not just the elders, but everyone there was paying attention to him.

"Certainly I think it's an inexcusable thing to the warriors.

However, at the current point my trial calculations show that a 20% cut, if over 50 warriors were to move to the service ranking then the tunnel expansion efficiency would increase by close to 30%. After all there's only around 300 people actively participating in the expansion of tunnels in the service ranking right now. Those 300 center around men but those in there 40s don't even need to be mentioned, a lot of them are in their 50s as well.

10 or 20 years later the result of this will definitely come back as a blessing to our country. In the expanded farms we can cultivate that many more mushrooms, with the increased production, both our food and our money will increase as well. The families of this generation will be able to relax and have four or more children. Our population will increase and then our productivity will increase even further. If we have money we can buy even more wheat as food from the neighboring countries as well. If we can buy more food that is capable of being stored for prolonged periods like dried mushrooms or wheat then that would become a great power."

While the attention gathered on Yoretto he lowered his head to the desk pressing it against while continuing his words.

"Fortunately our country hasn't been invaded by foreign countries.

We don't have as much of a need as other countries to fortify our defenses. After all we only have this mountain. As long as we can't make fields in our territory like the countries on the surface, I'm sure the various countries wouldn't want our territory to the point of fighting for it. For those who went through the painful training and spent their days training only to finally join the warrior class, I really feel apologetic towards them. However, this is the current state of our country right now. I think we should start making drastic forms pretty soon. In the first place I think that the Royal Road Construction Plan is a plan with that sort of meaning.

Of the records of her majesty Lilus's instructions, excluding that time 300 years ago during the "{Purple Worm} incident", almost all of them are connected to increasing productivity. Her majesty is always thinking about the happiness of our countries citizens. It's the same this time as well right? The new method of raising aberujii and the increase in cultivation efficiency, the maintenance to the seedbeds of takurujii, the method to control temperatures for the kofurujii it was all instructions about the edible mushrooms. Other than that it was about the direction to stretch the tunnels and how wide to expand them, almost all of it was regarding things needed for daily life and living. There was no instruction at all in regards to the ingredient for medicine like rakuhoggu or the poisons rirehoggu and soruhoggu. Even when it came to the warriors they weren't mentioned much at all."

Seeing Yoretto rub his head against the desk while stating the present conditions and plead, Miduchi thought.

I somewhat feel like I can get an idea of the background up until now from the flow of the conversation but even if that's the case I really have to wonder about that being the cause for being attacked even if it was practice.

(I see now. So there was a person like this. But, if you're a politician then you should properly lay out the groundwork and get everyone's agreement before..It's not a democratic rule though, so I guess that's fine..But the elders are organized through consultation so isn't it sort of like a democracy? And also, he still hasn't apologized to me yet. Ah, come to think of it..)

Miduchi rummages around and takes out her anku then puts that to her head while fixing her posture on the ground as if praying and started singing the "Japanese national anthem". Of course, she also included a word at the start for camouflage.

"Yo..Your majesty Lilus!? "Ki~mi~ga~a~yo~o~wa~"

Everyone was startled as their attention gathered on Miduchi as she suddenly started singing a strange song. That's not unreasonable.

However, since she has the anku at her forehead and is taking a pose of prayer they couldn't do anything but watch over dumbfounded. Even more so because the first words she spoke cause some hesitation.

(Wu, embarrassing..)

"..Mwu~u~su~u~ma~ade~"

For a moment Miduchi's anku gave off a strong light and then almost as if a 3D projector was used an image appeared in the meeting room. What was shown was a female dark elf with the legs of a spider from her back and a crown on her head. Simultaneously the same words echoed through the heads of everyone here.

""I am Lilus.Zugutomore. The Ruler and Empress of Lail Kingdom. My children, bow before me.""

The color of everyone's faces changed as they crouched down into the pose of prayer. The elders jumped off of their chairs and those who were kneeling in the corner of the meeting room started prostrating themselves on the spot as they prayed. Among them there were those who started to shed tears being overcome with emotion.

"Shiina-san. This is, something like a recording but there's just a bit of improvisation to it. Among these three options please choose one. 1. There's a political problem related to a foreign country. 2. There's a problem occurring regarding your social standing. 3. There's a political problem occurring domestically. Say the number you pick in Japanese. Next say the degree it requires being dealt with. A strong offensive stance. A moderate stance. Or a weak defensive stance. It doesn't matter if this is the degree you want to stop it at as well."

Miduchi was a bit confused but still,

"Option 3, a moderate chance."

and said that. But hurried a bit and bit her tongue. After the recording confirmed her words Lilus's image nodded and majestically opened her mouth.

"It seems that all of the elders are gathered. Listen well, my children. I don't like trivial disputes within my country. I'll give Chizmagurol orders in regards to this matter afterwards. Tomorrow afternoon, instructions will be given through her. Tonight, allow her into my bedroom. Alright?"

""Ha!""

Everyone in the room seemed to have said in chorus. Just Miduchi was, "It can't be, she's throwing it all on me.." rendered speechless. Furthermore, there was just a bit more conversation from her majesty the Queen. Thanks to that, putting aside Miduchi's skin color, black hair ended up as one of the most beautiful colors though. It was to the point where you would feel uncomfortable how different things were for the sense of values among the dark elves up until now.

.....

Today after Miduchi arrived at Erurehei these are the things that took place at the assembly of elders she appeared at without having any time to return to her house and see her older brother's face.

Author's note: some notes on glass bottles breaking, costs, and a small amount of livestock being raised in the kingdom.

Chapter 147 (Reverse Chapter 138)

Year 7444, Month 6, Day 20

After being released from the administrative office which also acts as the assembly of elders, Miduchi moved to the warrior building along with each of the head warriors. It's because she still hadn't given an official report on the completion of her mission this time. The group was engulfed in a strange atmosphere, no one said a single word as they maintained the silence while moving. In front of the warrior building rank 1 warrior Kurozakku was taking the saddle bag and harness off of Miduchi's horse and waiting with that luggage until Miduchi and the others returned.

Miduchi offered her thanks to Kurozakku when receiving her luggage and started on her way inside of the warrior building where Zageruforu rank 1 head warrior has his domain in order to report the completion of her job.

"..And that's the shape it ended up so I ended up finishing off the target Mittorigu. Rokisu including all of the subordinates he was leading inside of the dungeon. There were no witnesses as far as I confirmed. The surrounding people believe they were defeated by monsters while exploring the dungeon, and I believe it was accepted in that sort of natural shape. Taking into consideration the possibility of their corpses being discovered I didn't gather their magic stones but I definitely confirmed their deaths. I also disguised their injuries to appear as if they were attacked by monsters."

"..I see. Thanks for your work. It's fine for you to return home today and get some rest. Since you have to appear at the royal palace tonight after all.."

Rank 1 head warrior Zageruforu replied while wiping the corner of his eye after receiving Miduchi's report.

A deep fatigue could be heard in his voice.

"And also, umm.."

Miduchi faltered with her words.

"Hn? What is it?"

"That is, during my mission I inevitably defeated monsters inside of the dungeon. When I had leeway in time I gathered the magic stones so I have the magic stones with me. Also, separate from the mission there's a magic stone I obtained privately but this is..."

"How many are there?"

"All of the small ones I obtained during my mission I merged together so there's a total of two."

Hearing that Zageruforu waved his hand while declaring.

"Yeah, just the same as usual whatever magic stones you obtain during the mission belong to you. Feel free to use them or bring them to the place of the rank 3 and sell them, dispose of them however you please. I'm always saying it right? There's no need to honestly report things every time."

Hearing Zageruforu's comments Miduchi suddenly made a cheerful face,

"Right. Excuse me, thank you very much."

and said that while lowering her head to Zageruforu.

"Ah, and then if possible submit a report document by the end of the month."

"Yes."

Miduchi turned around and left the warrior building. Of course she returned her harness to the stable hand and switched all of her belongings into a sack.

.....

She returns to her home that she was away from for a short four month. There's a strange nostalgia.

"I'm home."

She rolls up the cloth that acts a door to the entrance while calling out but there was no reply. There's no lights on inside of the house and it's darker than outside where the street light is. She doesn't know if her older brother is in good condition today but he seems to be out. In order to exercise his legs that have started to go numb, when there's open hands among her uncles family they often take him out for a walk.

Since their parents passed away their family was just her older brother, the two of them so now their current house is only 1 ken(6 ft)(On the occasion their parents died their great grandparents moved into the house of their uncle and aunt. Of the remaining siblings until her older brother reached adulthood he was under their care as well). In terms of area it's about 15 square meters. In Miduchi's opinion it feels a bit wider than 8 tatami mats maybe? just that sort of feeling. Even then this is a reasonably spacious room they were allocated for two people to live in because Miduchi is a part of the rank 1 warrior class. On the contrary if you exclude the roof and the difference in buildings which even the walls are made of wood material then it's plenty to call first-class.

1/4th of the house has dirt floor and the remaining portion is a single tile wood floor about 30 cm off the ground. The cooking is down at the stove magic tool kitchen over the dirt floor. Further in the room there's a pair of thin futon folded up and an entire wall is covered in plain shelves where clothing, tableware, and various tools are stored, other than that there's just one small chest of drawers and a small table.

Fu~ and Miduchi lets out a sigh of relief before taking off her armor and filling a tub on the dirt floor with hot water she takes off her dirty clothes and starts to wipe down her body of sweat and dust before putting on some clean clothes. Since there's also a problem with drainage in Lail Kingdom, even if it's inside their own house they aren't permitted to take a shower whenever they please. Unless you go to the so-called public baths, let alone a shower, you can't even wash the dirt off of food such as mushrooms. The only time she can appear in a place like that and expose her unsightly skin color to take a shower is late at night when there's few people, unless she's concealing herself from public notice Miduchi couldn't do it. While her girl power has fallen to it's limits, Miduchi still takes into consideration other people's sentiments.

After Miduchi got a bit refreshed she walked to the public drain area which was about 3 minutes away with the tub and threw away the dirty water before heading to the selling place. The sell placing is run by expert employees (they're government workers as well though) and starting with the edible mushrooms produced in the country, luxury import goods like salt and pepper, various food items like edible meat, cooking utensils, clothes, and the magic stones for lighting or other daily necessities are sold there.

Incidentally they don't purchase magic stones. There she bought some hiratake bikurujii and maitake kofurujii, as well as a bit of luxury to celebrate the completion of her mission the stomach meat of pork and put those in the tub, she washed off the dirt of the mushrooms before wiping them dry and throwing the water into the public drain and then returned to her house.

It should be about the time her older brother returns from exercising. In that case, she went to the shared well and put some water into a pot before finely slicing the dried meat and other preserved foods and putting them inside, making some stock, and boiling the mushrooms and thinly sliced pork. It's a pork and mushroom pot. She'd really like to add some burdock or lightly cut carrots as well but those sorts of vegetables are considerably expensive so she can't bring herself to buy them.

When the pot started to boil she stopped the flame of the stove and turned off the lights in the house before taking a nap. She pulls out the light futon and covers herself in an equally thin blanket and since there was still the fatigue from the practice match today, fell asleep quickly.

.....

Suddenly she opens her eyes and her older brother had already returned home and was turning on the flame for the mushroom pot.

"I'm home."

"Ya~ welcome home. So you prepared a pot. I'll finish warming it up soon so shall we eat together?"

Her older brother Godu~guru smiled with his thin body. Since Godu~guru has had a weak body since his childhood he never took the warrior cultivation course and up until 7 years old had the duty of cultivating edible mushrooms. Since he would frequently have dizzy spells, irregular heartbeat, and shortness of breath he was allowed some leeway in breaks and harvesting which doesn't require that much strength was primarily his duty. Unfortunately, these past few years his legs have started to go numb and when it's particularly bad he can't even stand up alone so currently he's even been exempt from his servicing mission. In order to cover his living expenses he's provided with 240,000 Z a year. His laundry is taken care of by his aunt.

"Yeah."

Miduchi replied while climbing out of the futon and smiled while preparing the rice bowl and chopsticks on the small dining table.

They placed the pot holder on the dining table and after that placed the heated pot over there so they can easily access the food. Furthermore, in Lail Kingdom it's only obvious to use chopsticks as tableware.

"Umm you know, older brother.."

While Godu~guru was looking at the state of the pot with his back towards her, Miduchi started talking to him. What to talk about?

"Yeah?"

"After we finish dinner tonight I need to go out again. I think I'll return tomorrow afternoon or evening."

She only talked about the general outline. Since her older brother has a weak body just the same as Miduchi up until there was no expectation for marriage. The head of the Chizumagurol family has already long since been transferred to their uncle. It's not that she particularly promised to marry that man but she felt a bit guilty towards her older brother.

"I see, it's difficult right."

Godu~guru who's five years older than Miduchi let out a heave as he carried the pot that was brought to a boil again to the dining table. If her older brother has decided he can do it on his own then there's no need to offer a hand. However, since he's holding a hot pot in the worst case she'll move quickly to help him and if he burns himself she'll have to use magic to heal him. Miduchi was anxiously watching over her older brother but while Godu~guru staggered a bit, he was safely able to place the pot on the dining table without dropping it.

This is the first the two siblings were able to eat across from each other at the dining table since the end of March when Miduchi left for the independent mission this time.

"Look, here some more meat. Your body is your capital after all, you need more nutrients."

Godu~guru said that while serving some pork into Miduchi's rice bowl but Miduchi wanted her older brother to eat the meat.

"Older brother should be the one eating it. Since a while ago you've only eaten bikurujii."

"Hn? That's not the case. I'm properly eating."

It's pleasant but somehow the scene of the Chizumagurol dinner table has an unbearable feel to it.

After eating Godu~guru took some medicine and while saying "I guess

I'm a bit tired." while laying down and closed his eyes satisfied.

After confirming that Miduchi put on her armor once again and equipped her short sword before leaving the house. After walking for about 5 minutes she arrived at her uncles house and it was just as they were finishing their meal. Her aunt was cleaning up the tableware.

"Uncle, aunt. I returned today. Thank you very much for always looking after my older brother."

"Ya~ welcome back. Since it seemed like Gocchi was in good condition today we brought him on a slightly long walk."

Miduchi's uncle Bedushu replied to her. It seems her uncle brought Godu~guru on a walk.

"Miducchan, so you prepared dinner. It's a big help."

Her aunt Hamyuri smiled while replying.

"No, rather than that, I'm very sorry I can't offer much in thanks.

During the mission this time I was able to obtain some magic stones so I'll sell them later."

"Is that so, but it's fine if you don't do anything unreasonable."

"No, that's not the case.."

She exchanged greetings appropriately and patted the heads of her 5 and 6 year old cousins who were badgering her to play while Miduchi lowered her head to her aunt.

"What the~ Just as I was wondering who it was, so it was Miduchi?

You're the same dirty color as usual. That's why you can't get married."

The one speaking abusively to her is her oldest male cousin that just turned 12 years old this year Baduson. He's in his last year of the warrior training course and if he's able to spend it without any large mistakes then putting aside rank 2 he should be able to make it as a rank 3 warrior.

"Hey! Baddu! What kind of language are you using towards your older sister! Apologize!"

Being scolded by his father, her uncle, Baddu ran into the back with a sullen look.

"It's fine, uncle. It's true that I'm a dirty color after all..Well then, I need to go out again after this so please excuse me. Again tomorrow I'll properly stop by for greetings."

Miduchi said that before leaving her uncle's house.

.....

When Miduchi arrived at the royal palace she apologized to the elders who were already waiting for being late and asked what she should do.

"..Umm, what would it be best for me to do?"

"It's her majesty's order. There's nothing other than going to her majesty's bedroom right."

The one who replied to her was elder Zoriddo who's in charge of expanding the tunnels. He's a man of small height for a dark elf and is only around 150 cm.

"Weapons are unnecessary for entering the royal palace. I'll hold on to it for you."

Elder Fantodu received the short sword along with the sword band from Miduchi.

"It's normally prohibited to enter the royal palace so we can't accompany you inside. Once you enter there should be a large door in the front. Even further inside is the audience room but; since this time it's to her bedroom after all. Open the door on the right and continue down the hall. Along the way there should be several doors but once you reach a stairwell descend it and go to the basement. I don't know the details beyond that but there should be a door with the name of the room written on a plate. The {room of sleep} should be the bedroom."

Only two people are allowed to step foot into the royal palace of Lail Kingdom and those are maids who's primary jobs are cleaning. Even when it comes to the elders they're not permitted to enter at their own convenience. The maids have already finished their service work for today and have returned home.

"I understand. By the way"

"Hn?"

"During my mission this time I privately obtained a magic stone so I'd like to sell it but..Of course, I've already received permission from head warrior Zageruforu to sell my own private property."

"Yeah, then I'll take custody of..What!?"

After receiving the leather bag from Miduchi the elder Zagurocchi who's in charge of public relations unintentionally raised her voice at the weight. Just from looking it didn't seem to be that large of an amount. She expected it to be at best 30-40 of them.

"This is..quite amazing. It's considerably heavy. Is it fine to open it and take a look?"

Elder Zagurocchi has already exceeded 30 years old but is famous for being a beauty. Of course there's her beautiful white hair but her sharp and uniform proportions wouldn't let you believe that she's given birth to three children. Her beautiful facial features without a single scar are above the rest of the dark elves who have quite a few beauties. Even though she has that sort of appearance the fact that she made an expression of surprise without trying to cover it was because it weighed just that much.

After hearing Miduchi's reply, Zagurocchi opened the mouth of the leather bag and looked inside before being lost for words and freezing in place. While all the other elders watched on with strange expressions, the words she finally managed to squeeze out were, "Beautiful..", just those very common words.

While holding the leather bag in her left hand she stuck her trembling right hand into the bag and what she pulled out at first was a grey magic stone with a diameter that wasn't even 2 cm. Since the color is somewhat light it's got a reasonable value but if it's just that much, the rank 3 warriors who are out on patrol around Erurehei for several days can make one if they merge their magic stones.

She placed that in her left hand that was holding the leather bag and then once again stuck her right hand into the leather bag. Just from a glance it seems like another 30 or so magic stones of the same size she just pulled out could be inside. If you think about that then it's certainly true that a fortune could be inside of that leather bag. However, everyone's eyes went wide seeing the gem that Zagurocchi pulled out next.

While it may be small even they who stand at the top of a single country have never seen such a large, white magic stone. You could say it's regrettable that there's just a few dark stripes running through it but even if you ignore that you can tell the amount of mana packed into it. Most likely a consider number of magic stones were merged inside and the magic stone that was the base was quite something with how large it was as well. If it's that size then even if the color is pitch black, the amount of mana inside is low then it would be of a reasonable value as a mother stone for merging others so there's no doubt about that.

""Wha!!?""

""This is!?"

""It's huge..""

""Beautiful..""

While each of the elders were making remarks of wonder, hearing that Miduchi felt a bit embarrassed.

"{Status Open}..Hi!! In..Individual.."

Fantodu supported Zagurocchi as she was about to fall over and took the magic stone from her right hand while using {Status Open} on it to check the status.

【Magic Stone(Death=Tyrant.Kin)】

"Death=Tyrant.Kin..This sort of, even though it's this size and color it's an individual magic stone!?"

"Impossible! Hand it over! {Status Open}!.."

"Me too..{Status Open}~!"

"{Status Open}..Certainly!"

After Webundo was the last one to check the status of the magic stone he looked between the magic stone in his hand and the status window floating in front of him and while still unable to hide his surprise he questioned Miduchi.

"Rank 1 warrior Chizumagurol. What in the world is this magic stone..."

Being questioned by the elder, Miduchi stood upright and opened her mouth.

"Ha, after finishing my mission this time, when I was going to leave the dungeon I let my guard down and ended up falling into a pitfall trap. I believe that the pitfall, most likely lead to the lowest floor of the dungeon. There I encountered another adventurer who had gotten caught in the trap and the two of us cooperated to somehow escape. It's something that we obtained when we defeated a monster that appeared to be something like a gatekeeper from the lowest floor to the upper floors. Though I say that, it was largely thanks to the power of that adventurer that we were able to defeat that monster and I was close to just an addition though.."

"What! So you were inside of the dungeon your mission huh...But, there's one thing that doesn't make sense to me. The reason why that adventurer would give something worth as much as this to you. Did you kill that adventurer and steal it?"

"No. Since I wasn't able to contribute much in defeating that monster I tried to restrain myself but certainly that magic stone is something I received from him. Since I have a sick older brother, when he found out that I needed money for medicine he handed it over to me."

"That's absurd! As if there's such a softhearted person!"

The one who joined the conversation between Miduchi and Webundo was elder Zorebahiru who's in charge of medicines. Miduchi was of the exact same feelings. In what world is there a person as softhearted as that? I'm sure even if it was that man if it wasn't me then he wouldn't have handed it over. Miduchi prepared her resolve before facing him and opening her mouth. I'm sorry, your majesty, no, madam, I'm borrowing your name.

"It's all to the wishes of her majesty Lilus. I'm sure that her majesty did something. When that male adventurer offered it to me, I certainly felt the presence of her majesty."

A lie on this level should be fine. After all it's not incorrect to say Miduchi has a large favor with her majesty the Queen.

""What!""

""..I see, her majesty did..""

""So that's why they were able to defeat a monster with this sort of magic stone...""

""I see now..""

""That's why her majesty to Chizumagurol..""

It's probably an effect of the 3D image that was projected a while ago said things that seemed to view Miduchi in a special light but the elders didn't doubt Miduchi's words at all. Miduchi alone thought (they're too easy), but this is probably not something unreasonable.

"However, if it comes to a magic stone of this level, it won't be so easily.."

Webundo looked at the magic stone in his hand in a daze while he whispered.

"It's a quality that I'd like to make into a national treasure."

"It's outrageous to use that."

"Selling it to another country is absurd."

While the elders one after another continued commenting while looking at the magic stone, Miduchi(Wun, that person said that I could easily sell it directly to the country but it's not easy to sell at all) was troubled. I wonder if I should negotiate.

"Umm..In regards to that magic stone but would selling it be difficult?"

She tried questioning nervously.

"That's only obvious right!? This sort of magic stone..Furthermore since it's individual it must have been a greatly powerful monster right. I've heard that the Kingdom of Devas has the magic stone of the Green Dragon 【Berugofurokuti】 that one had it's nest in the Dirt Plains in their treasury as a national treasure. I haven't seen the actual thing so it's just my imagination but isn't this something that rivals that?"

"That might be the case."

"It's appropriate to make into a national treasure for our country."

"However, it's magnificent."

I see. So this is the critical moment. It's the time for me to show off my negotiation skills trained by that person.

"I'm troubled. That magic stone is something that.I.personally.was.given. but if I can't get the kingdom to buy it then..The medicine cost will.."

While hanging her head she made fleeting glances at the elders and they were looking over here with expressions of surprise, confusion, and anger.

"And then, there's also her majesty's intentions as well.."

And then, awe and shame was included in their expressions as well.

Putting aside awe, the one who was making an expression of shame is the elder who was making an expression of anger until just a moment ago. They must have been trying to think of some reason or other to confiscate it from Miduchi.

"However you know, rank 1 warrior Chizumagurol. It's something of this level, we can't purchase it that easily...If we were to pay that much cash all at once then it would have an effect on stocking up from here on out.."

Obviously on Orth it's fundamental paying in cash with a smile.

Miduchi fully knew something like that as well. When it comes to expensive goods like equipment there's some trades where half the amount is paid in advance as well.

"I don't particularly have any concern over that magic stone itself. It's a greedy way of putting it but I thought that if it would just help out in taking care of my older brother's medicine and living expenses then that would be plenty. Of course, since at great pains I managed to privately obtain such a splendid magic stone, I also would like to present it to the country. But.."

That magic stone is something that man and I obtained while risking our lives with just the two of us. If I'm going to sell it then I want to get even just a bit higher of a price for it.

"Fumu. Well then the country will look after the trouble of your older brother's treatment from here on out. How about that?"

Elder Merurikkusu who's in charge of human resources and the health of the citizens proposed. There's no way an elder like he would have a grasp of every person like Godu~guru and his illness or the cost of his medicine. However, this is the settlement point that Miduchi already assumed in the first place. The compensation for completion of the mission this time..normally 1% of the reward for the job is paid to those who complete it. This time was a special assassination mission and it should have been 150,000,000 Z, since Miduchi completed it alone she should receive the entire amount of 1,5000,000 Z..since she had already received it the amount is just 1,000,000 Z but there's also the magic stones she obtained in the dungeon.

"..I appreciate such a grateful proposal...However, I believe I will be given a new mission by her majesty tonight. My older brother's living expenses are also necessary during that time."

Honestly, it's probably impossible up to here. Those who are receiving payments for living expenses even in this small Lail Kingdom including her older brother is just five people. Even more so Miduchi is a rank 1 warrior class who has a high salary. If they don't know the cost of the medicine then with just that it would be strange for them not to think she's living a considerably prosperous lifestyle. Even when thinking with common sense it's difficult to imagine that someone of the rank 1 warrior class has almost no savings.

Miduchi who's in her third year as a member of the rank 1 warrior class receives 510,000 Z a month in wages. If they were to live thrifty then with just that they could live for one year. If you add the bonus for completing a mission to that then it's just around the point where it reaches 7,700,000 Z in annual income. Even this is largely in thanks to rank 1 head warrior Zageruforu pitied Miduchi and pushing the profitable missions around to her. Even with the 240,000 Z a year living expense money her older brother receives they're barely able to somehow live a normal lifestyle.

"Mwu, as expected we can't go that far..However, it's disappointing."

I guess this is it. If the cost of medicine just floats then our lifestyle will quickly become much easier. She should be able to offer plenty of thanks to her uncle and aunt for the burden she's put on them as well. It's for that reason that used such a way of talking that even after leaving the country she'll still be on a mission.

"No, I shouldn't hope for too much. I appreciate just being able to entrust the treatment of my older brother. I present that magic stone here and now. Merurikkusu-sama. My older brother, please take good care of my older brother."

Miduchi lowered her head very deeply. Starting with Webundo, Fantodu and Yoretto remembered hearing Zageruforu's words about her diligently working for the medicine costs but since Merurikkusu didn't seem to remember they thought to just ignore it.

Made from wood and cut stone..The extremely extravagant building for Lail Kingdom..

Each of the ten elders watched Miduchi's appearance from behind as she stepped foot into the royal palace with a different expression.

Chapter 148 (Reverse Chapter 139)

Year 7444, Month 6, Day 20

Miduchi, No, as a part of the senses of the Japanese person Shiina Junko who's a part of Miduchi she felt it was considerably plain for the royal palace of a single country but from Midu~ritto's sense it was a considerably extravagant royal palace that she was stepping foot inside. It seems the maids are properly taking care of their service work and the cleaning was done so thoroughly there's not a single piece of dirt or dust. Just from a glance it seems like about 2 meters from the ground was made from rock that was cut out but from there and above was made of wood and mortar almost as if interest was lost in it. The floor is made of sturdy wood and a portion of it was made of a stone material like granite that also has been carefully polished. The ceiling is considerably high and it was made extremely spacious and there should have been a second floor as well. Come to think of it the roof was tile as well. Even though something like rain will never fall.

Soon after entering there was something like a rail and a entryway step up on to the wooden floor. It resembles the lobby of a mid-scale hot spring ryokan of somewhere. There's lightning magic tools in four places on the ceiling of the lobby that were lit up. They aren't white like fluorescent lights but closer to an opal like sunlight that sort of tinted high class luxury item. There's a 10 cm difference in level between the polished granite floor and the wooden floor on the higher step up, going off of Shiina Junko's feeling she wants to take off her shoes. She somehow manages to hold back the uncomfortable feeling of standing on the polished and sparkling wooden floor with her shoes and opens the double doors on the right side of the lobby that she heard from elder Webundo. If it's this sort of structure she would have preferred they were sliding doors.

Ahead of that was a hallway that was roughly 3 meters and after advancing for a bit there's several similar pairs of double doors on the left side of the direction she's proceeding. On the opposite side there's windows for light and shoji fitted on to them but since it's dark outside they probably have no meaning other than just decorations. Just the same as the lobby there's lightning magic tools along the ceiling of the hallway and they're giving off light. On Webundo's instruction they must be left on all through the night up to the descending stairwell that's supposedly ahead of here.

Miduchi continues while restlessly looking around the first royal palace she's entered since she was born, after turning left twice a stairwell that almost seemed as if it was descending into the abyss appeared. There's light from the ceiling going down the stairs. After descending down the long stairwell and the floor changed to the same polished stone that was at the entrance lobby. Since she had heard that even for the service rank maids the basement was prohibited from entering she thought there would be dust but as far as she could tell it was carefully being cleaned.

Now then, if we were to go off of common sense there should be a switch around here for the lightning magic tools. Thinking that she tried fumbling around searching the wall where she assumed one would be but couldn't find one. Since it couldn't be helped she used the spell {Light} on her left fingertip to light up the area. Infrared vision would be fine as well but since it's a rare chance she wanted to see with proper color. After descending the stairs as far as she could see down the hall that was on the immediate left there was nothing like a switch. The light shining from the {Light} reflect off the polished stone floor and walls and make it visible a considerable distance though the ceiling just seems to continue for quite a while. For the time being there were lightning magic tools along the ceiling.

Around the dead end she can see in the distance there's one set of double doors and then two sets of double doors that can be seen on the left side. One of these three doors should be the {room of sleep}. Since she has light she won't trip in the darkness. It seems that the stone used in the basement isn't granite but marble. The moment she took one step forward, Miduchi twitched as if she had been hit with an electric current. (What? Just now?) and she only thought that for a moment, it soon made sense. Just now was probably a check for intruders. She can't even guess what kind of principle it works on but the walls on both sides there's two rows of circular holes lined up and when she looked into one she understood it. It's probably some kind of anti-intruder sensor. There were spears embedded in the holes.

She can tell there's something moving a bit ahead in the hallway.

It's not very big. It looks like a transparent jelly about 15 cm high in the shape of a cube. About once every 3 seconds it seems to be rolling. (What is that?) and she thought that but it was something Shiina Junko knew about. That's most likely {Cubic Jelly}. A splendid monster. Normally they make their nests in underground dungeons like Baldukk and they're often much larger in size. Right, large enough to bury the entire passage. They're the cleaners of the dungeon who cleanly dispose of the corpses of monsters and adventurers defeated. Did she tame those and use them as cleaners? If they're large scale ones then you could say they're considerably troublesome powerful enemies but if it's that size then there's no harm at all. When she approached it to get a closer look she could see a small magic stone about the size of a little finger inside of it.

She arrived just in front of the first door. When she checked the plate on it and it says {room of meditation}. The plate on the next door was "Bath". Why is just this one in Japanese? In that case the {room of sleep} or whatever should be the one at the end of the hall. She went to the end of the hall and checked the plate and just as she guessed, it was the {room of sleep}. Miduchi took a deep breath and then put her hands on the door to try and push it open, she was about to push it but the moment her hands touched it, it was slow but automatically opened.

She nervously entered inside. Some lighting magic tools automatically lit up. The room seems to stretch out to the left.

There seems to be a length of about 15 m. There's shelves all over in the room and all sorts of things she can't tell what they are placed all over the place. Among that stuff, the things that caught her eye was large bed enshrined further in the back, the desk in the corner, and a large hole opened in the middle of the floor. Could it be someone dug a hole in order to sneak into her majesty the Queens bedroom!? and, shortly after she thought that a voice echoed out from somewhere. Not in her ears, it felt like it echoed directly into her head.

"If it's Shiina-san then sing the Japanese national anthem, if it's not then leave now. You have 10 seconds. 10.."

In a panic she took out the anku and put her to her forehead while singing the Japanese national anthem. She thought, there's no to sing it all in 10 seconds but the counter stopped after she got through singing the first phrase. After she finished singing and a 3D image of Lilus appeared above the hole in the center of the room. The image differs from the one she saw during the day and it's transparent enough to see through to the other side a bit. Also, around the knees of both her legs they're fused together and around the point where they've fused the skin seems to change into that of a plant as it gets even thicker. Beyond that is almost like the roots of a plant entering the hole in the ground. With long hair that's white than snow and slightly diluted blue purple color skin. Her red-violet eyes are a bit slanted in the shape of almonds. On her back is 8 spider legs that almost seem to have broken through the skin and seem to be vaguely moving. She's not wearing any type of clothing.

"Confirmed as Shiina-san. This a spell that I assembled on Year 7444, Month 5, Day 30. It's possible for it to reply to some extent but it can't reply to questions that are far too apart from the details that I had assumed. Also, I can't reply to any questions regarding the principles of this world. Since time is limited if there's anything that is insufficient I'm sorry. First, a confirmation. Is this your first time coming to this place?"

"Yes, it's the first time."

Miduchi knelt down in a hurry before replying and then the image stopped for about half a second before starting to move again and opening it's mouth.

"I understand. I'll interact in first time use mode. First off, I'll start from telling you the warning points. This spell consumes a considerable amount of mana but it's possible for it to automatically replenish that. For meeting here once and talking for 5 minutes of time it takes around six months to replenish the mana. Currently the status is at..roughly 31 minutes..of mana filled.

This will end up being used even if you leave the room partway through. It's one of the limitations to the spell that can't be helped. I'm very sorry but I recommend you make effective use of the time. Furthermore, since this time is the first use, for the last few minutes you'll be forced to listen to my conversation. I'm sorry. Well then, the next confirmation. Is the reason you came to this place for my instruction? Or is it because you had something that you wanted to confirm?"

"Instruction."

The image stopped for another 1 second or so and then started moving again.

"I understand. It's fine for you to speak freely after this. Also, I don't think it will stop anymore."

First off there's the things that need to be taken care of. This is the start right.

"In order to increase the edible mushroom production and the required tunnel expansions for that, one of the elders was planning to secure manual labor through moving members of the warrior class. It's the current warrior inspector general, elder Yoretto. I think that the objective itself is acceptable but there's also the opinion that it's too impatient as well and I agree with that. How should we persuade them to calmly settle things?"

"With just that it's a bit difficult to understand. What's the date right now?"

"Year 7444, Month 6, Day 20."

"..I'm sorry. The details that I instructed the elders on Month 5, Day 28 might have been misunderstood...Let's do it like this.."

While listening to Lilus's words, Miduchi(thank goodness, it wasn't her throwing it all on to me) let out a sigh of relief.

.....

Just like that after she received all of the necessary instructions, the image of Lilus asked Miduchi.

"Is the anku currently in your possession?"

Obviously she has it. Since she just stuck it to her forehead as she sung the Japanese national anthem after all..Come to think of it, different from the time at noon the anku didn't give off any light. Is it fine even if there's no anku in this room?

"I have it."

"That dark elf anku is the high grade spell medium for this spell.

While you're inside of my bedroom like right now the level of freedom in conversation is higher but if you use that anku as a medium and sing the Japanese national anthem then this magical version of myself that I've prepared can be called out anywhere within Erurehei. As a matter of fact as long as they have the anku then anyone can do it so whenever you sing the Japanese national anthem please sing in a whisper within your mouth.

This is made use of on a separate mana than this spell. If you haven't used it then my image should last for roughly one hours worth and while it's limited conversation is possible. Since you've most likely already used it I'm sure please calculate the remaining time. Even if you use it the mana can't be replenished but by customizing it you can make it so it says whatever you please.

That's why please don't have me say anything too absurd. The method for customizing is..

.....

The ability to customize it and make it speak whatever she wants was something extremely appreciated to Miduchi.

If just as Lilus said she doesn't use it in any way that's too absurd then it should become a large power to her from here on out. By the way, I wonder if there's still time remaining? If there is time remaining then there's some things she'd definitely like to ask, no, she'd like to request.

"Umm..Is there a spell that can cure diseases?"

"It's not very well known but there is."

Hearing that Miduchi was so happy that she clapped her hands and jumped up.

"Can you use that spell in this condition?"

"I'm sorry. This is just a simple image so it can't use spells."

She was a bit disappointed but even then it was good. She was able to gain the information that there's definitely a spell to "cure diseases". It's huge just that she was able to identify that no matter how much time it takes from here on out it's possible she could use it. Tears started to well up in Miduchi's eyes.

"The spell {Cure Disease} requires all elemental magic skills at level 8 and void magic at level 9. However, even if you meet the level requirements it can only be said that acquiring it is extremely difficult. The first time you use it, it requires mental concentration for an extraordinarily long time. Of course there's some individual differences but I think that it would be in the denomination of several tens of hours."

This time she was considerably disappointed but..if it's that man then he should meet the requirements. There's no doubt he'll be able to do something about it.

"Thank goodness.."

She thought that she was able to resolve her second problem.

"Shiina-san, it's about time. I'm very sorry but I'm forcefully switching over to first time use mode...First of there's something I want to hand to you. Please take the bottle on that shelf. On the label it should have "Medicine(Disease use)" written in Japanese. It should be about half full with a powder."

Miduchi took the specified bottle from the specified shelf. Her chest was filled with expectations. Simultaneously she also felt a bit discontent. If something like this existed then why didn't she give it to me even sooner?

"On top of the desk there should be a pen and paper. If it's necessary then please take a memo of this. First off, just as is labeled that medicine can certainly show effect on any disease but the effects of it aren't very high. However, if you add some specific ingredients and mana to it then it's possible to increase the effectiveness of it considerably. It should be effective on your older brother's disease as well. I'll list off the ingredients now."

Hearing that while still holding the bottle she jumped at the desk.

Unlike the shelves the desk was neatly organized and there were several pieces of thin high quality paper on top of each other and on the side was a pen and jar of ink as well. Obviously the pen was standing there. She pulled out the pen and dipped the end in the ink jar. From here on out she won't miss hearing even a single word.

"The charred tail of a black gecko, around 1 cm of the tip.

{Shurika} fruit, about 5g of the center portion. A dried powder made of the liver of a {Scavenger Crawler}, about 3g. One eyeball stored in glass from a Human Vampire Lord.."

Just as Lilus says it Miduchi focused on writing down the details as if she was a machine.

"Eggs of the {Kuntokigaeru}, two of them. A powder made from the end of the tail of a {Wyvern}, about 0.1g. The yolk from the egg of a {Rock Viper}, one of them."

Miduchi's eyes were giving off a fiery sparkle. She's overflowing with motivation. No matter what she has to do she'll hunt them down.

"The baked hair of a human of the opposite sex of the patient, around 3 hairs of a length around 10 cm. A powder made from the nails of a gnome that's of the opposite sex of the patient, around 1g."

She flinched a bit at first but was relieved right away. She should be able to obtain it easily.

"The raw liver of a human of the same gender as the patient, about 10g."

What was that!?

"The living brain stem..of a baby born within one week of the same gender and race as the patient. About 2g."

It's hopeless. The pen stopped.

"Otherwise, the heart muscle of a dragon species. About 2g. If you mix all of those ingredients along with that medicine and a quantity of water equal to the empty bottle the medicine was inside, then once every 5 minutes knead an {Aid} type spell in well. It's completed once you can no longer target it with the spell {Light}. It should take about 20-30 minutes. After that, make 144 pills from it and please use magic to dry them. One per week, if you have the patient swallow them, roughly one month after they've swallowed the last one their disease should be completely cured."

She reprimands her trembling hand inside of her heart while somehow managing to finish writing it down but Miduchi felt all of the strength in her body was exhausted. Something like this, regardless of the circumstances there's no way she would receive it. Even if she has a large debt, let alone the completed product it doesn't even match up to the ingredients. When it comes to the raw liver since the {Cure} type spells exist, it's still possible to do something about it but something like sacrificing a dark elf baby just for the sake of curing her older brother's disease...Even more so something like a dragon is absurd.

The tears started overflowing ceaselessly.

"Shiina-san, No, Chizumagurol-san. I don't know what you're thinking right now. However, please don't abandon your hope. This will be the last but there's just one more thing I have to give you. On the side of this room there's a room called the {room of medication}. In the corner of that room there's a single sword that I used use when I was traveling. I offer that to you. Please treat it well as a partner. Now then, I think the next time we will be able to meet is after the mana has replenished over a fixed amount. It should take at least one year from now.

Chizumagurol-san, I've caused quite a bit of trouble for you. I don't think that just this much would be able to make up for that but please forgive me. It might be unreasonable of me to say but..If possible, that person..Please become the happiness of that person."

After saying that the image stopped moving and rapidly started to fade before finally disappearing.

Miduchi was left behind alone as she put the paper with the memo she took into her pocket and started sobbing.

After she cried for a while she remembered there's things she needs to do. First off she needs to make the custom details of what to make the image of Lilus speak by tomorrow at noon. She adds her own thinking to the details she heard from Lilus and started the customizing that would benefit not only Lail Kingdom but also herself.

.....

Year 7444, Month 6, Day 21

The next morning, after waking up in the bed that was in Lilus's bedroom Miduchi was struck with awe that she did something as overwhelming as sleeping in the same bed as her majesty the Queen. She finished the customizing that ended up taking until close to dawn and she couldn't but let her guard down. Not only that but she ended up rolling over onto the bed without taking her shoes off. She turned pale white (I've made it dirty) along with her awakening consciousness but strangely there wasn't any dirt on the bed at all. Not only that but Miduchi's shoes didn't even have any dirt.

Even then she wiped down the surface of the futon and when she confirmed the time on the clock magic tool on the desk it was already long past 11 am and close to noon. She recognized the fact that it was so comfortable she couldn't help but sleep for a long period and ran out of the room in a hurry. After she ran out (Come to think of it she offered my a sword in the {room of meditation}) remembered that and opened the door for the {room of meditation}. It was just as a {Cubic Jelly} was changing the shape of it's cube body making it thin so it can fit through the gaps and enter the door.

When she opened the door the body of the {Cubic Jelly} changed back to a cube and started rolling again as it entered the room. The {room of meditation} was close to 7 m in every direction, a considerably wide room. There's no furniture, baggage, or anything else, it's close to a completely empty room and in the far corner there's just a single sword leaning against the wall. That sword huh? Just from a glance it looks like a completely normal scimitar. However, it's something her majesty granted to me. There's no way it's something bad.

She picked it up including the scabbard carrying it in her left and left the basement of the royal palace.

She passed through the lobby and opened the doors leading to the front.

It wasn't just the elders that were already waiting but all of the head warriors and the head of the acquisition ranking Beindoru were included, she could see a total of 14 of them gathered directly outside of the royal palace grounds. Behind them was close to 100 onlookers gathered wondering what is going on. When Miduchi approached the gate of the plaster wall that surrounds the royal palace, she stood in the center of the gate before turning around to face the royal palace, then after placing the scimitar in her left hand on the ground she knelt in place. Seeing that Miduchi they all starting kneeling as well.

She took out her anku in both hands and placed it to her forehead before taking a respectful pose of prayer towards the royal palace and singing the "Japanese national anthem" just inside of her mouth.

Chapter 149 (Reverse Chapter 140)

Year 7444, Month 6, Day 21

When Miduchi finished singing the "Japanese national anthem" and for just a moment the anku gave off a powerful light and then the Queen of Lail Kingdom, Lilus, was standing in front of the royal palace. Her appearance was just the same as it was when she appeared in assembly of elders meeting room in the government office yesterday, with a crown her head, long and graceful pure white hair, and with spider legs growing her from back wearing a light veil of silk. Of course she properly has legs as well.

It's something they found out after investigating it later but her voice echoed through the heads of all of the dark elves bowing in prayer over 100 m in the surroundings.

""I'm Lilus.Zugutomore. The ruler of Lail Kingdom and Empress. My children, kneel before me.""

The last time her majesty appeared this many times in such a short period to offer words was the "Purple Worm Incident" on record. The dark elves who gathered as spectators were even deeply moved and shedding a flood of tears. If you were to ask, in their case rather than her words they were shedding tears of joy from being able to be in the audience of her appearance.

"Everyone, listen to my instructions and execute them without missing any details."

Everyone on the spot pushed their foreheads to the ground.

"Since I was pleaded by Chizumagurol, just this time I'll give out instructions directly...It's fine for you to raise your heads."

What! The elders thought it was unexpected. Judging from the conversation yesterday, they thought her majesty's words would be an oracle conveyed through the warrior Chizumagurol. For them to directly be granted her words. Everyone concentrated their nerves on their pointed ears so as to not miss a single word.

Incidentally, the "raise your heads" matter was one of the divergent conditions for the custom settings.

"First off, Yoretto warrior inspector general. I understand your worry. However, no matter what the reason reducing the number of warriors is not permitted. Also, the point of almost causing a dispute between brethren is inexcusable as well.."

Yoretto who was criticized directly by name from her majesty the Queen couldn't do anything but humble himself. However, even if it was a bad impression, he was delighted at the same time that her majesty would call his name and remember him.

"I remove you from your duty as warrior inspector general."

No raised even a single cough to the harsh decision.

"In your place I make Fantodu warrior assistant inspect general into the inspector general. Fantodu, from here on out bring together the warriors and devote yourself to our country."

"Wa, wa ha!!"

Fantodu's reply echoes out. Fantodu was making an expression as if he was raising to heaven.

"Furthermore, I remove the duty of warrior assistant inspector general that has become vacant from the elder's duties. From here on out the current head warriors of each ranking will act as assistant to the inspector general."

""Ha!!""

The head warriors replied.

Some reasonably detailed instructions were given out to each of the elders individually from Lilus. In the end to Webundo she gave out the instruction, "From here on you should properly confirm if these things are being realized and if there's nothing missing, in the case that you find something like that then act as advisor to the one in charge." and then added on almost as if she remembered about Yoretto.

"Now then, Yoretto. I give you a different duty. Listen carefully."

"Ha!!"

What he would be told, Yoretto remained kneeling with his body stiff.

"Starting now I made your duty as an elder into something new. You're the assistant inspector general of provisions. Starting now you're going to gather the necessary members including escorts and aim for Denziru which is beyond Kanbitto and Korakuto together with them. In the South of Denziru Kingdom, I command you to gather seedlings of the matsutake dekurujii that exist in the Mayle mountains there. Observe the growing environment and create the foundation for artificial seedlings. Simultaneously research the crops of the surface. Something which can be grown in the environment of Mount Kinru is desirable but there's no need to concern yourself with just that. In the case you can achieve this, our countries food circumstances and income will largely be improved. Doing it sooner is better but there's no need to hurry. Don't try to achieve results within a few years. Daring methods are unnecessary as well. It's just a plain and monotone duty but remain aware that it's one of high importance. That time itself will become the period for the Royal Road Paradise Construction Plan to start. You should become one of the cornerstones for the Royal Road Paradise Construction Plan. Furthermore decide the members to accompany you together with the elders."

"Ha!!"

Yoretto lowers his head while recognizing the responsibility and importance of the mission he was ordered and couldn't hold back the trembling of his body from how delighted he was. Certainly it will be a difficult mission. However, if it will lead to the betterment of the food situation and increase income then it's just as he originally wanted.

This decision was something that Lilus's magical body decided last night after hearing the circumstances from Miduchi. In the first place Lilus might have been thinking about finally expanding her territory matching up with her revival.

However, hearing the declaration that was clearly conscious of the surface not just the elders but even the onlookers who were on the spot felt a similar burning enthusiasm towards their responsibilities as Yoretto. Sighs of excitement could be heard from here and there.

"Chizumagurol. I released you from your duty in the rank 1 warrior class. After resting act as an independent rank 1 warrior and accomplish the duty I ordered last night. Find a country to ally with and start building up relations with them. Until you're relieved of your duty I grant you authority on the same rank as the elders. Everyone else should listen to her wishes and make preparations so she can make progress with the duty I've given her without having to look back."

"Ha!!"

Miduchi gave just a short reply while still kneeling.

"Well then, everyone, devote yourselves fully to your duties."

After saying that Lilus's 3D image disappeared.

For a short while no one moved.

.....

Webundo questioned Miduchi.

"Chizumagurol, that sword is?"

Certainly last night, Miduchi should have left her sword in Webduno's care. Her sword short is still in his hands.

"Ha, I was granted it by her majesty. In the past, it seems to be the one that her majesty used on her travels up until arriving at this land."

""Oh!""

""What!""

The commotion spreads through the surroundings.

When the commotion calmed down a bit Miduchi continued.

"Since I'll be acting independently for a long period I was granted it. I would like to make this into an heirloom. However, since it's her majesty's order I intend to bring it along with me. I'm a bit worried about whether I can make use of it though"

"Draw it and show me the blade."

When rank 1 head warrior Zageruforu said that Miduchi consented before holding the scabbard in her left hand and smoothly pulling it out while holding the grip with her right hand. The width of the blade was thin but it's firmly made. Other than the slightly curved edge of the blade the rest is dyed black.

"..It's magnificently beautiful.."

While looking at the charming and beautiful blade Zagerufory gently touched the blade and used {Status Open}. Miduchi thought (Ah, come to think of it I forgot) and just in case she decided to look at the status as well. I'm sure it's just a {Scimitar} though.

Zageruforu was at a loss for words on the other side of the scimitar that Miduchi was holding horizontally in her right hand.

【Blade Shadow Scimitar Of: Raidyuroufusutira】

The knowledge of Shiina Junko inside of Miduchi was saying (This is bad~ This is the bad~ kind).

"..Blade Of Dyurou.."

Zageruforu whispered while entranced.

"A splendid name. Since it seems to have undergone the naming ceremony, this must be the rumored magic weapon huh.."

Hearing that the elders and head warriors in the surroundings whispered, "If it's equipment her majesty used then it's only obvious it's a magic item." while politely lining up in order to see the status of the sword.

"Chizumagurol, since you've been granted a sword by her majesty using it in an unsightly way is unforgivable. Just now her majesty say to carry out your duty after resting. Since you only just finished your Type 4 Headpiece mission the other day it's fine for you to have some rest. However, I won't forgive playing around and spending your time in inactivity. Remain diligent so you can use techniques suitable for this sword. I'll give you some training myself."

Hearing Zageruforu's statement Miduchi was dumbfounded.

She had no intention of spending it playing around in the first place but it might be her last chance. She wanted to spend as much of it as possible with her older brother. In the first place, she's a full-fledged rank 1 warrior class that can be left in charge of independent missions so Miduchi's skill with the sword is considerably high as well. Even more than this, what in the world are you saying to do?

When she gave it her best thinking of the lines for the custom to say, she paid attention so it didn't sound very unnatural. After a warrior completes a first-class independent mission they're given a one month break unconditionally.

Additionally to that, for each month they were acting independently they get an extra one week break. Since her independent mission this time took four months or so she should get close to two months in rest unconditionally.

She failed.

.....

She's already gotten the guarantee that her older brother's treatment will be taken care of for the time being in exchange for the magic stone she privately obtained, so all that's left should be to go through her reluctant parting with her older brother and uncle's family, but that now how things ended up.

When Miduchi returned to her house she was shocked and worried over future distress. The reason is the scimitar she was granted by Lilus. After returning to her house, as Miduchi finally had a moment of rest she decided to exchange her main arm from the short sword Webundo returned with the scimitar she was granted by Lilus. In order to confirm the balance she only understood for the first time after putting it on her sword band.

When she held on to the scabbard while holding it in her hand she didn't feel anything but when she has it on her through her sword band, now she can feel the strong existence of the sword. Nevertheless it's as light almost as if it's made of feathers. When she drew the scimitar she could feel the proper weight and the graceful grip fit well into her hand. The scabbard still feels almost like it has no weight at all. She tried swinging it around a bit and it was easy to use as if drawing the ideal sword trajectory.

(If it's this then won't training with the head warrior be easy?)

And thought that.

After discussing with her older brother that she was granted a sword directly from her majesty and he was pleased as if it was himself. Also, after talking about how the cost of the medicine will be granted as well and he apologetically lowered his head.

"Since I'm like this, I've done nothing but cause trouble for you. Sorry. I'm really sorry. If I were just proper then I'm sure you would have long since been very popular..I can't find you a partner to get happily married with..Forgive me."

"Stop it, older brother. You promised not to say that right.

And..I'm already fine. Something like a marriage partner.."

While saying that Miduchi's face changed to a grin partway through.

"Eh? Could it be, you have a partner? What house are they from? Are they a warrior? It would be best to at least greet them but..No, it would be bad for me to do it. It would be best to ask uncle.."

When Godu~guru suddenly started to panic, without losing in how flustered she got as she tried to calm him down,

"Really~ what are you saying. It's not like that. Let's eat at uncle's house today. I received a considerable amount of money after all, I need to properly thank them as well."

"But you know, these sorts of things are better to do sooner rather than later. You're already at a marriageable age after all. Let's consult with uncle about it right away today."

"That's why I said it's different. And also, I'm still 16.

It's still too early for marriage."

"But you know, if there's a curious long-awaited someone who would accept you then there's a mountain of things I'd like to request of them. I can't just be waiting around like this right."

Isn't curious saying too much? is what she thought. Even if the partner is a dark elf if it's Miduchi who has a high salary then as long as she doesn't have the shackles of the money eating parasite that is her older brother then marriage itself isn't all that much of a problem. No matter how unsightly she looks, Miduchi's facial features alone aren't all that inferior after all. She's less than average among dark elves but even for the women who are below average there's pretty much none that end up spending their entire life unmarried because of their appearance. In the first place it's not that bad either.

"Really~ just stop already. And also, I, didn't say anything about the partner being a Dyurou.."

Hearing those words Godu~guru went silent as if he had cold water thrown on him.

"Ah..Yeah. I see, I guess I was getting ahead of myself. Wa ha."

While weakly laughing what was going through Godu~guru's thoughts was his pitiful little sister who can't find a partner among their brethren of dark elves. This and that are all because of this weak body of his. He was depressed over the realization that he was weighing down his only remaining little sister with a pitiful appearance. However, Miduchi cheerfully smiled as if to wipe away that atmosphere and,

"Then I'm going to go shopping for dinner. Let's have an extravagant meal today!"
And said that while leaving the house in high spirits.

.....

After buying not just meat but a bunch of high class edible mushrooms, in order to give notice she went to her uncle's house along with her older brother. The fact that her older brother's medicine costs will be supplied. And furthermore the fact that they'll receive the salary for a rank 1 warrior class. She decided to hand over all of that salary her uncle.

While her uncle's family was all surprised with their eyes wide open she threw out a final bomb.

"After my rest ends I need to depart once again for an independent mission. This time I received orders directly from her majesty Lilus. I can't explain the full details but I don't know when I'll be able to return. Also, from her majesty, I was granted a sword that her majesty used to use in the past."

While Miduchi was casually saying these things which are the supreme honor for dark elves, Bedushu and Hamyuri, her uncle and aunt were overjoyed. Even the cheeky Baduson froze up with his mouth wide open. Starting tomorrow for a short while, in preparation for her independent mission she conveyed that she'll be starting her training from the start again, then after cutting off a chunk of the pork roast off Miduchi placed that on the plate in front of her older brother.

.....

Year 7444, Month 7, Day 21

A lot of people came to see off Miduchi as she departs for the independent mission that her majesty personally ordered.

Starting with Webundo, the 9 elders (Yoretto has already departed).

Her older brother Godu~guru supported by her uncle and aunt. Her cousins. And then, a long and neatly ordered line of around 180 warriors of Erureihei. If they were to find out that it was really not a mission or anything else but simply an excuse for her to be together with a man then she wondered if being cut to pieces wouldn't be enough? After feeling a chill Miduchi looked at everyone's faces while carving them into her heart.

She spent plenty of time together with her older brother while feeling reluctant to part but she properly told him to hold hope that his disease will definitely get better.

She'll probably never be able to hold her head higher to her uncle and aunt she's caused trouble for. If possible she hopes that there's good fortune in the future of her young cousins.

During this past month, the rank 1 head warrior Zageruforu who's forced some painful training on her was there. Even through all of it she felt like her skills with the sword and bow went up quite a bit. Though to be more specific rather than saying her abilities raised, it was largely that her faults were corrected.

She feels quite grateful for that now.

The elders who guide this Erurehei. They always think of the country and while they might not match up at times, the way they're always straining themselves with their best efforts is truly an appropriate appearance for a leader.

She's put the 20,000,000 Z (20 gold coins) she requested as mission expenses into the multi-use wallet she has sewn into her stomach band. The plate which has some bends remaining is in there as well. She has a knife with a cracked blade on her right thigh. She has two small knives embedded in each of her boots. On both sides of her leather armor there's three darts each. In each of her gauntlets there's a thin knife prepared with the grip facing her hands. She's carrying a large rucksack with a quiver and has both the scimitar and short sword on her left hip while holding a sturdy bow made from the flexible Juru tree and hard Nimaruku trees in her hand. In Shiina's view it's Midu~ritto.Chizumagurol, Full Armor version. She wants to give her a FA pattern number.

With her robe tied up in front, Miduchi lowers her hood as she starts descending Mount Kinru.

First off, she needs to purchase a horse and harness as soon as possible at some town.

abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyzABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ

Chapter 150 (Reverse Chapter 141)

Year 7444, Month 8, Day 4

Close to half a month has passed since Miduchi departed Erurehei.

Yesterday she finally passed through Viscount Mongoto's territory and entered Count Faruergaz's territory. After entering the Count's territory the state of the roads underwent a complete change as they were more maintained and better. The mountain pass she passed through yesterday afternoon should have been the border between territories.

After Miduchi left Erurehei the first place she stopped at Remeru village in Viscount Mongoto's territory she wasn't able to buy a horse. That was fine since she didn't think she'd be able to buy a horse in the small Remeru village. However, while she just intended to take a slight detour on the way to the capital of the Viscount's territory Righettsu but even there only old pack horses and donkeys were for sale. She had no intention of seeking the luxury of a young and fearless war horse but if possible she wanted a horse that was under 10 years old. Since it couldn't be helped she ended up having to travel to Count Faruergaz's territory on foot.

Different from the poor Viscount Mongoto's territory, Count

Faruergaz's territory is a completely normal high ranking noble's territory so Miduchi thought that if she goes to the capital Robamorusu then she should be able to buy any number of young horses.

.....

Year 7444, Month 8, Day 8

Miduchi arrived at the capital of Count Faruergaz's territory,

Robamorusu just past noon on this day. It's just a bit larger in scale than the dungeon town Baldukk that she was staying in until two months prior, it's a large town with a population of 50,000. The town is split into roughly six sections with the river flowing from the East to the West and just the same around 1 Km North parallel from the river is Mina road and then Rapisshu road which runs from the Northwest to the Southwest. Miduchi came walking along the Mina road from the East to the West.

There was a mix of houses and fields between the road and the river and on the other side of the river to the South is almost entirely fields. In the North there's a lot of housing. There's some houses in the fields to the South as well but judging from the construction of the buildings and their location they're problem housing for serfs. With the summer sun blazing down on her, there was a waterfall of sweat between Miduchi's back and her rucksack as she's already soaking. She could see a well a bit head so after drinking some water there and resting for a bit she'll start heading towards the center section of Robamorusu. Ever since she ate breakfast she's only had water to drink so she's considerably hungry. Either way she wanted to have a proper meal in the restaurant of a large town.

After finishing her short break Miduchi started walking towards the center block of Robamorusu. A dark elf carrying a large rucksack with a bow, quiver, and sword doesn't seem like anything other than a peddler. It's unusual for them to be alone but it's not as if there are no peddlers who travel alone not limited to just dark elves. There's always a constant number of poor novice merchants who can't afford to hire adventurers as escorts. Along the way she ended up encountering what she believed to be knight group members on patrol.

"Excuse me, there's something I'd like to ask but"

Miduchi called out to the knight group member while still wearing her hood for blocking the sun. It seems they noticed.

"I want to buy a horse but could you please refer me to a place somewhere?"

"Oh~ a dark elf huh? What is it, did your business go well and you make a nice profit? Do you not need a carriage?"

It was a group of two male and female knight group members and the male replied.

"Yeah, a carriage is still..Just as you can see a saddle bag is plenty for my luggage.."

"You, if you're peddling then you might already know but the knight group only just returned from a campaign last month. Since there's also replacing horses that were crushed, right now, the price of horses is increasing."

The woman puts her hand at her waist while saying. She already knew that half of the knight group had gone on the campaign. Previously, when she was heading towards Baldukk and returning to Erurehei she heard both times. But, I see.

So they've returned.

"Well it's fine even if it's a bit expensive. As long as it's not outside the realm of common sense."

"Then, there's a place called "Rokeshu Harness Store" up ahead. If you go there they might be selling horses. Just in case it is the primary merchant the knight group uses so you should be able to trust them."

After Miduchi heard the detailed location of "Rokeshu Harness Store" she politely thanked them and split ways. It didn't seem like she could endure her hunger. According to her stomach and she needed food before a horse. She entered a random restaurant and ordered some sobagaki, then immediately got to kneading it in her bowl. Some deep grey soba flour that wasn't very good quality came out with the husks still attached so she started mixing it with the boiling water and in no time at all it's viscosity increases as it reached the point of eating. She added a bit of salt and olive oil and gulped it down. She really wanted some bonito stock for the soba soup but this isn't half bad once you get used to it.

A story from long in the past, when she was still Shiina Junko, when she went to drink at night at a soba shop near the company she remembers the man who would eat some sobagaki as a side to Japanese sake. I wonder if he's still eating sobagaki together with sake now?

After her stomach was full she started towards "Rokeshu Harness Store" without drinking any tea. She tried negotiating with the owner of the Harness shop to sell her a horse but both of the horses they had already had been sold. However two days later they were supposed to get a young four year old horse that could be sold. She handed over 1 gold coin as a deposit and said she would come again two days later before resting in an inn this day. She carefully wiped her body in an inn that costs 2,000 Z (20 copper coins) per night and since she still had time before dinner she laid down a bit and was easily dragged into the world of sleep. She opened her eyes close to the middle of the night. In terror she checked to make sure there was no abnormalities in her luggage or stomach band. Since she had made sure to just properly close things up the only thing stolen was time.

.....

Year 7444, Month 8, Day 9

Since she hadn't eaten anything since yesterday afternoon she ended up eating a considerable amount of food from the morning. Though she's a woman, she's still trained as a warrior, and Miduchi consumes more calories than the average man. Of course, she can endure a simple diet as well but there's no need to push herself right now. She put vinegar, olive oil, dressing made from pepper, and the truffle powder she had over a bowl of raw vegetables with lettuce as the base before eating it. She also sprinkled the truffle powder on some rye bread after dipping it in olive oil before eating it deliciously.

(Huh? If I think about it other than the fact that there's no matsutake isn't Lail Kingdom considerably luxurious?)

And she started thinking about it at this point. Adding to that if the perfect method of artificially cultivating shimeji, kurokawatake, or amitate were brought to Japan they'd make a fortune. After all Lail Kingdom's mushroom cultivation techniques have completely surpassed modern day Japan. They're often more delicious than the natural product.

Miduchi(Well since truffle powder is already something I'm used to I'll save it and give it to him I guess) thought and put the cork back on the bottle of powder.

After leaving the restaurant Miduchi went on an after meal walk. It seems the knight group is training at the edge of town. Since she has nothing to do today, she decided to kill some time by checking the abilities of the knights on the surface while wandering around.

She wandered around the town of Robamorusu before arriving in front of the knight group training area before 9 am. The squires who are still young are swinging their wooden swords wholeheartedly after receiving the signal from the knight teaching them. She remembered her own education training process days for becoming a warrior.

(This is some lukewarm training~)

They've properly only just become squires. While observing Miduchi got the impression that the squires were all in their mid teens or just about adults, the same age as herself. Miduchi sat on the embankment while dazing out as she watched the training but in less than 20 minutes she got bored of it and decided (there's nothing to gain), so she stood up and started wandering the town of Robamorusu again.

A galette made almost like a crepe made from soba flour had some vegetables and ham between it as it was being sold so she ate two of them for lunch, then after returning to her inn she started maintenance on her two swords. The short sword she's used for many years is starting to reach it's limit. It's a weapon she chose simply because it was cheaper than a long sword. Since she's comfortable with it she intends to continue using while it can still be used. However, just as expected from one made from cast iron it's endurance is low. She's undergone live combat with it countless times so it wouldn't be strange for there to be some fine cracks that can't be seen in it.

She carefully checks if there's any distortion while touching the edge of the blade. It had a reasonably sharp cutting edge when she first bought it but after being sharpened countless times it's gotten shorter and now that the low quality cast iron that makes up the core has started to show through it's cutting edge is getting dull. It's already at it's limit. It might be best to sell it while it still can be sold.

In comparison, the scimitar granted by her majesty Lilus should have existed since several hundred years ago but the blade still gives off a suspicious light as if it was completely new. The blade is dyed black and just the edge of the blade has the silver metal showing.

【Blade Shadow Scimitar Of: Raidyuroufusutira】

The beautiful scimitar crowned with the name of their race also has a dangerous sounding second name. If she digs through the knowledge of Shiina Junko and it's not something that's suitable for a mere dark elf herself to be using. The grip she holds in her right hand fits so comfortably almost as if it's connected has a length of around 15 cm. From the end of the grip up until around the middle finger there's a knuckle guard growing out with a refined curve to it. The guard isn't very large but it's plenty large enough to endure locking swords and was made durable.

Up until she arrived at Robamorusu she ended up cutting down a {Mountain Wolf} that seemed to have strayed from it's pack with this scimitar but the blade passed through so well she felt almost no resistance at all, in just a single attack she split the spine of the {Mountain Wolf} and was dumbfounded over it's overwhelming cutting edge.

After that, since she split the bone she quickly tried checking the blade but after confirming that there wasn't a single bend or crack in the blade she was dumbfounded once again. However, if it's this then no matter what kind of opponent comes out there's no need to fear. Lightly, just for the sentiment she wiped the blade with a cloth with a bit of oil on it before returning it to the black scabbard without ornaments.

.....

Year 7444, Month 8, Day 10

After finishing breakfast Miduchi started on her way to "Rokeshu Harness Store". There's no way the horse would arrive this early in the morning but she didn't have anything else to do. She decided to wait in the store front looking at harnesses until it arrives.

Since she doesn't know what size the horse will be she decided to pick after it comes.

After telling the owner that she would wait they didn't just pleasantly permit her but even offered some tea. Certainly since she's not just buying a horse but a full set of harnesses so she's good customer. You could say this treatment is only obvious.

While she was looking at the saddle made from leather, the stirrup made from metal parts, and the various belts noon arrived in no time at all. When the owner called out to her she went and got some lunch and by the time she returned the horse had arrived. It was a chestnut horse with gentle looking eyes. Miduchi approached it from the front and even after stretching out her hand to it's neck it wasn't afraid.

(Yeah, there's no problem if it's this one)

The price of the horse was 7,200,000 Z, including the full set of harnesses it was 8,000,000 Z. It already had horseshoes on before it arrived here. She received some spare horseshoes and put them in the new saddle bag before moving all of her luggage over from her rucksack as well. She paid the remaining price of 7 gold coins to the owner and got on the horse with an accustomed method. After being seen off by the owner she advances down the road. She watches the training of the knight group as she passed by the training grounds. Today it's not just the squires training but combined training with the knights.

As expected she hadn't learned combat while riding on horseback so she might be able to gain something today.

I see now, in order to open up both hands you control the reins with your neck huh? The knights were showing of splendid riding techniques as they wield their lance and kite shields riding around. All of them have helmets on so she couldn't tell their faces but since some of them have tails she could tell just the non-humans apart.

..I wonder if that pure black tail is a Tiger-man? Since there's no stripes I can't really tell but that shape should be a Tiger-man.

Since they're not on a horse they must be either a squire or a low ranking knight. Among the infantry just he seems to have quite the high level of skill.

He's good at using the shield.

While straddling her horse Miduchi watched the training for just a bit but in the end it's just knights from a remote region. Partway through the knight with good movements got on horseback as well but while his movements were somewhat good the rough parts still stand out. After all it seems that the main knights who were on horseback from the start have more skill. It seems he wanted to make use of the large size of his body and long reach to fight with the sword but since he's on horseback she thought he should just use the spear. It might be the case that he can't use the lance though.

It seems it would be best to hurry ahead. Tonight, she wanted to reach the next village before the night.

While heading Northwest along Repisshu road Miduchi caresses the neck of the horse that has just become her favorite horse.

.....

Year 7444, Month 8, Day 28

Today was once again an extremely hot day. Miduchi thought it might be best to stop by his company in the capital and his older sister in the knight group just in case but she realized it's only been about three months since then. And since thought that it would be best to go and greet them together with him she just steadily aimed straight for Baldukk.

Close to that evening Miduchi finally arrived in the town of Baldukk and she started on her horse towards the "Boil Manor" she had heard about. According to her Unique Ability, Unit Organization he's been in the dungeon since several days ago. There's a lot of farmers who tend to the fields surrounding the craters and artisans along the road.

She avoids them while continuing on her horse and finally arrived at her destination. There was signs of water sprinkled in front of "Boil Manor". Since he's in the dungeon I don't know when he'll return. For the time being I should take a room. No, if I stay in the same room then there's no need to take one. While worrying about something weird (it would be faster to just directly ask) and thinking it over once again she connected her horse out front before "Welcome~~!!" telling the young apprentice at the front the name of the man who should be staying there.

"Kawa, I've heard that a person named Alan Greed is lodging here. I want to meet him."

She already knew he wasn't around but Miduchi thought saying that seemed less unnatural. Also, she had intended to ask politely but it seems it came off wrong to the brat who was the same age or just a bit younger.

"..Really again..Certainly that person is a customer of ours.

Though if you're trying to join his party you should give up.

Really, every single day, they all keep coming to try and join...It's all people wishing to join the {Slaughterers}. That person rejects everyone with a glance. Since he's a first-rate adventurer. If you aren't a customer, then, leave already."

I see now, so that was the case. After understanding the young apprentices attitude Miduchi took the plate out of her pocket and showed it to him before opening her mouth again.

"This plate is something I received from him. Also, I'm an acquaintance of his, his wife. Would you please show me to his room?"

(Is it a bit too forward I wonder? But, one day it will become like that, so it should be fine right.)

After hearing Miduchi's words as she turned red the brat broke into laughter and started holding his stomach as he laughed.

"Ha!? That's a new pattern. Hey~ dark elf sis. What did you say just now? What did you say? I heard you're his wife though. Don't say such easily exposed lies! Show some proof, here, {status open}..Are you an idiot? You said a lie that was exposed in two seconds. In the first place there's no way a dirty plate like that would belong to that person!"

"We just haven't done the naming ceremony yet. And if you're going to say I'm not a customer then..that's fine. I'll take a different room. Please take care of my horse as well. How much is it?"

Miduchi replied a bit irritated.

"What are you saying you idiot? There's no way we'd let someone like you stay here. If someone suspicious like you stays over, Greed-sama will get angry at us!!"

"Wha, rejected me a room is it..Is that fine with you? You'll end up getting told off later. Even if you end up fired I won't pay any mind to it!"

"Ha!! Iddiio~! Let alone Greed-sama, I was asked this of all the members of {Slaughterers}. Refuse strange people that is! Even last week they were grateful to me for turning away some idiot. You could even say I'm a member of the {Slaughterers}. Get going already!"

Because of how rudely it was said Miduchi was about to get angry but she managed to calm down and speak. It was because she felt that he returned to the surface with her Unique Ability, Unit Organization.

"If you're going to say that far, then fine. I'll wait here."

"Che..You're an annoyance. Now, you're in the way. Leave already."

In her head she was thinking, (I'll tell on you!) while she moved a bit of distance away from "Boil Manor". She can still tell the boy is glaring at her from the entrance but she wasn't bothered of it.

(Come to think of it, I'm hungry~)

After taking the reins of beloved horse, it might have just been her imagination but her horse seemed to be making an expression of hunger as well.

Miduchi counted the piles of horse poop on the ground while just waiting for his return.

.....

For a short while, Miduchi maintained the blank in her consciousness after casting some cold water over her horse to cool it down and then she noticed a group talking at the entrance. He's already right in front of her. The ones she can hear might be his allies. With expectations in her chest just as she was about to look at their faces she her a loud woman's laughing voice echo around.

"Eeeh!! Wife~!?! Ahahahaha!! Did you hear that!?"

"Really, you're laughing too much. But, that's certainly a new method."

"Al didn't mention a single thing about being or getting married after all. How pointless. Come on let's go."

It's a male and female dwarf and a human woman.

"Just a minute, is it that person?"

"Yeah, that's right, Ralpa-sama. It's that woman. Just because she's slightly pretty she intended to enter using seduction. Even though there's no way Greed-san would be caught by seduction..she's been there for a while without leaving. She's really obstinate."

"Shall I say a word to her?"

"No way, she's nothing to trouble Akdam-sama over. She even forged some kind of dirty and strange plate, that dark elf."

"A Dyrou you say? Why didn't you say that first!"

After Miduchi looked at the three glancing over here after hearing the brats story she took off her hood. Though it was evening, there was still some sun remaining. She had heard the story from him but among those three the female dwarf and human should be reincarnated people.

When all three of them saw Miduchi's face from the side in the setting sun their expressions went stiff.

"What is it, so you're still just standing over there. If you don't leave soon then Larry will chase you off."

"What's going on? Everyone over there.."

"Hey Ralpa, since you said you wanted to take a shower..first.

That was faster than I thought."

It was the face that Miduchi had continued thinking about these past three months, no, Shiina Junko had for over eight years.

Since it couldn't be seen from the back light the expression was definitely smiling.

"Dear!"

She let go of the reins and ran off

""Dear~!?"""

In the twilight of the town of Baldukk several voices rang out in disarray.

Chapter 151: Valuable Item 1

Year 7444, Month 8, Day 28

We've returned to one of the small rooms on the side of the teleport room at the surface.

"Ah~ I want to take a shower. I can't get the smell of the blood out from my hair."

Ralpa said like she was already sick of it. After finishing our exploration of the 6th floor when we returned to the 5th floor Giberuti had already finished packing our stuff so we decided to put priority on returning right away and taking a shower at the inn.

"Me too~ Al-san, we returned one day early this time but are we still doing a four day holiday?"

Gwine continued to say as well. Why do you always tilt your head a bit when you say things like that? It's quite sly.

"Yeah, there's four days off starting tomorrow. The next time is starting from September 3."

"Where are we going tonight?"

Toris asked.

"I want to eat meat~"

Bel is speaking on a whim. Even though she's a rabbit she eats meat. Though it doesn't particularly matter, I want to eat fish.
I guess it's fine if I carry one in?

"If it's meat then ""Murowa" is good. The pork skewers there are delicious."

Zentom said while licking his lips. Yeah, "Murowa" huh? They have ibodi and keiswago there as well so it's okay. However, today my stomach is saying it wants flounder. I've learned it recently but even without soy sauce if it's white meat fish then sashimi is pretty good with just salt. In my past life I made fun of it as a “fancy” way of eating it and was adamant about having soy sauce and condiments but when I drink alcohol I can’t help but want to eat sashimi. As a matter of fact this method of eating was something Mary taught me but it’s surprisingly good.

Incidentally those born on Orth like Zenom and Zulu find eating raw fish to be creepy. Even in Binsil’s restaurant of Keel it seems that Mary and Kuro would eat ekiswago, wokoze, mivaru, and those sorts of white meat fish with just salt or citrus juice on them but no one would order any of it. Hmph, everyone who can’t understand the deliciousness of this just has a pitiful tongue. Even if I’m scorned as a barbarian who eats raw fish I have no intention of stopping.

“Ah, then, let’s make it “Dorureon”. I’ll stop by the fish dealer and buy a peiramu. Since you can’t bring your own ingredients in to “Murowa”. If it’s the meat dishes at “Dorureon” then you don’t have any complaints either right Zenom? Ralpa you and the others can go ahead first and take a shower.”

As we walked up the stairs to the surface Zenom nodded while smiling and,

“Ah, peiram is it? That sounds good. Please let me judge them.”

and Toris replied. Recently, it seems Toris has awakened to the deliciousness of fish as well and whenever I go to buy some fish he comes along. One day I want to go fishing together with him.

“Oh, I see. Just the lively looking peiram is no good. They’re the best about two days after being caught when they’ve had time to mature. Make sure you properly see through them?”

I said that and went to the surface.

After leaving the dungeon and I felt Miduchi nearby. One week ago, just before we entered the dungeon I couldn’t tell anything but that she was quite a distance away but the moment we left into the entrance plaza I could feel her. Her distance is roughly 1 Km. The direction Southwest. It seems to be “Boil Manor”. I wonder if she’s already in the inn? A smile naturally appears on my face. I wonder if I made her wait? But it was really perfect timing.

“Then, shall we go. Ah, Giberuti, go ahead first to “Dorureon” and reserve some seats for us.”

Since we go to “Dorureon” once a month even my slave Giberuti can reserve seats for us with no problem. Well we are the {Slaughterers} who saved the second son of the owner after all. We split into three groups. Angela and Zulu were given the luggage Giberuti was carrying, Giberuti who is going ahead to the restaurant. And then us six.

Along the way when we were about to arrive at the fish dealer, Ralpa and Gwine wanted to take a shower so Zenom their guardian went along with them ahead of us. Toris and I started looking for a good peiram from the fish lined up in the store front. Since Bel obviously won't separate from Toris while we're on the surface she's here as well. There were only two peiram at the fish dealer. There's no room picking. Since I normally only buy one of them regardless of what I just said without picking I ended up buying both it seems that Toris and Bel found it strange.

“N, today is special. When we arrive at the restaurant I'll have them cut right away. If it's “engawa” then Bel you'll eat it too right?”

Since it's this sort of occasion. I paid the master of the fish market 10,000 Z (1 silver coin) for the two fish and then held on to a string that went through their gills. Even on Orth Peiram is an ultra high-class fish. I'm sure there's many among the commoners that will never taste them. They're normally eaten as a meuniere. Even if you look at all of Orth probably the only ones eating them in sashimi would be reincarnated people I guess?

“I'll hold them for you.”

“Sure.”

I handed the peiram to Toris and followed after Zenom and the others about 100m ahead.

I spent a short while talking with Toris and Bel while walking and when we reached the T curve towards “Boil Manor” I noticed Zenom and the others stopped at the entrance. It seems they're talking about something with the brat. I wonder if Miduchi left a message? She should be nearby there.

Since the building is in the way we can't see from where we are but I could hear Ralpa's noisy laughing voice echo.

.....

On the left side of the entrance Miduchi was standing with her horse in a short robe that went down to her hips. Did she go to the trouble of waiting in front of the entrance? Putting that aside, if Ralpa and the others aren't talking with Miduchi then hurry up and go take a shower. Toris and Bel are already gone.

"Hey Ralpa, since you guys said you were going to take a shower..first. That was faster than I thought."

I call out while raising my left hand and,

"Dear!"

Miduchi let go of the reins of her horse and started running towards me.

"Dear~!?"

Ralpa, Gwine, the brat of "Boil Manor"..and then my voice echoes out. What's that, Dear...It's true that Miduchi mentioned something like that when we were in the dungeon the other day but..Hey now, are you already acting as my wife? That's~ not just at the level of moving things too fast?

"Bugya!!"

While she was in the middle of running over Miduchi magnificently tripped over a pile of horse dung in the middle of the road. You could say she had good luck that she slipped with good momentum so she didn't fall straight down into it. Though there's horse dung on the bottom of her boots.

".."

No one could say a word after seeing her appearance of tripping with such momentum and hitting her head against the ground then rolling around while holding it. I can hear the hustle and bustle of Baldukk from the distance. Since I would feel bad just leaving her when she's making that face like she's going to cry so I approached and stretched my hand out to her to help her stand up.

"Ah.."

After letting out just a single word Miduchi diligently took the sword off her waist including the scabbard and started checking it. It's a simple scabbard but the guard and handle are high-quality.

“Thank goodness..It’s not dirty and there’s no scratches.”

After she whispered quietly she once again carefully returned the scabbard to the sword band and looked at me.

“Dear!”

““Starting from there again!””

.....

While the brats eyes were wide and he was dumbfounded I told him to prepare a spot in the stable for Miduchi’s horse. I don’t really know why but for some reason I watched as Miduchi triumphantly brought her horse back to the stables and a nervous and reserved voice called out to me.

“Umm..Al-san. That woman is...”

I guess she couldn’t put up with the mood of everyone remaining silent, Bel tried asking.

“It’s the Dyurou that Al mentioned before, his subordinate from the past right?”

Zenom replied in my place.

“Yeah, that’s right. I’ll introduce everyone later.”

“Were you married?”

“No way. I’m still a bachelor.”

““Then why!””

Ralpa and Gwine raised their voices at the same time. As a matter of fact I’ve been thinking it since just but, aren’t you guys just twins who don’t resemble each other?

“Nn..Well, one day, maybe. We might.”

Somehow I feel a bit embarrassed.

““Wha!?””

Yeah, I see now. I certainly understand the feelings of you two~ Particularly Ralpa, you even had this strange sense of relief because we’re both humans right? I consider you a good friend but your hobbies are no good~ Putting aside the jokes,

“What is it?”

Do you have some sort of complaint?

“....”

“Fu...In any case, so that means our allies will increase by one again right? Then why don't we welcome her.”

Zenom made an amazed face after looking at Ralpa and Gwine while spinning his {tomahawk} around once.

“Ral, Gwine. Now go and take a shower.”

Bel pushed them on while holding Toris's right hand in the middle of her cleavage while saying with a voice filled with composure. However, no matter when I see them they're quite magnificent. By the way you, what happened to the timidness from just now?

“Isn't she a pretty person, Al-san?”

Toris smiled while carrying the peiramu.

“What does this mean?”

“She hasn't taken a room..”

“Even though she came out of nowhere..”

“How dirty..”

“That sort of face wound..”

“She must not have had enough mana to fix it right?”

“Then isn't that no good.”

“I won.”

“You, don't you have no chest? It's your loss.”

“Even Ral is at best a B right?”

“Even then I have more than you.”

“If it's color then even I..”

It seems that Ralpa and Gwines grumblings entered Bel's ears.

“I'm in the same room as Toris as well!”

and she said that and then looked at me before smiling. No, I intend to have Miduchi take a different room? Though since there's no open rooms on the same floor she'll be on a different floor.

Zenom hit me on the butt lightly once before following after Gwine and Ralpa into "Boil Manor".

Miduchi finished taking off the harness and returned. It might just be my imagination but the brat who came along her side carrying her saddle bag seems uneasy. In comparison to that Miduchi is making an arrogant expression while carrying a number of bags on her left shoulder. I faced Toris and Bel before saying.

"I'll introduce you. This is Midu~ritto.Chizumagurol. My subordinate from in the past that I mentioned I met the other day deep in the dungeon. Right now she's my wo"Wife. Please call me Miduchi. Thank you for always taking care of this person."

...

Miduchi used polite words to interrupt my speaking. What's that, did you practice your speaking quite a bit? A lot of the weird feeling from your tone of speech has disappeared.

I dropped my fist on Miduchi's head and said.

"Since I haven't married I have no wife. And you don't need to force yourself to use polite speech. Your accent is strange. This bumpkin."

"Eh? Is that so? Even though I practiced quite a bit.."

"It's fine. Just talk in a way that's easy. It's fine if you fix it a bit at a time."

"It's nice to meet you, Miduchi-san. I'm Tolkelis.Kalstalan. Please call me Toris."

Toris said that and stretched out his hand to Miduchi. When Toris smiles one of his teeth shines in the setting sun.

"Yes, I'm looking forward to working with you from here on out."

"It's nice to meet you I'm Bernadette.Koloil. But in several years I will be Berndaette.Kalstalan. Please call me Bel."

“Oh my..is that so. That is..It’s a pleasure to meet you as well.”

She’s lowering her head but Miduchi’s eyes were stolen by Bel’s chest. Feel free to fall backwards.

“Yeah, just as you’ve heard, she was born far in the countryside. Just give up that her way of speaking is strange. If it’s “Japanese” then there’s no problem so if it’s a pain then using that is fine.”

We walked towards the front in order to take a room for Miduchi.

.....

Everyone other than Miduchi, Toris, Bel, and I were already at “Dorureon”. When we entered the store late and Zulu, Angela, and Giberuti came rushing over.

““Congratulations. Master.””

I dropped my fist on Miduchi’s head again when she’s grinning and bowing her head and, said that and took my seat.

“I still haven’t gotten married yet.”

Out of the six person table and the four person table, I sat at the six person one. Ralpa and Gwine are lined up on the far side of the four person one and looking at me with a strange expression.

Well I’ll forgive that rude attitude for at least today.

Angela and Giberuti sat down across from Ralpa and Gwine.

Zulu, Toris, and Bel sat down in front of me and then on my left Miduchi and Zenom sat down.

“Then, once again I’ll introduce her. This is Midu~ritto.Chizumagurol. Her position is..probably the same as me reinforcements. For the time being, since we originally were supposed to be in the dungeon until tomorrow, I intend to do some training tomorrow morning but it probably won’t be any different. Also, her way of speaking is strange but forgive her on that. She’s from the countryside.”

I said that and introduced Miduchi and this time Miduchi stood up and greeted everyone.

“All peoples, I’m Midu~ritto.Chizumagurol. Please call this one Miduchi.”

and said that before lowering her head.

“Pu..Did you hear that? She said, all peoples.”

“Yeah, and she’s calling herself “this one”.”

Ralpa and Gwine are whispering to each other but we can completely hear it. Look, Miduchi’s turned red. Bel who was sitting in front of me, said that and scolded them. But, well, it can’t be helped if she’s laughed at a bit.

“Stop it.”

I sigh once and took the peiram from Toris,

“I’ll go get this prepared. Sashimi is fine right?”

and said that before standing up.

“Ah? Is that “flounder”? If that’s the case then it’s just right. Would it be alright to make one of them “Meuniere”?”

and Miduchi said. Does she not know the {Common Language} for “flounder” and “Meuniere”?

“Eh? Well it’s fine. But why?”

“If it’s a “flounder meuniere” then I can prepare the sauce.”

Hmph. Well, I guess it’s fine. Since it’s something like a welcoming party for Miduchi after all.

After going to the kitchen since it’s the same as usual, I borrowed a knife from the head chef and started cutting the two peiram into sashimi pieces. While Miduchi was quietly watching she said, “Is it okay if I take the head and middle bone?” so I gave it to her. It seems she’s started to moisten it with steam right away and making stock from it. I cut out eight “engawa” worth from the two fish and cut them into bite sizes, and make them 1/4th the size while carefully adding some garnish for looks.

“I’m going to take the guts from one of them as well.”

and before I could say anything she quickly took the guts of one them and started steaming and straining those as well. Aa~ even though gut sashimi of flounder is delicious...However, so she's making a meuniere using a sauce made from using the guts as a stock huh? Isn't that normal?

Miduchi quickly cut one fishes portion into an adequate four pieces and started adding salt, seasonings, and a bit of wheat flour. She lined some oil along the frying pan and started frying the meuniere. After it started sizzling and she finished frying one she placed it on a plate and then split the oil from the flounder into a separate frying pan. There she added the stock she got from the first bit of guts and added a bit of wine and vodka. It seems she's going to boil down the sauce in the small frying pan.

At this point the head chef and I who was half way done making sashimi were watching Miduchi with interest. While she was boiling down the sauce in the small frying pan, she poured down a bit more of the light oil from the large frying pan returned the meuniere from the plate before frying it again. It should be fine if I don't watch over for a bit. She took a small 15 cm higher and 10 cm diameter bottle out of her waist pouch and I can tell something like a small stone is inside of them. She took the cork off of it and then took one white-ish looking rock out and the head chef raised his voice in surprise. You know what that is, old man?

With a familiar method she sliced the rock into fine pieces. It seems it's not a rock. A potato?

"O..One whole. An entire single white sarenruji!?"

The eyes of the head chef are spinning as he whispers. I don't know what this white sarenruji is but it seems it's valuable. Miduchi completely finished finely cutting up the white sarenruji and started adding it to the small frying pan with the sauce, she then added something like a paste and then started focusing on the large frying pan. An extremely enticing smell started to float through the kitchen.

Ha..This isn't the time to be charmed. I need to make sure to make mine as well. I cut the flounder into sashimi and put it on a large plate, in the center there's a small hill of engawa pile on top of each other. After this if I just add a bit of rock salt to a small plate to go with it and it's done.

Miduchi is serving the meuniere on a plate and putting the sauce from the small frying pan on top of it. It seems she's done as well.

"U..Umm, would it be alright for me to have the remaining sauce in that frying pan?"

The head chef called out to Miduchi. Hey now, your name as the top restaurant in Baldukk "Dorureon" will cry. Let's stop with the poor people antics. In the first place, it's the cooking of an amateur. While my face is turning into a frown Miduchi smiled and, "if you're fine with something like this then, please do." Really, I can't keep up with this~

I carry along the plates of food with me. It seems everyone is waiting and hungry.

"Ei~ sorry for the wait. The meuniere is coming soon as well. It seems pretty tasty looking."

When I put the large plate on the table and turned around it was just as Miduchi came out with a plate on each hand and behind her the boy was coming along out of the kitchen as well.

"Fumo~~!!"

I heard the yell of the head chef.

Chapter 152: Valuable Item 2

Year 7444, Month 8, Day 28

After Miduchi carried out the peiramu meuniere and everyone's chopsticks that were reaching for my sashimi stopped. Of course, mine did as well. Everyone was done in by the smell coming from the peiram meuniere on the 20 cm or so plate everyone had. The waiters who brought it out couldn't help but stare at it as well.

To be honest, I thought it just a moment ago as well but I feel like I've smelled this scent somewhere before.

I tried to pull out my memories of the distant past and I think it was the dinner menu for my wedding reception in my past life. Foie gras with truffles. It's the scent of that made even stronger and deeper. Ah, it's the scent of truffles. So white sarenruji is a white truffle.

"Everyone, please eat it while it's still hot."

If you're going to say that then it's "everyone, eat before it cools down.." but no one was paying attention to the wording Miduchi used.

"This.."

"Ah..."

It seems that Bel and Gwine knew about it. Their eyes are wide as they brought their faces to the plate.

"Fumu!!"

"Oo!!"

Angela and Giberuti are twitching their noses at the scent. It seems like they're about to drool any moment.

"This is a good scent."

"This is.."

"Mwu.."

Zenom is smelling the scent with an ecstatic expression, and Toris and Zulu are bringing their noses close as well.

“Wun..”

Only Ralpha raised her eyebrows.

I thought it was similar to a scent I know that's made much deeper after waiting over two weeks. However, it's not grassy-smelling at all, it's a scent that increases your appetite considerably. I wonder how happy I would be putting this in my mouth? and it's a scent that amazing.

I took off just a bit full from the end of the meuniere and put it into my mouth after sticking it into the sauce on the center.

“!!”

I guess this is what they mean when they say you can't even say a word. After all if I were to open my mouth to let out a voice I feel like the scent would escape. I respected the head chef a bit for being able to raise his voice. There's no way I could do that. The refined taste of the flounder spreads through my mouth. There's no complaints about the taste of the sauce either. The stock of the flounder was done well as well and the vague scent from the wine and vodka adds to the complexity of the meunier itself. The sauce added on top of that made from the white truffle causes the center of the body to tremble from the rich scent.

Sorry, honestly speaking, I underestimated it, fish meuniere. Only after chewing a few times and I swallowed it down in no time at all but I want to feel the scent and flavor in my mouth for an eternity.

“Fu...”

I let out a sigh.

“Somehow this scent is indecent. But, it's delicious..”

Everyone excluding Miduchi glared at Ralpha who said something destroying the mood. Toris is licking his chopsticks with his forked tongue. Somehow those movements are indecent, that.

Stop it already.

“Hamu..Yeah, this is delicious. Wafu..What is it this. What indeed?”

While were still basking in the aftertaste of the first bite, Ralpa is devouring the meuniere down.

“I’m glad it matched your tastes.”

Miduchi said while smiling. However, no one is listening. We’re all focused on slowly eating the meuniere with a bit of sauce at once. Ah, everyone other than the reincarnated people are grabbing with their hands. While watching Ralpa aim for Gwine’s plate after she finished eating right away we just remained quiet and continued eating.

While dodging Ralpa’s chopsticks coming from the side, after Gwine finished eating her voice matched Bel and said to the waiter.

““Bring some bread. The soft and white kind.””

Oh~ so they intend to soak up the remaining sauce on the plate with the bread. Certainly that seems delicious as well. But, everyone other than those two are already wiping it with their fingers and sucking it off. Of course, I am as well. After hearing their words I couldn’t help but look disappointingly at my own finger. Miduchi’s was partially eaten but she slid the portion remaining on her plate in front of me.

After everyone finished eating the sauce with some bread and endured the torture of watching Gwine, Bel, and I finish eating, we all spoke at once.

““Tasty!””

”“It was delicious!””

““Is this sauce made from “white truffles”!?””

Bel and Gwine questioned Miduchi. After all that was the case. However, you two what kind of lifestyle did you have in your past lives to know about white truffles. We’re you high-class daughters?

“Yes. It’s called white sarenruji. It’s a type of mushroom grown in our country.”

It was then that the pork steaks that Zenom, Ralpa, Zulu and the slaves ordered was carried out.

“Ah, pork huh? Well then, please spring a bit of this on top.”

Miduchi took another bottle out of the pouch on her waist and filled a spoon of something black and finely chopped up over the pork steak of Zenom next to her.

Could this maybe be...

“This is black sarenruji made into fine powder. Please use it for the scent.”

Zenom carried an end which it was on into his mouth.

Zenom’s eyes went wide and he started breathing with his nose, in the next moment the remaining steak on his plate was in the hands of me, Toris, Bel, Ralpa, and Gwine. It seems Ralpa and Gwine moved from the other table. Zulu and the other three are sprinkling some of the black powder on their own plates. If I think carefully about it there’s a plate in front of Ralpa as well but no one noticed. She quickly returned to her own seat and then Ralpa poured a pile out of the bottle after Giberuti finished using it while chowing down.

This is delicious as well. Even though it’s just a pork steak putting a bit of truffle power on top makes it feel this delicious? The power of scents is amazing~ Ralpa and the three slaves finished off their steaks in no time at all. This is why people with no class are a problem. I can’t believe Zulu wouldn’t even give me a single bite though it’s simply unjustified resentment. Rather than that Zenom was pitiable.

“I’m glad you’re all pleased with it. In reality the way you’re supposed to eat it is slicing it up and adding a few pieces on a meat dish like in “France” or “Italy” though”

Ah, come to think of it I’ve seen something like a fillet beef steak with pasta and thinly sliced truffles on it before. At a place in Ginza they had something like a single slice of black truffles for 1,000 yen. The chef himself actually comes all the way out to ask “How many slices?” Putting on airs and saying “5..5 slices” with a trembling voice is nostalgic. Of course it’s my first time trying white truffles.

“Roze, let’s go and hunt some Roze!”

Bel turned her voice inside out while saying. Go and hunt you, they’re monsters. Well if it's us right now then we'd probably be fine though.

""That sounds good.""

Zulu and Angela are looking up slightly while responding as if it's only obvious. Everyone who's eaten that before is nodding.

The remaining five peoples Seizuku poware came out. It was certainly delicious but after eating that...

I feel like the sashimi I made was a bit lonely. Of course I still ate it all though.

Particularly Giberuti was intent on asking how to create the sauce. He was considerably insistent on it.

After that, the party continued peacefully and I think they were somewhat able to accept Miduchi.

.....

Since Bel and Toris said they were going to go drinking a bit more at a different place they invited everyone, Zenom and the others jumped on that, but Miduchi and I returned to the inn with just the two of us. Sorry about that. I think I've already talked about most of the plans previously but since I thought a review was necessary and above all I wanted a quiet place to calm down and talk.

We started by returning to our rooms and after taking our showers, Miduchi came to my room. Hmph, as usual she has nothing but worn-out clothes. Even if she changes it's this. Ah, of course it's not like her clothes are just scraps. It's simply that her clothes are pretty worn-out. The dye has fallen, the color is getting lighter, while looking at her clothes across the table I made two cups of ice water. The water is something from the well. As expected it's hot after all.

"Was your older brother fine?"

"Yes, thanks to you it seems he'll somehow make it. Thank you very much. Also, I'll return the things I borrowed. First, your knife."

"Oh~"

Since she handed over my old favored knife with the chipped blade I took it. When I tried taking it out and looking at it the chipped portions had increase.

Well, it should be fine if I sharpen it.

“Next up, is this plate. My life was saved thanks to this copper plate. Though because of that it was damaged a bit..”

He~ I see. It's fine even if it's got a little bit of damage. I'm sure there's stuff like that as well. I wonder if she showed in that Lail Kingdom or whatever? No, I can't imagine that the influence of Marquis Webdos works in a foreign country so she must have showed it along the way. It's fine as long as she didn't use it for something weird..whaiit~!?

“Wha, what in the world is this! It's bent...A..ah..Thi..This much damage..”

There was a large cut in the center of the Marquis's plate and it was a bit bent. It seems like it was bent even more but it was fixed afterwards. However this, even though it's something valuable I was given by sister-in-law Shani..it was really something valuable. I never properly used it but, it's not that sort of problem. There's supposedly only a really small number issued.. There was a dark elf curling up a bit looking apologetic on the other side of the table after seeing my state.

“..It's fine. If this saved your life, then that's fine.”

I guess it's fine if I just think of it as sister-in-law saving Miduchi.

“I'm sorry..”

I looked at the top of Miduchi's head as she lowers it,

“Ah, it's fine. And, that is..”

I get caught up a bit on the words I was going to say.

“Yeah, it's about the madam right?”

Yeah.

“Just as she said at that time, she was already nowhere in this world it seems. However, the madam, no, I was able to talk somewhat with the spell “her majesty” left behind.”

“Huh?”

Since Miki said that pretty soon she would “die” so I knew about that and it wasn't anything to be surprised about. However, I think I heard her say she talked to the spell that Miki left behind. What is this fellow saying? She must have noticed my confused expression, Miduchi explained it for me.

"The madam left behind a special spell in the end. It seems it was close to thought body and it was capable of talking with a considerable amount of freedom. Thanks to that I was saved quite a bit."

"I see.."

After that we spent some time as she told me what kinds of things happened in her home town. Though the methods to become an {immortal} or {God} still remain unknown. However, it seems that Miki was looking out for me.

Yeah, even if we used to love each other, for me it was even 16 years, and when it comes to hers it was a partner of several hundred or even a thousand years. Much less one side of them has become a {Demi-God}. I can't imagine it happening but no matter what I wanted to avoid becoming her enemy.

"..After that is..I guess I'll talk about it now while no one else is around. Tomorrow morning I'll have you show your power to everyone. After that you need to go around and buy you some clothes and necessities. It would probably be best to have Ralpha and Bel accompany you on that. We'll head to the capital before evening. It's necessary to have you made a pair of boots over there. That's why tomorrow we'll spend the night in the capital but we'll return after eating lunch. However, we'll tell everyone that we're going to remain in the capital until the day after tomorrow? that we'll be staying there until a later date. That's why even if we return we won't come here. We'll leave our horses at a different inn and on the night of the day after tomorrow we'll enter the dungeon. I'll talk about the details of it tomorrow on our way to the capital."

After hearing our schedule for tomorrow on Miduchi seemed to have some questions but it seems she shelved them for now. Things like this are just like her personality in the past.

"By the way, I have something I want you to look at."

"Hn? Sure, that's fine though you know."

I stood up from the chair.

“Yes?”

Miduchi looked up at me.

“Before that”

I took Miduchi’s hand from across the table and stood her up.

“Yes.”

She’s making a face like, where are we going to go?

“We have something to do right?”

I lift her chin up.

“Eh, ah.”

Katan, I heard the sound of Miduchi’s new sword hit the chair.

I put my arms around her body.

I’m sure there’s already no need for anymore words.

Punishment for the plate!

I grinned while grabbing the obi of her kimono that’s faded in color over time and pulled it.

“Are~”

Even though it’s punishment why does she seem like she’s having fun?

.....

Year 7444, Month 8, Day 29

【Blade Shadow Scimitar: Raidyuroufusutira】

【Orihalicon Steel】

【State: Good】

【Manufacture Date: 1/1/6672;21/3/6791;13/6/6862】

【Value: 1】

【Endurance: 625942】

【Ability: 210–260】

【Effect: Energy Drain】

【Effect: Raise.Hiding.In.Shadow.Rate】

【Effect: Raise.Magic.Recovery.Rate】

【Effect: Auto-Mending】

I guess this is what they mean when they say you can't close your open mouth. I thought it was strange since before but I wonder who in the world is writing the details of Identify and Status Open. I can already guess it for the most part though.

In any case, there's no mistake it's a sword with some terrifying abilities. It makes sense that my wife, a {Demi-God} had used it. The moment she pulled it from the scabbard there wasn't even any need to Identify it, I could feel it was amazing.

Unusually this sword had a ricasso to it. Between the handle and guard there's about 15 cm of ricasso with no blade and from there the blade stretches out in a refined arc. It's different from a normal scimitar, one of the characteristics of it is that the closer it gets to the blade it gets subtly thinner. I don't know if it's been tempered but the portions other than the blade are dyed black and it doesn't feel like something from this era but rather a blade that even feels like it's an industrial blade from the 21st century.

Hmph, you received something quite good.

I carefully returned the sword to its scabbard and gave that to Miduchi before saying.

"This is an amazing sword. I guess you could call it a magic sword. It seems that on a {clean hit} it can absorb one body level from the opponent. Though it doesn't seem to raise your own level. Around every one level you absorb it temporarily increases your HP by 5 . If you end up taking a similar hit while your HP is increased the absorbed HP seems to obstruct it so it seems you can endure an attack from Energy Drain during that time. After that it seems to have Auto-Mending cast on it as well so as long as it's inside of the scabbard it doesn't require any maintenance. And while you're holding on to the handle it seems that your mana recovery rate increases as well. Mana normally recovers about 1 point per 5 minutes but with this it seems to be about 1 point per 4 minutes. In addition it seems that while you're holding the handle it's harder to see you when hiding in the shadows of things as well. There's no need to pull it from the scabbard for those things. It seems it's effective as long as you have your hand on the handle. Isn't that great."

Miduchi was surprised after hearing my explanation and made a strange expression like she was happy but at the same as if it was only obvious. By the way I wonder where you can find Orihalicon? Did she have an acquaintance of the Triton race or something? Or was it the people of Atlantis? It doesn't really matter but the details of the sub-window were considerably screwing around so they weren't of much reference.

This day Miduchi showed her true skills to the other party members without dissatisfaction. Her skill with the sword itself was weaker than me and still didn't match up to Zenom, but she was still plenty skilled and she showed the next highest power with spells after me. If she doesn't use the sword, while her skill with the bow doesn't match up to Bel, she is decently skilled with it as well and she showed quite the mastery with a wide variety of weapons.

Thanks to that everyone agreed with her role being the same as mine in shortstop and reinforcement. There's still a large portion of her {Common Language} that is kind of stiff but Bel is following up with her on that and it seems they're going shopping together at noon.

"Hey, Al. Did you contract with Miduchi?"

Ralpa called out to me. I thought there wasn't much point to contracting with my own woman at this point. A lover's contract? Though I don't have any intent on something like a lover. But, I see. It seems like it would be a good idea to do one for the time being.

"N, not yet. I'm going to make the contract documents today after this. We'll finish up the procedures for it right away and then head to the capital tonight to make her boots. Since I haven't shown my face in the company recently as well."

"Ah, so you're going to properly contract with her."

I don't know why but Ralpa said with a relieved face.

"Hn? Ah, well, yeah."

"N, then that's fine. I see, so you're going to do it properly.."

What is she saying? This girl. There's no way I could do something like treating her special. If you try to treat one person special when there's a low head count it's the source of discord. If it's daily necessities and things she needs for now then I'll lend her the money with no collateral but even that's plenty special. Although, it seems like she has plenty of money for now so there's no need to lend her any. Since Toris and Bel are here it's easy to forget but in the first place I'm in the faction that rejects romance in the company. They properly split up on and off hours and don't do anything like flirting on the job, not only are they calmly going about their duties but it seems like they plan to marry in the future so I've recognized it. Obviously I've already properly instructed Miduchi on the same things.

"That's only obvious right. Certainly she's my woman but I make sure to split things up that need to be split up. I have no intention of living in the same room as her either."

"Eh? Hmph..I see."

"Yeah, that's right. That's why you should get along with her."

".."

Ralpa turned around and started talking with Gwine about something. What's with this girl?

Chapter 153: Once Again to the Fairy Village

Year 7444, Month 8, Day 29

After our morning training, it seems that centering around Bel they're going shopping for Miduchi's clothes and other necessities. Ralpa and Gwine are accompanying them and together with the leader part Miduchi, the four of them disappeared. In addition it seems they're going to have lunch. I returned to the inn and started producing Miduchi's contract. The details should be fine the exact same as Ralpa and the others. If she reads this then she should know what I was trying to say.

I finished writing the three contracts in about 30 minutes and started my preparations to go to the capital. Even though I say that, it's just going to the fish dealer and paying in advance for some dried fish that I'll be coming to pick up tomorrow evening.

After that, in order to kill some time while Miduchi was shopping I started using {Divination} to study incantations of spells, I used the spell {Shield} a number of times, and was considerably engaged.

Around 4 pm the women finally returned. For the time being I had Miduchi sign the contract in front of them. After examining the contract for a short while Miduchi's facial color changed for a moment but she immediately nodded and said "this seems appropriate" before signing so I felt relieved. I'm sure someday someone will retort on it but it's best if that time is as late as possible and when they finally do we'll see what happens when we get there. It should be fine if I just make a face like I've only just realized for the first time and say "Ah, I guess so. Then should we revise it?" It's not like it's one-sidedly to my advantage after all. No, I guess it is pretty one-sided.

"Then, I'm heading to the company. If it's something like boots then they should be able to make them."

"Yes, I've understood it."

"It's not supposed to be "understood" there but "Understand"."

“I understand.”

The two of us each ride on our own horses and departed while being seen off by Ralpa and the others. While we're lined up swaying on our horses after we passed through the outer rim of the crater Miduchi started talking to me.

“..By the way Kawa..Al-san. Koloil-san is a good person isn't she.”

“Hn? Yeah, Bel is a good kid. She properly thinks things through on her own and doesn't mix personal and official. She's also good at reading delicate signs.”

“I got that sort of feeling as well. I wonder if she's an older sister kind of position?”

“N~ Well I guess around there. Though why?”

“She called out to me that if we're going shopping today she knows a good store.”

That's right.

“She promptly picked out small necessities and things like clothes, soap, towels, and such. That is..and underwear.”

Eh? You even had Bel pick your underwear? What's that? You can't even buy your own underwear? Were you that pitiful of a child?

“Ah, no. Of course I picked out the goods myself. But, even if it was the same thing she showed me cheaper stores with a better variety.”

Ah, I see.

“I see, Bel is pretty reliable so get along with her.”

“Yeah, that's true..But”

Hn?

“I wonder what kind of people Firefreed-san and Akdam-san are?”

“Ah..Those guys. It seems that originally the two of them attended the same high school. Not to mention it was a school for idiots. That's why they're still children. Did something unpleasant happen?”

“No, it's not like that's the case..I see. So they're children..”

“What is it, that makes me curious. What happened?”

“No, the two of them asked quite insistently about whether I planned to marry you.”

Miduchi’s face seemed to turn a bit red.

“Hmph, and, what did you reply to them?”

“..say.”

“Eh?”

“I can’t say.”

“Is that so. Well don’t worry too much about those two. Ralpa is“Eh? It was ignored? Isn’t that where you’re supposed to delve in deeper!?”

I mean, you can’t say it right? It’s not like I want to force you to say it after all, so it’s fine.

..However you know.

“You’re about as much of a child as Ralpa huh? It’s fine. You don’t need to force yourself to say it. I can imagine after all.”

“..So you can already imagine it..Was I that easy to read..”

What is she getting depressed over?

“It’s fine already at this point. I realized your feelings long in the past. It’s already fine if you don’t show reservation for anyone anymore.”

“But, the madam is..”

“Idiot, you, think about it more carefully. It’s certainly true that even now I like her. It’s not like we got a divorce after all. But it’s already been over 16 years since I hadn’t met her and if you look from her point of view, it was in the units of hundreds of years. Even you were 30 when you died. Didn’t you have a boyfriend you dated in middle and high school?

If I remember correctly, you said you had your first boyfriend in middle school or something? If you’re saying something like that then what about his position? I can declare it to you with confidence but that boyfriend only things of you as a memory of the past now and he’s probably doing well with a different woman now. I had a girlfriend I dated when I was in high school as well but she's long since given birth to another man's child. It wouldn't be a surprise if she has grandchildren by now."

"Eh? I've never dated any men before?"

"Eh?"

"Never have."

I..I mean, you, I'm pretty sure I heard about it. In the past, when we were drinking at a bar, you said something like, "in the past I played around~" And you said the first time you kissed was when you were in middle school. I remember thinking that I had lost because my first girlfriend was in high school, and something like that...

Seeing me dumbfounded she must have remembered, Miduchi looked a different direction while saying.

"Ah..I remembered. Come..come think of it there was a person like that. Ta..Takashi-kun, I wonder if he's doing well~"

I feel like the name I had heard was Yoshio-kun or something like that..Is this that? An old man who talks about how they used to be a delinquent in the past? Did you blow up a story just to compete with me at that time...

"You.."

I just glared at her but Miduchi continued to look in a different direction.

"I mean.."

"Ah.."

"I mean, isn't it unpleasant..rather you should think about me! Try remembering it! Even though I was that gloomy when I entered the company! There's no way I'd have been dating someone! The only one who patiently kept pace with and changed me was you!"

Well that was my job? Even if my subordinate is something like that doing something about it was my job.

"Ev..Even I was courted a decent amount! Our clients, and when I went to a class reunion, everyone I met, all said I was cheerful and beautiful! Even if I'm like I was popular! It wasn't just two or three people that asked me to date them."

Come to think of it I remember hearing about something like that. That's why I was happy at the time as well. To the point where I found it strange she didn't date them. I mean, she could pretty pick whoever she wanted. Before I noticed Miduchi had faced me.

"But, the person that I came to like, was married from a long time ago and I thought I had no choice but to give up, whenever I went to the company saw their face I couldn't give up and..the only thing I could do is somehow match the circumstances up, go drinking together, and say round about things...In the first place, recently every time you would ask me if I hadn't made a boyfriend yet..It was sexual harassment."

Ah sexual harassment huh? That's no good. But, as expected, the only person I said stuff like that to was you.

"Recently you, that was already over 16 years ago."

"It was just a few months ago to me! Since I only remembered it the other day. That's why inside of me Kawasaki-san is a 45 year old man!"

"..Is that so."

Now that I've seen your current appearance I can't even remember your face from the past.

"..In any case, during a time like if you suddenly bring up the topic of people you dated in the past, anyone would want to compete with it."

I wonder if they would?

"Isn't it a cute lie. I think it's generosity to just laugh and let things like that slide."

"Don't say that yourself.."

"That's why, up until now I haven't even once properly dated a man."

"I see"

“That’s why you’re my first person.”

“Thatsright..and, I already get it. It’s already fine, how bothersome~”

“So I’m, a bothersome woman...”

She asked with a uneasy expression. Yeah.

“..Ffu...I have no interest in the contents of what you were told by Ralpa and replied. You’re by my side right now. Isn’t that fine.”

“..Yes. It is.”

Don’t get bashful. With that creepy looking skin color. You’ll make me want to bully you.

“Ralpa you know, she’s one of the people in the party that I’ve know the longest but she doesn’t particularly have any interest in me. Since her head turns reasonably well she most likely is just thinking about her future while trying to leave an impression on me. Isn’t it just her trying to compete with Toris and Bel who are aiming for Marquis? She’s a good fellow and she has power but she’s still a child after all. I think of her as a precious friend as well though while her looks are reasonably good I don’t feel like I would want to date or marry her at all.

In regards to Gwine she’s still a relatively new member. However, since we’ve already been together for a year and a half I feel like I’ve gotten to know a bit of her. She’s the fickle type. At first she was after Toris. She probably just wants to find a person she likes closer to her and get excited over them. In reverse, it seems like her feelings are stronger of wanting to be raised up and be able to act like a Queen. For better or for worse she’s a high school girl. That’s why, no matter what you’re told you shouldn’t take too much of it to mind.”

.....

Just before the evening we arrived at Greed Company in Rombertia. Since I the owner showed my face both the Ryogu family and the Yotlen family came out to welcome us. It seems that the Ryogu family was just coming from the workshop. It was good timing.

“A dark elf huh? How unusual.”

Dianne looked at Miduchi with great interest while saying. Come to think of it Dianne is already 25 as well. She might miss her marriageable age like this.

“Dianne, do you still not intend to get married yet? If you don’t take a husband what’s going to happen to the Ryogu family?”

This isn’t sexual harassment. It’s a statements that’s only obvious fro a member of the lord’s family in Bakuddo. When I said that, I noticed not just Dianne herself but Rozural and Wendy were making vague faces.

“Hn? What is it?”

“No, Al-sama. That is, it’s very difficult for me to say but soon Ruku is coming.”

If you mention Ruku then, Rukkido.Faren huh? He’s the son of Jaddo who died in action in the past and the little brother of Whitney. If I remember right he was one year younger than Dianne. Just before I left the village he was in charge of the rubber.

“Eh? I see. So you’re going to marry Ruku. Congratulations then, isn’t that great.”

“Thank you very much. Once a child is born Dianne we intend to hand over the head of the Ryogu family to Dianne.”

Rozural said that while making a broad smile on his face. He~ So there’s going to be a female head in the Ryogu family. Well she is in a central role in regards to rubber production in Bakuddo so I’m sure it’s difficult to think that Dianne’s husband would take over at this point. Dianne’s face turned red while she seemed quite happy as well.

“Then, you’re going to do the wedding over here? Leave it to me. I’ll make it extravagant.”

I’ll make sure to plunder some celebratory gifts from the first and second knight groups. Ah, that’s right, if we’re going to do it then we should match it up with sister’s days off.

“Make sure you tell my sister about it. Also, that’s right, make a wedding outfit with this. It’s a celebration gift from me.”

I said that and gave Dianne a gold coin. I smile at them while they seem quite humble and,

“Don’t worry about it. If I don’t do a proper job then I might get killed by brother and father right? In the first place, isn’t it Dianne and Ruku’s day of central stage? Let’s make it flashy.”

and I said a joke to cover it up. I still haven’t forgotten. Dianne. You were the one who taught me that I can’t do everything myself. You’re my teacher as well. Let me at least do something like this. I’m begging you.

“After that is, our original business. I want to request some boots for her. Can you prepare them by tomorrow?”

I pointed at Miduchi who was behind me looking around curiously inside of the store while saying to Dianne.

“Ah, it’s alright. We just got our stock replenished last month by Farne-sama so if I adjust the size of one that’s close to her I can prepare one right away.”

“I see, then I’m counting on you right away. Rozural, Wendy, show me the recent sales records..”

After I said that we went up to the 2nd floor and they took out the account book. It sounds good to say it’s in order to properly manage things but putting it more simply it’s to regulate so we don’t sell too much. Greed Company is selling armor to the knight group and the unit price is extremely high so it’s certainly true armor is our main product but we’ve only just started business other than that this summer finally. We have sandals, boots, cushions the usual goods and then a sample of the water bed placed around the store. Soon after we opened the store we haven’t had any problems with places to sell. Whether it be the headquarters of companies of other nobles and of course we’re selling to the end users as well.

Recently it seems that members of the third and fourth knight groups occasionally show their faces in the store as well. Since I’ve given strict orders to protect the quantity of sales every four months we sell 10 suits to the first knight group and 1 suit to the second knight group for a total of 11 suits so our sales are stable. Recently I’ve been thinking we could double this in the near future. I think it would be plenty to double it in about five years. According to older brother it seems that father and mother agree as well so that should be fine.

Other than armor we sell around 300 pairs of sandals, 200 boots soles for shoes, 50 pairs of boots, 30 cushions, and some suckling bottles in a quarter, and then we also sell close to 20,000 condoms to brothels. We can earn plenty of profit with just this and we don't have to worry about getting into a dispute with Webdos Company that we originally used as an proxy store as well. It's also an important that we're still selling some of the larger things like water beds, rubber cloth, floating devices, and rubber boats through Webdos Company as well.

After all we don't have a genuine transportation system like Webdos Company. The only things we're not passing through Webdos Company is the armor and condoms. There's plans to make even more important stuff later as well but there's no need to make these things in Bakuddo and it would be best to just make these in my territory later and I have no intention of easily selling them to other as well.

"The sales of sandals is quite high. I wonder if it would be good to raise the price...Let's change the sale price of sandals from 40,000 to 45,000. Since the sale of the shoes aren't great let's make them 99,8000 instead of 110,000. Rozural, did you manage to get the promise to buy soba seeds? I see. It's fine even if you add another 10% on to the price so buy them. Make sure you have at least 100 kg by the next time older brother and the others come. When you hand them to older brother make sure you tell him I want him to scatter them around an appropriate vacant lot.

If possible it's best in a place that's as far away from the current farms as possible. The flowers smell quite a bit after all, and they aren't particularly good on top of being difficult to eat unless you turn them into a powder but they're strong so if you just leave them alone for 20 years or so even without maintenance they should grow all on their own. They should be of use if there's ever a drought. Next up try to get your hands on some seeds of sorghum. Scatter these around near the side of the river. I haven't heard much about them but if you can find them then it's a bonus. If you can get your hands on them then don't hold back in using money. It's fine no matter how much they cost. The only companies that might be dealing in them are Type-1 companies. In order to avoid being sold some fakes make sure you definitely meet with someone higher up. If you can't get an appointment then ask sister or someone from the first knight group."

The measurements of Miduchi's foot size should be done pretty soon. When I went downstairs it was just as a customer entered the store. Anna is carrying some tea out to the reception table in the center of the store for serving customers. I guess they must have just entered the store. The customer is a male gnome who seems wealthy. I wonder if he's a noble? Since there's only Wendy, Yotlen, and Dianne in the store right now and Dianne is taking Miduchi's measurements in the corner so it's all women. Since the only male staff Rozural came up to the second floor with me.

After seeing the restless face of the male customer who's expression suddenly got cheerful after seeing Rozural. Ah, this guy...

"Rozural, you go take care of it."

"Yes."

Rozural probably already gets it as well. He was just about to proceed over but Anna brought out some tea first.

"Welcome to our store, dear customer."

The 10 year old Anna smiled and slid the tea in front of the customer. She immediately brought the plate back to her chest and withdrew before Yotlen sat down across from the customer. I put my hand on the shoulder of Rozural who was about to step out and decided to watch over. The customers face was dyed in despair.

"Dear customer, what are you looking for today?"

Yotlen smiled humbly while talking to the customer.

"Ah, that is..uh, no..Fro..from my friend, I, I heard the reputation was good so."

Normally when the Ryogu family isn't in the store, she should be taking care of things herself. I wanted to see how she deals with customers who've come to buy condoms.

"It seems that it's your first time buying here. Thank you very much. It's alright. There's nothing to be embarrassed about. Just in case please me confirm it but do you yourself intend to use it?"

"Eh? Ah, yes.."

"We sell them in packs of 10. The price is 15,000 Z per pack. How many are you in need of?"

"U, ah, o, on, no, two."

While he still had 1 finger held up it seems he desires two packs.

"Then, please wait just a moment. Hanna, bring two of number 25."

Yotlen turned around for a moment and then returned her gaze to the customer before smiling.

"Yeth"

Hanna replied with a lisp.

"Now, please have some bean tea."

"Uh, ah..Yeah."

After sipping the warm bean tea it seems the customer calmed down a bit.

"Are you newly married?"

"N, yeah, last month."

"I see, that's great. Our companies "Saya" have an extremely good reputation in the capital and we even sell them to the royal family. The quality is guaranteed."

"Yeah, it seems that's the case. I've heard that. My wife doesn't like the pi.. pig's bowels so.."

"Is that so? It's a honor that we can be of use then."

The 8 year old Hannah brought along a small wooden box.

"Hea~"

She bit her tongue.

Hannah turned red from embarrassment as her ears stood on end and tail lowered down then she lowered the wooden box on the table and quickly retreated to the back.

“In the worst case if the size doesn’t match up please say something. We’ll exchange them..Well then that’s 30,000 Z, certainly. Do you know the method to use them?”

After receiving the three silver coins from the customer Yotlen slid the wooden box in front of the customer.

“Umu, if it’s the pig’s bowels then I’ve used them before after all..”

The customer responded while reaching out for the wooden box.

“Is that so. Then, it’s something similar. Please be careful not to let any air get inside of them. Once you’ve used them once make sure you don’t re-use them and throw them away, after that please use a new one. In order to store them put the exterior of the pack inside of that wooden box with some ice water making sure no water gets inside.”

“Yeah, got it. Thanks.”

The man said that before gulping down the tea and then preciously carried the small wooden box out of the store.

Hmn, Yotlen sure has some backbone put into her treatment of the customers. By the way, what’s number 25?

“Yeah, since that customer was a gnome. I thought that SS size was good.”

Right now we’re producing five types of sizes, SS, S, M, L, and XL but I guess just saying them like that can be embarrassing. Though, how did she see through that he was newly married?

“Eh? I didn’t know. However, customers of that age range often try to cover things right?”

Is that so~

But, well, I guess that’s a relief. The timing she brought out the tea for the customer was good as well and with that I’m sure that customer was able to release the tension in their shoulders as well. Come to think of it we're selling 20,000 of them, 2,000 packs every quarter? I thought that the majority of them were being sold to brothels like "Emerald Duke Club Reception Hall" but if the account book just now is correct "Emerald Duke Club Reception Hall" only makes up about 30% of the numbers. Even if you include the other brothels it still only totals up to around 20%. There were 400 sets that we're selling at a price 2,000 Z higher than the ones we sell to the stores. This cat-people widow raised an extra 800,000 Z in profits. I'll have to take another look at her wages during the end of the year assessment.

I handed Rozural one silver coin and five large copper coins and, said that and without waiting for a reply grabbed one from the shelf and put it into my pocket.

"Since I don't know the number give me M."

Seeing that Rozural said in surprise,

"A,Al-sama. Could it be.."

and said that before looking between Miduchi and I.

"N, well yeah. I'll properly introduce you later. Since she's from the countryside her word usage has some strange places but just be lenient in that regard."

"Wa, yes, that is of course...However, I could have sworn..No, it's nothing at all."

"N, it's fine. I don't particularly think anything at all. I'm the second son after all. Even children..though I would be happy if I can have them..I think it's still far too soon after all. We'll get there when we get there. I'll somehow manage."

I dulled the conversation with words that can be taken either way, tomorrow afternoon, I said we'll have lunch together when we come to pick up Miduchi's boots and we left the store.

.....

Year 7444, Month 8, Day 30

"...i~wa~o~to~na~rite~ ko~ ke~ no~ mu~ u~ su~ u~ma~ ade~

Miduchi and I the two of us are singing the Japanese national anthem while holding on to the teleport crystal rod right after we teleported from the 2nd floor to the 3rd floor. Somehow it has an extremely surreal feeling to it. It's still 10 pm after all and a bit too early in terms of time. If it's no good unless it's a teleport crystal that's in the center then we'll have to start aiming for the teleport room on the 3rd floor from now, and in that case we might end up having to sing under the eyes of the public so we're testing it here.

Normally there's no way you could teleport with this sort of method. The incantation floating in the crystal rod to return to the 2nd floor is "midotto".

However, we were properly able to teleport. The thing that differed from up until now was that even after we teleported there's no teleport crystal in front of us. I see, even if you somehow managed to make it to this area with that method, if you can't clear past the {Snake Generator} into the fairy area then you'll just end up drying up and dying.

Miduchi and I, the two of us wait close to the entrance of the fairy village for the date to change.

"Ryogu-san and the others were quite good people weren't they."

Miduchi said looking into the air while sitting on a rock lined up on my left side.

"Yeah, their loyalty towards the Greed family is high. Their personalities are good as well."

"They lowered their heads to me, saying to take good care of you."

"Is that so.. That's getting quite ahead of things."

Miduchi looked in my direction while tilting her head and smiled while saying.

"Oh? you won't deny it."

"Did you want me to?"

"Not really...that's not..fufu."

Ah, come to think of it she has black hair as well. I wonder if it would be good to have her dye it as well?

“Let’s eat lunch while we can now.”

I took some sandwiches out my bag while saying.

“You tried to cover it up.”

“Don’t think you can eat some of the dried fish. I’m giving them all of them after all.”

“You covered it up.”

“Eat while you still can, here.”

“You covered it up~!”

I shoved a sandwich into Miduchi’s mouth and leaned back against the wall.

Chapter 154: Teacher, Mila Milais

Year 7444, Month 9, Day 1

After confirming the date had changed, Miduchi and I, the two of us stepped foot into the fairy village. While Miduchi was surprised I brought her along as we crossed over to the island in the pond.

“Karl! I brought along some fish!”

After calling out a response came from above the tree.

“Just as I wondering who it was, so it was you Al? Wait just a moment. I’ll head over now.”

After flying out of a hole in the tree Karl quickly flew into a different hole near the base and then came out soon after before calling out to his allies with a high voice “Pirurururu”. Several fairies flew over to Karl’s side before dragging the stove magic tool out of the hole in the tree. What, if you would have just said something I’d have pulled it out for you right away.

The stove magic tool which a number of fairies were dragging out was properly cleaned and it didn’t even have the oil from last remaining. I took a magic stone out of the bag on my hip and tried setting in the magic tool. A flame came out with no problem. I take out the grill that was in the same hole and then took then seeing me take the dried fish from my bag all of the fairies let out a cheer.

“By the way, I see you’re not alone today...Dark elf huh? So you’re Midu~ritto.Chizumagurol-san. Welcome, I’m Karl.Milais.”

Miduchi’s eyes went a bit wide having her name said without status open used but she remembered right away that I told her about the special skill Fairy Sight, so without panicking she was able to greet him normally.

“Ah, that’s right. I’ll call out Mila. She’s awake today.”

Come to think of it, I’ve heard that name before. If I’m certain she was Karl’s older sister. I decided to wait while grilling the dried meineiji. However, in a matter of just 30 seconds Karl returned with a female fairy with long hair. If I see her from close by she certainly seems to resemble Karl somehow. Though it's just a feeling and I can't really tell. They're small after all.

"Now, Al. I'll introduce you. This is Mila."

Karl pushed the woman he brought along out while introducing her. She has the same honey blonde hair as Karl.

"I've heard that you're always bringing along fish. I heard from Karl. I'm Mila. Milais. I'm the head of this place. Also, since you've already come here more than twice I don't mind teaching you the method to teleport here from the 3rd floor. I'll teach you later."

Ue, come to think of it I did say something like that. I've already done it. Since Mila started from greetings I'll say it after I give my name as well.

"Ah, that is, as a matter of fact today we teleported from the 3rd floor. I heard the method from Lilus so I already know it."

After hearing my remarks Mila looked to the side at Miduchi and,

"For you to call Lilus-sama without honorifics.. I won't say anything to you, but do you approve of that?"

and she confirmed not with me but Miduchi. Come to think of it she was a {Demi-God}.

"There's a reason for it and her majesty has approved of him as well. There's no problem."

"Ho~ n!? For a {Demi-God} to have recognized you them self! Doesn't that make you quite the person! Let's see..Ho? N, you have two Unique Abilities I see..But I don't think it's to the point that Lilus would recognize over..Well it's fine though. Since you brought plenty of fish today as well. It doesn't particularly matter."

and said with a complacent smile on her face.

Eh? When I came at the start of May I thought I brought enough that you all couldn't even finish though.

"Since the fish that Al brings are delicious. Mila has still only eaten just a bit of them.”

I see, then eat lots.

“Ah, I brought along a lot today as well. Feel free to eat. And, you know.”

“I already know. It’s about magic right? It’s fine since I’ve already talked to Mila about it. I think she knows more than me.”

Oh~ even though he’s just a Karl the talk is quick today. It’s a good trend.

“I’ve heard from Karl. If you’re fine with just the level I know then it’s fine to teach you.”

I’m saved that Mila is understanding as well.

“Yeah, thanks. Karl would you to Miduchi..Miduchi is referring to her but would you please teach her? I’ve already talked to her about the basics so please teach her something that you haven’t taught me. Also, Mila-san. I would like if Mila-san would teach me.”

Rather than being taught the same things at once it’s more efficient to have us taught separately and then teach each other later after all. Making it even more ideal, Miduchi can use all elemental magics and has quite a bit of mana as well.

She should be the best choice from my party.

.....

We spent almost an entire day and had them teach us quite a bit of magic. We took several short breaks along the way but each time we discussed it so that the details Mila and Karl teach us don’t overlap. When I was taught the spell {Regenerate} by Mila, I had a bit of hopes that I could fix the cuts on Miduchi’s face. Since Miduchi’s magic special skill levels are low she can’t learn any spells that are too advanced but even then there’s a lot of spells that I don’t know so it’s extremely useful.

This time Miduchi focused on learning spells that require a comparatively low level of magic but are still useful like, {Find.Trap}, {Detect.Snare}, {Perceive.Pitfall}, {Detect.Charm}, {Detect.Lie}, {Detect Life}, {Dispel.Illusion}, and {Dispel.Magic}.

I focused around learning magics that require a comparatively high level of magic skill levels like {Recovery}, Metal Glassification {Glass Steel}, {Suggestion}, {Charm.Person}, {Charm.Plants}, Disgust {Repulsion}, {Mass.Invisibility}, and Stupefaction {Fever.Mind}.

I stopped Miduchi several times along the way before she ran out of mana but I went without breaks. Incidentally just in case I tried confirming if there was a spell like {Identification}, but she hadn't heard of it. I somehow had predicted it but after all it seems impossible to reproduce Unique Abilities with spells, even if it's possible there's no mistake it's considerably difficult. That's great.

We were also saved by the fact that Karl gets right to the point when Mila is around. Honestly speaking, if Karl was on his usual rhythm I think the number of spells Miduchi learned to use wouldn't even have been half of what she did. As a matter of fact I had prepared myself for that. Since it was a pleasant miscalculation that I was able to talk normally with Mila as well my prejudice of the fairy race has just changed to prejudice of Karl him self.

"Fu~ I'm tired for doing things seriously for the first time in a while.."

Mila grumbled a bit while sighting but I really feel like lowering my head to her. I didn't think that she would really use this many different spell in front of me. After all the only thanks I brought was dried fish. Something like the good luck of being taught spells just for bringing along dried fish, it almost never happens. Not to mention I'm having her use the spells on me so it's big that I can actually feel the effects of them.

"Mila-san. Thank you very much. I'm grateful from the bottom of my heart."

I lowered my head while feeling it was only natural and said my thanks.

"Hn? It doesn't particularly matter. Since I haven't seen a person's face other than the fairy race these past 100 years or so. Furthermore if that's a big-shot that can call a {Demi-God}-sama without honorifics then there's no way I can't at least listen to their request for a day or so. In the first place, the one that came previously..What did they say it was again..compared to that one human male, you have almost nothing at all and seemed like you'd have quite a bit of trouble. Putting it frankly it's close to pity."

I was pitied...Though that's fine.

“In the first place unless it’s someone with a firm sense of objective then this isn’t a place that is so easy to come. It’s not as if there’s no possibility at all of wandering in here jsut by chance but since it’s something like once in countless decades it’s almost fine to say it’s impossible. Even if it was someone who just wandered in then they’ll probably try to harm us as well. The moment they try to execute it we all swarm and kill them though. As long as they’re willing to bring some gifts along from the second time on then it’s fine to do a bit of something.”

Thank god I only thought it..I was about to die there.

“Ooooo~!! I see now!!’

Miduchi let out a deeply impressed and surprised voice as if she understood.
What is it, really~

A, aaaaa! This bastard! What in the world is she doing!!

“Ahhahaha!! That’s funny! Being able to use it with a method like, isn’t Miduchi a genius!? I don’t think I’ve been this surprised in countless decades, no, in over 100 years!”

Her...newly..purchased...boots. The right foot of it has been reduced down to just the heel of it that’s being worn!

Don’t joke around with me now!!

That is you know..those boots are, something that Dianne put her greatest efforts into making!

If you treat them preciously then they’ll last a number of years.

Something like that you, did you cut them!?

Furthermore you even crushed them under the heel!

“Hey now..you..”

I’m sure that right now a vein is sticking on my temple and the capillaries in my eyes have burst.

Miduchi looks up at my with full face smile while still standing with her heel on the shortened boots and then kicks up her right leg.

“Dear, watch! “What~ is the weather~ tomorrow!!”

Ah~?!? Are you looking down on me!?

What used to be a boot flew from Miduchi's legs and landed with a po~n, before falling over on the ground.

Ah?

The moment she sent the boot flying Miduchi's right leg gave off a bit of light.

"Yes, here, tomorrow the weather~ forecast for the regional fairy village is.. rain~"

Seeing that Karl held his stomach and started rolling around in laughter. I reached the peak of my anger and was about to bring my hand to my bayonet but just kept watching. Magic..is it? Rather~ rain, you. Eh? It rains? Here.

"So that just now was the spell {Predict.Weather}..She used that with the incantation just now."

Mila explained it for me. After all that was a spell? Moreover {Predict.Weather} you say? I reflexively looked up at the ceiling. There's a shining stone ceiling about 100m above. Is the rain that's going to fall from there not well water?

"Hey..you.."

"No~ since it wasn't going well I tried investigating the incantation and~ laughed..What are you angry over?"

"Those boots..are huh?"

If I look closely they look similar but they're different. Ah, those are the cheap ones that she was originally wearing..I'm relieved.

"Ah, these? Karl taught me it. It seems it's best to use something as a catalyst when using the spell {Predict.Weather}. It seems normally you use something like a bonfire or a grass boat floating on water but it was too difficult for me to get the image of predicting the weather based on the way the grass boat sinks so I ended up cutting my previous boots. It's not like I have any wooden clogs after all."

"What? What are you saying? What language is that?"

Hohou~ so that's how it was. This old man was done in good by that one. Ah, let's just ignore the winged insect. But, why did she bring along her old boots?

"No, umm. Since we went to the trouble of making some new boots, I thought of debuting them when we're all entering the dungeon together.."

So the ones she didn't wear this time were the new ones. Sorry for misunderstanding.

After that, I remembered I had one thing I wanted to try asking Mila about.

"Mila-san. Do you know any spells that can be used to process dirt or rocks and take out the metals?"

"Hn? There's one called {Transmute.Rock.To.Mud} but can't you use the lower rank magic of that? Don't you know {Quagmire}?"

"I know that one. However, {Quagmire} is a magic that can only change a portion of the ground to mud?"

It was a bit strange.

"Umu, since {Quagmire} is a spell that was made by restricting the functionality and simplifying {Transmute.Rock.To.Mad} after all. If it's {Transmute.Rock.To.Mud} then there's no restriction that you can only turn the ground into mud. You can change rocks and ores into mud as well. It's fine if you just change rock or dirt with a lot of metal minerals included in it to mud. Since it also includes water created with water magic inside of it, if you use the void magic selection to sort the water out at the same time you can easily crystallize single metals and take them out. If you use transformation at the same time then you can freely take it out the shape you want as well."

That's it!

"Oh~ is that so. Then would you please teach me that spell {Transmute.Rock.To.Mad}!"

I asked with the momentum of doing a dogeza. If you say it's necessary it's even fine if I give you one arm or leg. I've already learned {Regenerate} after all.

"I don't mind teaching it to you but.."

"Ha"

“It’s already impossible today. My mana won’t last. We’ll do it next time.”

“..I understand. Definitely next time...I’ll bring along a lot of even better fish.”

It was so disappointing that I couldn’t help it. There’s no way I can force her after all.

Incidentally the spell {Transmute.Rock.To.Mud} supposedly requires all of the magic special skills at least at level 8 other than wind magic. It also seems to eat a considerable amount of mana and even Mila who has about the same amount of MP as Miduchi can only use it twice. In that case, I guess that means it uses around 150 MP.

Mila looked at me like that with a lonely face.

“Everyone says that but what number is AI that’s actually made it here multiple times...There’s only been a single handful of them up until now. I’ll wait without holding my hopes up.”

“It’s fine for you to hold your hopes high. I’ll definitely come again.”

I grinned with a smile while saying.

“Hmph, do as you please..”

I felt like Mila smiled back behind her long hair.

I left behind the remaining fish and magic stones and then Miduchi and returned to the town of Baldukk in the middle of the night. We vacated out of our temporary inn and returned to “Boil Manor”. After one more day of slow rest, we’re entering the dungeon again. Just watch, I’ll show you we can clear the 6th floor this month.

Authors Note: (Translator: some notes on the difference between {Charm.Person} and Kuro’s {Charm}, the spell {Detect.Charm} can’t detect Kuro’s {Charm} only the spell {Charm.Person} or similar spells. Also Kuro’s {Charm} makes them listen to whatever he says but {Charm.Person} only gives the target a good impression like turning them in the level of good friends. They’ll still reject things if you say something unreasonable, not to mention the duration is super short.)

Chapter 155: Party-ization

Year 7444, Month 9, Day 2

Morning, after going running I took breakfast with everyone and started drinking some tea when a couple I've seen before and another couple I haven't seen a total of four people came asking for me. Since the places we eat breakfast at is limited to 4–5 places if someone were to seriously look for us it's easy to find us.

The couple I haven't seen before was just a matter of not having seen them but I knew their name and face.

The man is named Koritto.Rindobel, a 34 year old Laios and the woman is Meilia.Rindobel, she's a Laios of the same age and they're a married couple. The other pair is a Dog-people, Zemyunel and the female elf who was with him and didn't get lost Hisurura.Harurein. It seems that the Rindobel couple is the other pair of leaders from Zemyunel ins {Sun Ray}. Most likely they've come to offer thanks for saving Ginger and Binsu. They politely lowered their heads to me.

"Greed-san, thank you for saving our party members from a crisis this time. Furthermore, it seems to have been for extremely low reward..that is, we really were saved."

Meiria the wife of the Rindobel couple said. Does that mean the wife is the true leader?

It doesn't particularly matter though.

"No, please don't mind it. We only did what was obvious."

The Rindobel couple opened their eyes in surprise hearing my words but quickly erased their expressions and lowered their heads again.

"I see now, you're quite the splendid person."

"Yeah, it's just as we had heard."

Zemyunel proceeds forward and lowered his head as well.

“And then, it’s fine if it’s just a bit but could we borrow some of your time?”

“Yeah, that’s fine. What is it? Please take a seat.”

Now then, I wonder what it is about. The matter of the shower or the matter of cooperating. Or both. I exchange glances with the annoyouple, Angela, Giberuti, and Miduchi who were drinking tea at the same six person table as me had them move to the corner and then offered them a seat. The members of {Sun Ray} saluted the members who offered up their seat and then sat down. While I’m sitting on a corner edge the Rindobel couple sat in front of me but next to them is Zemyunel and then one seat on my side across from Zemyunel is Harurein.

“Since we finally left the dungeon yesterday night I’m sorry for being so late on the greetings.”

The husband of the Rindobel couple said that while lowering his head. Miduchi is talking to the waiter about something in the corner. Since Miduchi looked at me I lightly nodded. Miduchi is writing something on the table with her finger.

“No, it’s already something that’s past us, really please don’t worry over it..”

I shake both of my hands in front of me. I don’t know about you all but to us it’s already something in the past. Honestly speaking, I don’t think anything of it more than a bit of materials to let us have the advantage.

“And also, we were only able to rescue two people, one other we were too late for and had already passed away, the remaining one I wonder is still in the dungeon?”

I continued as if it was quite unfortunate.

“Putting aside Bogu who still hasn’t returned, we feel nothing but gratitude for even going to the trouble of carrying Yuriel’s remains out.”

Zemyunel said that lowering his head. That’s why I said, it’s already over. It’s already more than enough being thanked once.

“Ha..”

I shrugged my shoulders and lightly lowered my head.

“And then, that is..We also heard that you’re allowing us to use the shower facilities in the teleport room on the 5th floor as well. It’s a great help.”

Koritto said. And right after he faced his wife and nodded.

“Of course, we also intend to bring in someone to observe the facilities and make sure there’s no damage to them. The reason we came today other than to say our thanks was to report and receive permission for that.”

Meiria said that and lowered her head to me. Seeing that the other members of {Sun Ray} also lowered their heads. It was then that the same bean tea I’m drinking was carried out and placed in front of them.

I guess this is what Miduchi just ordered from the waiter.

“Well, please have some tea.”

After saying that I finally sipped some of the bean tea in front of me. The members of {Sun Ray} said “Thank you very much.” and started drinking some too.

“..Of course your welcome. Since it’s difficult to continue to maintain it with just us after all. Obviously please feel free to use it as you need.”

Yeah, it’s great that saving them for cheap change didn’t end up becoming a waste. Hearing my response not only the members of {Sun Ray} but the members of {Slaughterers} seemed relieved as well. Certainly there was also the possibility of a breakdown with {Sun Ray} as well.

“Meiria, we’re saved that Greed-san is a good person right.”

“Yeah, really.. Greed-san even though you’re young you’re quite splendid.”

“That’s why I said it right? He’s fine.”

Harurein cut into the conversation of the Laios couple saying that. Miduchi is looking directly over here.

“That really seems to be the case.”

“Yeah. It’s just as Zemyunel and the others said.”

After that we roughly exchanged information on our schedules for exploring the dungeon and they left the store.

I took one glance at the members of {Slaughterers} and then looked at Miduchi.

Miduchi just lightly nodded. I see.

“Shall we change locations? Come to my room.”

I said that and left the store.

On the way back Miduchi secretly whispered in my ear.

“They were only lying about a small portion. The time when they called you a “good person” or said you were “splendid”.”

Hmph, as expected. I bet they just think I’m softhearted idiot brat or something. Though if it’s that then there’s no problem.

.....

When we entered our rooms in “Boil Manor” I told Zulu, Angela, and Giberuti, “We’re going to have an important conversation about magic. Keep an eye out and don’t let anyone near the room.” and only us reincarnated people and Zenom entered the room.

“Explain to everyone about your Unique Ability. It might be good to test it out as well.”

I said to Miduchi and pushed her on.

“My Unique Ability is called {Party-ization}. When I use this, a number equal to the level of my Unique Ability can be organized into a unit which makes it easy to get into contact with each other through me. Though the contact itself is one-way from my side but the members of the unit are capable of telling the direction and distance of other members, in other words it’s possible to comprehend each other’s locations. It’s valid as long as you’re on the same floor in the dungeon. Since my {Party-ization} level is 6 right now, excluding me up to 7 people, including me a total of 8 people can be included in the unit.”

Hearing that everyone showed expressions of admiration.

“Koloil-san, please put out your hand.”

Miduchi said that and Bel stretched out her hand to Miduchi.

“There’s only one condition on this Unique Ability. I can only use it on people who recognize me as a friend. Please open your heart to me and focus on me.”

...

As a matter of fact I was worried.

If no one here had opened their hearts to Miduchi then the only one {Party-ization} could be used on is me. In that case it would be meaningless unless we split up the party in two groups.

I thought it would be best to wait for a bit for her to blend into the group and then it wouldn't be too late to make a decision on revealing it but Miduchi refused that.

“..Thank goodness. Thank you very much.”

Miduchi smiled as she was happy.

“..Ah..Yeah. I can tell. Certainly. This is, amazing!”

I put my hand to my chest and breathed a sigh of relief.

“M..Me, please add me next.”

Toris volunteered. Just the same way Miduchi touched Toris's hand.

“..Oh..So this is how it feels. Excuse me for a moment.”

Toris left the room. I'm sure he wants to test it out.

“Ah, Yeah. Toris is probably around the stairs right now? Ah, he's going down..”

If you think about the size of the building it seems surprising that you can tell right away.

“Me too! I want to test it as well.”

Gwine stood up. Miduchi smiled and took Gwine's hand.

“..Ah, aa~ thi..this is convenient. How far of a distance can you tell?”

“I don't know precisely but I think it's roughly 50 Km or so. The direction you can roughly estimate from an even further distance though.”

“Fumu, if that's true then even if we separated on the 6th floor we might be able to manage..Here, try it on me as well.”

Miduchi smiled seeing Zenom stretch his hand out and after taking his hand they exchanged glances.

“..Ho~ that Toris, he’s already all the way over there..”

Zenom made a wide smile while looking at Bel, Gwine, and Ralpa.

“Ralpa-san as well, here, please do.”

Ralpa approached Miduchi. Since Ralpa is an idiot and she’s fundamentally easy towards allies there shouldn’t be a problem. However you know~ For everyone to trust Miduchi this much already, isn’t that a problem?

“Yeah..is this fine?”

“Yeah.”

She took the hand Ralpa stretched out and they’re looking at each other.

...

.....

Hey.

Hey, it can’t be.

It can’t be, no, maybe that’s fine?

“..Sorry. Somehow it seems like it’s no good.”

“No way..please open up your heart to me. Please focus your awareness on me!”

Miduchi’s eyebrows raised up a bit as she was troubled. That’s why I said it. Though it was a much better result than I thought but in reverse for it to only be Ralpa alone...Though I did say if she was going to do it she should start with Bel or Ralpa.

“Just stop already.”

“But..”

Miduchi didn’t want to give up it seems.

“Stop.”

She finally let go of her hand. Ralpa said "Sorry." and returned to her seat. Bel, Gwine, and Zenom are looking at Ralpa. In reverse Ralpa is giving off a mood like she can't endure it.

"Ralpa, don't worry about it. There's no way it's that easy to become friends from the start. Frankly putting it I was against it. Though if you were to ask for the opposite reason. I thought that no one would have accepted Miduchi..These damn softies."

Zenom, Bel, and Gwine shrugged their shoulders.

"Softhearted, that's wrong. It's because she's an acquaintance of Al-san, and we're going to be together from now on.."

Even then Gwine made some complaints while looking displeased.

"Certainly it might be as Al said, we might have taken it a bit too easy."

Zenom said a bit awkwardly but I'm sure he's being careful for Ralpa.

"Miduchi, call Toris back. In a way everyone can tell."

After being told by me Miduchi hanged her head down disheartened and replied with a "Yes." Zenom, Bel, and Gwine flinched. Come to think of it, I'm, not in the party. It was a waste of MP while were in the fairy village so I had her stop it. Well, it's fine though.

"Ho!"

"Ah!"

"This is!"

Only Ralpa is looking uncomfortable. As a matter of fact if it went well on everyone I had intended to explain it as magic and have her test it on the slaves as well but it seems it would be best not to try it.

"I'll say one thing. Ralpa you didn't do anything wrong. Rather, I feel relieved there's at least one composed person in the group. Honestly, I even thought it would be a bit of a problem if Ralpa easily was able to enter the unit"

I take a breath and then continue.

"Ralpa, calmly seeing through things is a virtue. You've grown. I'm relieved I was able to confirm there's one decent person."

It's something to welcome that Ralpa was unexpectedly composed. I had intended to be looking at Ralpa with eyes filled with kindness but,

"Yeah.."

and she just said that without looking over here. This girl. I almost never do something like praising you.

"There's no way Miduchi could trust everyone from the start either right? Don't get depressed over it."

"Yes.."

Really these two, do you really like looking at your knees that much? Look over here.

Zenom, Toris, Bel, Gwine, and me. At the very least including Miduchi a unit organization of six people is possible. There's nothing to be so depressed over. In the first place I know Ralpa well. Though she does have some rash parts as well but fundamentally she's not that stupid.

"Now then, around where is Toris right now?"

"It's just as he's entering the inn."

"That's right."

"Yeah."

"I see, then once Toris returned the continuation..and, Miduchi can you tell Toris to bring some beans for bean tea?"

We need to test how much can be conveyed as well. Today should be good for experimenting.

"Ah, yes."

Miduchi is still making a troubled expression as she looks at me.

"It's no good. I think I was probably only able to convey to him to bring something along."

So nouns are no good? It might be no good unless we thing up some sort of code based on the things that can be issued. Come to think of it, she's used {Party-ization} until it reached level 6.

If it's just this level then there's no way she wouldn't know it.

“Hn, if we can understand that much then it’s fine.”

Toris returned right away.

“No~ this is really convenient. I can roughly figure out everyone’s location. If it’s this then even if we get separated in the dungeon it might not become a big problem.”

Toris is saying it while excited but after calling Zulu and the others into the room and I had him quiet down and take a seat.

“With this I think you’ve roughly gotten an understanding of Miduchi’s spell. And with that. Thanks to teaming up with Miduchi this time, we’ve finally reached 10 people. I think you already know but we can’t easily increase our members anymore than this. However, as expected I don’t think we’ll run into anymore so easily but if we can hit it off with reincarnated people then if possible we’ll increase them and if there’s a combat slave who can skillfully use the shield then I’ll definitely buy them. It’s not practicing in advance but while we’re exploring the dungeon tomorrow I intend to split our party into two groups.”

When I declared that and while everyone was surprised for the first moment they all quieted down and started saying “isn’t that fine after we increase them?”

“That’s no good. Even if I say we’re splitting up it’ll be you all and then me alone. And, I intend to gather up for the 6th floor and explore it with everyone. Starting from now we need to get used to as much combat as possible without me. I’ll leave the command of everyone to Zenom. Toris you act as the assistant.”

I said it as coldly as I could but as expected Zulu and Angela were fiercely against it. Saying “There’s no way we can leave master alone.” Since I figured one of them would try to stick to me I guess one person is fine. Since Miduchi is here as well, as long as they don’t try to do anything too unreasonable they should be fine.

“It can’t be helped. Then Zulu and Angela you two alternate accompanying me. We’ll meet up with the other 8 people in the teleport room of each floor.

When everyone has gathered together we'll teleport to the next floor. Zenom, Toris, proceed carefully."

After that time passed by as we went over the fine details and decided on the code for {Party-ization}.

Even during dinner both Ralpha and Miduchi somehow didn't seem very energetic. They were sitting in seats away from each other as well. I'm sure there's nothing but time that can resolve this. If she explores the dungeon with Miduchi a number of times I'm sure Ralpha will start to trust her.

I optimistically thought that while chewing a pork skewer and drinking some beer.

Chapter 156: Daily Life in the Dungeon

Year 7444, Month 9, Day 3

I watch as my allies disappear from in front of my eyes while holding the teleport crystal rod in the entrance of the dungeon.

After confirming that Zulu and I teleported to the 1st floor. Oh? We're quite a bit of distance away.

I confirm the map and check the route before Zulu and I started forward.

"Zulu, let's arrive there before them. We're hurrying."

"Yes!"

I've passed through it so many times, I know the 1st floor like it's my own yard. Since the completion rate of our map is high as well, since it's a route I know there's no need to worry about traps either. It seems that they're moving a reasonable speed as well.

We crushed five monster rooms (by the stink bug) and arrived at the center teleport room just before 8 am. Since we entered around 5:30 am that means we cleared in about 2 hours. After waiting for about 30 minutes and Zenom and the others arrived.

"After resting for about 30 minutes let's head to the 2nd floor. Zulu, alternate with Angela."

While we were taking a break a party I don't know teleported to the 2nd floor.

We cleared through the 2nd floor without problem before 1 pm and ended up waiting in the teleport room of the 2nd floor. If I think carefully about it I've only entered the dungeon alone with Angela, Zulu, and Miduchi. On our next break, it might be good to tell Zulu and Angela the rough details about everyone's Unique Abilities while we're in the dungeon. I remembered from Unique Abilities but I wonder what ever happened to the expansion ability on Toris's Scale at level 9? I feel like Ralpha's will somehow be useful though.

On the 3rd floor I teamed up with Zulu again and rushed ahead. Since we were only taking the magic stones from the bosses of monster rooms we're quite fast. Just past 4 pm in the afternoon we arrived in the teleport room on the 3rd floor.

Today we'll camp here.

I managed to secure a place ahead of time. I tried asking Zenom and the others during dinner and it seems they didn't have very much trouble either. That's good.

Since Miduchi joined the group, I changed the rotation for keeping lookout. One person doesn't have to keep lookout each day and can sleep until morning the same as Giberuti. Since it was the first time I was the one who ended up resting. Though I've gotten used it, being in the dungeon still wears away at your nerves and along with that it exhausts your stamina as well so I fell asleep right away. Going off of the rotation Miduchi and Ralpa will end up keeping lookout together on the day after tomorrow.

It would be good if she can at least unravel Ralpa's caution(?) a bit but nothing will come of rushing it. It's fine even if it takes six months to a year. Rather if it takes that long then the other members who are getting the experience bonus effect from Unit Organization might catch up to how much extra experience Ralpa has.

.....

Year 7444, Month 9, Day 4

Without any particular problems we were able to arrive at the teleport room of the 5th floor. The thing I was worried about was in the case someone hits a room with an altar but in the first place they almost never appear (as far as we know there's only 9 rooms on the 5th floor) so it can't be helped getting too neurotic over it, is what I decided to think. Miduchi can't use her MP as efficiently as me but elemental magic level 5 isn't just for show. If it's a thickness of about 50 cm then she can freeze an area of about 8 meters in every direction. Putting aside the insanely strong special bosses of certain rooms, if it's just a normal room boss (though calling them normal is a strange way of putting it) or the opponents that come out in the halls then they're no challenge. It uses 10 MP every time she uses the ice but as long as she holds the handle of the magic sword she can recover it in 40 minutes.

She can even use it consecutively making use of her large amount of MP. I doubt she'll fall behind so easily. We were able to establish that even if we split our party we're still plenty able to line up with the top teams.

Incidentally, with the increased number of members in the Unit Organization I thought I would be able to see the bonus to ability values with Identify but I wasn't able to see them. Since it's a proficiency bonus after all they don't seem to be the type that increases the maximum value.

One night passes and it's the next morning. Today I'm last on the rotation for keeping lookout, from 4 am to 6 am. My partner is Toris. I was woken up by Bel and Zulu as I rub my eyes and then wash my face with some cold water, then Toris and I took turns taking a piss in the hall. The trick to creating a good urinal is to create about one bucket of dirt ahead of time and have it sink in a bit. Use it as a reference for something.

Toris and I, the two of us are sitting with our backs to the teleport crystal in the center of the room while talking to kill time.

"Please leave Ralpa to me. Or rather please leave it to Bel to manage things. Rather than the surroundings saying too much it's best to let the two themselves settle things on their own."

"Yeah, that's right."

I know that. And somehow Bel has taken up the central position managing the women's side of things. In some meanings even the men occasionally are overawed by the strange force or pressure she emits as well. If we had everyone state their true feelings we'd probably all say, "It's seriously bad if you anger Bernadette.Koloil." Of course, it's not a joke but I think they really think that just as it sounds.

The source of her power is the God-like archery skills and the spells supported by an abundance of mana but I think what's really feared is her personality. While she has those lovely rabbit ears and a beauty which doesn't fall behind elves making it understandable she was Miss Campus, those glamorous curves that are characteristic of Rabbit-people, and a body which is tense from the exercise. If you just look at her outer appearance it's plenty to be called close to perfect but sometimes the glances she gives to people outside of our allies are like ice. The words that feel like they don't have an ounce of mercy at those times leaves a strong rational impression.

Though it's not like she's really that cold, she's quite warm in her interactions with allies. Particularly her lover Toris she's all over. Though she does get distracted if he falls into danger as well. I've given Miduchi a simple explanation but since she hasn't gotten an actual feel for it yet she probably don't know Bel's true nature. On the contrary Ralpa knows really~ well. On the surface they might seem like nothing more than equal friends but I think deep below Bel has a firm hold at the base of Ralpa's tail.

Particularly since she didn't show those sorts of things on the surface much until we grouped up with Toris, but after they joined us I think Bel is the one who changed the most. I don't know if meeting him again was the chance, her disposition was originally like that and it just came to the surface, it's difficult to make a decision on but the "naivety" that I felt from her at the start the same as Ralpa disappeared.

Honestly speaking, even if it benefits my goal, for example if it was something like burning down an entire village, I think I would hesitate. I think I would devote all my consideration to trying to find a different method to arrive at the same result. However, I'm sure she would burn it down without batting an eyelid. If it was an outsider village. Ah, of course, I think she would at least give them a warning to evacuate.

"In the first place I had no intention of meddling in it. However, honestly speaking, I thought it would be pretty low in possibility that there would be difficult feelings between Ralpa and Miduchi. I thought the first one Miduchi would cause something with would be Bel. If they hit heads I thought some sparks would come off, but after something temporary they would get along right away."

"A dispute over leadership?"

Toris grinned while saying it. I'm sure he was thinking the same thing as me.

"Well yeah. But, I thought it would end up as anything conclusive. She may look like that but Miduchi's carrying a variety of problems. She was 30 before she reincarnated but originally she never had that outgoing or forward of a personality, since it seems like a large portion of her problems were swept away right now the feelings of release are probably stronger. And even if we mention a dispute over leadership, what the leadership is regarding, I thought those two would realize the direction is different right away and wouldn't be a problem even if they did dispute it for a bit."

"I see."

You see? does he really get it, this guy? Well I'm sure he understands it reasonably though.

"Toris, learn as much as you can from Zenom. Since it's for your own sake."

"..Yes...That's true."

While we were talking about things like this time passed by.
It should be about time for Giberuti to get up and start preparing breakfast.

.....

Year 7444, Month 9, Day 5

"Alright, let's go."

Leaving Giberuti and the camp site, the nine of us grabbed on to the teleportation crystal. In regards to the teleport traps on the 6th floor I don't know which of {Find.Trap}, {Detect.Snare}, or {Perceive.Pitfall} might be effective but if that's a type of trap then it should get caught in one of them.

Just right it's an area that we've come to before, moreover, it's a path that has a forked passage we haven't gone down yet.

Just before the teleport trap that we had confirmed previously I'll have Miduchi use the spell {Find.Trap}.

"Miduchi, there should be a teleport trap pretty soon, use {Find.Trap}."

"Yes."

""Eh?""

Surprise.

“I can’t see anything.”

““Eh?””

Disappointment.

“Then, try using {Detect.Snare} and {Perceive.Pitfall}.”

“Yes.”

““Eh?””

Surprise again.

“I think it’s the stones? on both sides of the passage ahead of here. I can see one pair of something like that. I don’t think they’re more than 100 meters away.”

““Eh?””

Admiration. Shut~up.

“Miduchi can use spells to discover traps. I intend to learn from her as well. However, since all of the spells require elemental magics at level 4 or 5 it seems, so it’s on hold for you all.”

Occasionally there’s passages that stretch out straight ahead 1 Km or so in the dungeon. Though it’s only when we use the spell it’s big that we can perceive the traps that our in sight. If we’re in an unknown area then we can quickly and safely explore through it while just remaining cautious of the monsters.

This day we were able to fill in a single new area on our map. It’s the same results as usual. Though it felt like we were able to shorten the time feeling-wise. If everyone’s magic levels go up and they’re able to use these magics I wonder if our speed will increase even more? No, if I just learn them then I feel like that should be plenty to increase our pace.

Partially as an experiment Miduchi tried pouring mana only into the spell to detect traps. Along the way when her mana recovered I had her use it as much as possible. Even then she was only able to use it a total of 16 times. I guess it uses quite a bit of MP. However, thanks to that we were able to figure out a variety of things. How do I put it, if you were to ask the traps with a complex structure often get caught in {Find.Trap} and the simple structured traps get caught in {Detect.Snare} and {Perceive.Pitfall}. Of course there are exceptions as well. Even though the pitfalls were a simple structure but for some reason they didn't get caught in either {Detect.Snare} or {Perceive.Pitfall}. Isn't it completely failing to live up to it's name?

Yesterday Zenom was removed from the rotation and able to sleep the entire night. Today is the day Toris sleeps all night. And, today is the first day Miduchi and Ralpa keep lookout together as well. It should be from midnight until 2 am. I'm the very first lookout. I keep lookout together with Angela from 10 pm until midnight. After everyone else took their showers I wait for Angela to come out of her shower while watching Giberuti clean up after dinner. Incidentally, it seems that Giberuti eloquently managed to receive the types of mushrooms Miduchi had brought along.

It somehow seems that Giberuti is still doing some kind of preparations other than cleaning up. He's putting lard into a pot and turning on the heat, creating a large amount of oil. He put a number of duck legs into it and after putting some powered black truffle in, he's stirring it up. I guess he's boiling it slowly over a low flame so it doesn't reach a high temperature? It's giving off a good scent. Ah, Ralpa is looking at the pot. Don't lose to your gluttony. Your time to sleep will run out.

"Master, what is Larry doing?"

"It's probably preparations for tomorrow. I think he's probably making confit."

"There's a strangely good scent for confit..Is it that mushroom!"

"Yeah, I saw him put some in just now."

I glanced to the side at Angela as she sat down next to me. Her red hair is still wet. Though her clothes seem a bit second-hand they're still neat clothes so she gives off a clean feel.

"It's a good scent right. Master chose a good person."

She closes her eyes and twitches her nose with an ecstatic expression while saying. Incidentally Giberuti is also spellbound with it. I think the tongues of my two mongrel's have grown too fat. However, these two mongrel's are too picky with their food. It's not particularly like they say selfish things like this is bad or they don't want it but their attitudes when eating things they think are delicious is far too different from normal so it's easy to tell. The only ones that picky with their food than Giberuti and Angela are Ralpa and I. Ah, though I guess Ralpa is just a glutton. Putting that aside, just because he's cooking something delicious she says, "you picked a good person." it's like she doesn't care at all about his personality. Though I'm sure it really doesn't matter.

Around the time for us to switch shifts Giberuti finally finished his preparations and laid down. Thanks for your hard work.

We woke up Miduchi and Ralpa and Angela and I jumped into our blankets. It's in bad taste to listen in so I'll go right to sleep. Get along together, you two.

.....

Year 7444, Month 9, Day 6

We had to repeat teleporting twice but we finally teleported to an area we've never been before. Before we teleported Miduchi touched me, Zenom, Toris, Bel, and Gwine to create a party. She went to touch Ralpa as well but Ralpa refused with an apologetic face. Miduchi was making a miserable face as well. I guess it was no good.

While we were exploring I casually tried checking Ralpa's state but I couldn't see anything unusual. It's painful that we can't have secret conversations while in the dungeon. Of course we can whisper a bit so the details aren't known without problem but you can't hide the fact that you're secretly talking itself. Putting aside playing around and pretending it's a joke, if Miduchi and I were to start having a secret conversation I'm sure everyone would become conscious of it. It's definitely no good to try and talk secretly with Miduchi inside of the dungeon.

Well, it's nothing to worry too much about. I'm sure the only thing that will solve it is time.

This day we were able to fill in a considerably long course on the map.

Along the way, while we were having lunch I remembered the confit that Giberuti was making preparations for last night. Come to think of it, that didn't come out this morning or in the lunch just now. Maybe since it's preserved food it won't come out for a while longer.

Tonight I'm together with Zulu from midnight until 2 am. The one excluded from the rotation is Bel.

.....

Year 7444, Month 9, Day 7

After being woken up for our turn on keeping lookout, Zulu and I sat down on the bench while listening to Ralph's snoring.

She's sleeping so comfortably. Since it pissed me off I tried poking her head. She went silent.

"Master, what would be the best way for me to refer to Chizumagurol-san?"

"Eh? Isn't it fine if you just call her however you please?"

"That is no good. If you're going to marry her in the future then it's strange to start referring to her as the madam now, and saying Midu~ritto-sama is, umm, isn't that being too familiar?"

He sure pays attention to some weird points.

"Then isn't Miduchi fine. The person herself said that's fine after all."

"However, it's not an abbreviation, but a simple nickname right? Isn't that rude?"

Even if you tell me something like that, I don't care. In the first place you're above in age so I think nickname or whatever is fine. Ah, if Miduchi and I were to get married then Zulu a part of my fortune could end up being inherited by Miduchi if I pass away. Since we'll have been together for quite a bit of time by then it might be difficult to suddenly call her master..or not really.

"Then just call her Chizumagurol like normal. In regards to honorifics...if you want to add one then feel free."

"I understand. And I know it's presumptuous but is it okay to ask one thing?"

"Hn, ah? What is it?"

I replied while moving my left leg on top of my right leg to cross them.

"I have no intention of commenting on master's decision but please take into consideration your lineage. An heir provides stability for us of the lower class."

"..That's rushing things quite a bit."

"What kind of things are you saying? We aren't doubting master's success at all. In that case then a proper heir is an important problem."

Ah, I guess so.

"You know, I'm glad you're willing to say that though. I still haven't even properly thought about marriage yet. And an heir, you, there's a limit to even too rushing things. I'm still 16 you know. Obviously Miduchi is as well."

"Eh.."

Huh? Did I say something strange?

"Isn't Chizumagurol-sama a dark elf?"

"Yeah."

"Master, if you don't know then please remember. If it's not with the same race then it's extremely difficult to have children. I won't say it's completely impossible but.."

Ah, so he was worrying about that end. Lilus mentioned that even if reincarnated people are of different races they can have children. Though I don't know if that probability is the same as two of the same race, or just a bit better than normal. I guess I never mentioned that conversation to Zulu. Something like if it's between reincarnated people then even if they're of different races, for a person normally living their life it's cheating quite a bit so I guess I remained silent on it. I don't think there's any problem even if I talk about it but it's not anything I need to talk about either.

"I'll think about something like that when it comes to that time. It's still too soon now. Rather than that what about you. Are things going well with the Laios sis at "Murowa"? If you say you want to get married~ then it's fine if I buy her. Of course only if that sis accepts it as well."

"No..No way, it's still too soon, for me as well."

No, it's not soon at all.

“Well if you ever feel up for it just say something, I won’t particularly be against it. However, children are still no good. Restrain yourself at least until I have my own territory.”

“Ah, ye..yes, of course.”

I’m sure this guy was trying to tell me to search for a human woman. Well it’s not a bad conversation however I don’t even have 1 mm of that kind of leeway right now. Ralpa? Don’t be an idiot. She’s a stink bug that was snoring like that until just a moment ago. Her looks might not be half bad but she’s so loud I wouldn’t be able to sleep together with her.

After that we continued keeping lookout until our time was up and after going back to sleep once more, I woke up to the breakfast Giberuti made as usual and then received a bento.

I don’t know if it was because she slept well but Ralpa’s mood was good from the morning.

Be grateful to my greatness, I fixed your breathing impediment.

.....

Once again today we chose an unexplored area to teleport into. We luckily managed to find an altar room as well.

We wiped out the gargoyles and the 10 summoned {Cave Drone Beetle}s and with high hopes peeked into the shrine.

【Humidifier】
【Beech Wood.Iron】
【State: Good】
【Manufacture Date: 7/9/7444】
【Value: 10000000】
【Endurance: 246】
【Ability: Air moisture 17.3g/m³ every one hour 5m³ production;180 value/1 day】
【Effect: Humidification of the surrounding air.】

..This, is it really worth this much value? I guess it could have some meaning for heating in the winter. For the time being it goes in the warehouse.

.....

Year 7444, Month 9, Day 8

Today I'm on lookout from 2 am to 4 am. My partner for today is Gwine. Today is the day Miduchi can sleep plenty. After picking up the role from Ralpa and Bel, Gwine and I started our lookout shift. We've been in the dungeon for almost a full week today, after we finish exploring today we're returning to the surface.

"Al-san. Is it fine to ask a bit of something?"

"Hn? What is it?"

"When are you planning to get married?"

Oh~ beard-san~ you too?

"..No idea. Something like that. Even if we do it will be quite a while in the future I'm sure. Well it's not like I don't get you guys being interested in it but I'm not in that much of a hurry and that was just Miduchi getting ahead of herself."

"Hm~n..but, why is it Miduchi-san?"

"It's not like we didn't originally know each other and she was in love with me since the past after all..I've been together with her for a reasonably long time as well, there's feelings too. She's been carrying along a variety of problems since she reincarnated until just a while ago. When most of those things we're resolved I guess we were just drawn to each other. Though there's times when she says weird things, she's fundamentally a good person. Try to get along with her."

Somehow I feel like I've had the same conversation a number of times recently. It can't be helped though.

"No, it's not particularly like I'm complaining about it. I think that I would like to get along with Miduchi-san as well.."

Yeah, please do that. It's a big help.

"Ralpa huh? Don't worry about it. It's not like Ralpa did anything wrong. Of course~ even I'm happy that everyone accepted Miduchi. However, even if it's someone that I brought along, isn't it difficult to completely accept her before you get to know her at all? Ralpa was just calm."

"Do you seriously think that?"

..Isn't she misunderstanding something? Since Gwine is together with Ralpa the most I thought she understood Ralpa a bit more than this.

"That's right. Ralpa is a good fellow. We've already been together for over two years so that's only obvious though. My heart isn't so vast that I could spend two years together with someone who's unpleasant. But you know, don't misunderstand. The only one who Ralpa opened her heart up to from the start was you, Gwine. Whether it be me, or Bel, it's not like she got along with us like now from the start. Since there were the circumstances we met Bel under I think she tried to be careful to act kind but I don't think she suddenly opened her heart up to her. Though there's times when she says idiotic things as well, she's generally pretty level-headed."

".."

What is it, those eyes?

"I don't know Al-san anymore."

She got angry and is facing the other way. Ha~a, how bothersome~ ..Orya.

I used the {Cantrip} pulling to lightly pull on Gwine's beard. It's still not long enough to braid.

"Ehi~!! Really, what are you doing."

"Gwine sure is kind. Ralpa is my precious, friend. Please think about Ralpa from here on as well."

I lowered my head to Gwine as she turned around and entrusted it to her.

"Even, if you didn't say it like that I would, Ralpa is my friend after all."

That's right isn't it.

On the last day the confit came out. For breakfast and in our bento. The confit that had been maturing inside of the hardened lard for a few days was extremely delicious along with the scent of black truffles. The bento had sandwiches of lard with bits of black truffles mixed in spread on bread with confit in between as well. It seems pretty high in calories but if it's just this level of calories then we'll consume them in stamina.

Ralpha was delighted as she ate them.

Chapter 157: Family Time

Year 7444, Month 9, Day 9

Yesterday evening we returned from the dungeon and starting today we have three consecutive days off. Just as usual I went and did my running and just as I was about to head towards the dungeon I suddenly realized. If I think carefully about it I was planning to use this holiday to increase my mastery with {Find.Trap}, {Detect.Snare}, and {Perceive.Pitfall}. Though it's just forcing Miduchi to use the magic like crazy as reference in front of the appropriate traps on the 1st floor. However, there's no real need to pay money to go into the dungeon just to investigate traps with a spell.

I borrowed a hoe from an old commoner man who was doing farm work outside of the town and had Zulu dig a pitfall. I had Miduchi look at it and check the relationship of the traps while I practiced the two spells but the pitfall Zulu dug could only be seen with {Detect.Snare} and {Perceive.Pitfall}. We tried making a trap with grass that catches on to your leg but this didn't get any reaction from {Find.Trap} either. It's the opposite from the pitfalls on the 6th floor. Though I feel like this is more correct, I wonder why?

However, if it's like this then we can't use {Find.Trap}. No, since I've actually seen Miduchi use it right in front of me, it's not as if I can't use it but it'll take time. I wonder what they did during Karl's training? Since I found it strange I tried asking and it seems they practiced using something like a small crossbow with a string connected to the trigger. Hearing that I thought some extremely rude things like, "Eh? They're all naked, do they even have something like string." and "So they use tools."

Since there were trees and shrubs growing in the fairy village and if they can use spells that well then they could easily gather some metal as well. If I think about it like that then I'm sure there's no problem with making things like a crossbow or bolts.

For the first few times, I looked at Miduchi's state and once it seemed like there was no problem, I released Zulu and Miduchi, they can do whatever they please for today. After this there's no problem even if I'm alone. Close to lunch the number of times I had used the spell was over 100 and I had gotten used to it to the point where it only took a bit over 10 seconds to activate. I still have over 5000 MP in leeway remaining. As expected buying a crossbow just for the sake of practicing with a spell is...There's not that many of them but there's the {alarm} traps on the 1st floor as well. I guess I'll try testing it on that.

I returned to "Boil Manor" just in time for lunch and after putting on my protectors, since it was troublesome I just put my sword on my waist and after grabbing my map I left right away. I had some skewers for lunch at the entrance plaza and then entered the dungeon. I ended up having to repeat teleporting a number of times but I was luckily able to teleport into an area with an {alarm} trap. It took until close to evening but I was able to practice using the spell {Find.Trap} over 100 times. Of course, even if there's no trap it's possible to practice it. However, it's easier to understand if the result shows in front of your eyes.

The alarm trap from a glance resembles the pitfall. If you step on a large board camouflaged with dirt and an alarm starts ringing out from somewhere. The moment I used the spell {Find.Trap} the camouflaged board looked red. The appearance itself is the same as {Detect.Snare} and {Perceive.Pitfall}.

After eating dinner I learned {Detect.Charm}, {Detect.Lie}, {Detect.Life}, {Dispel.Illusion}, and {Dispel.Magic} from Miduchi. For the time being I've become able to use them but I need to properly increase the number of times. There's no choice other than to find the chance and practice them.

.....

Year 7444, Month 9, Day 17

Around 5 in the evening, when I returned from the dungeon there was a message at the inn. It seems that today around noon, when I was still inside of the dungeon older brother and the others stopped by the inn. After reading the message without eating dinner with everyone or changing, I just threw my change of clothes into my saddle bag, piled it onto my horse and then flew off to my company in the capital. After all delivering condoms to the royal family is my job. I'm quite busy this month.

Everyone thought it was strange that I ran out of the inn in a panic so they asked the reason but when I replied that after older brother and the others arrive I have to go to the castle for deliveries, they all understood.

While I was gone to the capital, with Miduchi as the teacher, I had Toris, Bel, Ralpa, and Gwine learn {Detect.Life} and {Dispel.Illusion}. I particularly gave instructions that {Detect.Life} was important, when I gave a simple explanation of the effect everyone understood. Just in case I explained to Miduchi everyone's MP amount and the amount of MP the spell uses so I'm sure she'll be careful of running out of mana.

Furthermore, due reasons relating to the magic skill level even Ralpa and Bel can't use {Dispel.Magic} yet so this is on hold. Due to reasons relating to the elemental magic they have Toris and Gwine can't use {Detect.Life}. The only one that they were all capable of using was {Dispel.Illusion} which only requires void magic.

I arrived at the company around 6 pm in the evening. I rolled in while panting but it seems like I made it in time.

As expected of the war horse that older brother used. Though it was just around 10 km, it didn't make anything of the hills of the outer crater and arrived in a short 40 minutes.

It seems it was just as everyone was about to go for dinner. They were all in front of the company closing up shop.

"Sorry, I was late!"

"Hey~ staying healthy?"

A nostalgic face greeted me.

"I'm healthy. Quite lively. Father, mother, it's been a while."

"You've grown a bit taller."

The ones who came wasn't just older brother but father and mother as well.

It seems they felt guilty for just pushing deliveries on older brother lately. And since they already handed over the nobility to older brother, it's not good that the lord is outside of the territory so often, so from here on out it will be brother, my parents, or depending on the case even sister-in-law who is leading the caravan as well.

"Al, we're about to go for dinner. I need to reward the squires and there's the Ryogu family who have been giving it their best away from the village here in the capital as well. And since it seems that Yotlen and the others are working quite hard as well. I'm feeding everyone something good as my treat today."

Oh~ that sounds good! Come to think of it I can see Ruku's face as well. Dianne seems a bit embarrassed. I'm sure tonight will be quite fun.

"Hn, so Al came? Then it should be fine for me to go too right?"

Older brother opened the door of the company headquarters and stuck his face out. I had some sweat dripping down as I didn't understand the meaning.

"Yeah, that's true. Let's do that."

Huh?

"Then, since that's the case, I'm saved Al. We've carried all of the luggage into the storm. Make sure it's not stolen. I'm counting on you. And, our carriage and horses are at the workshop."

"A, Ah.."

Older brother gathered back up with everyone while making a good smile. It would have been good if I brought along Zulu.

"Al, don't make that sort of face. Endure it for tonight. Mill is staying overnight at the workshop. We'll come back later."

"Yeah.."

I should have brought not just Zulu but Angela as well.

Seeing everyone call my parents the master and madam, Yotlen and her daughters must have felt quite tense as they dealt with them. I don't know if they pitied jsut leaving me alone here, or they were just trying to show reservation on bringing three small children to a restaurant (probably) but they said they would remain. However, I turned that offer down. If my parents are thanking everyone then it's only obvious that sister, brother, and myself end up helping out. It's not like tomorrow is too late after all.

Three hours later, it seems things ended as Dianne and the others returned. Since this is their home as well it's only obvious it would be strange if they didn't come back but I couldn't see Ruku. I was worried they might have gotten into a fight but it seems they want to let parent and child spend as much time as they can without outsiders before the wedding, or at least that was my parents idea. After Rozural heard the inn everyone was staying at I got on my horse and headed towards the workshop.

When I was about to tie up my war horse on the side of the pack horse and carriage in the back and,

"Who is it?"

and a sharp voice asking my identity called out. Oh, so you weren't asleep.

"It's me."

"Al?"

"Yeah."

"What's wrong? Weren't you inside of the dungeon?"

She asked a bit strange.

"I left this evening and received the message. And, I came over here in a hurry. Since it seems like dinner is over, it's time to alternate. I'll keep an eye out. It seems everyone is staying at "Perittsu". You know it right?"

"Oh, is that so? Then I'm going. Take care of things."

Show a bit of reservation...Though it's fine.

"Sister, what's doing on with the knight group for today?"

"Ah, since Whitney came after 4 pm, I had her wait until my job was over and I took the day off tomorrow. Commander Kendusu said it's fine if my parents are here and gave me permission. I came out with both of my arms open and waving."

Well, there's also the matter of the armor, I guess they couldn't help but go easy on her? I don't really know for sure though.

"I see. Then go ahead and go. I just saw their faces in the evening but sister probably hasn't seen them in quite a while. I think they'll be delighted."

"Yeah, see you later."

"Ah, we're meeting up tomorrow."

Sister got on my war horse and then started riding off, eh?

Change of clothes...

.....

Year 7444, Month 9, Day 18

After the night ends and the squires came to pick up the horse and carriage. I hopped into the empty load and traveled to the store. Everyone was already gathered at the store. After packing all of the boxes of armor into the load of the carriage we departed to make deliveries. Obviously I haven't forgotten the box of condoms either. During that time I finished changing and wore some neat clothes.

Just like usual we deliver the armor to the knight group and start taking measurements. During that time I went to deliver the condoms but the one who came out to deal with it was Morin. After all the King won't come huh? I'm sure he's busy so if you say it's only obvious that's true. What was unexpected was that Queen Molail hadn't heard anything from the King. Though we talked about recent affairs for a bit nothing seemed to have changed from last time at all. If he hasn't changed his interactions at all like I heard then that's fine, and something like that I'm sure even the Queen can do. I don't think there's any need to go that far for a person like me.

We quickly finished up the deliveries and then decided to go for some lunch. We took a different room from the squires at the store and just us five family had a meal together.

"Listen for a bit until the food is brought out."

Father said formally. What is it?

“On the 1st of this month Zetto and Becky turned five years old. Mill started her magic training just a bit after she turned five years old. I think it’s just right in terms of time. Once we return this time we’re going to start Zetto and Becky’s magic training.”

Ah, I see. They’ve already grown that much. Since I left the house when they were two and a half. I’m sure they don’t remember me anymore. It doesn’t even need to be said in regards to sister.

“There I wanted to make sure and ask Mill and Al first. The things you felt and the things that are best to be careful of, when you were first started training with magic, we thought if there was something it would be best to hear your opinions like this.”

That sort of thing huh?

“In that case..”

We talked for about an hour while having lunch with everyone in the family and I was satisfied being able to see my parent’s faces for the first time in a while.

“By the way, how long are father and the others going to be in the capital this time?”

I wanted to introduce everyone from the {Slaughterers}. There’s also the matter of the three slaves but also Miduchi as well.

“Yeah, we’re staying one more day for today but tomorrow morning, after we’re present for Ruku’s wedding, we’re returning home. However, it doesn’t seem like we’ll be able to stop by Baldukk. As a matter of fact, we stopped by Keel on our way here but it seems that early in the next year there’s another dispatch of troops. I was told they want to discuss it together with Farne on our way back..and at that time I’ll hand over my noble rank to Farne. There’s also the fixed date for that ceremony. Though we’ll end up putting off seeing the faces of your allies until the next time we come.”

“Early next year? Then I’ll probably be participating in that as well. Since it seems that Lord Kendusu is taking command..”

“Ue, so we’re going to be below Mill.. That’s crazy. I’m begging you to go easy on us.”

“It’s not like I’m going to be the one taking command, brother. But, I see, so the Webdos knight group is coming..”

“I probably won’t go. In my place Shani will go though.”

..I’m sure Kuro and Mary will appear as well...However, if there’s that sort of circumstances then it can’t be helped. I’ll introduce them on the next occasion. I’m sure they’ll come again at the end of the year or the start of next year..or will they? If it’s early next year then I guess they won’t make it, even if they do it would just be for delivery of the armor, they must just drop off the luggage with me at Baldukk and then head quickly to the battlefield.

While getting roused up talking about the departure for the battle, if not just older brother but sister are going then I doubt there will be any casualties from Bakuddo so easily. If sister-in-law Shani is going then both her and sister can use {Cure Serious} and it might be possible that sister-in-law Shani can even use {Cure Critical}..I guess there’s no way that’s the case.

“Putting that aside, Al, it seems you’re putting quite a bit of effort into it. I’ve heard about it from Farne and everyone.”

The bearded face that was frightening in the face gently smiled.

“So you’re the number one adventurer in Baldukk? As expected of our son right. I’m proud of you.”

Mother caressed my head. Somehow I feel more happy than embarrassed.

“Yeah, what was it again? You’re being called that unpleasant name.”

Huh? You lookin’ down on me?

“It’s the {Slaughterers}. It seems they were called that because they kill every monster they encounter in the dungeon. Since all of the other adventurers normally just run around without fighting the monsters. It’s the perfect nickname for Al and his allies.”

As expected of brother..and I feel like I’ve heard that way of putting it somewhere.

“He~ so Al has a nickname. When adventurers are given a nickname it’s proof of being first-rate. It's quite amazing."

"That's right. We never had something like that. I'm proud of you as well."

"I'm sure you're just happily killing some goblins right?"

This shitty bitch...

"There's no way that's the case. We're killing lots of bigger monsters!"

"He~ Orks or so? Or maybe gnolls?"

"Oh my, I would like to hear about Al's battle gains as well. What's the strongest opponent you've fought against up until now?"

Death=Tyrant.Kin...I don't have any proof. I guess the {Yellow Hand Roper}~ Ah, no, the {Flesh Golem} was pretty difficult as well.. the {Vampire} was only an instant after all...If we talk about the degree of how frantic it was, then the {Horned Bear} in the past was probably number one though...I guess anything is fine.

"The {Yellow Hand Roper} was considerably strong... If we had properly fought the {Vampire} things probably would have been dangerous."

""Wha!""

My parents echoed at the same time. It seems they know about it. I wonder if they've heard the name of it?

"Va..Vampire you say?"

Older brother is speechless as well.

"It's no good if you call {Vampire.Bats} as {Vampires}."

The idiot woman is trying to talk impudently but her eyes are swimming. Ehen.

"Al..after all you. Are you using magic seriously?"

"Nope."

I always have plenty of reserve as long as the ceilings are as low as they have been up until the 6th floor. Though at that time I might have to use magic with all my power. If I think about what would happen if I make a mistake in using it then it's too frightening so I'd like to restrain myself though.

"How many different spells can you use?"

Sister asked with a serious face.

"That's my life line. I won't tell you, is what I'd like to say, but around 30 different types I guess. 20 types of attack spells, other than that, including healing type around 10 types."

If it's the ones I can use within 1 second at the standard levels, then up to cannon type I can use all attack spells. If it's up to 5 bullets then even up to {Trebuchet} type. If it's up to 5 bullets then {heavy catapult}. I can use them all with or without {missile} added. When it comes to {Azaheddo} type attack spells then I can use all of them standard ones known. {Lightning Bolt} and {Chain Lightning}, {Fire Ball}, {Ice Cone}, {Disintegrate}, then all the {Cloud} types with a decent amount of power in them I can use in about 1 second. I've only practiced {Grow Spike} up to 25 of them but I can use that in around 1 second as well...I've practiced {Anti-Magic Field} at varying levels a retarded amount so just the same as all of the healing types I can use them almost instantly. Of course, I can use the healing types on myself as well. In regards to the {remove} types I've practiced them quite a bit as well so I use most of them within 1–2 seconds. And, some high-grade spells that I really can't put into words as well. Even if we think of power and variations as different I think there's around 150 different types?

"..You, might be able to take on the army of the Kingdom alone."

"That's impossible. Even at best it would only go to around 100 people right."

Though I'm sure I can take out 1000 people plenty. If they gather crowded together in a small area then even more..

"Hi~ you really..Well it's fine. Somehow it's gotten idiotic. Even Marquis Dasurain only has skill levels that about the same as me.."

"Just like mother said, on days when I'm not always in the dungeon I practice spells as much as possible. And also..even with this I don't think it's enough. Since I don't have money it would be difficult to employ a large army, if my territory gets invaded then I'd have to protect it myself after all."

“Territory, you, what are you saying?”

Ah, only my parents, older brother, and sister-in-law knew. I never told sister about it.

“Mill, Al wants to create his own country. I gave him permission.”

“Eeh!!? Father, are you saying that seriously? There’s no way..”

“That’s the reason I’m earning the funds. I have a reasonable amount but it’s nowhere near enough. Also, I’ll just mention this but I’ve already talked with his majesty the King about this as well. His majesty made fun of me as well but I received his word that if I just pay money he’ll sell me the viscount ranking and an appropriate territory. He also said that as long as we don’t show any hostility from our side Rombert won’t be the first ones to attack as well.”

““That far..””

Everyone is surprised looking at me. I quietly looked back at Mill.

“Since I’ve already declared it to his majesty, even if it takes some backbone I intend to do it. No matter how many years it takes and even if I have to bite into rock I’ll make my own country. Of course~ right now I’m still just a simple individual adventurer. But, don’t they say that his majesty Rombert the First, Rogmokku.The.Pitviper, and the Wizard.King were originally just adventurers as well? I don’t think there’s any reason I wouldn’t be able to do it.”

Mill exchanged glances with me from head on.

“So you’re serious?”

“Yeah.”

“If you fail you might end up dying in a gutter somewhere.”

“Of course if I don’t have money or power then I’m sure that will end up being the case.”

“After making a country? What do you plan to do?”

“That’s only obvious. I’ll make it so it lasts as long as possible right.”

“What do you want to do making a country? What kind of country are you aiming to make?”

“I plan to rule over it as I please. It might end up like several of the small countries around there. However, what about that? I’m just making my own country because I want to make one. In order for as many people as possible to know that Alan.Greed was born and lived in this morn I’ll make my own country.”

“Do you have no ideals or dreams?”

“Ideal? Dream? Since sister is in the knight group directly serving his majesty you may have received that sort of education. It’s not like I particularly have any complaints with the current society. I don’t feel like there’s anything I want to correct or save. Or is it not allowed to make a country without that sort of noble ideal? Did his majesty Rombert the First have that sort of thinking when he founded Rombert Kingdom? Rogmokku.The.Pitviper took over Kanbitt Kingdom when it was that small of a country and made it that large. Don’t they say he was quite the cruel King that would even wipe out his enemies down to the babies. Even then it’s continued for over 100 years. Even to today. Of course I don’t want to behave cruel at all. Since it’s not like I want to leave behind a bad name for my cruelty after all. And I’m only having this conversation because we’re family. Of course, I do think that some kind of ideal or doctrine to advocate will be necessary. Well, just at the level of a heading.”

“Mill.”

“Wh~at? Father.”

“I’ve already approved of what Al is doing. Do you want to interfere with your little brother who’s desperately trying to cut open the path for his life? Do you only intend to complain to Al? I won’t tell you cooperate or support him but at least approve of him.”

“That is..I get that..but”

“But, what?”

“If it’s like that then one day he might get tripped up..”

“That might be the case. Thought that might not be the case as well. Dreams and ideals are themselves important. Depending on the time and case they act as something people will dedicate their lives for. However, as long as you can prepare something else more important than that it's fine."

"What? Something important?"

"So you don't know..Farne, tell her about it."

"Yes, it's to protect the lifestyle of your citizens. In Al's case, since it's a country it would be his people. It means to create an environment where they don't starve, can peacefully give birth to the children who will carry the future, and raise them. Things like maintenance of laws and ideals or dreams that the majority will accept are next after that. Putting it simply a strong country. If you don't lose in wars then it's not so easy to starve. Since you can take reparations after all."

Honestly speaking, I was surprised at Mill. Or to be more precise with Mill, no, with the education that the Kingdom of Rombert provides it's direct knight group about the ideals and dreams of a "good" country. Though I think the only one offering this sort of advanced education is just Rombert Kingdom. Miki, hold back just a bit. By the way, the things father and brother said are things that are only obvious. They're probably universal no matter when the era or what the world it is.

Since living beings die if they can't eat after all.

And then, something like noble ideals are things you can't speak about if you're not living. Even Rombert Kingdom which is said to be the most abundant country out of the neighboring countries has famine that occurs somewhere once in every 10 years or so. I'm sure a lot of people starve to death as well. If it's other small countries then I'm sure the situation is even more serious. That's why Devas wants the Dirt Plains and why Rombert wants the Dirt Plains as well. They just can't seriously fight over it taking into consideration the damage taken from a large war, even if they win it's possible another country could invade.

If you're living in the capital or Baldukk you can live your life without feeling it too much but I'm sure even this very moment there's children and babies starving to death somewhere. Even in Marquis Webdos territory which is said to be comparatively wealthy in the Kingdom has villages that are poorer than Bakuddo was in the past. If it's a different territory then I'm sure it's even possible some villages have collapsed. It's no different in how if a disease spreads around several percent of the people will die and there's even cases when the central pillar of a family is included in there. It's even simple to die just from appendicitis.

I might be able to save a handful of them with spells. It might even be possible to discover or develop a spell that can cure disease. If Miduchi and my child (though there's no plans for now), Toris and Bel's child, or if Ralpa, Gwine, Zulu, Angela, or Giberuti have a child that has as much mana as sister when they grow up, that might be the time the country shows it's true worth.

If I think about it like that then I might be able to create a country which can guarantee the lifestyle of it's people above and beyond.

Eh? Zenom probably won't have anymore children right...

.....

That night, after taking a room in the inn "Perittsu", Mill and I were naked in beds next to each other while looking at the ceiling and talking.

"Al"

"Hn?"

"Since I was told by father, well it's not as if I can't accept it so I'll recognize it. Though I feel like it was just explained away as well. But you know.."

Mill raises her upper body and looks at me with a serious face before continuing her words.

"But, even if you somehow succeed in making your country, Rombert Kingdom will end up a foreign country."

"That's only obvious."

"His majesty might have made a promise on it but there might end up being a war with your country. What should I do at that time?"

Since that old man spit out words like a King must abide by the things he says, so unless I do something considerably excessive I don't feel like he will go against it but it's not an impossibility.

“..That’s true. It would be the most convenient for me if you betray Rombert and come to my side I guess. But as expected I’m sure sister wouldn’t do something like that. Next would be to sabotage and not participate in the war. But, sister is in the first knight group. I’m sure it’s impossible..”

“..”

“It’s fine if you just come to take my head.”

“Hmph, rest easy. If it comes to that then I myself will help you as an assistant in suicide.”

Her chest is as pitiful as usual.

“Oh~ that’s scary~ Then I need to make sure that doesn’t happen while sister is still in active duty.”

I closed my eyes.

Chapter 158: Midway Point

Year 7444, Month 9, Day 19

Ruku and Dianne's wedding ceremony ended with no problems, father and the others departed towards Bakuddo. I saw them off on the road which splits towards Baldukk and then after passing the outer rim of the crater, I headed towards my inn. Now then, those guys better have learned the new spells, if even two members were able to learn {Detect.Life} then that makes it more difficult to be ambushed and you could say adds to our combat capability. We still haven't explored more than 70% of the 6th floor but I intend to aim for the 7th floor when we enter this week. Since our days off last until tomorrow as a substitute for training today I'll go to the dungeon and train with magic tomorrow as well.

I returned to the inn while thinking that.

I returned to the inn and after capturing Ralpa who was chatting with the manager in the lobby, I asked her the situation on them learning the spells and it seems she became able to use the spells that it was possible for her to use. However, it seems that it took a bit of time for both Ralpa and Bel to learn {Detect.Life}. I guess it's because they haven't used very many spells from the {Divination} system. The only ones normally used are {Detect.Magic} and the {Cantrip} {Magical.Detection}, something like {Sleep Cloud} requires all three types of elemental magic other than earth magic at a decent level on top of void magic at level 5 or higher so there's not many people who can use it in the first place.

I guess it would be best to teach her the spell {Divination} itself here. Since both Bel and Ralpa have reached level 4 with void magic they should be able to use it. Since there's not much good itself that comes from using incantations I didn't bother teaching them it but whenever they learn spells of the {Divination} system it might make it easier.

“Ralpha, come with me for a bit.”

I said that and Ralpha along to my room and after identifying her I knew it but,

“How much mana do you have right now? If it seems like you can do it then I’ll teach you a spell. It might have been better to teach you it before {Detect.Life} though.”

and said that before sitting on a chair.

“Eh? Yeah. I haven’t used any magic after using {Detect.Life} once this morning so I think it’s fine.”

“I see. Then it should be fine. The spell I’m going to teach you now is called {Divination}. This spell is a spell that lets you figure out the incantation of a spell you want know. After you use {Divination} you can figure out the incantation of a spell that fits within the amount of mana you have remaining and the duration it lasts. Starting out with {Light} should be good.”

.....

I spent a long time explaining the trick to using the {Divination} system of spells and how to knead the mana into it which I don’t completely understand myself and while it took some time for her to concentrate (it took close to 30 minutes), Ralpha was able to learn the spell {Divination} with no problem and figured out her incantation for the spell {Light}. Her incantation was the same as mine a strange incantation that makes no sense. However, I realized something huge that I had been overlooking here.

Ralpha started scratching her shoulder while chanting the incantation!
scratchscratch

After seeing the cup on the edge of the table that Ralpha made shine I looked at Ralpha with an expression of shock.

“Hn? What is it? Making that sort of face?”

“Oh..”

I couldn’t say anything.

“What is it? Were you surprised at how quickly I learned it? Am I genius?”

...No...

“Yo..you..just now..”

I point at Ralpa’s shoulder and said while she was confused.

“Just now, you scratched your shoulder while chanting the incantation right? Why?”

“Eh? Is that so?”

“Try using the incantation one more time. And do something.”

“No way, there’s no way I could do something..”

It seems Ralpa is surprised at what I said.

“It’s fine, try doing it. I’ll do it as well.”

“Yeah.”

“rira.machi.augu.banberudo.miruzu”

“tozu.borusu.nobun.keirechi.shiraku”

We both try moving our bodies while chanting the incantation for {Light}. I stood up and started running in place stamping my legs while waving my arms. Ralpa sat down on the bed and start moving her body, legs, and arms around like an octopus or something.

And I was dazed seeing the cups in a total of three places shine.

Li~es.

Seeing this result, both Ralpa and I were surprised and couldn’t say a word. Since I was already used to doing something while using spells so honestly speaking, if it was just me then I wouldn’t have been surprised. Or rather there’s no way I would have noticed it. However, even Ralpa was properly able to use the spell while doing the octopus dance. This, as long as they can properly repeat the incantation wouldn’t she be able to move while using the spell? Even though it was my secret technique that I went through that much trouble to learn this simply...Come to think of it, I just remembered this was the reason I tried to learn incantations in the past as well. It was in order to heal myself at times when I had taken wounds that made it impossible to concentrate mentally. I was only use it to learn the way to use mana for the new spells Karl taught me. That was stupid of me.

I didn't think there was much meaning to using spells with incantations but as a matter of fact they were considerably effective. Toris and Gwine's void magic should reach level 4 pretty soon as well. If we include Miduchi and Bel as well then it would be big if we had a total of six people who can run while using spells. It's necessary to be careful to use the precise rhythm while trying to hold your breathing from being disturbed and moving but I doubt it will take as much practice as normally using spells while running.

Even if they can only learn one or two cure and attack types of spells, if they properly practice the incantations things should change quite a bit. It's not the time to be entering the dungeon. I need to drive this into them even just a bit sooner.

"Ralpha, you go to sleep and start recovering your mana already. I'm going to search for everyone."

"Yeah!"

After running out of the room I caught Miduchi looking through the goods at the general store and asked her if she know the location of the other three. It seems she was together with Gwine until just now. I had Miduchi search for Gwine while I tried searching the places Toris and Bel would go. I found the two of them in less than 10 minutes. They were flirting at the side of the lake to the East of Baldukk.

After returning to the inn and Miduchi was talking to Gwine about something on a chair in the lobby. I brought them along to my room. And then, I told them about the spell {Divination}. Everyone was surprised at once, I explained just how useful it would be and had them all learn {Divination} the same as Ralpha. This is good. If they practice it for a short while, I'm sure they'll remember the incantation right away and be able to use it.

.....

Year 7444, Month 10, Day 2

In the end, we haven't gone to the dungeon even once since then. Ah, no, we're entering every day. However, it's just going to the 1st floor to practice incantations. Since Toris, Bel, Ralpa, Gwine, and Miduchi have a low amount of mana they quickly take breaks or return to sleep so it's no very efficient but that can't be helped. The only ones who go back to sleep are Bel and Miduchi. The rest of them have an amount of mana where they recover mana naturally faster without needing to sleep so they're just doing it while taking breaks. Zenom who came along as an escort is narrowing his eyes as he watches.

Since Toris quickly said, "If you can use spells by chanting the incantation then it's also possible to use a shield. I'll go buy one." so I had him buy a shield for Zulu and Angela just in case as well. Zulu is using a kite shield the same as Toris and Angela chose a small buckler shield. It will mean Zulu uses a two-handed bastard sword in one hand but he said there's no problem. Well if it's Zulu's power then he should be fine.

I'm just a bit of distance away from everyone who's recovering their mana trying to earn money to pay for the entry tax. However, after repeating it for two weeks everyone was able to use {Cure Light} and two types of {Arrow} spells. Since we picked spells which don't have very long incantations if it's just three types or so it's plenty to memorize. Bel managed to learn the incantation for {Cure Serious} in addition to those and Miduchi even learned up to {Cure Critical} and {Cure All}. For the time being this should be plenty.

"Oh God of Healing, I seek the healing of a small wound, I offer up my mana as compensation!"

That's Toris's incantation for {Cure Light}. It might be a coincidence but it's quite envious it's in Japanese.

"beku.nosu.nimuru.fon.saizu.ka.doren!"

That's Ralpa's {Flame Arrow} incantation. She's saying it while in a stance to block an attack with her {tomahawk}.

Yeah, if it's this then it's plenty.

"Alright, starting tomorrow we're going to get serious again. Let's aim for the 7th floor."

.....

Year 7444, Month 10, Day 5

From the day before yesterday until yesterday one of the slaves and I were were acting separately but for the time being I'll be acting together with everyone else on this 6th floor. This is fine until our levels increase a bit more. On our third teleport teleporting we entered an area that we hadn't been to before. We casually used the spells {Find.Trap}, {Detect.Snare}, and {Perceive.Pitfall} and spent until just past noon to reach the teleport room on the 6th floor.

In order to use this teleport room as our base from here on out, today I had everyone bring along quite a bit of luggage. As expected I didn't have them bring along enough materials to make a shower room but some new blankets and buckets, pots, and tableware, just bringing that along was the limit. Today I started putting down some dirt in a corner as we found a place we can relax for our beds, a place for cooking, and a place to put down the rubber sheet for a foot bath, just that took through the afternoon.

We were doing that until 4 pm but since we didn't have much materials in the first place we quickly ran out of things to do. Since we ran out of things to do other than chat Ralph started throwing a tantrum.

"Hey~ let's peek into the 7th floor for a bit. I've never seen an ogre and I don't know how strong they are right. Wouldn't it be more efficient to try fighting them once and then after returning spend our time thinking about how to fight them starting tomorrow?"

Hmn, that certainly sounds reasonable. In order to clear the 6th floor today I splurged quite a bit and used an excessive amount of mana but I still have 3,000 MP remaining. I doubt we'll fall behind so easily. In the first place, everyone other than me still has close to full MP. Even if we just leave it alone it'll recover in about an hour or so after all.

"Has Zenom-san fought against an ogre before?"

"Yeah, in the past, a while before I picked up Ralph..I found one once during my teens. It was a stray ogre though. It was considerably strong. It was when I was acting as escort for a caravan. Though we were ambushed in no time at all four people were killed by just a single ogre...What about you Toris, have you fight one?"

"No, I've never fought one. I've heard that there are a lot of them in the direction of Kanbitt."

So Zenom's fought against an ogre before. However, for just a single one of them to defeat four escorts of a caravan...We should be even more careful than usual.

"Hey~ Zenom, around how strong was it? Do you think we can win against it?"

"Al, that's a foolish question. There's no way there'd be a problem for your magic. And, if it's me now then I don't feel like I would lose one on one. However, it might still be dangerous for Gwine to take one on alone."

After Zenom said that about her Gwine licked her lips once with her beard that's started to grow and after clenching both of her fists made a small guts pose while,

"I'll give it my best, hmph" and said that in a small voice while putting some fighting spirit into it. Putting that aside, it's reassuring having Zenom who's fought against an ogre before with us.

"Since they're called ogres I wonder if they're like the demon ogres? I wonder if they have horns growing? There shouldn't be any problem with using the bow right.."

Bel said with a troubled face while confirming the condition of her bowstrings.

"I don't know what ogres are like either. However, according to what I've heard they aren't enemy for master right? Please finish them off with magic while we're holding things down in the front."

"It's just as Zulu-sama says. We'll hold down things in front so please take care of things."

My two combat slaves sure are carefree. Well I still think we can manage it.

“..Can I speak for a bit? I’m sorry to throw cold water while everyone is getting in the spirit for it but there’s something that everyone is forgetting about. In regards to the stray ogre that Zenom-san fought against in the past but ogres are often lead by an ogre mage. I don’t know what kind of feel the ogres that come out here in the dungeon of Baldukk have but depending on the case it might possible there’s opponents that can sue magic mixed in with them. We should be extra careful.”

Miduchi warned us with a composed voice. Though her usage of the word forgetting isn’t wrong. But, ogre mage she says? It uses magic?

“Since we can use the spell {Detect.Life} now it’s fine that we don’t have to worry as much about being ambushed. Certainly it’s just as Zenom-san said they have a height close to 3 meters with large bodies. In proportion to that they’re extremely strong in power as well and could be said to be powerful monsters but in reverse they have the weakness of being stupid. There’s even cases where intelligent Orks can tame them. Since they’re weak to their desires and have no self-control as long as we can find them first they’ll easily get caught up in simple decoys. However, even if we don’t get ambushed a group of ogres shouldn’t be underestimated.

Most likely, if even just 2–3 of them were to line up in the halls they could use magic freely from behind. Please think that the ogre mage will continue to attack with magic until it runs out of mana. And it’s only obvious that their instincts are towards food and sleep but even more than that they have a strong desire to torment things smaller than them. Ogre mages don’t have all that much self-control either but in the case that they run out of mana please think that that they’ll completely attack when they lose control.”

Uo, she sure is familiar with them. Come to think of it she was a walking encyclopedia. In addition when she said that they use spells I remembered but we still haven’t properly fought against an opponent who can use magic. Since I changed the {Vampire} to dust in an instant and you can’t really call that incident with {Bright Blade} a fight. None of them used magic that time after all.

“Mi..Miduchi has fought against ogres before?”

Ralpa asked while surprised.

“I have several times. Though it’s an amount I can count. In most cases we found them first and were able to ambush them so it wasn’t a large problem but at the start of this year, just like Zenom-san mentioned a caravan I was escorting was ambushed. It was a group of four ogres and one ogre mage. The escorts of the caravan was a total of 8 people including myself but one person died and a few people were badly injured.”

“Four ogres and an ogre mage you say...”

Zenom’s eyes went wide.

“If you managed to defeat total of five ogres at the sacrifice of one person, then aren’t they considerably weak?”

Gwine asked as if she doesn’t really get it. There’s~ no way that’s case~ right.

“While the number of elemental magics the warriors who were escorting together with me could use was less than me but all of them had an amount of mana close to mine. Even then one of them lost their life. They’re a powerful enemy.”

Everyone swallowed after hearing Miduchi’s reply.

.....

According to Miduchi’s explanation and if it’s just one ogre then it seems they’re not much of a threat. Zenom said he could win one on one if he aims for the feet at the start after all. However, if there’s multiple, a leader, or some kind of existence guiding them then they undergo a sudden change into a dangerous existence. If the leader has the same amount of intelligence as other normal ogres then it’s not that bad but obviously there’s individual differences in ogres as well. The representative of that is the ogre mage. It seems that the ogres in the surroundings obey the ogres who can use magic. Even if they’re foolish ogres, if it’s one that’s giving out orders in the back then it’s only naturally they’re less likely to die and live longer. If it comes to that then they get smarter as well. Or at least that seems to be the theory. A group being lead by an intelligent ogre seems to hide their large bodies in bushes and they aim for the ideal timing to ambush.

Furthermore, it’s an unpleasant story but there’s some sly ones among ogre magicians as well and they precisely use spells to support their allies. It seems they make sure not to run out of mana while watching their partners' movements. If they see themselves at a disadvantage there's even cases where they run right away.

It seems that this won't go so easily. For the time being we should confirm our formation against ogres using Miduchi's opinion as reference. If they could use magic then I need to stand at the front. I'll use {Anti-Magic Field} to negate the spells the ogre mage uses while slowing the ogres for the other members. During that time if possible Miduchi and Toris will circle around and finish off the ogre mage with attack spells. Bel will support by shooting arrows through my {Anti-Magic Field}.

This time Zulu, Angela, and Toris have all prepared shields. If they don't think about trying to deal damage they should be able to endure a reasonable amount. I'll use {Anti-Magic Field} while identifying and once the ogre mage's MP gets low we can switch over to attacking. Of course, this is supposing it's the worst possible situation where we end up being ambushed. If possible I'd like to ambush them from our side and take them out with magic and bow. In any case, according to Zenom and Miduchi and they take pride in their extremely high physical strength and even if a skilled warrior takes one hit from their club it's enough to squash them like a bug.

If the place we fell to previously was the 14th floor then it would mean this dungeon goes down to the 13th floor. That would mean the 7th floor is exactly in the middle.

So everything up until now was just the tutorial huh? The real thing might start from here on out.

Chapter 159: Ogre

Year 7444, Month 10, Day 5

Close to evening, the nine of us teleported into the 7th floor. The 7th floor was a complete change from the 6 floors up until now. The width of the passage is over 30 meters and there's evergreen trees growing all over the place. The ceiling is far above and just like the fairy village there's light being emitted almost as if it's sunlight. It seems the walls which form the passage stretch up to the ceiling and you receive the impression of being at the bottom of a withering valley in the middle of the day.

Just from a glance the height of the trees and bushes are around 4–5 meters. It feels like they're different in each place as well. The ones closer to the wall seem to be taller. It's only obvious but the areas with no trees growing have clear visibility.

"How do I put this, that is..this is a surprising scenery."

Toris said while showing admiration. Ah, I see, if you've never been to the fairy village then this would be quite unexpected.

"It seems quite easy with it this bright."

Ralpa said while looking at both sides of the wide passage. The area around the teleport crystal is open and there's clear visibility. If you think about the fact that we've only had at most 30–40 meters we could see up until now then it certainly does seem easy. It gives off the impression that even if there was a trap or pitfall there's no fools who would get caught in it.

"If all of the dungeon was like this then it would be easy I'm sure but.."

Angela said while looking at the bright surroundings. Really though.

"Shi!!"

Bel gave out a warning. It seems she's closing her eyes and concentrating on her ears. I guess she picked up some footsteps. Her rabbit ears are standing on end and twitching, they're changing angles and trying to catch sounds. Bel quickly opens her eyes and,

"It's difficult to tell since they're far away but I feel like I heard footsteps."

and she pointed ahead. I tried asking her about it previously but due to the location of her ears it seems it's difficult for her to directly put her ears to the ground.

"Shall we go to around that tree?"

Gwine fixed her grip on the spear and pointed in a direction. I wonder if she's saying it because it's easier to hear footsteps by putting your ear to an adequate tree? If it's the trunk of tree then Bel can put her ears to it.

"That sounds good."

Since Bel nodded everyone moved about 50 away towards the random tree that Gwine pointed at. The trees are thickly growing around here almost like forest.

"Al, how is it?"

Zenom called out to me while I'm using detection spells. Nothing that seems like traps are getting caught in the spells.

"I can't find any traps."

Hearing that Bel put her right ear to the trunk of the tree. She's bent her knees and it's almost like she's hugging the tree. During that time I'm using the spell {Detect.Life} to check the surroundings. I make an {OK} mark with my fingers and tell everyone that there's no problem before taking my bayonet from my shoulder.

"N..I can hear a lot of footsteps mixed together. The closest one seems to be from about 500 meters ahead. One..two..Ah, it might just be one."

After saying that she took her ear from the tree trunk and looked at me.

"Well, we originally planned to wait and see, so let's go I guess. Since it might be an ogre mage don't pass in front of me."

I said that and started walking. I advanced while detecting traps about 100 meters ahead. Around every 100–200 meters there's an area where there's no forest growing something like a separate wasteland. Though it's a bit too early to decide for sure yet.

And, before we left the forest I was able to find an ogre in a grasslands like are ahead of us. It seems like it's doing something but I wonder what in the world it's doing? While hiding behind a tree I'll looked out at it's appearance and it was quick to confirm. It's pushing around a single goblin. The goblin seems like it's frantically trying to run away but the ogre is enjoying itself using something like a thick tree trunk as a club to block it's path. Since it's my first time seeing an ogre, I guess I should use 【Identify】 while I can.

【

【Male/1/10/7414.Ogre】

【State: Good】

【Age: 30 Years Old】

【Level: 4】

【HP: 449(449) MP: 1(1)】

【Strength: 40】

【Speed: 10】

【Dexterity: 3】

【Endurance: 40】

Huh? What's with this absurd amount of HP. After reading the sub-window for their race and it seems they grow 1 HP per month while growing..In addition to that there's those physical abilities...If it stands up properly with it's back straight it should be around 3 meters I guess. Since it's hunched over it looks a bit shorter. Short and thick legs, long arms with bulging muscles that seem to be thicker than an adult males waist. It seems to have some flab but hidden below that is a body of muscle that almost looks like steel and their face is like if you were to take a Hobgoblins and make it even more fiendish.

Certainly if it's that physique then it's not as if I can't understand this absurd amount of HP, but even if I say that...It's level is so low..If it's level was high as well it would be a considerably good target worth a lot of experience points though. No wait, if I just have one person defeat this one then they should gain quite a bit of experience points.

and, it seems like there was some development in the situation while I was reading the identify window. The goblin that was being chased around let out a high pitched voice like “Gyoe!!” The ogre used it’s left hand which isn’t only the club to lift the goblin upside down by it’s leg. Just in case I tried using 【Identify】 on the goblin as well but this one was just a normal goblin with nothing out of the ordinary.

After grabbing it’s prey the ogre threw down it’s club almost as if saying, “no more need” but it hits own leg on the falling club. I don’t know if it hurt but it’s showing it’s back to us. It sure is stupid.

The goblin raises a scream.

“Now’s the chance.”

Saying that Miduchi sent a {Flame Javelin} flying.
Certainly it’s the ideal chance.

Bel, Toris, Ralpa, and Gwine are using attack spells as well.

All of the spell spells hit the ogre’s back. However, even then the ogre still has 200 HP remaining. It’s a monster~

The ogre turns around to here.
A shout is raised.
From the {Slaughterers}.

In front of the loincloth the ogre was wearing the small goblin with it’s legs spread out held by the ogre faced it’s head over here. I guess the ogre was raping the goblin. Come to think of it the goblin was female. The goblin seems to have died being penetrated by the ogre and it’s head is just dangling lifeless foaming at the mouth.

The ogre glared at us with an expression like “Who is interfering with my fun!” and after letting go of the goblins legs it leaned over to pick up the club it threw down.

Strangely enough the goblin was still stuck to the ogres waist just like that. I guess it didn’t come out...

I sent an {Ice Javelin Missile} flying and the ogre tried to shift it’s body to evade it but it slammed into it’s chest.
After that Toris’s {Stone Bolt} stabbed in, followed by a hit from Miduchi’s {Flame Javelin}. When it's HP went minus the ogre made an expression of shock as it fell as if saying "unbelievable for me to die". AS expected it's finally come off.

Everyone is making a disgusted face. It's only obvious. I didn't want to see it either.

"Zulu, go finish it off and take out the magic stone."

There's no other option than pushing the disgusting things off on the loyal slaves. Or rather, in the process of taking the magic stone you can't not see it, I don't want to see something like a goblin that was raped to death.

"For it to take that many attack spells and still not fall.."

Toris said in admiration. It's an obvious attempt to change the topic but it would probably be best to jump on here.

"Yeah, it was surprising. Though if you see that physique then I feel like it also makes sense.."

and said that while glancing at Zulu's work from a distance.

"However, for it to take eight hits of an attack spell to finish it off.."

Angela whispered while counting on her fingers.

Certainly that's true. Though the damage of them was pretty scattered, if it's like this then I need to think about what's ahead. Since we started from an ambush this time all four attack spells were clean hits. If it was to block with its arms, legs, or club, or even further to just evade then there's no doubt it will be more troublesome. If there's a number of them and they charge in while taking on the attack spells and swing their clubs around the only one who can use spells at that point would be me. As expected something like chanting an incantation while evading attacks in the middle of combat is impossible. The best they could manage was chanting a short incantation while in the middle of running. Even then that's difficult. If you think it's a lie then try doing it.

The value of the ogre's magic stone that Zulu brought was just over 120,000. If we sell it then it'll be about 800,000 Z (8 silver coins). It seems like it'll be quite the profit but...

“I checked it’s status but it didn’t seem to have any magic special skills so that doesn’t seem to be the ogre mage we had heard about.”

Zulu said while handing the magic stone to me.

For the time being we’ve achieved our goal. I wonder what we should do?

“Since we just finished one off from a distance with magic after all..If possible wouldn’t it be best to directly take one on in combat?”

Zenom said. Wun, if it’s just one of them if we all surround it I think we can manage it though. If there were multiple of them or the ogre mage which uses magic was among them then it seems like it will be quite difficult though. However, Zenom boasted about being able to win one on one and Miduchi has even defeated five at once with less people than we have right now. Although, in Miduchi’s case since they were all dark elves with quite a bit of mana it’s difficult to make a decision on.

“I, don’t want to see anymore of that~”

Gwine said her honest feelings. Certainly the happening just now was shocking. I don’t think it’s unreasonable to get afraid seeing an ogre craving a female goblin smaller than Gwine. It should be considerably terrifying thinking about it in it’s place.

“Orks do even worse things. Do..Don’t get afraid of something of that level.”

Ralpa tried to cheer up Gwine with a weird way of putting it. But you know, I saw it right. You suddenly looked downwards. I can understand the feeling and I think it’s a normal reaction but the only ones clearly afraid are you and Gwine. Of course, Bel, Miduchi, and Angela the other women aren’t making very good faces but they aren’t afraid.

“Gwine, relax, it’s alright. I won’t let something like that happen. And Zenom and everyone else is here as well. In the first place, do you think I would lose to a monster at that level?”

I intentionally said it with confidence. If it comes down to it then it’s fine if I just bury it after all. Though it would be fine to freeze it the same as up until now as well.

“Now, let’s try taking on one more of them. If the next ogre is alone as well then we’ll try close combat. Let’s limit using magic to only when we’re injured. If there’s multiple opponents or one uses magic then I’ll finish it off.”

I drop the magic stone into the bag on my hip and smiled at Gwine. Even then Gwine’s frown didn’t recover but that can’t be helped. I’m sure it’s impossible right away.

.....

We continued even further ahead. Another 500 meters ahead, just before we entered one of the several forests in front of us I tried using detection type spells to confirm it was safe. And then there was some living creatures that got caught in my {Detect.Life}.

“Yeah, there’s some. Two of them. I can’t tell if they’re ogres though. They’re about 200 meters ahead.”

I said that and prepared my bayonet again. Hearing my words everyone took their weapons out of their scabbards. Ho~ even though I just said we’d only do close combat if the opponent was one but I guess they’re eager even if it’s two? Ah, or maybe they’re just hoping for me to finish off one of them. It’s fine though.

“Let’s go carefully.”

I said that and quickly stepped foot into the forest. The sensation of stepping on fallen leaves is good but there’s quite a bit of sound. Since the last one was engrossed in tormenting the goblin it didn’t notice though.

I hide behind the trunks of trees while advancing.

After passing through the forest, passing through a vacant area, and soon after we entered the next forest I discovered two ogres. The ogres noticed us right away and stood up holding their clubs.

“I’ll take the one on the left.”

After saying that I quickly made a telephone pole, added missile to it, and send it flying. The speed of the flying telephone pole is quite fast but since there’s still some distance if I hadn’t added missile it wouldn’t have been difficult to evade it I'm sure. Seeing that I guess the ogre thought the same thing it's ugly face twisted sticking out it's fangs as it changed it's route.

However, there's no way it could escape the guidance with just that, in no time at all the telephone pole went through the center of it's stomach and it died. So one hit with the {heavy catapult} class is fine huh?

Just a bit in front of Bel Gwine stood on guard with her spear, ahead of that everyone else was standing with their weapons prepared. An arrow was fired from Bel's bow. However, the remaining ogre blocked it's face with it's left arm and there was no change to the speed of it's charge. It probably doesn't even think of the arrow sticking into it's arm as damage.

“Gebo~!”

While letting out an unpleasant battle cry it swings it's huge club down at Zenom the shortest one.

Zenom entered the range of the ogre while evading it and hit it in the lower leg with his {tomahawk} while running past behind the ogre.

The ogre was caught by surprise but it quickly changed it's feelings and this time set Gwine who was further in the back as it's target. It started charging again. Bel's arrow stabbed into the ogre's left shoulder.

Zulu stood front of the ogre with his shield while swinging his bastard sword blocking the charge of the ogre. As expected the blade that was a meter long looked like a threat in the ogres eyes. It used it's club brush the attack away and blocked it.

Making use of that gap Toris who was next to Zulu lowered his body and while evading the club he stabbed his long sword into the right thigh of the ogre. On the opposite side Angela who was holding a shield as well was used her broad sword to keep it in check.

Miduchi who had gone around Toris used her magic scimitar to cut even further away at it's right thigh. With a feeling of slicing she managed to cut deeply into it. While pulling the blade back she managed to cut it's right arm as well. That attack cleanly entered through the forearm and of all things it cut straight through the bone in the forearm from midway through.

I guess it didn't realize that, the ogre went to swing it's club but after realizing it couldn't it let out a dull yell with a mix of surprise and anger. I guess it finally started to feel the pain, it fell to it's right knee, and tried to pick up the club with it's left hand.

"Ya~~!!"

There Ralpa went around Angela and after jumping up at 1 meter she used both of her hands to swing her {tomahawk} down aimed at it's head. It was the ideal attack reading the timing but the ogre who tried to defend itself with it's club was just a bit faster it seems. However, receiving Ralpa's attack I guess the club was cut halfway through, or it broke, it's length had been reduced to half.

Angela stood in front of Ralpa as she landed covering her.

"Hmph!!"

Zenom cut into the ogres left leg from behind. While the ogres posture collapsed even more from there Bel aimed and crushed it's right eye with an arrow. There's a distance of about 15 meters between Bel and the ogre. It's plenty of range to be called point blank. There's no way Bel would miss her target.

"E~i!"

Gwine charges in and thrusts her spear. Taking the spear in it's stomach the ogre glared at Gwine with a loathsome expression but Gwine pulled her spear out with all of her power without realizing that. It's guts came out from the cut stomach. In pain it let go of it's club and in a panic the ogre brought it's left hand to it's stomach, where Ralpa who had fixed her stance smashed her {tomahawk} into it's face.

I reflexively felt a bitter smile come to my face.

"That is, a "baseball" swing~"

I guess Ralpa's attack to it's face was the deciding blow, after the ogre's movements got clearly worse Toris, Zulu, and Angela all ganged up attacking it from all sides and it completely died. It's HP went beyond the minus and it went to where identify showed it as "Corpse(Ogre)".

We collected the magic stones and returned to the 6th floor.

Certainly it was just as Zenom said, most of our members should be able to somehow fight them one on one. I'm sure even Bel as long as she crushes one eye can circle around to it's blind spot and slowly cut it down. However, after all it's not an opponent that can be underestimated. That first attack with the club that Zenom evaded, I doubt there's anyone who can endure it. Even at best it'd be a bone fracture and if they took it to the head I'm sure it'd be instant death. After all if there's a large number of them it would be bad. There's no doubt if the ogre mage that supposedly uses spells is mixed in then it'll be a considerably tense fight.

However, I overlooked Miduchi's attack power in close combat. What was that, magic weapons are amazing~ I didn't think it would go that far. If we can find one it might be effective to use it ourselves rather than selling it right away.

Toris, Zulu, and Angela still have some awkward parts remaining but it seems they've started to get used to the sheild and if we split them into groups of two with Zenom, Ralpha, and Miduchi as the front line, Gwine as the shortstop, and Bel backing them up with arrows then I don't think it will be that difficult for them to win against three ogres without taking any injuries.

It's necessary to keep an eye on things a number of times I'm sure but if it's like this then exploring the 7th floor might be considerably fast. The paths are quite wide so I'm sure the number of teleport destinations is less as a result of that. Even if there isn't actually less I still feel it's the same as if in essence there's less.

The dinner Giberuti prepared for us was delicious.

Author's note: Occasionally including some spells.

“{Find.Trap}” Divination

(All elemental magic Lv. 4, void magic Lv. 5, consumed MP 26 void magic double)

Discover traps that have a large number of parts within range of sight. Effective duration is an instant.

“{Detect.Snare}” Divination

(All elemental magic Lv. 4, void magic Lv. 5, consumed MP 26 void magic double)

Discover traps that have a low number of parts within range of sight. Effective duration is an instant.

“{Detect.Life}” Divination

(earth magic Lv. 1, fire magic Lv. 1, void magic Lv. 4, consumed MP 10 void magic double)

Detect living creates within the valid range of effect. Basic range is a radius of 100 meters. During detection if nothing is specified it will detect all living creatures with a body weight of over 10 kg. Living creatures only includes up to birds, mammals, and reptiles. It doesn't react to fish, insects, and amphibians. Effective duration is an instant.

Chapter 160: Omen

Year 7444, Month 10, Day 8

We've returned from the dungeon. Excluding the first day we only explored the 7th floor for three days but this should be plenty. Just as we had predicted due to the fact that the passages are wide and it's bright the speed of exploring seems to be considerably fast. Also, I'll just say this as well. We still haven't arrived at the teleport room from the 7th floor to the 8th floor. Though there's some forked paths up until now all of the destinations we've teleported into have been dead ends.

We still haven't encountered an ogre mage but including the three on the first day we killed a total of 29 ogres. They came out in maximum groups of four but as long as I use magic to finish off one or two at first, then if we focus them down we're managing them. I think we've gotten quite a bit used to combat against ogres.

Though really, you know ogres, they're idiots on the same level as goblins, so you can easily get them caught up in traps, or rather leading them around. We tried doing a variety of experiments but as long as we have some distance then we can seriously defeat them safely. Of course it's also fine to use projectile weapons and attack spells as well. Ah, freezing them in ice and burying them in dirt is no good. It's not that it can't be done but when I just tried burying their lower bodies it was impossible. Just like the Horned Bears in the past, if I aim to cover it's entire body and suffocate it to death then it's possible but if I don't go that far then they manage to pull themselves out with pure strength. Though suffocating them to death is fine as well if we do that then the only one who gains experience points is me.

The correct answer was. Drugs. All you have to do is smear some paralysis drugs on a throwing knife and manage to hit with it. And, then when it can barely move you can slowly kill it. The magic paralysis drug (it's almost like Dereonola who tried to rape Bel in the past taught me though) that I used during my training of the spell {Remove.Paralyze} has taken a great role. We have Bel smear an arrowhead with plenty of it and then aim for their legs. If we run away for a bit then it's legs get numb and then if we put the same drug on the blades of swords then in a short while after cutting it the drugs will have circulated to the point where it can't do anything.

Incidentally the natural paralysis drug(I was surprised after hearing how it's made but it's the exact same as the one Myun taught me in the past) that can be made from the ingredients of Ganbi grass and green tree frog that Miduchi brought had almost no effect. The one that had the most effect was a paralysis drug that was made from some sort of mixture of the fluid secreted from the feelers of the {Scavenger Crawler} and magic stones. It's pretty cheap since the adventurers who use it are often ones who struggle against orks and hobgoblins on the 1st and 2nd floors. Since it was low enough that even the slave Derenola was able to buy it the sale price is at most 20,000 Z (2 silver coins).

I've tried using it on a number of different monsters up until now but there wasn't a monster it was this effective on. The {Cave Boars} on the 6th floor can keep moving around for 5–10 minutes even after taking it. It properly works on Orks and Hobgoblins but it's free to just freeze their lower bodies in ice. It seems that this paralysis drug isn't very effective unless it's against humanoid races. I found it strange why it wasn't used very often until now but since the only place {Scavenger Crawlers} are is the dungeon in Baldukk so it seems they don't circulate very often. Furthermore it seems there's a number of different mixtures for it but the cheapest one was the most effective kind. Just, if we buy too much of the stuff then the stock will run out quickly, and it'll seem suspicious.

【Paralysis Drug】

【Magic Stone.Alum.Scavenger Crawler Fluid.Ritto Leaves】

【State: Good】

【Manufacture Date: 7/6/7444】

【Value: 200/g】

【Endurance: -】

【Ability: Applies a magic-based paralysis when absorbed and inhibits voluntary movement.】

【Effect: Paralysis effect towards humanoids(most effective via oral intake)】

It looks like this with Identify but putting it frankly it's classified as a paralysis drug with a considerably weak effect. Recently whenever I bring in some feelers from the Scavenger Crawlers as thanks for buying them I buy a couple of different varieties of mixtures. If you rub them on the blade of your sword then they're about a charm and most of them don't work.

Furthermore, we still haven't found any sort special rooms like monster rooms on the 7th floor. Also, the only monsters we've encountered on the 7th floor were ogres and goblins. After carrying 29 ogres worth of magic stones into the magic tool shop and the owners eyes went wide in surprise. The average value price of them was 120,000. The sale price was 800,000 Z (80 silver coins) times 29 of them. That's 23,000,000 Z (23 gold coins). I wanted to combine them but I couldn't do it. After all the magic stones were only the size of the nail of a little finger, the color was light gray and close to white. It's impossible to combine them without a larger mother stone.

I only noticed after seeing the magic stone of the ogre but the magic stones of the ogres are all about the size of a little finger. The Horned Bear's was a lot bigger and the Death=Tyrant.Kin's magic stone was so large it's not even a comparison. Though in reverse when it gets to that size it's probably difficult to use since there's no way to fit it inside of a magic stone box on the average magic tool.

Since the total amount was large I was a bit worried he would refuse to buy them but he bought them with no problem. Certainly there are magic stones in the shop window that have sale prices of about 2,000,000 Z. Since the ogres magic stone is at best 1,000,000 Z it should be included in the goods he deals in.

With a smile on my face I gave out 46 silver coins to each person and Miduchi was surprised and, "Th..This much.." at a loss of words. Yeah~ buy whatever you like. I profited 20 gold coins after all. Furthermore, that's just from magic stones. It's a new record that's largely overwritten all of our previous records. Up until now our highest record was about 4,800,000 Z. We suddenly increased it by close to five times that.

We returned to the inn once and after leaving our bags and changing everyone went to the usual “Murowa” to eat and drink when some young adventurers came to greet us after hearing the rumors. When asking them, what rumors? and it seems that the old man from the magic tool shop put up a sign saying, “Singular Ogre Magic Stones Mass Arrival!!” It seems that thanks to that there’s rumors that someone made it to the 7th floor.

.....

Year 7444, Month 10, Day 9

One day later, after finishing my usual running, it was a short while after we all entered the 1st floor of the dungeon to do some training with spells. Toris and I were 200–300 meters away gathering the magic stones from corpses of gnolls while recovering from mana. Since Miduchi and Bel returned to the inn about an hour ago to recover their mana, Ralpa and Gwine are close to the teleport crystal taking shifts as they train.

“Al!”

“Al-san!”

and I heard a voice yell for me. Since there’s some distance the volume of the voice itself was pretty low. Toris and I exchanged short glances before dashing off towards the teleport crystal right away.

It seems that a different party teleported in to the teleport crystal. Ralpa and Gwine are standing on guard against the wall with their axe and spear ready. The ones they’re facing are..a full party of 10 members.

Ralpa and Gwine made openly relieved expressions when they saw Toris and I run up. There’s no one among the party they’re facing off against that I recognize the face of. I wonder what in the world happened?

“Ralpa, Gwine, what happened?”

Toris called out to them but I quickly said over that.

“It’s fine some come over here.”

I said while approaching as well. However, for them to have their weapons ready, is this an explosive situation? In a hurry I tried identifying each of the members of the party they’re facing off against but there wasn’t anyone particularly strange. Their ages are all in their teens. Almost all of them are the same age as us and a few of them are a bit older than that as well. If we sort them out then they're just men and the highest level one is 6. The lowest was 4.

It's difficult to imagine that these sort of {newbies} (probably) would suddenly attack the famous {Slaughterers} of Baldukk. In, which case I wonder if the idiot picked a fight again? How troublesome~

"Hey~ you all. I don't know what happened but those two women are our party members. If anything rude happened on our side then I'll apologize. Would you please forgive it?"

I said while calmly returning my long sword to my scabbard on the sword belt of my plain clothes. I don't have my armor or protectors on. On the bottom I have something like high-grade long underpants as underwear on and rubber-sole combat boots so if you were to go off my own individual sense then I probably look pretty strange. Toris has his shield with him but he's casually dressed in just a shirt and some pants as well. Of course, Ralpa and Gwine have their weapons as well but they're dressed casually as well.

They're dressed casually but..suddenly the blood raises to my head.

Ralpa's appearance was something like a kimono (yukata?) like shirt on the above part that opens on the front. She's wearing pants below that. Gwine is wearing an expensive button-up shirt and pants as well. Though everyone is wearing rubber-sole boots.

2-3 buttons from the that Gwine's shirt had been torn off. He must have realized that, Toris started yelling.

"Hey! You bastards! What is the meaning of this! What did you do to them!"

Seeing Toris yell with an tremendously threatening attitude not only did they not get afraid the adventurers just started grinning with unpleasant smiles on their faces. I looked at their equipment and was surprised, it wasn't just leather armor or even banded-mail and scale-mail, but there's even a guy wearing splint-mail. In just looks that appear strong.

"He~ what can you do with just four of you? We have ten people over here~"

“Since that Dwarf-sis’s spear is pretty high-quality, don’t damage it.”

“Hey, this elf’s shield and sword seem pretty high-quality as well~”

“I just saw this guys sword a minute ago but it seemed pretty expensive as well.”

“Ora~ you~ all. Obediently leave your weapons. We won’t particularly save you though.”

“It was true that you can rob all you want in Baldukk.”

“However, these guys, they spent so much money on their weapons that they’re just wearing normal clothes~ just clothes.”

“The dungeon you know~ is a place where poor people who can’t even afford armor will die right away you know?”

“Since it’s dangerous after all~! Gyahahaaha!”

“Ah~ It’s dangerous right!”

Ah, robbers right. I’ve comprehended it. They must be some idiots that washed down here from somewhere.

“Ah~, how bothersome~”

After saying that I froze all of their lower bodies in ice.

“Now then, Al-san, what should we do? They were saying something about robbing as they please in Baldukk though”

“Hey you all. I’ll put it obviously so even you can understand, putting your hands on these two women was a bad move. If these two were to seriously take you on the ones who die would be you all.”

“““Uuwa~ what the?”””

”“Hi...lc..ice..””

”“It’s cold!!””

”“It..It’s magic!?””

”“Sa..Save me~!””

“Hey, Ralpa, Gwine. What did they do to you?”

“Ah, since they suddenly teleported in we tried to open up the path for them but this guy suddenly started saying Gwine’s spear was high-quality so..”

Ralpa pointed at one of the guys frozen in ice while replying. The guy who was pointed at is saying something like, “n..no..”

“And then one of them grabbed around my shoulder and pulled it.”

Gwine starts looking for the buttons that fell off while saying.

“Hmph, you all, do you have anything to say?”

I turned and asked the adventurers and one of them opened his mouth.
Misseru.Beirun, 16 years old. Human, Viscount Beirun family fourth son. Level 5.

“Yo..You all, let us out right now. Now, cold...My..My old man is his majesty the King you know~!”

Don't lie, idiot...Though it might not be a complete lie. For example if the eldest daughter of Viscount Beirun is a beautiful young lady and if that eldest daughter were to run into that peerless King 17 years prior. Though back then it should have been before he inherited the throne but if it's that old man he might have done it. In that sort of case, since there's also the matter of reputation he might have been made into siblings of the eldest daughter when doing the naming ceremony.

““It..It's true!””

”“Misshi is his majesty Thomas's illegitimate child!””

I grinned and smiled and looked at Ralpa and Gwine. Just in case I need to say it.

“I don't know if it's true or a lie but they're saying this. Would you leave their treatment to me for a bit. Well~ it'll be no problem~”

And then I turned back around to the adventurers before continuing my words.

“Ah, I see. But you know. If it's the illegitimate child then you're not royalty after all. Now go to sleep. Good night.”

I said that and used the spell {Sleep Cloud} to put them all asleep without waiting for a response, then erased the ice.

“Well there's no need to go as far as killing them right?”

Since either way the only ones listening is our members I can say whatever I please. I thought that Ralpa and Gwine didn't have any intention of killing them either. Both of them nodded.

“Since they won’t wake up for the time being, shall we teleport them?”

We carried all of them to the teleport room and forcibly had them touch the the crystal rod. Ah, this is annoying. We piled three of them on top of each other and had each of them touch the crystal rod. We gave it our best and tried to have seven of them touch it. Toris uses his left hand to grab the crystal rod and his right hand to hold a couple of their hands on it. Ralph, Gwine, and I are using both of our hands to hold another six of their hands on it.

When Toris chanted the incantation “botsufunku” to return he and seven of them were teleported to the entrance. Just the same way we teleported together with the remaining three. After returning to one of the small rooms near the entrance and Toris stuck his head out of a different room. We dragged along the three others and threw them all into a pile sleeping like corpses and then we slowly went out to the entrance plaza where the Baldukk knight group was guarding.

It was a party that entered the dungeon a short 10 minutes prior. Even the guards still remembered their faces. That was turned in under charges of robbery by the {Slaughterers}. Obviously we haven’t touched their wallets or equipment at all. If you check their status then you can tell they’re not dead right away and I explained that I put them to sleep with a spell and they took them in with no problem at all. They’ll ask if they really tried robbing someone at the knight group building when they wake up. I think robbery was 15 lashes with the whip right. Since it’s just attempted then maybe it’ll be a bit lighter?

I don’t know if they can endure 15 times being whipped but if this man who calls himself the illegitimate child of the country really is one, I wanted to know how the King would judge him. If he’s really a fake then when the knight group is interrogating him then I’m sure he wouldn’t use that lie. Even if he tries using that sort of lie, I think an even worse fate is in store for him though.

If he just orders lashings with the whip like that then there’s no particular problem. If he uses some sort of reason to make the punishment lighter or heavier, I just want to know that reason. From here on out, I might be able to use it as a reference for something. If he makes it far too light or something, or even innocent, then what sort of reasons he used, it's some interest that's in pretty bad taste.

In the first place if he isn't dragged on the judgement day then I'm sure he'll come to my place to negotiate. In that case it wouldn't be bad to negotiate as well. Though I think that probably won't be the case. Though in my case I would be more relieved if he isn't punished in accordance with the law. I can make it into a favor after all.

.....

Year 7444, Month 11, Day 29

Our third day exploring the dungeon, we passed through the 6th floor and arrived at the teleport crystal room.

The time is 2 pm in the afternoon. It might not be half bad to go a bit longer and look around on the 7th floor for a bit.

We quickly advanced forward exploring the 7th floor and every time we enter the dungeon we bring back several tens of millions of Z in magic stones. In total since we reached the 7th floor we've earned just over 100,000,000 Z. However, let alone an ogre mage, there's no monster rooms, and obviously none of those strange altars either so we haven't been able to find any new magic tools or magic items.

However, that's in regards to the 7th floor and last week in an altar room that we passed through on the 6th floor, we finally discovered a magic item. Since the {Bracelet.Of.Dead.Body.To.Water} we found in August, it's our second magic item.

【Spear.Of.Piercing】

【Oak Wood.Iron】

【State: Good】

【Manufacture Date: 23/11/7444】

【Value: 1】

【Endurance: 15980】

【Ability: 190–240】

【Effect: Ignores the abilities of metal equipment(The abilities of equipment other than metal, including ones with magic properties are applied normally).】

It's a rather splendid weapon. The abilities are high on it as well. Since the only one in our party using a spear is Gwine, I let Gwine use it. If it's someone who can use magic then they can certainly feel the mana from it using {Detect.Magic}. Against monsters as the opponent it's nothing more than a slightly strong spear but if it's used against soldiers in war then it should play a pretty big role.

According to Gwine it seems it certainly is a bit easier to pierce through with it. If we were to sell it I wonder how much it would go for? Since I've heard magic weapons and armor easily go for several hundred million to billions of Z, I'm sure it's worth quite a bit. In the worst case, it should be fine to sell it if we need some money.

.....

Year 7444, Month 11, Day 30

While holding the bento Giberuti made for us, everyone teleported into the 7th floor. After that we blew through ogres and goblins while proceeding forward and we arrived at the entrance of something like a plaza with a diameter of 500 meters or so. There's not even a single weed growing in the plaza. It's a dreary circular area like a desert. According to Ralpa it seems you can enter it from the eastern side.

This is the first time we've found a place like this since we came to the 7th floor.

I don't feel anything particularly strange looking at the plaza. Nothing gets caught in the spells for detecting traps either. Rather there's not even a single trap on the 7th floor though. We can tell there's four other paths like the one we took to reach the plaza. I don't feel like it can't be just a bit intersection but if we go off the theory of the dungeon of Baldukk then it should be correct to think of this as a monster room. However, nothing is getting picked up in my {Detect.Life}.

Up until now we still haven't arrived at the teleport room for the 7th floor the same as before. In the floors above this while there were obviously a lot of places with dead ends but on the routes to the teleport room while there were more or less at times, there was always at least one monster room. If this is a monster room then that would make this area the correct path.

“This place..might be a monster room. Though it doesn’t seem like there’s any monsters but let’s move forward carefully I guess..”

After confirming everyone had nodded, we stepped foot into the desert.

Chapter 161: Worth

Year 7444, Month 11, Day 30

Ah, of course we aren't heading straight towards the center of the desert. We're just walking along the wall.

We entered this pseudo-monster room from the Eastern side, the 3 o'clock position, and then we're circling around clockwise towards the 6 o'clock position, the Southern direction as we proceed. Our feet sink into the sand and it's difficult to walk.

Everyone is remaining cautious as we proceed for a short while but no monsters in particular appeared or came to attack us, so maybe this isn't a monster room? and just as I started thinking that it happened.

In the direction of the center of the room the sand suddenly started rise and almost as if it was a mole's burrow it stretched out towards our direction. The speed is about as fast as an adult can walk. If we take into consideration that it's moving inside of the sand then it's an unexpectedly high speed. Since Bel noticed that ahead of everyone else she warned us.

"Look! Something is coming!"

Without hesitation I gave out the order.

"Spread out!"

This is strange, I just used the spell {Detect.Life} a moment ago. Even though that mole's nest seemed to rise up only a bit over 10 meters away from here I don't get why it wasn't caught in it. Obviously everyone in the party was detected by it. However, right now isn't the time to be bothering over that.

In any case, for the time being the opponent only seems to be one (it's one right?), it seems like it would be best to scatter out it's targets for starters and once it shows itself we can use spells to finish it off. I put my bayonet on my shoulder and stretched out both of my hands towards the direction the mole's nest is approaching. It might be good to shoot it before it comes out but the sand might dampen the power. Ah, well, I guess it's fine.

"I'm shooting!"

After I said that I used the spell {Stone Heavy Catapult} and sent one telephone pole into the front of the mole's nest. Just as I hoped, the telephone pole that went flying at high speed stabbed sharply into the front of it and probably pierced through the target inside of the sand. After taking the hit from the telephone pole, the mole's nest which was heading towards Zulu suddenly rose up scattering sand all over as if it exploded.....

This is bad~ what the hell is that? It's deep red and purple outer skin seems to have a thickness of about 1 meter. On the end there's something like a circular hole or a mouth and there's countless small sharp blade-like teeth inside of it.

【

【Asexual/13/7/6925.Larvae Purple Worm】

【State: Stab Wound】

【Age: 519 Years Old】

【Level: 10】

【HP: 1390(1740) MP: 51(51)】

【Strength: 45】

【Speed: 7】

【Dexterity: 1】

【Endurance: 42】

【Special Skill: Highly Efficient Digestive System】

【Special Skill: Burrowing】

The damage from the telephone pole was roughly halved. In the first place, what in the world is that, it's cheating right!

Furthermore it's still a larva. What in the world would it be like if it turned into an adult!? Even if I freeze it I feel like it would break out. Once it reaches that size I feel like the matter of Strength really doesn't make much difference, really. However, I'm sure it's at least worth trying.

Attack spells starting flying from everyone soon and stabbed into the huge earthworm consecutively. However, it did almost no damage. Without delay I started moving to the area where it's body seems to be and hardened it with a 5 meter cube of ice..ga~!!! It failed. Since it's an earthworm after all, of course it's body is long.

The huge earthworm brought out the rest of it's body not frozen from inside of the sand and started struggling around with it's frozen head. Simultaneously it started eating the ice from inside. From inside of it's mouth-like hole several smaller mouths appeared and they're biting at the ice. At the same time it's moving it's body forward through the portion of ice it's eaten. If it's like that then it's head will probably make it out again in another couple dozen seconds or so.

Something like a huge earthworm with it's head covered in ice struggling all over the place to try and get that off, it's too dangerous to approach. After all that ice has a weight of over 100 tons. If we were to get hit by that there's no way to survive. Thanks to the ice the level of attack spells everyone can use have become completely useless. However, we earned some precious time.

“Run past it!”

After hearing my orders everyone started running at full speed. I turned around while running but I could see it still swinging it's head covered in ice around in agony in the same place. Hmph, it seems it can't move backwards. And in that case, after it breaks the ice, it would either have to open hole to burrow in the sand or slide along the surface.

It was then that some electricity passed by my side cutting through the air aimed at the huge earthworm. Miduchi must have used the spell {Lightning Bolt}. Idiot, since it's close to pure water it shouldn't pass water almost at all. And, that's what I was thinking and was about to say something but the electricity Miduchi fired ran along the surface of the ice and arrived at the portion that wasn't covered in ice. It seems it properly did some damage.

When the huge earthworm took the electricity it started intensely squirming around and most of it's body that was in the sand came out. Cheers came from everyone. Then I'll hit it with one as well. However, using {Chain Lightning}. Furthermore I'll hit it with one with plenty of increased power! An even thicker blue electricity surged forth from my hand towards the area that wasn't covered in ice. The sound of the air being violently torn echoes out as the sparks from the electricity cover the body of the huge earthworm.

The huge earthworm squirmed around even more violently but after taking electricity multiple times and the attack spells of the other members it just started convulsing and stopped moving.

It's HP is -84. The condition has changed to Death.

When I tried slowly confirming it's status and wow it seems it's lifespan is 10,000 years. 500 years really is just a small larva. Also, after all it seems they can't move backwards and the majority of it's body structure is made up of the digestive system and muscle. Since it has a digestive system that can even digest inorganic substances, something organic like a single person can be digested in roughly 12 minutes. It's eyes have degenerated but it seems it finds it's prey by detecting the vibrations that pass through the ground. I wonder if it's normally eating ogres and goblins?

Putting myself aside, a considerable amount of experience points went to Miduchi. Well her level was originally pretty low so I'm sure it would be good for her to level up some more. It took us three hours to find the magic stone. The magic stone was the size of an adults fist on the same level as the Death=Tyrant.Kin but the value wasn't that high. It's color isn't as white either. Though I say that, there's no mistake it's worth quite a bit. With identify the value of just this one is 3,070,000. I guess that means if we sell it then it would be over 21,000,000 Z. Out of the magic stones taken from just a single monster, excluding the Death=Tyrant.Kin it's the largest one we've found. I wonder what the Vampires was?

After that we proceeded down the passage to the south of the room(?) but once again it was a dead end.

We returned to the 6th floor heartbroken. Even I can tell everyone's shoulders dropped as they're worrying about it. In about 10 hours the room boss will revive. Though I don't think it's limited to just a {Purple Worm} next time so I can understand the gloom.

.....

Year 7444, Month 12, Day 4

Yesterday we returned from the dungeon and it's another three day holiday starting today. We couldn't get to that monster room since then. It's all just dead ends again. Since we predicted that the magic stone of the {Purple Worm} would sell more in a magic tool store of the capital, we haven't sold it yet.

During this holiday but it seems that Miduchi is going to confine herself to the dungeon together with Zulu and Angela to earn some experience and Ralpa and Gwine were getting excited about eating and drinking at a new restaurant that just opened up. Giberuti said he was going to do trial and error on a new menu so there's no choice but to leave him alone. Toris and Bel are back to flirting the same as usual so I didn't try calling out to them in the first place.

If Zenom didn't say he was going to sub-Baron Logflat's place then I probably would have confined myself to the dungeon as well. However, since Zenom is going to the capital I decided to go to my company in the capital while selling off the magic stone. I don't have any intention of staying the night but after our business is done we made plans to meet up at my store.

Zenom is riding Miduchi's horse and I'm riding my own as we split up ways at the entrance to Rombertia. I was planning to stop by the magic tool shop before going to the company and change it to cash but I thought again it would be fun to show off such a huge magic stone to Anna and Hanna so I decided to stop my Greed Company on my horse first.

"Ah, Presichent~ chank you for your works"

Hanna who was sweeping in front of the store managed to find me quickly and lowered her head.

"Ah~ Hanna, have you been well? I'll show you something good. Is Anna inside?"

I connect my horse to the stake in front of the shop and after taking off my bag with the magic stone inside I called out to Hanna.

"Eh? Something good? What is it?"

Hanna followed after me as I entered the store.

"Hanna! Did you finish sweeping?"

Seeing that Yotlen put both hands at her hips and warned her.

“Well it’s fine, I got my hands on a bit of something good. I doubt you’ll see it very often so pardon her a bit.”

When I calmed her down and Yotlen said with an apologetic face.

“No..if the president says that then..”

“And, where’s Anna?”

“I just had her go off to buy some lunch..I’m sorry.”

“Ah, I see. Then I’ll wait until she comes back. Give me some tea.”

After I said that I smiled at Kamnal who was looking over here while hiding in the shadow of a pillar from further in the store. Kamnal who’s still small is sucking his finger while making a face like “Who’s this person?” and looking over here. I sat down on the reception use sofa and called him over before he timidly came.

“Kanna, here, have some candy~”

I took a small bag of candy pieces that I purchased on the way out from my bag with the magic stone and after taking one out from inside I smiled and showed it to Kamnal and approached me. After letting him suck on one, I patted his head and Hanna seems to have made the bean tea.

“President, I’m sorry as usual.”

Yotlen lowered her head apologizing for the trouble but I just waved my hand and stopped her and and said that while patting Kamnal’s head as he was in a daze with sucking the candy. I just remember my nephew Rentaro that I used to dote on in my past life. He doesn’t resemble him at all though.

“It’s fine. If I can buy Kanna’s favor with this much then it’s cheap. Right!”

“And also, Yotlen, I’m giving you a raise in salary for your wages starting next year. Yours will be 300,00 per month, Anna will be 130,000, and Hanna will be 100,00.”

“Eh? Thank you very much! I’ll give it my best effort!”

“I think you worked very well for this past year. But, as expected I don’t think there will be anymore large raises like this one for a while.”

After this as long as there’s no problem I’ll raise everyone’s salaries by 10,000 Z per year. Once Kamnal gets older enough that he gets counted in the individual tax and starts working I’ll employ him as well. If they have salaries of this level along with the savings from selling the store I’m sure they’ll have no problem living normally.

While we were talking about recent events Hanna carried out the bean tea. I thanked her and offered Hanna a piece of candy as well and she started licking away at it happily.

“I’m home. President, thank you for your work.”

While I was sipping at the bean tea Anna returned. It seems she went to buy some black rye bread. She did say it was purchasing lunch. As expected of Rombertia being the capital, there’s places cooking bread every day. When I lived in Bakuddo there was nothing like a bakery so every household cooked about a weeks worth of bread at once and from the next day on you had to bite into hard bread with all your power.

“Ah~ Anna, come over here. I’ll show you something good.”

I give Anna a piece of candy to suck on as well and took the magic stone of the {Purple Worm} out of the bag and put on the table.

“Ua~ it’s big!”

“This, is it a magic stone?”

“It’s extremely big right.”

“It came out of a monster we defeated in the dungeon in Baldukk the other day. There’s not many of them out there with this size right?”

I came to brag about it and in additionally,

“Check it’s status, even like this it’s a singular magic stone, isn’t it amazing?”

I said and held my nose high.

“It’s quite impressive..as expected of the president.”

Yotlen let out a sigh seeing the status. It seems like Anna and Hanna don’t really get it. But, I'm sure they haven't seen a magic stone this large before so it should be a good experience. Though I don't know what kind of experience.

"By the way, as expected when it reaches this point I was worried about if the magic tool store in Baldukk would buy it. Zenom..That dwarf though, Zenom said if it's this large of a singular magic stone with this much mana in it then it might not be easy to set a price on, so I brought it to the capital. Yotlen do you know anything in that regard?"

When I said that Yotlen made a slightly troubled expression and,

"It's my first time seeing a magic stone this splendid and the ones I've normally used are small after all..I'm very sorry, but I don't know of any."

and said that. If I think about it then that's true. If you're just living normally you would see or use something like this...

"I see, well it's fine. I guess I'll try going to a big magic tool shop."

I finish drinking my bean tea before putting it back in my bag and standing up.

"After this, Zenom should come here. Since he's waiting for me offer him some tea or something."

After I said that I got on my horse and left the store.

.....

Magic tool shop {Splendor}. It's the largest magic tool shop in the capital. After walking through the entrance and as expected I could tell it's quite a bit different from the magic tool shops in Keel and Baldukk. The store interior was attentively cleaned and there's not a single bit of dust. The walls inside of the store are lined up with lightning magic tools that have high-class designs. Of course, there's also stoves of various sizes displayed and things like {steamers} or ovens for baking bread, {refrigerators}, {freezer}, {humidifier}, {air conditioner}, {dryer}, and various types of consumer appliance like things. Though I say that, they're not all the proper types like the ones we found in the dungeon.

The {refrigerator} here is the type which can only fit about four cans of beer and the {humidifier} isn't intended for a room but just blowing water vapor on your face, most of them are just for aesthetic use or basically toys. About the only decent one I think is the {dryer}? I don't need it though. Those sorts of toy-like consumer appliance magic tools were boasting some considerably high prices. The reason why the security is pretty light is probably because there's only fakes in the displays I'm sure.

I briskly walk through the display area of products and after going to the counter further back I asked the shop clerk or owner or whatever to purchase a magic stone.

"How many is it?"

Since they asked politely, I'm sure the quality of their clients must be pretty high. Since the things they're selling are what they are after all. It's probably a store meant for nobles.

"Just one."

After I said that they definitely didn't look down on me but I could see their face was a bit disappointed.

"It's this. It's from a monster we defeated in the dungeon of Baldukk the other day."

I grabbed the magic stone from my bag and put it on the counter. It's the size of an adults fist and has a weight of about 1.5 kg, an exceptionally large one. The color itself is grey though. Seeing that the store clerk opened their eyes in surprise and started taking out the weighing magic tool.

"This is..quite large indeed. I'm sure there would be demand for it from our customers who make use of large scale magic tools. It's a splendid mother stone.."

and showed admiration.

"After all will the price be based on the amount of mana in it?"

and I asked that,

"Of course. However, if it's this large it seems like it could have quite a few merged together with it so there's no mistake it's worth more than just the value of it's mana. Would you mind leaving it with us for a few days?"

and said. Since there's no particular problem I nodded. In addition, while the store clerk was checking my status and taking memos,

“That magic stone is taken from just a single monster but will the value not get any higher?”

and I said that.

“Ho! It's singular with this size, and tint..it might take a bit of time to put a price on it. Please excuse me, {status open}..I see now..this isn't a matter of just mana. The only thing regrettable is that the tint isn't very good.”

I shrug my shoulders while,

“Well there's no problem if it sells for a decent price. Please take care of it for me.”

I said that and left the store.

Two days later, a messenger came to “Boil Manor” in Baldukk from {Splendor}. It seems the magic stone sold. The price was.. a bit over 56,000,000 Z. Magic tool shop {Splendor} seems to have profited quite a bit in a matter of just two days. I did too though.

It was the sale of a magic stone but since it seems to have sold as a work of art (if it's that price then it's probably as an art piece), so the luxury tax occurs on it but the profit is still big. When I told everyone about it they cheered. The bonus exceeded 1 gold coin per person (1,000,000 Z) after all.

I became a bit wiser thanks to this matter. Though I had predicted it a bit but it's been confirmed that large singular magic stones sell for a high price. I couldn't test it until now after all. You could say it's regrettable about the magic stone of the Death=Tyrant.Kin but if I really wanted to I could go and defeat a monster on the same level as it. Since it's frightening I don't want to go though.

However..the places which have money really have tons of it.

Chapter 162: Worry

Year 7444, Month 12, Day 13

Our exploration of the 7th floor is proceeding smoothly. It's so smooth that it's starting to seem frightening. We were able to gain a considerable number of magic stones from ogres this time and have gotten quite used to combat against them as well so if there's a small number even without me they can defeat them. As long as it's not a monster room, it seems they can manage the 7th floor plenty without me. Though as expected since the number of times we've entered the monster rooms on the 6th and 7th floors(though we've only seen one on the 7th floor) can't be called a lot in the first place it's still too frightening if I'm not accompanying them starting from the 6th floor.

It should be about a good time. The next day after we returned from the dungeon, I brought along a few allies and came to "Slave Store, Ronlail".

"Ronlail-san, have you still not obtained a slave that can use the shield?"

"Ah, Greed-sama, I'm very sorry. When it comes to a slave that can use the shield there really is only those who become prisoners from wars. Recently, they haven't appeared on the market...I'm truly very sorry that I've not been able to be of assistance to you..."

The madam said that and lowered her head. How troubling. Ah, come to think of it I heard from my parents that there's a dispatch of troops early next year. If a war prisoner comes along from there then they should arrive around early summer of next year. I have no intention of getting impatient but if possible while everyone is still young, I want to let them experience various things when their heads are still soft.

But, well I guess it's fine. In the two and a half years since we came to Baldukk I think we've passed through everything a bit too smoothly. Of course, we've experienced some considerable dangers a couple of days as well but in the end I'm sure it's because luck is on our side that we were able to make it this far without losing anyone. After leaving Ronslail's store all of us entered a restaurant and after taking a table in the corner we ordered some tea and started talking.

The members here right now other than me is Miduchi and the irrit-ouple. If Zenom were to be included in there and it's the members we often gather in while spending our days off recently. Today Zenom is together with Ralpha and Gwine as they went to buy clothes in the capital. It seems that Ralpha is going to use him to help choose. Even though I say choose it's just the cloth though. Since it will take some time to finish I'm sure she intends it to be a Christmas present or something. That's why I'm grateful we can talk in Japanese today.

Ah, the clothing shops on Orth have places with pre-made clothes hanging up as well but when it comes to high quality goods after all they're tailor made. Though it's uncommon for commoners to buy tailored clothes. You could say that since we have quite a few clothes we're living quite wealthy lifestyles. That's why I know in most cases when you order some clothes from a tailor they're usually done in about two weeks. There's not a wide variety of cloth and most of the clothes you can have tailored is things like Kimonos from Japan. There's not much need to have them fit to the body like a suit.

Well, as expected we reincarnated people still have a bit of resistance to wearing a tailor made kimono as casual clothing. Hanging clothes like yukata's are often worn as casual clothing but after all western style clothes are more common. Sandals, pants, and a shirt that doesn't open from the front that you wear by putting over your head. Excluding the sandals those are the types of clothes that line up with yukatas as being common. Women are fine in either pants or skirts. Though since we never know when we'll get dragged into a disturbance no one really wears skirts.

"..and with that sort of feel. That's why a regiment often points to one type of the largest units of soldiers. Normally, at something or other station place there will be over one regiment there is what it means. A stationing place put easier is something like a base. However, since there's no naval ports or air ports, the old Japanese world of army base might be the most appropriate. I don't know about foreign countries but the American army doesn't use something or other base for their army stations but rather camp something or other right?"

Recently during our days off I've been using my spare time to teach them some basic military training. Since we've still only just started it's really just the basics. Ralpa and Gwine joined at first as well but they start falling asleep and can't remember it when I test them so they've already given up. It might be fine to teach Zulu and the others as well but one day I thought it would be good for Toris and Bel to gain experience commanding so I'll leave the slaves to them later. Since it's an important job for a commander to raise other commanders.

"..That's right. Normally there's a variety of different types of soldiers and they call these branches of the army but those gather together to make an army. When they gather these branches together and reach a point where they can deal with combat in any situation they call that group a division. A brigade is below that. A regiment is one more step below that. I don't know much at all about the wars from the era before the warring states era in the past. The only branches I know are cavalry, infantry, and archers. Though among the infantry there were spears-men and such as well. However, Orth has feel like it's even further in the past. If it was Japan then maybe about Kamakura? Ah, I guess it's better than that, I see. You sure are knowledgeable."

Unexpectedly Miduchi had a bit of knowledge about soldiers in the past. In some meanings she might be the most superior one in the {Slaughterers}. She knew a bunch of things about monsters that we didn't know as well.

"..Which~ is why, putting aside the rough tactics and large strategies most of the tactics I learned aren't really all that useful on Orth I'm sure. Since the weapons are too different. Ah, Toris, that's exactly right. It would come somewhat in handy if both sides had guns, explosives, and airplanes. Though if we're the only ones with them then I'm sure it would be somewhat useful as well but in that case using power to overwhelm is fine. This is the ideal. In the case where both sides only have bows as the projectile weapons then the tactics I learned aren't all that useful. Since normally tactics are devised by the characteristics and properties of equipment after all."

The tactics I learned are used during combat between armies where both sides have modern day equipment. Putting it frankly, when they're wearing plate-mail and equipped with a spear it's pretty useless. The speed of advance is too different and I'm not really familiar with the types of terrains horses can pass through, it doesn't seem like a large scale urban combat would occur, and since there's no aid from tanks or airplanes after all. Of course it might be possible to apply them in some places but since the condition for them is the existence of firearms with high precision I'm sure there's not much room to apply them.

“..It's a weird way of putting it but if they have the same type of equipment that the members of the SDF have and equal numbers I'm sure anyone could win against the armies of this world. However, that is under the assumption that they know how to make use of that equipment. They might even be able to win under the commander of an elementary schooler from Japan. But, in the case where they don't have any knowledge, even if the greatest general from this world commands then they might end up losing to an army commanded by the worst general in this world.

If you don't know that you need to pull the trigger to fire a gun when it's all you've got and it's nothing better than a club. Even if you do know, if you don't know things like how to reload the ammo, the valid range, and how much damage it can do then you probably can't use it any different than a bow. And since fighting your enemy directly and cutting them down with a sword is seen as an honor, they might see fighting from a distance as cowardly as well.”

I was taught about the tactics of wars on Orth a bit by brother and in order to gain even more information about it I sent Kuro and Mary into the knight group have them learning there. Since they have the common knowledge a Japanese person should know as well, they should be able to calmly analyze the differences between modern day wars as well. Though I also feel like I'm holding my expectations a bit too high for them as well.

“Hn? Guns huh, guns are still a bit difficult.”

If I were to try and make them I'm pretty sure I can. The type that is a lot better than a matchlock even. But, as expected it won't go that easily. There's no hope in regards to something like mass production. Even when it comes to bullets if you don't make enough there's no meaning and gunpowder is necessary as well. Of course I'm still researching them though.

I think it will be once I start to make use of {Transmute.Rock.To.Mud}. Since it seems you can take out the metals that you're sorting in any “form” you like.

Let alone things like coils and springs, it should be even possible to make the small metal parts detonators use. I know the structure of simple guns but when it comes to the shapes of the small parts of a type-64 rifle then there's no way I could remember them. The type of bolt action gun that was used in a past world war by infantry should be plenty. It doesn't matter if it's a clip or a box, anything is fine but if I can make it function with a magazine then I'd have nothing more to say. Though regardless of what it is there's nothing I can do about it at the current point.

Although, if it's the types of small arms that I'm supposing, if I can just prepare over 50 of them and plenty of ammunition, along with rifleman who have been trained, and then if they have a few other small handheld individual firearms, then even if it's 5,000 people lead by the first knight group I think we could probably win while making use of just small scale magic. At the very least it should be possible to corner them into retreat before we take any large damage. Ah, I guess they call that winning.

In any case, these last few months, I've been using several hours on our days off to teach these guys the details of things I know that seem like they would be useful...There's no guarantee that I'll always be able to be on their side after all.

.....

That night, we intended to wait until Zenom and the others returned before having dinner but they never came back. Since Zenom is using Miduchi's horse and Ralpa and Gwine are using my horse, even if they just let it walk a bit and take breaks along the way it only takes 2-3 hours one-way. As expected when the time passed 7 pm it was pretty much pitch black outside. Miduchi and I were a bit worried but the three slaves and Annoy-ouple said "Ralpa and them aren't children and Zenom is with them. Even if we don't worry too much I'm sure they'll suddenly appear tomorrow. I'm sure Ralpa just drank too much and they couldn't control her so they'll stay in the capital tonight right?" and didn't seem very worried.

If it's said like that then it certainly seems true. It seems but even if she's like Ralpa is usually pretty careful about staying safe. Though she's always drinking it's never reached the level of drunkenness where she can't ride a horse. She should also know that the capital is different from Baldukk where everyone knows the faces and names of the {Slaughterers} as well but...Well, certainly if Zenom is with them then there should be nothing worry about.

We ate dinner at a public restaurant called “Rasurun” which is famous for it’s chicken pies and even though everyone started late today since the usual heavy drinkers aren’t around we ended up finishing things early and returned to our inn. After returning to the inn, just in case I tried confirming it but Zenom and the others still hadn’t returned.

I returned to my room and when I was writing some stuff on the desk Miduchi came to my room.

“Hey, I’m a bit worried though..”

“It’s just as Toris said, Zenom’s there, I’m sure they’re fine. Wait just a minute, let me finish writing this.”

After I replied Miduchi made some tea and is sitting in a chair.

“Did, you already take a shower? That was fast.”

“No, not yet. Since I was a bit worried..I thought we might end up going out.”

“Hn? I, don’t reallylikedoingitwithoutshowering.”

No, it’s not to the point of hating it though. It’s manners to get rid of the sweat right.

“Really~ What are you saying! Aren’t you worried? Two young girls still haven’t returned you know?”

“That’s why I said, since Zenom is there it’s fine. In worst case there’s always my company as well, even if they end up completely broke there’s place they have to stay. In the first place, you said going out after this, but we have no method of transportation? Even if we were to go to Rombertia right after this about the only places I can think to check are my company and a brothel managed by one of Zenom’s acquaintances? There’s no method of finding them.”

When I said that and Miduchi seems to have accepted it.

“N, I guess that’s true..Then, I’ll go take a shower.”

She said that and left the room. Now then, I guess I'll go to a shower after I finish writing this as well. Ah, what I was writing just now is a letter to Bakuddo, or rather, it's more like an instruction document for production. Documents regarding my predictions of the demand in the capital from here on out. I wrote out the situation in the capital as much as possible as well. To the level that we won't get in the way of Webdos Companies business that is. I think if mother who should probably be remaining in the village sees it then she should be able to make the appropriate decisions.

I'm sure someone will come near the end of this month but if I write out the instructions on a letter before hand then I'm sure they'll be able to make preparations easier in the village then just by word of mouth. In the first place, even when they come near the end of the year I'm sure father or older brother won't be accompanying them. It's just my prediction but at the very least sister-in-law Shani will come together with the squires for the deliveries and then after packing the carriages full of supplies they'll head straight to the battlefield like that. They'll only make it back to the village by early summer of next year or so.

I finish my writing and drank the rest of the tea Miduchi left.
It was lukewarm.

Thinking I'll go and take a shower, just as I stood up from my chair Miduchi returned.

"Ah, sorry about that~ I'll go and take a shower really quick."

"N, it's fine. But, this inn, while the shower room itself is convenient, since there's only one on the first floor it's inconvenient you can't come out in just a bath towel."

That can't be helped right.

"Besides, I don't dislike your sweat."

"What are you saying, are you a pervert?"

"I'm fine as a pervert as well. Since it's only in front of you."

I see. If you're fine with that then that's fine.

.....

Year 7444, Month 12, Day 14

The next morning, I woke up before dawn together with Miduchi and while showering I also washed my face. In addition I finished off brushing my teeth and after returning to the room I grabbed the knit trash can on the side of the bed and took it to the small incineration furnace in the back of the inn to get rid of. Since most guests don't have much trash or even if they did it wouldn't be much at all so the brat of the inn gets rid of it when he cleans the room, but I mean, these past few months, some types of trash that I somehow don't want the brat to see have occurred. When I arrived at the place to throw trash away and there under the slowly brightening sky Bel was holding a trash can with a troubled expression.

Somehow it's difficult to look at each others face right? I didn't want to run into anyone either.

However, it can't be helped since we've met.

It would be strange not to greet each other as well.

"Morning."

"Ah, Good morning.."

Her face turned red from the embarrassment.

Right.

After we greeted each other I was looking in a different direction.

Since Bel moved away from the front of the incineration furnace I approached to throw stuff away as well. Since the lid of the incineration furnace is cast metal it's considerably heavy. After opening the lid I tried not to look inside while flipping over my trash can.

"..Four!"

It was seen. There's no tissues and paper is a luxury item. It's unthinkable to wrap them up before throwing them away.

"..More than."

"ha ha.."

Ah, really, pardon me from this. I can't do anything but make an embarrassed bitter smile.

"Miduchi-san, I'm envious.."

"ha ha.."

I see.

"Before it was even more.."

"..ha ha.."

"..We can't afford to lose."

I'm sorry for your loss.

Toris, I won't forget about you~

You were a good customer.

You should have been able to even beat that King in count in a single night.

Even if you return to being a good customer again starting tonight I'm pleased as well..don't die from kidney failure.

While still holding the trash cans we separated at the second floor. Bel and Toris are on the third floor after all.

Just as Miduchi and I were leaving the inn to do our morning run, Zulu and Angela came along and Toris and Bel had already finished their preparations. Toris was looking at me with a bad expression. Like I could care less about being criticized over something like that. Say your complaints directly to your woman.

Zenom and the others still hadn't returned by noon. It's just a mere 10 Km. Furthermore the road connection Rombertia and Baldukk is maintained well and safe. Even if you include moving through the town that only adds another 2-3 Km but I'm sure it's a distance that even the slow walkers Gwine and Zenom can cover in 3 hours.

While eating lunch together with Miduchi, as expected I've started to get worried. Without drinking any tea we finished our meal and returned on the way to our inn, we ended up running into Giberuti who was looking for seasonings so I called out to him and ordered him to call Zulu and Angela to our inn, and then we returned. It was confirmed that the annoy-ouple isn't eating lunch outside when they ordered something like a bento for two when we were all eating breakfast together. Even without worrying about it I'm sure we'll find them stuck together in their room so it's fine to ignore them.

After telling Miduchi who was making a displeased expression to go and call them from their room on the fourth floor, I returned to my room and I changed into my armor and put the protectors on. I put my sword into its scabbard and that on my hip before descending to the lobby. I told Miduchi to put her leather armor on and come after properly equipping herself as well.

"Since I heard you called and.."

Zulu was waiting in the lobby. It seems Angela still hasn't come.

"Yeah, Zenom and the others still haven't returned. We're going to the capital after this. What's your plans for today?"

"There's no problem."

Zulu replied while still looking down. Don't lie. Didn't you just say last week that you match your days off with that Laios sister.

"Eh? Is that?"

"Yes."

Hmph.

"I see, then sorry but come with us to the capital after this."

"I understand."

Angela and Giberuti came running in after that. They must have noticed my appearance and serious expression, they kneeled in front of me like Zulu.

"Ah, Angela, sorry about today. Are your plans open for today?"

"There's no problem."

"So both of you no plans...Though that's fine you know..you come together with Zulu and us to the capital."

"I understand."

"Also, Giberuti, sorry but you keep an eye on things here. Stay here for today. If no one comes back by night then it's fine if you return to your inn and sleep."

"I understand..so you won't ask me if I have any plans for the day I see."

This fellow sure does say jokes to lighten the mood at just the right times.

“Che..Shut~up. Since you’re always buying new seasonings with your own money I was thinking of giving you a raise next year but I’ll stop?”

I said that while laughing as well but I took some silver coins from my pocket and handed them to Giberuti while saying, “It’s no good today but use some money on yourself sometimes.” It was just as Miduchi came down the stairs. Just as I told her she’s wearing her leather armor and a robe that goes down to her waist.

“I think that Toris-san and Bel will come soon as well.”

In a few minutes Toris and Bel came down as well. I told them that we’re going to meet Zenom and the others since they still haven’t returned and to go put their equipment on and then waited for a bit longer. I told Zulu and Angela to just go get their swords and returned them to their inn. When Toris came back down he wasn’t wearing his leather armor modified into banded-mail. It might just be my imagination but his facial color doesn’t look very good but his expression is lively and his eyes had a radiance. In comparison Bel looked a bit unsatisfied. Wring Toris out later to make up for this.

In another 20 minutes there’s a passenger carriage that goes to the capital. I don’t know if we can ride it with six people but if we can’t then we’ll leave behind Zulu and Angela.

Side Story 24: In the Case of Heiuchi Yoko (Age 17 at time of accident)

“No~ I’m glad I was able to buy it~ Thanks for accompanying me~”

In front of me Wakana said that to Misa as we got on the bus. I follow after Wakana and get on and then we all moved to the priority seats lined up on the front of the bus. I sat down next to Wakana, and after placing the obligation chocolate I just bought on top of my lap I exchanged glances with Wakana and smiled. It seems we’ll somehow be able to return to school by the time it ends.

Today is Valentine’s Day but Misa accompanied me, Yukino, and Wakana as we snuck out of school to go shopping since forgot to buy our obligation chocolate. Putting aside myself and Wakana, if Misa and Yukino who let alone class-wide, could be considered some of the cutest in the entire school disappear from before lunch I’m sure about now all the boys are going insane.

Today with Wakana, we laughed together that about now the boys of our class would be screaming in despair.

Wakana and I have known each other for a long time and we could be considered best friends. Since the time we were in elementary school when Wakana transferred in, we’ve always spent time together with the two of us. Today when Wakana saw that I forgot my obligation chocolate at school and was turning pale, she realized she was playing with my yesterday as well and got pale together with me. It was then that we realized Yukino seemed to have forgotten it as well and started talking about just going all out and skipping out of class with the three of us to go and buy some.

However, since it seems that Yukino didn’t have the courage to sneak out and buy some obligation chocolate herself, she invited Misa who’s shes on good terms with and the four of us decided to go together. It’s completely just an escape from class to accompany us for Misa but for some reason her expression seems bored. If you were to ask me, rather than Yukino who always has a prickly and sharp attitude, it’s easier to deal with Misa who while always looks tired still acts friendly to anyone so I welcomed her accompanying us.

We bought chocolate at a department store in West Shinjuku and it's only obvious that we got back on the bus to return to school. I would be troubled if you criticized me for that but even if we didn't pick the bus we could have taken the method of riding the train to nearby station. Of course, it would have been a slightly round about way and the distance we would have had to walk would increase so I don't think anyone would normally pick that option but I'm sure the words about not standing in front of regrets are true.

Along with an impact of being hit forward from behind the last thing I remember is being sent flying passed the male student who was holding the leather handle in front of me and flying head first in the salary-man who was sitting on the other side of seats.

.....

Over six months passed since I was reborn, I've been able to grasp an outline of the situation. Since I occasionally see the appearance of my family in comparison to others I've understood that I've been born into something other than human. Obviously I can't accept it though. Since there's these sorts of children living here I'm sure it's only obvious this isn't Earth. It seems that there's people living in the neighborhood as well but after seeing a person with animal ears growing I knew that this wasn't Earth. I might be an idiot but even I can understand that much.

It's that, that. What was it again? The people who come out in the movie about throwing a ring into a volcano somewhere. Their heights are short but their feet are the size of a normal adult human. The people who's heads are the same size as normal humans as well. Ah, really, it's on the tip of my tongue up to here. Well it's fine. In any case, it seems I was reborn as child who doesn't get very big even after I become adult. It seems I'm the youngest child in my family and above me there's an older brother and sister. Other than my parents, my grandmother and grandfather are living with us as well. Grandfather and grandmother both still look to be in their mid-40s and look young.

It was around then that I started to get used to my strange body. There were 6 digits on each of my arms and legs. Of course moving them individually is possible. Just from a glance all of the rest of my family seems to have six as well so I guess it's not all that unusual.

My families job is agriculture and during the field work I'm laid down in a hollow tree near the fields while my older brother and sister are working. Obviously I was able to look around outside but just as I imagined it was a lifestyle like people far in the past. It's only obvious since there's no electricity, gas, or water services. All of the field work is done using sickles, hoes, and human labor. The farming people of Japan that I saw on television would always use various machinery but it seems that there's no sign of things like that here.

.....

One such day, a bunch of people came to our village. I can somehow hear a word I'm not used to like Devas or something. In the language that's normally spoken I can somehow hear English-sounding words mixed in so recently I've been able to understand the meanings a bit. Somehow it seems that the enemy is coming to attack this village so these people came to protect the village. I wonder if they're something like the SDF?

However, the people (supposed they're the army) that came to the village treat the people of the village like slaves and yell at us. It seems we're even handing over all our food. My parents said "if we end up occupied by Rombert then it'll be even worse" while enduring it.

That sort of lifestyle continued for a short while. I guess one or two months? Even if the start with the army people was like they still had some amount of control and they didn't act too arrogant, but recently it's gotten severe. They've started to be violent towards young women while they're in the middle of field work.

Next door there's a 14 year old girl named Mary with rabbit ears growing but around dinner the army people stormed into her house and were rough with her right in front of her family. I got chills hearing that. What a frightening world. I wonder if there's no police to arrest or judge them?

However, I don't know why but there's almost no damage to my house. I was able to confirm the reason for that a bit later. Among the army people who came to the village was my father's little brother, in other words, my uncle. Thanks to that relation it seems that we didn't have food stolen and mother wasn't treated violently. Both my parents and grandparents were pleased with the good luck but I couldn't help but feel uneasy.

I mean, after that they repel the opponent who's coming to attack (I couldn't even imagine something like them failing to repel them), there's no doubt our family will be resented by the rest of the villagers. People recognize those who are as unfortunate as themselves as allies and they might offer a hand to those who are more unfortunate than themselves but it's only obvious to envy those who are more fortunate. Particularly, since it was just because of the reason that our relatives were in the army the fact that we received those leftovers I'm sure the other people of the village won't not feel envious towards us.

Even if, we had a relative in the army that entered because we predicted a situation like this, there's no way anyone would show admiration for such insight. It would be stranger for no one to think "They managed to do things well." or "Why just their place." I'm sure if I was born in a different family and found out about this situation I would think the same as well.

It seems that father's little brother is named Karodo. I've been lifted up by him a number of times. He has darkish skin that's burn from the sun but somehow I feel like he resembled grandfather, grandmother, and father so I felt he was my uncle. However, occasionally he makes a sneaky expression so in the end I couldn't help but realize he's one of the army people that is violent towards other. Just, towards us three siblings he showed a true smile. Thinking that this person is protecting our family I smiled back as best as I could. Seeing that uncle Karodo made a soft expression as well.

I'm begging you. Uncle Karodo. Please protect us.

.....

It was a morning after another month or so had passed. There was an uproar in the village. We were inside of our hollowed out tree as usual while I was held by mother making a scary face. The entrance of the hollow tree was sealed with woven mats and it was tied from outside. The one who sealed it with mats and tied it up from outside was father.

I can hear something like the hooves of horses and battle cries from here and there. I can hear screams and shouts as well. My older brother and sister got afraid and are crying while holding on to mother. Mother is crouching over sealing their mouths. I guess that Rombert or other has probably come to invade. I was so scared I couldn't help it either but I tried to bite down with my teeth that haven't properly grown out without making a sound. If I can't control my feelings here and let out a cry then mother and father's efforts could be wasted. Also, it's only obvious, but the fear of being killed if we're found by Rombert made me do that as well.

Mother is holding both my older brother and sister while repeating "It's alright, it's alright. Calm down." like a chant. She's repeating it in a whisper almost as if she's telling herself. Hearing that I was strangely able to calm down as well. It's probably because the screams have stopped as well.

.....

I don't know how much time passed at all. Just ten minutes, several hours, or it felt like it might have even just been a few minutes but as expected that's a bit too short. The screams have almost completely stopped. I wonder if they were able to repel them? I wonder if the frightening dispute has already ended?

It was that sort of time, I felt like I could hear uncle Karodo's voice. It seems like he's talking about something but I can't hear the details. Sometimes I feel like I can hear a voice enduring pain as well. And the sound of flesh being hit as well. The sound gradually got closer. It seems that it's not just uncle Karodo.

"Ehe..mister, it's over here..there's a good woman.."

"Hmph, I see. Well if her appearance isn't good it's just a matter of killing her."

"Mister you're a Halfling as well right? Then a woman of the same race is somehow better right.."

"That's only obvious.."

What is it? What in the world is uncle Karodo saying? Inside of the dim hollowed tree, I could tell mother's face was pale and stiff from inside of the basket.

I could hear the sound of the mats sealing the hollowed tree being forcibly pulled off.

Uncle Karodo who was missing his right arm from below the elbow looked in with a twisted face. He's heavily injured! Uncle Karodo was immediately kicked over by another man and made a voice like "Gebu~" A different man wearing some considerably polished lather armor looked inside.

"Hi~!!"

Mother embraced my older brother and sister and crouched in the corner of the tree to escape from the man. Due to the suddenly fear not just my siblings but I couldn't hold back crying out as well. The man glared at mother from the entrance and then left and instead put the end of a spear inside towards us.

"Hey, woman, it's troublesome so come out right now. If you don't then I'll kill this brat!"

The man from Rombert said that threatening mother.

"Sister-in-law Myure! It would be best to listen to what he says! If it's just like that then you'll be killed!"

I heard Uncle Karodo's voice. Mother's face was stiff as she tried to go even further into the hollowed tree but obviously she was already at the limit. It's just the voices of my older brother, sister, and me crying out.

"Shut up~!! There's already no more use for you! With that arm you're useless as a slave as well. Die!"

The man pulled his spear back from the entrance and thrust it to his side.

"Guwa~!! Th..that can't be..isn't that different from what you"

"I said shut~ up right!"

"Ga!!"

I stuck the blood-stained spear back into the hollowed tree.

"I'll count to three. Come out. I'll make you into a slave. If you don't come out right away I'll kill those brats. One."

"Ple...Please wait. I'll come out right away! That's why just my children!"

Mother screamed in a panic.

"Come on, hurry up!"

Carrying my older brother, sister, and me who was still in the basket as we cried my mother left the hollowed tree.

The man holding the spear was a short child the same as father.

He made a creepy expression as if he was assessing mother and stuck the spear over while saying “lower the brats on the ground”. Mother said “Please just my children!” while screaming but the man just ignored mother’s words.

“You’re my spoils from this fight! There’s already no choice but for you to become a slave! I’ve been telling you to lower the brats already, now~!”

The spear stretches out and stabs into my chest.

“No~~!! Chumin!”

That was the last word I heard that I could understand.
I felt the cold yet hot end of the spear stab into my body.

Side Story 25: In the case of Hotta Hiroki (Age 27 at time of accident)

(Ah, my hips hurt...The sun is bright...not, it's cloudy.)

Last night after bringing several female fans into his house and engaging in all sorts of lewd activities Hiroki put his guitar case over his shoulder and is standing at the home of the train station. Nearby a young salary man is complaining to an older middle-age salary man who seems to be his superior.

(You're loud~ these rotten ry-man)

Hiroki is the guitarist and sub-vocals for a somewhat popular indie band. Along with his good looking face he and the lead vocal each make up half of the popularity of the band. He's never been troubled by money or women in his life until now. Since the past even if he ignored them women come to his side and he never has problems with having enough if the women give money to him.

Today he has a recording at a studio in Shibuya. Since it would be bad if he's late he left his apartment just a bit early. After confirming the time on the clock of the home platform and it was just the right time for the high speed train to come. He should be able to arrive 30 minutes before the estimated time.

After boarding the front car of the high speed train that slid into the platform and just as he guessed there were seats open. He took an open seat and then raised the volume on his music player. The woman sitting next to him was making a displeased face but Hiroki didn't pay any mind of that putting his guitar between his legs to hold it.

(Here, this melody is good. After all rock needs to be British)

While listening to the beat that comes in through his earphones Hiroki moves his fingers to match the rhythm. He closes his eyes and naturally started to match his feet to the rhythm as well.

When he received a sudden large impact and looked down his guitar looked like his lower body.

(Eh? Why am I floating. Ah, my body?)

Hiroki who was cut in half and sent flying from the material miraculously still had his earphones in and his music player continuing to play the British rock beat.

.....

(Ah, shit!! I'm not in luck.)

Hotta Hiroku, now known as Sajes. Bastral gripped the broken handle of the hoe while picking up the head of it and then walking in a slow pace towards the the house of the governor. Sajes was born as a cat-people serf in the eastern part of Rombert Kingdom's territory directly controlled by the King. In terms of reincarnation range it's almost straight in the Northeast. After that, while Sajes was still young he and his family were moved to a pioneering village in the Southeast of the King's direct territory, since then he's been engaged in cultivation.

The Unique Ability he was born with is 【Resistance(Temperature)】. According to the God he met in the past it seems that any degree of temperature that would cause burns or frostbite harmful to his body don't have any effect. Although, since the sensation still remains while it might be possible to grab a piece of burning charcoal but he can feel the heat, and even if he wanders in the mountains in winter for as long as his mana lasts he could last in a snow storm naked but it doesn't change the fact that it still feels cold. However, since it automatically protects his body from unexpected dangers (though mistakenly grabbing something like a burning rock is pretty unlikely) it's not so useless that it can't be used even when forgotten.

“Master, the handle of the hoe broke. I'm very sorry.”

On the side of the governor's house he went to the side of a man putting effort into his combat training and lowered his head. This commoner elf that's in his mid 30s is Sajes's owner. At the same time he's also one of the squires that serves Viscount Benkusu who governs this Rockfall village. After the squire took one glance at the broken handle and he said, “it can't be helped, until we can prepare a new one ask the head slave for a different job” and then returned to training.

Since it couldn't be helped he started pulling weeds which the head slave told him.

He was given a wooden stick the next day for a new hoe handle to exchange it with. He ended up shave too much away in top of the hoe and failing with it. He ended up being hit by the head slave but this was his own mistake.

It can't be helped. After receiving a new stick, this time he was able to repair(?) it without failure.

.....

Occasionally the army passes through Rockfall village. Whether they're going to the battlefield, returning, or maybe just moving to a completely different location. Sajes couldn't tell at all but it doesn't make much difference, since Sajes was forced to move from the village he was born in during his infancy as well. Consequently, he hasn't taken even one step out of the village since then so he doesn't know where the road in the middle of the village goes or what kind of places are beyond that. He only knew the rough shape of this Rombert Kingdom he's living. It's plenty to know that this area around here wouldn't become a battlefield unless a major war starts.

Of course, Sajes wanted to know various things when he was a child as well and he had an appropriate amount of curiosity. However, in the few years before they were forced to move he found out that his entire family is slaves and went into despair, then when he found out the conditions to escape it and the value of money he completely gave up. Since he already knew the method to look at status he thought he would just end up being found and brought back right away even if he runs.

In the first place, the more he got to know this world of Orth where he started his new life, he found out that being a slave isn't all that bad and was able to completely give up. Of course that's just on the surface though. He's been getting along well with Catherine the second daughter of a different slave house that moved in last year. She's got a considerably good looking face for a Cat-people and her disposition is good as well. Her age is just right at the same age as him.

Sajes started to think, (it might not be half bad to get married to Cathy, have some children and work in the fields). It didn't take much time at all before he started to talk to her between farm work and have lunch together with her. The first time he embraced Catherine, kissed her, and came on her stomach he couldn't help but think preciously of Catherine. This was the first time in his life he felt like this including his past life.

(Ah, up until now I hadn't felt like I had lived much of a life but I guess I was born for the sake of being together with Cathy. She's my first "woman".)

Catherine's owner is a different person. In order to marry her, Sajes must prove to his owner that he's a "useful" and "skilled" slave. It doesn't particularly matter even if it's Catherine's squire owner who thinks they "want Sajes" as well. Since Sajes is a second son things like his family name or headship didn't matter from the start.

Sajes thought that the fall of his 16th year and started working hard that it was quite a difference from before.

He started taking action before even being told by the head slave and somehow even managed to make an old thresher that he remembered. After finding out about that his owner praised him quite a bit. Even the governor viscount Benkusu praised Sajes over the thresher as being the greatest achievement since the founding of Rockfall village, in reward he was given 250,000 Z (1 gold Shu) and a pair of chickens. It seems that Sajes's owner the elf squire was given some gold coins at the same time as well.

"Sajes, you can relax in regards to Catherine. Including the reward from this time by this time of next year I should have enough money so I'll somehow negotiate over her. In exchange, have lots of children."

After hearing the words his owner said Sajes was deeply moved and even kissed his boots. They're ultra high quality rubber-sole boots that the squires of the village were given by the army last year in exchange for the trouble they caused when passing through.

(I can't go to war like the squires-sama but I'll lay my roots in Rockfall village and make this village wealthy. For the sake of Cathy and our children..)

.....

However, it was around November near the end of that year, the situation underwent a sudden change. A couple of travelers on horses stopped by the village. One of them was a well-dressed human man and the other was a tiger-man with a large build. The two of them were young warriors with fearless expressions and hope shining in their eyes. The time they appeared was close to 4 pm when night was close. The two of them went to viscount Benkusu to receive permission to stay the night and then started preparing a camp in a vacant space.

Sajes happened to pass by there. This vacant space is often used by a unit of the army so it's considerably wide. It's not unusual for caravans of merchants to stay there either. Sajes tried to pass through with his eyes looking down in order to not be rude to a guest of the village but the two young warriors called out to him. I wonder if they want some water from the well? It's troublesome but it can't be helped.

"Did you call for me? Traveling knight-sama."

There's no way of knowing if they're knights without checking their status but there's no harm in saying a higher rank. When Sajes obeyed respectfully while approaching their side with his head down so as not to look at their faces the two young warriors were surprised and raised their voices.

""Are you Japanese!?""

Sajes was surprised hearing those words as well. After raising his face and looking closely at the two, their hair and eyes were black. And there's no way of mistaking those Japanese facial features.

"A, ah, yeah.."

He was so surprised Sajes choked up on his words.

"Do you understand Japanese?"

The young human warrior approached Sajes and asked.

"Ah, yeah, it.. it's my first time speaking it in a while but, of, of course, I understand."

He stammered a bit but the two young warriors recognized Sajes response in Japanese while nodding.

“Excuse me for a moment..{Status Open}”

The human man said that and grabbed his hand before checking his status. Since Sajes had already met God he knew that there were Japanese people somewhere as knowledge but he didn't think he'd meet them.

“A slave huh..Nomu-san, how much do you have on you?”

“..Fu...So we thought the same thing. I have about 2,000,000 Z (2 gold coins) in leeway. Etou-kun, what about you?”

“Che..please don't underestimate the family of Count Faruerugaz. I have plenty of money.”

The two young warriors joked about that before facing Sajes again.

“I'm Nomura Koukichi. This guy is Etou Shoji. What's your name?”

The Tiger-man asked the first question.

“Ah, Sa..Sajes.Bastorasu..ah, No, Hi, Hiroki.Hotta, I mean. I'm Hotta Hiroki.”

“Hotta-kun huh? We were thinking of freeing you from the slave social standing but how about it? Of course we won't demand something like you returning 100 times to us so you can rest easy. It'll take the form of you being released as a Free Person but as long as you return the money we bought you with later then that's fine.”

Nomura lifted the edges of his mouth in a manly smile while saying.

“We're heading to the capital Rombertia after this so you'll only truly be released after we get to a temple in the capital though. If you can become a Free Person then it's possible to move around as well so I'm sure if you start some kind of business you should be able to return the money pretty quickly. It's the friendship of people from the same place, I think we can lend you a bit of funds as well.”

Etou had a somewhat soft expression as he explained it.

(Wh..What was that!? Freeing me from slavery? Are they really talking about that sort of dream-like story? I'm certainly a serf but slaves are expensive? They even cost several million Z...and they just mentioned having 2,000,000 Z or so didn't they..)

Sajes wasn't able to keep up with the story that came out of nowhere. He just kept blinking in shock.

"No..No way..you're just saying something good..saying something like that before knowing what kind of person I am..how can you trust me."

"Yeah, that's true. We don't know what kind of person you are. If you're a good person or evil person. In the first place if you became a slave from committing a crime even...We don't know anything. However, you're the same Japanese right? Isn't that enough of a reason?"

Etou said that while smiling.

"Hotta-kun. If you say you can't trust us then we won't force it on you. It's fine if you do as you please."

"Nomu-san, you're saying those sorts of things again...I'm sure that even he isn't satisfied as a slave...Hotta-san, I can understand those feelings of not being able to trust us when we suddenly appeared. However, don't they say with chances, the Goddess might have bangs but there's no hair in the back? I think it's more intelligent to grab the chances when you have them. Otherwise, do you have some sort of attachment to your family?"

"It's not that I don't have..any attachment towards my family. And I also have a woman I promised to marry next year."

(That's right, there's no way I can trust them. They could sell me some other place after buying me before they release me. If that were to happen I can't do anything.)

"So you have a woman..However, aren't there as many women in the world as there are stars in the sky? Isn't it fine if you search for one again? And if you still have regrets isn't it fine if you just profit after becoming a Free Person and come back and buy her? If it's a serf woman from the villages around this area they wouldn't exceed 2,000,000 Z I'm sure. Even in your case you'd be around 3,000,000 Z right?"

(These two..I'm amazed they can say 3,000,000 Z so lightly.)

Sajes was so shocked he couldn't say anything. His wages are 1,100 Z per week (11 copper coins). It doesn't even add up to 70,000 Z in a year. Even without using any of it, it's questionable if you can save up 3,000,000 Z in your entire life. Though there's still things like raises in pay and the gold Shu he received previously, so if you save up while young then for the most part it's still possible to buy yourself back in your 40s. However, there's no mistake it's an amount so large that it's unthinkable.

"That much money, if it's a Japanese like you then I think you should be able to earn it right away though.."

"Hotta-kun. Can you read and write?"

"I cannot."

"I see. However, something like the letters you shouldn't have any problem with learning right away. You can do things like calculations fast as well right? Since the level of civilization on Orth is low, there should be business opportunities rolling around all over the place...How old were you when you died?"

"Ah, 2..27."

"In that case it's plenty. Unless you were an elementary school student or something there's no problem. As long as you have money that is. And, right now we can prepare enough of that money to buy you. Since we properly want you to return it after we release you we'll have you write a loan document but I have no intention of taking interest. Though I guess there's no culture for interest either way."

Or to be more correct it's not a matter of culture but rather the era. It's the basics of the era of financing. Adding to that, things like interest are a common technique from major companies since far in the past. This young Tiger-man warrior just doesn't know.

"Re..really..."

"Yeah, it's true. It's some sort of fate that we met a Japanese here. You don't need to worry about us deceiving and buying you and then selling you to some more for an even higher price. Though even if I say that, it's a statement that doesn't guarantee anything at all."

.....

In the end Sajes was bought by the two young warriors, Rodrick and Fio for 3,000,000 Z. Rodrick used a bit of the authority of his status as the eldest son of Count Farueregaz to push through negotiations. He made the promise with Catherine that after becoming a Free Person who would definitely make a profit in business and then return to buy her. As expected the two of them wouldn't go as far as buying Catherine as well. Since he was asked about his Unique Ability, Sajes responded honestly. Since he thought there wasn't much meaning in hiding it.

“Hmph, 【Resistance(Temperature)】 huh? It resembles my 【Resistance(Virus Infection)】.”

“I somehow thought it but it seems there's several types of 【Resistance】 Unique Abilities.”

“What kind of Unique Ability does Nomura-san have?”

“Mine is the so-called 【Valiance】. It has a feel like when you can temporarily show super strength during a time of danger.”

Just like this, on their path to the capital, the three of them exchanged information up until now.

According to that and it seems that Rodrick and Fio were on the same first train car as Sajes. Rodrick was 30 and of all things Fio was a 90 year old elderly man. The two of them just received formal investiture as knights from the knight group in Count Faruergaz's territory and after retiring they started on their travels of Orth. Rodrick decided to follow after Fio leaving his house without inheriting the head of the Count family it seems. I see now, if they're knights then I'm sure they have some money and Rdorick is the eldest son of a County family. It's only obvious they would have enough money to buy Sajes.

Since Sajes had lived his life up until now at the bottom of society as a slave the two of them seemed to be dazzling. Even though we were all reborn after the same accident, I wonder what the difference between them and myself is, as he started to feel miserable but after giving it more thought he remembers cursing his fate in Japan for not being born in a rich family as well.

“Hotta-kun. Nothing can be started by lamenting the differences in our birth. Certainly I'm grateful to God for being born in a family of commoners. I really had good luck. Even Etou-kun was born close to the highest ranking on Orth. That's why we don't know the troubles of a slave. Of course before entering the knight group I lived in a remote village as well so there were a reasonable number of them nearby that I know. I'm sure there were quite a few troubles as well. Even troubles that we can't even imagine. However, there's no meaning in sulking over those things. What's important is how you can overcome that. We're not doing anything more than helping out with that a bit."

"That's right, Hotta-kun. I was only a little bit older than you when I died but I was a salary man and had a wife and children. There were troubles that you a bachelor wouldn't know for even me. Even though I was in that situation I was suddenly the son of a noble. Of course there's no comparison to a slave but nobles have troubles as well. Up until I was forcefully thrown into the knight group I hadn't left my house since I was reborn. There was even a time I was really jealous of the second son and later of a commoner family that has a reasonable amount of freedom...Though after hearing there's monsters I got scared and was grateful I was a noble though."

The two of them seemed tremendously strong in Sajes's eyes. They were attacked by a group of goblins once while traveling along the road. While still riding their horses the two of them wiped out the goblins in no time at all.

(Even though you say that..born as a commoners and nobles, being trained in the knight group, and you have money as well. That's why you have plenty of confidence. I have nothing at all..)

Reading Sajes's feeling Rodrick said something.

"The value of people isn't decided by something like directly strength or how much money they have. It's whether or not they're enjoying their life. It's weird saying this but before you met us even you had some things you enjoyed in your life right? After all you had a woman you were thinking of marrying right? There was a time where you were enjoying yourself right?"

(Certainly it enjoyable. I had a reasonable amount of hope and prospects. I started to think a life of just living was quite wonderful.)

"Of course, strength and money are important. You're pretty much guaranteed freedom in society for as much range as those two last you. When it comes to the lifestyle of a serf in Rockfall village, putting aside strength, I think just having a bit of money is plenty. You could have lived a reasonably enjoyable lifestyle. However, I think there's a lot more enjoyable things in the world as well. If you're a Japanese then you should know that. That's why we wanted to forcefully pull you along."

(So that feel like they sold me a favor huh...And, no matter, how I think about it, it's a favor.)

Sajes had already imagined that there was things more happy than the small happiness he had already grasped. He knows that there's differences in values between people as well but just a short while ago Sajes had given up on escaping the life of a slave and was about to be satisfied with the results of the small happiness he was chasing after. Get married as a serf, have children, raise crops. He didn't feel anything to be ashamed of there.

(However, I want to make Cathy "even more" happy. Fio said there's as many women as there are stars in the sky and certainly that's true. There's as many as there are stars. however, my star is Cathy. If possible I don't want to let her do harsh farm work like she is right now. I want to let her eat delicious things and live a life of comfort. Even our children would be born as slaves. They might end up being sold to someone we don't accept. Though if it's the character of that squire elf who was my owner then I'm sure that wouldn't happen, for as long as we're slaves the possibility isn't zero.)

Sajes thought about various things while swaying on the horse behind Rodrick. He started to really feel that desires towards life had been born in himself.

.....

Finally the three of them arrived at the capital Rombertia. It was the evening of the year 7444, Month 12, Day 12. Since it was already late they decided to take an inn first, have dinner, and then go to release Sajes as the temple tomorrow.

They entered a random restaurant and ordered some food and alcohol. It seems that up until arriving in the capital, Rodrick and Fio didn't drink any alcohol to remain vigilant. Furthermore, it seems that the capital was their objective for the time being so they said they intend to look around here and there while staying in the capital for a short while. Sajes was offered some alcohol as well and drank his first alcohol since he was reborn. Both the alcohol and food were good enough that it numbed his tongue.

(It's my first time eating something this delicious. I want to let Cathy eat some as well..It's the type of food you can only eat a couple of times in your life as a serf...In the end I feel it might have been best I trusted them. After all people from the same place are something to be appreciative of.)

The next morning, after opening his eyes in the inn, Rodrick said he was stopping by the royal castle before going to the temple. Sajes was surprised but it seems that he has an older sister separated in age that is the fourth wife of his majesty the King. Rodrick was laughing about the fact that it's rude to come to the capital and not greet his older sister the Queen. In addition Fio accompanied him since he said he wanted to see the castle. Sajes was invited as well and while he was interested in the castle, he was worried that it might cause trouble for Rodrick if a slave like himself came along so he decided to wait at the inn.

Two hours later, Rodrick and Fio returned. The two of them were considerably excited. It seems it was an extremely magnificent castle. Hearing that Sajes though, "Since it was a rare chance maybe I should have seen it?" but he doesn't know any of the manners and his clothes are cheap and worn-out. After all he decided to think it was the best choice not to go.

All three of them went together to a temple on the edge of the capital. There's a large temple on the side of the castle but it seemed pretty packed so they gave up on it.

"Since there's a population of over 200,000 people in this capital, I'm sure they're doing the naming ceremonies of dozens of people every day and things like the releasing of slaves are performed as if they're only obvious. And according to what I've heard they make the currency as well. There's several temples along the edge of the capital so let's go there."

They decided to go with Rodrick's pick. After arriving at the temple and being made to wait for about 10 minutes it was finally time for them to undergo the ceremony to release a slave. Various things were confirmed before the ceremony. Of course there was the proof sale for Sajes and a simple explanation about the individual tax for Free People. It seems that he can get a more proper explanation from the government office after this though. After the ceremony completed and Sajes used his trembling right hand to touch his equally trembling left hand and said “Status Open” to confirm his Status. Rodrick and Fio were smiling as they watched that Sajes.

“Ro..Rombert Kingdom, Duke Rombert Territory Registered Free Person..Certainly..u..Wu..”

Being freed from the slave standing and made into a Free Person, Sajes shed tears as he was overcome with emotion.

“Congratulations, Sajes. With this you’re no longer a slave. You’re free.”
“Sajes, enjoy your life. No one can order you around anymore. There’s no need to be bound to a single place as well.”

“A, ah, Th..Thank you. “Thank you very much.” I’ll never forget the debt I received from you two in my entire life!”

“Wa ha..But as expected this isn’t our treat. Return it to us one day.”
“If you do forget it make sure it’s after that.”

After this the three of them are going to eat some lunch and then produce the loan document for Sajes. Rodrick ended up paying all of the 3,000,000 Z payment to purchase Sajes. Rodrick also agreed to offer Sajes another 2,000,000 Z to start a business with.

They ended up taking a considerably early lunch, went to a scribe to produce the loan document, and then after receiving an explanation about the individual tax from the government office they finished up his official registration as a Free Person. It seems there’s a penalty if they don’t register within a week from the change of his status so they wanted to get it done as soon as possible. Fio was talking about something with an official of the government office but after a smile appeared on his face he gave the OK sign to Rodrick. Seeing that Rodrick started grinning and smiling as well. Sajes had no idea what it was about at all.

After that, under the premise of celebrating Sajes’s new life they went off to a brothel. He read the actions of Fio at the government office just now. He must have been introduced to a brothel with a good reputation. Sajes tried to refuse because he has Cathy but was forcefully brought along. I'm Sure Rodrick and Fio really just wanted to go. It can't be helped, since Rodrick says it's his treat, I guess this is socializing as well.

.....

"Hey, Rodrick. It was the best right..I should have made it three hours instead of two.."

The last one to appear in the waiting room of "Emerald Duke Club Reception Hall" was Fio as he said with a loose face.

"Ah, really..I was made to realize the greatness of these {condoms}. I wonder where we can buy those?"

"Oh~ I want some as well. I forgot to ask.."

"Wu..It was good..It was far too good..Cathy, I'm sorry..but, it was good..Is this heaven?"

It's something he noticed these past two weeks while traveling with them but whenever the two of them speak in Japanese Rodrick uses honorifics towards Fio and acts politely towards him but whenever they speak in the {Common Language} they speak on equal terms and call each other by their names on Orth.

The three of them started walking together towards the exit.

"Ah, just a moment..Excuse me but where can we buy those "condoms"?"

Rodrick called out to a boy who was cleaning up the entrance and asked.

"Huh? What's a "condom"?"

The boy responded with a strange face.

"Eh? If you say "condom" then there's only that right? Those things made of rubber used as a substitute for pig's bowels."

"Ah, the Saya I see. In that case the manufacturer has a monopoly on direct sales through the Greed Company in the capital."

Rodrick politely asked the location of the Greed Company. Sajes was watching over that quietly at first but he suddenly realized something and started thinking with a serious expression.

(I'm sure those condoms would sell. Since it seems the price is only 1.5 times more than pig's bowels, there's no way they aren't selling..and, in that case things like the bowels of pigs and sheep might be leftover and..since they don't need any processing like condoms, wouldn't it be possible to buy them dirt cheap...this is)

“But, right now they should be pretty close to running out of stock. Last month when we went to purchase them they already didn't have much remaining stock and were sighing over how troubling it was. Though since we have a contract with them there's no problem for us. It seems right now they only sell to people who have a letter of introduction or the bag as proof that they were repeaters who have bought them since the past.”

“Eeh..That's troubling. Hey~ this brothel is using a lot of them right? Wouldn't you split up one bag of them with me? It's fine if I buy it.”

Rodrick tried hanging on. Fio is nodding as well. Sajes though it's wasteful spending though swore in his heart to go and buy once again after he releases and marries Cathy.

“That's impossible. Since our customers have increased recently even we're pretty limited in how many we have.”

“Then, would you write an introduction letter? This guy is the eldest son of Count Faruerugaz. Isn't he of the standing to be worth an introduction letter?”

The boy politely lowered his head and apologized.

“I'm very sorry customer but I cannot do that. If we were to write introduction letters for all of our customers then the stock of Greed Company would disappear in no time at all. In the first place, we're profiting quite a bit thanks to those Saya. We can't do anything like deceiving the Greed Company. However, I'll tell you one good thing. It seems that Saya are always given out as an extra prize for the {Dog races} that are sponsored by his majesty the King. It seems that they were just hosting them today as well. How about going and testing your luck?”

Right away Rodrick and Fio asked the location of the {Dog Races} and then dragged along Sajes who wanted to go take care of the procedures to register a company.

.....

“Uoo~! Come Rabidori! Come!”

“Strike! Come for me!”

“Shit! I can’t get a hit!”

“I missed as well!”

“Brutish! Come already~~~~!”

“Mathew! Show some guts~~!”

“Ei! Next!”

“Not yet, it’s not over yet!”

“Avalanche! Go for it!! Overtake them~!!”

“Burglary! Give it your best~!”

“Guha..so it was no good.”

“This, sure is difficult.”

Fio and Rodrick were yelling while holding a dog plate with the number eight branded on it. The only plates that the condoms are given out as extra prizes for cost 100,000 Z (10 silver coins) each. There’s no other choice than winning but it seems that if you manage to went back over 10 times that 1,000,000 Z (1 gold coin), then as an extra prize you get one bag of condoms as well.

Incidentally there’s a regulation where you can only purchase one dog plate per {Dog race}. Though those sorts of regulations are often ignored for the small sum dog plates but when it comes to purchasing the expensive dog plates they properly check your status so if you really want to buy multiple of them you have to gather some people but for a race that occurs once every 20 minutes they close the deadline three hours ahead. The rough odds are posted up but after they close the deadline the sales are totaled and five minutes before the race starts the latest odds are changed. In the end it’s a system where the bookmaker profits.

In order to purchase a dog plate after the deadline has already been reached you need to pay a bit more to negotiate with someone who's already bought one. There's some people making a living as hawkers and if you pay them some money they'll find a dog plate for you to buy.

"Hey~ Rodrick-san, Fio-san, you two have already spent more than 500,000 right? Let's give up already. It seems that they'll sell them after they get more stock."

Sajes was saying that while he only bought two cheap dog plates with low odds and both of them hit the mark. They were the cheapest plates at 100 Z (1 copper coin) each (the rates were 2.5 times and 3.2 times so he profited 370 Z). He only bought them because it couldn't be helped being together with them.

"Sh..Shut uph~! I need to make back the portion I've lostnya!"
"If we withdraw here we're not men!"

(Ah, these people, they're the type that ruin themselves on gambling huh? I wonder if they liked pachinko?)

"In the first place, there's no way dog plates with those sorts of rates would land right? Have you actually done "horse racing" before? It's only obvious that the stronger dogs have lower rates."

"It's my first time gambling."
"Me too. In the past I gambled with the fate of my "company" but it's my first time at this sort."

(Isn't this the typical pattern for beginners.. I can't watch anymore.)

"However, it seems that once in every ten races there's a rate of over ten times."

"Ah, it seems the highest rate for today is 3.5 times. If we manage to take it then it will instantly turn things around."

"Then if you go off of probabilities isn't there no way to lose?"
"It's that sort of calculation, Rodrick, you're sure clear on it~"

Sajes was so amazed he couldn't say anything but the two of them are his patrons. In the first place, if you really wanted some condoms if you paid all of the money you've used up until now you should easily be able to buy some. It seems they're sold for 15,000 Z at that Greed Company or whatever but if you say you're willing to pay 10 times the price I'm sure someone would sell.

"The two of you, let's stop already! This is impossible!"

There's no way for a dog with over 10 times the odds to win that's why it's odd are over 10 times.

Suddenly Sajes remembered.

(Come to think of it, it's something I thought about in the past. I'm sure their feelings have completely returned to being brats..)

Sajes grabbed on to both of their necks and dragged them out of the grounds for the dog races.

"We should go try going to Greed Company first right. If we negotiate we might be able to get them to sell some, isn't going there several times and becoming familiar more important?"

"Ah, that's right. The blood ran to my head after the first time I lost so I forgot myself."

"Rodrick, so you too as well..The blood ran to my head after I lost for the first time as well.."

While pushing forward the two of them with their heads down Sajes was walking through the edge of the prosperous district towards Greed Company while the two of them had their shoulders dropped.

It was just then.

"Hey, your scabbard hit me!"

A Laios man who no matter how you look at seemed like a Yakuza raised a loud shout. It seems that Fio's scabbard hit the scabbard of the Laios man's sword. Several other men who were surrounding the Laios raised yells and starting cursing as well.

"Ah, sorry about that."

Fio replied un-energetically but the Yakuza wouldn't overlook it. He started picking a fight to pay some money. Obviously Fio and Rodrick have no intention of paying money for that sort of reason but from Sajes's point of view they just lost even more than that in the dog races, so he was worried even though they might just overlook us if you hand them a silver coin.

“Hey, what are you doing in the middle of the road? Disappear you hoodlums.”

A middle-aged dwarf with pink hair and a beard and quite a bit of force to him butt in. The man brought along a young human girl with long gold hair and a dwarf woman with short yellow green hair and beard. The two women had light fearless smiles on their faces as well but when they faced Sajes and the others they smiled.

When the three of them saw that woman’s face they all stiffened up.

No matter how they looked at it this dwarf that appeared doesn’t seem Japanese. His face doesn’t look like that of a Japanese person as well. All of his fundamental parts are those of a “pure dwarf”.

Since both of the women he brought along had blond and yellow green hair, from a glance they seemed like people of Orth as well but the faces they smiled over here with were clearly those with characteristics of a Japanese person.

“You’re Japanese people right? We’ll save you.”

The human woman with long gold hair said in Japanese before preparing her weapon from behind the dwarf.

“If you leave it to these two then there’s no problem.”

The dwarf woman isn’t holding a weapon but she’s opening and closing her hands that are hanging down.

“She drew her weapon..Nma, there’s no mistake! B..bro, these bastards..No, these people are the {Slaughterers}! The..They’re a bad opponent..”

“Ah..I..I’ve seen them before as well. That woman, she’s {Ball Crusher}.”

“The..Then that pink hair dwarf is Firefreed-san huh...”

“Ah, if you already know then things are quick. Hey, you Laios brat, it’s fine if you want to fight but we’re adventurers from Baldukk. Since we’re always up against monsters. Even if we do you guys in the same way we can’t go easy on you?”

While the dwarf is threatening them he spins his {tomahawk} around in one hand and the color of the Yakuza's faces changed.

"Ja..Japanese..."

"Just now, that was in Japanese right?"

"I heard it as well, that face is.."

"However, to be saved by a woman is.."

"Umu, it's pretty uncool."

"Is it the time to be talking about something like that? Is it fine not to back them up?"

"Ye..Yeah."

"O..Oh~"

While these three were talking about something like that the dwarf and two women said something to the hoodlums and they yelled "we're~ very sorry" while running off into the crowd.

.....

We all entered a restaurant in front of us and we're sitting around a six person table. For the time being we started off with greetings. The three of us were surprised that blonde human woman was the daughter of the dwarf but once we heard that she was an abandoned baby and the dwarf picked her up and raised it made sense.

"Hmph, is that so. But we've already accepted it after all so it's fine."

The woman with the long hair dyed gold, Ralpa replied. Sajes thought she was cute but since it's unrelated right now he remained silent. The countless years of slave nature that he's used to restrained him from making any statements without permission.

"Even if you say that...it's possible you all could have been deceived by that man with that contract you know?"

Fio continues his persuasion.

"Umm, if it's "Japanese" then Zenom-san doesn't understand so could you please speak in the {Common Language}.."

The dwarf woman with her hair dyed yellow green, Akdam cautioned to Fio.

All three of them felt something was a bit off seeing a female Japanese person's face with a beard growing and they were trying not to look at Akdam's face as much as possible.

"No, it's a problem for you two. You two are already adults right? You should decide things about yourselves on your own. Isn't it fine in Japanese."

Without paying any mind to it Fio continued in Japanese. Ralpa replied while making an unpleasant face.

"We don't keep anything hidden from Zenom and it's not necessary. If you're going to insist on talking in "Japanese" anymore than this then we'll return."

Hearing that the ones who panicked were Fio and Rodrick.

"I.. I got it. We won't use "Japanese" anymore. Listen to what I'm saying."
"Please relax, we just want to save some "Japanese" women who might be being deceived by someone."

The dwarf Zenom who was remaining quiet whispered something to Ralpa.

"I don't really get the conversation but wouldn't it be better to call Al?"

"Nn..It's fine. Even if we don't rely on Al for every little thing.."

Seeing that Akdam said to the three of them.

"Please excuse us, we're going to have a bit of a secret conversation so, we'll go talk over there for a bit."

After they moved to a different table they started arguing.

"It would be best to make more reincarnated people into our allies."

"I understand that but you know.."

"That's right, it would be best to call Al-san."

"But you know, since it seems like those two who seem like knights will be around for a while are fine, but that..what was it again? The former slave Cat-people said he wants to start business so he can buy the person that's going to be his wife right. Compared to the knights he doesn't seem like he'd be useful in the dungeon but Gwine, even you are properly fighting against monsters now right, I'm sure there's a good chance that person could end up like that as well."

"That's true. However, I think it would be better for Al to do the negotiations."

"I think the same as Zenom-san as well. If you want should I go back and call for him?"

"That's no good. Since Zenom is an adult I want him to remain with us and both Gwine and I are Japanese after all. We should remain on the place for negotiations. And it's irritating always leaving things just to Al. Let's show him that we can negotiate things just all on our own."

"Hmph, then you get scolded by Al."

"I'm against it you know."

"..In the worst case, even if we struggle with the negotiations Al will probably come looking for us on his own tomorrow...If it gets dragged into tomorrow let's borrow a place at Greed Company."

"In the end.."

"We'll just be relying on Al-san again.."

"It's fine, let's finish things on our own right away! I'm sure Al will wipe our asses for us!"

It seems that their discussion has finished.

Fio and Rodrick were licking their lips with serious expressions. Sajes is pretending not to have any interest but was pretty interested. Since it seems that among their allies there's someone who manages a company.

Chapter 163: Responsibility 1

Year 7444, Month 12, Day 14

The passenger carriage arrived at the capital around 3 pm. For the time being, in the case there's some kind of trouble they should either show their faces in my company or leave some sort of message there. We walked on to Bell road towards Greed Company and we noticed the abnormality when we were just about to be able to see the company. There's four horses connected to the stake in front of the store. Oh~ I wonder if there's some nobles here? and thought that for a moment but two of those are Miduchi and my own horse.

After all they were here. However the remaining two are considerably good war horses as well. One of them seems to be wearing a harness far more expensive and extravagant than my own. And then I noticed it right away. Yotlen and the others are sitting in a daze on the bench against the wall of the store in front of those horses. Something seems to have happened...Since Yotlen and the others don't seem to be in a panic it doesn't seem to be anything dangerous.

"Since Zenom-sam is together with them as well I'm sure it's nothing too strange though. Ral..it would be good if she didn't do anything stupid though.."
"Huh, it's just Reira-san, Anna-chan, and Hanna-chan right? I wonder if Kanna-kun is still inside?"

Bel and Miduchi are saying but I somehow don't get it. The reason I can't see the Ryogu family must be because they're in the rubber workshop or maybe they're in the store but if I normally think about it at this time they're probably at the workshop. In that case then, Yotlen and the others must have been shut out.

"..In any case let's go."

Just as Toris said nothing will start unless we go. When we approached the store, Anna and Hanna noticed us. It seems that the two of them are wearing pretty thin coats but since the sun is still out at this time even though it's winter they don't seem to be trembling from the cold.

“Ah, president, thank you for your work.”

“Presichent~ thanch for your wrosch.”

“Oh~ what’s going on? Why are you all outside..Yotlen, are our members here? Did something happen?”

Normally the wooden door in the front of the store is left open to make it easier for customers to enter. But today that door is shut.

“Ah, president, thank you for your work. That is..this morning, soon after seeing off the Ryogu family to the workshop, Firefreed-sama and the others brought some guests..Since Firefreed-sama’s daughter said they have something important to talk about so..Did the president not know about it?”

The mother of the Yotlen family, Reira replied while looking a bit cold.

“Ha? I have no idea. Guests..What kind of people are they?”

When I said that and Anna replied from the side.

“Two people who seem like knights and one person who seems to be an attendant.”

What in the world is that? When I looked around at everyone they were making faces like question marks were floating above their heads.

“What Gwine together with them?”

“Yes, Akdam-sama was together with them and the six of them are talking inside.”

Yotlen replied to Miduchi’s question.

“Was the one who instructed you to close the door Ralpa?”

“Yeah, somehow, it seems like they had an important conversation that they didn’t want anyone to hear about so only when a customer comes, we should get permission and then we can enter. She allowed me to let Kanna sleep on the second floor.”

She replied to Bel’s question without pause. Certainly, I’ve sent out notice that Zenom and the others are employees of Greed Company as well. If I don’t do that then putting aside the sub-Noble Toris and the slaves, the commoners and Free People will be troubled in various ways by taxes. They’re something like senior employees to Yotlen and the others. If they're given instructions then they probably can't or it's difficult to oppose them.

"How do things look in regards to the discussion? Are they yelling at each other or anything?"

"They don't seem to be yelling at each other but..occasionally I can hear some loud voices."

According to her reply to Toris's question it seems the situation isn't very dangerous. Though it might be just a bit serious, there are times when your voice can get loud just from talking normally as well. And it might be a laughing voice as well.

"In any case, it would be best to just go inside and ask what's going on first."

After saying that I casually opened the door and stepped foot inside.

Zenom and the other two along with three strangers were sitting at the reception set in the center of the store glaring and talking to each other. Around the round table from the left was Zenom, Ralpa, and Gwine, and then from the right side there's a male human knight looking guy where high class clothes, another Tiger-man who also seems to be a knight in the center, and then on the side a Cat-people man who's outfit is pretty shabby and looks like an attendant sitting down. Since we suddenly opened the door and came inside 12 pairs of eyes looked at us.

..This is unexpected. I see now. Reincarnated people huh? Furthermore three of them even. Since Zenom is here I guess they couldn't speak in Japanese, so I'll forgive them on closing Yotlen and her daughters outside of the store. Though I can't accept it.

When Toris and Bel took a deep breath about to say something behind me, I raised my right hand and stopped that before briskly walking to the side of the reception set with the attention of the six of them on me. Other than Miduchi I can feel the presence of Toris and Bel who's statements I stopped following behind me. It seems Zulu and Angela are outside the door.

I lowered my head to the three I don't know and after putting in just the words, "Please excuse me in the middle of your conversations." and I looked at Ralpa. If you were to ask why and it's because Zenom and Gwine's expressions were saying, (we tried warning her a number of times. I'm sorry it ended up like this.) In addition Ralpa's expression was (Ah, so he's already come?) Not to mention she's avoiding eye contact with me.

"Ya~ Ralpa. So you were in a place like this. I was worried about you."

and I said with as kind of a tone of voice as possible. Hearing this not just Ralpa but Zenom and Gwine were surprised. I'm sure that's the case.

"However, I'm glad you were safe...Now then, you know what you need to do right?"

This time I said it as kindly as I could as well.

"Eh? Ah...that is..I'm..I'm very..sorry?"

Ralpa quietly said that while looking up at me with just her eyes.

"Yeah. And then?"

"A..Also, I feel sorry that we didn't contact yo"Hey, show it in your actions. If we could settle things with just sorry then the police wouldn't be necessary, this brat!?"

"Uhi! ye, yes!"

When I yelled angrily at her the idiot girl jumped up from her chair and went into seiza on the floor of the other side of the table. Since Gwine moved her legs after sitting down on the sofa where Ralpa was just warming with her ass and then while I was taking off my helmet I looked at Gwine who was still sitting to my right. When Gwine noticed my glance she suddenly stood up and went to seiza next to Ralpa as well. Next I glanced at Zenom but it was just then when Miduchi brought a chair out from the back and after placing it next to Zenom she said "Zenom-san please sit over here" and then took my helmet from me and backed off. I wish everyone would be able to show this much care.

Toris sat down in the place Zenom was sitting, Bel sat down in the place Gwine was sitting, and Miduchi went into the back. It seems she intends to do something like acting as a tea server while making use of {Detect.Lie} from an appropriate place. It's fine to leave Miduchi on her own.

During that period, the two people who seem to be knights made shocked expressions and the attendant looking male either didn't originally have much interest I guess, or he was more interested in something else, he was even more surprised than the other two while looking at our faces. Yeah, they have no faults it seems.

"First off, please let me apologize for suddenly appearing and causing any confusion. I'm very sorry for the trouble."

When I lowered my head and simultaneously Toris and Bel on my sides lowered their heads. Zenom looked pretty uncomfortable but endure that much for today. As expected I can't have you seiza.

"It's nice to meet you, my name is Alan.Greed. I'm the president of this Greed Company and also the leader of a group of adventurers in Baldukk called the {Slaughterers}."

I said that and introduced myself. Soon after that Toris and Bel continued introducing themselves. Including me all three of us stretched our arms across the table. When they confirmed each of our status in order they started introducing themselves as well. Furthermore, when we were introducing ourselves it's only obvious we said our names from when we were Japanese but they started with introducing their names from when they were Japanese. Somehow you know~ I guess they're that sort of people.

Around the time introductions had ended, Miduchi came out with the tea she was making and introduced herself as well, and for the time being everyone had finished the introductions on the surface. Obviously during that time I was identifying the three of them.

【Rodrick.Faruergaz/11/11/7444 Rodrick.Faruergaz/7/12/7428】
【Male/14/2/7428 · Human · Count Faruerugaz Family Eldest Son · Count Faruerugaz Knight】
【Status: Normal】
【Age: 16 Years Old】
【Level: 5】
【HP: 87(87) MP: 11(11)】
【Strength: 13】
【Speed: 16】

【Dexterity: 12】

【Endurance: 13】

【Unique Ability: Resistance(Virus Infection) (Lv. -)】

【Special Ability: Earth Magic(Lv.1)】

【Special Ability: Fire Magic(Lv.1)】

【Special Ability: Wind Magic(Lv.1)】

【Special Ability: Void Magic(Lv.2)】

【Experience: 27235(28000)】

I see, 【Unique Ability: Resistance(Virus Infection)】 indeed. It seems reasonably useful. Let's see.

【Unique Ability: Resistance(Virus Infection); defends against all types of parasites that have a length of less than 1mm and weight of less than 1 gram. Regardless of how many organisms invade the body with just a single use of this ability it's possible to definitely annihilate them all. However, it's limited to parasites the user is consciously targeting. Consciously targeting said parasites refers to being suspicious of any infection or invasion by any sort of organism, parasite, bacteria, virus, plant, or animal, that might cause a change in the condition of the body. There's no need to directly identify the target organism. In other words, if the user is conscious of a stomach ache and that stomach ache was being caused by the infection or invasion of some sort of organism then when this ability is used it makes it possible to kill those organisms within the body. It is also possible to think of it as applying several points of damage to the HP of each of those individual organisms. Therefore bear in mind that this ability does not have any effect on parasites or infections with which the user them self is not aware. Furthermore, the level of this ability is no purpose other than for convenience.】

It's not just a reasonably useful one, it..it's a considerably enviable ability.

【Fiorentso.Hirosukol/9/6/7444 Fiorentso.Hirosukol/18/3/7429】

【Male/14/2/7428 · Tiger-People · Hirosukol Family Third Son · Count Faruerugaz Knight】

【Status: Normal】

【Age: 16 Years Old】

【Level: 7】

【HP: 105(105) MP: 21(21)】

【Strength: 17】

【Speed: 20】

【Dexterity: 15】

【Endurance: 16】

【Unique Ability: Valiance (Lv. 7)】

【Special Ability: Night Vision】

【Special Ability: Strength】

【Special Ability: Water Magic(Lv.2)】

【Special Ability: Fire Magic(Lv.1)】

【Special Ability: Void Magic(Lv.2)】

【Experience: 54632(60000)】

【Valiance】 it says? Somehow it sounds incredible. Since both his Unique Ability level and his MP are high, it's probably safe to think that he knows how to make good use of it.

【Unique Ability: Valiance; for 3 seconds per level of this ability the abilities of Strength, Speed, Dexterity, and Endurance are raised to their current ability values. During the duration of the effect the maximum value of HP is also raised the same amount as the level, but the current remaining HP isn't raised up to that value. When the duration of the effect completes in proportion to the amount of motion taken the level of fatigue felt by the user will be the same as normal and the muscles will build up the same amount of fatigue.】

Hmn, I guess it's an ability that's like the advanced version of Laios's 【Instant Speed】. Though that one only increases the values an equal amount to the level of the user I think it was. In the case that their body level increases, particularly in the case of a reincarnated person (no matter how I think about it there's no way anyone other than me would reach over level 30 though. If you were to take on Death=Tyrant.Kin everyday then it might be possible but who would do something as frightening as that) and the duration of the effect this one seems like far bigger of an advantage. However, with this I was able to gain an answer to a problem I hadn't been able to prove. After all it seems that people aren't normally using their physical ability values to their limits. That means that it's difficult to tell how physically strong someone is based on just their physical ability levels.

【Sajes.Basutorial/13/12/7444 Sajes.Basutorial/4/7/7429】
【Male/14/2/7428 · Cat-People · Rombert Kingdom Duke Rombert Territory
Registered Free Person】
【Status: Normal】
【Age: 16 Years Old】
【Level: 3】
【HP: 69(69) MP: 4(4)】
【Strength: 9】
【Speed: 16】
【Dexterity: 10】
【Endurance: 10】
【Unique Ability: Resistance(Temperature)】
【Special Ability: Small Magic】
【Special Ability: Night Vision】
【Experience: 7251(10000)】

For some reason I can't Identify his Unique Ability. I can somehow imagine the details itself but I wonder why I can't identify it? I guess that means this Free Person named Bastoral has never used his Unique Ability before? However, in the past when I met Ralpa I was able to use it on her. I wonder if it's a similar type to my Gift of Natural Talent? No idea.

"Now then, Kawasaki-san. There's something I would like to question you on though.."

After we finished introductions, the Tiger-man called Hirosukol sitting in the center properly looked at me while he started talking.

"Ah, please excuse me on that but I'm not Kawasaki now. Since he's already died, would you please call me Greed?"

When I replied like that the three of them in front of made surprised faces and then Faruerugaz and Hirosukol didn't seem like they accepted it but Bastural was nodding while making a face like he understood something.

"Please excuse me. Well then, Greed-san. Yesterday we were surprised when we encountered Firefreed-san and his daughter together with Akdam-san by chance. Since we met several Japanese people at once, I don't think there's any unreasonable with that though...After hearing their conversation it seemed that there were even more Japanese people and they said you're acting as adventurers? Since we too..though I say that it's just Hirosukol and myself but since we're also aiming to become adventurers we were interested in it, and since Firefreed-san's daughter enthusiastically was suggesting it to us I tried listening to her story."

Faruerugaz said that. He~ I thought Ralpa was being persistent about it but it was them who bit at it? Well I can understand wanting to not let them get away when you meet another Japanese person. However, since Ralpa and them had three people and even if they can't leave themselves they could have said something to the Ryogu family or Yotlen about getting into contact with me so I won't forgive them so easily. On the contrary if these three were trying to interfere with them getting into contact with me then I'm sure Ralpa and the others wouldn't have apologized so obediently and gone into seiza.

"And then you know, I heard something very interesting in the conversation we were having with them. Since we've been talking for a number of hours already including yesterday, I'll just stop with the roundabout way of putting it. I'll say it to you right to the point. It's in regards to the details of your contract with Firefreed-san, his daughter, and Akdam-san. I wanted to hear if you had any sort of excuses to say in regards to the details of that sort of contract. And also, what's being carried out right now, that is..I also wanted to hear about this "corporal punishment" as well."

Huh? What is this Tiger-man called Hirosukol suddenly saying? Bel and Toris are also making strange faces as they exchange glances across me.

"First off, let's go over things in order. You suddenly interrupted our conversation and without properly listening to their opinion you yelled angrily at them and forced them to sit on the ground. I can't imagine that this is very good for the education of those girls. In my memory I thought that things like "corporal punishment" were forbidden except for on the spot in places of education like "school" though.."

"Ha.."

Really what in the world is this guy saying?

“And then, I also feel that this contract is far too unequal. Although, I’ve been explaining to Firefreed-san and the others about their contract a number of times since yesterday but we’ve just been repeating ourselves. Did you “brainwash” them or something?”

“Huh?”

I let out a slightly strange voice. Putting aside the unequal contract, brainwash he says?

I stopped Bel and Toris who were about to lose their temper.

“Also, as a result of the various conversations I heard from them since yesterday, I can’t help but feel that they’re heavily dependent on you. It seems like you’re deceiving them quite skillfully but as Japanese people we can’t shut our eyes to the fact that young girls from our home land are being bound by a contract like this, is what we were thinking.”

“Ho..”

I’m sure I’m making a bitter smile like expression.

“Now, Ono-san, Nishioka-san, please stop that “seiza” and stand up.”

Hirosukol called out to the two high school girls with even affection shining in his eyes. Hmn, it might be because I, because we are former Japanese people but for them to have a personality where they come cutting in from the front using a sound argument from a Japanese standpoint. Incidentally, Zenom has no idea what is going on, and is making a face like it’s all incomprehensible but he also doesn’t seem to find it amusing at all. Though I don’t find it amusing either.

“Ral, Gwine, I won’t forgive standing up at your own convenience. However, if you want to stand feel free. But, if it comes to that then I’ll slap you back down.”

Bel quietly said that. Ah~ scary. Without Bel even saying anything Ralpa and Gwine didn’t shown any sign of standing up so isn’t it fine. Faruerugaz and Hirosukol are both looking at Bel unamused. In comparison to that Basutorial is looking at Bel with a bit of interest.

“Hirosukol-san. It’s your own convenience for you to think what you wish of us. Please feel free to think that way. However, isn’t it strange for you to be making complaints about the policies and decisions in someone else household? The two standing at the doorway right now are slaves that I own. I have a slave in Baldukk that acts as a porter as well. The Cat-People mother and daughters sitting outside in the cold right now are Free People but just the same as the Firefreeds they’re in an employment contract with me. Do you intend to force the common sense of Japan on them as well?”

Well, I can already imagine the answer he’ll give.

“Yeah, I wanted to talk in regards to things like that as well. I don’t have any intention of denying every aspect of the social structure of Orth. There’s slaves, there’s nobles, it’s this level of civilization. It’s only obvious that there’s differences in social standing. What we want to say is..I guess so, it seems like when you passed away you were in your mid-40s and a splendid salary man wasn’t it? And then those two are high school students, and don’t they say those two are college students? I just can’t tolerate an existence like yourself, making use of their lack of knowledge to force an unequal contract on Japanese people and those of Orth.”

Come to think of it the only one who has experience in Japanese society was Miduchi. I see now, so there’s that sort of method to attack as well. This, sort of attack point where I’m deceiving young people who don’t know anything was a bit outside of what I was expecting. If Kuro was here then the high school students would increase by one and since Mary seemed to have been a housewife I’m sure her knowledge on contracts isn’t all that different from a college student, is probably what he would say.

“I see, so what you’re thinking is that, I’m deceiving young people with no knowledge and taking all the profits for myself is it..that’s certainly one way of putting it. However, when it comes to deceiving youths with no knowledge, let alone “brainwashing”, I take offense to that being said. Also, while you keep mentioning an unequal contract but I haven’t encouraged an unreasonable contract on anyone even once. In the first place, I don’t know what portion of our contracts you’re referring to as unequal. Since we had all signed the contract after reading and accepting the details on it.”

“How about you give up playing dumb already? I’ve already heard the rough details of the clauses on it. I can’t help but think that you’ve made them believe some impossible lies and are using young people to earn a profit.”

Ah, depending on how you look at it that might seem like the case.

“Bufu”

Toris burst into laughter.

“Most likely, isn’t it that? The place where it said that you have to listen to all orders other than those relating to your own life? When I first read I questioned it a bit as well but now I understand it.”

When they heard Toris’s words Faruerugaz and the others were nodding but when they heard the final “but now I understand it” they looked at him with a doubtful face.

“Oh? Then is it the compensation? I’ve already been employed by Al-san for over two years but my base pay hasn’t gone up, I guess around there?”

You, Bel, didn’t you accept that. 200,000 Z (20 silver coins) per month is less than that of squires in a knight group but with just that you can live your life plenty well. Of course the lifestyle we’re living right now is impossible though. Look, they didn’t try snapping at that point as well right?

“I can think of several other things as well but for starters it’s probably that there’s no regulations to the clauses, otherwise the methods to settle issues in cases that aren’t assumed. If we were to go off of the common sense of Japanese then it would be the good faith clause, or it’s normal to have a special clause added where the people signing the contract discuss things to make decisions. However, this isn’t Japan and the laws of Japan aren’t applied. It’s fine as long as the employer makes the appropriate decision.”

From behind me, Miduchi pointed out while leaning against a pillar in the kitchen.

“..I can’t agree with that opinion but well I guess that’s fine. However, there’s something even more crucial missing.”

Hirosukol looked at Miduchi while saying.

“That is”

When Miduchi was going to continue her words, Hirosukol interrupted with his own words.

“You are..Shiina, no, you said you were Chizumagurol-san. It seems you’re the newest one among them but aren’t you someone related to him? I would like for you to remain quiet here.”

I lightly put my right hand on my left shoulder and stopped Miduchi. Well if they were living as a proper member of society then I’m sure it would be the first thing they notice.

“Was there anything else again?”

“Since I don’t really remember everything down to the fine details after all..”

Bel and Toris were saying in a whisper.

“Greed-san, wouldn’t it be better for you to say it yourself?”

“..The contract can only be cancelled when it’s renewed..once per year. If it was Japan then it would be in conflict with the labor standard laws. However, this goes the same for me as well. I can’t fire them either.”

“Ho? You said it quite honestly..”

Hirosukol opened his eyes in surprise and said.

“I could have sworn you would remain quiet until we pointed it out..”

It seems it was unexpected for Faruergaz as well. I mean, you two seemed to have already realized right. Then there’s no meaning in remaining quiet.

“Shall we listen to your excuses?”

“Excuses? In regards to what? I haven’t done even a single shady thing at all though”

I flatly declared it.

“You bastard! What are you saying! You tied them up with an unequal contract, forced them to listen to whatever you say, that sort of scumbag motive will” “I’d like for you to stop right there.”

When Hirosukol started yelling angrily Angela appeared behind him and interrupted. Zulu is still standing around the doorway without moving an inch with an expression of anger while just looking over here.

“We won’t overlook anymore statements that insult our master than this.”

Angela stated with a tone of voice like ice from behind them.

“...It seems you’ve earned the loyalty of your slaves who don’t require a contract..”

“Angela, step back, stay at the entrance with Zulu.”

“However, “It seems I’ve caused you some worry. It’s fine. Step back.”

While glancing to the side at Angela as she reluctantly stepped back I politely lowered my head to Hirosukol.

“I’m sorry for any rudeness caused by my inability to discipline my slaves. Please forgive me.”

I lowered my head and looked back at Hirosukol.

“Now then, this is the continuation from just now but you said I’ve tied them up with an unequal contract. Since it’s an employment contract I’m paying them compensation. If that compensation was insufficient, then just as you said that would be unequal I’m sure. However, if they can’t accept their compensation, then the person them self should negotiate with me. I haven’t even once closed the window for negotiations.”

“Mu..However, isn’t that compensation of 200,000 Z per month too low? Even the squires of a knight group receive more..”

Ah, if I remember correctly the weekly pay of squires in the Webdos knight group was 43,000 Z. That’s 215,000 Z per month. Isn’t that only 15,000 Z different? It’s enough for one bag of condoms. They’re without a doubt soldiers though. They even go to the battlefield. They’re even ordered some dangerous jobs like as scouts or decoys right? As expected there’s nothing like I thought about a bit previously like ordering them to go sell their bodies to earn some money or letting me test out the fit of new types of condom though. Just like a knight group wouldn’t order that I obviously wouldn’t either, I think.

“Whether or not their compensation is too much or too little, I think that’s something only I and the person them self should decide though? Obviously from the standpoint of a manager I want to hold back the individual wages as much as possible. It's only obvious that it's that much better for me the lower their wages are. However, I'm sure my employees would like to receive as much more as they can. If they're doing the same work then they should want even just 1 Z more. I can understand this. If they can't accept the amount I've offered them they should either negotiate or in the first place I think it would be fine to conclude the contract."

"So you intend to insist that it's limited to their own responsibility.."

"That's only obvious. Though they're originally high schoolers, it's already been over 10 years since they were reborn and lived on this Orth, you can't call them children in regards to consideration of advantages and disadvantages right."

Though I think that things like feelings and the emotional aspects returned to an appropriate level for our bodies but it's not like we lost our knowledge and we didn't lose the ability to think about things based in that knowledge. It's not my responsibility in regards to things that are related to their original knowledge and ability to make decisions.

"That's sophism."

"Please feel free to say whatever you want."

"..Well then, what do you think in regards to the fact that there's no good faith clause?"

"I don't think anything at all. It's just as she just said, it's fine as long as I can make proper decisions. Even then if they offer me any objections or make suggestions for a different decision then I'll take them into consideration."

I point at Miduchi with the thumb of my left hand over my shoulder while replying.

"How do you intend to take responsibility in the case that your decision is a mistake?"

However you know, your way of calling me went from "anata" to "kimi". I'll overlook the "kisama" you used just before. While I'm acting politely you're acting so arrogantly. Even though you're just a commoner you sure can speak your mind. Ah, I guess he was a kishi-sama was it? But when it comes to things regarding knights it shouldn't have any relation outside of the knight group. Come to think of it we never asked how older they were when they died. He might have just been older than me. Not that it particularly matters though.

"If you're going to point that out, then if they accept that I'll deal with it appropriately."

"..You sure have quite a bit of confidence."

"If I didn't have confidence I wouldn't do something like hire people and explore Baldukk. It's dangerous after all."

If a person can't have confidence in their own decisions then they should just leave those decisions up to someone else. Being able to see through that person is a splendid talent as well.

"However, for you to have them accompany you into the dangerous dungeon for just a mere 200,000 Z..It seems that you're unusually paying bonuses as well but since I thought it was rude I didn't ask the amount. How many months worth are you paying? I don't mind even if it's just the amount from the summary of this year."

Why would I have to say something like that? Well from their point of view then I'm making innocent (though even when they died in their late teens it might be going too far calling them innocent) children undertake dangerous jobs and they intend to be the adults punishing the evil adult sipping up all the profits. The reason why they're trying to ask every little detail is because whether it's yesterday or today they probably want to confirm there's no conflicts with what they heard from Ralpa and the others. Also, since there's no custom like giving bonuses on Orth so it's understandable that he would find it strange.

"It isn't a bonus given matching up with the balance sheets like a "company" in Japan. It's "commission" payment that's given out in proportion to the amount we earn when we enter the dungeon that time. Last month we entered the dungeon a total of three times and..How much was it in total again?"

"Umm..Including our wages I don't think it reached 2,000,000.."

Ah, since we didn't count the fact that we found the magic item {Spear.Of.Piercing}. I guess it's around there.

""“Huh?””

“Even if you exclude our wages it's 1,720,000 Z.”

Miduchi supplemented it. You, is it fine for you not to remain quiet? However, I'm amazed you can remember that.

“Currently we're entering the dungeon in 9 day cycles. Consequently we enter the dungeon 3–4 times in a month before returning. It's only obvious but on the months we go and return 4 times our income is even greater. We're often receiving bonuses in proportion to the earnings from magic stones and on the occasions of finding gems and magic tools we also receive a bonus from the sales of those.”

Bel supplemented an explanation as well. Yeah that's right, that's exactly how it is. I glanced at Ralpa for a bit thinking she didn't tell them something like that.

“I mean if I were to say the amount then they'd be able to calculate how much we're earning. Father said it would be better to remain quiet about the precise amount until they enter the party and sign the contract with Al..”

Ralpa said while pouting with her mouth. Certainly that's true but it's not particularly anything to hide from reincarnated people so it would have been fine even if you said it. Even if they don't enter the party it's fine as long as they don't become my enemy. If they were interested in investigating if they just listen to the information from the magic stone dealer then there's countless methods to investigating something like our rough earnings.

However, the conversation shifted to an unexpected direction here.

“Is..Is that really true!? 1,720,000 Z in just one month!? Please hire me! I'll do anything!”

Basutal who hadn't said almost anything up until now suddenly approached me with an intense momentum and lowered his head rubbing it into the table.

Chapter 164: Responsibility 2

Year 7444, Month 12, Day 14

I was a bit surprised at Basutral who suddenly came out with his desire for employment, right now isn't the time to be interviewing him. However, I can't just ignore him without saying anything either.

"Please raise your head. Umm, this is just a simple confirmation but what sort of relationship do you have with these two Basutral-san?"

Since I want to avoid something like headhunting their attendant. Faruergaz and Hirosukal were looking at Basutral with bitter faces but didn't say anything. Basutral is hesitating whether it's okay for him to open his mouth when someone interrupted from the side. It doesn't need to be said but it was Ralpha.

"It seems that person was a slave. Last month these two bought him and after bringing him to the capital they released him into a Free Person."

He~ well since they're reincarnated people I'm sure they had that much leeway, if I were to meet Basutral when he was a slave then I'm sure if I had the money at that time I might have done something like that as well. However, whether or not I release him would depend on if he was born a slave, or fell to being a slave as a result of a crime or being unable to pay his taxes, I'm sure I would investigate things like that first.

"Is that so..That is really..Well conversation regarding employment we should do again at a later time, if possible I'd like to discuss it."

"Pl..Please do!"

I calm down Basutral who is frantically lowering his head to me and returned the conversation to where we were.

"Well I feel as though I'm paying compensation that corresponds to our earnings..However, in regards to the amount of that compensation, putting aside the person themselves I don't think you as an outsider have any right to speak on it, is what I think though.."

I try to smooth over my expression to appear as earnest as I can while talking. Next to me Toris and Bel are nodding as if to say that's right, that's right.

"..I see, certainly it seems you're handing them a reasonable amount of compensation..I can accept that they're satisfied with the compensation like they were saying."

"Is that so? I'm glad that you were able to comprehend it."

"However, I still haven't received an answer I can accept in regards to limiting them on their freedom to quit or obligating them to obey orders other than those that relate to life and death. Furthermore, there's still a portion that is lacking as well. There's no arbitration clause. When a dispute occurs between the persons concerned, how do you intend to settle things?"

Is this guy an idiot? It's not like this is Japan, even the country and individual territories don't have their laws posted out in the open. The only time they have something like a jurisdictional court is the day of judgement but fundamentally they only deal with criminal incidents. Things like civil cases the only way is if a noble was to hire a high ranking noble to judge on it or or a high ranking noble has the King make the judgements.

Since I'm barely within the realms of sub-Nobility, if I cry to him then Marquis Webdos might make a judgement. Since I can't rely on the King right now after all...If I remember correctly the King made a judgement on it, right, your Count Faruregaz family and the Rodairl family or Crocodile family or whatever Marquis families debt problem from 300 years ago right? I can't do anything but sigh.

..In the first place the one who suggested making employment contracts the source of this problem was Ralpha. It's something I found out later but something like an employment contract no one in this world uses them. Even when we were talking big about it to the scribe when we passed through Doran on our way to Baldukk they just looked amazed at us and every time I bring them in to the government office of Baldukk the officials look at me with faces like "Is this guy an idiot?" It's not something I started doing because I wanted. I just got on the boat because I thought I should make use of whatever I could.

"..Fu~ ..I see, then I'll start in order from the places which are easy to respond...First off, in regards to the arbitration clause but have either of you entered into a contract for some kind of dealing with a merchant on Orth before?”

“Never.”

“No. But, isn’t something like including clauses assuming a dispute of contracts between parties involved only obvious? Even more so without the existence of something like a good faith clause, if the decision is left to the employer then I think it’s even more necessary to maintain the fairness of the contract.”

“I see. It seems that the two of you were able to make it up to being knights so your territory..I’m sure you have experience taking part in the enforcement of punishments and the security for days of judgement in lord Count Faruerugaz’s territory..Yeah, that day of judgement. When it comes to minor crimes that they may use of that as the model and the lords of small towns and villages judge in a similar way. Ah, I already understand that you know that’s only obvious. When it comes to crimes that are publicly known or serious offenses it’s common for them to be transported to the capital of a large territory right? And, the place where we’re using as a base is Baldukk in the direct territory of the royal family. If there was some sort of dispute it’s possible to appeal that to his majesty the King or the governor. I guess that’s right. If a problem were to occur that I’m not paying compensation owed then they could make an appeal like that and obligate me to pay them their compensation. Up until here is fine right?”

I’ve somehow started to get tired of trying to cover things up with a serious face. However, just acting like it’s troublesome here and acting carelessly is meaningless as well. I need to tense myself up I guess.

“What I want you to remember back to here is the opposite. There’s no penalty clause. Regardless of whether I’m properly paying them their compensation, in the case that they refuse to obey my orders, or even if they were to cause any damage to me there’s no provisions regarding penalties in those cases. It’s a strange way of putting it but even if they were to just leave as they wish on their own and say that I fired them then I have no method of trying to get them return by making a claim using the contract as a shield.”

He’s making a face as if he wants to say he had already realized that. Well, he pointed out that many flaws in the details of the contract after all. It would be strange for him not to notice so it's only obvious. When I glanced to the side Bel and Toris were making strange expressions like they were surprised. Ralpa's mouth is wide open and Gwine is somehow making a difficult face. It should be fine to ignore the seiza group.

"Certainly, if they were to claim that it's my mistake that I didn't include clauses such as those then there would be no helping it. Putting it frankly while I was in the middle of writing it, it just got too troublesome as well. However, isn't it lacking too much in fairness to one-sidedly criticize just me their employer?"

"..In regards to that I had intended to mention it later. However, we were trying to properly hear the details of the contract, I think it's almost exactly the correct details of the contract we heard. It seems there were 10 provisions in all."

Was it 10 provisions again? I also feel like it was 8 though...I wonder if I'm remembering incorrectly?

Well, it's fine. While I was twisting my head Gwine told me.

"I think they're probably referring to the differences between Ral's contract and ours in regards to the first months income and learning magic from Al-san. Since mine was different in that regard."

Ah, was that how it was? I don't remember things down to there. It's already something that's finished after all. And it's unrelated to things from here on out. I just replied with an, "I see." to Gwine and nodded.

"And, it's about time I'd like to hear your true intentions. Since yesterday it seems that you all have been talking about various things with the employees of my company, Zenom.Firefreed, his daughter Ralpa.Firefreed, and Gulinelle.Akdam. Ah, there's no problem at all what they talk about on their own days off. And then you all heard the details of their employment contract and thought that contract was something unfair and felt a problem with me their employer. Since things like that are of no concern to me they don't matter at all."

I took a sip of the tea that's completely become lukewarm.

"However, after worrying about my employees who hadn't returned after one night, when I came rushing to the capital, just when I finally thought I met them in my company, I was told they were talking to three people I don't know since morning, and when I hear even more and take a good look those three are former Japanese people. Well, this is fine as well. However, inside of a building that I own, you complained about the punishment I gave out to the source of our worries, moreover you start going on about how I'm deceiving or just using my employees, much less being blamed for "brainwashing", you're driving us into a situation where you might end up putting a crack in our splendid relationships. Though I think the cause of that is you all who up until now had absolutely no relation to us just sticking your nose into our business.."

Ralph turned pale. You sit over there and reflect.

"Certainly when it comes to someone from the home town, furthermore if it's thoughts in regards to young women being made victim to something then this is fine as well. However, with what right do you have to speak in regards to the details on our contracts?"

When I spoke up to there I was staring right into the eyes of Hiroshiro.

"That itself is only obvious. However, first off it's certainly true that it seems I need to apologize. I'll apologize for coming to a decision while still lacking information, speaking out in matters I had no right to, and one-sidedly blaming you. I'm very sorry. Please forgive me for that rudeness."

Oh? He apologized quite honestly. I just shrugged my shoulders and accepted his apology.

"However, while we were too hasty in our decision based on the little information we had we certainly felt some women from our home town were in danger. No matter what we just couldn't overlook that. Still more, what we found out from that limited information was that their employer was another Japanese person as well. We misunderstood that another Japanese person was preying on other Japanese. I'm very sorry for any trouble we've caused you."

Hiroshiro lowered his head considerably easily. Though it felt a bit too much like an excuse...Hmm.

"Well, it can't be helped if we just keep talking endlessly like this here. It should be about a good time. Then how about we solve things for once in regards to leaving the job. It's fine if I cancel everyone's contracts right here and now on this spot. Of course, I've already paid the wages for this month the other day but going off the payment schedule I won't say anything like returning that."

I looked around at everyone surrounding the table before continuing my words.

"If anyone wishes I'll cancel their contract. We'll burn the contracts after returning to Baldukk. Of course, that includes the ones we've left with the government office as well. If there's anyone who wishes for that just say something."

Everyone remained quiet after hearing my sudden declaration.

"..There doesn't seem to be anyone. Then that's fine."

I returned my glance to Hirosukol again. He's making a grim face as if he bit into something sour.

"Regardless of the fact that you pointed out that many faults in the contract no one seems to be interested in canceling it. That means they've accepted it. Well then, I would like it if you restrain yourselves from having anymore more to do with our internal circumstances."

After I declared that for the first time since I sat down on the sofa I leaned back and slowly crossed my legs, put my right elbow down on the arm rest with my hand out as if I was making scissors from rock, paper, scissors and then tilted my head to the side. Miduchi ran up without delay and placed a jelly bean in between my fingers. It doesn't close things as well when it's not a lit cigarette but after biting the edge of the jelly bean with my teeth and replenishing my sugar levels on it.

I don't know why but for some reason Hirosukol and Faruerugaz were making slightly envious faces while watching. She pays attention quite well right? After handing Miduchi the rubber balloon with the jelly beans in it and it seems the two of them in front of me were still following after her with their eyes. Judging from the angle of their eyes are they looking at her ass?

Certainly since she has elf blood mixed in here facial features are extremely good looking and her proportions are quite good for a 16 year old as well but I can't really say they have the best interests being accepting of that skin color. Putting aside the large scars on her face, the blue violet color of her almost looks like a corpse.

"Well then, Basutorial-san. In regards to your matter. It seems that you wish to be employed by this Greed Company but.."

"Yes! I'm begging you! I'll do anything I'm told! Please, hire me!"

When the conversation changed Basutorial approached again. I wonder what Faruergaz and Hirosukol think about this? I guess I'll confirm it for once.

"Ple..please wait just a moment. Faruergaz-san, Hirosukol-san. He's saying these sorts of things but is there any problem with that? If there is some sort of problem then I won't continue this conversation though"

I took my eyes off Basutorial and looked at the two of them before Faruergaz started replying dryly.

"..There is no problem. We just couldn't look on idly as a Japanese person lost themselves in the slave social standing. We just wanted him to start up some kind of business and save him. Of course, we intend to have him repay us for the expense though"

I see, then there doesn't seem to be any problem. Hearing that Hirosukol nodded as well. But you know, I get your feelings and what you want to say, but you two, both of you are pretty cruel. That means that people who weren't reborn, just normal people born on Orth are unrelated and you don't think anything of them right? The thing irritating me isn't that way of thinking. I feel like I can understand the way of thinking itself, since even I think some things similar to that as well. What I was thinking is that I'm amazed you say that so openly in a place where not just Zenom but Zulu and Angela might be able to hear it as well.

Well, I guess it just means that everyone is different in how they think and feel about things. Even that line just now, depending on the person who hears it, they might get warm feelings thinking they're kind towards others of the same home town.

Well, it doesn't particularly matter though.

“If, you would like to be employed by this company, then in that case in regards to the expenses that Faruerugaz-san loaned to you, it would be fine for me to take over that loan as well.”

After all I'm using them young'ens to make a serious killing. I should have the right to at least say much sarcasm, and I thought that much but didn't say it. I'm sure I would just be warned by Miduchi or Zenom later that I went too far either way.

“..However, it's just as you heard the employment contract for our company is full of holes. Since the current employees who have signed on to that contract seem fine as is that's one thing but it seems strange to force that on a new person being employed...and before that what do you intend to do to be useful to us? Incidentally, we already have plenty of shop assistants and there's no problems with our deliveries to frequent customers. Since that's the case, it's only obvious but we would hire you as a security member, and have you enter the dungeon together with us though..”

Doing something like using a reincarnated Japanese person to tend to a store, it's too much of a waste that there's no way I could do it. From what I just identified just now it doesn't seem like he would be useful at all but since he's still young if we train him for several years, since he's a man shouldn't he end up still better off than Gwine? Currently I'm paying 2% of the proceeds(not the profits. Since I'm the one paying for the wages every month, the taxes to enter the dungeon, the tools we use in the dungeon, and the food we normally consume. Even though I say that the interest rate on the proceeds is something like 99%) to each of the six people as a bonus. Going off the proceeds that means I'm paying 12%. Since I thought that 20%, or even depending on the case up to 25% was within the permissible range, there's no problem with increasing our numbers a by a bit more.

There's no problem with it but I want to hold back how much I pay as much as possible. Simultaneously I also have to make sure the members who have been around for a while can accept it as well. If it's someone like Miduchi who has exceptionally high skills then it's easy to accept but in his case, he was a slave until just the other day it seems, and even his level is appropriate for that. It's difficult to treat them the same from the start.

“Gu..At .. at first I’ll do anything even if it’s carrying luggage! I’ll even put in the effort to learn how to use a weapon!”

“Have you fought against a monster before?”

I’m sure he hasn’t though. Just in case.

“That is..No I have not. But, I’ll do it! I need to do it. Definitely, I’ll definitely earn some money and..”

He~ It seems he has some sort of objective as well. Though he might not eternally end up as one of my subordinates but it’s still much better than guy with no goals at all. Earning money, is an extremely easy to understand and splendid goal. The problem is whether or not that’s just him speaking big. In regards to that it’s one thing that won’t get caught up in {Detect.Lie} as well.

“For the time being it was be things like learning how to use a weapon and training, those sorts of plain things I think? Also, inside of the dungeon the things I, and your other seniors say are absolute. We won’t forgive opposition or refusal. Since time passes while arguing and danger gets even closer after all.”

It’s my first time saying this line. However, it’s a necessary line I’m sure.

“That’s only obvious! Please order me to do anything!”

I looked at Basutoral’s face for a short while and confirmed that he was seriously looking over here, then looked at the faces of Ralpa, Gwine, Zenom, Bel, and Toris. Well, I guess it’s fine.

“I understand. Basutoral-san, I’ll hire you. In regards to your treatment we’ll talk about and decide on it separately.”

While Basutral was making a worried expression he changed to a full face smile and thanked me while saying, “I’m looking forward to working with you!” Ralpa let out a sigh of relief in the corner of my vision. She’s probably relieved that her movements weren’t a complete waste. She’s an idiot as usual. You. It is quite the achievement you were able to pull in a reincarnated person. Though it’s still a different matter from whether or not you properly got in contact with us.

“Now then, Faruergaz-san. How much were the expenses it cost to free him? I’ll take over repayment of the loan.”

It was when I said that.

“Ah, would you please wait for just a moment? From the circumstances, the ones who released him were us but I still think we’re properly responsible for looking after him. In the first place, you’re talking about challenging the dungeon but obviously that’s dangerous right? Since there’s quite a few young women as well, isn’t it dangerous in a variety of ways?”

That’s right. It’s dangerous.

“..That’s precisely why it requires absolute obedience for following orders and a reasonable amount of compensation. I thought that you were already able to understand that but..”

“I feel as though I’ve already understood that. However, even though it’s a friend who we’ve gone to the trouble of getting to know, just remaining quiet and watching them step food into a dangerous place like that is..doesn’t sit well with me.”

..I really can’t do anything more than just look at him with my eyes half closed.

“Hirosukol-san, I’ve been listening quietly since a while ago just now but what in the world is it with you? Acting so arrogantly. Starting from the beginning up until now our Greed has treated you politely. Even though there’s no obligation to explain anything to you two? Things like because we’re former Japanese people or not those types of things don’t matter at all.”

“Stop, Toris.”

“No, Al-san. I can’t remain quiet any longer. There’s also the matter of disciplining Firefreed as well. He said something about “corporal punishment” but that sort of stuff is our internal problem. Certainly it’s shameful but if you didn’t discipline her now, when are you going to discipline her? She caused us to worry that much. The reason doesn’t matter. She had plenty of methods to get into contact with us as well. The problem is she was negligent on that. Regardless of whether it’s right in front of strangers things that need to be done should be done. It's something that's necessary for Ral's sake as well. To Al-san rather than something like his relationship or the impression he gives you, it's proof he cares far more about Ral's life from here on out. In the first place, calling something like "seiza" corporal punishment, it was so funny I thought the tea would come out of my nose."

Yeah, all orders other than those that have to do with life or death are absolute obedience right? You've signed on to the contract as well right? Adding to that, this is quite a bit more embarrassing than forcing Ral and Gwine to seiza you know.

"In the first place, saying this and that about Japanese people, aren't you embarrassed of yourselves at this point? We're already no longer Japanese people. All 39 of us died together in that accident. From here on out for countless decades we're going to live in this Rombert, this Orth. Certainly the way of thinking of trying to help people who are bound by an unreasonable contract is splendid. I don't think it's something that can be done so easily. Since in actual fact you saved the slave Basutoral-san as well. But even in that case, what is it, with that sort of arrogant way of speaking."

"Hey, Toris."

I need to stop him already, and thinking that when I was about to open my mouth, Bel reached from the other side and grabbed my left arm, Bel's face was ice cold as she looked at Faruergaz and Hirosukol. Oh Koloil, you too? But you know.

"Toris, apologize for your rash remarks already. Hirosukol-san is a knight of Count Faruergaz. Furthermore Faruergaz-san is also a knight and the eldest son of the Lord and Count."

"I'm truly very sorry I said something so cheeky. Please forgive me."

After being strongly told that by me Toris went silent and then lowered his head and apologized.

"I'm really sorry about our young ones, they were quite rude to you."

Ue~ it's like the type of line some Yakuza boss would say.

Rather we were originally adventurers and it's not all that different I guess?

“Please don’t think too badly of him for it.”

I said that and lowered my head.

“However, please think carefully over the things Kalstalan just said. Somehow it seems that the two of you still have quite a bit of the disposition of Japanese people remaining. I think that disposition is quite splendid.”

I said that and smiled. I was surprised at people still acting with the values of modern day Japan but it’s the fact that there was a person like that. Rather, I even think it’s quite amazing they managed to live for 16 whole years on Orth while still maintaining those sorts of values. Since there’s a person right in front of me who was saved by that.

“Certainly it’s just as Kalstalan-san said. It was rude of me. When I’m talking with Japanese people, it seems I can’t get rid of the habit, I’m really very sorry about that. Please excuse me.”

Hirosukol said that and lowered his head. No, it’s fine.

Chapter 165: Responsibility 3

Year 7444, Month 12, Day 14

“..I feel as if scales are falling from my eyes. I’m really very sorry for saying something so embarrassing. Certainly that’s true. I was lacking the thinking, “when you enter the village abide by the village”. I apologize. I’m sorry and have no excuses.”

Faruergaz sincerely apologized as well. Though it’s common for Japanese people to easily lower their heads even if you retort to them even just a bit but on Orth that’s not a virtue or anything at all. I need to stop around here.

“Hirosukol-san, Faruergaz-san. Please raise your heads. I already understand your feelings.”

I raised my back from leaning back into the sofa and smiled. Let’s change the topic.

“This just my own personal interest, so if it’s inconvenient for you two then you don’t need to reply but..do the two of you have any friends other than those in this place?”

I think they probably don’t though. Ah, please don’t misunderstand. Just now they referred to Basutorial as a “friend”. Even though I’m sure their relationship doesn’t go beyond one month. I just was wondering if they didn’t know of any other Japanese people. The reason I didn’t ask them directly, is if possible I didn’t want them to know that I was trying to gather Japanese people as well. After all they still haven’t become my allies.

“Friends, huh...I, don’t have any..just these two.”

“I..have one that isn’t far from being called that in my home town. A fighting friend who’s two years older than me.”

Faruerugaz said lonesomely and Hirosukol said nostalgically. As expected I guess there’s no other people. This can’t be helped.

“Though it wasn’t our intention to, we were able to gain this new life to live. It would be good if you can make a lot of friends.”

It would feel bad if it's just that.

"If you have as many chances to interact with various people then I think you'll be able to gain more chances to touch on various ways of thinking. It's some kind of fate that we met here. Would please include me in the group of friends of you two?"

I first stretched my right hand out to Faruergaz.

"Eh? A, Ah. Yeah, of course! Of course that's the case, Greed-san."

Faruergaz grasped my hand and then even put his left hand over that while saying.

Next I stretched my hand out to Hirosukol as well. He grasped my hand just the same.

At the very least with this our relationship shouldn't get dangerous anytime soon. It might be naive but for now I should remain satisfied with this. After all, putting aside the initial misunderstanding, they called my dream a "grand lie that can't be done". At the very least I'm sure they can't empathize with it and they don't have the type of mentality to believe in the fantasy story that is the country I'm trying to make. Whether for better or for worse they're Japanese people after all.

However, it's not as if I've given up on including them as my subordinates. In terms of future potential I can only imagine Hirosukol as being in the same position as my current allies but I desperately want Faruergaz. Even if I have to use this and that methods I want to get my hands on him. I think it's necessary not just for his body but to take quite a bit of time to train his mentality as well but other than my magic, while most likely it would be difficult to deal with, he is the only thing that could come close to a tactical weapon. In terms of pure power his might even be superior to my magic. If I gain any sort of confidence that he won't fall for me then it's to the point where before he goes somewhere far away I need to make sure to definitely kill him.

"Now then, putting that aside, for starters there's the expenses that Faruergaz-san lent to Basutral in order to free him. How much was it?"

"In terms of cost to release him it was 150,000 Z to the temple, 3,000,000 Z to buy him. Other than that, he had intended to start up his own company so other than I lent him 1,000,000 Z in order to obtain a company license, and 850,000 Z to get it started up.”

Ha? 3,000,000 Z? Though he’s an adult male, that’s quite the price for a weak Cat-people brat. It should be at most 2,500,000 Z...I’m sure he must have been overcharged. How pitiful.

“What about interest?”

“I didn’t intend to take it, right now, I’ll bring the loan document.”

Faruergaz said that, stood up from his seat, and went outside. So it’s 5 gold coins. I can accept 3,150,000 Z of that but the rest I’ll have him pay back right away excluding the expenses of his daily necessities. I’m sure he still has some cash on him. That’s fine but I think I probably only have 2,000,000 Z in my wallet right now...I don’t normally walk around with that kind of large sum on me... and, this was my company. I’m sure there’s at least 5,000,000. Since I knew there was around 10,000,000 laying around for buying seeds and grains and such to import to the village and such. Though anything other than that is in a borrowed locker in the government office.

I stand up from the sofa as well and after passing by Miduchi’s side I went up to the second floor. I entered the Ryogu’s bedroom at my own convenience and then opened the hidden drawer, after just grabbing 5 gold coins I returned. The currency was separated and wrapped up in different cloths. Thinking it was Rozural and Wendy’s methodical side I made a small bitter smile. In addition to returning I went further in the back of the first floor, grabbed a piece of paper from the warehouse in the back yard and then returned with a contract use magic stone.

Faruergaz returned at almost the same time as me. I placed the display money 5,000,000 Z on top of the table and talked to Basutorial.

“Basutorial-san. There’s 5,000,000 Z. Please use as much as you need.”

Matching it up with the money he currently has on him, I thought he should probably pay off his debt on his own. And, huh? Huhuh? Why are you taking all of it? I want to praise my power of will for keeping the surprise from showing on my face. Basutorial just lowered his head to me once and returned all of that...Faruergaz is using status open on each of those to confirm them. After he confirmed all five he tore up the loan document. Ah, well when it comes to silver coins there's so many of them you can't be bothered checking the status of all of them right. When it comes close to 2,000,000 Z then they end up like a pile of useless small change..though I guess you can't call silver coins useless small change.

However, in comparison to what I was thinking Basutoral isn't intending to open his wallet at all. Not just that he's looking back at me.

"Is there something?"

This isn't a marriage interview. Return the money. You have some right?

"Umm, is it fine not to write a loan document?"

Eh? No, of course I'll write one though. Ah! I see! Sorrysorry. I'm sure he needs to buy a weapon and armor and various things as well. I had completely forgotten.

"Ah, of course I intend to write one but I had intended to add a postscript to the contract. Would it be better to add it to the loan amount?"

"Umm, I have a bit of a request in regards to that but.."

"Hn? What is it?"

I felt that Basutral's timid manner of speech was unnatural.

"Another 2,000,000, no, could you please loan me another 1,000,000? I know it's shameless of me but could you please?"

Hoe? 1,000,000 on a weapon, 500,000 — 600,000 on some leather armor, 200,000 on his expenses for the time being, so I thought the 5,000,000 was fine but another 1,000,000? Does he really want equipment that expensive? Putting aside a magic weapon and my handmade sword, there's not even anyone among our members who use weapons that high quality? Though recently our armor has gotten pretty decent. Ah, come to think of it Angela's broad sword was one that was around 5,000,000. If I think about it like that then excluding me, the greatest equipment in our party is two suits of banded-mail and a high quality broad sword used by a female slave..It's laughable.

"Hn..is it fine if I ask what the use of it is?"

Since I'm lending some money it's only obvious from a Japanese standpoint to confirm the usage. I really want to know as well.

"N..There's a woman I've promised to marry in my home town. She's a slave as well but I want to buy her. Since the individual tax of a slave owned by a Free Person is 1,000,000 I'll release her soon after and get married though.."

Yes? Hey, wait just a minute. I looked at Faruergaz and Hirosukol in order. They were seriously nodding. It seems that what this guy is saying it true but as expected that is...

"..Basutorial-san. That's unreasonable. No, I'm not saying it because I don't have the money. Just as I said just now the dungeon is a dangerous place. Putting it quite frankly it's even possible for you to lose your life this year. Are you telling me to take on anymore risk than that? In the first place, after you buy that woman how are you planning to prepare your own equipment and weapon? Just in case I'll say it but even infantry use short swords and spears have market prices of around 700,000 — 800,000 Z, and leather armor is only a bit cheaper than that? The expenses for daily life for the time being are also necessary."

When I said that Basutorial choked up on his words. I'm sure Faruergaz can't say anything in regards to this either.

"Please endure it for a year or so. I'll say it frankly but there's no way to give you the same treatment as my other members from the start. Please think that you're starting from the reserve troops. However, it's fine if you take this as a promise but if one year later you're still splendidly alive then while luxuriously is impossible, I'm sure you'll have earned enough to buy your wife, properly pay both of your individual taxes, and be able to live on that...Where is your birth village? If you're worried then six months later if you're still working properly it's fine if I buy her as well."

Somehow I'm not satisfied with this. Am I an idiot? Is this some sort of charity company that hires people from the same home town who are troubled with money~? This, no matter how I think about it I'm paying more than I get back in returns. It's only obvious that my orders are absolute obedience right. After all if we're doing contracts then I should properly think up the content. The contract can be on equal terms but it's only obvious that the details change based on the power relationship between sides~ If that wasn't the case places with subcontracts in Japan wouldn't be crushed. Somehow it's all just become idiotic.

"This is the greatest compromise I can offer. If you can't accept this then I can't hire you."

I won't say any complaints about not being able to employ him at this point. If he complains about refusing to increase the loan amount then I can't deal with that. If it comes to that I'll seriously throw him out and if he can't return the money I'll just turn him into a slave again from the debt.

"..I understand. I'm very seriously for saying something so impudent at my own convenience. I'm looking forward to working with you."

"Yes, I'm also looking forward to working with you. Well then, let's go and buy a weapon and some armor right away. We need to take a room for you at an inn as well."

When I said that I ordered Zulu who was standing at the doorway to let Yotlen and the others inside.

"I'm sorry about suddenly intruding in on you. Also, could you tell Rozural that I used 5,000,000...and, I guess it's fine, I'll tell him directly on my way back. Also, use this to feed something warm to Anna and Hanna."

I gave her an adequate amount of 2–3 silver coins and then lead everyone out of the company.

"Umm, Greed-san."

I put my helmet on and just as I started to put my gauntlets on my hands Faruergaz started talking to me. Ah, I need to properly mention it to Miduchi and find out where you guys are lodging. There's no way I would give up so easily on two Japanese people, even more so when they're knights at that.

"Hn? What is it?"

"Is it alright for us to go to Baldukk as well?"

Eh? Do as you please. Though that's even more appreciated for me as well.

Ah, come to think of it they did say something about watching over him. Even if it's only for a short while if you two are going to follow along with us at your own convenience then it saves me the trouble of watching you.

"Yeah, I don't mind. Ralpa, Gwine, stand up. Let's go. Zulu, Angela, go to the passenger carriage and take some seats."

I guess their feet went numb, when the two of them stood up they were staggering and when I was glancing at them from the side Bel poked those legs emitting a gya~ scream from the two idiots and then I was called out to again.

"And also, I have a request but.."

What is it now, really. I have no intention of hiring you two for the time being. Since it seems troublesome.

"That is~ I..I want you to sell us some Saya but.."

"In..In reality we just came because we wanted to buy some Saya."

They said it with a voice so low I almost couldn't hear it.

Eh? Really, just stop it already. There's young children here after all. And so you were customers?

"Yotlen, is there any Saya still remaining?"

I tried asking in a low voice and it seems that while the stock is extremely low there still is some. However, it seems the only things remaining are SS and XL sizes. The rest is just made of the stock for brothel companies that we've already exchanged contracts with and our free stock is zero. Since it couldn't be helped when I told them there's only super small and insanely large sizes remaining they were disappointed.

"If you'll come along to our inn then I can share a bit of S and M sizes but.."

Of course it's the M size I use but there's also the M size I provide Angela with and the S size I sell to Toris, so I obviously have secured a reasonable size of stock at the inn.

For the time being we all packed into the passenger carriage, Miduchi and I, the two of us rode to the workshop on horseback and after I told Rozural and Wendy that I suddenly had to use 5,000,000, we chased after the passenger carriage.

Author Note Spell:

“Detect.Lie” Divination

(All elements Lv. 3, Void magic Lv. 5, Consumes 22 MP void magic double)

Choose one target and when that target speaks a lie it can be detected. The lie isn't based in fact. It points to whether or not the target intentionally spoke with intention to deceive. If the person them self believe in it then it's not a lie. The reverse magic is {Conceal.Real.Intention}.

When this magic is being used, the judgements will be based on the level difference of the user.

Chapter 166: Long Term Exploration

Year 7444, Month 12, Day 14

Once I returned to my inn I got to producing Basutoral's contract right away. It's fundamentally the same as everyone else but I also included the following clauses.

- .Settings for a trial period (of course, as long as I don't accept it the trial period continues forever)
- .Specifying the conditions for providing of bonuses (During the trial period it's 1% of the "magic stones" we obtain and sell to a dealer)
- .Regulations for quitting (Requires agreement from both sides. In reality it's no different from before)
- .Regulations for days off (Only days I recognize in advance)
- .Retention of secrets (He has an obligation to hide any secrets he finds out on the job)
- .Regulations for penalties (Putting it simply if there's any inconveniences caused to me over something)
- .Good faith clause (just as it sounds)
- .Adding money to the debt (Though this is a clause just for Basutral)

Ah, days off? The paid days off are only for women. If I use healing magic when symptoms of an illness start to appear then they recover easily so there's no sick days. Of course in urgent situations it's possible to withdraw from them at any time. Yesterday was a good example. Also, in regards to the penalties but obviously if there's a delay in wages for the employees then I'll pay an interest that both parties agree on. Furthermore, the payment date is the same as usual up until now the 1st day of each month but if I notify them advance I can change that to a later date. Since we might be in the dungeon.

Well, it's like a small version of a real employment contract. Honestly speaking, there's still plenty of things missing but for now this should be fine. Adding to that in regards to the compensation with the trial period concludes but I've decided it's the same as everyone else 2% of the "magic stones" sold to the dealers. Eh? Even then it's unequal and dirty? I wonder about that? Since it's not written that I won't pay anymore than that, if his work is good then I'll pay additionally.

Even with this I'm compromising quite a bit. For example last months bonus was 1,720,000 Z (172 silver coins) but since we didn't find any magic items, ores, or special treasures so even if he was just sticking with us like a parasite it comes out to him receiving 860,000 Z. No matter how you think about it, it's paying too much.

However, to be honest as I was writing it up I started feel discontent with the other conditions than that as well. In the first place, why do I have to bother writing a contract every time. I'm probably the only one doing something like this in all of Orth. In the end we have to use our blood and magic stones to make the seal as well so it just adds pointless expenses as well..it's all that stink bug Ralpa's fault.

While I'm doing that, Miduchi is leisurely laying on my bed filing her nails, Toris and Bel are probably flirting like crazy in their room. Ralpa and Gwine should be out accompanying Basutorial on his shopping. Since I let the two slaves return to their inn together with Giberuti I have no clue. I wonder if Zulu is lowering his head to his girlfriend?

The two knights who followed along tried to take a room at the same inn "Boil Manor" it seems but since there was only one room open they ended up staying at a different inn nearby. Of course I had Basutorial stay in the opening room. After hearing it was 5,000 Z (50 copper coins) per night Basutorial's eyes seemed like they would spin and he tried to refuse it but I said that even though he needs to save money I won't accept a seedy lifestyle and forced him to stay here. With this he'll be even more desperate I'm sure.

Zenom? Since Zenom came to apologize honestly to me for causing us to worry I accepted his apology. Around now he's probably getting tipsy on the shitty expensive vodka and dried neisun (herring like fish) he bought on the way back. When I finish writing this I plan to train with magic for just a bit and then drink some good alcohol as well.

When Basutorial returned from shopping, the two knights said they would act as witnesses to the contract, so surrounded by the {Slaughterer}s and some onlookers we read out the details of the contract and it was safely signed by Basutorial. No one touched on the compensation portion but several members of the {Slaughterers} grinned like they realized it. That's right, since you all are the so-called successive generation. Your treatment is different. You don't have any complaints right?

.....

Year 7444, Month 12, Day 15

When I appeared in front of the inn while yawning and yesterday I mentioned it so just like a former slave Basutorial woke up before us and he was waiting together with Zulu and the others. Ah, this is bad~ come to think of it I forgot to prepare this guys shoes... It's troublesome, for the time being I guess I'll just let him use my spare sandals. Along with Basutorial who's wearing my sandals and enjoying the comfort of them, we went for our morning running at 5:30 am while it was still dark and chilly out.

After running for about two hours, we had some breakfast, and it's finally time to start training using wooden swords and spears. Since I made sure to tell Ralpha and Gwine yesterday, I made sure we had a weapon prepared for Basutorial. It's a spear. Since it will take a bit of time for his armor to be made. The same as usual we went to the vacant space at the edge of the town and there were already several pairs of adventurers training. After choosing an appropriate, place where no one will interfere with us we started our training as well.

First I had Gwine instruct him on the way to properly hold the spear. Today he'll just learn the thrust and in addition it would be good if he gets used to the weight of the spear. When the rest of our members were training Faruergaz and Hirosukol came along to take a look. Just in case I invited them yesterday at dinner but they refused while a bit embarrassed so I'm just leaving them alone.

They're looking at our training from a bit of distance away. Since we're in the middle of training we just nodded to them and are ignoring them. Two hours after we started training. Around 10:30 when we decided to take a break for a short while, Faruergaz started talking to me.

“Greed-san, is this sort of training sufficient for adventurers?”

“Eh? Yeah, fundamentally we just continue with this sort of training.”

When I said that he made a slightly surprised face. Ah, that sort of thing. Older brother said the training of the knight group was quite a bit different from our training as squires in Bakuddo as well. Since we’re more adventurers, or rather, we’re completely adventurers after all. I’m sure if you don’t know it would be surprising.

Ah, that’s right, the main school of swordsmanship in Rombert Kingdom is Fogen Style which the founder is said to be George.Rombert the First. It’s not much different from most styles of swordsmanship I know and shows it’s true value in one on one combat. I’m sure the original source for it is Kiichi Hogen right? However, right now this is the so-called western swordsmanship that incorporates a combination of the shield and the sword, so I really can’t imagine that the source makes use of a Japanese katana. This is close to just being my imagination but since George Rombert the First shouldn’t have had something like a Japanese sword, I think he probably completely abandoned his sword style that made use of the katana once. Isn’t it just that he left behind the name?

“Since we’re not fighting against “people” as the opponents in accordance with the path of a knight. I think it’s completely different from the training of the knight group. Of course, we include a portion of that but things like swinging and some level of the forms are training that each individual can do in their spare time.”

Things like training against people or armies are just a waste of time right now. Rather than that it wouldn’t be too late to do it after earning some money, buying a territory, and then starting it. It’s more frightening to be killed by monsters before then. Everything you’ve built up until now will become useless. Ah, I guess it’s just like this that swordsmanship styles change?

After hearing my words they nodded with expressions like they understood, while watching over the two of them started doing something.

The two knights were quite surprised at how even when we take bruises or cuts all over our bodies we just repeated healing magic and kept going with the training while enduring the pain. After all more than half our members can use magic. I'm sure they saw our status when we were doing introductions yesterday but since Toris, Bel, and I are nobles they didn't say anything but they were considerably surprised when they were introduced themselves to Gwine and Ralph it seems. Also, while they said that we have quite a few members who can use magic, it seems they remained quiet on the fact that all of our magic skill levels are pretty high level.

When it comes to healing magic that can't be used unless you have over level 2 of elemental magic then it seen as "somewhat advanced", they were shocked that all of us who can use magic could use it. Idiots~ it's too soon for you to be surprised~ What Bel is using isn't {Cure}, it's {Cure Serious}. Furthermore, what Miduchi just used was {Cure All}. Ralph and Gwine can't use them but Toris, Bel, and Miduchi use {Water Arrow} while training after all. Even if it hits there's no damage so it's just a matter of enduring the cold.

"Hobgob!"

When I give out the command the ones who take the roles of the villain attack with some level of formation. This side has to try and have their front line go on the defensive. If you were to say the opponents endurance level is 2 for convenience sake, then you need to hit each one of them with one attack, and then you can't go in to finish them off until all of the targets have taken the first hit, before timing it up as you finish them off all at once. Of course there's rear support as well, when Miduchi, Bel, or I act as the rear support for hobgob it's troublesome. Of course we end up being the first ones targeted though.

"Goblin!"

Everyone only focuses on the opponent right in front of their eyes. In terms of tactics it's the easiest one but when I take on the role of goblin it's hell for the opponent. The estimated endurance level is 1. Eh? When I'm the goblin then of course I go easy with my attacks but I evade like crazy with my full abilities. In the end it comes down to one vs many and I lose though.

"Ork!"

It's not to the level of hobgoblin but we take on some level of formations and cooperate. However, all of our attacks end up large blows with all of our strength. I think I'm better off since hardened rubber has more defensive capability than leather armor but it still seriously hurts to get hit. If I were to swing with all of my power then I might seriously break something so obviously I go easy on them. Everyone is already stronger than real orks after all.

"Ghoul!"

If you take an attack from the villain role then you have to stop moving. They can't move again until Miduchi or I touch them. Since Miduchi and I are always in different groups or both take on the roles of monsters, whenever Miduchi or I are in the role of the adventurer side then the ghoul role has to move to aim for Miduchi or I who are in the rear as much as possible. It's cheating though.

"Gnoll!"

The gnoll role is where everyone uses a spear. Since their physiques are a lot better than real gnolls, it's pretty difficult to approach a 2.5 meter spear. While the front line is holding out the rear has to quickly land some attacks. Obviously, the gnoll role members can evade better than actual gnolls so while their estimated endurance level is only 1 when more than half are killed they retreat so it's difficult to finish them off.

Other than taking on the roles of monsters we team up in groups of two or three and increase our cooperation levels like this, and also train in dealing with attacks from multiple enemies at the same time. It's a bit painful that we can't train against idiotically huge wild boars, ice monsters, and ogres. But, that can't really be helped. Ah, if the opponent is alone then there's no need for anything like formations or that crap. You just surround them and beat them from every side and it's over.

In the first place when it comes to a single absurdly strong monster (like the {Larva Purple Worm} that came out the other day) they don't appear a second time so there's no method of training for them. The closest thing to them would be me but in that case it would just be using spells to make water something or other and a lot of running around so there's not much meaning in it, and while we're doing something like estimate endurance levels while cutting in with wooden swords, if Bel, Miduchi, and the other 8 in total are behind them there's no way I could deal with them all alone. A while back we tried doing it just once, while playing around I tried taking them on seriously but by the point I had defeated five of them my estimated endurance levels were already below 2 and I lost.

Just like this another two hours had passed by in no time at all and since it was 1 pm we finished up our training and went to eat some lunch and rest in preparation for tomorrow.

.....

Year 7444, Month 12, Day 16

After eating breakfast we head straight to challenge the dungeon. As expected Faruergaz and Hriosukol can't accompany us into the dungeon. I didn't invite them and in the first place I doubt they have the right equipment for entering the dungeon.

While it was still dim out we arrived at the entrance plaza and the same as usual it was crowded with parasite adventurers, merchants, and guides.

"Hey, it's the {Slaughterers}."

"That female slave, the other day I saw her at "Kisshu". She was bringing around a good looking guy..I'm envious..how impudent of her.."

"Shit, why is it just those brats.."

"Ah, Bel-chan, Kaweeeeiii~ I want to stick it in between..ha~ha~"

"Huh? There's 11 of them!"

"Wha? What are you saying..It's true!"

"Kalstalan-sama..the second, it's fine if I'm the second so I wonder if he won't be my partner..He seems so strong.."

"Yo~ Ral, next time you return let's go drinking again!"

"Ah, Greed-sama! Please don't forget us Boton siblings! We're useful, we are~!"

"Hey, what does this mean? Gwine-chan's hands, are they small?"

"So it was true that a Dyurou had entered their party.."

"Dazu! Give it your best!"

"Greed-sama, me, please include me in the {Slaughterers}!"

"No, please put me in! I can be more useful than that brat!"

"The brats have increased in number again."

"After all it's Firefreed-san, he's so cool, I look up to him.."

“That armor, it’s the same kind the first knight group is using, I wonder where you can buy it?”

“Yeah, isn’t it something that leader’s older sister gave him under the table, they’re really dirty bastards.”

“Oh? Gwine-chan, did she change her spear..”

“Are they going to split their party up? Are you serious..Amazing~”

“Your information is behind~ They’ve been splitting it up since a while back. Since I saw them when I was camping on the 2nd floor the other day.”

They sure are loud~ However, Zulu, you know, what ever happened to holding pride in your family name...In the end I guess you didn’t get into a fight with that Laios waitress. Well it’s fine. I’ll raise your wages a bit next year.

Since it’s the first time I thought of letting Basutorial get used to the dungeon on the lower floors first but after all the same as usual, I decided to do things normally. I’m sure Basutorial wants to earn money quickly as well so even if he has to overdo it a bit to get to the lower floors, I think it would be best to let him finish off some ogres who’s HP has dropped below 100. Just in case I said that to let Basutorial have priority over killing the monsters Miduchi freezes.

Just the same as usual I cleared through each floor in a group of two shifting between Zulu and Angela, and had the remaining 9 of them proceed forward. It was a bit slower but we reached the teleport room on the 3rd floor the same as usual today and then got some good rest. Basutorial was a bit excited from his first day in the dungeon.

.....

Year 7444, Month 12, Day 18

The problem is the 6th floor. As expected it’s a bit scary starting here. Since it couldn’t be helped I had Basutorial remain on standby in the teleport room on the 5th floor, the 10 of us cleared through the 6th floor, we left Giberuti in the teleport room there, and then we returned to the 5th floor. Since by chance there was no one from {Sun Ray} I’m sure he was quite lonely.

After we picked up Basutorial who was left all alone deep in the depths of the dungeon on his first and was on the verge of crying from the anxiety, we were finally able to reach the teleport room on the 6th floor again around 10 pm. Since Basutorial still doesn't seem to be used to the dungeon our speed of advance is a bit slower. It can't be helped though.

We all sat around eating the dinner Giberuti prepared for us and then went to sleep.

For the next seven days starting tomorrow (Since we plan to take a long and proper break for the end of the year holidays and we have Basutorial this time as well, we brought along quite a bit of extra food. After all we weren't slower just because of Basutorial.), we need to make sure we earn quite a bit from the ogres on the 7th floor!

Chapter 167: Motivation

Year 7444, Month 12, Day 19

Starting today we're really challenging the 7th floor in a full group of 10. After taking a shower, I started organizing our combat potential a bit while eating breakfast.

The first one, me. Capable of both front line and rear support. It's safe to consider me the cornerstone of the {Slaughterers}. Since it's my assessment of myself it might be too generous but I think if I were to be excluded they're only just a bit better than the other top teams. If Miduchi were to be excluded as well then they probably aren't a match for the top team. Though I don't know the true abilities of other top teams so it's just guesswork through.

The second one, Zenom. Since he can't use magic or projectile weapons he specializes in the front line. However, his true skill is high and other than me he's the one I can trust the most on the front line. His specialty is to find openings in the opponent and damage them a bit at a time while fighting persistently.

The third one, Miduchi. The same as me, she can do both front line and rear support. Well she's like an inferior version of me. But in terms of synthesized abilities she's without a doubt the next after me. If she gets used to the missile spells then I think Miduchi alone could compete with the other top teams. Up until then she's a mana tank with a lot of direct attack power. Even though I say that it's big that she can use attack spells in rapid succession.

The fourth one, Ralpa. For the most part she can use magic but she's still technically a front line attacker. In terms of close combat on the front line she's the fourth strongest in the {Slaughterers} but including her Unique Ability if she can just make an opening in her opponent and land a single heavy blow then the situation could make a complete turn around with how much explosive power she has hidden away.

The fifth one, Bel. Since she specializes in the bow and magic she's rear support. Just in case she can also hold her own reasonably well on the front line as well. Since she has more mana than an ultra first-rate sorcerer if you look are synthesized abilities including spells then it's not incorrect to say she can exceed Zenom. If Miduchi and I were to be excluded the way Bel is used is critical.

The sixth one, Toris. Since he started to use the shield he's become more focused on the front line. Since he can use magic as well of course rear support is possible as well but in that case in relation to his MP he's just about average for an adventurer magician. If he can just raise his magic spell skill levels a bit higher than along with his diligent personality he should be able to grow quite a bit.

The seventh one, Gwine. Rear support. Or rather, she's situated between the rear and the front in the middle. She's started to become skilled at making good use of the gaps the front line creates and thrusting her attacks in there. It has no relation to her combat abilities but her Unique Ability might be the most important from the dungeon. I would like for her to be able to go around the battlefield and keep an eye out for when the enemies are aiming at the rear and keep them in check while reading the circumstances of the whole. If she could do that then she'd change into something completely different.

The eighth one, Zulu. Front line. His close combat skills are about the same as Toris. Thanks to holding a shield he's also gained a defense UP. Since he's also pretty loyal he was charming but recently...I guess this doesn't matter at all.

The ninth one, Angela. Front line. Her close combat skills are the same as Bel, you could say she's above Gwine, but one step behind Toris and Zulu. Thanks to holding a shield she's also gained a defense UP. But it seems like she forgets the existence of her shield often.

So we're including Basutorial into here huh...Since we're having him use the spear in terms of position I'm sure he'll protect (?) the middle like Gwine but for the time being he's probably useless. If I were to think of it in terms of combat potential, even Giberuti might be better right now. But, his level went up by 1 in just the time we cleared through from the 1st to 6th floors and is 4 now. In just three days he gained 3,000 experience points. Starting today, if he can earn 1,400 — 1,500 a day for the next seven days on the 7th floor then I'm sure his level will go up once more.

I crunch away at some salad with cabbage as the base while looking at Basutorial's state as he has a pale face and doesn't seem to have much of an appetite. Last night the moment we brought him to the camp, it was like his tension was cut and I remember his state laying down from the fatigue that had built up over the last three days. They must have read my worry, Zenom and Miduchi called out to Basutorial.

"Saji, eat properly. The real thing starts from today."

"That's right Saji-san. If you don't properly eat then you won't be able to move when the time comes."

"Ah? Eh? Yeah, I guess so...However, I wonder why? Even though it's this delicious I don't have any appetite..My feelings are pretty worked up? After all, we managed to obtain that many magic stones."

One our way up until here we made close to 200,000 in value in total. If we sell them to the magic tool shop then it's close to 1,500,000 Z (150 silver coins) in magic stones. This guys share is 1.5 silver coins.

"Starting today we'll be getting our hands on a lot more magic stones with an even higher value. It's not the case to be sprawling around. Now, eat a lot and build up some stamina."

Miduchi said that adding oatmeal to Basutorial's bowl. Basutorial raised a weak smile but even then he uncomfortably put his spoon into the oatmeal. I remember back when I was in the JSDF, I graduated from SD college and when we had an integrated training session with candidates from regular colleges and some other places we had to do a march of over 80Km over an obstacle course, everyone felt like they were going to die. It was harsh even on the JSDF members who had trained and had a reasonable amount of stamina but I'm sure it was far harsher on them.

Even when I was appointed as a 3rd lieutenant and assigned to my station, one of my subordinates Ebara, ended up becoming one of the Northern shortstop CWCT "R" Ranger insignias and I couldn't close my mouth thinking he was some kind of monster from his stamina. Ah, it's my first time remembering Ebara in a while. I'm sure he's feeling like I or the normal candidates of the colleges did back then. If I hadn't retired then the next year I had a recommendation to take the "R" ranger course as well..supposed to do that.

"Basutorial. It's only exhausting for the first 2–3 months. Even if it's impossible to force it down."

It's a battle of stamina and mental strength for adventurers in the dungeon. After all during our descent into the dungeon this time we walked close to 25–30 Km on the first day from the 1st floor to the 3rd floor. I'm sure the actual time spent isn't even one minute each but there's combat along the way as well. Even if it's the same 30 Km as a road it's completely different from escorting a caravan. The distance you have to walk the next day is shorter but you have to walk through a nest of undead monsters, and yesterday we had to walk 7–8 Km while being afraid of teleport traps and huge wild boards. Since Basutorial had only taken part in farm work up until now putting aside stamina wise, I'm sure it's pretty harsh mentality wise.

That's the reason why our meals this time are oatmeal and eggs, various things that are easy to digest and still have quite a bit of nutrients. We brought along a reasonable amount of meat as well but the amount of meat itself isn't all that different from when we normally enter the dungeon. The amount of meat per meal has decreased a bit.

"It's alright. There's no way I could leave any of this delicious stuff leftover!"

Hidden behind his words, Basutorial has a stiff smile on his face as he carries the eggs and oatmeal into his mouth like a machine.

.....

..I guess around here we should have lunch. Thinking that I gave the instruction to take a break inside of the forest on the 7th floor. Today's lunch is something like minced chicken meat over soba. Though I say chicken meat over soba it's really just chicken meat cut into small pieces. It's flavored with salt and seasonings and and has a bit of soba flour kneaded into it. It has a bit of olive oil added for scent as well so it's a splendid meal. Then as vitamin replenishment there's one tangerine as well. Since fruits are quite the luxury item enjoy it as you eat.

Since we normally don't put anything sweet into our mouths while tangerines don't sell well in Japan from how sour they are these ones taste considerably sweet. And then, it's the plot to make everyone forget their exhaustion naturally.

"Saji-san, I've been saying it since before but when you thrust in with the spear you need to twist it. Since the bodies of ogres are durable. Even if you just stab them they won't get any weaker. Just like this, you have to twist it in while stabbing in. If you do that the wound opens up even more and a lot of blood comes out."

Gwine is making a pose of stabbing the spear in and twisting it while teaching Basutorial. Wu..she sure has grown..this old man is happy. It's quite the dangerous growth though.

"I did that though..the muscle of the ogres is too hard that I couldn't twist it.."

"That's why you have to aim for the junctions in the muscles and thrust it there. If they seriously tense their muscles then there's no way to pull it out after all."

Toris added from the side. Certainly, regardless of whether it's the arm, thighs, or stomach if you go too far with stabbing then it's not easy to get back out. Though since she's a dwarf and her level has gone up quite a bit I think Gwine could do it with her grip strength. Recently Gwine's upper arms have become something amazing.

"Well, I'm sure things won't go well from the start. I think it's fine if you get used to it over time."

Ralpa says common sense while peeling a tangerine. I guess so. That's exactly right.

"However, everyone sure is amazing..Even though there's a lot of women..I've started to think I'm pathetic."

"Oh my? Thanks. But we really aren't much at all. The amazing one is Al-san."

Bel..I'm happy you're saying that but if you praise me too much I'll get arrogant so stop it. And I think it's true that everyone's gotten pretty amazing. We had a good pace going today and managed to defeat a total of 8 ogres in three battles in the morning but the only time I had to help was the time there were 4 of them. Since we noticed them first before they started moving I took 1 out and then before they got over here I killed just 1 more. Even if it's two ogres at a time you all can fight without danger.

“Saji-san, it's fine if you don't take it to mind so much. It's just as this person said in the morning, you'll quickly make up to where everyone else is. Just get used to it slowly without being impatient.”

Miduchi said that before throwing one of the chambers of the tangerine into her mouth. I heard the sound of her biting into a seed. I'm sure it was bitter. She made a pathetic face and then hid her mouth while spitting it out.

.....

We defeated 7 ogres in the afternoon and that was the end for today. I can't stop the smiling in front of the 15 magic stones. The total identify value is 1821450. That's over 12,500,000 Z if we sell them. Roughly the value of one ogre is about 100,000 — 130,000, the magic stone that has the highest demand is the ones that are worth around 1,000,000 Z sold at the magic tool shop. If it's put inside of a lightning magic tool that's about that of a 40W light and the average family doesn't waste it then it will last for about 30 years but if it comes to a bar or place that works through the night using them as lightning then this level will only last about a year. Stoves consume even more. Compared to those I'm sure the refrigerator that has a low hourly consumption rate but has to be left on through the day consumes them at an amazing rate.

That's why other than the really high class stores they only use at most one or two lightning magic tools and if they have two of them they're basically mid-range stores. Even that “Emerald Duke Club Reception Hall”, putting aside the waiting room, it uses lamps for the individual rooms you play with the prostitutes in.

Since refrigerators that use ice houses are common the demand for ice from an ice maker is pretty high as well. Magicians who can use water and fire magic at a high level can earn a bonus to their income by selling ice to an ice dealer (around 1,000 Z per 1 ton). In order to sell it at a practical level you need to use at least 8 MP and since it's just elemental magic so the amount of experience point gained is like two digits of less than 1 point (the higher the magic level goes up the more difficult it is to gain experience while using only elemental magic) so it can't really be called a very profitable part-time job though. At most a retired former adventurer will sell a couple tons every day.

Since the technology of using airtight methods in refrigerators is extremely crude they usually just wrap around 40–50 Kg of ice in a cloth into a normal two door refrigerator (they have ice inside of small durable doors) but in the summer it only lasts about 2–3 days and even in the winter it melts in about 2 weeks. Since the temperature it refrigerates at is around 10 degrees it's no comparison with the abilities of the refrigerator magic tool.

Since there's circumstances like those and just because the capital is right next to Baldukk, it's a grateful thing for us since the demand for magic stones is high. If it was the capital of Marquis Webdos territory, Keel and such places are too far in the remote regions so I'm sure it wouldn't be like this. That's why if it's not a place with a lot of nobles, rich people, and bars then you can't sell a lot. So you could say we're contributing to the amount of time the stores in the capital can do business.

Also, I only found out about it recently but in regards to that magic stone powder you use when making contracts. If you prepare a lot of that. Then you mix a minuscule amount in with the normal compost you use when making fertilizer, rather, and it seems like you can somewhat increase the amount of your harvests over the overall planting area. The ratio is something like 0.001%. If you're making around 1 ton of compost then you would usually mix in about 100 grams or so (putting the labor aside it's about 50 goblin magic stones, with a value of about 70,000 — 80,000 Z to make that amount) and mix that.

When you're making this fertilizer you dilute it down about 10 times and then when the seedlings of the wheat are around 15 cm or so you dilute it another 20–30 times and spread it around the seedlings without putting it directly on them. It seems the way to use the fertilizer is the same as normal agriculture. By doing this it seems you can increase the harvest amount by close to 5%. This is big because 1 ton of compost can be used for about 1.5 hectares of field.

Last year when I found out about this even though there was only 10 days before older brother comes, I ended up writing a letter home from how excited

I was. It seems to be the latest research results of over 100 years of the country's ministry of agriculture. Toris happily wrote a letter to his home the same as me but Bel just said one word of Hmph, and lost interest and Toris and I were daunted by that attitude.

We all took dinner together and since the amount of food we have is limited we watch as Ralph's request for seconds is rejected by Giberuti while talking with Miduchi about our earnings so far this time.

After that took some showers and drank some tea while resting and taking it easy, then went to sleep early in preparation for tomorrow.

.....

"..The trembling still hasn't stopped..I..I'm scared.."
"Since it's your first time it probably can't be helped..I was scared my first time as well.."

In the middle of the night, I opened my eyes hearing some whispering voices. I guess I'll go and take a piss? My body is saying it doesn't want to leave the warm blanket but when I became aware of it I feel I have to go. It can't be helped..N? Japanese?

"Th..the sensation of stabbing monsters won't disappear.."
"You don't need to worry about it so much.."
"Yeah, I understand that. I intended to understand it..but.."
"Well, I understand your feelings. If you think you can sleep then it's fine if you do. It would be good if we could prepare something warm to drink but since I can't use water magic..I'm sorry."
"Ah, no, it's fine. I doubt I can fall asleep so easily, I'm just happy you're willing to listen to my story."
"Is that so..Then that's good though.."
"I need to earn some money..after all..I need to earn it and then go and pick up Cathy.."
"That's right, give it your best."
"Yeah, that's right isn't it. I give it my best to earn and then I'm going to get married. I'll make her happy.."
"I'm jealous of your wife."

“Wa ha...I still haven’t married her, it’s too soon to call her my wife. But together with everyone, I’m glad I was able to meet with people from Japan... Being freed from being a slave, even being given such a good job..”

So it’s Basutorial and Gwine who are on lookout? Today Zenom and I are on the last lookout and they were before that so it should be between 2 and 4 right now.

“Even though I’m sure Faruerugaz-san and Hirosukol-san aren’t bad people either. I wonder why Al-san didn’t invite them..”

“That’s right. Since I’m in debt to them as well I think it would have been reassuring to work together with them but since it seemed like they were knights, Rodrick, Faruergaz-san is the eldest son of a Count, and since it seems that Hriosukol-san was originally quite the older person as well. Since something like that happened at the start, wasn’t it difficult for them to lower their heads maybe..”

Oh, so that Tiger-man knight was an elderly person, that explains why he had that way of speaking. I’m sure everyone around him looks like brats and he couldn’t help it. Adding to that I’m sure his feelings have gotten younger so I’m sure it’s not unreasonable.

“By the way, what you guys mentioned before..that is..in regards to making a country but..”

“Yes?”

“Honestly speaking, I don’t really get it..Please don’t take this the wrong way but I feel like my hands are full with what’s in front of me so I can’t think that far.”

“If I think about Saji-san’s current situation then I’m sure that’s the case. I don’t think it can be helped.”

“That’s why, when Fio and Hirosukol-san said something like it can’t be done, or that you were being deceived I couldn’t say anything. Of course, if you think about it with common sense I think it’s impossible. But, I don’t think it’s completely no good right..”

“What do you mean?”

“I mean, this is a world where there’s no bombs or airplanes and the wars are only at the level of the warring states era right? Isn’t it possible to do depending on how you go about it? is what I thought. Since I'm a boy as well.."

"Hn~ I don't really care either way. I think Saji-san would understand but my parents were killed by monsters, and since I wasn't sure what to do, I thought it would just be no problem as long as I can earn money.."

What are you saying..in a place like this. Rather than what should I do about taking a piss. It's gotten difficult to get up. Since I'm enduring it partway through I can't care to listen too much.

"Right..you have to start off with being able to eat or else things don't start... Ah, that's right, is it really true if we sell the magic stones from today it's 10,000,000 Z?"

"If they're at that size and color with 15 of them then I think so?"

"Ku...alright..In just a single day that means I earned over 100,000..That's amazing~ it's really like a dream."

"If you give your best you can double the amount I think."

"That's right! That. It's really amazing..If it was 200,000 every day then that's 6,000,000 in just a single month. I can repay my debt and buy Cathy..not just that I could become a rich person after that I think.."

"..As expected staying on the 7th floor every day is unreasonable.."

"Is that so? I mean, Al-san was able to make it through the 6th floor with just him and a slave the two of them right? Even today it was amazing~ Didn't he take out an ogre in just a single attack..Isn't it simple?"

"That's true but that person is special. Everyone, is frantic. In the first place your feelings won't hold out. Even this time, since we have the new years holiday after it's something like preparations for going to the 8th floor and on but if I were to speak honestly I think it's going to be quite exhausting from here on out."

"Ah..sorry..that's right isn't it. I, wasn't useful at anything...All I did on the way here was stab monsters that Miduchi-san froze and made it so they couldn't move..And I'm just finishing off the ogres that everyone's weakened..Not to mention I'm getting scared over that..even though there's girls as well.."

"It can't be helped since it's your first time..Even on my first time we didn't come down this far, since Basutorial has come down to the 7th floor all of a sudden. I don't think it can be helped that you're afraid."

Mufu...My bladder feels like it's going to rupture. Going off their conversation I think it should be fine for me to get up pretty soon? I guess?

"U~n~"

I made some noise while rolling around in my blanket to show I've just woken up and then left my blanket and rushed out the room. When I entered the passage and was sure they couldn't see I went pigeon-toed and trembled while somehow moving to the place where there was dirt. Of course there's no time to waste so I started pulling my pants down on the way. Right as I arrived at the toilet it was time to drain the dam.

....Fu...

I shut away my son who's recently started to vaguely show his head from the end recently and then washed my hands before returning to the room.

"..Good~ morning~ what time is it?"

"Good morning, Al-san."

"Go..Good morning to you too."

I said it while seeming tired and put some beans and boiling water into my flask while preparing bean tea for three.

"It's around 3:30."

I hand out a cup to Gwine while responds. What the, so there was still 30 minutes left before my shift?

"So I guess it's about time to shift..I'll go take a shower after drinking this.."

Since Basutorial is pleased as well, we need to earn. Of course, in order to achieve our objectives.

Chapter 168: Prime Mage

Year 7444, Month 12, Day 23

The fifth day since we arrived on the 7th floor. Exploration is proceeding smoothly. Even though I say that we still haven't arrived at the teleport room to the 8th floor yet.

Honestly speaking, including myself everyone is feeling a bit impatient about this situation. Even though we've filled in over 50% of the map of the 7th floor. Even then we still haven't found the route to the 8th floor. We've tried discussing it with everyone but other than the fact that deep in a monster room seems suspicious, we couldn't think of anything else that could connect to the 8th floor.

After we defeated that huge earthworm, I'm sure we made a mistake on the route we advanced down...Since the time was what it was, it's regretful that we couldn't explore down all of the split paths after that time. Even though the 7th floor is considerably easy to remain cautious on, even I don't want to camp out in a place other than the safe area here.

In any case, in the four days up until yesterday, we earned 10,000,000 — 15,000,000 Z (10–15 gold coins) in magic stones everyday. Basutorial is smoothly building up some experience as well. Since we're earning quite the high amount, even though we still haven't found the teleport room to the 8th floor everyone's morale is high.

Particularly Basutorial since he's getting used to the atmosphere of the combat and a sharp light has appeared in his eyes. The fact that he's progressively giving it his best is good but honestly speaking I feel like he's got some dangerous insecurity building up in there as well. After all it's certain that Basutorial isn't as strong as the other members.

Even if I say he's getting used to the atmosphere of the combat, it just means he's stopped flinching, and it's definitely not like his combat abilities have increased. Since everyone already understands that, they're souring their words while telling him “be careful” every time something happens.

Since his might gradually increased and when Basutoral started to get more progressive at first I thought it was great, with this the foundations are complete for him to become a new member and put my hand to my chest in relief but since around yesterday I’ve started to feel a bit uneasy about it, and I even had to give him a considerably strong order not to get full of himself and go out too far on the front line during combat.

This is just my imagination but I think that Basutoral is in ecstasy over the fact that he can really get his hands on an amount of money that could blind you. Obviously at first he was nervous, doubtful, and felt a gap in the abilities of those around him so he was shrinking back but after he realized that there’s some difference in the abilities between the {Slaughterers} and the monsters, his feelings have been swelling up.

I don’t particularly think that itself is anything bad. I’m sure it’s necessary at first to be saved by your surroundings and gain some experience. In any case, he needs to put in effort himself and train, and then make sure he increases his skills as well otherwise sooner or later it’s obvious he won’t be able to keep it up, as long he’s not just an idiot once we return to the surface and he has time for his head to cool down he should be able to understand.

We managed to defeat 17 ogres between the morning and afternoon of this day as well and we returned to the teleport room on the 6th floor after obtaining magic stones that exceed 14,000,000 Z . We all chatted while eating away at the pot of thinly sliced pork roast Giberuti prepared for us.

Around the time the stock disappeared from the pot we added some barley without the husks into it and waited around 15 minutes after putting the lid on. Finally we put some eggs on top and it comes out as egg gruel, we blow away at it to cool it down while eating it. Other than the fact that there’s no fish stock it’s a menu that Japanese people would generally prefer so it received praise from all of us. Even a western stable pot meal can taste pretty good.

Just like this when you’re eating it, while barley is different from wheat which is difficult to eat unless you make it into a powder, its clearly different from rice but if you eat it while it’s still in grain form it’s quite good is what I’m always thinking. Although, on Orth since things like the water wheel and individual grinders entered households the habit of eating whole grains is rapidly going out of fashion, most people prefer wheat which tastes better when changed into a powder compared to barley. Like Zenom, when he first met me he made fun of barley as something only the poor and slaves eat while still in grain form. As expected he hasn't said anything like that recently though.

.....

Year 7444, Month 12, Day 24

Around four hours since we teleported into the 7th floor. We found several dead ends while continued to explore. And then, we finally encountered a new monster room. Unlike the previous monster room with the huge earthworm, this time there's thickly overgrown trees around the room. Consequently I don't think the boss of this room is that flashy earthworm. As expected if that huge body is in the ground of this floor it shouldn't be able to dig so easily with all the tree roots.

Even in the off chance it really is the huge earthworm then it's lucky for us. We can just fire attack spells at him from a distance while he can't move properly and safely finish it off.

Around 100 meters in distance from the monster room we had a simple strategy meeting. Even though I say that since we don't know the opponent, including the number. There's no way of making a plan.

"Bastuoral, you remain here..I guess so, remain hidden in the thicket behind that rock. No matter what happens don't move from there."

"Wa, yes! I understand."

When I ordered him to remain on standby Basutorial was a bit disappointed but he obediently obeyed. Everyone not just me has told him that the bosses of monster rooms are completely different from others. Adding to that, while we freeze the monsters in the boss rooms on the 6th floor and easily kill them to get through pretty often, when it comes to freezing the ogres on the 7th floor he knew they could easily break through it.

Excluding ogres which have already been injured and weakened somewhat, in order to freeze an energetic ogre you have to cover them in a huge amount of ice that they can't break through. A bare minimum of level 6 water and fire magic is necessary. Even then it requires several times more MP consumption as well. Without pouring in an excessive amount of MP in order to be able to solidify them in one hit it's pretty much impossible without at least level 7 water magic.

Rather than something like the powerful opponent that is an ogre, there's an even more powerful monster ruling over the monster room we're about to charge into on the 7th floor is what we're saying. If we have someone slowing us down it's possible the combat could develop into something harsh. Since everyone's lives are depending on it no matter how discontent Basutorial might feel I can't permit him to participate in the combat.

After taking the bags everyone's lunch is packed into Basutorial hid behind the rock I told him to. Each person's bento is about 500 grams, even if you include the rubber cloth it's in I doubt it's over 3 Kg, but I want to make sure we're as light as possible. Well, reflecting on previous times everyone still has one day's worth of preserved food and a flask in their bags as well so we aren't completely light.

"Since we don't know what will be there. We're going with {Arrowhead One}. However since the 7th floor is wide. Everyone open up around 7–8 meters in distance."

{Arrow Head One} is a formation where I'm at the front, on the right behind me is Zenom, behind him on the right is Angela, on the left behind me is Ralpa, behind her on the left is Zulu. Toris is situated in the middle behind Zenom and Ralpa as shortstop, behind him is Gwine to follow the whole of us. Then even further behind that is Bel and finally Miduchi to support us and remain cautious of anything from behind. Also, when it comes to combat the picture of an arrowhead changes a bit to more like a zigzag while moving. When it comes to charging into a monster room, since I'm standing at the front rather than attack power it's a formation that's focused more on defensive power. The number decides who stands in the front.

Incidentally Miduchi wanted to name a cross shaped formation the {Imperial Cross} but since no one other than the person herself could understand the meaning in that strange formation we rejected it. Since the rear of a cross shape is the safest so she tried to say that we could rest easy and fight but since the front ends up being in the most danger it takes even more resolve to fight. It's so obvious I thought it was idiotic.

We have plenty of formations with the {Arrow}, {Wedge}, {Wing}, {Trail}, {Line}, and {Circle}. Since it's not like we're leading an army into war. Incidentally, in the case of combat in the dungeon, in most cases the formation this time isn't very useful.

When it comes to beating a few number of opponents from every side then {Wing} or if it comes to goblins and gnolls a number of opponents in the passages then taking into consideration shifts between the front line and rear the {Line}, if we're surrounded by an army of {Giant Spiders} in a room then we use {Circle} as well. When scouting things out while moving through the vast passages of the 7th floor we use {Wedge} and the person at the front uses the spell {Detect.Life} though.

In any case, we went into the formation {Arrowhead One} and I used the spell {Detect.Life}. And then we advanced forward 100 meters towards the room once we arrived at the entrance of the room which has a diameter of about 500 meters I used it again. There's no detection of life within the effective range of the spell. It was when we made use of hiding behind the tree trunks as we continued ahead another 50 meters or so. I detected something with the {Detect.Life} spell I used again.

The direction is the center of the room. Since the trees are in the way I can't gain enough sight to use identify. In any case I need to communicate it. I raised my left hand in the air and gave the sign "discovered something". Several seconds later I pointed my finger in the direction ahead where I discovered them. Most likely everyone tensed up in preparations seeing that. I hold my bayonet in my right hand and hang my left hand down at the ready to use attack spells whenever needed as we slowly moved closer to the objective.

I've already confirmed the number of the targets. There's 12 of them. Even if they're just ogres it's an absurd number of them. Internally, I'm thinking, maybe

I should just freeze everything all at once and suffocate them? with how many of them there are. However, it's not decided the opponents are ogres yet. Just like that we remained vigilant and approached to within 100 meters away. We were finally able to recognize the appearance of the opponents. After all it's ogres. Though I still can only see five of them I'm sure those are ogres. I tried using identify on the ones I could see and they're definitely ogres.

If I know they're ogres then there's no problem. Then, taking into consideration the distance they can move before they freeze, I'll freeze them in ice that's over 200 meters in every direction and 25 meters high. If I use level 8 fire and water magic 8 times then it should be plenty. Thinking that, it was just when I gave out the sign warning that I was going to use an attack spell to ambush them. The ogres who were quiet up until then suddenly started to get noisy and move into combat formation. There's already no more time to spare! Simultaneously as I gave out the sign I started to concentrate in order to use level 8 water and fire magic which this is only my second time using myself.

Ah, by the way the first time I used it was in the past on our way to Baldukk, I just tried making a bunch of dirt towards the ocean with earth magic. After that is when I'm practicing using the attack spells of the {Trebuchet} or {Cannon} levels. In terms of the pure amount of the element that I'm making with elemental magic of this high of a level this is only the second time. I can't even guess how much of the element I could create if I were to use the highest level 9 of elemental magic so I still haven't tried using it even once.

A moment after I started concentrating, water suddenly started to burst forth from the ground of the effective range I had established it and then in no time at all it froze over. Just as I originally planned in front of me there's a block of ice that covers an area of 200 meters and is 25 meters high.

"What..is this..."

"Al-san.."

"This is..really amazing.."

"Ma..Master.."

"Ue~ and you still have plenty of mana after this..If you were to just flood Erurehei everything would be over."

Everyone made expressions of surprise and admiration at the tremendous amount of ice that suddenly appeared in front of their eyes..and also let out voices of fear. Yeah, in terms of volume it's roughly 1,000,000 m³. It's a bit smaller than the Tokyo Dome. I'm sure there's no one that wouldn't be surprised suddenly seeing this much ice appear in a few seconds.

"Since there was 12 of them..I decided to take things safely."

Though the ice I created with magic has a high level of transparency, I can't see far into the ice is where the ogres were so I can't identify them. Since it can't be helped I'll have to use the spell {Detect.Life} a number of times before I can rest easy that they die..Ah, if I just identify myself and check the experience points then I guess that's fine.

Since it seemed like it would start to get cold near the side of the ice right away we all returned back down to the road and grouped up with Basutorial. Obviously Basutorial went speechless seeing the mountain of ice as well.

"Let's take a short break. How about we drink some tea?"

As expected it's a bit too soon for lunch. If we rest for about 15 minutes then after I confirm they've suffocated we can slowly erase the ice and gather the magic stones. Hn? One of them died. My experience increased by around 5,000. I saw the instant the experience points increased while identifying myself through the identify-use hole I have opened in my glove on my left hand. I gained a couple hundred experience points towards fire magic as well. It might be possible with this my fire magic level will reach MAX as well. I put some boiling water into everyone's flask and make some tea as we all sit in a circle.

"However, Al-san. I'm always being surprised but is your mana really fine creating that much ice?"

"What are you saying Toris, if it's Al then it's only obvious he's fine."

"Eeh..Ral you've seen this much made with elemental magic before?"

"Hn? In the past on our way to Baldukk I saw him create dirt towards the ocean but I don't think it was much as this time? Or was it?"

"Yeah, I was pretty astonished that time as well but I don't feel like it was as much as this time..However, it's quite amazing."

Zenom and Ralpa, and the annoy-ouple are talking while looking up at the ice.

“I don’t like this, it might be a bit cold..”

“It’s because Gwine doesn’t eat enough and doesn’t have any meat on her bones. Though it seems that your physique has gotten a bit better recently, it would be best if you eat even more.”

“Maruso, if you say it that doesn’t sound like a joke. However, it is certainly true that Gwine should eat more and properly build up her body. She’s still too thin for a Dwarf.”

“Please stop with that, Zulu. Even though I already feel like I’m building up too much muscle recently..my abs have started to get ripped..even though I’m a girl..”

“Oh? I have a {six pack} as well. But in my case it’s difficult to build up muscle and on top of that the the fat builds up quickly, so I’m jealous of Gwine who doesn’t need to diet..”

“I’m jealous of Miduchi-san..Rather are you picking a fight? Even though those sort of ideal proportions are absolutely impossible for me..abominable elves..abominable bunnies..”

“But can’t you dress yourself up with your beard Gwine. Since I have so many breasts my shoulders get stiff..”

“Maruso..that’s not something to be jealous of. Also I’m just becoming defiant with the beard..”

You all..Stop saying such pointless things and show more admiration for my ice..Look, open your eyes even wider in surprise and look at it. Even though such great results are right in front of you..Well whatever.

“Umm..Al-san, is it fine if I ask something?”

“Hn? What is it?”

“After all that ice is magic.. right?”

“Yeah.”

“If I can learn magic as well will I be able to do that much?”

“I wonder? I think it depends on your effort but it also depends on how much mana you have..”

“I said it previously but when I tried magic training in the village it was no good..”

“Since it seems that it’s 1 in 10 after all..But, I think if you properly train with magic you’ll be able to use it.”

“Rea...Really?”

“If that wasn’t the case I wouldn’t have included you on the contract. I think that all of us reincarnated people should be able to use magic. After all everyone I’ve met other than you were all able to learn magic.”

According to brother it seems that Mary was able to use magic as well. I don’t think it’s mistaken to think that all of us reincarnated people have the elements to use magic. Most likely this is also one of the advantages of reincarnated people as well.

“Alri~ght, I’ll give it my best!”

“Yeah, keep with it.”

I glanced at myself and used identify again and my experience points have increased quite a bit. My maximum MP increased by 1 as well. Just in case I tried opening the sub-window for fire magic and just as I expected the level increased and it changed to MAX. Since it was 12 ogres, a total of over 5,000 HP so I think that’s only obvious though.

After that I used the spell {Anti-Magic Field} to erase through the ice like a tunnel up to where the ogres are frozen and we gathered the magic stones. And then while I got it was just 12 ogres but that seems to have been a mistake. It seems that while they’re the same ogres there were two of them mixed in that had magic special skills. The levels of their skills were 3–4 so they were about the same as a normal magician but if we had tried properly taking them on the front things could have gotten difficult. If we were to be ambushed then heavy injuries, or depending on how things go we might have even had to prepare ourselves for casualties...

Including the one we entered from there was five paths stretching out from the monster room. I wonder if one of the remaining four paths is the right answer for being connected to the 8th floor? No, if that’s not the case then we’ll be troubled. We tried picking the direction that seemed like it leads towards the center while advancing and we managed to arrive at the teleport room to the 8th floor.

Just this place has a ceiling that’s a bit over 10 meters and the interior isn’t all that different from the usual dungeon. Strangely enough the tunnel leading into the teleport room only had a width and height of about 2 meters and were far too narrow. In the first place monsters shouldn't be able to approach from within 100 meters of the surroundings so I think there's probably no meaning to it but since there's zigzags five times leading to it none of the light from outside reaches into it.

It's still around 4 pm. The time is a bit early but since it's a good cut off point I guess we should finish things up early for today. In the first place today this time, no, this is the final exploration day in the dungeon for this year, in other words the day we finish things up. Tomorrow afternoon we have some training but starting the day after tomorrow until January 5th of next year we have 10 consecutive days off. Since we made quite a bit of profit and we were finally able to discover the teleport crystal for the 8th floor our morale went up quite a bit. That's why, since it's also Christmas, around tomorrow night we should feign it's the last meeting and doing some merrymaking might not be bad as well. Since today is Christmas Eve I'm sure Ralpa and Gwine will drink either way.

When we returned to the surface a cold rain was falling and even though we were feeling pretty good it made things feel kind of bad. The entrance plaza was considerably quiet as well and had a slightly lonesome atmosphere. Since we had been exploring the dungeon for 9 days already we just kept stretching ourselves out in the rain.

Chapter 169: Rumors 1

Year 7444, Month 12, Day 24

After leaving the dungeon we went straight into the magic tool shop. We handed our spoils that is the magic stones still in the sack to the owner and requested him to assess them. The magic stones from the 1st to 6th floors we merged into a total of three magic stones but the ogre magic stones from the 7th floor as still in their original form. Including the merged magic stones we have a total of 98 of them. I'm sure it'll take quite a bit of time to measure the weights. It might be best to prepare ourselves for it taking over an hour.

It's troublesome and I'd like to just leave it to someone else and return to "Boil Manor" but unless there's some kind of special circumstances I prefer that everyone is here when confirming the sales of magic stones. Since it directly relates to the payment of bonuses. The exception is magic stones like the {Larva Purple Worm} the other day or magic items. And then this time the newcomer Basutorial is here as well.

Zenom and I sit down at the chairs next to the counter and the rest of the members are standing but this can't be helped.

"I'm sure this time will be a new record.."

When Zenom whispered to himself and after hearing that everyone else started chatting.

"That's~ only obvious right. After all it was 95 ogres! It was worth staying on the 7th floor for six whole days. Right, Bel."

"I guess so. As expected I'm a bit tired..Rub my shoulders later."

"Ku...Bel-san..Stiff shoulders..Is that sarcasm.."

"Gwine, you really..you pay too much care to things like that. Rather than that I'm hungry, I want to go drinking already."

"Ral..like a human like you could understand my worries but..I'll drink. I'll drink everything.."

..Let's just ignore these guys.

“I wonder how much it will be? If each one is about 800,000 and there’s 95 of those. Then there were three of them between 300,000 and 800,000 right?”

Miduchi asked me.

“Won’t it be around 80,000,000? I’m sure it’s a new record.”

The total identify value was 11,628,258. If you roughly multiple that seven times it’s around 81,400,000. In just a bit more it would have been 81,500,000 but that can’t be helped. If you cut off the fractions then 2% of 81,000,000, 1,620,000 Z (162 silver coins) is the normal bonus and Basutoral’s bonus is 810,000 Z. Furthermore, there’s almost no need to worry about the value being assessed incorrectly. The identify value of a gnoll’s magic stone which is about 2,000 and is a mother stone is roughly 11 grams. Since the weight of a 0 mana mother stone is 10 grams so the comes out to 1 gram = 2,000 value. Since the scale magic tool that the magic tool shop uses for assessments is extremely precise it should be able to weigh down to 0.001 gram. I’m sure there’s some margin of error but you could say it’s within a permissible range. Really Toris’s Unique Ability somehow..doesn’t have much chance to shine.

“8...81,000,000..in other words, 810,000 Z..In just..9 days..Without taking 10 days 810,000 Z..This is..So this is an adventurer..”

“Don’t misunderstand, Bastuoral. This is only possible because of master. It wouldn’t go this way with other adventurers.”

“It’s just as Zulu-sama says. In the first place you haven’t properly worked this time. It’s no good if you forget that.”

“Ye..Yeah.. of course. Zulu-san, Angela-san. I already know that...Just, that is..I was just a bit surprised.”

“If you know that much then there’s no problem. Maruso don’t bully him so much.”

“But, Larry, since he said it like a normal adventurer..”

“No, Giberuti-san. Thank you very much. That’s right isn’t it. It wouldn’t go this way for normal adventurers right..I had intended to understand it from hearing everyone’s story but I’m surprised once again.”

When the assessment of the magic tool owner finished, and it came to purchasing, as expected he wanted to have some cash on hand for the new year so he proposed only buying half of it. The remaining magic stones he’ll buy once again after the start of the new year so we ended up receiving the payment for half of, 50 of them, and then I paid the bonuses to everyone other than the slaves. Since Basutorial gets his as a deduction from his loan I just gave him 1 silver coin. Tomorrow I'm paying the wages of 200,000 Z so it's plenty to live on.

I placed the money and magic stones in my locker in the temple and after catching up with everyone, we went to eat dinner like normal before returning to the inn.

I'm sure Ralph and Gwine were tired as expected so they returned together with us.

.....

Year 7444, Month 12, Day 25

Even then we still don't wake up at a time that's all that different from usual, together with everyone excluding Zenom and Giberuti we go running. After that, in the morning I started making an alphabet text of Orth's letters for teaching Basutorial letters. It's something like the notes of an elementary schooler. I'll at least treat him the cost of the paper this time. During that time, it seems that Ralph and Gwine are trying to teach Basutorial magic. Those two, they're surprisingly good at caring over others. Ah, obviously they're trying to use the commonly known method for teaching the {Cantrip} {Magical.Detection}.

If I'm correct, they're using Gwine's magic spear. It's only obvious but if you can properly use the {Cantrip} {Magical.Detection} then you'll be able to detect the fact that an item is a magic item. Since it doesn't consume any magic stones I guess magic weapons and things like that are useful for acquiring a magic skill...Though about the only one making use of such a luxurious method is probably only about you in all of Orth, Basutorial.

We all gathered together in the vacant space at the edge of town and had lunch using the remaining food we had leftover from what Giberuti prepared for the dungeon before starting our training. It's our last job of the year, once this over we have plans for all of Greed Company, the adventurer department to go merrymaking at a restaurant. It turned into training with more fighting spirit behind it than usual. It would be boring to get injured before our last meeting so I got some chills while commanding over the training. Only Basutorial was in the corner practicing defense with a spear. It's just the forms but right now his abilities are too low that he just ends up slowing everyone else down while training with the other members.

"Ya~ Greed-san. You all seem quite lively."

Before I noticed Faruergaz and Hirosukol had come to see our training. They looked out for the timing we were on break and called out to me. I returned the greeting.

"We've decided to challenge the dungeon of Baldukk as well. We came to offer our greetings on that end."

Eh...what did he say? All of the members of the {Slaughterers} couldn't hide their surprise hearing that.

They've started noisily talking away.

"As a matter of fact to check things out we tried entering once the other day."

Yeah I see, and then? What happened? Ah, me? this time is 80..I'll shut up.

"We were able to get a feel that we can somehow manage it on the 1st floor. Of course, I'm sure it's nowhere near you all but the two of us were able to earn 260,000 Z."

Ho~ that's quite amazing. By the way, did you enter with just the two of you? Do you not have any other allies?

"Eh? It was just the two of us. If the opponent is low in numbers then something can be done about it."

Hey now, didn't you just have good luck? If it's on the 1st floor then it's not strange for goblins or gnolls to come in groups of 20 at a time. If it's just the two of you then taking on a group of at most 4–5 orks or hobgoblins is easier I'm sure.

"Ah..is that so? We only caught sight of orks and hobgoblins.."

That's what they call being lucky. Unless you're considerably skilled you should at least gather four people or more.

Depending on the case hiring a guide is good as well, if you go to the entrance plaza in the early morning there's a lot of people recruiting allies.

"Or, rather, if you're entering the dungeon I suggest you gather some information. While the maps are incomplete, for the time being you can buy them for the 1st to 3rd floors, even when it comes to an experienced guide, it costs a bit to hire them but there's a that can be learned from them. Unless you pick a serious failure of one I don't think you'll lose out."

"I see, a guide huh? Rodrick, we were able to hear something good right."
"Yeah, that's right. Fio, shall we get right to hiring one? Around how much do guides usually cost?"

"If it's just the 1st floor then around 100,000 Z for one day. Other than that there's also the entrance tax and including the guide in for a share of the items obtained within the dungeon is pretty common."

"" ..They cost quite a bit.. ""

"Well it's a business for them as well. It's not like they always have jobs after all. When it comes to the top class guides it's said they can heard 1,000,000 Z in a month off of just guide fees. The unpopular guides can't take customers at all so if you try negotiating with them you might be able to get them cheaper but it would be best if you don't place your hopes too high. Even among them it seems that they can't do {dumping} in order to prevent the price from collapsing."

"Is that so? We were able to hear various valuable things. Thanks."

Fio lowered his head while thanking me.

"No, you're welcome. Well then we still have training left."

I said that and returned to training.

"Alright, then let's go..First of Zenom, Angela, and Gwine. Let's go with hobgob for everyone else I guess?"

Be careful. Don't die.

.....

After training, we washed away the sweat and then went to have a party at the usual high class restaurant “Dorureon”. Since there’s 10 days off starting tomorrow, the expensive food and alcohol are being consumed in mass. Hey, it’s already easily exceeded 300,000...Isn’t this going to reach 500,000? Though I was prepared for it.

Before the alcohol starts circulating around I paid the reincarnated people 200,000 Z for their wages, Zulu was 80,000 z including his 10,000 Z wages, Angela was 70,000 Z, and finally was Giberuti’s 40,000 Z wages. Furthermore, as a Christmas present I gave everyone a towel as usual. No matter how many towels you have they’re nothing to be troubled over. The new members from this year Miduchi and Basutorial thought it was a part of the bonus but once they realized the other reincarnated people had prepared shirts, hats, and gloves they started to panic but since everyone wanted to see that they remained quiet it seems.

I did too though.

“Really, wouldn’t it have been fine if you had told me..”

Miduchi expanded her cheeks while complaining to me and Bel,

“Ah, I see. “Christmas” huh..I completely forgot about it..But, I, still don’t have that kind of money..”

Basutorial is saying that while depressed but his expression seems quite happy so he’s probably enjoying himself.

Around the time one hour had passed since the start of the party, our stomachs were getting full, after this we just finish off the remaining food while drinking.

“Bastuoral. How was your first time in the dungeon?”

“Eh? Yeah, since that was my first time..In any case I was just frantic..However, everyone is quite amazing. Though Al-san feels extraordinary but everyone else seems extremely strong as well..Even though there’s quite a few women, it’s really quite something.”

“Well I’m sure that’s about the case for the first time. Make sure you properly train on your own during this holiday. I’ll test you on it after the holiday is over. If you remain the stay forever then you’ll never escape the trial period.”

“Of.. Of course! I’ll, do it! I’ve already promised with Gwine-san for her to teach me the spear tomorrow morning after all!”

“I see. It’s good that you’re enthusiastic. Then I have one more present for you. Study the words with this. I wrote down the “Japanese” next to it as well so you should be able to do it even alone. If you don’t know something then just grab someone and ask.”

I said that while handing him the awesome me’s handmade “Alphabet Practice Book Ragudarios Language Basics Version”.

“Eh? This..is it all handwritten..I guess that’s only obvious. Al-san. Thank you very much. For you to go this far for me, I’m really happy.”

It’s just that I can’t stand for my subordinates to remain illiterate so don’t mind it. Though it was troublesome, since I thought there might be cases like this from here on out as well so it’s good to have a copybook and then I thought to have this guy do it.

“By the way, what does everyone plan to do during their days off? Around the day after tomorrow someone should be coming from my home town to the company so after that I think I’ll be in the capital for the rest of it though.”

“N..I’ll be rolling around in the inn. Also, if you’re going to the capital say something and I’ll join you. I want to greet sub-Baron Rogflat and do some shopping as well. Recently I’ve been hooked on smoked fish..”

When Zenom said that Ralpha opened her mouth as well.

“Then I will as well. I’m sure father’s clothes are already done as well... Gwine, let’s go shopping for clothes or something.”

“Yeah. That’s fine. Since it’s the occasion I was thinking of going to a liquor store. It would be nice if they have some rye vodka.”

That, don’t they call it {Rye.Whiskey}?

I think it was last year. I caught a glimpse of it in the capital but it had an insane price of 200,000 Z for one bottle so I hesitated on it.

“We’re going to the capital on New Year’s day as well.”

“What time was it again?”

“It’s on the edge of the second road at 10 am.”

It seems that Toris and Bel applied for a carriage tour around various spots in the capital. Is it a heart bus? I want to try riding one of those types of things once as well.

“We’re remaining on standby at the inn.”

Zulu said that.

“Don’t worry about things during the days off. Go out and play.”

I’m sure you’ll just be hanging around “Murowa” right? This is a conversation that’s like the usual ceremony. This guy, if I were to say, “I see, then so I can call you out at anytime don’t move” I wonder what kind of face he’d make? But I like how Zulu always says something like this.

“Umm, I am..”

“Yeah, I’ll give you some tomorrow so come over.”

Angela is requesting for some condoms. That’s quite the degeneration. Though that’s fine. I would be troubled if you get pregnant after all. Stretch out your wings as much as you like.

“I want to go to the capital as well. Please let me stock up on some new seasonings.”

“Got it. I’ll call you when the carriage comes.”

Giberuti seems to have nothing in his mind other than developing new menus. If I think about it carefully this guy is probably using more money than Zulu’s wages. Though this doesn’t particularly matter either.

I confirmed everyone’s plans and we returned to the party again. Miduchi? She’s together with me. There’s no way she’d have a day off.

.....

Year 7444, Month 12, Day 26

We put in a reservation an appropriate cheap inn from 12/30 until 1/2. It’s necessary to go to the fairy village again to learn spells during the holidays this time as well. It might not be too bad to bring along everyone else as well but there’s not much meaning to it unless they can use all elemental magics, and have them beyond a certain level as well. That idiot Ralph might bring along some alcohol and end up harming a fairy as well. I guess that's saying too much huh?

I made a reservation with the dried foods dealer and paid in advance.

Furthermore, when I sent Miduchi out to scout things before going running, it seems that Faruergaz and Hirosukol have hit it off with some weird two person group of men and the four of them are entering the dungeon together. Since the two of them received investiture as knights and they have more skill than the average adventurer around there. And they're reincarnated people so even if their levels are a bit low I'm sure they can somehow manage.

Miduchi and I spent the morning going over our education plan for everyone from here on out, then after that we had lunch and we found Angela wandering around town seeming bored so the three of us entered the dungeon and I had Angela and Miduchi earn some experience.

Other than Miduchi, the three slaves and I had dinner at "Murowa" while we roused things up over the topic of Zulu's woman.

"Hey Dazu, grab the salt for me."

With his face red Zulu is embarrassed as he says "Please just forgive me already." His woman is working again today as well but since the store is pretty packed she's moving around busily.

"Come to think of it, it seems the judgement day is in the middle of next month."

Angela said while biting into a boiled pig leg. Come to think of it, there's been no negotiations or contact at all on that.

"Ah, that's right. Once the date has been confirmed I'll make it into a day off so don't worry about it."

The judgement days are one of the few amusement days for the people of Orth that only happen a couple times in a year. Though it's the ideal time of business for restaurants but other than they usually close for business and a bunch of stalls appear like a festival. It's only obvious when it comes to the punishment of criminal offenses but since judgements are also made on civil cases that are highly talked about there's a lot for people to enjoy with it.

In any case, for the average person who doesn't have much to look forward to the days of judgement feel like a festival. Since it's cruel to steal this from them I make sure to match our days off up with them. This morning a messenger came from the government office saying we might need to appear as witnesses so I already knew about the judgement day next month. Normally they give notice of them in the entrance plaza and government office around 10 day ahead.

"Once again this time master and Kalstalan-sama will need to appear as witnesses right. We can't miss this."

Giberuti said while carrying a spoon of porridge with bacon and spices into his mouth. Among the slaves this guy is the one who learned how to use tableware the fastest. It can't be helped that Zulu and Angela still can't use the chopsticks but they don't even use spoons very often. Since Zulu was originally a commoner I thought he could properly use tableware but it seems that a poor squire family in Devas doesn't use anymore tableware than plates and bowls.

"It's my first time seeing a judgement day so I'm looking forward to it a bit."

I'm sure Miduchi is just looking forward to it since there's all sorts of stalls lined up like a festival. It was then that a voice butted into our conversation.

"Oh~ isn't it the {Slaughterers}? Is it fine next to you?"

I was surprised when I saw the one who was speaking. It was the {Verdure Brotherhoods} Virhaima and {Black Topaz}s Anderson, the two of them came in together. Tension ran through the members of the {Slaughterers}. The only one who didn't get tense and is the same as usual is Miduchi who has had almost no contact with them but she seems to have figured it out from the way everyone's expressions changed.

"Of course. Please take a seat."

I said that while wondering why these two are? and was suspicious of it. Could it be they hear the rumors that the {Slaughterers} and {Sun Ray} were cooperating together and they plan to team up as well?

"It seems that business is booming for you quite a bit recently."

Old man Virhaima started talking to me.

“Yeah, thanks to you, we’ve been able to smoothly increase our earnings.”

I reply while not showing any openings. I said it with a sociable smile on my face.

“You’re going to the 7th floor right? It’s quite something. Even though everyone was much cuter when we first met..In no time at all we were overtaken.”

Anderson laughed while saying as she pulled out the seat and sat down.

“Stop with the cute, Anderson. We were suddenly overtaken as well and now these guys are the top earners in Baldukk.”

“N..Well, I guess that’s true.”

“Yeah, just look at this impudent face. He’s already long past the edges of adventurers. And even one that we’re no match for.”

“Certainly..recently my party members have been saying we should earn the same way the {Slaughterers} do through magic stones as well. It’s quite troubling..”

You two are first rate because you’re properly holding them back and still earning steadily. If we were to end up clashing in the dungeon I can’t imagine us losing but if we were to get ambushed there’s few opponents where I’d have to prepare myself for some sacrifices. Particularly {Verdure Brotherhood} and {Black Topaz} are the strongest contenders for that.

“Beer and a bacon fry. Make it crispy and include some eggs as well.”

“I want some beer as well. After that do you have suggestions?”

“We’ve got some good keirui today.”

“Then that. Please deep-fry it.”

“I understand.”

The two of them gave their orders to Zulu’s woman who came over before facing me again.

“..By the way Greed-san. I’ve heard some rumors but..”

Look here it comes.

“Rumors? What is it about?”

“Don’t put yourself on guard so much. Did you all start cooperating with {Sun Ray}?”

I thought it was something like that.

“We didn’t start cooperating with them. We just made a promise to jointly manage the facilities in the teleport room on the 5th floor.”

I said that while drinking some beer.

“..Is that it?”

“Yeah, that’s it. Is there anything?”

“It’s different from what I heard..Hisu was saying they had teamed up with you all.”

Hisu? Hisu..Hisurura.Haruirein huh?

“He~”

Well, in regards to taking showers on the 5th floor and things like that you could say we have teamed up maybe.

“Well, a warning, or maybe not quite that far. Since this is something that is related to us as well but I thought we would tell you just in case. Probably, but I think that eventually they’ll try invite you to enter the dungeon with them. The leaders the Rindobel’s made use of that in order to take in members from other parties and made {Sun Ray} bigger like that.”

He~ is that so? But I wonder how that connects with them getting bigger?

“They start off by just giving a larger share when you go together with them. Just like that let them relax and get a good grasp on the people who seem useful before trying to headhunt them. I had one person stolen away in the past as well.”

“There was one from my place as well. Although, the guy who was pulled out is already dead.”

I see now.

“I see, thank you very much for the valuable information. I’m grateful. However, I don’t understand why you would give me such a warning. Wouldn’t it be more convenient for you all if we were to be weakened?”

“Ha!! Don’t misunderstand. We greatly welcome you {Slaughterers} getting weaker but more than that we want to prevent {Sun Ray} from growing.”

“Well, if you were to say it then that’s true. It seems like {Sun Ray} is showing their face on the 6th floor as well but they’re struggling quite a bit. The 5th floor is still splendidly one of their hunting grounds. If you all who have gone off to the 7th floor were to fall back down to the 6th or 5th floors then it would be a bother as well.”

Yeah. If it’s that sort of reason then well I guess I can understand it.

“However, something like headhunting members for a top team, I feel like it would be impossible with an average share though..”

“That’s where they get dirty. First off they pull them in with money but the guys who are swayed by that they slowly pull them in and then at one point they propose going together with them to the temple. Since it seems they have some kind of special route, they say that you can give offerings faster.”

Hohou. A special route indeed. Incidentally there’s conditions to giving offerings to the temple. When it comes to the naming ceremony, marriages, sales of slaves, or release and things like that they request offerings unconditionally. Though it’s a fixed amount. Well, that’s something like a handling charge and to be more correct you can’t call it a offering I’m sure. Other than that there’s something like a offering box and it’s possible to give an offering there but once again they only allow small amounts there and even at greatest it seems you can’t offer more than 1 silver coin. It’s free for you to wish for something or pray for something there.

This offering is important. The times when you can give offers are roughly once in a month, only the days when the master moon {Karutari} reaches it’s full moon, otherwise the night of the 17th when the sub-moon {Neitari} is in full moon just those sorts of 77 day cycles. Though as an exception New Year’s day is different but there’s almost no people who give offering then. Since it’s not like there’s anything good that comes from it. Only the first 100 visitors who come to the temple on the days of full moon can give offerings and their status is checked.

It's not allowed to line up several days ahead in order to aim to be one of the first arrivals. It's necessary to line up the moment the sun starts to set on the day itself. It's said that if you break this then you'll be hit by lightning but this is just a rumor. After all it seems no one has ever been hit by it before.

And then, it seems that you're given a wooden tag. Similar to how currency is made this wooden tag is made so it can't be counterfeited. If you can collect 10,000 Z worth of them then you can exchange for it a slightly larger wooden tag that has some magic cast on it. At this point the status of the person who received the wooden tag is branded into it with some magic process. If you collect 100 of these then you can exchange for an even larger wooden tag.

If you're in possession of this large wooden tag and it seems just once you can have healing magic used on you unconditionally. It doesn't seem like a priest, or minister, or bishop or whatever uses it on you, but rather only those who have the wooden tag are allowed into the main temple building and there God directly uses a healing spell on them supposedly. According to what I've heard this healing spell is believed to be {Cure All}. In other words it doesn't matter how heavy of an injury it is in just one spot you can have it almost completely healed.

There's no adventurers who wouldn't want this. Since there's not many people who can use healing spells at this high of a level after all. In the first place if you were to search for someone who has all elemental magics then it's not like you can't find them but after they have all of them it's also necessary for all of them be above level 5 as well. Even if you were seriously injured and one breath from dying if you can be brought to the temple right away at the very least there's a possibility you could be saved.

The moon of Orth, {Karutari} reaches a new moon right matching up perfectly with 60 days. In other words, for it to match up with the primary moon {Karutari}'s full moon you only have six chances in the year. The sub-moon {Neitari} is even less with 4–5 times in the year. Even if you pour 10,000 Z into each one of those chances in order to earn the 1,000,000 Z worth wooden tag it would take 10 years.

Since the person them self has to be the one to do it, it's a precious item that even among nobles it's said not many people have them.

Normal people just think that's idiotic and can't be bothered to do something like that. Something like heavy injuries don't happen all that often after all.

Ha~han~ That {Sun Ray}, that Rindobel couple, so they were those sort of people...

Chapter 170: Rumors 2

Year 7444, Month 12, Day 26

After returning to the inn, Miduchi and I tried thinking about the trick behind the Rindobel couple of {Sun Ray} in regards to the wooden tags, or talismans, well I guess they're fine as God notes.

Idea 1. This is something anyone can easily think up I'm sure.

1. Employ people. It's fine if they're poor people or vagrants. The more you can get the better the advantage. To make it easy I'll say 100 people.
2. Hand all of them 5,000 Z on the day of a full moon and have them buy a God note.
3. By the second full moon 1,000,000 Z in God notes will have been gathered.
4. Have the adventurer take them to the temple and exchange it for a large God note and that's the end.

I'm sure it would be fine to split them up between multiple temples as well. Just, since it's necessary to hire people I'm sure the expenses would jump quite high. If you think about the time they're all tied up it would be safe to say it requires over 50% more than the normal cost, depending on the case there might be people who run away with the money as well. Before that there's also the matter of the same person coming to exchange a large amount of God notes and getting scolded..well I'm sure it's not something that they'd be praised over but it's not like they're doing anything wrong so it's possible they might accept it without problems as well. Though it might be no good. In either case I don't think it's something that would get them hit by lightning over. On reserve.

Idea 2 is the advanced form of the above. It's probably unlikely but if it was me I would do or aim for this.

1. Turn it into an organization. It would be ideal to create a branch in each place. 10 places for convenience sake.
2. Hire people. Once again the more the better. 200 people for convenience sake.
3. Have these 200 people patrol around between the branches in each location

(to make it harder to determine their identities).

4. On nights of the full moon have them buy 5,000 Z God notes from the temple nearby.
5. Whenever it's appropriate have someone gather them and go (this would be the adventurer).
6. Get a large God note.

It might be fine to do some kind of business while letting the people carrying luggage along during their travels around. However, if you were to use this many people to start some kind of business I feel like you'd end up profiting more from the side business and that would end becoming the principal occupation. Adding to that it costs an absurd amount of money for the initial investment and maintain contact between the branches would be difficult as well. Unless it was someone on the level of our Toris or Bel in terms of trust being left as the heads of each branch then it's clear that it would collapse sooner or later. Well, I guess this one's no good.

Idea 3. Is this the frontal attack?

1. Gather money.
2. Bribe a priest of the temple, hand them over 1,000,000 Z and get a large God note.
3. Get hit by lightning together with the priest, the end.

It's no good. Rather~ if it was someone that could be bribed them I'm sure they wouldn't make it as priests for the temple in the first place.

Idea 4. In the case {Sun Ray} really has a secret route.

In this case..well isn't it fine? If they aren't being hit by lightning then I'm sure there's no problem and rather I think it's actually amazing for them to have found it.

Thinking about it like this any ideas other than 1 seem pretty unlikely to implement. Even if it's idea 1 then they must have quite the ability to manage an organization to put it into practice. However, both Miduchi and I are thinking that it's none of those. If there's no money, no power, and no mana, there's no choice other than to use your head to try and strengthen your party. Well, putting it simply it's fraud. It's necessary to prepare a number of real God notes and show them. If you have some money then it's something that can be done

I'm sure.

In the case that Miduchi and I were in the position of the Rindobel couple then, in any case we'd save up some amount of money, of course we'd buy some ourselves as well but buy out the people lined up at the temple on a full moon. You can say you'll buy the 5,000 Z God note for depending on the case 10,000 Z. I'm sure there's some people who will jump at the chance. Since they're a couple of two I'm sure they can act separately. If they repeat it for about six months then it could be possible.

They continue to hold on to those without exchanging it for a 10,000 Z God note. There's no need for it to be 1,000,000 Z worth of them. It's fine if it's just an adequate amount. These end up being the display notes. And, then they talk to an adventurer who seems like they're lacking brains.

"With a special underground route we can get our hands on a God note that normally takes 10 years in just 1 year."

"Since it's an underground route we can't reveal it to anyone. Since the lightning is scary."

"Eh? You want one too? It can't be helped. It's special for just you."

"However, it'll take over 1,000,000 Z."

"That's only obvious right? Even the other side is overdoing it by giving them to us."

"Since you seem pretty intelligent, I'm sure you already understand that it costs a bit in reward right?"

"Any way~ that level of money, if it's our party then we can earn it right away."

"Ah, don't tell anyone about this."

"Also, make sure you properly visit the temple. God is always testing your faith."

"Alright, you take the one on the right and you take the one on the left."

"Ah, so one of them was killed huh..That's unfortunate."

"He never went to visit the temple last week. I'm sure he died because he was lacking in faith."

"Alright, you go in from the front, you circle around to the back of it."

"No one seems to be looking. Since the opponent is weakened..die!"

"Mwu, how unfortunate. If you're lacking in faith this is what happens."

“Umu. Shall we tell you the proper method to visit the temple..first stop with all luxury.”

“That’s right, your faith is recognized through honorable poverty.”

“Gebo~!! I..I was somehow saved.”

“See, if you properly honor God then you’ll be saved on the verge.”

“Got it. All of the things we find in the dungeon I as the leader will act as representative and make offering to the temple.”

It’s considerably forced but probably something along those lines.

If you pay money then we won’t get them for your right away, but rather we can shorten it down to within one year. Is the key point. As long as the other side can accept it then two years or three years is fine as well. During this time, you just have to work them hard and kill them off somewhere appropriate than that’s fine. If their abilities are too high and the couple alone can’t finish them off then they can just really give them the God note. If they can make some display notes then if they get serious they might really be able to gather enough for one in one year?

If they go to the temple to do offerings during the process for these then it’s easy to cover up as well. Depending on the case it might be good to make it like a developing religion as well. If they end up doing it for a long time some people might start to notice the trick. If there’s someone they can trust then they might include them as a subordinate as well. If they’re no good then the couple can kill them off. If it’s inside of the dungeon then it won’t leave any proof. If they just say “they died because they were lacking in faith” or “their eyes were blinded by greed so they must have entered the dungeon alone” then I’m sure some people would believe them as well. Even if they don’t believe them it’s not like there’s proof. Even in the cases of those people, if they hit them in the face with some money they might sway, if that isn’t the case then after all you just finish them off in the dungeon as well.

In any case, if they have at least two other subordinates like that than themselves, then even if someone else enters the party there’s no one left to deny it.

It’s obvious. Since you’re lending your back to them in the dungeon. If you carelessly deny things then it’s pretty clear that you might not get any support.

It's fine if they're suspicious at first. If they just show them something like examples a couple of times then I'm sure the simple people of Orth with almost zero level for the standard of education would believe it. Eh? There's no one who would actually believe things like that? If you think it's a lie then try going into the backwoods of Africa or the Amazon and take a look. There's plenty of people out there who could seriously get afraid believing a person with a T-shirt and a cellphone are some kind of spirit or demon.

The most superior merchant on Earth is the guy who invented God. Or at least there's a saying like that but as expected it seems the Rindobel couple are both quite intelligent. It's a disgusting way of doing it but if they have several allies who they can firmly trust then I also recognize it as an effective method. Well thinking it's disgusting is just my own personal feelings. The people themselves are accepting of it and if they seriously believe in it then even if it ends up killing them you could say that's their happiness. Putting aside family or relatives, it's not something for me to stick my nose in for the sake of complete strangers.

I'm sure Virhaima and Anderson feel the same. I don't know what kind of things the members of {Verdure Brotherhood} and {Black Topaz} were seduced by but if they've only built up enough of a relationship of trust to leave the party over that then it's only obvious it's the responsibility of the leader. It's the same for deliberately working a member to death or leaving them to die. It's not like I've gotten any proof or seen the actual thing. I think if that Rindobel couple manages to amass a certain amount of wealth then they plan to disappear as well.

"Hey, is there anyone in the {Slaughterers} right now that seems like they could headhunt..I guess there's no way there would be."

After taking a shower and getting refreshed while she was covering her face in a handmade steaming towel, Miduchi said with a mumbling voice.

"There's none. There's no more profitability to just a healing spell, and the only one seems like they'd fall over for money is Basutorial, but I'm sure he doesn't have enough skill for them to call out to him yet. When it comes to slaves unless I accept their sale then they can't even hold freeing them out as bait so it's pretty unlikely. In the first place it would be strange for reincarnated people not to realize they're suspicious but..I don't know about Faruergaz and Hirosukol.”

“Eh, aren’t they fine? I don’t think they would get caught up in that sort of thing though..”

“I’m sure they wouldn’t get caught up in it but I can’t ignore the possibility they leap into it of their own free will..Since it seems they have a strange sense of justice after all..”

“Ah..”

“In the first place it’s only my imagine whether or not they’re killing off their members. It wouldn’t be strange if they really made an organization to gather the God notes as well. In that case I’m sure the spell {Cure All} would certainly be attractive. Honestly speaking as far as I know other than Mila and the others, there’s you, me, the Court Sorcerer people. Ah, it seems that something or other healer in the capital can use it as well. It seems there was one in Baldukk as well but they died 10 years or so ago from old age.”

“Hn? When it comes to Dyurou’s there’s around 30 people who can use it I think..The first class Rank 1 warriors or the retired rank 1 warriors though.”

“In any case there’s not a large number of them. If it comes to normal adventurers then..even if I weren’t able to use all elemental magics then I’m sure I’d want it pretty desperately as well. If it’s just one person then I might hesitate but if it’s a two person group then my feelings might expand a bit and I just follow along. After all there’s no mistake it’s effective.”

“If you put it like that then it’s certainly true..”

That steaming towel, seems like it feels good. Maybe I’ll make one too.

“..If I was in the position of the RIndobels then..I would frantically try to gather God notes in order to take in Faruergaz and the others. If you can get the eldest son of Count Faruergaz behind it then it would make it seem even more credible. And, before things become troublesome throw him out of the party. Since that way it would be better for publicity.”

Alright..and, something like this...Ah, this is nice. I’ve had a pimple on my right cheek since last week.

Once my pores open up maybe I’ll crush it...Being young is nice. Worries like these, it's been decades since I last had them.

.....

Year 7444, Month 12, Day 27

First thing after waking up in the morning I thought about going running but I returned to the inn and after taking a shower used a condom with Miduchi. I'm sure there will be some more supplies around today. There's no need to get stingy with them. After that I was going to go and have some lunch together with the Dyurou and when I went down to the lobby Gwine and Ralph were glaring at us with an expression like gooey mud. Brats should be energetically playing kick the can outside. There's no cans though.

We return to the inn and started doing maintenance on our swords and knives in the narrow back yard. Below the chilly midwinter sky, I'm putting my sword to a whetstone while Miduchi is beside me sharpening her knife. It's a high quality whetstone produced in Kanbitt that cost 20,000 Z.

I think it when just past around 2 pm? The brat of "Boil Manor" came into the back yard searching for me.

"Greed-sama, you have a visitor."

I thought it was about time but they arrived right on the expected date. As expected of sister-in-law Shani.

When I went around to the front and the carriages from Bakuddo were stopped, both of them were loaded to the brim with luggage. One coachman, two guards. One war horse. Other than the war horse and the knight riding it, it's the bare minimum number of people.

"Ya~ sister-in-law Shani-san."

I called out to the yellow-green haired woman who was trying to lower some kind of luggage from the load.

"Al! It's been quite a while! I heard about it but you've gotten a lot bigger!"

Sister-in-law Shani-san is as beautiful as usual, she called out with a hazy light smile. All of the squires of Bakuddo are also greeting me as well. Right now, my height is around 175 cm. For a male human it's about average. Since I'm still young I think I'll grow a bit more.

"I would like to offer my congratulations for becoming the first wife of Viscount Greed in both name and reality."

I joked like that while making an exaggerated greeting. I'm sure brother has already been handed over the Viscount title quite a while ago.

"Really. Thanks. Also..it's difficult to say but today we're going straight to the capital like this. We don't have much time to waste.."

Sister-in-law Shani said her thanks while her expression clouded up and she said apologetically.

"Yeah, I already heard. You're dispatching to the front line right? I've already prepared things like food and supplies in the capital. But, you're going to stay the night at least right?"

"Yeah, at least that much. Thank you, Al."

Sister-in-law said that while smiling.

"And also, sister-in-law, I'll introduce you. She's Miduchi, Midu~ritto.Chizumagurol. She's one of my party members and..my important, woman. Miduchi. This is my sister-in-law. She's my older brother's wife, Shanleid-san. I call her sister-in-law Shani-san."

When sister-in-law heard my introduction as a bit of blood ran to my head, her eyes went wide in surprise but she quickly smiled and stretched her hand out to Miduchi.

"It's nice to meet you, Chizumagurol-san. I'm Shanleid.Greed. Please call me Shani."

Miduchi's light blue cheeks went bright red as she grasped sister-in-law's hand and greeted her.

"Ah, it.. it's very nice to meesch you too. I'm Midu~ritto.Chizumagurol. Pl..Please call me Miduchi as well."

What's with the meesch. Don't bite your tongue.

"Also, sister-in-law. In regards to the lord Marquis Webdos's plate that sister-in-law lent to me but thanks to it I was saved. Really thank you very much.”

When I said that and lowered my head, Miduchi who was standing beside me started lowering her head rapidly as well. Yeah, no matter how much we lower our heads, there’s no such thing as too far. In your case.

“Then, sister-in-law, after this I have a number of people accompanying us to the capital so I’ll go call them. Please wait for just a short while.”

After I said that I went to call Zenom, Ralpha, and Gwine from inside of the inn. I called out to Zenom who was laying in his room, since it seems Ralpha and Gwine were having a fashion show in their room I stopped it by knocking on the door and calling to to them, then when I was walking down the stairs towards the lobby, Miduchi came inside the inn carrying a small box. What is that?

“Ah, that is, it.. it seems it’s the promotional.. ru.. rubber she said. She didn’t seem embarrassed at all..I was the one who got embarrassed..”

“Hn..Place it on the side of the bed..”

When I went outside sister-in-law was already on top of her war horse. I told the brat to prepare Miduchi and my horses as well and then the brat and I started putting the harnesses on them.

“Al, where’s your armor?”

“Ah, this area is fine. It’s not necessary. It’s fine as long as I have my sword...I also have my magic after all.”

Come to think of it sister-in-law is properly wearing her protectors and even has a spear on the side of her war horse with her arms complete. Since she’s going to the battlefield after this, I guess you could say it’s only obvious but I’m sure one of the big reasons is there’s no space in the carriage for her armor.

“That horse, who’s is it?”

“Ah, it’s Miduchis.”

“Hm~n. I want her to ride behind me. Someone else can ride the horse as well right?”

Eh? Why? Of course~ in my party the only ones who can’t ride a horse are ..Basutorial and I doubt the slaves can either. After that we’re all riding them on our days off so everyone can ride and trot on them.

“It’s fine, let us talk between girls.”

“Ah, yes..”

Miduchi came back.

“Ah, Miduchi-san. You ride behind me over here!”

“Eh?”

I nod to Miduchi who is surprised suddenly being told that and I focused on dealing with the squires who are talking to me. When I glanced to the side Miduchi is frozen solid from the tension.

“Al-sama, do you intend to marry with that person?”

This fall when older brother succeeded the title of Viscount, along with that Sean ended up taking the title of Head Squire as well and he happily came up to me saying that. Bekkuwiz.Aizensaid who was the Head Squire up until then is past 50 and retired as expected. I guess you could say it’s only obvious that Sean.Tinba was chosen as the next leader because of his high level of skill and popularity to back that up. I’m sure if it’s Sean he’ll be good at supporting brother.

“Hn, I still don’t know but, well, for the time being...I wanted to introduce her when father and the others came last time but there was no chance to let them meet..”

“She’s quite the beautiful person but she’s an elf right? Is everything fine?”

The squire Reynolds said while worrying. He’s the eldest son of Beckwiz and the elder brother of Enbert the one who oversees rubber production but since Sean is higher in skill I guess he couldn’t become the head squire. It’s something that can’t be helped.

“Well, we’ll get there when it comes to that. Things will happen as they do. Don’t worry too much about it.”

“She’s the person that Al-sama chose. There’s nothing to worry about her at all.”

Jamie said trying to encourage me. Jamie is the squire Renritto families eldest daughter, she has an extremely belligerent personality. It's only obvious but she's quite skilled as well. The reason these three were added as escorts for the deliveries is proof brother is paying extra attention to sister-in-law Shani's safety I'm sure. Of the squires that serve the Greed family they're some of the most skilled three.

"Ah, Jamie, thanks."

"Uhya~ sorry for the wait~ Ah, Sean-san, Jamie-san, it's been a while!"

Ralpa and the others finally finished preparations and came out. What is it what that Uhya~ That's embarrassing.

"Sister-in-law Shani, from the left there's Zenom.Firefreed. And then his adopted daughter Ralpa.Firefreed, on the far right is Gulinell.Akdam. They're all my important allies. Everyone, this is my sister-in-law Shanleid.Greed."

"Nice to meet you all. I'm sorry to greet you from so high up place but I'm Shanleid.Greed. I've heard about everyone from Farne. It seems that Al is always in your care.."

She greeted them in order starting with Zenom, then Zenom and Ralpa got on Miduchi's horse and Gwine is riding behind me.

It's time to depart.

"She sure is a beautiful person..I can look up to her.."

Gwine was praising sister-in-law Shani from behind me. Of course that's the case. She's my bro's bride after all. She's good-natured and kind to everyone on top of that. I can't say it out loud but it seems she's amazing at night as well~

Sister-in-law Shani is somehow having a pleasant conversation Miduchi. Ralpa is skillfully leaning her back against Zenom while enthusiastically talking to Jamie.

Around the time started to get dark at 5 pm, we arrived at the edge of the capital Rombertia. There's no street lights but we can still barely see the ground and once we enter the capital there's a lot of stores that are open through the night. We were able to arrive at Greed Company without a problem. Zenom and the others are staying over one night and then it seems they'll go to Baldukk on the passenger carriage tomorrow. After exchanging words to meet again later in the holidays they disappeared into the dusk of Rombertia.

I introduced sister-in-law Shani to the Yotlen family who was watching the store and while waiting for the Ryogu family to return we carried the luggage inside the store. Unexpectedly it seems that Dianne was feeling ill and resting on the second floor. Everyone got excited thinking she might be pregnant but Yotlen said she was just recovering from the cold and tranquilized it. Since Dianne is taking it easy and resting her husband Ruku is looking after her on her side as well, since that left an opening for dinner today, we decided to have the Ryogu couple and Yotlen mother and daughters come along to the restaurant as well. Older sister had already departed to the battlefield.

That night, when we took a room in a hotel Miduchi shyly pulled out a rubber pack.

"Umm..Shani-san gave it to me..She said it's new.."

After taking that from her, my eyes went wide from the slightly different sensation from usual.

"He..Pu..Th..This is~~!?"

Is it really okay? Using this..Is it really okay!?

I look between the thing in my hand and Miduchi's face.

Miduchi's cheeks quickly dyed red from the blood rushing to her face.

This, is there still more left?

Eh? All of the ones brought into "Boil Manor" were this...swallow

The rubber protectors being delivered this time was 11 suits of armor in all. 500 pairs of sandals. 500 pairs of shoes. 50 pairs of boots. 4,000 packs of condoms. And then, another 100 packs in the small box Miduchi was handed. There's another 100 packs of a different type as well. Starting this time every 100 packs of condoms were inside of a small box the size of 15x15x20 cm that has the emblems of Bakuddo and the royal family branded into it.

"That is..Since we have them on hand let's try using it and then sell it to somewhere is what she said..”

“O..Oh..but, is it really okay?”

I swallow my saliva again while my nostrils flare up as I ask.

“I..I mean..ah, it seems the rubber fields have increased by one again..since they’re moving one around towards producing these so there’s no problem..”

Miduchi takes her shirt off. She’s embarrassed as he hides her chest with one arm but since it can’t hide all of them they’re coming out from the sides.

“Oh..I..See.”

I take my shirt off as well.

“I..I don’t mind using the normal kind either but..but, if possible we need to..cooperate after all, right.”

While sitting on the bed Miduchi is turning bright red as she uses one hand to take off her pants and then moved to her underwear.

“Yeah, if we don’t test it out, then we won’t...won’t know what it’s like..”

I’ve long since taken my pants off. I bite the edge of the rubber package open and took one out while slowly putting it on.

“Uhy~ this is amazing~ This. Look at it.”

I put my hands at my hips and showed Miduchi in an imposing stance.

“Really~ don’t show it to me.”

Miduchi looked in a different direction before crawling into the bed.

.....

After bullying Miduchi with the new type of condom I was normal. Or rather the sensation of using them was better with normal condoms. That, the only one who feels better is the woman.

While we were on the way to make deliveries at the castle and I was tired from lack of sleep I tried asking sister-in-law, “That, who is the one thought of it?” and I was told “We both thought of it.” with an unconcerned face. I sarcastically said “Make sure you manage them in a place where Zetto and Becky can't reach" and sister-in-law laughed.

Miduchi pulled sister-in-law to the edge and thanked her while bright red.

However, as expected of brother. In this short of a time with no hints at all for him to arrive in this territory..so this is a true genius. And then, sister-in-law as well..she said they both thought of it together..It might still be difficult to call it complete but...There's no way I'll be a match for them in my entire life.

When I called out the Queen, Becky came. While talking about random things for a bit along with the usual deliveries I casually handed her 10 packs of the new model.

"Hn? This is?"

"Ha...It's a newly developed product. Please feel free to closely confirm it."

I knelt down in the pose of a retainer while saying with a quiet voice.

"..Wha!! Th..This is..What in the world is this! This is? Studs?"

"I'm very sorry for putting this so frankly but rather than the man that is making use of it..rather than his majesty, the woman..it's something developed putting emphasis on your highnesses. We would be grateful if you would try it out."

"Th..This sort of thing..Is it really alright?"

Becky said while seeming a bit worried.

"Your highness Rebecca. Of course they are. I've already tested them out myself. The rubber protuberances along the outer surface are properly fastened on it so there's no need to worry about them being lost in the middle of action. It is extremely favorable with women. Just, due to problems with strengthening them the thickness of the Saya itself has increased a bit. For the man that is..if you were to ask it is more mentally satisfying that is larger."

Hearing that Becky's voice seemed a bit more excited.

"No, not in regards to the quality..Th..This really can go in..But, I..is that so..For the men it's mentally..and for the women..It..It's fine for you to leave."

Ah, along with the quality it's not harmful to the body at all either. It's okay. I can guarantee that.

But, the sensation might not be okay. Uhihi.

“Ha..please tell his majesty to use as he sees fit..Well then if you’ll please excuse me.”

Chapter 171: Observation

Year 7444, Month 12, Day 28

We finish up making deliveries and it was when we were taking measurements for next time. When I returned from the inner citadel to a room in the outer citadel where the measurements were being done the squires of Bakuddo were politely taking measurements of the sizes of people from the knight group. Reynolds was helping Rozural with the male knights and Jamie was helping Wendy with the female knights measurements. Sean was writing down the sizes Rozural and Wendy spoke out while sister-in-law Shani was smiling and overseeing that.

Miduchi seemed bored on her own but from a slight distance away she was restlessly looking around the castle with interest. When I went to Miduchi's side she started talking to me.

"Hey, this place is amazing..It's even larger than the largest lobby in Lail's royal palace and the ceiling is reasonably high as well..It really has the feeling of a castle.."

What is she saying? While I'm confused since I heard something strange she continued talking.

"Really~ Rombert's castle is amazing. The roof is gilded as well and there was some castle towers as well, this is the "outer citadel" right? It's really big and the inside is extravagant as well.."

"That is, since it seems Rombert has the highest national power around this area after all..I'm sure they would make the castle huge. I don't know about other countries but I'm sure they aren't as big as here..Most likely it's on the level of "Osaka Castle" or "Edo Castle"."

"Ah, if you put it like that..if I remember correctly Osaka Castle had gold leaf used for it's roof tiles at first as well..Did you already know?"

"Yeah, I've heard about it. I thought the same thing the first time I saw it."

It seems the measurements are almost over. The only one remaining for measurements is the Wolf-people of the second knight group, Viscount Rakkusu. I can't afford to be standing around here. I get Miduchi to help me out as we count the money. I pay sister-in-law Shani the cost of the rubber protectors and then sign the proof of sales before handing it over.

We were able to finish up the deliveries without problem and able to take orders for next time as well. After this we just need to return to the company once more and fill the empty carriages with the provisions and military supplies I had prepared in advance and we're done.

.....

"Then, sister-in-law. I'm praying for your fortune on the battlefield."

"Thanks. Miduchi-san, please take good care of Al."

"..Wa, yes!!"

After all the provisions, spare underwear and such, and military supplies were packed away sister-in-law and the other four in total from Bakuddo village's Dirt Plains dispatch task force departed the capital of Rombertia.

After I went to the government office to finish paying the luxury tax and then returned to the company again, I started organizing the stock that sister-in-law and the others carried in last night in the back yard. It seems that Dianne has recovered quite a bit as well and wanted to help me out but I just used the spell {Cure All} on her in exchange for her feelings and chased her back up to the second floor before taking care of the job with Yotlen and Miduchi.

After we finished up most of the jobs, Anna put on some bean tea for us and I spent a short while staring at the account books for the company. Rozural and Wendy went to make deliveries of condoms we received to the brothels we're in contracts with and Ruku returned to the workshop to repair the goods that need repairs that were brought in. It left an impression on me when Yotlen happily said, "Since we've restocked on Saya I'm sure it will spread around in rumors by the day after tomorrow and things will get busy." Ooh~ just like that continue increasing our profits.

"Ah, that's right. I don't think it will happen right away but in the case that the royal family sends forth a messenger saying something like hand over the new model of Saya then hand them this. Also, the remaining portion can be offered as promotional goods. Don't sell them to stores but rather only give them out to individual customers without taking any money. If they say they want some more than investigate what kind of price they would pay and how many they would be interested in buying. It's fine if you don't take money that time as well. Limit the other party to older men who are either rich or nobles. Fundamentally I'll leave it to you who you hand them to but only good customers who come a number of times. There's no need to hand them to a single person over three times. Limit it to just twice."

I said that while handing Yotlen the box of studded condoms (97 packs remaining) and I decided to return to Baldukk once before evening. There was something I was bit curious about as well.

When I returned to "Boil Manor" and Zenom and the others had already returned to Baldukk. Since Zenom was sipping away at some expensive looking alcohol and already bright red as he ate some smoked fish so I quietly closed his door. Ralph and Gwine seem to have gone out drinking. It seems like Toris and Bel are off somewhere as well, while he was in his room alone, he was practicing writing down notes until a piece of paper changed pitch black, and even then without getting bored of that he laid some sand out on a plate before practicing writing letters with his fingers, I caught Basutorial in the process of that before going to eat dinner with him and Miduchi.

"No~ it was easier than I thought. Thanks to you, I've already completely gained confidence that I can remember the letters."

Bastuoral happily said while smiling. If you can speak it then without much trouble it's pretty easy to learn the letters. That's great isn't it.

Together with Basutorial and Miduchi the three of arrived at "Rosun" in about three minutes. We made plans to eat dinner together with the slaves.

When we arrived at "Rosun" and the three slaves had secured a table in the back and were waiting.

We each ordered our own food and beer before starting a report meeting.

"And, how did things go?"

I asked Angela who was drinking beer as well. It's not like they're big but her four bowl shaped breasts stand out in the thick beige color shirt. The bottom two seem a bit small. Come to think of it there's no brassieres. It seems that some noble women of the upper noble rankings have started to use them but since they're all something made at specialty stores I heard from Bel in the past that they're not so easy to get your hands on. I wonder if she already bought one?

"Yes. I think it's most likely the same as yesterday but just as I heard from Miduchi-sama, I was able to confirm them entering the dungeon with the same group of two the day before yesterday. They came out before noon and after returning to their inn, neither of them stepped even one foot outside. It seems like they're having meals carried into the inn as well. When they came out of the dungeon yesterday, both of them were walking in a strange way so I think it's most likely an injury...They didn't enter the dungeon today and most likely they're confined to the inn other than meals."

"I see. What about the other group of two? Were you able to grasp their tail?"

This time I asked Zulu.

"That is..I'm very sorry. I wasn't able to gain any positive proof. At the very least as far as Larry and I could tell we weren't able to confirm any contact with {Sun Ray}. Since they returned to their inn from the dungeon yesterday it seems they haven't taken a step outside. I think that this side was injured as well. However, if they were to meet inside of the inn then we can't tell."

Certainly that's true...Since it seemed like Faruergaz and Hirosukol could use magic, I'm sure both of them can at least use {Cure}..and maybe Hirosukol could barely use it huh? In that case it's probably difficult for their wounds to fully heal in just one day. Even if they keep using {Cure} while resting they're probably prepared for it to take a full day and it's unlikely the adventurers who entered together with them are skilled at magic either.

If it comes down to Hirosukol being the only one who can use healing magic and furthermore it's only the spell {Cure} then..I can't remember Hirosukol's MP but it was at most 20–30 so if all of them were injured, then he used it 1–2 times on each to close the wounds before retreating, after that using {Cure} a number of times over a while in the inn. While enduring the pain. And in the first place if Hirosukol were to suffer a large wound then I don't think he would be able to use magic. The only one who can manage that is about me.

Ah, since they've learned the incantations then my party members, as long as it's not such a large injury that causes them to panic I think they can use it. In any case, those sorts of special cases aren't worth taking into consideration.

"Hn..I see. Then Miduchi you take the Faruergaz pair tomorrow and Giberuti and I will take the adventurer pair. Even though they're injured, if they were able to walk on their own feet then they might be able to heal themselves with magic by tomorrow."

I doubt that the Faruergaz pair will split up and act on their own so one person as lookout should be fine. I want to make sure my slaves have some days off as well. However, I don't know the two adventurers that they've supposedly hit it off with. Miduchi just saw them from a distance and obviously doesn't know either. The only ones who know are Zulu and Giberuti who saw them come out together. Giberuti..has quite a bit of free time even when we're in the dungeon so pull the unlucky number at times like these.

""I understand.""

I listen to the reply of the slaves while carrying some of the meat stir fry I ordered into my mouth.

"Al-san..I'm very sorry."

Bastuoral lowered his head apologetically.

"Don't worry about it. I'm just curious about the movements of some people I've made a connection with."

Ah, really this is annoying. Isn't it already fine to tell Giberuti about things regarding the reincarnated people? I guess it's still too soon. It's certain that I want to at least keep an eye on things for a year before making a decision. There was a chance so I bought him but the reason was because he didn't look at Bel in a weird way, and mostly just that. Though he was actually a pretty amusing fellow.

.....

Year 7444, Month 12, Day 29

I finished off my running in the morning and after buying some sandwiches Miduchi started to seclude herself to her room in “Boil Manor” right away. The entrance of the inn that Faruergaz and the others are staying can be seen from the window in her room. Since our faces are already known to Faruergaz we can only keep an eye on the entrance of their inn. I don’t think there’s any need to follow them. But, just in case, I have Miduchi observing them. Since Miduchi herself said following people was her specialty and since I thought that was actually the case as well. Even in the case it develops into combat, as long as she doesn’t get ambushed, I doubt there’s anyone who can injure Miduchi.

Giberuti and I sat down in an open restaurant across from the inn where the two adventurers are staying so we can sip some bean tea and chat while observing it. It was just as we were eating some roast duck with eggs over oatmeal for lunch.

“Master, one of them came out. It’s him.”

Giberuti caught my attention. When I looked at the target and it was someone I don’t know. Sannose.Kumiru. Human. 21 years old. Level 11. His level is reasonably high for his age. He’s wearing some reasonably durable leather pants and a cotton kimono above that. Completely normal plain clothes. He’s holding his flank down and every step he takes his face turns into a frown. His HP is over 20% gone. After all it seems they were injured. He walked over here with some unsteady steps and entered the store where Giberuti and I were relaxing away in.

“Give me some sandwiches. 8 of them. The ingredients can be anything but limit the doubles to two. Also, put some bean tea inside of this.”

After ordering from the waiter like that he looked down with a pale face and a cold sweat breaking out.

“..That will be 680 Z.”

He handed the waiter money while saying “I’ll come and pick it up in about an hour” before Kumiru left the store. I think I should follow him here. I signal to Giberuti with my eyes and after leaving a silver Shu on the table I counted to 20 after Kumiru left the store and then left following after him.

Since Kumiru is staggering along while holding his side I'm sure his vigilance is distracted from the pain. He isn't paying any attention to me while I'm following him from about 10 meters behind. After walking for about 10 minutes Kumiru entered a store. It's a store that deals in drugs. I wonder if he's going to buy something for the wounds. After about 2–3 minutes he finished shopping and after reading his mood when he came out I started concentrating. I've practiced a reasonable amount against Miduchi but it still takes about 10 seconds for the spell to complete and requires concentration. Taking the duration of the effect into consideration I used about four times the normal mana to extend the duration.

After Kumiru left the store and started staggering my way I intentionally bumped into him and while he was crouched over I stretched my hand out while apologizing and finished the spell. My current level is 24. I used Identify to check the sub-window of Condition while using the same spell on Miduchi and was able to confirm the success rate of the spell. If there's this much of a level difference between us then I can succeed at 100%.

When his hand reached out for my mine, the moment we met eyes..I caught him.

"Is it you, Sanno? Sannose.Kumiru?"

I called out to him with the tone of voice of bumping into an old friend in an intersection.

"A, Ah, Hn...What the so it was just you? Don't scare me like that, ouch."

"Ah, it's me. Sorry about that, it's been quite a while right~"

"Yeah..that's right."

Kumiru doesn't hold any doubts about it even though he doesn't know my face at all. If he's an adventurer then I thought he might know my face but..Since I don't have my rubber protectors or helmet on. Additionally I'm not even equipped with a weapon right now. He might not be able to tell. Or maybe this is also an effect of the spell {Charm.Person}? Either way is fine.

"What is it? Is your condition bad?"

"Hn? Yeah, I screwed up in the dungeon the other day. I had a guy I was exploring with use {Cure} on me but it's still far from completely recovered."

"Here, show it to me."

"Eh? Why, I don't want to."

"You idiot. I'm saying I'll use {Cure} on it. Or did you already forget that with your sponge head? {Cure} is my specialty."

"Ah? Eh? Ah, was that the case? No, that's right wasn't it. I'm begging you, do it."

I pulled Kumiru to the edge of the road and after he pulled up his shirt I saw the wound. There's a mark remaining where he was stabbed in the ride front side with something like a spear. There's still some pink flesh showing around the wound but the skin still hasn't stuck together. I quickly used {Cure Critical} on it.

"O..Oh, as expected. I feel like it's gotten quite a bit better. I'm saved."

Kumiru said like he was really happy.

"We're friends right? Don't worry about it at this point. But you know, I feel like my mana is about out thanks to that. By the way, are you still teaming up with that guy? That, what was his name again?"

"Ah, Ruttsu huh? That's right. And we've also made two new allies as well. Of all things both of them are knights of that Faruergaz Knight group! Even more so one of those is the eldest son of Count Faruergaz! We've been exploring together with them for the past few days!"

Since it got a lot more comfortable Kumiru smiled while he started bragging.

"He~? That's pretty amazing~ I guess that means luck is coming your way. But then why did you get that kind of wound even though two knights were with you?"

"Yeah, just listen to this. It's certainly true that since they're knights they're used to the army. They're young an strong~ But you know, it was completely obvious how much of beginners they were.."

"He~ What does that mean?"

“For starters their movements are completely those of amateurs.. They’re just walking around like normal. Ah, they’ve finally started to walk around without making noise and remaining cautious. And then, just because they can use magic they’re underestimating the dungeon. Just because it’s a little bit dark they use the spell {Light} right away..If it’s like that, it’s like telling the monsters to please come and aim for us.”

“That is quite..”

“Well, even then there’s some good points as well. If that wasn’t the case we wouldn’t party with them.”

“Ho?”

“The commoner knight can even use healing magic. Even yesterday, even though I was done in by a gnoll in the dungeon, Ruttsu and Rodrick-sama...Ah, Rodrick-sama is the eldest son of Count Faruergaz though. In any case I started bleeding while being protected by those two. After that I somehow managed to stand up and we defeated about half of the gnolls before they ran away and after we gathered the magic stones we made a run for it. We earned about 50,000 per person but since everyone was injured. We ended up having to push the dungeon on hold until next week.”

“I see. But, isn’t it great that you made some good acquaintances?”

“Ah, but, after all your {Cure} is completely different. It’s no surprise you brag about it. I bet you can make a living as a healer.”

“Idiot, you, did you already forget? Isn’t it you who told me I could earn in Baldukk?”

“Ah, that’s right, that is how it was wasn’t it..I said it?”

“Really your head sure is like a sponge Sanno.”

“No, sorry~ sorry~”

“Then, I’m heading off, stay well.”

“Ah! See you again. I was saved today!”

Kumiru and I split ways there, I took a detour around before returning to the restaurant where Giberuti was on standby.

“Master, just now that person returned and after picking up his food went into the inn.”

“N, got it. It seems that he went to buy some medicine for his and his partners wounds. I don’t think they’ll move anymore today but it might be possible the guy from just now will move. However, it should be fine already. Let’s stop here for today. You’re free to do whatever you want.”

I had Giberuti go back and then I spend a bit of time thinking while on my way back to “Boil Manor” but I wasn’t able to arrive at the conclusion that Kumiru and Ruttsu were connected with {Sun Ray}. I wonder if there was any movement on Faruergazs end? It’s definite that Hirosukol can use the spell {Cure} but as long as he isn’t deeply wounded then it’s possible he can use healing magic today.

Well even then I think it will take quite a bit of time for the wound to completely heal so they might be resting for another couple of days, with this I’m sure they’ll have been given some things to think about for a bit and wait carefully until they’re completely healed and make even more thorough preparations before entering the dungeon next time.

Chapter 172: Counting Your Chicken's Before They've Hatched

Year 7444, Month 12, Day 29

After returning to “Boil Manor” I went to Miduchi’s room and asked the state of things with Faruergaz and Hirosukol for today.

It seems that they left once around noon and returned in about an hour as well the as Kumiru. It seemed like both of their walking postures seemed more normal again so it’s fine to think they’ve recovered from most of their injuries. If they aren’t idiots then they’ll wait a few days while keeping an eye on things and if possible offer to heal Kumiru and Ruttsu or offer some kind of assistance to them.

If they just go straight to the dungeon without doing then I don’t care anymore...It should be fine to just ignore them. Is it okay? No, I guess it’s no good...However, if they’re reckless then I’ll be troubled later on...

In any case things are already fine for today. I thought of taking a warm shower before dinner so I went towards the shower room when I just happened to run into Toris as he was coming out. Then I guess Bel is using the other shower room that’s in use. Suddenly I remembered so rather than taking a shower I invited Toris to my room, I decided to give him the honor of being a monitor for the new model of Saya. Well the other day, I already tested it on Miduchi, and I’m sure my older brother and sister-in-law have tested it plenty as well so I can already guess but for me it was the light feelings of trying to help the pitiful Toris out a bit.

“Al-san, did you return? Weren’t you going to be at the company in the capital for this holiday..”

“Yeah, I intended to be but since I got my hands on a new product this time. I needed to give it to you in a hurry, thinking that I came back in hurry though it’s just for tonight.”

“Ha~ And, what is it?”

I opened the wooden box on the wide of my bed and took out one package and handed that to Toris.

“Al-san..This is..”

He touched the rubber pack and after confirming the contents Toris said with a bit of restraint, while his eyes went wide and he seemed a bit drawn back from it.

“Yeah, it’s a product that is just as you can see. Have you used one before?”

“No way, there’s no way that’s the case.”

He replied in a panic while shaking his head. Fumu, I guess he was just an innocent college student, well I guess you wouldn’t normally use it. And, even including my previous life it was my first time using it not too long ago as well so I can’t say anything about others though.

“Well, I guess that’s true. But you know, this should become a great ally to you. Since the problem of molds still hasn’t been solved in regards to that the studs aren’t designed into one. They’ve been added afterwards. That’s why in order to prevent them from escaping and in order to strengthen the main part it’s made a bit thicker than usual.”

“Is..Is that so..But, did you really just go out of your way to return in order to give me this...”

It seems like Toris can’t understand as he’s sending me a dubious glance.

“Well the quality just as you know isn’t worth comparing to the cutting edge technology of Japan so it can’t be helped. Although..”

“Although?”

Toris’s expression is saying, what in the world is this person talking about? What does he want to say? those sorts of feelings are clearly showing.

“I’ll say it once more. The main body of it has been created a bit thicker!”

Zubishi!! and I pointed at the rubber package on Toris’s hand with my finger.

“..Ha!! I..I see..It’s that sort of thing! In other words, the sensitivity falls a bit for the male side right!”

Umu. I'm saved that he's quick to understand.
Honestly, it's not the type of product I care for much. Miduchi and I are reasonably seeking each other but it's limited to within common sense levels. However, oh~ Toris, your woman is different right? Since I don't think it's good to step too far into your private lives, I didn't say much at all up until now but I had realized it.

After Toris joined our group two years ago, during the start you two were happily doing it but..you, recently you seem even more energetic during the times were in the dungeon right? I can roughly guess it based on the Saya consumption rate but recently the number of times per night has decreased hasn't it? The other day my desires exploded by chance and then the next morning I was seen by Bel but as a matter of fact I felt bad about that.

Three times in one night is something that can be done because we're young. However, even then for you do manage that every single time must have been quite painful. During the start when you were managing 6-7 times every day I even secretly respected you. Around the start of this year, I'm sure it was in order to try and drop the sensitivity but you tried using the pig's bowels but ended up causing some pain for Bel from your past inexperience right? When I found out about that I felt a bit lonely thinking I wouldn't be of any use to you anymore but even then I thought that couldn't be helped in some ways.

While looking at Toris who's eyes are sparkling with understanding, I cross my arms with a grave expression and nodded to him.

"Well, just test it out. Try using it. You might be able to open up a new door in your life?"

"U..Al-san..I...I..Kku, thanks. Thank you very much!"

At first he was looking down with his eyes on the rubber package but as he raised the level of his gratitude he properly looked up at me. I could feel the flames of hope burning brightly in his eyes.

Umu, I'm saved he's so easy.
Rather~ I couldn't even imagine he would be moved so deeply.
Was it really that painful..I put my hands on both of Toris's shoulders and nodded before saying.

“If you try using it and think they’re good then treat me to a meal later. It’s not worthy of being thanked over every little time.”

During dinner of that day Toris was in a good mood all on his own and Bel just looked at that with a strange face. Miduchi, the three slaves, and I ate. I don’t know about everyone else. I’m sure they’re all eating on their own.

.....

Year 7444, Month 12, Day 30

After waking up in the morning without doing my running, Miduchi and I switched over to the inn that we had put in reservations for. I went to the dried goods dealer and stocked up on a large amount of dried fish and then after the two of us put on some hooded robes we entered the dungeon early in the morning. We can kill time on the 2nd and 3rd floors until later while Miduchi earns some experience towards her magic skills.

I had a strange sort of confidence that Faruergaz and the others wouldn’t move today or tomorrow. I’m sure there’s no Japanese person who would want to enter the dungeon on New Year’s Eve or Day. Particularly those two who have the sensitivity of Japanese people remaining strongly and there’s the injuries as well, starting today until past New Year’s day they should carefully proceed with preparations before entering the dungeon again. In other words, I’m guessing they won’t move until at least the day after tomorrow. Depending on how things go they might not even move until the end of New Year’s Week.

It’s completely unknown if Kumiru and Ruttsu have any relation to {Sun Ray} but even if they do the best thing they could do for now is some sort of unnatural intervention so there’s other choice than to leave things be. Well I think there probably won’t be anything. There’s nothing more to do than periodically confirm their survival.

We spent the day putting priority on time efficiency where I freeze the orks on the 3rd floor and have Miduchi finish them off using magic without collecting the magic stones.

After noon, until evening we wandered around the 2nd and 3rd floors until just like last time we teleported from the 3rd floor to the fairy village area on the 2nd floor, and then rested in shifts in front of the area where the entrance to the fairy village appears when the date changes.

And then midnight.

““Congratulations and happy new year!””

For the time being we finished up our New Year’s greeting and then put our hands on the door to enter the fairy village before going inside.

.....

Year 7445, Month 1, Day 2

Yesterday night, no, I guess it was early this morning? When Miduchi and I returned from the dungeon we went back to our temporary inn and without waiting for morning we checked out right away and then used the spell {Light} to travel along the road as it was still dark on our way to Rombertia. Since we had been away since the end of the year in order to learn some new spells, both of us were mentally exhausted so when we arrived at the capital we just took an appropriate inn before falling over into bed without the energy to take a shower. I think the time had already gone around to 4 am in the morning.

After we slept for as long as we pleased until close to noon, we had some food, and then as exercise to help digestion we ran for about two hours along the riverside. We returned to the inn, took a shower to get refreshed, and then Miduchi and I exchanged glances in our room. We both couldn’t hold back from breaking out into laughter. After laughing together for a few minutes and then this time we both reached a similar thought as our faces got serious enough as if we were glaring at each other. Furthermore, Miduchi was making a face on the verge of crying.

“The one I learned it doesn’t matter how much time it takes until it activates so there’s no point in hurrying to practice with it. However~ even though I spent that much time I was only able to learn one spell..This, is a considerably difficult spell.”

“I still need to practice the four spells I learned this time...But, honestly speaking insects are..”

The only was able to learn a single spell this time.

It doesn't even need to be mentioned, the spell {Transmute.Rock.To.Mud}.

Compared to that Miduchi was able to learn four this time.

Summon Bugs, {Summon.Insect}

Summon Bug Swarm, {Insect.Plague}

Clumsiness, {Fumble}

Communicate Intent: Plants, {Speak.With.Plants}

Quite a few of those spells are reasonably valid.

Now then, what's important here is the spell I learned this time {Transmute.Rock.To.Mud}. This spell can change rock into mud. Putting it simply, it's safe to consider it the advanced version of {Quagmire} which can be used to create bogs. It's an extremely high level spell that requires earth, fire, water, and void magic skill levels all at least at level 8. The bare minimum MP required to use it requires using earth and water magic five times, fire magic once, and void magic eight times, for a total MP consumption of 152 points. And with that it makes it possible to turn any type of rock that's roughly 1 m³ into mud.

Up until there it only seems like a spell that would be useful for tunneling through a mountain or when cultivating new land. According to teacher Mila the reverse spell of {Remove.Petrification} is called {Flesh.To.Stone} and there's also the method of transforming the target from stone into mud with this spell then washing them away into a river or ocean so they can never return to normal again, that sort of extremely brutal method of using it seems to exist as well but that sort of thing doesn't matter at all.

If you transform rock into mud, then use the void magic sorting on that mud to sort out whatever you like from it, then if you use the void magic transformation it's possible to take it out in whatever form you like. This is huge. It's possible to take out refined, crystallized metals in the form that is "just as you can imagine". There's not even a need to specify things for a bolt that's 5 mm in diameter, with the screw height of 0.7mm, and a length of 5 cm. All you have to do is imagine a bolt in that form. And, then when it comes to a nut that matches that bolt, you can take the nut (included in that rock) out in whatever metal you like.

Let me repeat it even easier to understand. I have a certain rock. And, I use the spell from just now consecutively. Iron, Chrome, Molybdenum I take out everything I can from it. Then I use the spell to make that into an alloy. Then I use this spell on that again. That time, I coil it to the right, have it rotate around about this much, with an inner diameter of about this much, external form about here, and I think up the image of a perfect gun barrel with the life ring carved into it and created from Chrome.Molybdenum Steel. And, then just the same as that with lead, if possible with tungsten or anything else but if I make a bullet that matches the gun barrel like I made last year, or, from some brass that was made syrupy in the same way I make a cartridges of just the right shape to match this magazine, or things like that I can make them just as I imagine in my head. Even the types of small parts that a detonator requires are simple.

Putting it frankly, it eats a shitload of MP so I'm sure that no one other than me can properly manage it.

After that if I can just use the nitrocellulose I experienced with in the past then smokeless gunpowder should be fine, if I mix in some plasticizing agent and wax as an anti-combustion agent at about 10% then that should be plenty. There's still the problem of safety remaining but if I increase the amount of wax while experimenting with it then it should burn all on it's own so easily. It should be able to reach the level of a weak bullet, then if there's problems with the firepower while it'll increase the weight a bit I can increase the size of the shell by just a bit. It will deteriorate at a more intense rate but it's not like the modern day armies where I have to keep it in storage for up to three years after producing it.

I already knew from the start that something like preparing a massive amount of guns is impossible because of issues related to the gunpowder. If I were to same something extreme, then it should be fine as long as the quality is guaranteed for a few months after it's produced. In the first place, in a situation where I can prepare a large quantity and make use of them, guns are just like a supplement to me. Rather than that the fact that I can make things like pachinko balls or nails of the same quality in large quantity is even more important.

If I buy a distillation device (or make one is fine) and distill Pyroligneous acid to make a lot of methanol. If I just leave that alone and let it undergo oxidation then I formalin should be created..I think, if I remember correctly. It'll end up burning some MP but I use the magic sorting to take it out as well. It's possible to sort out ammonia from piss and decaying corpses. If I can get formalin and ammonia to react then it's possible to create Hexamethylenetetramine. And then, I've already confirmed it's possible to create nitric acid of high purity when producing nitrocellulose with magic. If I mix up Hexamethylenetetramine with high purity nitric acid inside of a something like porcelain that can resist high temperatures and get them react then that should be able to make Trimethylenetrinitramine crystals..I think.

Ah, Trimethylenetrinitramine refers to RDX. It's poisonous but as long as you don't eat it then it's fine. It seems it's sweet so I need to keep it away from Ralpa though. If I harden this with wax then it's composition A, it requires me being able to make Toluene, but if I mix it with TNT 6:4 then it becomes composition B. If it's mixed with a plasticizing agent like clay 9:1 then it's the so-called composition C.

If I can put conducting line soaked in nitrocellulose or a metal wire stuck in it that reacts to a reasonable {Lightning Bolt} then I can create a bomb. If you surround it with a lot of pachinko balls or nails then I'm sure you can increase the damage even more. Of course, I'm sure the quality wouldn't reach the level of those made in a Japanese factory but that doesn't particularly matter. The various kinds of additives aren't absolutely necessary. Some of them prevent the deterioration over long term storage, or raise the efficiency of it, make it easier to use, it's fundamentally just things that make it easier to deal with it.

In order to prevent the soldiers on the ends that don't have a properly level of education from discharging it on themselves, would be the largest portion of the goal. In my own opinion I'd just be fine if I could make something like a large version of the JSDF's anti-vehicle mine. Either way I don't have any intention of letting anyone else use them. After that if we had several people who could use a smaller version like claymores then I think that would be plenty. If I could make something like a wire fuse that would be the best but I'm sure it would be difficult without electricity. Ah, maybe I could make one in combination with the lighter magic tool. Though I'm sure that would make it a bit larger.

However, while these would require some schemes in order to make use of for attacking, they'd be ideal for defending.

Well, at the current stage, it's quite literally counting the chickens before they've hatched though.

But, I'm sure this will become a large power.

However, inside of the inn I don't want to try practicing any of the spells we learned this time other than {Fumble}. I think we'll just go take a look around various places in the capital for a change of pace and get some rest today.

.....

Year 7445, Month 1, Day 3

We spent the entire day at the company chatting with the Yotlen mother and daughters.

Reira's ability to deal with customers is splendid.

And Anna is doing a good job as well.

We sold 11 packs of condoms.

.....

Year 7445, Month 1, Day 4

We spent all of today chatting with Yotlen mother and daughters as well.

Hanna thinks that as long as she's mimicking her older sister than she's doing a good job. It's charming.

We sold 13 packs of condoms.

Reira gave something or other sub-Baron a sample of the new model of condoms.

.....

Year 7445, Month 1, Day 5

We continued chatting with Yotlen mother and daughters at the company until noon.

We sold 5 packs of condoms during the morning.

I haven't done anything other than running these past three days.

Since we're entering the dungeon again starting tomorrow we returned to Baldukk.

I'll give it my best starting tomorrow.

Author's note: there's some portions intentionally left out this time avoiding breaking explosive production laws, but please think that the protagonist properly knows them. I wonder if it would be best to cover them up with omissions?

Chapter 173: An Unfortunate Father And Son

Year 7445, Month 1, Day 15

Faruergaz and Hirosukol haven't gone to the dungeon since then and together with Kumiru and Ruttsu they've been gathering information, buying tools, producing preserved food (mixing dried meat in with wheat flour dough and baking until it's harsh, it's sold but it's cheaper to make yourself. I think Kumiru and Ruttsu probably taught them) and that sort of stuff. It appears that all four of them are in good condition again.

They came to see me a number of times and asked various things as well. I just honestly answered everything I asked without hiding anything and while I might be thought of as meddlesome I even taught them some things they didn't ask.

The possibility that people you thought were allies could betray you. Betrayal, it's an expression that has various meanings behind it. If you just go off the literal meaning then you could take it as someone who starts disputes over the method of splitting up portions, otherwise in a broader sense it could include those who don't protect the pre-decided rules. And also, I told them they're probably lacking in combat potential as well.

He listened to most of it honestly but when it came to the parts about being betrayed or lacking in combat potential they made a vague expression like they had accepted it or didn't want to accept it. Well I think it's best to carefully think about the things your seniors tell you and come to your own conclusion.

By the way, we returned from the dungeon January 11th but by the time we returned from the dungeon it seems that they had already given notice of the day of judgement. Since there was no notice of it through the New Year's holiday I let my guard down and right as we tried to return to our schedule of six days in the dungeon followed by three consecutive days off, there was this. If it was just as planned then we were supposed to return to the dungeon again today. I think it would have been great if they started announcing it a bit earlier.

Since it can't be helped just complaining, in any case Ralpa, Gwine, Toris, and I head towards the plaza in front of the government office. The other members aren't victims or witnesses this time so they aren't accompanying us. We entered the government office and after telling the official we came to appear in court, when I asked it seems that the predicted time for us is around noon. We went back outside once and I was able to discover everyone around the center of the plaza at a location which is kind of vague for watching with a goza laid out drinking tea so we joined back up with them. It seems that the areas in front which are better for watching were already taken by other onlookers.

Just before 9 am the governor of Baldukk came out to give greetings with one of the megaphone magic tools that's said to only exist in a few locations including here and the capital, it seems that there's a total of 46 cases of crimes and he declared that the punishments would be enforced if they accept their crimes during the public trial. And then, the King entered the platform soon after and the judgement began.

Before the judgements started, I thought I met eyes with the King once but when I saluted it was ignored. I thought it couldn't be helped but one day I'll make it so he can't ignore me, while lining up with the witnesses, then I crossed my arms and sat in a chair. From stingy larceny to injury, murder, and a case of arson that happened a while back they're gradually given judgement and the punishments are enforced on the side of the plaza.

And then, just as the official had predicted, just before noon when the sound of the whip is still ringing out from the edge of the plaza, Ralph and Gwine the victims (since it's treated as a criminal case accusers don't exist) were called up, and the judgement begins. The ones dragged out on to the judgement place were the suspects, Misseru.Beirun and 9 others. Now then, your majesty King Thomas Rombert the Third, I wonder what kind of judgement you'll show me?

Misseru.Beirun and the other suspects had their gags removed but they didn't say anything. I guess they can't say anything until given permission. In that case then it seems they at least have some amount of common sense.

The King who was on the platform receives the paper the crimes and suspects are written on from an official in the knight group the same as others and with a flat voice that didn't give off any sort of feeling read it out.

“..like this the charge is the crime of attempted robbery and if it’s recognized I impose the sentence of 10 lashes with the whip on the suspects Misseru.Beirun, including Rihyaruto.Oigen....Romeru.Biurkuride. Suspects do you accept your crimes and submit to the punishment?”

Ho...10 times for attempted robbery is a bit heavy. If I remember correctly actual robbery that isn’t attempted was 15 times so you could say it’s quite heavy. Since attempted robbery is a fit case for today, there’s no way of checking if it’s a valid punishment. In the first place, past precedents are used as somewhat of a reference it seems but it’s not like Japan where it depends on a doctrine of past precedent, and the one who maintains supremacy the King and embodies the national law itself has the final say in it.

“Fa..Father, we di“Shut your mouth, who’s your father! Just now, I add to the charges of the suspect Misseru.Beirun. False statements as well as contempt of royalty. I myself stand witness. The punishments of three lashes with the whip, including decapitation and the head will be showed above the prison gate are included.”

Mu, that illegitimate child (?) called Misseru seems to be quite the idiot. If he had just obediently accepted it then it would have ended at 10 lashes with the whip...In the first place, it was already over the moment he was so brainless that he couldn’t even understand that blood relationships aren’t taken into consideration at all when it comes to the enforcement of punishments.

In the Kingdom of Rombert where multiple husbands and polygamy are accepted there’s no way something like an illegitimate child would have any rights. However, putting aside the charge of contempt of royalty, I don’t think anything up until now was a false statement...Ah, since publicly his father is Viscount Beirun so the charge of contempt towards royalty where he called the King his “father” could be taken as false as well.

“Ah..Gu..”

Misseru was so surprised his eyes when wide like they’d fall out of his head while his mouth keeps opening and closing.

“Respond, suspect Misseru.Beirun. The response is do you accept or not.”

With a severe face towering over him like a rock the King questioned his son(?).

“Ah...No, I don’t recognize the charges.”

“Is that all of the charges?”

..I guess you could say this this is in some meanings the kindness of a father.

“No, only the attempted robbery..”

The King looked at the suspect Misseru.Beirun’s face for a few seconds but soon after changed his glance to the suspect next to him as if he had lost interest and asked the same way. The other 9 who were making expressions of surprise easily accepted their crimes.

Now then, at the very least there’s one person who didn’t accept his crimes. In other words, Toris and I will be called up I’m sure.

“Well then, the witness for this matter come e..Hmph, after all it was you..Swear upon the God of Law and Truth that you will verify without falsehoods.”

“I, sub-Noble Alan.Greed, swear upon the God of truth and law that I speak only truth.”

“I, sub-Noble Toris.Kalstalan, swear upon the God of truth and law that I speak only truth.”

sub-Nobility is the official ranking of those who border the line of nobility. Even if it’s the eldest child of a Duke if they don’t have any noble ranking at the time they’re considered a sub-Noble. The exception is only for the prince and princesses of royalty.

We respond to the questions of the King who is the judge, prosecutor, and defense. The questions themselves aren’t any different from the other trials. The date and time of the crime, the situation, and our impressions we just respond as we’re asked. Well it’s mostly just the same things we told the knight group of Baldukk when we handed them over.

“Once again I’ll hand out the judgement. Suspect Misseru.Beirun will receive 10 lashes with a whip for the crime of attempted robbery. Adding 1 lash for denial of the crimes. Another 3 lashes for stating falsehoods during this trial.

And for the crime of contempt of royalty he will be decapitated and have his head displayed on the prison gate for one week.”

After he declared that things simply moved on to the next trial.

When I returned to everyone else I sat down with my legs cross sipping some tea and eating the wheat senbei (a confection made by just crushing wheat flour and adding that into the dough to be baked) while watching the remaining judgements. While watching I once again thought that I can't let my guard down around that old man.

Furthermore, the one who was acting as guard for the first knight group this time was lord Balkisas. Soon after the judgements ended, a member of the first knight group came to call for me so I went to the government office and the King and lord Balkisas were hiding behind a wall further inside. When I took the pose of a retainer in front of them the King made an unpleasant face while whispering something to lord Balkisas. Che...This old man, so he doesn't want to talk directly to me that much.

Well, it's just somehow but I also originally had an imagine of noblemen only talking intimately with their most loyal of retainers and officials and not directly speaking with commoners or of the lower classes, so thinking that I decided to join his game of telephone. Though if I think about it, just now he exchanged words with criminals and me as well so I guess that's not the case either. I'm sure it's that right? The studs. Yes I get it, isn't that great. This old man who's stamina is running out from his old age felt rejuvenated again making his women go hi~hi~ I'm sure.

..I guess there's no way that's the case huh? I don't know if there was any affection but it's like he just killed his own blood related son a short while ago. But, in this sort of world. Let alone parents or siblings, it might even be only obvious to harm your own son.

“..Greed-kun. I received the order to convey it to you without even a single mistake from his majesty but these aren't my worebu”

When Lord Balkisas was about to start giving an excuse the King hit him in the head from behind. At the same time the King whispered in his ear “It's fine if you don't say anything unnecessary.” I can hear you~ I'll use {Charm.Person} and {Suggestion} on you~ old man.

“Hn, gohon. For you to not have brought even a single magic weapon since then, ow”

The King hit lord Balkisas in the back of the head again.

“It’s not haven’t brought. It’s can’t manage to bring. And also, don’t forget to add brat. Convey things properly.”

Hey now, I can hear everything clearly, old man.

“A~ br..brat, for you to not be able to manage to bring back even a single magic weapon, even though you’re getting arrogant with the name {Slaughterers}, you’re just at that level huh? If it’s at this rate then won’t it take over 10 years? If you can’t manage something during the period I’m still the King then it’s not my responsibility you know, id~iot”

Ku...He hits where it hurts. But, we’ve already long since gotten our hands on a magic weapon. Shut~up. The one who says idiot is the real idiot. I’ll show you. In the first place it still hasn’t even been one year since then. You’re too impatient. Are you premature? However you know..I guess he was interested in it.

“..Oh my, that is quite. I’m quite surprised you know of this humble retainers movements..”

Suddenly the King flicked his tongue and made an unamused face. I’m not amused at all either.

“However, we’ve still only just started. I’m not in any hurry myself. In the first place I’m still a young 16 years old. It’s strange saying it myself but since I’m still young I have an infinite amount of possibilities but..Oh my~ since I swore to only speak the truth to the God of law and truth just a short while ago so I can’t speak anything but the truth but please humbly forgive me..”

I added some sarcasm. Even if he knows it I couldn’t help but say it. I’m still plenty young.

“This..impudent brat...It’s fine, let’s go.”

While the King had a bitter smile on his face he said that to his guards before disappearing past my side even further into the government office.

Since I boasted so highly about it, it's necessary to actually show him the possibilities thanks to my youth. If possible I want to somehow manage it this year.

I continued to remain in the pose of a retainer until the King and others were out of my sight.

Well, putting that aside, it was unfortunate this time right. Your majesty the King.

I'm sure that method of yours was one method itself.

It's unfortunate that your son was too much of a fool.

I'm sorry for your grief

..This is something I think from the bottom of my heart.

.....

Year 7445, Month 1, Day 16

We ended up having one extra day off thanks to the day of judgement but starting today we're entering the dungeon again. Just the same as usual, we aim for the 7th floor right away and hurry ahead. We continue to the 3rd floor without problem and then setup camp in the teleport room on the 3rd floor.

.....

Year 7445, Month 1, Day 17

We cleared through the undead on the 4th and 5th floors and then finished up preparations to camp in the teleport room on the 5th floor. And while I say that it's nothing that takes much work other than raising the dirt level a bit to use as a bed. Within 20 minute since Zulu and I started making preparations to camp a group of adventurers appeared in the teleport room on the 5th floor. I thought everyone else had caught up to us and that they were reasonably fast today but since {Party-ization} still shows them as being a bit of distance away it must be a different group. If it's someone other than the {Slaughterers} who comes here then it doesn't need to be mentioned but it's {Sun Ray}.

It's an eight person party with the Rindobel couple and six others. The only other faces I know than theirs are the round shield and mace using human male, Harukein.Fumizu and the Wolf-people man who uses a spear named, Jerutodo.Ramires. I don't know the other four people.

Fumizu and Ramires came with the RIndobel's to greet me. It's quite polite of them for adventurers so it leaves a good impression though. Well, it's fine.

"If you intend to use the shower then feel free to use it first."

I said that and offered it to them. They were grateful but also made surprised faces. Yeah, that's right. We split into two groups of 2 and 9 people each up to here. Judging from their appearance, it seems like they heard of it from rumors and doubted it, and they're surprised to actually see it.

"Umm, Greed-san. Would it be fine to talk with you for a short while?"

The husband of the Rindobel couple, Koritto.Rindobel started talking to me. So they've come huh? Thinking that I invited them over to the bench while trying to be careful to not seem unnatural.

"What is it?"

"That is, it's a bit embarrassing to make this request but around the 5th floor, would you mind letting our members accompany you once?"

Huh? They aren't trying to pull us in but rather they're coming over here? I don't get the meaning. No matter how you think about that it's spying. Is this guy an idiot?

I'm sure my expression reflexively changed into something really suspicious. It seems the husband of the RIndobel's read the meaning of my expression and added in a panic.

"Ah, no, please excuse me. I'm very sorry for putting it in a way that could be misunderstood. Some of our young members look up to the {Slaughterers} you see...They're even saying they want to leave {Sun Ray} and join the {Slaughterers} so..Honestly, they're members who we've spent a reasonably long time together with in the dungeon so while it's quite disappointing but we want to grant their individual wishes as well."

There's no way, no matter how you think about that it's way too obvious. If you were to really just take it on the surface level then it might be seem like parental affection of really wanting to make their members happy, or something like that but there's no way anyone would get caught in this. Or else did they seriously see me as someone who would get caught in this? If that's the case then that's going quite far. Certainly it's true I might look like a naive brat but even like this I'm still the head of the top team in Baldukk. I'd really prefer if you don't underestimate me.

I seriously started to feel like using {Charm.Person} to ask their true intentions but somehow managed to endure it. If there's even a small chance that it might fail it would be annoying.

I politely refuse their offer and had them return to their group.

After that, we grouped up with everyone else, had dinner, took our showers and then when I wrapped myself in my blanket I thought for a bit.

I wonder what {Sun Ray} is aiming for? Their larger objective is clear. It's the underlying truth of the word. Earn money. I'm sure there's nothing other than that. Since it's their freedom how they use the money they earn, whether it's giving it as an offering or using it on the dog races, I don't think anything at all. It doesn't matter as long as they're not my acquaintance.

And, in order to achieve that larger objective, the Rindobel couple of {Sun Ray} seem to be gathering money with methods that are close to fraud. It seems they're normally using headhunting as their primary method but as expected I'm sure they understand that's close to impossible. With that they thought up a different method is what it means. However, it's far too crude.

I feel like they're probably still thinking something I haven't realized yet. However, isn't this method just like giving me a warning? Even when it's me if the Ginger or Gekudo we saved previously were to one day come ask for me and say they want to join the {Slaughterers} out of their debt to me then I would think a bit about it. Ah, I need to sleep already. Tomorrow is early.

.....

Year 7445, Month 1, Day 18

We did two round trips around the 6th floor and by the evening all of us had arrived at the teleport room on the 6th floor. This time taking into consideration what I was told my {Sun Ray} I left Giberuti from the start and brought along Basutorial. When I returned to pick him up {Sun Ray} was already gone. It seems they all teleported into the 6th floor.

Well, on the way I talked to everyone about things in regards to {Sun Ray}. Everyone was laughing but Basutorial's eyes were swimming. He panicked a bit when Toris poked fun at him but I'm sure anyone would want more money. Particularly since Basutorial has his circumstances as well. It can't be helped if they can touch his feelings while he still doesn't know much about the dungeon.

"Once you return your debt, if you really want to you're free to join {Sun Ray}. Don't hold yourself back."

However, if it comes to that, I won't forget that it happened though.

"That's absurd. {Sun Ray} was it? Most likely, their abilities are less than us {Slaughterers} right? That's no joke. What I was thinking is, someone could pretend to be deceived and enter their group intentionally, those sorts of moves are possibly as well, just that. But, when I thought about it once again I realized there's not much meaning in it either way."

Yeah. I thought of that as well. In reality Miduchi would be the best ability wise but I'm sure that would be exposed right away. The runner-up would be Bel but she's one of our old-time members including Zenom and Ralpha. Even when it comes to Gwine and Toris they've already been with us for two years so I doubt {Sun Ray} would think they'd join them either. The only one remaining is Basutorial but this guy is still an amateur and depending on how things go he could even slowing them down in combat.

What the, isn't everyone fine then?

I guess it's already fine to just not worry about it~

Chapter 174: Steadily

Year 7445, Month 1, Day 19

When we put some fighting spirit into it and teleport into the 7th floor, we teleported into the same place we previously killed the {Larva Purple Worm}. If we were to ignore the paths along the way from here and walk for several hours then I'm sure we'd arrive at that desert-like area.

"What should we do? This place, seems to be where the earthworm was."

Gwine said while seeming to daze into mid-air. She's probably looking at the map.

"There were several paths beyond that right.."

Toris put his hand to his chin as he said. Seeing that Zenom opened his mouth.

"Shall we go? Since it seemed like the teleport room to the 8th floor had four entrances, we still only know one of those."

"Hn~ I think we should go as well. If the earthworm comes out again then this time for sure.."

This time for sure what? Why are you looking at me there? Hmn, though it's only along the way it seems like it was the correct choice to split up our party. Recently I feel like Ralpa is underestimating the dungeon. According to what I've heard from Bel and Miduchi she's considerably cautious when I'm not around but once I group up with them again it seems she's letting her guard down. I need her to remain the same regardless of whether I'm around or not from here on out.

"..Can you hold it down from the front without running? Well I guess it's fine. While you're getting eaten I'll definitely finish it off. Relax and "rest in peace". If there's no other opinions then I agree with going as well. I don't want to see the earthworm but I'm sure everyone hasn't forgotten that magic stone right?"

"But, there's no guarantee it will be that earthworm again right...I think it's hasty to assume ahead of time.”

Oh~ Bel, good retort. That’s exactly true.

“Hn, certainly that’s true. We shouldn’t assume what it will be. However, I’ve already decided to proceed like this. Let’s go.”

I said that and started walking.

“Al-san. That’s not the right way. It’s this way.”

Gwine pointed to the opposite direction I started walking.
I’m so uncool.

.....

We arrived at the desert. Just in case, I think it’ll be pointless but I tried using {Detect.Life} and after all I couldn’t feel anything other than ourselves.

“It’s just probably but if it was the earthworm then it should be underground in the center of the room waiting to attack. Let’s go with {Trail One} here and walk along the wall.”

With me at the front, surrounding Bel and Miduchi who are good with magic in the middle, at the very end Zenom is glaring around, we line up in a single file and stepped foot along the wall of the desert going counter clockwise. Everyone, I’m sure last time still remains in their memory. They’re all keeping up with me while carefully trying not to make any sounds with their footsteps. And then, I think it was when we moved around 70–80 meters ahead, I felt something was off and stopped my feet. I had been looking in the center of the room but there’s nothing that’s particularly off.

Hmm. I’m certain there’s something here. I guess I feel uneasy because I don’t know what that is. But, isn’t that the same as the usual monster rooms..I guess not. It’s only been twice up until now where the identity of the room boss was unknown even after we entered the room. In the past, only the times I disintegrated the Vampire an instant and when we were attacked by the {Larva Purple Worm} here. Just because the opponent can’t be seen I feel this uneasy.

Thinking that, is when we proceeded another 20 meters or so ahead.

““It’s here!””

There were several warnings that called out at the same time.

Several small sails from the direction of the center of the room..They're fins!

【

【Female/1/12/7444.Sand Shark】

【State: Good】

【Age: 0 Years Old】

【Level: 6】

【HP: 90 MP: 1(1)】

【Strength: 10】

【Speed: 50】

【Dexterity: 5】

【Endurance: 10】

【Special Skill: Vibration.Sensing】

【Special Skill: Super Sense of Smell】

“{Wedge One}!”

I reflexively shouted while running off towards the fins. I'm sure that everyone is moving around behind me changing the formation to spread out like an umbrella.

While running I aimed towards the fin with the spell {Stone Light Catapult Missile} firing off 5 warheads. It's because I sensed that if they're in sand the damage won't pass through if I don't add enough power into it, but it seems this was correct.

When the five telephone poles stabbed into the ground near the fins running at the front sending sand flying all over, I saw the upper body of a shark.

“Sharks!”

Tori's warning rings out.

There's still plenty of fins remaining.

“Bel-San!??”

Miduchi is saying something to Bel in a fast pace. Save the talking for later and spread out in an umbrella formation already!

I make one after another small telephone poles and sent them flying from above aimed at the fins I can see, finishing them off. However, we're clearly outnumbered. Since they're moving through the sand I thought they would move at about the speed of an adult running like the {Larva Purple Worm} but it seems the {Sand Sharks} are a bit faster and even if we run they might overtake us at this speed.

You could say they're moving extremely fast. I managed to finish off four of them but there still seems to be over 10 of them remaining. They've already cut a distance of 30 meters from us. Around the size of a 25 meter pool I guess? If you take into consideration their speed they're right in front of us.

"I'll shoot the ground!"

Bel said that and an arrow stabbed into the sand about 20 meters ahead. The fin that was nearby changed directions towards that arrow. Another one jumped out of the sand and sent its 3 meter body flying into the air. I shot it to death with {Stone Javelin} not missing that chance. It was quickly shot from an arrow in a different direction as well. I was thinking it was Bel's excellent consecutive shot skill but it seems Miduchi is using the bow as well.

It seems that the Sand Sharks are gathering in that direction towards the arrow as well. I see now, that's good!

I finish off two in that direction using stone spears a swell.

"Everyone, don't move!"

Bel shouts while firing off another arrow.

After that it's just a matter of shooting seven more. Being shot by my stone spears the sharks are close to instantly dead but in the case they were living they started rampaging on the sand. A different shark jumps out of the sand attacking them. I calmly finished off the ones that occasionally came over here with a small telephone pole.

Shortly after we were able to finish off all of the Sand Sharks. While frowning after noticing there's somewhat the scent of ammonia floating around I ordered the slaves and Basutorial to gather the magic stones. During that time, the rest of the members are remaining cautious of every direction. The value of the magic stones was roughly 18,000 each. I guess it's around 120,000 — 130,000 (12–13 silver coins) if we sell them. There's a total of 21 of these. While the individual values don't reach those of ores it comes out reaching over 2 gold coins in no time at all. Amazing~

However, I thought it once again after noticing the three rows of teeth lined up in the sharks mouths but things were dangerous this time. If we weren't able to pull them away from our location with the bow, then it's definite that our party would have been attacked by over 10 sharks judging from their speed. It was most likely Miduchi's instruction but if it wasn't thanks to that then it wouldn't have been strange for there to have been a victim. Even if it doesn't go as far as death there might have been at least one person who had an arm or leg torn off.

Zenom said while frowning about as much as I was,

“So that's the so-called shark? But, I could have sworn sharks were something in the ocean...”

“..{Status Open}..It says they're Sand Sharks. Father, these seem to be sharks that live in sand.”

“Monsters huh? However, these teeth are quite amazing..”

“They're like a saw right..Ah, after all they're lined up rows of two and three..It's the same as the “Discovery Channel”. Zenom-san, these teeth break and chip pretty easily so the ones in back come out soon after to replace them it seems.”

“Ho~ Gwine sure knows quite a bit...Here like me look..This is amazing, if you were to get bitten from the head I'm sure there's no being saved..”

“Ah, the tooth came out. What's this, if you just tap it a bit with the axe and they break. I'll take some in commemoration~”

That doesn't really matter but everyone should be cautious of all directions you know...

After that, the passage we entered hit a dead end before going another 1 Km, and then when we returned and went down a different passage we arrived at the teleport room to the 8th floor.

.....

The time is just about noon. We were all eating our bento while talking in the safe area.

“I want to try looking at the 8th floor. After we rest how about taking a peek at it?”

Ralpa eats a sandwiches she’s holding in one hand while circling around the teleport crystal rod.

“Really, that’s bad manners.”

Gwine warns Ralpa while holding her sandwich in both hands and biting at it.

“The 8th floor huh..And, obviously, the monsters will get even stronger right?”

Basutorial joins the conversation while making some slightly withdrawn statements.

“N~ If we were to go off of all of the cases up until now that’s true..It would probably be best to think that way.”

Bel replied while drinking some tea.

And then, Miduchi start talking while drinking some tea as well.

“..Can I have your attention for a bit? I tried putting together the things I heard from everyone and thought about it for a bit but..this is just my consideration regarding the dungeon but in the rooms of the dungeon aren’t there monsters that are slightly more powerful than the ones you encounter in the halls? But, what I think is that, they only require being just a bit more careful than the monsters in the halls. However, it’s the same as with the earthworm from before but occasionally there’s clearly monsters with strength that far exceeds the rest of the monsters on that floor that appears.”

What about that~ We already know, something like that. We’ve explored the dungeon for several times longer than you after all.

“On the 1st floor there’s the huge leeches, Scavenger Crawler, spiders, and slimes right? On the 2nd floor including those the varieties increase by a bit more. Well putting aside the 1st and 2nd floors it’s said that the {Flesh Golem} appears on the 3rd floor, and on the 4th floor there's some kind of unknown undead..since it had fangs growing then I think it's a Vampire but...while I don't know the 5th floor yet on the 6th floor there was the Roper... Just from what I've heard the {Flesh Golem} clearly has abilities that exceed those of the other room bosses on the 3rd floor and the vampire on the 4th floor is clearly an opponent that it wouldn't be strange to be wiped out by. The Roper was a considerably power enemy as well. Furthermore, the {Larva Purple Worm} from the 7th floor the other day has {Larva} in it's name so it should still be something like a child larva. Normally {Purple Worms} are absurdly strong monsters. Quite literally a special, monster on the level that can wipe out towns."

Everyone is taken back as we listen to Miduchi's words.

"We can guess from this that very rarely there's a frighteningly strong monster that appears as a boss in the rooms of this Baldukk. I think it would be fine to take a look at the 8th floor but I think it would be safer after we can easily defeat the room bosses on the 7th floor first."

Hearing that, I thought, I see, certainly that's true.

"..Certainly, it might be just as Miduchi says. Other parties don't have Al. Putting aside the {Golem}, if the other guys didn't have a decisive hand like Al's magic then just as Miduchi said it wouldn't be strange for them to have been wiped out."

Zenom said while crossing his legs and arms on the ground.

"Just think back to it. If Al wasn't around then we would have been wiped out countless times."

"..Certainly, that's true..And if we weren't taught magic and trained, putting aside Miduchi-san, none of us would be able to use magic still.. I guess it's worth thinking about before was rush ahead.."

It's just as Toris said just now, the members of the {Slaughterers} have a reasonable amount of individual skill built up but that's because they were able to survive various experiences. Even though they've leveled up and their ability values have gone up reasonably along with that, the ability values I can see with Identify can't completely be depended on. They're decent as a method to measure ability but I don't think it applies to reincarnated people.

It's just as I realized the other day, it seems like most people aren't making full use of their ability values. Like when a weak old woman carries out paulownia wood chest of drawers that was her wedding gift during a fire it's something like the upper limit for the super strength you can display during a fire. It should be just as I've somewhat predicted since I was a child. The reason why my Endurance value has only increased by 2 points up until now is probably because the value I can see with Identify was too high compared to the amount of stamina and endurance I've actually built up from training so it wasn't that easy to increase.

I thought back for a bit here. In the past, when I was still in Bakuddo. When I first started running my Endurance just didn't seem like it would increase. Obviously, I didn't start running back then because I was hoping my Endurance would increase. I just started it simply to train my body. Using spells while running as well was just a side benefit as well and wasn't the original objective either. It was then, Mill who started running a while after me had an increase in her Endurance before me.

There's no way I can remember all the details of Mill's level and individual abilities back then but I know my level was higher. Adding to that since I'm a reincarnated person my ability values should have increased three times more than Mill.

If we think of the ability values I can see with Identify as X. And then, we use Y as the value that can actually be used. Putting aside the actual amount of X — Y for now, for the time being let's think of that as Z. In the case of Mill and I, my Z value should have been higher than Mill's. Through running Y increases a bit at a time but only when Y finally exceeds X, I wonder if that's when the value of X finally increases? Through training the value of my X has increased by 2 points in the past. When was it that the 2nd point was increased? I feel like it was last year though. By that point my level was already considerably high and along with that my X value should have been high as well. I'm sure this value can't be increased with just an ordinary amount of training.

I don't think it would take very much time for a person that requires 8 hours to run a full marathon to shorten that to 5 hours. Even when it comes to reducing that to 3 hours if they can get their stamina, or rather Endurance value to that of a track and field runner at the high school level. I can understand things get difficult from there. Most adult males can lift around 60kg when bench pressing. It shouldn't take all that much time to get that to 90kg as well. If they just do an appropriate amount of training anyone should be able to do it. It's 1.5 times the previous. However, when it comes to double that 120kg, and then going even further to 150kg or so then I'm sure it would be considerably difficult without training your muscles in a special way.

It seems that the world record exceeded 400kg but putting aside those absurd levels there were countless people who could do over 150kg in the JSDF. Even I was able to do about that much. If we were to try taking the example of the old woman from just now then it's possible that the JSDF's Y is higher than an old woman's X. I don't think there's even any comparison to the X of members of the JSDF. Since it seems that muscle gets stronger in proportion to the product of the cross-section, I'm sure that's the case. And, in that case the increases to X that come from leveling up should eventually reach a limit I guess.

Just, in the case of Orth, there shouldn't be any {humans} at all. Since humans aren't {humans} so I can't deny the possibility that my way of thinking is incorrect as well. I can't even imagine what kind of values Miki would have if I identified a {Demi-God} like her. They might be unexpectedly normal.

While I was thinking with my arms crossed, I noticed that everyone was paying attention to me all of a sudden so I scratched my head. Sorry about that, I was thinking about something completely different.

"I'll say it honestly. I don't want to let even a single person die. That's why I have no intention of overdoing things. I think it would be good to take Miduchi's opinion into consideration. Until we can determine that our abilities have gotten to a reasonable level, we shouldn't go to the the next floor. Alright?"

I looked at Ralpa while saying since she's the most likely to act on it. Ralpa had come over to where we were before I realized, was sitting cross legged with her arms behind her head while swaying back and forth balancing on her ass.

She's quite skillful.

"N..Yeah. If Al is going to say that, then I got it."

"Oh? Ral. Did you eat something strange? Isn't that obedient of you."

No, Ralpha is considerably obedient. Don't tease her too much. Rather than that, when you're fixing your chest protector for the bow could you please pay a bit more attention to your surroundings? It's difficult to force my eyes from going in that direction.

It would be too late for regrets if we push ourselves and someone gets seriously injured or dies. Of course I want to look at the 8th floor as well. In the past it should be scenery that, Minamoyo no Yoshitsune, otherwise known as George Rombert the First and his allies had only seen. Since it seems that in the past the first knight group managed to investigate up to the 7th floor. I think we need to at least be able to exceed the 8th floor and make it to the 9th floor.

Eh? I mean, if that isn't the case then there's no way I can exceed George Rombert the First right? Things like proof don't matter at all. It's fine as long as it remains in the hearts of me and everyone else. If we can just manage that, then no matter what kind of harsh situations we experience in the future we can deal with them with confidence right?

In the afternoon let's try exploring beyond the other entrances from this teleport room. We might be able to get to a different monster room.

Chapter 175: Simple Honesty

Year 7445, Month 1, Day 22

Yesterday we returned from the dungeon. Since we teleported into a passage with a lot of ogres in it yesterday we ended up having to explore until quite late. But, thanks to that we were able to set a new record of 34 ogres in one day so while everyone tired myself included we were feeling quite good. Although, after we returned to the surface I ate some food and then went right to sleep. Furthermore, the goblins that appear here and there are just a waste of time so we just ignore their corpses without gathering their magic stones.

In any case I guess the fatigue has built up I ended up oversleeping a bit this morning. When I finished my preparations to go running and appeared in front of “Boil Manor” and the sky was already turning red (since there’s still the outer crater the sun isn’t visible yet), and only the two slaves and Basutorial were waiting. Basutorial seemed to be more exhausted than anyone else but it seems he woke up through sheer guts.

Soon after everyone appeared so after we went running, I called out Zenom and Giberuti and we all went to a restaurant called “Mensato” for breakfast. They have some delicious diced olives that are pickled in olive oil and salt. If you add a small amount of mayonnaise with that to some bread with vegetables and ham on it and it somehow becomes an extravagant sandwich.

These diced olives pickled in oil aren’t sold anywhere. Giberuti has been giving it best to reproduce them but it seems that due to problems with the amount of salt and time pickled he still hasn’t succeeded. Giberuti trying to ask the owner of a restaurant the recipe is something commonly seen for the {Slaughterers} but since it’s how they make their living they aren’t willing to teach it so simply. After all it’s this store’s specialty. I guess that means if you want to eat it then you have to come to the restaurant.

After eating breakfast and relaxing for a bit we went to sell all of the magic stones we earned in the dungeon this time. Since we didn’t make it back until late last night we ended up eating and falling asleep without selling them.

When we sold 62 ogre and 21 sand shark magic stones it exceeded 52,000,000 Z (52 gold coins) by just a bit.

All of the members other than Basutorial get 1 gold coin and 4 silver coins, I give Basutorial half that amount 2 gold Shu and 2 silver coins. Since it's only been a bit over a month since he joined the {Slaughterers} and in just entering the dungeon a mere three times he's made a bit over 1.5 gold coins in compensation Basutorial was greatly pleased.

Since he seems to have been the guitar and vocalist in an indie band in his previous life, the way he's diligent betrayed my expectations based on that sort of image in a good way. Since we've still only been together for about a month I can't lightly come to a conclusion but at the very least as far as I know he's using all of his spare time to practice writing and with the spear independently. It seems the details themselves were taught by Gwine but while it's just the basics he's repeating the same forms without getting bored. I think it was during a day off just before the day of judgement, I tried asking him.

"Hey~ Basutorial. You might be bored from just continuing the same forms but when you're thrusting you shouldn't just look at the end of the spear. Even if it's vaguely you should look at the entirety of your assumed enemy. Wouldn't it suck if they threw the weapon in their hands at you in desperation?"

He was a bit surprised when I suddenly called out to him during training but he quickly turned around to me and after standing his wooden training spear on the ground with his right hand Basutorial said this.

"Ah, Al-san. I see now, looking at the entirety of the opponent is it...However, I'm not bored of it. It's the same as the {guitar}. In the past, I think it was when I was still a middle school student, I went to a guitar class in the music class. The teacher of that class was good at teaching but their reputation wasn't very good. Why do you think it was?"

"No, I have no idea~"

"Normally they teach you how to play one or two simple songs after teaching you the most fundamental basics but that teacher was the type that taught the basics thoroughly. The average six string guitar, if you include the difficult ones has 187 types of chords but among those 84 types are said to be the fundamental ones. The teacher wouldn't let us play any songs until we could remember all of those 84 fundamental types. That sort of thing is boring or isn't that unreasonable? That's why that teacher wasn't very popular. Since there was a different guitar teacher in that class, once one student switched to that teacher and in no time at all almost everyone switched over there."

"Hn, well I'm sure that's true. I can somehow understand their feelings."

"Yeah, that's right. And, I hesitated on what I should but in the end I went to the class intending to change teachers. I went to the class just a bit early intending to tell the office worker that I intended to change classes but it was at that time, it was by chance but I could hear a tremendously skilled guitar. And, I ended up saying to the office worker. I want to learn from the person playing that guitar."

"Ah, I've read the ending. That extremely skilled person was the unpopular teacher right?"

"That's right. After that I, gave it my best practicing and listening to what the teacher said. Originally I didn't have much talent at all but even then the reason I was able to reach the level where I could put out CDs with the band was thanks to that teacher. The only one who was scouted by pros in the band was just me as well. Well, in that regards I turned the offer down because I liked the other band members though. That's why I don't cut corners in practicing the basics."

"Hmn, I see."

"Yeah, that's why until I get a passing grade from Gwine-san I intend to just keep practicing the movement and form from thrusting then switching to defense. According to Gwine-san if you can just do this perfectly then it's possible to continue taking on one monster without dying.."

Hearing this story I changed my opinion of Basutorial just a bit. Rather than trying to attack the opponent just focusing on defense to earn time. You can just leave attacking to someone else until you get used to it. Those who can accept this from the start, or rather, can actually manage it won't die so easily. If you can manage not to die then you'll gradually gain more combat experience. It's not just the number, you'll gain real experience. Even in my case, even though I was higher level than the average squire when I first faced off against a Horned Bear I got nervous.

In any case, it's certain that for Basutorial to go on living and get his hands on money the fastest route is for him to be with us. I'll show you what it's like earning several 1,000,000 Z in a matter of months. During the afternoon training I'll teach you until you can't stand.

.....

Year 7445, Month 1, Day 23

{Sun Ray} hasn't particularly made any actions since then, after that the only recent thing that I've been interested in is about Faruergaz and the others. It seems that since last week around the start of the year near they've finally started challenging the dungeon again. They listened to my warnings and bought various things. Some combat slaves were included in that as well. Two huge Laios who are larger than Zulu. Just from what I heard it seems the price was blown up to 9,000,000 Z each at Ronslail's store.

I don't know how much those two have in assets but including the equipment for those slaves it should have exceeded 20,000,000 Z. If I were to match it to my situation when I bought Zulu then it would mean they have total assets equaling around 40,000,000 Z. As expected of a wealthy Count. Well that elf madam still has a good eye for slaves so her business is still proper.

If that madam charged them 9,000,000 Z then there's no mistake to think the values were at least around 7,000,000 or 8,000,000 Z. Recently it seems she's dealt in an even larger number of combat slaves so I'm sure her eye for selecting them has gotten even more polished, and I think she can be trusted at least that much.

Today, when I was eating lunch with Miduchi when Faruergaz and Hirosukol appeared with two huge men following them I was a bit surprised. I heard at that time though. It seems they're properly hiring a guide and entering the dungeon with a total of 7 of them and exploring from morning to night, they were pleased they even managed to earn a whole 1,300,000 Z. Although, that 1,300,000 Z was something they obtained after defeating a Black Gargantuan Leech that was on the verge of death in a monster room and got from the corpses of adventurers who had died previously but it's still splendid.

Though I say that, 100,000 on the guide cost, and then 1/7 of that 1,300,000 being split up evenly between them evenly so 190,000, for a total of 290,000 Z must have been paid to the guide. If they split up the remaining amount between the four of them excluding the slaves then it's 250,000 per person. Yeah, that's plenty. It's quite something. However, in the case that they didn't find any items, the guide would have cost around 140,000 — 150,000, and the remaining four would have had to split up about 40,000. Even with that they should last a week without luxury. It should be plenty.

It seems the only ones injured were one of the slaves and either Ruttsu or Kumiru for a total of two of them. It seems that their injuries weren't anything serious so in another 3–4 days if they determine there's no problem they intend to enter the dungeon again. Also, it seems they've heard rumors of us {Slaughterers} from all over the place, so while they were showing admiration for our results and strength they also heard various things about our behavior from restaurants and bars so they were also looking down on us over that.

It was about fights that we've gotten into in the past and all of the ones started from our end were by Ralpa but if I were to try and explain that it would just sound like an excuse or pushing all of the blame on a woman and I'm sure they would say something like that so I just covered it up with a bitter smile. Although, it's not like Ralpa has intentionally picked a fight on her own even once. Usually they're talking bad that she can hear and she throws some tableware or something at that level. Everything after that is blown up by the opponent.

Particularly for the short while after Bel joined us.. things got pretty bad. That continued for about a year until we were able to make it to the 4th floor. After that along with our nickname I guess our abilities were recognized, but the number of people who picked fights with us decreased quite a bit. Recently it's quite peaceful. Around once in every couple of months some of the newcomers to Baldukk will come to greet us but for the most part no one picks any fights.

.....

Year 7445, Month 1, Day 24

After eating breakfast, I skipped over lunch and continued practicing the spell {Transmute.Rock.To.Mud} in the forest of the outer crater until dinner. Since I put in quite a bit of effort I was even able to practice it four times today. When I went to dinner because I had spent too much time concentrating practicing my eyes were collapsing and the capillaries in various places on my body were rupturing so I had to use healing magic to fix it before going but no one ended up being suspicious of it.

During the time I was training with magic, Miduchi was nearby using {Summon.Insect} to summon a bee or using {Inspect.Plague} to summon a swarm of over 1,000 cockroaches and screaming it seems but I didn't notice at all. Even if I'm cursed at as heartless, I don't care.

In preparation for exploring the dungeon tomorrow, after checking my equipment I went right to sleep.

.....

Year 7445, Month 1, Day 25

Just before daybreak we're at the entrance plaza about to enter the dungeon. Since the entrance plaza is packed, it was just as we were all about to line up together and head towards the entrance. Some cheers appeared from the building around the entrance of the dungeon. It seems one of the prominent parties returned.

"Hey, is that, Rozewera?"

"Aren't they completely tattered~"

"Huh? Their number seems to have decreased a bit, one..two..three..Eight people huh? It seems they were done in."

"That guy, when they entered before there was nine of them. I guess another one of them was done in again?"

"That seems to be the case. It's huge damage. Serves him~ right. He's just a second-rate adventurer after all."

"Ke..Putting yourself on the shelf and speaking badly over one of the pioneers is unsightly~"

"Ah!? What was that this bastard, are you picking a fight with me? O?"

"Even in that case, what's with that number of swords and spears."

“It seems like they hit the jackpot. I guess you could say it’s only as expected from Rozewera.”

Amazing~ The number of weapons the slaves are carrying seems like it exceeds 20 peoples worth. The condition doesn’t look all that bad either. Though they don’t look good either. But there’s no mistake it’s a huge profit. If it’s that much then even after losing one slave he should still be in the black.

“Oh! That’s a gold ore! Ama..amazing~!”

“Hmph, if it’s that size then the purity of the gold will be limited.”

“Limited you say...Then have you found something of that size before?”

“Never. Never have but I’m always watching from here so I can tell. That’s a limited amount.”

“Ha...So you were just one of those amateurs who doesn’t even enter the dungeon. Shut your mouth.”

“Fu..If you watch the adventurers who pass through here every day like I do then it’s perfect for image training.”

“Then wouldn’t it be fine for you to go to the dungeon and actually earn something?”

“If you reach my level of veteran watching then crawling around in the dirty dungeon just seems foolish and there’s no need to do it.”

“You..Aren’t you embarrassed saying that...”

“Why? I have a proper job as well so it’s fine as long as I can enjoy myself complaining about adventurers.”

“I’m at best wandering around the 2nd and 3rd floors, but you’re the worse..”

“What the, I thought I didn’t recognize your face but you were just a trash adventurer who can’t even make it as second-rate huh? Don’t call out to me until you’ve at least made it to Rozewela’s level.”

“No, I never called out to you in the first place..”

I don’t know if Rozewela gave the order to one of his slaves but they pulled out the gold ore they seemed to have found in the dungeon and held it up high. Just from identifying it at a glance the value was close to 1,800,000. I’m sure it’ll sell for at least 18,000,000. It’s not just a limited amount but has quite the decent value. I wonder if they fought a room boss in order to get their hands on that and the equipment? If they sacrificed one person in order to get their hands on that much then there's not much more to say I'm sure.

I turned around and after signaling towards the entrance with my jaw, started walking.

The same as usual Angela and I teamed up and the remaining 9 all advanced together through the 1st floor. Angela and Zulu switched places at the teleport room on the 1st floor and after clearing the 2nd floor they switched places again for the 3rd floor.

.....

Year 7445, Month 1, Day 29

Since yesterday we've been fighting against the ogres that wander the 7th floor like crazy. Though I say that, it's just the same as usual, is what it might sound like but only half of that is true and the other half is different. The ogres that we encounter in the passages on the 7th floor are let alone one stage higher, they're four or five times more powerful than the monsters up until now.

If we properly fight them without using paralysis poison then they're considerably strong and if you just take into consideration their individual combat strength they're not all that different from the room bosses on the 5th and 6th floors. The only monsters that rival these in strength other than the special ones would be the Frost Lizard on the 5th floor or the group of Quad-Handed Apes on the 6th floor.

Monsters of that strength are coming out in groups of 4–5 at a time occasionally (normally it's most often 1–3 at a time). We're gaining way more experience than the occasional fight against bosses on the 5th or 6th floors. Just in case, I have everyone carrying around paralysis poison but I've forbidden use of it. No matter how heavy of an injury they sustain I'll definitely fix it for them so fight head on. This sort of reckless and forceful order wouldn't work for any other party than the {Slaughterers} who know my mana amount and spells are outrageously high.

Even if they're seriously injured as long as it's not considerably heavy if they didn't know that something like that could be healed completely including the pain, within an hour through the repeated use of high level healing spells then there's no way they could accept it.

And I guess it's since they saw the ice from close to my full power once. They might have some sort of sense of relief in knowing that if the situation got truly dangerous I could just freeze everything in a large block of ice in an instant and after that just erase the ice around our allies, so even in the worst case death is unlikely.

In any case, something like wiping out the weak monsters on the 5th and 6th floors that aren't worth much in hopes of finding a magic tool or weapon that is far more unlikely to appear, everyone has gotten sick of just wandering around that sort of dark dungeon.

Everyone's opinion was the same that it's far easier to fight on the vast and bright 7th floor against ogres where they can feel they're earning more from just magic stones. There's no particular basis for it but I already declared that our objective is to clear through a group of ogres while using no paralysis poison and with me only finishing off one or two of them.

I said that only after we can manage that will we start exploring the 8th floor and made them accept getting used to combat against ogres on the 7th floor. Since it's something that is reasonably dangerous, I thought there might be some firm opinions against it but I was relieved that they accepted it surprisingly easy.

"It's not like it's completely impossible right now so I'm sure we'll become able to do it. Just before Toris and I defeated one without the paralysis poison together after all."

I guess it helped in getting everyone to accepted it that Bel calmly said that. She's probably remember the last time we entered the dungeon and defeated a total of 34 ogres. We encountered a strangely high amount of ogres that day and in just the morning defeated 15 of them. After we ran out of more than half of our paralysis poison, in order to proceed as safely as possible we started returning back down the way we came and then 5 more ogres appeared from a different direction, we ended up being forced to take a detour on our way back.

It's not like I can use {Detect.Life} all the time so it's difficult to completely prevent being ambushed. I might not have mentioned it yet but the spell {Detect.Life} only lets you comprehend the situation in the instant you use it so it's best to use periodically but it's not as easy to do something that might just end up being a waste of mana.

Even if I was the one using it once every 10 seconds I'd run completely out of mana in 2 hours. In the first place concentrating to use the same spell once every 10 seconds is impossible though. I have plenty of mana but my mentality and guts wouldn't last so I'd fall over in about 20 minutes I'm sure. Though it's not problem if it's just for a short period.

In any case, while advancing down a path that should combine up with the others we encountered quite a few ogres. And then, by the time we finally grouped up, we encountered another group of ogres. That group was 4 ogres. The only remaining paralysis poison was a small amount Angela had. It was an amount that would run out after using it one just one more.

Since it couldn't be helped I finished off one of them at the start with my magic, then another one while they were on the way to us, so I ended up finishing off a total of two of them. The remaining 9 people took on the remaining two ogres but her shield was blown away by an angry ogre swinging it's clubs and at the same time Angela's waist ended up breaking so while healing her I had to be on her side. In order to protect Angela and I there was Zenom and Miduchi, Zulu and Ralpha kept the ogre in check, and Gwine and Basutorial finished it off but the remaining ogres was taken on by just Toris and Bel.

In the end Angela was the only one injured that time but since we had run out of paralysis poison we struggled quite a bit. I think the amount of time spent in combat including the initial surprise attack was only about 2 minutes but for a long period of over 1 minute Toris parried an ogres attacks unharmed with a sword and shield.

Well even if that hadn't happened there was similar situations which occurred in the past so since it's not a completely impossible objective everyone nodded to it.

In any case we're killing ogres like crazy on the 7th floor until we can achieve that objective. I'm sure we'll get injured like the time when we first entered the dungeon of Baldukk. However, I no longer think it's necessary to hold back in using my mana at this point so we should be able to manage it sooner or later.

That time will be when we can truly exceed the founding hero George Rombert the First, get our hands on a massive fortune, and when I can make my own country.

Chapter 176: Return to Thinking

Year 7445, Month 2, Day 9

We start entering the dungeon again tomorrow. It was after we finished running and everyone was eating breakfast together. A face I knew appeared in the restaurant. It's a man in his 30s who is a part of {Sun Ray} and uses the round shield and battle mace in the front line, Harukein.Fumizu.

Fumizu slowly looked around inside and while I was protecting my food from Ralpa who already finished hers, he came up to my side and started talking to me. Can't you tell just from looking~ I'm busy right now.

"Umm, Greed-san. Would it be alright if I could speak with you for a bit?"

"Ah, Yeah, what is it?"

It's already fine, you can have it...That, since it's some sort of specialty egg with red yolks that are from something-or-other village in the North of the capital which gives chickens a special kind of feed, I wanted to eat it but it's too embarrassing to be seen going so far to protect just a single egg in front of strangers so I gave it up to Ralpa.

"That is, I'll get right to the point and ask. I've heard that the {Slaughterers} are looking for a combat slave who can use the shield. I'm not a slave but could I be of any use to you?"

Since this guys level is 17, it's possible the spell {Charm.Person} would fail. It's probably impossible to ask his true intentions.

"We're already fumph"

Before I could reply Ralpa replied. What are you doing replying on all your own this stink bug. I smacked Ralpa a good one in the back of her head with my right hand and the egg that was in his mouth flew out. I caught that with my left hand after placing that on the plate in front of her I started to reply. So it wasn't soft-boiled. I prefer soft-boiled thought.

"Umm, you're a member of {Sun Ray} right? I'd prefer not to get involved in any disputes.”

The glutton that is Ralpa is putting the half eaten egg back that flew out back into her mouth again.

“Ah, please excuse me. I’m Harukein.Fumizu from {Sun Ray}. If you’re willing to make use of me then I’ll notify {Sun Ray} that I’m quitting from today on.”

These guys {Sun Ray} don’t use rude tones of speech while looking down on us thinking we’re brats. On that end it’s something that can’t be seen very often among the crude people of Orth so I think it’s good point I can honestly praise them over. Well, we did find and save two of their allies and we’re letting them use the shower room on the 5th floor so I’m sure even then they can’t treat us so easily.

“You’ll quit..Is that so...However, it would be a problem if we were to be criticized for stealing members so you already understand that we can’t just accept that right?”

It’s only obvious but there’s no regulations or penalties for stealing other party members between adventurers in Baldukk. However, while it’s only obvious people still hold interest in it. Particularly when it’s members of the top teams or when members of those end up switching to a different party it’s a topic that is popular among adventurers right away. Forcibly stealing members is technically possible but there’s no way it would look good in terms of reputation.

“Of course I already know that. A number of our younger members in {Sun Ray} admire the {Slaughterers}. I can’t exactly be called young but even then I want to enter the dungeon with a party that can earn more. It’s weird saying this myself but I still won’t lose to the average person around there.”

I’m sure that’s the case. Even though you’re a lot younger than Zenom your level is already at 17. And there’s no way someone lacking in skill would be able to manage the front line of a party in one of the top teams. In the first place, even if {Sun Ray} puts most of their money towards offerings, you’re still receiving a considerably amount of compensation right?

“However you know. We’ve already reached the limit with our number of members. Well before even something like that, it's necessary for Rindobel-san to officially recognize your withdrawal. If that's not the case then I have no intention of discussing this at all."

Everyone has stopped eating and is concentrating on Fumizu and I. Everyone clearly has the expression, "This guy, he's suspicious" on their face. Yeah, I already get that. I think he's suspicious as well.

"In regards to the methods for splitting up our portions, we had some differences in opinion over it around two years ago. It's been about three years since I entered {Sun Ray} as well. I've already gained the necessary level of skill to earn in the dungeon, it would have been fine to go off on my own as well though...Somehow I don't have any confidence, that's why I put my eyes on the {Slaughterers} who are rumored to be the ones earning the most right now."

Honestly speaking in some meanings I get a favorable impression from the things he's saying. However, if he's come to investigate our internal situation or intends to try and collapse us from inside then I'd prefer to just finish up the conversation with this guy and forget already. But, if he intended to slip into our group then I think he would use a reason that's more like that but...I wonder if it's camouflage?

"..I have no interest in what methods {Sun Ray} uses to split up their compensation. Even if you were more skilled than any of us, we have our own rules and I have no intention of treating just you specially as well...If you don't first finish talking about things with Rindobel-san then I have no intention of taking your entry into consideration and honestly speaking, even if you were to suddenly try to join our group right now I can't give you an immediate response."

Even after hearing my response Fumizu didn't show any sort of disappointment on his face. I'm sure he predicted it to some extent.

"I understand. I'll take my leave for today. Please excuse me while you were in the middle of your meal."

He said that, turned around and left the restaurant.

"So they came to attack from head on.."

Zenom said while eating some cabbage (since there's no proper seasoning it's extremely disgusting. However Zenom prefers to eat it).

“Attack..There's no way anyone would let them in like that right..”

Bel said while dipping her egg into a small dish of mayonnaise. Eat it with salt. I wonder if the oil from the mayonnaise will be absorbed by her breasts?

“For starters I guess they were testing if we'd happily let them join at that level.”

Miduchi added while putting some dried meineiji on bread with mayonnaise. I should have picked that menu this morning as well. It looks delicious.

“I guess that means, another second and third hopeful will come to join us from {Sun Ray} then?”

Toris said like cutting up the egg with a knife and putting it on bread with some mayonnaise. No matter how I look it they're all even slices. Couldn't this guy make it in the restaurant business? Rather~ use your MP in more useful ways. Well it's fine though.

“Well, it's probably a trap so wouldn't it be fine to just refuse and ignore them all?”

It seems Gwine doesn't have any interest. She's busy moving cooked beans from the large plate on to her small plate.

“I don't really get it, so I'll leave it to you all.”

Basutorial abandoned thinking about it in the first place. Rather than that, I want to tell him to stop crying from how moved he is every time we eat. We've already been eating like this for over a month right?

“Hey, that bacon, if you're not going to eat it then give it to me.”

Before even waiting for my reply she reaches for the thick cut bacon on the plate in front of me. I won't hand it over. Rather~ learn from Zulu and Angela a bit. They're properly eating without a single complaint on way less wages than you. Though it's also a fact that I'm handing over more than plenty an amount to just eat. If you want to eat then order more yourself, seriously...

“Why are you such a glutton? I want to see the face of your paren..”

Zenom was looking apologetically at the edge of the table. I didn't say it with that sort of intention.
It's a figure of speech.

From the other side of Ralpa who is next to me, Miduchi placed a sandwich with meineiji on it in front of Ralpa. She made a slightly surprised face but soon after took a bite and made a meaningful smile.

Stop being such a glutton already.
Can't you at least say a single word of gratitude?
And also that Dyurou over there.
You need to stop spoiling her so much as well.

Come to think of it, we haven't even tried it lately but I wonder if she was able to use {Party-ization} on her yet? It doesn't particularly matter even if she can't though.

.....

Afternoon, after Miduchi and I finished our magic training, on our way through the town of Baldukk towards the inn, we caught sight of Giberuti buying food for when we enter the dungeon tomorrow. Since I also give Giberuti money for buying ingredients and seasonings together with his wages we occasionally catch sight of him like this.

It seems he's buying pork and chicken at the butcher. Suddenly I glanced at the butcher and they were selling meat from the Matte Turtle as well. The Matte Turtle is not quite the size of a giant tortoise but a considerably large turtle. It seems if you go a bit further to the North then they're wandering around in the fields. They're delicious regardless of whether you boil or bake them. I've eaten snapping turtle a number of times in my previous live but it might be easier to say it's like that if you reduce the gelatin texture from it.

In any case, since it requires a reasonable amount of preparation they cost a considerable amount. It seems they also eat them occasionally in large caravans by packing a couple of them in the back of a carriage. Since they can stay alive even without eating for a long period of time they're considered good portable food for a source of fresh meat at anytime.

It seems there's been many who challenged turning them into livestock since the distant past but in the end they're reptiles. It seems they bite off the fingers of their breeders, they have no idea what to feed them, so they're basically treated as bonus characters that you can occasionally catch off guard wandering around in fields and capture.

Regardless they're unusual to find lined up in a butcher of Baldukk...And also, while we're exploring the dungeon this time we reincarnated people have our birthday coming up. This should be where I splurge a bit.

"Ah, master. I thought of buying a bit of extra meat this time.."

"Yeah, I guess so. Giberuti, the pork is fine this time so buy Matte Turtle instead for that portion...Here, it's fine even if you buy a bit more than usual."

I said that while handing Giberuti a bit of money and had him change the order.

"Oh~ I wanted to try using this once! Please look forward to the meals this time."

"Ah, I guess so..Yeah, I'm looking forward to it. Let me eat something delicious."

"Yeah, of course. Since everyone says they only have meals to look forward to in the dungeon. It's worthwhile showing my skill."

Well, I guess so. I guess that is true. About the only other enjoyable things to do other than eat is calculating what the magic stones will sell for when we get our hands on a magic tool or something and rather than calling that something that is enjoyable it's more something that feels enjoyable. Well if I just leave the meals to Giberuti then there's nothing to worry about.

We split up from Giberuti and started towards the inn again.

A familiar face is walking towards us from the front. It's Faruergaz, Hirosukol and their two slaves. It seems they're out shopping as well. Come to think of it when I talked to them the other day, they said they were entering the dungeon once more at the start of this month.

And even though I say that when they entered that time it seems they only made 240,000 Z and after paying the guide fees they were in the red(100,000 for the guide, 70,000 for the entry tax, then 10,000 for the guide's share and splitting up the remaining amount between the four of them it's a mere 15,000. Since I'm sure they have to pay the wages for their slaves as well, they must have been deep in the red), so they were saying they wouldn't hire a guide anymore.

When they noticed us they nodded so we nodded back as well.

Well give it your best experiencing some hardship without dying. Learn with what kind of feelings the adventurers of Baldukk are earning their money, how they're trying to avoid danger, and why it's difficult to earn money through magic stones by feeling it directly. In addition, I think it would be best if you learn that a cool word like adventurer is just another name for crude vagabonds as well. I don't really get why but it seems like the two of you have some sort of admiration for the word adventurer.

Putting aside financially, I didn't have enough mental leeway to afford failing in the dungeon. I think you all have a pretty good starting environment for entering Baldukk as adventurers.

For starters, it might be the biggest advantage that you have someone like me who can give you advice. Give it your best.

We returned to Boil Manor and after taking a shower, changing, and relaxing for a bit we went to eat dinner.

.....

Year 7445, Month 2, Day 10

After the night passed the sky of the next day had an unpleasant light rain to it. The light rain falls almost like fog and it's extremely unpleasant. It's best to just quickly escape into the dungeon during times like these, and just like that we {Slaughterers} headed towards the entrance plaza at a quick pace. It was when we were walking through the plaza towards the building that covers the entrance of the dungeon.

"Hn?" "Gun?"

While the {Slaughterers} were walking in the so-called top team arrangement passing through as we do, I heard a surprised voice. I reflexively turned over there and Faruergaz, Hirosukol and their slaves were all fully equipped. I guess they're waiting for Kumiru and Ruttsu. I can't find them.

"Hey, is that a "Gun"? Ah, no, it's not. Please excuse my rudeness."

Hirosukol stared at the bayonet strapped on my shoulder with his eyes opened wide in surprise.

"It's just shaped like that. I'm just using it while remembering the time I was in the SDF."

"U..Ah, I see. So you were in the SDF.."

"In the past, it was for just a few years though. Well then.."

I said that and faced back to the front, then stepped foot into the dungeon.

.....

That night, when it came time to sleep in the teleport room on the 3rd floor, I thought about the nostalgic and surprised face Hirosukol and Faruergaz made when they saw my Type-64 rifle and probably remembered Japan from before we reincarnated.

I wonder why they looked up to something like being an adventurer? Is it because they're mentally young? Of course I can't deny that but there might be some other reason as well. They received investiture as knights in County Faruergaz's territory, the so-called elites of Orth. If you think about it with common sense adventurers...particularly picking the job of an adventurer who enters the dungeon isn't really normal.

It's certainly true that the adventurers of Baldukk occasionally make a huge profit but fundamentally they're always running out of money. They drink cheap alcohol in cheap bars, sleep with prostitutes who are either way too young or old in brothels that only cost 1–2 large copper coins a night. The tip of the iceberg is that more than half of the adventurers will one day die to monsters deep in the dungeon. It's a harsh world where only a handful of those could be thought to have succeeded.

If you just want to live normally then rather than something like entering the dungeon, you could say living as the usual handyman adventurer is far better.

The adventurers who challenge the dungeon in Baldukk usually either have some sort of reason they need to get their hands on a fortune, they're young and reckless, or while these make up the majority and regardless of whether they actually meet up to it, they have confidence in their abilities. Even in my case, though I'm a reincarnated person if I were to learn reality and didn't have as much mana as I do then I probably would have lost interest in challenging it as well. I probably would have just taken the long and plain route of saving up and earning through doing business.

However, reincarnated people have the knowledge they're born with, the thought process which uses that as a foundation, and an excellent growth rate to their physical body. Having knowledge is a tremendous weapon. First off, since we have the thought process backed up by our knowledge our imagination is like comparing heaven and earth to the normal people on Orth. Even if we just had this it's enough to say we've already won in our new lives.

There should have been times when all of the people around us looked like idiots and fools. It's only obvious. We reincarnated people know a variety of convenient tools and we also have the knowledge we've learned on the theories of how those work. Since we lived lives in an advanced civilization and culture among those. Ah, putting aside civilization, I guess I can't say all of culture was advanced huh?

Also, we've received a high level of education that is not even worth comparing to that of Orth and we can naturally make that our own. We should have even learned a lot about the history of Earth in the past. Precisely because we have the knowledge we can imagine things and that makes it possible to challenge new things with some level of confidence. In a society with civilization and culture at the level of the 10th century you could say our thought processes and ways of thinking are certainly a foreign body.

If you maintain yourself without being pulled along into the drift and patiently continue without giving up then it would be stranger not to succeed. I mean everyone around us hasn't even received an education on the level of elementary schoolers after all. Occasionally there's some abnormally superior people who come along are called heroes and found countries.

However, if a modern day Japanese high schooler or university student were to be reincarnated as an eldest son from the Kamisugi or Takeda families during the warring states era then I'm sure they "were willing" to do it then it might even be possible for them to exceed Oda Nobunaga who was said to be a child prodigy. Rather, they would probably just try to wipe him out first before he has a chance to stand out. Ah, I guess this is different. It's a matter of whether or not you know history.

Well, even if you don't know if you remain reasonably cautious and gather information, then they should eventually be able to figure out they're in the same era as the individual called Oda Nobunaga who introduces a number of advanced policies. When it comes to that time, if they have a firm objective then they could try to negotiate with him to gain him as a subordinate faster than others or if that's impossible use any method possible to assassinate or try to wage war on and wipe him out. If that isn't the case then I'm sure it would just be a matter of honestly obeying.

If it's just a hundred years or so there might not be all that much of a difference but when the gap spreads out to hundreds or thousands of years then the difference in knowledge and thought process becomes huge. Luckily this Orth has a lot of similarities to Earth in the past. Also, on the other hand it unfortunately resembles it in so many ways that just the same as Earth in the past it places importance on the strength of individuals. For better or for worse it's still an uncivilized world. Luckily I wasn't a part of the slave standing and was born with some amount of leeway so I was able to start off with pushing forward and advancing my own individual abilities.

It's not like I was easily able to get my hands on my current strength but I do feel a bit like I'm cheating. However, there's no mistake that even this cheating is a part of my strength as well. It's just a matter of mind over feelings on whether or not I make effective use of it and I didn't think of anything more than making as effective use of it as possible. It's clearly cheating in comparison to the people of Orth but I don't feel any sort of reservation towards other reincarnated people.

The differences in our births are just a matter of luck and if we were to start saying that then there's no doubt there's other people who are even luckier than me. Faruergaz is like the most obvious example of that. If you have to make use of the cards you're born with in the match then it's a required ability to make the most skilled use of the cards you're given.

Since Hirosukol seems to have been an elder when he died in his previous life, so he should probably know something of that level but for some reason he seems to look at me like I'm cheating. He doesn't really show that portion when we're casually talking but it might just be my complex that I can't help but think that way. Though even if that is the case I still don't think I need to change anything about my way of doing things from here on out.

Starting with them, the reincarnated people who have culture and morals based on that sort of Japanese background, when the definite differences start to appear between them and my goal supported by my own desires, I wonder how many will actually end up coming with me?

I'm sure I don't have anything like the characteristic charm that the heroes of the past had to attract people. Though I don't think I have absolutely zero either but it would probably be better to suppose it's closer to zero. That's why, in order to attract people I definitely need some sort of compensation. What that is depends on the individual so I can't say anything but I can't forget that there's nothing that can be expected from work people were made to do for free. It's necessary to engrave it into my mind.

Eh? Just like the branch families of daimyo Ralpa, Bel and them are different. The five of them and Miduchi are special cases. I mean..That is..Don't make me say it, it's embarrassing.

Side Story 26 (Part 1): In the Case of Mitsuse Kenji (Age 29 at time of accident)

“I will show you that I will be the one, who will protect the bodies and hearts of people working seriously!”

“I can’t overlook evil that’s running free!”

“Now, prepare yourself! Evil {Dark Corporation}!”

“Nyawhat? I’ll show you I can remodel all Japanese into {Dark Corporate Slaves}!”

“Eat~ this! {Overworked-to-death Kick}~!”

”{High Quota Beam}!”

“A cheap attack like that, I’ll negate it with this {Labor Laws Barrier}!”

“Now, everyone let’s go!”

”{UQ Working Through Consecutive Day’s Punch}~!”

“Monday!”

“Tuesday!”

“Wednesday!”

“Thursday!”

“Friday!”

“Guwa~ I’m being crushed~!!”

“Don’t fuck with me {Consecutive days}..”

“Evil has been defeated. However, during this broken era a second and third {Dark Corporation} is trying to be born!! In order to save all the weak people, fight, {Mini-Colors After 5PM}!”

“You can consult with me at anytime!”

“Anonymously is okay as well!”

“We’re the allies of laborers!”

“The warriors of justice labor standards won’t lose!”

”Together the five of us are, {Mini-Colors After 5PM}!”

Mitsuse Ryouichi who was looking into the small screen of his smartphone at the recording looked up at his little brother Kenji and laughed. In the screen was Kenji's daughter Yuma enjoying some attraction park's hero show.

"And, are you meeting up with that engineering place tonight?"

Yeah, Kenji replied, while manipulating his smartphone and pulling up an image he had saved.

"Even if you show me something like a blueprint I won't know what's changed from before."

Ryoichi was looking at the small screen of the smartphone with a troubled face while saying to his little brother Kenji.

"Here and, here I made into a bay window. Also, I made the kitchen a bit bigger."

"Hm~n... By the way, mother and father wanted to see Yuma-chan. Next time bring her along to play. Since my kid's have gotten a bit bigger as well. It seems like they really want to play with their cousin."

"Wun, it's difficult to move until March~ There's an interview with the nursery at the end of next week after all."

"I won't say to overdo things but you've settled down quite a bit. Show your face occasionally and let mother and father relax a bit. Mihoko enjoys when you guys come over as well."

"Got it, when I return home today I'll discuss visiting on the weekend of the week after next. Tell sister-in-law we're in her care as well."

"Ah~ owa~!!!"

"What guhoe!!!"

.....

When Mitsuse Kenji's consciousness started to get clear he raised his voice and cried. Even though it seemed like a large accident from the relief of being saved, the emotional shock of his eyes not being able to see, and from worry about his reliable five-year older brother Ryoichi who was sitting next to him until just a moment ago he was worried his feelings were exploding all at once. In addition, he was also just a bit worried about one of his seniors from the same company that was napping on the other side Futami.

Just like this, Mitsuse Kenji let out his first cry on Orth on the year 7428, month 2, day 14. He was a considerably energetic and large human baby with the name Hekusa.Barnes.

.....

Fortunately until he was three years old, Kenji was preciously raised. In terms of geography it was in the center of Viscount Bidden's territory over 200 Km North of the capital Randogruiz but politically it was a remote countryside and even though he was born as the child of a commoner in Zokuis village where the death rate for infants was high he was able to overcome it. During the first year or so he thought to search for a method to return to Japan and in any case racked his brains to learn the language which ended up being one of the factors he was able to be raised normally. In caution other than the times he practiced speaking, he held back from talking with an adults tone of speech as well.

As a matter of fact there was a reason he was practicing in a place where no one else was around. If he had wanted to talk during the first year he could have normally talked but if he let's his guard down at all then it ends up baby speak in weird places. Eve now if he let's his guard down and intends to be speaking normally his words end up with a lisp and his words end up quite childish. The large portion of why he didn't want to talk was simply because he found that embarrassing.

However, about six months after Hekusa turned three years old, a large calamity hit this land. {Locusts}. A swarm of locusts that appeared in the West exhausted the fields of Viscount Bidden's territory without end. According to the stories he heard there's records of them occurring once in every 70–90 years in this area. However, this time was a mere 38 years after the previous time. Since it was an occurrence with far too short of a period in between they were unable to take much of any measures against it and Viscount Bidden and Viscount Jonbugu's territories ended up taking a large amount of damage.

Among them the center of Viscount Bidden's territory took huge losses, all of the wheat was eaten right before harvest, and even the roofs of houses, and clothes were eaten and damages. The woods were devoured turning only into tree trunks leaving a a miserable scene. The only thing remaining that the people could eat was the corpses of the locusts and even those the moisture disappears after a few days to a week and they become inedible.

As expected Viscount Bidden reduced the taxes but even then it still wasn't even half. The lord of Zokuis that was Viscount Garorias strictly collected the taxes. The Barnes family somehow managed to pay the taxes by selling the slaves they owned but their remaining slaves were just the elderly and young children so they declined to the point of having to worry about taxes from next year on. Within three years after that they had to worry about having anyone who could properly cultivate the land.

Hekusa was forced to work in the fields before he turned 5 years old and was given the heavy labor of pulling weeds and sprinkling water for a young child. He made good use of his nature to find the most efficient ways to relax and somehow managed to avoid dying from overwork.

However, near the end of his fifth year, just before turning six years old, one night Hekusa met God after falling asleep. It was an interview of a mere few minutes but thanks to that he gained several pieces of knowledge, resolved several questions he had, and was finally able to give up on some things.

I can't remain like this. My older brother should be somewhere in this world of Orth. If I somehow can match my power with that reliable and intelligent older brother then can't we do something? I should look for my older brother. However, even if a child without money or the power to make a living were to run away from home sooner or later it's only obvious they would die by the side of the road. Now is the time to endure the desire to run off and keep preparing honestly.

However, even if they just daze out while living the second child of a commoner is only given the fate of being kept until they die. One day they'll become a slave and be worked hard by the eldest child, depending on the case they might even be sold somewhere like this time. On occasions like that it's even possible for married couples to be split up. Hekusa remembers back to the spectacles he's seen these past 2–3 years until he was sick of it.

In order to avoid that there's not very many options in this Devas Kingdom.

The best option he could think of was somehow make it until adulthood, volunteer for a knight group, and get accepted there. You can save up some money and your social standing will get higher. Even if you quit the knight group there's plenty of places after that including as a squire. If they become an adventurer after that as a former knight there's no lack of places to work as well. He should be able to search for his older brother with ease.

..Though it didn't seem completely impossible but this sort of future path seems to be difficult. It seems that I have a physical advantage from being reborn but there's no way of really telling if that's true. At the very least at five years old right now there doesn't seem to be any differences from other children.

Even the Unique Ability I have 【Skill Invalidation】 according to God it seems it has the ability to invalidate the abilities that people who were reincarnated have within a certain range center on myself but if it's the abilities of normal monsters, non-humans, or people of Orth then it doesn't have any effect so it's hard to call a useful ability.

I originally had interest in my Unique Ability but I didn't know how to use it. According to the conversation I heard from God, unless I'm near another Japanese person using their ability then I can't use my ability so it's really unrelated.

Even then I thought about ways I could make effective use of it but it didn't take much time at all to come to the conclusion that it wouldn't be useful other than fighting with other Japanese people. In other words, it wouldn't be of any help at all in getting accepted into a knight group. Furthermore, the Barnes family is in the middle of poverty right now, I can't imagine I'll receive any decent combat training. Even if I were to try and apply to the Viscount Bidden knight group like this it's only obvious I wouldn't pass. In the first place I probably wouldn't even be able to take the exam for it.

As a runner-up there's the method of aiming for the same knight group but not as a knight but rather as an enlisted infantry and then try to get promoted from there. Once again according to stories I've heard if you spend two years after being drafted the superior soldiers are able to make it as squad leaders in the army. If I give my best it might be possible to make it as a squire to some Viscount family somewhere.

Even if that's not the case the highest commoner soldier group in this Viscount Bidden's territory receives a salary of 500,000 Z after the two year drafting period, so they receive a decent amount of money, and they also receive wages of 1.5 silver coins per week during the draft (970,000 Z per year). There's also the possibility of saving this up and trying to start some kind of business. From there it might be good to save up some assets and search for my older brother.

There's no supposing what happens if I die in combat during the draft period. It seems that there's conflicts between Rombert Kingdom in the North over the Dirt Plains every year but even on the years where there's a lot of people who die in combat it's at most 200 people. Since it seems that there's years where less than 100 people die as well I thought I wouldn't be the one who dies if I make good use of my abilities. In the first place the possibility is higher that Viscount Bidden's territory won't make use of me in combat during the period I'm drafted. Since it's right after taking damage from locusts, it's not the situation to be going to war when there's no money for the next 10 years or so. Hekusa thought this was it.

The draft is an obligation for commoners between the ages of 13 and 25 years old. Both men and women are equally drafted but because of differences in power the women often get drafted later in age. Fortunately since I'm a man I could be put into the army at 13 years old. Wealthy commoner families can avoid the draft by paying four gold coins but the current Barnes family has no such leeway.

I couldn't think of anything else other than things that require a miracle. For example, the chances of being taken as a disciple for an artisan in the town are low but not impossible. However, there's no related occupation that I had from my previous life. The chances of being found by an artisan and made into a disciple are more unlikely than dying tomorrow.

If it wasn't an artisan but rather a merchant then something might be done but I've never heard of merchants taking disciples so I can't see any meaning to it. If you think about it with common sense there's no way they'd let anyone other than their own child succeed them. Even if it comes to finding employment at a large company it's hard to imagine an eccentric merchant who would hire some poor commoner brat in a remote place like this. If I can at least make an appeal then I think I could make a company larger than most merchants but since I have no contacts with them it's only obvious.

Even if, I somehow managed to make it into a merchant's company, there's no guarantee they'd conveniently understand advanced business methods as well. No matter what I suggest it might just end up pointless.

In other words, save up some money as a soldier, and come up with my own method of business, and succeeding like that has higher probability. Since Hekusa at that time didn't know that Devas Kingdom learned from the neighboring Rombert Kingdom and introduced a system where merchants require licenses that cost a large amount of money so that can't be helped.

Just like this Hekusa's childhood passed by.

.....

9 years after the locusts, around the time Hekusa was facing the summer of his 12th year, Hekusa was visited by a large turning point he hadn't even expected. The Barnes family is still dragging along(Though it's not that unusual since let alone Zokuis village the entirety of Viscount Bidden's territory is like that but Hekusa has already given up on caring for the Barnes family for not getting over it at this point) the damage from the locusts and every year when the payment of taxes gets closer around the summer there's a sharp atmosphere.

One such a day, the party of a high ranking noble or royalty was supposedly passing through Zokuis village. The only noble that Hekusa knew of was Viscount Garorias and his family. They're certainly living a better lifestyle than that of commoners and serfs but it was a small difference and he thought that the people who lived at the bottom of employment in his previous life still lived a more civilized and wealthy lifestyle. Now then, let's take a look at what the highest ranking nobles or royalty or whatever of Orth look like. Thinking that he started pulling weeds along the road they were supposed to pass by through the village.

Close to noon, when the sun was at it's highest, an army appeared with several knights at the front. The line of the army seemed considerably long and it was far enough that I couldn't see the end. Very rarely the army passes through Zokuis village so it's not the way first time I've seen them pass through.

However, the army that's passing through Zokuis village this time is different from the ones up to now. Just from a glance you can tell their equipment is expensive looking and above all the number of knights on horseback is more than usual as well. Normally it's about $1/20^{\text{th}}$ the number of infantry but this time over $1/5$ of them are cavalry knights.

Wa~han~ this is the escort army for the supposed high ranking noble. While resting from pulling weeds I was watching it. Shortly after two large carriages pulled by eight horses each approached escorted by the army. As expected watching them while standing will get my head cut off. The other day when a knight passed through giving notice they said to lower your head to the carriage and that you're not allowed to directly look at it so I just lowered my head and looked up at it with just my eyes.

As expected it's quite the extravagant carriage. It's large enough that 10 adults can comfortably fit inside and the ornaments are fancy as well. It's truly the image Hekusa has of "nobles". Suddenly the front of the escort army stopped in a vacant lot ahead of here. Since the time is what it is and there's a river up ahead they might be stopping to have some lunch I guess?

It's a long escort army that might even stretch over 1Km with over 500 people I guess? It seems there's over 5m between each cavalry and there's a few meters between the armed lines of infantry as well. Since they're all taking a lunch break and eating at once while letting their horses drink water it will probably take about 2–3 hours. The speed is slow. Right now they're going through the village where it's easy to walk so they move at the speed an adult walks but once they leave the village it will probably slow down even more.

They're probably moving three hours in the morning and three hours in the afternoon. If you think about their speed as 3Km then they're probably only moving about 20Km a day. In the end they aren't even able to reach the speeds of armies of remote regions in the past. Thinking he's seen all there is to see Hekusa returned to farm work. I might be drafted next year and even if that isn't the case I might end sold as a slave.

I need to somehow avoid just that.

.....

One month later, the army is passing through Zokuis village again. It was after summer just as fall was soon to come. Since he had already seen it once this time Hekusa had no interest. The fact that he ended up relating with them was truly a coincidence and truly the mixing of the heavens. Just like last when the line was resting in the vacant space of the village, a disturbance occurred. Several of the precious source of proteins for the village the chickens were stolen. Just from a glance that's one of the ones with characteristic black feathers.

That's one of the female chickens we're keeping at the house. It lays our precious eggs one in every 2–3 days. I need to somehow take it back peacefully.

“Hahhahahaha..Sel you suck.”

“What was that! Then you try doing it, it's difficult.”

“Hey, you all, don't let it escape..Che..so it missed.”

“Your highness Alex. Don't hold the bow like that. You need to pull the bow upright with your right hand.”

“Hn? Like this?”

“That's right. While pushing down on the bow with your left hand..Ah, your grip is strange.”

“Ah, Myul, stop chatting with Ren and you try doing it as well.”

“..No, as expected I can already do that much.”

“Really, just stop already. That chicken belongs to the villagers right? That's not very admirable.”

“Ah..Yeah. I see.”

It seems like the children of some nobles ordered the soldiers to make a plaza with shields and they were playing with the chickens of the Barnes family and some other households by shooting arrows at them. Since they're being taught the bow by a soldier who seems to be skilled at it, it certainly seems true that it's half play. Since the girl warned them, the two who were focused on shooting arrows honestly listened and stopped.

(We're saved. It doesn't seem like it's dead or hurt. That's great..)

Putting aside other households chickens, Hekusa was relieved he could confirm that his families chicken was safe.

Ordered by the girl one of the soldiers captured the chicken and walked over to here. Considering how simply he caught the chickens and was able to hold them without hurting them.

They must have been born in a farming village.

"Kid, here I'll return these. Sorry about that. Well forgive them. Since we can't go against them.."

The soldier said that and returned the black female chicken. Hekusa bowed his head to the kind soldier and after checking that the chicken wasn't hurt anywhere was about to leave.

"N? Wait!"

Just as he was about to turn around a voice called out. Hekusa went stiff from surprise and turned around nervously. In order to not look directly at them he was lowering his head but he couldn't hide the trembling of his feet. It can't be, next are they going to make me into the target or something?

"Raise your raise."

It's the voice of the one who was laughing first from before.

"Didn't you hear me? Raise your face."

I nervously raise my face. But, I still make sure to look away. Just from directly looking at them, you never know what kind of reason they could do something.

However, the four children of nobles were shocked after seeing Hekusa's face.

"After all.."

"Sel, I'm amazed you noticed.."

"So they are out there.."

“Josh, deliver the chicken to that person’s house...And after that, you. Come over here and show us your face closer.”

Hekusa was standing there with no idea what had happened but the soldier from just now took away the chicken and when he was pushed on the back by a different soldier his head finally started to turn.

After going to their side he was pulled into the carriage without question.

“Raise your face. There’s no need to look away either.”

“Do you understand Japanese?”

“Relax, we’re not anyone suspicious.”

“You’re a Japanese person right..Status Open..Barnes-san. Rest easy. We’re Japanese people as well.”

After closing the door of the carriage in a space with just the five of them they all started talking in Japanese surprising Hekusa who heard it for the first time in 12 years.

“Eh? Ah, eve...even if you all speak at once like that..”

““He is!!””

“Oh~ so he was Japanese!”

“There was no mistake in my eyes!”

“Wo..Wow..There really was a Japanese person!”

“Yeah, oh my..that’s great.”

While the four of them were all surprised in their own way, Hekusa couldn’t do anything but watch that in a daze. Of course they’re surprised just as much as Hekusa as well.

Showing his status and being shown it, he didn’t know what was going on. Unable to keep up with the sudden series of events while Hekusa was slowly explaining his situation, starting to feel irritated the most arrogant looking royalty (it’s only obvious he was arrogant) Alex said.

“In any case, you don’t have any attachment to your family right now I see. I’m sure your older brother is somewhere. It seems that you want to search for him right?”

“Yeah, that’s right.”

“Alright, wait just a minute.”

Alex said that and left the carriage before talking to a soldier about something.

“Barnes-san, please relax. Alex won’t cause any trouble for you.”

“That’s a round about way of doing it. Isn’t it fine if he just orders them in one word?”

“Thing’s aren’t that simple right? Barnes-san is a commoner of this territory so we can’t just do as we please without saying anything to the lord right?”

“That’s why I said we should just tell it to that lord.”

“Myulu. It’s not as simple as that. This isn’t the royal families territory. It would be best if you study a bit more.”

“Yeah-yeah. Either way I’m the only commoner from a remote area..”

“Really, stop saying such depressing things every time.”

Alex quickly returned to the carriage and made an OK sign with his fingers before smiling.

“Barnes. You’ll no longer be a commoner but I can help you. One day I can use an appropriate reason to make you back into a commoner or noble as well so rest easy on that as well.”

The trick was immediately identified. It’s something simple. He talked with Viscount Garorias the lord of Zokuis village and at the same time offered a good amount of money to Hekusa’s parents. He bought Hekusa as a servant slave and once they return to Randgriz they’ll free him from slavery into a Free Person and at the same time it’ll take the shape of Alex employing him.

If he’s a Free Person then there’s restrictions on his actions but since the royal territory is vast it would be difficult to search around all of it by the time he reaches adulthood. Since they already expect to have even more authority by then, if they have him take up some appropriate achievement then they can use that to reward him with becoming a commoner. As expected it’s difficult to push a Free Person into the knight group. The army is fine but in that case it would be difficult for Hekusa to search for his older brother.

Hekusa was told they’d give him money so use that to hire some decent adventurers and for starters travel around the royal territory looking for his older brother. According to their conjecture there should still be one or two reincarnations in the royal territory. Since Sel is the son of Duke Stahlz he can at least give permission to pass through that territory as well so there should be at least 3–4 people in that total area.

It was an unbelievably good luck for Hekusa. He was a bit taken aback at becoming an adventurer but that can't be helped. He also understood that since there was no accurate map, it was important to walk around making a slightly more precise one. Since there's no measurement tools it can't be made perfectly but it should be fine as long as it's a bit more precise than now. Most likely, the achievement they were referring to is production of a map.

In any case Hekusa had no choice other than to grab on the small thread that was hanging before him.

Side Story 26 (Part 2): In the Case of Mitsuse Kenji (Age 29 at time of accident)

In the carriage on the way to the capital Randgriz, Hekusa offered his gratitude for being saved from close to the worst possible circumstances. In addition, while he told them how he was in Zokuis village since he was reborn and hadn't left since then and since there was nothing dramatic to it they seemed to have lost interest in Hekusa's upbringing and immediately asked about his Unique Ability. It seems that this was their real interest.

"Come to think of it Barnes, what's your Unique Ability?"

The most arrogant one, the first prince Belgridd asked. After hearing that Hekusa was confused for just a moment but quickly thought of it. Even when they showed statuses just now there wasn't a Unique Ability. In other words not just family and people of the village but other reincarnated Japanese people can't see Unique Abilities either.

Hekusa felt a bit of resistance to honestly responding. They're nobles. Not to mention two of them are the sons of Dukes that rule over this country. Even more so both of them are the eldest sons as he just confirmed on their status. In addition they even said that they're the heirs. Furthermore there's the eldest daughter of a Baron imperial court sorcerer. The last one is a commoner but seems to have known them for quite a while and is talking to them normally without any sort of reservations that can be felt.

I can't let myself be swallowed by the mood. I need to speak confidently here myself. If I can't then I'll be looked down on and spend the rest of my life wearing the debt of being saved. I'm already starting out on a minus relationship in terms of power to these four. No matter what I say when I was on the verge of becoming a slave(though my status hasn't changed yet I'm already basically a slave) I can't imagine that any more of a gap will open in the authority difference of our relationship but I need to somehow avoid becoming mentally below them.

In any case I need to earn some time. Even if it's just a bit I want some time to think.

“Umm, putting aside Unique Abilities, what kind of relationship do you all have?”

While pretending to not pay any mind to it, Hekusa carefully asked a question that sounds perfectly natural. My Unique Ability is the type that is effective when it comes to directly fighting between Japanese people. Just from what I can vaguely remember of God's conversation all Japanese people are born with different Unique Abilities. Even if it doesn't come to all of them, it would be best pull out as much information on Unique Abilities before I respond.

Of course, I have no intention of becoming enemies with the royalty and highest ranking nobles of this country that they are. It's a matter of selling the hands you have for as high of a price as possible. For that sake even if it's only a few types I need to get a grasp on a couple of their Unique Abilities first.

“Nn, come to think of it we had only confirmed our status. The first ones who met was Alex and I. I think it was around the time we were six years old. Around six years ago from now. Since he had the face of this cheeky as hell Japanese person I was~ quite surprised.”

The one who called himself Senleid.Stahlz, the eldest son of the Duke said quite cheerfully.

“What are you saying, even though you were basically raised in a box and didn't even know how to look at Status until then..”

In regards to that prince Alexander.Belgridd replied while appearing to remember something that amused him with a broad smile.

“After that, I think it was around the start of last year? Ah, spring. We met Myul during a garden party.”

Stahlz has completely decided to ignore what Belgridd said.

“Yeah, I was surprised at that time. When I told this guy about an idiot swinging a strange cloth on top of a tree and after looking at it for a bit he said, “Hey, isn't that the Japanese flag?” after all. It's my first time seeing a purple Japanese flag.”

Belgridd didn't mind the quick talking he had done and jumped on Stahlz's conversation as well.

"Che..it can't be helped right? I only had wine. Of course it'll become purple. If you could think of a better method than that please tell me."

This time the commoner man named Myuneil.Sagal said while not looking very amused. It seems that his father is a squire that serves his majesty Agenol.Belgridd the current King and Alexander Belgridd's grandfather. Even though he's the same commoner, there's a difference of heaven and earth from Hekusa.

"After that, I think it was around summer? From a strange place we found out the possibility that the daughter of Baron Geguran the imperial court sorcerer might be Japanese. When we tried meeting we were surprised. She was Japanese and furthermore she could already use magic after all."

"Though my void magic is still only level 4. Barnes-san if you're interested I'll teach you as well."

While making a light smile the eldest daughter of a baron who introduced herself as Rentia.Geguran said. I see, so even the one who is the least familiar with them has known them for at least a year. It seems like it wouldn't be all that simple to enter their group. Rather it might be more convenient to put some distance between them in order to search for my older brother.

"Oh, that's right. Barnes-san it might be good for you to learn magic from Ren. Since Alex and Sel have their positions and they have a variety of things they have to do they can't really spend much time training with magic. I can't go to the capital all that often either. Even if I'm like this I have to do various things at my house as well"

"Nn..Certainly that's true. Sel and I haven't been able to properly training with magic. In the first place it's suspicious if we even have aptitude for it. Even Myul can only use two types of elemental magic other than void magic. Barnes don't you need to search for your older brother? In that case it might be somewhat convenient to learn magic as well. Since it seems that adventurers have to directly fight against monsters."

Magic huh..In Zokuis village the only ones who could use it was Viscount Garorias, his children, and some of the commoner squires. It's not as if there weren't no people among the serfs that couldn't use it as well. If you were to ask if I have aptitude, or rather talent with magic I don't know but if I can use then I'm sure it would become an effective hand. Thinking that Hekusa lowered his head to Rentia.Geguran.

"Geguran-san. Please teach me magic. I'll definitely become able to use, and I know it's not really something to promise over but I intend to put forth my utmost effort in learning it."

"Yeah, of course it's fine. Ah, that's right, about your Unique Ability, but what was it again? Mine specializes in using magic and it's called 【Magic Acquisition】. There's no level to this Unique Ability but for some reason last month in the area levels normally are it suddenly changed to (MAX)...It seems that this ability makes it easier to get a handle on how to use spells but even then it's difficult. Rather than that since last month when the level changed to (MAX) my mana recovery speed has been amazing."

"Yeah, come to think of it you said something like that. That it recovers at 10 times faster or something..My Unique Ability is called 【Super Recovery】. It's level 6 right now. Even if I get injured it recovers at a considerable speed. I don't even need healing spells."

After saying that Stahlz and Geguran looked at Hekusa. It seems that Stahlz seems to have some pride in his Unique Ability. It was only a short period of time but Hekusa was able to gather his thoughts for a bit. The amount of material gathered was insufficient but the conclusion he came to was that Unique Abilities are a life line in some meanings. It would probably be best to use a bluff or anything here.

"I see..that's amazing. What is Sagal-sans?"

"Hn? Mine is the dumbest here. It's called 【Resistance: (Paralyze) {Paralyze Tolerance}】. Also, it's different from magic but there's a special ability..or rather skill, that's passed through the bloodline in my family called "Disguise"..

Sagal said it a bit embarrassed.

(I think it's pretty amazing that you can't be paralyzed though it's true that compared to these two it feels like a dull Unique Ability)

After all Unique Abilities are something like a life line or a trump card. It would probably be best to say it with full confidence.

“I see, everyone is quite amazing. My Unique Ability is geared towards disputes. Probably, if I were to properly train it then it would be a considerable advantage in conflicts. Kendo was a specialty of mine as well. My skill with the sword is pretty decent.”

Kendo itself was something I learned from my older brother in middle, high school, and college so I have a decent amount of confidence in it. I didn't have any sort of connection with national competitions but even then I made it to the 4th dan and if I use a long weapon I won't fall behind someone very easily 1v1. Since I trained my body through field work if I get some proper nutrition and rest then I should be able to overwhelm people in the same generation as me.

Even though it was after the locusts, it's not as if I didn't do any combat training at all. I was able to do swinging at first and then I could watch the movements of Viscount Garorias and his squires as well. In the first place Kendo is a completely different style of sword fighting from the double-edged blades they use but compared to the style of sword fighting they use on Orth while wearing heavy armor and shields that focuses on thrusts it feels slow compared to Kendo.

“My Unique Ability is 【Skill Invalidation】. I've never used it even once up until now. In the past, according to what I heard from the God who appeared in my dream I can't use it unless another Japanese person who was reborn uses a skill nearby me but it seems it can invalidate the Unique Abilities of all the reincarnated people.”

Though Hekusa was saying this, he's started to think that it might not be limited to just invalidating Unique Abilities based on the way God worded it. Probably, it can invalidate skills like those of non-humans, and ones like the Sagal families “Disguise” that he just mentioned.

“What!?”

Prince Belgridd's eyes went wide. Hekusa noticed, come to think of it I still haven't heard the prince's Unique Ability yet.

“No, wait just a minute..you’ve never used it before...Then different from Ren yours should really be in the level 0 state...Barnes-san, you said you met God right? What does that mean? Are you lying?”

Stahlz said it while tremendously suspicious and moved closer to Hekusa. Hekusa couldn’t understand what he was saying at all.

If you were to ask if he was lying then a portion of it was a lie but that was just covering up a portion of the effects of his Unique Ability. However, there’s no way for them to know that at this point. Could it be one of these two used some kind of magic? No, these two didn’t have any sort of magic skills. In that case either Sagal or Geguran would have had to secretly use some kind of magic and without realizing it I obstructed that, and these two used some method to convey that?

Hekusa was confused suddenly being approached over the parts he wasn’t aware about and somehow managed to twist out some words.

“Ly..lying..That’s rude! Under what basis are you saying something like that?”

While watching that Stahlz and Hekusa Sagal crossed his arms and opened his mouth.

“Well wait just a moment, Sel. We don’t know if it’s really a lie or not..in the first place we still haven’t talked about God yet. In a situation like this it’s unnatural that he would suddenly say he met God...{Status Open}..He doesn’t have any skills..Hey, Barnes-san. I’m sure you’re suddenly confused but I’ll teach you. You can’t meet God unless the level of one your skills increases. At the very least that’s what the four of us thought.”

“Eh?”

Hekusa was confused.

“I met God around the time I was 7 years old. I think it was the first time my “Disguise” skill leveled up. After all I hadn’t used my Unique Ability even once up until then. Even then I was able to meet God. That’s why we already confirmed that you can meet God even if it isn’t your Unique Ability that levels up.”

It was a bolt out of the blue for Hekusa. I couldn’t imagine that they would retort on something like that.

“The other three than me all met God after their Unique Ability leveled up. In my case it wasn’t the Unique ability but my special skill “Disguise” so I think that’s for sure. Barnes-san, I don’t think you’ve said any lies. However, I also think you haven’t said everything.”

“What does that mean?”

Geguran asked a bit curiously.

“For example. If he has some sort of special skill like my “Disguise”. And it’s similar to Unique Abilities in that it doesn’t show up in Status. There’s no way of investigating something like that other than if they report it them self. That might have leveled up. Also, there’s one more possibility as well. It could be thought there’s some kind of level factor other than Status...Ah~ everyone don’t look at me with faces like that. It’s just my imagination.”

“Wai..wait just a minute. There’s levels other than skills?”

Hekusa said as if he was panicking.

“No, I just said it was just my guess right? I don’t know.”

Sagal shrugged his shoulders.

“Wait..what Myul just said makes sense as well...There might be something like a level that can’t be seen with {Status Open}...In the first place Unique Abilities can only be seen by the person them self and even the info about special skill levels can only be seen by each individual...It wouldn’t be surprising even if there was info the person them self can’t see..”

Belgridd covers his face with his left hand and holds his opened right hand towards Sagal while saying it with pauses.

“Ha~? What in the world is that?”

Stahlz said while making fun of it a bit.

Sagal the one who said it him self, was a bit shaken even though he said it. What is it? I feel like I’m caught on something...Level other than skills? Leveling up..And then he hit his knee as if he came to it.

“It’s level! That’s right, it’s a level! If you mention leveling up, then there’s level right!? He, Barnes-san leveled up!”

Everyone was looking at Sagal who suddenly raised a loud voice strangely. However, there was one person who responded in a calm voice.

“That’s right. It’s just as Myul said. It’s a level. Barnes isn’t lying, is what it means. Most likely, Barnes level itself increased. It happens often in games right? The so-called experience levels.”

It seems that Belgridd and Sagal came to the same conclusion at almost the same time.

“What are you saying? Then are you saying if you level up things like “strength”, “speed”, and “luck” increase? That sounds retarded~”

Stahlz said it as if casting it aside but you could tell he had some expectations in his tone of voice as well.

“Wun, since I’ve never played a game I don’t really get it..”

Geguran doesn’t really seem to understand and whispered that in a small voice.

“Hmph, well it’s fine. Barnes, let’s test your Unique Ability 【Skill Invalidation】. I want to know the effects of it. It would be troublesome if you struggle so just in case we’ll tie you up. If, you start to feel hungry we’ll feed you, and if you get tired it’s fine if you go to sleep.”

While Belgridd was saying that, Stahlz and Sagal were taking some rope out from under the seat in the carriage intending to tie Hekusa up with. Just Geguran was making a bluntly displeased face.

“Wh..What are!?”

“Ah, it’s your first time using your Unique Ability right? Then I guess it’s not unreasonable that you wouldn’t know...In order to use Unique Abilities you use mana. If you end up running out of mana it’s troublesome. This is just in case.”

Stahlz and Sagal said that while spinning the rope around Hekusa.

“Now then..it should be about a good time. It doesn’t seem like we can test 【Super Recovery】 with it so easily since it would be troublesome if that becomes ineffective. I guess 【Paralyze Tolerance】 is fine..Ren, use the spell {Paralyze} on Myul. After that, Myul try to resist it using your Unique Ability. Barnes you try to block that.”

After Belgridd ordered that and Geguran said “it can’t be helped” while preparing to use a spell on Sagal. It was only a matter of about 10 seconds before Sagal’s body stiffened up and started shaking as if he had the chills. It’s a symptom of paralysis.

“I’ll count to three. Barnes, when the count down reaches zero Myul will try to escape the paralysis with his Unique Ability 【Paralyze Tolerance】. Use your Unique Ability 【Skill Invalidation】 to try and invalidate that. The method to use an ability is simple. Just concentrate on it like when you normally use an ability. Let’s start..three, two, one, zero!”

Before the countdown started Hekusa noticed a strange and peculiar feeling from Geguran the moment she looked at Sagal. About 10 seconds after she started giving off this strange feeling it disappeared before the count down started. In addition once the count reached zero there was a different strange sensation. This time the source of it was Sagal.

(Is this the sensation of a reincarnated Japanese person using their skill? So it’s something I can tell before I even use my Unique Ability...Alright, I’ll try it out. I need to sell this as high as possible.)

Thinking that Hekusa concentrated on his unique Ability 【Skill Invalidation】 inside of his head. In that instant the strange feeling vanished. Simultaneously there was an intense feeling of accumulated mental anxiety and a strong fatigue that washed over. Somehow I can tell that I can use it once, but the second time would be difficult.

“Th..this is a Unique Ability..huh?”

He went into a daze because of the happening.

Belgridd, Stahlz, and Geguran weren’t bothering to look at that Hekusa but rather observing Sagal’s state. There wasn’t anything that changed on Sagal. Just the same as usual his entire body was convulsing.

“Myulu, it’s already fine.”

Belgridd called out to him like that but there was no change in Sagal. Let alone that there seemed to be something like panic appearing in Sagal's eyes.

“Barnes! Stop the 【Skill Invalidation】!”

After being told that Hekusa tried willing things like “stop”, “end”, or “pause” in his head in a panic.

Several seconds later Sagal recovered.

“Buha!! Ah~ I panicked...It felt like I could still use my Unique Ability itself but it wasn't showing those effects...I thought I would end up having to remain under the effects of Ren's spell until the duration was up..”

All four of them looked at Hekusa with different looks.

.....

During the three week period before they arrived at the capital, centering around Belgridd they progressively tried to analyze Hekusa's Unique Ability 【Skill Invalidation】. Since Hekusa's mana runs out after only using it a couple of times, they tried assuming various situations without having much conversation.

As a result of that the things that they learned was that the effect of the skill was about 10 minutes per level. However, depending on Hekusa's will he can cancel it mid-way through. Once he cancels it he can't restart the time on it. There's no other choice than to use 【Skill Invalidation】 once more. It was capable of invalidating all four of their Unique Abilities. The range of the ability is 20 meters per level centered around Hekusa.

Furthermore, once Hekusa uses 【Skill Invalidation】 unless Hekusa cancels the ability during the duration of the effect while all Unique Abilities can be used inside of the range, they won't have any effect. It was easy to tell this when it came to Unique Abilities with a continued effect. If Stahlz cuts his hand with a knife inside of the range of 【Skill Invalidation】 and tries to use 【Super Recovery】 then it won't have any effect.

Normally, 【Super Recovery】 is something that reduces the amount of time it takes for heals to fully recover but the moment it's used some amount of bleeding will stop. However, inside of the range of 【Skill Invalidation】 that wasn't the case. After that, once he tried leaving the effective range of it there was no need to use the ability 【Super Recovery】 and it would immediately start showing its effect stopping most of the bleeding from the wound.

Thanks to this there was something new confirmed about Sagal's unique Ability 【Paralyze Tolerance】 as well. If just like the time with 【Super Recovery】 after he has the spell {Paralyze} cast on him he tries to use 【Paralyze Tolerance】 inside of the effective range it won't show any effect but the moment Sagal is carried outside of the range he recovers from the paralysis. In other words, while they only thought 【Paralyze Tolerance】 was used in the instant it was cast it they found out it actually had an effect duration.

Furthermore, in regards to magic skills but they established that these could be obstructed as well. They were unable to use magic inside of the effective range of 【Skill Invalidation】 during the remaining time of its effect. However, just the same if a spell that has an effect duration is used the moment they're carried outside of the effective range it starts showing those effects.

Even if they use the spell {Light} on a rock inside of the effective range it won't shine but once they carry it outside it will suddenly give off light. And, here they found out something new again. If they use a {Light} which will shine for 5 minutes inside of the effective range and wait 1 minute before carrying it out, after that it will only give off light for 4 minutes.

In other words, the activation isn't delayed, inside the effective range you can still use Unique Abilities and magic. It's just that the effects won't manifest. However, in the case of magic, if it's an effect that comes from outside of the effective range it will still continue. If a shining rock is brought into the effect range from outside it will still continue to shine. If you bring a rock with {Light} cast on it outside of the range right after using it and it starts shining, then bring it back inside the light doesn't disappear. But, it's only obvious once the 5 minutes of the magic is up it disappears.

However, Hekusa remained quiet about an important point here. Before he even uses 【Skill Invalidation】, he can feel the sensation when reincarnated Japanese people use both Unique Abilities and Special Skills but he reported that the only thing he could feel was Unique Abilities. Since the feeling he gets differs depending on whether it's a Unique Ability or a Special Skill, one of the reasons is that only Hekusa can differentiate them.

The other reason is because he was able to feel reservations from Belgridd. Even though he's a former Japanese person, since he's still royalty his arrogant attitude is nothing to get angry over. It's believed he has a powerful Unique Ability fitting for royal so Hekusa himself accepted it to some extent. However, maybe it's because he has a Unique Ability that can turn that to nothing in an instant, a few days after that met Hekusa somehow started to feel a distance. It's not like he's openly avoiding me or looking down on me so it might just be my imagination.

Furthermore, there was one more thing that Hekusa felt unnatural. Hekusa wanted to have a conversation about nostalgic things in Japan but whenever Stahlz or Sagal start talking about things like that, Belgridd always tries to change the topic to something else. Particularly that tendency can be felt strongly when it regards conversations about age and occupation.

Since Stahlz and Sagal were in their 30s and I myself was just before 30 when I died. Geguran was even an elderly person. Most likely, I think that Belgridd was young? The things he's saying aren't all that strange and there's no young feeling to it so maybe around high school age? That's probably become a complex and after realizing that Hekusa decided not to touch on it.

By the time they arrived at the capital Hekusa's Unique Ability had reached level 3. Immediately after arriving, Hekusa was changed from commoner to slave at the temple, and then immediately released and became a Free Person. He was given a small house within walking distance from the royal castle and granted a horse as well. Also, as preparations he was given 20 gold coins to either hire some allies or buy slaves.

Hekusa felt a bit of resistance towards buying a slave but Sagal said "Either way it's the Prince's money so don't worry about it and just buy a slave." so he decided to buy one slave to look after his house and horse.

Several months after this, he started learning magic from Geguran, and that training continued for about a year before it started to bloom. If it wasn't showing any sign of going anywhere then he intended to completely give up and buy slaves or find allies to start searching for his brother in the royal territory and Duke Stahlz territory. After talking about that Belgridd was pleased and said, "It would be good for you to do that."

.....

One year or so later, after acquiring three elemental magics excluding water and void magic Hekusa left on a trip to search for his older brother. As a job for adventurers under the pretext of an escort he hired 3 veteran adventurers. All three of them were skilled adventurers introduced through the government office under prince Belgridd's pressure.

Another year passed. About once in every six months Hekusa would return to the capital with a map of the area but it was limited to just meeting up with Geguran for a bit and then he would immediately leave again. Out of the four Japanese people, the three men all joined the white phoenix knight group and one of the reasons was it wasn't so easy to meet with them there.

He casually returns, drops off the map, and then leaves. In order to frantically search for his older brother Hekusa didn't want to return at all but there was no other choice than to think that couldn't be helped.

However, it was such a time as that he finally managed to meet his older brother. He was living a reasonably comfortable life as the third son of the lord of a village called Ridas on the Eastern part of Duke Stahlz's territory. In the range of reincarnation it was somewhere in the mid-way point between the Eastern and Southeastern area. The siblings talked about various things for a number of days.

"I see. Since I still haven't reached adulthood I thought it was a bit early but I guess it's about time for me to leave the house as well."

There's still another six months until 15 years old.

"Bro, is that fine? It's fine even if you don't hurry and overdo things. If I keep saying that I haven't found you yet I can still pull some more money out of them."

"Yeah, I'm sure that would work. But, they say to hurry with what's right. It would be best to start making preparations as soon as possible. It's necessary to gain as much information as possible while we're still young."

“Hn, well if bro says so..”

Once night on the trip back, after coming up with an adequate excuse they decided to stay not inside of the village but camp on the side of the road which was still reasonably safe, and after saying he would keep lookout himself he killed the three escort adventurers.

After spending close to a year as an adventurer Hekusa's sensation for murder had numbed quite a bit but even then laying his hands on the allies he had spent the last year or so with required quite a bit of resolve. Also, it was the first time he felt a bit of guilty towards the act of murder.

Chapter 177: Reason for Side Job

Year 7445, Month 2, Day 14

Today is the birthday of us reincarnated people. We're {seventeen}. Somehow 17 years old has an unripe fruit kind of feel to it that is both happy and embarrassing.

Giberuti cooked the meat from the Matte Turtle he bought the other day in steaks for us. Everyone was saying it was delicious as they chomped down the steaks and finally we had some dessert that was something like boiled and chilled figs with sweet syrup. It seems that Gwine knew the method to make this fig compote and taught Giberuti about it. The weak point is that it uses a considerable amount of sugar so the cost of ingredients was quite high but it was no challenge for our desire to eat some real dessert for the first time in a while. I'll have him make some again sometime.

By the way, when everyone's age increased other than Gwine we all gained an increase in our Speed. I guess in exchange for that, Gwine's Endurance increased. That's quite like a Dwarf. Basutorial is smoothly gaining experience and now he's at a level 8 that's close to hitting level 9. In just a mere two months he's earned close to 70,000 experience and just in terms of level he's already caught up to Hirosukol.

Well, every time more than three ogres come out at once since I'm thinning out the extras in one hit, I'm earning an incomparable amount of experience points thanks to the boost from Gift of Natural Talent and since Miduchi is occasionally entering the dungeon together with Zulu and Angela they're earning a decent amount of experience points as well.

If we keep putting some effort into it like this until the end of this year then..Basutorial's level should go up even higher and I guess be around the same level as Bel and Toris right now? No, along the way he should be able earn experience easier (the chances for him to do damage to monsters will increase) so he might be able to make it a bit higher...And wait a second!

When I was staring at Basutorial's experience points I noticed it. The place where the numbers are, I can select it. Could it be..After all that was the case. It's possible to select the experience point numbers for skills as well. I can even open a sub-window for it. While holding my hopes high and opening it and I can browse through the relationship between experience points and level in table form. This is convenient. I wonder why I didn't notice this until now, and, I was a bit amazed at myself. Well, that is~ I never stared at the number for experience points for this long before after all...

Ah, that's right...After all that was the case. So this was the expansion ability for level MAX of Identify...That's pretty dull..or not I guess. Since all I could see up until now was the value to the next level so I never thought much beyond that but in some meanings you could say this is obtaining information from the future right...

.....

Year 7445, Month 2, Day 15

“Ya~!!”

Basutorial let's out a shout with some fighting spirit in it as he thrusts the spear. The ogre that took the attack in the neck lost the power to it's arms that it was swinging it's club around with and drooped over. After everyone weakened it, Miduchi froze it's lower body and then Basutorial finished it off. During that time, I was looking over from above..or not. I was properly watching over the battlefield remaining cautious in the off chance something happens and being careful of our surroundings in case a new monster appears.

Immediately after Miduchi erased the ice and the slaves gathered the magic stones.

Hmm, though I'm still watching the trends of the battle and occasionally giving out instructions, if the opponent is just two of them then there's not even a need for direct support from me anymore. Right now we're not depending on the paralysis poison and they're showing just the movements I was hoping for, safely able to defeat them. It might be about a good time to let them fight freely without me giving any orders as well.

No, maybe it would be best to keep going like this until they can at least take on half the number, four of them (in other words, excluding Basutorial, our group takes on each ogre 2v1) and win?

Today with this we defeated 13 ogres and should have earned quite a bit off of magic stones. I put the magic stones Zulu and Angela brought over into my leather bag and tilt my head.

Hmn. In order to aim for even more growth and letting them fight completely without me I wonder if I should start making them take on ogres 2v1? I want them to quickly build up their individual ability to make split-second decisions and look over the entirety of the battlefield. No, wait a minute. Up until the 6th floor since they're completely separate from me they should be getting a reasonable amount of training on that end.

After all I guess we should just keep going like this as planned. If I'm nearby then if the situation gets really bad then they might try to rely on me right away. It's possible we might have to split the party up even on this 7th floor one day as well.

No matter how I think about it, it would be best to focus on increasing their individual abilities like this for the time being. It's all meaningless if they die after all.

.....

Year 7445, Month 2, Day 26

Night, when all of us were eating some skewers and boiled fish we brought in to "Murowa" and Faruergaz, Hirosukol, and their slaves came in to eat. I lightly lowered my head to them and when I was poking at my fish and drinking some beer they started talking to us.

"Right now, it seems you all are going to the 7th floor but around how much time does it take to get to the 7th floor?"

"It takes three days. One day to get from the 1st floor to the end of the 3rd floor, one day for the 4th and 5th floors, and then one day for the 6th floor."

When I replied like that all of them including the slaves were lost for words. What is it, could it be you're surprised at how fast we are? It's not as if I don't understand your feelings but even we took around three months after entering the dungeon to make it to the 2nd floor. Even if we had the same number of 6 people, in my case we had 1 more reincarnated person and Zenom as well.

Though I think that Zulu is superior individually but when Angela first joined us she was pretty unreliable and no matter how I look at it rather than Angela in the past their Laios slaves should be more useful. Though they're not here right now, Kumiru and Ruttsu have a decent amount of power as well it seems so excluding my magic, their combat potential shouldn't be all that different from ours at the time.

However, the number of times we were entering the dungeon is completely different. Back then we would enter the dungeon twice in every three days that sort of rapid pace. We would explore until someone was injured and even if that wasn't the case sometimes we would come back around lunch or just after. The biggest reason for that was my healing magic. After all, we could heal any injuries the same day.

In comparison to that, things won't go that easily for Faruergaz and the others. Since they started in December of last year, I guess they're at about two months? During that time, I'm sure they've only entered the dungeon at best 6–7 times. Well this is normal for most adventurers so I think it's just us that are abnormal though.

“There isn't really anything good that will come from being impatient and overdoing it. For starters you should just get used to the terrain of the 1st floor.”

I said that with a clear face but I intended it as advice. Most likely, if it's these two who have gone through proper training as knights then they should be able to fight decently even on the 2nd or 3rd floor. However, if they go that far into the dungeon before they're used to the dungeon then there's no way they'd be able to maintain their mental composure. If things reach that point then they'll start making mistakes on whether they can fight the opponent or whether they should retreat. It leads to mistakes in decision making.

Rather than that, trying to go to the 2nd floor or beyond with just 6–7 times worth of experience is the pinnacle of foolishness. It's weird saying this but even I just wandered around randomly at first without buying a map. Since we only had our own handmade maps that were no comparison to the ones Gwine makes, after that we only bought a map around one month after we started exploring the dungeon in Baldukk. During that time, we entered the dungeon over 20 times.

“Purchasing the map is one method as well. Some reasonably precise maps are up for sale. If you’re interested then I can at least introduce you to a map seller.”

How much was the map of the 1st floor I bought again..Ah, that’s right. It was 7,000,000 Z (7 gold coins). However, the amount of information and accuracy was no comparison to the previous map I had bought for 800,000 Z (80 silver coins). Around the time we were wandering the 3rd floor up until Toris and Gwine joined our group we were really in care of it. Obviously I haven’t gotten rid of it but I have no intention of handing it over for free or even cheaply. Since we were in the care of them, it should be only proper to introduce them as a customer to the map seller.

“A map huh..Denda, sorry but could you go to the inn really quick and grab our map...Greed-san, we’ve started drawing our own map as well. In order to not get lost, we also prepared our string as well. Putting aside whether or not it’s accurate, could you please take a look at how it’s written and give us some advice?”

Hirosukol said that and lowered his head.

“..Well if it’s just that much..But, in that case there’s someone better suited to it than me...She’s the one who deals with map information in our party. Ask her opinion on it.”

I said that while pointing to Gwine and tilted my mug again. Toris and Bel who were sitting in front of me and Miduchi who was sitting beside all returned to their casual conversations.

A short while later Faruergaz’s slave, Dendoru.Sumaisu returned. He has a bag with him. So there’s a map inside of that?

“Gwine, come over here for a moment...Ah, sorry about that. Take a look at this map. What do you think?”

I tried to endure bursting out into laughter while asking Gwine. I mean, the map they showed me but it was way too childish. Even the map we started making at first was better.

“..This, what is it? Eh? It’s a map? What a waste of paper..”

Gwine cut it down instantly. Faruergaz and the others seemed pretty embarrassed. But, Faruergaz gathered his courage and questioned Gwine.

“No, it’s certainly true that it’s badly drawn...What can we do to draw it even more skillfully?”

Gwine raised her eyebrows while looking at the map after being questioned, and opened her mouth.

“It would probably be best to take into consideration adding more to it afterwards. Up until then just ignore some things like curves and bends in the walls and just try to draw it as straight as possible...Also, there’s no way of telling the distance. Although, it’s kind of strange saying this but I think the best option would be to use the map that’s sold as a reference. If it’s now then it seems they should be selling a map of the 1st floor that is close to perfect.”

She said that and smiled. Incidentally, the origin of the map of the 1st floor that boasts a 99% completion rate is Gwine. We tried selling just the 1st floor to the map seller a while back. Up until then the map that they sold of the 1st floor was the same one as I bought in the past and had a considerably high level of completion, over 80% of it could be trusted. We ended up making good use it for a long time as well.

However, the remaining blank spaces and the portions that were close to perfect in regards to information on the traps, the numbers when teleporting in from the surface(we started writing the teleport numbers on the walls in {Common Language} after Gwine joined us) and in the case those numbers are difficult to find, other numbers are all written on Gwine’s map so the usability and accuracy were no comparison.

December of last year, when I came up with the idea I tried discussing it with Gwine and just to test it out we tried selling the map of the 1st floor for starters. The two of us went to the map seller and it took close to two full days but when Gwine finished copying over the template we showed the map it and the old dwarf man fell over backwards seeing the precision of it. For about a month after that the old man confirmed the accuracy of the map with his acquaintance adventurers it seems. About a week after the day of judgement last month when we returned from the dungeon there was a message from the old man at the map shop. He wanted to split the profits up 50/50 with us.

Though we all went through the trouble of producing the map but since the one who made the copy was Gwine, in the first place it was a map that would have been impossible to make without Gwine's Unique Ability. Since I wanted to know Gwine's thoughts on it as well, I decided to leave the decision up to Gwine. Obviously all of the money made from it goes to Gwine. Putting it simply, it took the shape of me accepting Gwine having a side job of "selling information she found out during work".

Obviously Gwine was pleased. However, the compensation she chose was adding the conditions that they would only produce the copies at that map shop, they would reveal the customers who bought it, and 40% of the profits. When I praised her that she properly was able to think of that all on her own and it seems that Miduchi gave her the suggestion when she consulted with her over it.

I would have preferred if she was able to arrive there all on her own but I guess Gwine didn't have the confidence to think about it all on her own. However, it was admirable the fact that she properly consulted with someone about it and the fact that she didn't simply pick Ralpa as that someone.

They're selling one labeled as the completed version for 10,000,000 Z but two of them have already sold and it seems the situation is such where they copies can't keep up so there's orders for two more already. The ones who made the orders were {Gehenna.Flare} and the elf Rozewela, and after that two other mid-class parties that are active around the 3rd and 4th floors.

"Is that so..After all it seems it would be best to buy the map. Hey, what should we do?"

Hirosukol called out to Faruergaz.

"..It can't be helped. There's no other choice than to buy it. However, a waste of paper..That's quite harsh."

Faruergaz responded with a displeased expression.

"Greed-san, I'm sorry for the trouble but could you please introduce us to a map dealer? Also, if you know would you please tell us the price as well."

Faruergaz said that and lowered his head.

"There's no problem with just introducing you. Also, when it comes to the price if I'm certain I think it was 10,000,000 Z for the 1st floor. It's seems to be quite popular and has reservations on it though so you might have to wait for a month."

When I said that it seems the two of them were surprised at the price.

"Wha! 10,000,000!"

"10 gold coins huh..It's not impossible but.."

I had guessed it based on how they so easily paid 9,000,000 Z a piece for two high class combat slaves but after all it's not impossible? When I did it, it took close to reckless levels of courage just to buy Zulu and Angela and a 7,000,000 Z map. After all my entire fortune at that time only slightly exceeded 10,000,000 Z. Honestly speaking, I did it with the resolve of jumping off a waterfall. I'm quite envious.

The next day, in the end it seems they resolved to buy a map and ended up as a source of income for Gwine.

This is information on the purchaser that the map dealer gave to Gwine so it's definite.

"Well, I don't think it's that bad of a purchase. It's weird saying it myself but I think it was quite well-made. If you have then then it should reduce the amount of time it takes to clear through the 1st floor quite a bit. Thanks to everyone I can brag that we've properly written down the maps close to perfectly as well. I want to go and get some clothes made on our next days off so please lend me your horse."

Gwine winked while sticking her tongue out.

I made a bitter smile while accepting and said "However, while they'll probably sell even after this you should expect it not to exceed the current amount by more than double.” It’s said that there’s a total of 200 or so parties, roughly 1,300 — 1,500 adventurers constantly in Baldukk. Among those there’s people who only enter alone without a party and those who only enter with small parties and change who they team up with on a daily basis as well.

With us {Slaughterers} at the top, there’s only about a dozen or so parties with reasonably high flexibility in their earnings and even if you estimate that number on the high end there’s only about 50 of them. All the rest of the masses don’t earn much at all. The majority of them are people who make at best 100,000 — 250,000 Z per person a month. In any case, even those who are in the top 50 or so, even if it’s accurate, I doubt there’s that many with the leeway to dish out 10,000,000 for a map of the 1st floor at this point.

If they’re making decent earnings then that means they’ve already exceeded the 1st floor and are in some of the lower floors, so it’s proof of their abilities at that point. Since Gwine’s map of the 1st floor can’t be used for much other than a time reduction, even looking at it in a positive light I’d say only about 20% of those could see the value in a reduction of time for clearing through the 1st floor. If you were to ask me, I think the closer they are to the top teams they’d see more value in reducing the time it takes thanks to an accurate map.

Chapter 178: Preparing in Advance

Year 7445, Month 3, Day 2

Tomorrow is March 3rd, Doll festival. During these past two days we've obtained just around 37 ogres worth of magic stones so when I said it was a joke Ralpa said she wanted to try lining them up, so I used magic to create a tiered platform for dolls with dirt and she lined them up on that. Starting from the tools brought along for the bridal procession on the seventh platform, the sets of furniture and stuff for the bride on the sixth platform, the fifth platform the three protectors of the emperor and empress, the fourth platform has the two ministers(minister of left and right), the third platform has the five court musicians, the second platform has the three court ladies, and the first platform has the dolls representing the emperor and empress as she lined them all up with their tools.

Since it's all made of stones lined up it's not very interesting at all.

I thought it might be enjoyable for women but no one other than Ralpa was showing any interest in it. Just one person, only Ralpa was sitting in the corner of the room with a spellbound expression in front of the tiered doll stand she made just looking at the magic stones.

In the first place, then there's torii included at the temples of Orth as well so there was a period I thought these sorts of events might exist as well. However, Bel said that fundamentally these sorts of events were based on imperial court events in Japan. Therefore, there should be no relation between the temples on Orth and the events of Japan.

"Hey, Al. What in the world is that? What is Ralpa doing?"

Since he started to get worried Zenom tried asking in a whisper but I couldn't say anything more than "It's an event that goes on at the temples in our past life. You pray for the health and growth of young girls. It occurs every year on March 3rd. Though in reality you're supposed to use dolls carefully modeled after noble people and other small props instead of magic stones."

When I was looking at Ralpa's back with her legs crossed in front of the odd doll platform in the corner of the room it somehow looked like she was crying. It seems like she has some sort of feelings on it, so it might just be that she had some sort of special attachment to the doll festival.

I put my hand on Gwine's shoulder when she was about to go towards Ralpa and just shook my head. Just let her be until she's satisfied at times like that. It's fine as long as she's energetic tomorrow. Even when it comes to long-time friends, I'm sure there's times you just want to be left alone.

.....

Year 7445, Month 3, Day 3

We defeated 20 ogres and after obtaining a total of 57+alpha magic stones we decided to leave the dungeon. Our earnings this time was 47,510,000 Z, that's 950,000 Z (95 silver coins) in bonuses. Basutorial's bonus was half that amount 475,000 Z. Excluding the fractions I deducting it from his loan in units of 100,000 Z so Basutorial doesn't have that much cash on him but the amount he's returned to me has exceeded 3,100,000 Z after entering the dungeon this time.

When I told him that and obviously he already understood that and was twitching his cat ears unable to hold back his excitement it seems.

"If we keep up like this then shouldn't the debt be paid off just before Golden Week and you'll be able to save up a bit?"

When I said that to Basutorial who was clenching his fist basking in the joy and he nodded happily but at the same time made a strange face.

"Does something like Golden Week actually exist?"

"Hn, for the time being we've set it up so we have a long holiday during that period. Though it's just New Year's holiday and Golden Week. There's none for O-Bon."

"Our income decreases a bit that month but we can go sightseeing in the capital, eat some delicious things, buy clothes, it's quite nice for a breather."

Bel said that and smiled.

We left the dungeon and sold the magic stones, then went to eat together with everyone the same as usual.

.....

Year 7445, Month 3, Day 4

After finishing my running and having breakfast, I walked to “Slave Store, Ronslail” alone. When the leisured madam that is the sexy elf madam Ronslail saw my face and she made an apologetic expression. It seems they still haven’t gotten their hands on a slave that can skillfully use the shield. However, I didn’t come in regards to that today.

I sat down on the reception set and while sipping some bean tea one of the slaves used by the store prepared I finished up with greetings. Now then, let’s get to the main point.

“Ronslail-san, I have different order from the combat slave. It’s a named order but is it possible to do anything about it?”

“Named? Is it? Well if the other party is a slave then it will come down to negotiating with their owner but it’s not completely impossible at all. And, who is it and where are they from?”

The madam asked in sexy voice as she dropped some of the ashes from her Kiseru in an ash tray on the table.

“They’re in Duke Rombert’s territory, well the King’s direct territory. It’s a serf woman in Rockfall village. Her name is Catherine.Enforu. Her race is a Cat-person. Her age should be either 16 or 17. I’ve obtained the information that at least until the end of December of last year she was definitely in that village.”

I put my elbows on my lap and crossed my hands in between my spread out legs while talking.

“..Then, in that case there’s the possibility that she’s not there now as well?”

Madam asked with a slightly discouraged feel. When it comes to the Cat-people who aren’t very durable physically they’re a bit cheap. I’m sure they’re not very profitable. Furthermore, it’s a woman and even a serf.

“No, the possibility of her being sold somewhere is pretty minuscule. Most likely she should still be there.”

“A female Cat-people and a serf is it...What is her appearance like?”

Ah, if they’re good looking and a woman then it’s possible the price could go up a bit more as well. I’ve heard that some stores choose the slaves they buy for waiter jobs based on their appearances and yet another portion of certain stores rely heavily on the appearances of their slaves.

“No idea, I don’t know that much..”

When I said that the madam was dumbfounded for a moment but quickly returned to her usual smile.

“You intend to buy her even though you don’t know? If it’s not a hindrance would you please tell me if there’s some sort of reason?”

“No, it’s not any sort of exaggerated reason like that. The newcomer in our party was born in that village. And it seems he promised to marry with that girl. Since he’s about to have finished off the repayments of his loan so I thought to secure her before she gets sold off anywhere..”

Hear that the madam lightly laughed and in addition smiled a bit.

“Greed-sama is..Well it’s fine. We were just planning to go to the slave market in the capital in order to stock up next week. I’ll make preparations for our head clerk to go out there and purchase her.”

“Ya~ thank you very much. I’m grateful for that. Unless there’s some sort of extraordinary situation I promise I’ll continue using this shop from here on out.”

“Well, that’s quite flattering of you.”

“Now then, here’s where I want to discuss things a bit, but that slave, I want you to try and purchase her as cheap as possible. Of course, I won’t say to make take some profit. However, I want you to make it as much of a service as possible. I would like for you to put some power into negotiating her purchase the market price. If the other party is hesitating to sell then please negotiating using the name of the owner. The owner will be Sajesu.Basutorial.”

I swallow a mouthful of tea. I was looked at with an amazed expression but that can’t be helped.

“Though it’s weird saying in exchange for that but it’s fine if you make the next combat slave a bit more expensive than usual. Or rather, if it’s a combat slave who is skilled then I intend to pay whatever is necessary. Please find a young and sturdy one. If you can really find some with a decent level of skill then I won’t say just one person, I might even take into consideration purchasing more than two. If they were a former knight then I’d have nothing more to say.”

Hearing that the madam’s appearance collapsed a bit. It’s quite self-interested of her but that’s only obvious. Something like a serf cat-people brat is at best around 2,000,000 Z. It’s a woman after all. If her appearance was considerably outstanding then after training her she could be sold for a higher price as a sex slave but the possibility of that is pretty low I’m sure.

In comparison to that even the cheapest combat slaves are 6,000,000 Z, when it comes to the expensive ones it’s not strange for it to reach 10,000,000 Z. If they were originally a knight then they might even end several tens of millions. If we were to speak of a normal knight, then the only one nearby I know is sister-in-law Shani, but taking into consideration that level of skill with the sword and spear excluding magic, in addition to that if they’ve properly learned combat on horseback then let alone 20,000,000 they might even go for 30,000,000 Z. Madam.Ronslail’s profit margin would be completely different.

If I were to use some extreme logic then that amount of money is something we could earn in just a few days on the 7th floor if I give my best after all.

“Well well, that is quite! You say things that make me quite happy Greed-sama!”

“Yeah, since that’s the case, please do your best to take proper care of this.”

After that I just had to make sure she would definitely keep her on stock until Basutorial saves up enough money and we confirmed a rough estimate of the delivery date(I only knew the rough direction of where Rockfall village is located) before I left the store. Since they can only go to purchase her after they stock up at the slave market it seems it will take at least a month and a half. Well even with time to spare it should be before Golden Week.

Around that time should be when he’s finished paying his debt. It depends on the price but if we were to suppose it's 2,000,000 Z then it would be sometime after the middle of June. I already instructed madam over things like that. In other words, if you want to get her off your hands as soon as possible, make her cheaper.

Ah, even if she arrives I have no intention of telling Basutorial about it. It would be troublesome if he ends up making a mistake trying to earn in a hurry after all. I intend to tell him only after he's saved up enough money to buy her and afford the wedding ceremony.

Basutorial might end up being the first one to use congratulations and condolences days off.

.....

Year 7445, Month 4, Day 5

"Angela, are you finished?"

In front of an altar on the 5th floor I finished taking the magic stone out from the corpse of a {Frost Lizard} and while I already knew she wasn't finished I still asked my partner.

"I'm sorry, there's still two more left."

While replying like that Angela continues to skillfully cut open the chests of the gargoyle corpses. Both of our faces are grinning a bit.

"Hn, then I'll help out with one."

After saying that I erased the dirt and after approaching the body of one with it's head cut off I started cutting open the chest the same way as Angela was. Shortly after I managed to find the magic stone close to the organ that appears to be it's heart. I cut through it including all of the meat surrounding it with my knife and then after washing away the chunks of meat and blood stuck to it I put it in my leather bag. Immediately after that Angela brought over the three magic stones she just collected and I washed those off before putting them inside as well.

I look up at the altar and we exchange glances while smiling. That's only obvious. The income of me the master is also the income of the slave, my delight is my slaves delight, my sadness is my slaves sadness. Of course, the opposite of that is also true. I trust the reincarnated people in our party excluding Basutorial quite a bit but I also trust my slaves who have sworn their loyalty to me and have been together with us for about the same amount of time in a different way.

It's a trust that is only possible because anyone can see status. After all they appear as "Greed Family Owned Slave". For starters there's no need to think about betrayal. It's fine to consider them a part of myself.

"Hey~ Angela, that, I wonder what it is?"

I just keep grinning without using Identify while continuing to grin as I ask Angela.

"I do not know, what could it be? But that, it appears to be a weapon to me."

Angela responds while grinning herself as well.

"A weapon huh? Yeah, it looks that way to me too. Well then, Angela, go and grab it for me."

I ordered Angela while responding generously.

"I understand."

Angela walks up the altar and stretches her hand out inside of the opened door of the shrine.

It's fine to use slowly take my time and use Identify after my slave brings the goods in front of me and puts it in my hands.

My slave respectfully offers up the spoils to me.

Packed into a leather-made scabbard adorned with delicate ornaments, I can see a picture that has a strange shape like it's based in human engineering or something. After I received it I examined it for a bit and then tried using {Status Open} on it.

【Short-Sword.Of.Sturdy】

Following that I use the {Cantrip}, {Magical Detection}.
There's a reaction.

And then, I slowly tried using 【Identify】 on it.

【Short-Sword.Of.Sturdy】 【Iron】
【State: Good】
【Manufacture Date: 5/4/7445】
【Value: 1】
【Endurance: 28610】
【Ability: 91–125】
【Effect: Bark Skin(However, only up to three times per day).】

Ho~Ho~ when I tried reading the sub-window and it seems that by speaking the incantation {command word} engraved into the surface of the blade while the user is holding the handle it seems they can gain the same effect as using the spell {Bark Skin} three times per day. Furthermore, the effect of the spell is the equivalent to that if the user of the spell were level 100 when using it.

The spell {Bark Skin} is a defensive spell I already knew. However, the duration of the effect is short. It only lasts an amount of seconds equal to your level and even if you pour more mana into it you can't extend the duration of the effect. And then, the effect ends after activating when you take just one hit during the duration of it. Even in that case you can only slightly reduce the damage I guess? Is it a measurement error? it's just that level of effect. Putting it frankly it's only slightly better than being naked, it's like how it's better to wear leather armor even if it's crudely made.

That's why when I heard about it from mother I just practiced with it for a bit and even when I use it now it takes about 1 minute of concentrating to use. Even though that's the case it requires earth and water magic at level 2 or above and when it comes to void magic it even takes levels 4 and 5. Even though it consumes a total of 13 points of MP since I thought the effects were weak I've had it categorized in my head as a useless spell.

However, if it's used at the equivalent as if the caster was level 100 then it should last for 100 seconds so if it doesn't consume any MP then you could say it's useful. Even if you just take into consideration it's abilities as a simple infantry-use short sword then it's superior as well.

“It seems to be a magic weapon..”

“Congratulations, master!”

Angela is expressing her delight for me as if it were her own. Her tail is shaking all over the place.

I pulled the sword out from it’s scabbard in front of her and looked at it. The blade shines with a dark grey light and lightly engraved into the surface of the blade close to the hilt there’s the incantation {command word} “Gabubado”.

“Fumu..”

The grip part of the handle has slightly depressions in the shape of fingers so you can firmly get a grip on it.

“Hn? Master, something seems to be written on it. Since I can only read numbers I don’t know what it means but I wonder if it’s a name?”

Well, I guess it’s fine if I test it out.

“Yeah, this is gabubado uhyo~”

The instant I spoke the command word incantation while holding the handle, my body was surrounded in a light pale blue light from the spell. While I was dumbfounded I tried identifying myself and it showed up as 【Condition: Good(Bark Protection:Item)】.

“Mas..Master!!?”

Angela raised her voice in surprise and started to panic but I stopped her while saying “calm down” and then after saying “it seems to be the spell {Bark Skin}” she regained her composure. If in just a single word, without even taking 1 second it can deploy in an instant and doesn’t consume any mana then that should be plenty.

Since it’s a short sword for infantry, I guess it would be good to let Bel carry it until we sell it.

.....

“Is that okay!?”

After being handed the 【Short-Sword.Of.Sturdy】 by me Bel’s eyes were sparkling. Bel immediately checked the status and just as I told her used the spell {Detect.Magic}.

“I tried using it once but the incantation is engraved into the blade. If you speak the incantation while holding the handle then you can use the spell built into the sword. It seems to be a defensive spell. If you have time later then it’s fine if you try out various things with it.”

When I was taking a shower in the teleport room on the 5th floor Bel and the others arrived so I immediately handed over the sword to her. When I pulled it out while saying Ta~da~, when everyone saw the unfamiliar sword short in a leather scabbard they quickly noticed it was something I obtained in the dungeon but as expected they didn’t think it was a magic weapon.

Bel pulled out the sword and is looking at the blade. Around her everyone is saying random things like “After all the radiance of the blade is different” or “The cutting edge seems quite good as well.”

Just as the name sounds it has a considerably high Endurance level so I think it’s a good sword. Take good care of it.

.....

Year 7445, Month 4, Day 11

On a day in the middle of three days off, I spent almost the entire day training spells together with Miduchi and that night, it was when we were all eating dinner together.

“Ah...”

Ralpa who was sitting on my left in between Miduchi and I raised her voice. What is it, did you drop some meat or something? and when I was thinking that Miduchi stood up and invited Ralpa further into the restaurant.

You bastard~ what are you doing dropping meat on top of me, didn’t you make my clothes dirty. You’re cheeky, let’s take this outside for a bit.

I wonder if it’s that sort of thing? I exchanged glances with Toris who was sitting in front of me and we were both about to stand up. Zenom who was sitting across from Giberuti and Basutorial at the four person table to my right is already completely drunk and didn’t notice at all.

“It’s fine, so stop.”

Bel said that while grabbing Toris’s sleeve and pulling him back to his seat.

“But you know..”

There’s a piece of cooked meat fallen near the ground where Miduchi was sitting to my left. The small pouch Miduchi always carries around with her isn’t here either. Are you serious? While thinking Miduchi sure is unpopular~ I stood up from my seat. Bel is still trying to get Toris to sit down.

“It would be best if you don’t go.”

In front of where Ralpa was sitting, next to Bel Angela said that while looking at me. Our table fits six people.

“No..I can’t just leave things like this right?”

“It’s not that sort of thing. Please just leave them alone.”

On our left, there’s another four person table where Zulu was and Gwine was talking with Zulu’s woman but she cut off her conversation to look up at me while saying. I reluctantly sat back down with a question mark above my head but I can’t help but feel curious about it.

After Bel and Angela whispered about something together, they ate some cooked meat that was sliced thinly.

A, Ah. Did that start...

It seems Toris noticed as well and after exchanging glances with me made a slightly embarrassed face with a troubled smile.

I’m sure my expression isn’t much different.

Since I didn’t know what to say, I just drank some beer and ate some food.

That night, I tried asking Miduchi and it seems that after all her period suddenly started. Since she missed her planned date the one who realized the fastest was Miduchi but it seems that expecting something like this she normally carries around some new underwear for menstruation.

That is well, I’ve heard plenty of stories about mensuration days being off based on condition.

“Nn..It should be fine as long as I’m paying attention in regards to the women right. You don't need to bother worrying over every thing like that."

That's a big help. Though I try to prepare ahead for a variety of different situations and assumptions, I didn't prepare for that much, and even if I were to have made preparations on that front I'm sure she wouldn't want to make use of it so I'm saved by just leaving things in that regard to Miduchi.

Author's note:

"{Bark Skin}" Alteration

(Earth Magic Lv. 2, Water Magic Lv. 2, Void Magic Lv. 5, Consumes 13 MP, combination of Void Magic)

Raises the defensive power of the targets skin like bark. It's not like it actually becomes bark so it doesn't obstruct the movements of the target. The effect will continue until either the duration ends or the the target takes an amount of damage to their HP that exceeds the level of the caster. The duration of the effect is the same number of seconds as the level of the caster.

Chapter 179: Expectation

Year 7445, Month 4, Day 12

All of us went running excluding Ralpa who's menstruation started last night and except for her since she said she didn't feel good it was when we were all eating breakfast together. Bel over the talking voices of a group that seemed to be adventurers while we were eating at the same place.

"..Al-san, it seems that {Black Topaz} announced it when they returned this morning but they discovered a magic item on the 1st floor. It was a sword that a moving skeleton was holding in one of the rooms and it seems to have been called {Short-Sword.Of.Blunt}."

"On the first floor.."

..However, how should I look at it. Is it a completely blunt sword or a sword that dulls the movements of those it cuts? But, I'm sure there's no mistake it's a magical weapon...However, for it to be a skeleton. In the past, I tried thinking about the reason why there's no skeletons in this world in my own way but I guess that was a mistake. After all they exist. The impression I had from a movie on Sinbad I saw on television when I was a child was strong. A skeleton swordsman huh? Well the one remaining the strongest in my memory is the seven skeleton swordsmen who moved at the same time in the movie with the ship Argo and it's exploration group though.

"For it to have been on the 1st floor that is..Quite good luck indeed."

Angela was shocked hearing the conversation. It's hard to say we struggled for it but just the other day, the two of us defeated a {Frost Lizard} and obtained the magical weapon {Short-Sword.Of.Sturdy} on the 5th floor as well. However, on the 1st floor is..Honestly speaking, I can't accept it so easily either. Angela's tail seems to have dropped down and seems to have no energy. Even though she's finally started to show her emotions..I guess it's unrelated huh? No, precisely because her emotions are expressed more abundantly is it drooping down? Let's think that way. I think that's better for my mental health.

“A skeleton..I wonder what was going on with the magic stone?”

Gwine said strangely. Oh~ Gwine, you too huh? So you were thinking the same thing as me.

I'll give you one of the zabuton of my heart.

“So an undead monster appeared on the 1st floor as well..”

Miduchi whispered. Somehow for a skeleton to be an undead monster. Somehow I have more of an image like some kind of villain created and is controlling it using the fang of a dragon through something like magic. The influence of movies is big. However, as expected of Miduchi, she knows everything. When I showed admiration and said that she said, “They appear all the time in games.” I played a game once as well but I can't remember every little thing like that.

“I wonder about that? It's just my guess but it sounds like a special monster on the 1st floor like the Golem in the past, that strange dead person, vampire was it? or the Roper. I don't know if it was strong or not though.”

Zenom is putting his fried egg on a piece of bread and putting pepper on that. Oh~ so there's that way of looking at it as well, as expected of Zenom, the old man's wisdom is always better than the tortoise shell*.

“I see, that might be the case..Ah, is it fine if I can have the pepper?”

Zulu took the pepper from Zenom and started pouring his usual amount on his fried eggs. I always think it but that's using way too much right...

It was just then.

“I don't want to! I'll never let go of it! This is, this sword is something I obtained! It's mine!”

“Vikkusu! Just stop it already!”

“Shit! It's no good! This guy won't let go of it!”

“What the hell..However what in the world does this mean?”

We could hear shouts and voices of an argument from outside coming our way. All of the customers inside of the resutraunt including us we're looking outside at the street. There's one man and he's walking as he drags along two or three men and women clinging to his body. There's also another few people around them.

They're all people I know. Those guys are {Black Topaz}. I can see sis Anderson's flustered face as well.

"What in the world is that...It's everyone from {Black Topaz} right."

Giberuti whispered but no one was able to nod to that. Everyone is dumbfounded just watching over the series of events.

"I wonder what they're arguing over? Was there some sort of complaints over their cut?"

Basutoral put his question into his mouth but that might actually be the case, though it's still hard to tell for sure.

"Vikkusu! That belongs to me. Stop being so obstinate already!"

I can hear Anderson's voice.

"Red-sama, even if you say that, and no matter how many times you say my response is already decided. This alone I won't give up on. I was born~ to meet this."

Vikkusu, the Dog-people man named Vikkensu-Barukemi replied while holding the sword to his chest. He must really have been pleased with that sword. But you know, didn't you always use the battle mace?

"What in the world are you saying, this oaf. That's a magical weapon!? It's not something you can make a decision on!"

The human man named Kaku.Dankel who's the sub-leader of the party rebuked him. It seems he's one of the front line of {Black Topaz}. When we saw them fighting the {Frost Lizard} before he was the first one frozen in ice so my image of him being useless is strong but he's rumored to be quite skilled among those in Baldukk.

"That's why I'll pay for it. I don't need any cut from here on out either! It's plenty with just enough money go on eating!"

The Dog-people man shouts.

"Fool! There's no way that would be enough! Like we would let go of an item that could be sold for several billion for small change like that!”

The Laios man with the nickname Baru, Baruteinesu.Zomu yelled while holding down Vikkusu.

“Red-sama, Red-sama! I can clearly understand! This fellow wants me to use it! I’m begging you! Please leave it to me. I’ll do anything.”

Vikkusu is yelling in a loud voice at Anderson as falls to the ground begging. His state is clearly strange. I tried using 【Identify】 on Vikkusu and it came up as 【Condition: Charm(Cursed Item)】.
What in the world is that?

Since he has a strange obsession over the sword so I guess the sword itself is the {Cursed Item}? I tried using 【Identify】 on the sword Vikkusu is holding to his chest.

【Short-Sword.Of.Blunt】
【Iron】
【State: Good】
【Manufacture Date: 12/4/7445】
【Value: 1】
【Endurance: 1920】
【Ability: 71–100】
【Effect: Charm User】

So that’s the {Magical.Weapon} they got their hands on the dungeon. When I tried reading the sub-window and it seems that when the user puts it on their sword band and grabs the handle the curse of charm is cast on them, they’ll be so pleased with the sword that they can’t help themselves. However, it seems it’s possible to release it using either the spell {Remove.Curse} or the spell {Dispel.Magic} that’s stronger than normal. Though I say that, this is my first time hearing of the spell {Remove.Curse} and it seems it needs a spell with enough mana poured into the {Dispel.Magic} as if a level 100 magician uses on the spell Perfect Charm, {Charm.Any.Creature}.

Yeah, impossible.

Even if I were to succeed at the spell {Dispel.Magic} that sword would turn to dust it seems and in either case it’s beyond my capability.

“It looks almost like a curse..”

Miduchi whispered. I exchanged glances with her and lightly nodded and she made a face as if she understood.

During that time Vikkusu were forcefully lifted up and dragged off in the direction they were heading.

“What in the world was that?”

Toris tilts his head while saying.

“I guess they were arguing over how to split up that supposed {Magical.Weapon}?”

Bel runs her fingers through her hair while replying.

Just after lunch of this day, there was contact for Gwine from the map dealer. It seems that three more maps of the 1st floor were sold. The owners were parties I had never heard of. It been said for a while that magic items appear even on the 1st floor but when one actually appears, those rumors call more rumors and it seems the people blinded by money all came to buy it. If they were to get their hands on a magic item worth billions then I’m sure an investment of 10,000,000 Z (10 gold coins) is nothing at all.

Gwine was greatly pleased.

She doesn’t own a company but as expected since it’s a large sum of money normally you’d have to pay income tax on it. However, things like maps aren’t luxury goods and when it comes to a map of the dungeon it’s not considered military goods either. In addition to that she’s not even a normal commoner but a Free Person who aren’t taxed for the business they do. They just have to pay 2,000,000 Z a year for the individual tax and that’s it. If you can earn then as long as you don’t pay any attention to outer appearances being a Free Person seems nice as well.

Normally when Free People succeed in their business, even if it means losing 10% to taxes they try to quickly become commoners. It lets them be able to leave the territory and it’s common for Free People to be looked down on for how low their social standing is as well. If they’re a commoner then it’s possible for them to serve a Lord somewhere as well so they can give their children a bit brighter of a future.

.....

Year 7445, Month 4, Day 19

Last night we returned from the dungeon, the night passed by and during lunch of today. When I was eating together with Miduchi, Ralph and Gwine came along looking for me.

“Al just listen! Miduchi! Listen, listen! It’s something terrible!”
“It’s not the situation to be leisurely eating food. The two of you, come with us to Boil Manor right away.”

We were dragged along by the two of them in a hurry and returned to Boil Manor. Really~ what is it? I was thinking about showing my face in my company in the capital after this though...There most likely won’t be any deliveries of goods until the beginning of fall so it’s necessary to go and adjust the amount of goods occasionally.

When we returned to Boil Manor everyone other than the slaves were gathered in Zenom’s room.

When we entered the room Zenom started talking.

“Al, there’s been some movements I don’t think we can afford to ignore. It’s about that Faruergaz and the others.”

Huh? Did they do something?

“It seems they entered {Sun Ray}.”

Eh? What was that?

According to the information that I heard from them the story went like this. After Faruergaz and the others obtained Gwine’s map of the 1st floor from the map dealer they recognized it as being some useful. One and a half months after obtaining the map they adjusted to the dungeon quite a bit and recently thanks to the map they’ve gotten used to efficiently moving around and avoiding monsters.

It seems that thanks to that there was a drastic decrease in injuries from combat as well. To the point where they started discussing aiming for the 2nd floor the other day. They're newcomers but they have a reasonable level of combat ability and they also had the information from Gwine's map. It seems that the Rindobel couple from {Sun Ray} set their sights on that.

They used words to skillfully get closer to them and completely got on good terms. According to the story Ralpa and Gwine heard today they also said that {Sun Ray} and we {Slaughterers} are cooperating in challenging the dungeon together as well. Well, that portion isn't a lie. Though it's only a really small portion you can't say we aren't cooperating together after all.

Since they don't know how to doubt people they were completely deceived and believed that {Sun Ray} is really cooperating with us and making a fortune as one of the top teams in the depths of the dungeon. It's something you can figure out if you just investigate it a little bit but it's certainly true they're one of the top teams and since all of their members seem to be deeply faithful, they all have gold bands on their arms, and the emblem of a Torii on their shields and armors so they don't look like bad people.

In terms of appearances something like {Gehenna.Flare} which is filled with dwarves who all wear flashy armor that has grim ornaments all over it and easily carry around axes among them as well, even if you look at them in good light they don't seem like anything but villains. In any case just as expected one of the ones called a top team since long before we were, there's no one in Baldukk who doesn't know the name of {Sun Ray}.

Even if they were to try and gather information bad rumors about {Sun Ray} wouldn't come out so easily. After all starting with the members of the top teams there's no way the first-rate adventurers of Baldukk would properly speak with Faruergaz and the others. Even if they were to talk there's no way the top teams would care if Faruergaz and the others who have only stepped foot on the 1st floor were to join {Sun Ray}. There's no way you would think it could lead to a sudden increase in the forces of {Sun Ray} after all.

If you were to ask then they'd probably think if someone like that really joins {Sun Ray} then they'd act as luggage and drag them down so it wouldn't be strange if they said "That's a great idea. There's plenty you could learn from one of the top teams, give it your best.” and encouraged them.

Also, if you were to try and investigate the sources of information other than the top teams, all you would be able to find is that they’re a deeply faithful top team and since they have a lot of members they might really seem like one of the tops in terms of synthesized abilities, there’s no way of finding anything out more than that.

There’s some pretty big merits to being a member of a top team. For starters, you can learn the {know-how} of exploring the dungeon. Other than that there’s also knowledge about dangerous monsters and combat with monsters that aren’t all that powerful. Being able to learn things like that is big. Of course, the biggest is still that you can travel to the lower floors while participating with highly skilled other members and increase the chances you’ll get your hands on a huge treasure worth a fortune.

There are a lot of people that were trained by the top teams in Baldukk and then after that started their own independent parties as well. The leader of {Verdure.Brotherhood} Robert.Virhaima seemed to have trained when he was a member of one of the top teams at the time when he was young and even managed to raise up the {Verdure.Brotherhood} into what was considered the strongest independent party for a period of time. Incidentally the leader of {Bright.Blade} Jankoto.Demitoridas also seems to have been a senior in the same party as Viruhaima at that time.

Faruergaz and Hirosukol must have realized there’s a lot they could learn from one of the top teams as well. They might have discussed it with Kumiru and Ruttsu as well. Normally being called out by one of the top teams is something that doesn’t happen often. They might have just been happy that their abilities were recognized. Furthermore, it seems they have some sort of rivalry towards me. I’m sure they wanted to reach my level as quick as possible.

And when it comes to {Sun Ray}, they might have been attracted by the map of the 1st floor they bought as well.

The dark rumors about {Sun Ray} is something I talked with everyone about three months or so ago. That’s why everyone is very interested in this matter. Furthermore, since the one’s who have been drawn in were reincarnated people they have even more reason to be.

It seems that this morning Ralpa and Gwine met them by chance and talked about various things over tea. They decided it would be best not to casually mention the dark rumors until they discussed it with everyone and we came to a decision so they held back from offering any information and just tried to listen to what they were saying.

Since they're true knights it seems they have some pride in the fact that they're knights and when they were praised for that they talking about various things in a good mood. It seems they even went to the point of telling Gwine and Ralpa, "If you ever feel like quitting the {Slaughterers} then come and discuss it with us anytime, I'll talk to {Sun Ray} about it." It seems they dressed it up as a joke and they weren't seriously trying to recruit them but just simply laughed it off.

If you try actually talking with {Sun Ray} they're pretty well mannered and not the usual gathering of ruffians. If you don't know about the dark rumors then I'm sure you would think they're a good party.

Even we didn't have any sort of negative impression of them until last year. In the two and a half years since we came to Baldukk, we had heard a ton of stories about the top teams but {Sun Ray}, no, since we never noticed the true identity of the Rindobel couple we don't have any right to complain about them either.

However, I see. So they entered {Sun Ray}?

"I thought about showing my face at the company in the capital today but I'm canceling it. I'll give this some thought."

Seeing me smile while saying that Bel said.

"I don't think that they're bad people but if we think about the future then certainly it would be best to gain favors with them.."

"As a matter of fact I had consulted with Zenom-san and Bel about that since I while back. We'll try thinking about it as well."

Toris said while making an evil-looking smile. So he's fallen huh?

“What what? Is it a conspiracy?”

“What are you saying Ral, it’s how we can get them to distance themselves from {Sun Ray} right?”

“Eh? You’re quite the soft person as well, you can’t make it from here on out if you’re like that, in the rough seas know as life that is!”

“You, what are you saying?”

“Don’t be stupid, Gwine. It’s better if we have as much forces as we can from here on out right, if they’re strong reincarnated people then it’s all the better!”

“I understand that, but even if we were together with those people, they seem noisy..”

“Isn’t that why Bel is saying we should sell them some favors. We chip off the power in their words. I haven’t forgotten that I’ve been completely made fun after all!”

“Ah, that sort of thing...Al-san as well, that is..It seems you have various things to worry about.”

“What’s that? What does that mean?”

“It means that Al-san was already moving from quite a while back.”

“Umm..I’d prefer if you don’t make things go badly..They’re my benefactors as well..”

“Don’t be stupid~ Saji, just think about it for a bit. Whether it would be better for them to be in that {Sun Ray} or better to be together with us, the result should be clearer than the light of day.”

“That’s right, Saji-san. Which would they be happier to be a party of? I firmly think that it’s with us.”

“Ah..I guess that’s true as well..”

“And also, we’re intending to make a country. Reincarnated people can be that much more useful.”

“If it comes to that then I’m sure they’d be pleased and we’d be pleased as well. As a result isn’t it fine if no one loses out?”

“Ah..Yeah..I..guess..so?”

Why are you looking at me there with such a worried expression? I can’t do anything but make a bitter smile.

“It’s just as the two of you say. But, we won’t force them, we’ll be leaving the choice up to those two. Right?”

Miduchi concluded while questioning me.

Well something close to that is ideal.

However, I tried thinking about it again a bit. It might be a good idea to try and leave things to Toris and the others this time.

In the worst case if nothing more can be done then it should be fine if I come out at that point.

Chapter 180: Curse

Year 7445, Month 4, Day 19

While we were all grinning and making evil expressions thinking about ways to stir up the relationship there was a knock on the door.

When Basutorial dealt with them, it seems a messenger came from old man Viruhaima of the {Verdure.Brotherhood}. While tilting my head I went down to the lobby together with Miduchi and the Basuraito.Kerutein, nicksanme Basu who switched places with Toris in the dungeon way back, was waiting there.

“Ya~ Basu-san. What’s going on?”

“I’m sorry when you’re on your day off. Our leader Viruhaima seems to want to talk to you. It seems it’s in regards to the matter with {Black.Topaz}. Sorry but do you have any time after this?”

The matter of {Black.Topaz}? I wonder what in the world it is. But, it’s only obvious I’m interested. Last week, that sort of thing only just happened after all. However, if he has business then he should be the one coming to me..Well, the other side is still my several times my senior. Even in terms of age I’m quite a bit younger so I guess it can’t be helped.

“I understand. I’ll head over and visit after this but right now I’m in the middle of a meeting with my members so I need to go and notify them.”

“I see, sorry about that.”

I turned around and went back up to Zenom’s room and after telling everyone I was called out by Viruhaima of {Verdure.Brotherhood} in regards to {Black.Topaz}, Miduchi and left the meeting. In addition, I also told them that I was thinking of leaving the matter in regards to Faruergaz and the others to Toris and Zenom, just, for now I just want them to think up some ideas and let me hear them, so I told them not to move until then. Also, I mentioned that my slaves Zulu and the others already know most of the circumstances so if they’re necessary they can feel free to make use of them as well.

We followed after Basu to “Elm Tree Manor” and were let through into a room. Just as expected of the place the King stayed during the day of judgement, it's the highest grade inn in Baldukk. When I tried asking later it seems that on just the days of judgement they're asked to stay in a different inn. Well, I guess that's only obvious.

The room in the far back on the first floor of "Elm Tree Manor" was the leader of {Verdure.Brotherhood} Viruhaima's room. When Basu lead us to the room we followed after him inside when he opened the door without knocking. Inside of the room Viruhaima was sitting on a huge sofa making a difficult expression with smoke coming from a cigar in his hand. Also there was one more, a person I don't know standing against the wall but judging from their appearance they're an attendant slave.

"Yo, Greed-kun, sorry about calling you out."

Viruhaima called out to us from the sofa and pointed to the one in front of him. When I saw down lined up with Miduchi he offered a cigar

"Do you want one? They're made in Reida."

Tobacco is an expensive luxury good. It's proof that you have plenty of money to spend and having a taste for tobacco could be called one form of status. Since we all have our memories about the harms of tobacco in our previous life no one has any interest in them though. In my past life I smoked cigarettes with filters but even though I've been reborn in a new body without the addiction. Even if I were to smoke them it will be several decades later, it's fine after I'm an old man.

"Thank you very much. However, we don't smoke."

I politely refused it. He offered an expensive cigar which costs 10,000 Z (1 silver coin). And I'm sure the people of Orth don't know about the harms of smoking tobacco. There was a tobacco field even in Bakuddo.

"I see, then are you fine with tea? Hey, Zofi, make some tea, four of them."

The human woman called Zofi carefully made some tea for us and Basu. I guess her age is around 30?

"Anderson should be coming pretty soon as well. We'll start talking after that."

Viruhaima said that and returned to his difficult expression again. So they called {Black.Topaz} as well?

Since we didn't have anything in particular to do, Miduchi and I were quietly sipping some tea. I don't know the difference between good and bad tea leaves but it seems they're using reasonably good leaves and there's an extremely good scent coming from it. On the four person sofa's we spent about 10 minutes with no one saying anything. This is somehow a strange atmosphere.

Once again the door opened without a knock. The ones who came in were the leader of {Black.Topaz} Red.Anderson, her attendant Kaku.Dankel and the member of {Verdure.Brotherhood} who seems to have called them, the battle-axe using Dwarf Renbal.Flameshaft.

There was originally one, two one-person sofas, and one two-person sofas in the room but I guess they brought one from a different room, there was another two-person sofa brought added.

"I'm fine over here."

Flameshot brought a chair from the corner of the room and lined it up along the sofa and sat down. After confirming everyone had sat down I looked at Viruhaima's face.

"Sorry about suddenly calling you out."

Viruhaima said towards me.

"I need to say it as well. Greed-kun, I'm grateful you came."

"Ha.."

It seems the two of them had already decided on what to discuss. I don't have very many ideas on what it could be though.

"I'm sure you've already heard right? It's about the {Magical.Sword} we found in the dungeon the other day...If you know anything about it I'd like you to tell me."

Anderson said that while looking at me.

"The {Slaughterers} have made it up to the 7th floor. You've found several {Magic.Items} right? Have you picked up anything similar?"

Ah, that sort of thing.

“What kind of condition is he is now?”

I asked them without responding to the question.

“..There’s no what about it. Our Vikkusu is completely entranced in the sword to the point where he embraces it and won’t let go. If we try to forcefully take it from him he just starts rampaging...If we don’t do anything in particular then there’s no harm though. That’s probably, what rarely appears even among {Magic.Items} the so-called cursed goods a {Retributed.Item}...”

“Red-sama..”

I guess he was being careful of Anderson who said that painfully, Kaku called out to her with a sad expression.

“Cursed goods {Retributed.Item} is it..”

Since I asked Miduchi about it after that I’ve already learned most things about them. Though I say that, it’s information that Miduchi learned from games in our past life so I don’t think it can be completely relied upon. It seems it was the first time Miduchi had seen a {Cursed.Item} as well and in most games it seems you require some kind of exclusive magic or item to remove curses, so it was just pointless game information that didn’t seem like it would resolve the issue at all. Come to think of it, they’re calling it now {Cursed.Item} but {Retributed.Item} though I wonder if they’re the same thing...

Honestly speaking, in regards to that curse or spell or whatever I can’t think of much other than having the temple purify it.

“Umm, can’t you have the temple purify it?”

In this world of Orth that ruled by a wide variety of different superstitions, one of the jobs of the temple is “purification”. Though I say that it doesn’t seem to be anything related to magic. It seems it’s used when people get sick or when there’s poor crops, they have them come do a purification but I already knew that it was just sort of ceremony and there wasn’t any particularly effect to it as well. Incidentally there’s no ground-breaking ceremony. I just felt like saying it.

“What’s that?”

I was asked with a strange expression. I somehow feel embarrassed for saying something that seemed absurd. I glanced over at Miduchi but I was looked at with the same eyes as everyone else like “What is this person saying?” Well, I guess that’s only obvious.

“Ah, No, that is..Don’t they do things like purifying demons or illnesses and such? I was thinking, maybe as a extension of that? and..Yes, I’m sorry.”

“So Greed-kun had that sort of pure aspect to him as well..”

“Stop with the jokes. That is, just something on the level of a consolation?”

“I’m sorry, our Greed has, I’m very sorry.”

After all it seems to be no good. Miduchi has completely turned into a groveling* person. Sorry.

“Isn’t there some kind of story about people being troubled over similar items in the past? If they managed to resolve it at that time then wouldn’t it be good to use that as reference?”

It’s the ordinary method but this is probably the most constructive.

“I thought about that as well. I tried investigating it. I was able to find several stories of similar occurrences.”

Obviously Anderson thought of the same thing.

“Then, how did they resolve things at that time?”

“..After all the {Slaughterers} don’t know how to resolve it either it seems... Anderson, shouldn’t you start preparing yourself?”

Viruhaima ignored me and looked at Anderson.

“That seems to be the case..It can’t be helped, I guess..”

Anderson her assistant Dankel sat back on the sofa while sighing. After that, Dankel looked at me and started opening his mouth.

“As far as we were able to investigate there were two cases in the past 50 years, where {Retributed.Items} were discovered in the dungeon of Baldukk. The first one was a spear. It’s name was {Beautiful.Spear} and similar to this time it entranced a single man it seems.

The curse seems to have disappeared when they snapped the spear in half.

The second one was a long sword and the name wasn't conveyed in this case. This one, whenever the person who equipped it would swing it, they seemed to wound themselves or their allies. Just the same for this one when they broken it in half all of the attachments to it seemed o have disappeared as if they were lies."

I see now. Then it's simple. They just need to destroy that {Short-Sword.Of.Blunt}. Even if we say the Endurance is high if some people with confidence in their strength take turns smashing it with a battle hammer or mace then it'll break sooner or later I'm sure.

"Hey, don't look at us like that. I had already heard that far as well. You're just thinking it's fine as long as they break it right? I thought so too."

Viruhaima shrugged his shoulders while saying.

"However, in the end we're just outsiders. We can say as we please. We can easily tell them to break an item they went through some troubles to get their hands on and might be worth a decent amount. Normally, it's difficult to even imagine that it would have been a {Retributed.Item}. I didn't know about them either.."

Viruhaima inhaled a full breath of smoke from the cigar and exhaled it out. That's such a wasteful way to smoke the cigar, this middle-aged elf.

I looked at Miduchi before nodding.

"Please let me confirm several things. I think it was Vikkusu, Barukemi-san of {Black.Topaz}? he's completely normal other than his attachment to the sword right?"

Hearing my words Anderson and Dankel nodded.

"He won't rampage or anything?"

Miduchi tried asking. Simultaneously Miduchi touched my hand and used {Party-ization}. Inside of my head the orders "Copy It", "Count It", "Learn", and "Test it" echoed through. Since the first two were words that don't exist in this world they're a code (the "count" order is literal).

"Copy It" refers to the dungeon of Baldukk. The next "Count It" refers to XX time or {next}. The meaning changes depending on the order it comes out. Since it's the second order then in this case it means {next}. After that is all literal meanings.

In other words, if I were to simply interpret it then it's "Learn it and test it during the next dungeon". If I were to try to explain it too far then it could also mean "Learn it twice in the dungeon and test it." or "learn it in the dungeon and test it twice." as well but it doesn't make as much sense like that. Most likely, she wants to say "The next time we go to the fairies place learn the spell {Remove.Curse} and let's test it out."

If we just wanted to have a conversation without anyone else hearing it then {Telepathy} would be sufficient but it doesn't activate unless the target is constantly in your sight and while it's active your eyes shine with the blue light from the spell. Ah, it seems my eyes shine when I use Identify as well but it's such a weak light that unless you were paying close attention and already knew about it you wouldn't notice.

"There's no problem as long as we don't try to take the sword from him. Even when it comes to conversation as long as we don't say to hand over the sword there's no problem. Do you know something?"

Anderson looked over with hope in her eyes. Well yeah. But it's not like I'm confident in it.

"It's a spell. But I can't say it will definitely work. It will take some time for preparations as well.."

"Even then it's fine. Would you mind testing it out?"

"It's fine if it's testing it out. However, it's impossible right away. I need to order something for it as well and that will take around three weeks. I have no idea what might end up happening to the sword either."

Needing to order something is a complete lie. It's just an excuse to earn some time.

"I intend to thank you as best as I can. If it's just that much time then it's plenty within a reasonable range."

Anderson and Dankel lowered their heads together.

“Hey, Greed-kun. Somehow or other try and save her. It doesn’t seem like either of us will be catching up to you {Slaughterers} for the time being. It’s not particularly like you lose anything right?”

I wonder about that. Since I doubt there’s many live cases where I could practice the spell {Remove.Curse} on someone I’m grateful on that end but I can’t really say things like that so easily.

“..Well, I guess so. It’s fine. Let’s try it. However..”

I put on airs while taking a sip of tea. Everyone in the room is looking at me.

“Please let me make a few requests in regards to your thanks. Ah, I don’t need money. Also, even if it goes well, I don’t need the sword either. I can’t imagine something like a {Retributed.Item} would sell either way.”

“Then, what is it?”

Anderson said while gulping.

“It should be obvious. Several pieces of information, and a promise, I guess around there?”

Hearing my words the three from {Verdure.Brotherhood} and the two from {Black.Topaz} made strange faces. The female slave named Zofi is still leaning against the wall expressionless like a doll. That’s quite the well trained slave.

“For starters I’ll get into contact with you when my preparations are complete. That time, please bring along Barukemi-san. If possible it would be the best if you knock him out first but if it’s impossible then I’ll somehow manage to take care of that on our end.”

“There’s no problem with that. We didn’t think we’d be allowed to see the spell either way.”

Well, that’s only obvious. I would be troubled if they complained here.

“After that, please promise not to reveal this matter to anyone other than those of us here right now.”

“Of course. There’s no problem at all, these two are good at keeping their mouths shut. They can be trusted.”

“It’s the same for me as well. Kaku will never talk about it.”

Honestly speaking, even if they were to mention it somewhere it's nothing that would be of great harm to me so it's just something like insurance.

"And, after that is..about {Sun Ray}. I asked both of you about them a bit the other day but..while it was only just a small portion, since we were cooperating over using the same facilities, I was a bit interested in them. If you know anything other than that please teach me. After that is..please don't pry into it, I guess?"

"Putting aside things relating to {Sun Ray} I have no intention of prying. It's only obvious that you would try to conceal things related to the spell."

"Ah, certainly there's that as well. However, what I wanted to say was that, no matter what may occur between us and {Sun Ray} I want you to remain unconcerned and not take part in it, I want that sort of firm promise. The other day, {Sun Ray} tried to send a member into our party. It's nothing more than a precaution."

"Ho.."

"He.."

"Also, just one more thing. This is quite literally just a confirmation but are {Verdure.Brotherhood} and {Black.Topaz} in a cooperative relationship?"

I grinned with a smile while asking. Most likely, these guys are already cooperating to some extent. Though it's just at the level of, so what? If that wasn't the case there's no way they'd both say something like this to me at the same time right?

Well, this is really just a simple confirmation.

Chapter 181: Preparation

Year 7445, Month 4, Day 19

“We talked quite a bit.”

Miduchi and I were taking as we walked towards Boil Manor. Up until just now the seven of us were talking for about an hour. Though I say that, the ones doing most of the talking me, old man Viruhaima, and sis Anderson, just the three of us.

Partway through it ended up like them interviewing us {Slaughterers} but looking from their end, since we’ve long since exceeded both their hunting ground on the 5th floor and are exploring the 6th and 7th floors so they probably wanted to pull out as much information as they could.

Of course, we defended our information without leaking any of it and I was offered the words, “Che...What an uncute brat.” What should I do something so sad as exposing information for not even a single Z. It’s on a different level from removing the curse from the cursed sword.

Something like removing a curse is all over when finished and offered thanks but information on the dungeon continues further, if they were to get ahead of themselves and overtake us into the 8th floor then my treasure might end up disappearing. You can’t let your guard down when it comes to the top teams.

But, after all it seems both {Verdure.Brotherhood} and {Black.Topaz} were starting to look into the 6th floor...On the contrary there’s some meaning that I was able to obtain that information. It means at the very least they chose to earn on the 5th floor rather than unreasonably trying to enter the 6th floor.

Though I say that, the veteran party in Baldukk that {Verdure.Brotherhood} is has an average age in their mid-30s or beyond, so they might just not intend to overdo things in order to earn more.

In any case, I was able to prevent the cooperating top teams {Verdure.Brotherhood} and {Black.Topaz} from prying(There wasn’t any sort of prying so far but that's nothing more than non-intervention without any sort of promise. I was able to get a promise that they'd maintain that non-intervention from here on out. Though it's just a verbal promise) too far into our matters so I definitely gained something from it.

.....

We returned to Boil Manor and I decided to have a cup of tea in my own room and take a short break before showing my face in Zenom's room. Soon after we returned to the inn Miduchi returned to Zenom's room. Rather than me suddenly appearing, I thought it would be easier for them to have a bit of time to organize things.

I spend a bit of time thinking about and organizing things from here on out as I drink my tea as well.

One, in two weeks I'll go to teacher Mila's place and have her teach me the spell {Remove.Curse}. However, it's assuming there actually is such a spell. In the case there isn't..there's no other choice than do something that seems appropriately similar and say it was impossible. Though it's uncool.

Two, I'll remove the curse from the sword on Barukemi of {Black.Topaz}. What happens to the sword after that isn't my problem. Otherwise there's the possibility that {Remove.Curse} could fail as well. In that case it's uncool as well but there's no helping it.

Three, if both one and two go well then at the very least I can create a favor with {Black.Topaz}. It won't count as a favor with {Verdure.Brotherhood} but at the very least I can just get them to keep an eye on things. After all, my only requests were a vague promise and some useless information on {Sun.Ray}.

Four, if one and two both end up unsightly then..that itself isn't a problem either. In reality things will be no different from up until now. I might be looked at lightly by {Black.Topaz} and {Verdure.Brotherhood} but that can't be helped and in the first place they knew from the start they were asking for something unreasonable. It should at best end as "So they aren't any different than us."

It should be fine to think that the matter involving the cursed sword this time won't end up as a minus to the {Slaughterers} no matter how things fall into place.

Now then, the problem is {Sun.Ray} and Faruergaz and the others. I wonder what everyone will decide to do about it? If it's not anything too unreasonable then fundamentally I'd like to just {GO} with it right like that. Even in the case things don't go well as long as Faruergeaz and Hirosukol don't die as a result of our actions, I'm sure there will be countless chances to recover from it.

What I need to be careful of is wracking my brains over not making a definitive gutter between our potential combat candidates from here on out. And then, making sure that their lives aren't put at risk as a result of our actions, just these two things.

It was then that I heard a knock on the door. When I opened the door the brat of the inn was there and he came to relay a message to me. It's from owner of "Slave Store, Ronslail", Madam.Ronslail. It seems they were successfully able to secure Basutorial's woman. However, the person herself seems uneasy about it. Fu~mu. It seems like there could be some problems just ignoring as well. Even after the brat returned downstairs after giving me the message I stood for a bit holding the door handle while thinking.

Just like that I left the room, went to Zenom's room and knocked on the door before opening it. Including Miduchi, the seven of them all looked at me.

"Ah, everyone, we'll be entering the dungeon in three days but.. We're going to stay inside for 8 days instead of 6. We'll earn from the 22nd until the 29th. Well, a big week of earning before Golden Week. Is there any problem with that?"

"Yeah, no problem."

Zenom acted as the representative of everyone and responded.

"Got it, then, after that is seven days off. It's a holiday until May 6th. Starting from the 7th we'll go back to usual."

"I see. Understood. Is everyone else fine with that?"

Everyone nodded in agreement.

"I'm heading out for a bit. Also, let me hear what you guys came up with over dinner."

I said that and closed the door.

.....

On my way to “Slave Store, Ronslail” I tried running some calculations. Since we’re exploring the dungeon for 8 days this time, we should be able to earn on the 7th floor for 5 of those days. Recently we’ve been able to defeat an average of about 20 ogres per day. The sale price of an ogres magic stone is roughly just over 800,000 Z (80 silver coins). Well it comes out to earning around 15,000,000 Z (15 gold coins) per day.

And, Basutorial’s remaining debt is 600,000 Z. In four days if there weren’t many ogres then it would be vague but if it’s five days then it should definitely leave some change remaining. The 1st day of next month is pay day but since I’m going to teacher Mila’s place that day I’ll hand them their wages of 200,000 Z the day before.

It seems he’ll be able to pay back his debt to me before Golden Week. Since I’m properly paying him his wages and portion, he was able to earn over 6,000,000 Z in last then half a year, well, I guess I’m willing to give him a passing grade.

I opened the door to “Slave Store, Ronslail” and when I called out to the madam who seemed bored as she talked to the head clerk and suddenly the madam changed her expression and offered me a seat.

“Ronslail-san, thank you for contacting me.”

“No not at all, since it was a request from our patron Greed-sama after all, we’ll take care of it without missing a thing.”

The sexy elf manager is acting as courteously as she can. The more the name of the {Slaughterers} increases the better the reputation of her store gets and it’s not like it costs money so I’m sure she doesn’t regret it no matter how courteous she has to act. I’ve heard that even Rozewela has been using this store since about a year ago. In my case there’s no way I would take being treated courteously badly either.

“It seems that the woman I requested has arrived. However, she’s uneasy or something? I came to talk with her for a bit.”

“Thank you very much for coming so quickly. I’ll call her into the back room so please wait for a moment.”

The madam said that before ordering the head clerk to prepare the woman in the back.

“Putting that aside, what’s going on with the combat slaves I requested the other day?”

“Yeah, in regards to that but Greed-sama did you know that right now there’s another conflict going on at the Dirt Plains? Yesterday, I was contacted by Benisshu Company in the capital. Currently, though I say that it seems to be from the start of last month but it seems the war prisoners exceeded 30 people. Around summer their transportation and sorting should be finished so they should make it around to us as well. On that occasion I’ll get into contact with you first.”

Benisshu company is the name of the largest slave trader that manages the sale of people in Rombert Kingdom. The owner is a person called Count Bennishu and their family has run this Benisshu company through the generations. This Benisshu company exclusively does wholesale and also organizes the slave market but excluding some special exceptions they fundamentally only sell wholesale to other slave merchants. It seems they also stock up outside of the country, they’re a company that deals solely in slaves, and they’re said to be the only company that is in possession of a Type-1 First Variety license which only a few have been issued in the first place.

Or rather, if we were going off of my knowledge their company would be easier to call a semi-government one. Most likely, they’re tied to the government. All of the prisoners that were captured in external conflicts, excluding those of a high social standing where a ransom can be made, pass through Benisshu company once as combat slaves. After that, they buy only the combat slaves necessary for slave merchants and then resell them. The resale is limited to just slave merchants. Even when it comes to the King’s direct fourth knight group, or the various knight groups of noble territories and official organizations if they need combat slaves it’s necessary for them to get them through these slave merchants after they’ve been resold.

Also, it's only natural but they also buy from the slave merchants inside of the country. During that process it's only obvious they buy other types of slaves then just combat slaves. After all, it's not saying too much to say they deal in the largest number of slaves in the country. The image might be closest to a wholesale store that always has a huge stock. Naturally, combat slaves should only make up around 10% of their total. The profit margin of each individual slave probably isn't a lot but since the quantity they deal in is different, I'm sure they're profiting.

The combat slave specialty company "Tani Slave Company" ..is said to be the only company in Rombert Kingdom that deals exclusively in combat slaves. Though I'll never go back there again..and then Ronslail Company that runs "Slave Store, Ronslail", and Riggusu Company that runs "Synthesized Slave Shop" the companies that deal in slaves of Baldukk all fundamentally stock up on their combat slaves from this Bennishu Company. Ronslail Company and Riggusu Company deal in slaves other than just combat slaves but even so the rate to stock up from Benisshu Company should be quite high.

In the capital there's several large companies that deal in wholesale of a single specialty good like this Benisshu Company. I myself want to raise Greed Company into a large whole seller that specializes in rubber products as well. Even if I make my own country it's still necessary to earn foreign currency and I think it's important to grasp the circulation of the various products that will be produced in Bakuddo and my territory in the future not just for the sake of taxes but to gain some stable profits as well.

Currently Rozural.Ryogu is registered as the head clerk of Greed Company but this will probably be inherited as an honorable occupation for the squire families that come on business trips from Bakuddo. For convenience sake, Rozural's wife Wendy.Ryogu is registered as a sales clerk but I intend to exchange her with Yotlen pretty soon. I think around the time the next squire family comes to change shifts with the Ryogu family should be just right? Well, it's fine even if there's several head and sales clerks though.

"Well then, shall we go?"

I follow after the madam into the back room and there was a Cat-people wearing some plain clothes standing against the wall. She seems nervous and a bit exhausted.

“She is Catherine.Enforu from Rockfall village.”

I nod once to the madam and stood in front of Cathy. So this is Basutorial’s woman huh? Certainly she’s not at the level of an elf but she’s pretty good looking.

“It’s nice to meet you, Enforu-san. My name is Alan.Greed. Bastural..I’m Sajesu.Basutorial’s employer.”

“Umm, Sajesu, is Saji safe? Was he really able to become a Free Person?”

She asked me with a face on the verge of crying. I guess it hasn’t been that long since she was purchased. She doesn’t seem have been educated because she’s not offering her hand. Slaves that are used to being sold will hold out their hand for using {Status Open}.

“Yeah, he’s a Free Person. The debt of 5,000,000 Z he owed for that sake as well, he should have it completely paid off by the end of this month.”

While Cathy was at a lost for words hearing that I turned around to face the madam and asked.

“Ronlail-san. What’s her current price?”

“..Since we promised to try and get it as cheap as possible, 1,600,000 Z is fine.”

Ho~ That’s a good number. Certainly if it’s that price then they probably only made back the expenses on her.

“I think that he’ll only be able to come and buy her after we enter June at the fastest. No matter what please don’t sell her to anyone other than Sajesu.Basutorial.”

“Yes, that only natural.”

I nod and then turned around to Cathy again.

“Your hand.”

“Eh?”

“Please let me confirm your status. I’ll confirm if you’re really Catherine.Enforu.”

“Ah, yes. I’m sorry.”

Just in case I used Identify to check it. Her age is 17 and there’s no mistake on the name either. Since there’s no reason for Ronslail to deceive me over something like this it’s only proper to think she’s the actual person.

“Enforu-san. I really want to let you meet Basutorial but please endure for another 1–2 months. Right now he’s risking his life daily as an adventurer in Baldukk to earn money. However, the fact that he’s still a newcomer is undeniable. The monsters in the dungeon are frightening and even just a bit of negligence or impatience could cost him his life. Right now, if I were to let Basutorial meet you, since he’s still inexperienced he’ll definitely try to hurry and earn money faster.”

“..”

Cathy had tears building up in her eyes as she glared at me.

“If he hurries he might get seriously injured. If he’s careless then it’s possible he might even lose his life. That’s why, unfortunately I can’t let you meet him yet. At the very least, until he’s earned enough money to buy you I don’t want him to get impatient. I’m very sorry but please endure for another 1–2 months.”

“..”

In some ways it’s a cruel declaration. However, I have no relation or connection with this Cathy. Rather than her feelings, Basutorial’s life and growth are important.

“However, if you see his face and energetic appearance then I’m sure you would be able to relax a bit as well. Tomorrow morning, around dawn, he’ll be running in front of this store together with us. If you don’t call out to him and remain hidden then I’ll let you see his appearance.”

When I said that I shifted my glance from Cathy to Ronslail.

“Ronslail-san. Tomorrow and the day after tomorrow in the morning, if she wishes, could you please let her watch the road in front of the store from the second floor. However, make sure it's from further inside so she can't be seen from the window."

"I understand, Greed-sama."

I nodded at Ronslail and finally called out to Cathy.

"Well then, Enforu-san. Please stay healthy. Make sure you properly eat what you can. If you were to get sick then it would cost money for you to recover. Obviously that portion would be added to your price. If you don't want to increase the burden on Basutorial anymore than this then please be careful to stay as healthy as possible."

I excused myself from Ronslail's store.

After all money is definitely necessary but if they want it then it's necessary to give them women as well.

Ah, it's not like I'm granting her to him or anything like that so the meaning is completely different.

.....

We decided to eat dinner at the usual "Murowa". We occupied some tables in the back of the store and each enjoyed our own food and drink and when everyone had arrived I decided to ask about Faruergaz and the others, no, how they plan to deal with {Sun.Ray}.

"Al-san, we've decided on the rough plan so please listen."

Toris started speaking.

"Yeah, I guess so. Let me hear it."

...

.....

.....

"Got it. Then, I'll leave this matter to you Toris. But, it's not like it's necessary to hurry with it so don't go too far with it and do anything too severe."

"Of course."

I'm a bit curious about how Ralpa and Bel are saying something but well it's fine. If it's Bel then I'm sure she can make good use of Ralpa and she'll make sure it doesn't cause any problems to fall on me as well.

In the first place, since even Miduchi is helping them, and there's Zenom as well. Things shouldn't get too crazy.

Even if things do end up crazy then I'll just have to reflect on and make use of that from here on out I guess?

Chapter 182: Repayment Complete

Year 7445, Month 4, Day 20

The same as usual we all go running before dawn. Obviously Basutorial is together with us as well. We depart from in front Boil Manor and start running towards the outer crater.

It's already been close to five months since Basutorial started running with us. However, it's only on days we don't enter the dungeon so his stamina hasn't quite caught up yet. Recently since he's leveled up so suddenly, it might only be slightly but his actual physical abilities should have gone up as well. However, as expected it's still not enough for him to catch up to everyone else.

Though I say that, while Basutorial is wearing clothes that are easy to run in, everyone else is wearing armor or even holding bags on their backs so it hasn't reached the point where we're leaving Basutorial behind. Even if were all running for the same two hours if we just keep increasing the load then we can prevent adjusting to it and it losing it's effectiveness.

We're almost to "Slave Store, Ronslail".

"Hey, Basutorial, sing a song. A marching song."

"... ..Wwa...ha....Whh, what?"

Stop losing your breath over something at jsut this level.

"Something that gets us into the spirit. Do you know "Specialty of Infantry"?"

".. ...I, I don't know it."

I guess it's only obvious he wouldn't know huh?

"Then something you would probably know.."Gunkan Machi". Sing it."

"..Wwa..Ha..I don't know it."

"Eeeh!!? Pro~tect or atta~ck, there's~ no trouble~ that sort of one? You really don't know it?"

"..Aa, I know the song...Ppa..at "pachinko places"..the one that's often...being played right.”

“Ah, that’s it.”

“I don’t..know the lyri..lyrics..Rather didn’t it go “when battleship yamato sinks”..”

Huh?

The one I know is,

“Even though there’s no rubber, no bamboo, or not joints, even though there’s no war with a single steel helmet, a single gun, and two bullets, oh son~ where are you going, with a vein standing out to the fields to scatter your seed~” that one but it seems like there’s a number of them.

“Really~ you are useless..Then as expected you know this one right, “Hakone Hachiri” is fine, so sing it.”

“...Wa, yes..I’ll sing!”

“The~ mountains~ of Hakonee~ something or other! Even though~ they have no~ borders~”

Basutoral started singing the marching song with a super cheerful melody. Everyone who started looking at me like a madman for suddenly telling him to sing are gradually singing along as well. It’s a Japanese tradition from the past to sing out loud while running. Even during club activities you’ll often yell out “One~Two~” as you pace yourself.

Zulu and Angela had no idea what was going on hearing a marching song for the first time but it seems they noticed that if they move their feet along with the rhythm things feel a bit easier. They originally just started to join me to try and act as a bodyguard for me but it seems they eventually heard from someone the meaning in training your body and recently have proactively tried to participate. Their expressions seemed to have gotten a bit softer.

“Very~high~mount~ains~ with~ a bottom~less~ravine..”

From the end of the group while running I glanced up at the second floor of Ronslail’s store. It was too dark that I couldn’t tell.

“Ora! You’re voices are too small~!”

“Even~~dur~ng t~he day~ the~rows of cedar~ tre~es~re~ dark~!”

We’ve sung up to the second part.

“One more time!”

“..Wwa, yes!! “The mountains~ of Hakoneeeee~ borders~!..”

Umu, singing as we run could improve lung capacity as well so it might be good to continue with.

We’re troubling the neighborhood too early in the morning you say? There’s nothing like regulations to prevent being a bother to people so no point in bothering over it.

After finishing our daily running, I washed away the sweat feeling good. After that I used an appropriate reason to separate from everyone, got my horse and went to the other side of the outer crater before training like crazy with magic.

I don’t know what everyone else is doing but most likely they’re already maneuvering around things in regards to Faruergaz and the others.

Just like this our days off were used.

.....

Year 7445, Month 4, Day 22

Starting today we’re entering the dungeon again. This time we’re going to be exploring for 8 days until the 29th so we’re carrying in more food than usual.

“Zulu, what were you doing yesterday and the day before that?”

“Since we were instructed by the madam, Maruso and I were in a bar called Barankusu.”

“I see. And, how did things go?”

I start grinning while asking.

“I can’t say anything at all. It seems we were noticed a decent amount.”

“I see. Make sure you do it well. Ah, pull that leg back.”

I have Zulu pull the leg of the Gargantuan Spider we just defeated and I stab my knife into it’s body to gather the magic stone. When it comes to the weaklings like goblins and gnolls they're a waste of time so I just ignore them but when it comes to the magic stones with a decent value like hobgoblins, orks, and the room bosses we still gather them.

We arrive at the teleport room on the 3rd floor and secured a place for everyone to sleep. Soon after the rest of the members came along. It seems they're tired from all of the extra bags. We ate dinner with not much conversation and since we have to clear through the 4th and 5th floors tomorrow, excluding the lookouts we all went to sleep.

.....

Year 7445, Month 4, Day 23

Around 2 pm we arrived at the teleport room of the 5th floor. If we were to put a bit more effort into it I think we could probably clear through the 4th, 5th, and 6th floors in one day. If we split up into two parties(I don't think it's impossible even if I don't have the slaves accompanying me but when I'm alone I have to remain cautious of every direction at all times so it's a bit exhausting) on the 6th floor as well then we could probably make it to the 7th floor in two days. This is probably something we should aim for as well once the skills of the {Slaughterers} are raised a bit more without me.

No one was in the room. Around an hour after Angela and I everyone else arrived. Since I made the sleeping place, there's no much else to do. We take our time taking showers in order and Giberuti starts preparing dinner.

I wonder what's for dinner today?

Recently Basutorial has finally started to get used to the dungeon and he's finally gotten used to eating some of the heavier meals in meats. It seems tonight is pork steaks. Everyone is making faces as if drool would start coming down from the scent of the meat cooking. The 5th floor is an undead floor but since we passed through both the 4th and 5th floors today our noses are already broken. It seems that Angela and Giberuti still have some sense of smell remaining but everyone was making faces of happiness at the bad smell being erased by the scent of grilling pork.

Come to think of it, the first meal Giberuti makes after we arrive on the 5th floor is often something that has a pretty strong scent. Today is some steaks and garlic cooked together with it. It was when everyone was drinking tea and licking their lips over the meals Giberuti was making.

A group of adventurers entered the room. It's the party of 10 that's considered the first party of {Sun.Ray} lead by the Rindobel couple. It seems two of them are injured but according to Identify it's nothing serious. Of Course, since Faruergaz and the other six are considered the second party they're not here.

They came over to greet us.

"Ya~ Greed-san. We'll be spending the night over here tonight as well."

"Ya~ Rindobel-san. Please feel free."

The {Sun.Ray}'s usual spot to setup camp is along the opposite wall from where we {Slaughterers} use. While listening in on them as we chat about things and drink some tea and it seems they've started dinner as well. I guess they're mimicking us as they've brought a mounted stove magic tool and frying pan on top of it. The husband of Rindobel couple can use magic and since his water magic is considerably high at level 4, {Sun.Ray} is never really troubled with water for drinking or cooking.

While watching it seems they're kneading a small amount of water into soba flour and making crepes. Though if it's soba flour I guess it's a galette. These guys, must like galette. Following that they cut up some ham and cucumber. They seem to like cucumbers as well. But, cucumbers have almost no nutrition in them.

"It's no good if you don't eat some leafed foods."

Ralpa said as if making fun of them. Of course, it wasn't in a voice loud enough for {Sun.Ray} to hear.

"That's rude."

Bel scolded her. That's quite right. There's no need to go to the point of saying it out loud right.

“I mean, cucumbers don’t have any nutrition right? Didn’t you know?”

Ralpha objected. I get that you were thinking the same thing as me but whether or not you put it into words there is what makes up the difference between an adult and child.

“Ral, that’s not the problem. Bel is saying not to meddle in other people’s meals.”

Miduchi scolded Ralpha as well.

“I already know that. But you know..”

“Ral, just stop already. Even I can tell you’re saying something unflattering.”

Angela even joined in on scolding her. Incidentally Toris, Gwine, Zenom, and Zulu are all talking about something different. I’m having my feet massaged by Giberuti in the foot bath.

“Che...For Maruso who can’t even properly do cat’s cradle to say that.”

The volume of her voice got a bit louder. Incidentally cat’s cradle has been popular among the women of the {Slaughterers} recently. It’s only obvious but Angela is the one who’s the worst at it. Is this a fight between brats.

“You’re~ loud Ralpha, shut up!”

I scold her before the disturbance gets too big. When I glanced over at {Sun.Ray} it seems that they noticed the arguing (?) voices and I met eyes with the Rindobel couple. Since it was embarrassing I made a weak smile before looking away.

.....

Year 7445, Month 4, Day 24

In the early morning we brought along Basutorial and cleared through the 6th floor with the 10 of us then returned to the teleport room on the 5th floor again. This time we need to clear through the 6th floor again with Giberuti accompanying us. It’s started to get troublesome, so I was thinking of firmly declaring I’d clear through it myself while the remaining 10 clear through together.

“Did they already go?”

Bel is confirming with Giberuti. She’s probably asking if {Sun.Ray} has already gone to the 6th floor and isn’t around anymore.

“Yes, Koloil-sama. Around one hour after everyone left they teleported. Since then, no one has come back here.”

Giberuti picks up his bags while replying. There should have been injured among {Sun.Ray} as well but they must have decided the injuries weren’t a big deal. The ones who were injured were some of the weaker members of the first party after all, I guess they’re members that it isn’t a big deal even if they’re lost?

Otherwise, maybe they’re aiming to intentionally get them killed from traps?

“Did they say anything to you?”

This time Gwine asked.

“No, nothing in particular.”

Giberuti carries the bags on his back and looks around the camp grounds to confirm if he forgot anything.

“Hey, Ralpa, let’s go.”

I call out to Ralpa who’s wandering around the room and after confirming everyone was holding the teleport crystal, I chanted the incantation floating on the surface.

“Gemudohyu”

.....

Year 7445, Month 4, Day 29

“Return us.”

We teleported from the 1st floor into the teleport room on the side of the entrance. When coming out from the small room it was just as the rest of the {Slaughterers} came out of a different room. Since we have 11 people we can’t avoid splitting the group up when we return. It’s just a couple dozen seconds though.

We've already made preparations when one of the groups is late to return and confirm right away. Previously, just as we were ambushed by {Bright.Blade} in the dungeon before, even if I'm laughed at by everyone for thinking too far I've properly made it into a rule.

However, once we return to the entrance of the dungeon we can finally relax. We walk up the stairs with a harmonious atmosphere and inhale the fresh air.

"N~!!"

Ralpa stretches after coming outside.

A young member of the Baldukk knight group was on guard duty.

"What was things like this time?"

I was questioned. This is a common line, almost like a greeting.

"Just magic stones. How about others?"

"It seems {Sun.Ray} found a gold ore. It was quite something."

The knight said that while stretching out his hands. A gold ore with a diameter of around 30 cm huh? They must have obtained it from an altar on the 6th floor. The knight continues,

"But, it seems one of them didn't make it."

And said that. Was it one of the members that was injured?

"Alright, let's go and sell these."

I call out to Ralpa from behind and then we all walked towards the magic good store to sell the magic stones we obtained in the dungeon this time. We gathered 84 magic stones from ogres in the dungeon this time. All of the magic stones from monsters on the way in from the 1st to the 5th floors we have merged into magic stones the same value as ogres and those added up to two and a half ogres worth in value.

~And we were able to sell them for 76,520,000 Z. Since Basutoral's remaining debt was just 600,000 Z, even after taking that out Basutoral still gets another 165,000 Z in bonuses.

"Congratulations, Basutoral. With this you've completely finished paying off your debt to me. Come to my room before we go to dinner. I'll erase the debt entry on your contract."

I pat Basutorial's shoulder while congratulating him.

"Yes!!"

Basutorial replied gladly.

It was just as I was paying out everyone's bonuses in the corner of the magic tool store like that. A well-dressed gentleman who was alone called out to me. It's a face I've seen before. Where was it again? and I remember right away. This old man is the person I commissioned to sell the magic stone from the {Larva Purple Worm} at the first-rate magic tool store in the capital "Splendor" last year.

"When I had just come to stock up on magic stones..It's been a while. Greed-sama."

"Ah, from Splendor.."

I'm amazed he could remember my name...It seems the memory of a first-rate store is first-rate as well.

"Yes, I'm the head clerk Ferippe. It seems you're carrying in a tremendous amount of magic stones again today."

So he wasn't the owner but the head clerk? Since Baldukk is close he must come to stock up.

"Ehe...Ferippe-san, is there something with them?"

The old man dwarf of "Magic Tools Danhiru", Kuredo.Danhiru who just finished weighing and buying the magic stones we brought in approached us while rubbing his hands together. He probably came to try and restrain us from selling directly to "Splendor" without passing through this store. Just relax. As long as it's not from a powerful monster or a {Magic.Item} I intend to keep using this store.

"No, these past few years the magic stones being sold by Danhiru-san have increased after all. I just happened to be here when they came in so I thought to take the chance to greet them."

It seems Ferippe has no intention of directly buying from us either. Although, it might just be a means to get through the moment right now.

“Yeah, they’re the pride of this Baldukk, the {Slaughterers}. They defeat every monster they encounter in the dungeon and bring the magic stones. They’re the top earners of the adventurers.”

“Ho~! Then you were the president of Greed Company?”

This old man, I’m surprised he knew that far.

“..Yes. I have a company as well but since I’m the owner, I’m not in the store much at all. When it concerns business matters I’ve left it in the care of the head clerk Ryogu so..”

“Yeah, I’ve also purchased a pair of shoes myself. These are quite comfortable to wear.”

When I checked his feet and he certainly was wearing some Greed Company made. Rubber-sole shoes are like the representative of cheap items from our past lives but it’s quite literally a case of a different time and place.

“That is, thank you very much. We have some new designs of shoes as well and we’re always open for maintenance so please stop by again sometime.”

At the end of last year when I met with sister-in-law but it seems that older brother is paying a Free Person who worked a shoe making artisan in Keel 7 gold coins a year to make the shoes. It seems he sent two serf children to his place as disciples and are having them learn the techniques of shoe-making as well. We need to sell as much as we can.

“Hey, old man! I’m here to sell magic stones! Hurry up already!”

It seems a new group of adventurers entered the store. Since the store is too cramped not everyone could fit inside. Since it was good timing we decided to finish up greetings with Ferippe and leave the store.

“Hmph, just that much..”

Old man Danhiru took the magic stones from the adventurers and put them on the scale.

“They’re pleased over that tiny magic stone, how cute~”

Ralpa said it while making fun of the adventurers. Well, she's this sort of person.

"Really Ral, stop it."

Gwine told her off a bit but the magic stone the adventurers had brought in was several merged, there was only one but it's value was a bit over 75,000. In terms of sale price it should be just over 500,000 Z. If you think about the average adventurer then it's plenty of earnings.

"Cute you said!? Ke..Just a brat that doesn't know the real earnings of adventurers huh? Obviously we're earning from other places."

Aa~ he reacted. Other places you say, that rusty sword and spear heads? In total it's question if it would even reach 100,000 Z or not. It's trash that we wouldn't even gather because it adds to our bags.

"Oh? So you were first-rate adventurers. I'm sorry for my rudeness in not knowing that."

Ralpa exaggeratedly lowered her head provoking the adventurers. I wonder if she's stressed from not picking any fights recently?

"What was that! If you underestimate us you'll get hurt! If you mention the ones who can silence a crying child, the {Snake.Eye} family that's us!"

It seems the adventurers didn't realize we were the {Slaughterers}. They must be newbies. It's a fact that we provoked them from our side so I feel a bit reserved on that end but in the world, true ability is everyone, the guys who earn the most are the best. If you all call yourselves adventurers and are challenging the dungeon then you should know that. In the first place why are you jumping on cheap provocations and calling yourselves a family like some Yakuza~

I let out a sigh and went to try and smooth things over.

"Stop it inside of my store! Since it's not like anyone in this town can win against you all it doesn't matter what you say but stop acting like a brat and grow~ up a bit. Also, you boys, properly look at who you're talking to before you speak, these are the {Slaughterers}."

Before I could say anything the dwarf old man hit Ralph and drove us out of the store.

Everyone was making bitter smiles. Zenom was silently hitting Ralph's ass. Thanks for your work, the two of you.

.....

On our way back we stopped by the government office and took out Basutoral's contract that I had left there before returning to the inn. In my room we drew a line through the entry regarding his loan to erase it on the three contracts and above that we placed our thumb prints using magic stones.

"With this your debt has completely disappeared. You're free to use your compensation as you please from here on out."

I just left Basutoral alone as he was basking in the delight and headed towards the shower room but it was in use. Since it couldn't be helped I decided to wait but since the one who came out was someone staying at Boil Manor completely unrelated to us I couldn't even complain.

I took a shower and then went to dinner with everyone.

Everyone offered their congratulations to Basutoral who finished paying off his debt and put their cups together in cheers. Starting tomorrow we have consecutive days off and these past 8 days we worked quite hard.

"I'm going to my company in the capital again starting tomorrow. Take care of things while I'm gone."

I eat a meat and vegetable stir fry while saying to everyone. Everyone nodded. That's right, this time I'm going to teacher Mila's place alone. It was then that a face I know entered the store. It's the leader of the second party of {Sun.Ray} Binsukol.Zemyunel AKA Bin and the one we saved a while back Virginia.Nyuman AKA Ginger. And then, Binnodo.Gekudo who carried back his little sister's corpse and Harukein.Fumizu, the four of them.

We glanced at each other but after they nodded to us, they sat down at a table a bit away. This is a good sign. Rather it's for this sake that we picked this place though. I wanted to talk with {Sun.Ray} for a bit.

"Ya~ Bin-san. I've heard that you all seemed to have recruited some new members..”

I brought along a mug with some beer in it while taking a seat at the side of {Sun.Ray}s four person table.

“Ya~ Greed-san. You hear things quite quickly. Thanks to that we’ve perfectly been able to organize two parties as well.”

Zemyunel laughed while replying. It seems that either yesterday or today {Sun.Ray} just obtained a gold ore.

“But, Santosu didn’t come back..”

Nyuman said with a depressed voice. I guess Santosu is one of the people who was injured.

“That is..quite unfortunate.”

I said that and took a sip of beer.

“Stop it, wasn’t Santosu the one who was just acting recklessly. It’s fine as long as we search for some ores without overdoing it on the 4th floor.”

Zemyunel said while rebuking Nyuman.

“Wait, what was that!? Try saying it one more time!”

I suddenly heard Miduchi’s shout from the {Slaughterers} table.

“I’ll say it as much as needed! You’re just goldfish poop that’s stuck to Al’s tail!”

Ralpha talks back to her as if not to lose.

“Ah!! I..I’m sorry. Please excuse me! Hey! You all!”

I returned back to the {Slaughterers} table in a hurry.
I need to quickly calm them down.

AUthor’s Note: Status~

【Alan.Greed/5/3/7429】

【Male/14/2/7428 ▪ Human ▪ Viscount Greed Family Second Son】

【Status: Normal】

【Age: 17 Years Old】

【Level: 25】
【HP: 206(206) MP: 7447(7447)】
【Strength: 33】
【Speed: 48】
【Dexterity: 31】
【Endurance: 34】
【Unique Ability: Identify (MAX)】
【Unique Ability: Gift of Natural Talent (MAX)】
【Special Ability: Earth Magic (MAX)】
【Special Ability: Water Magic (MAX)】
【Special Ability: Fire Magic (MAX)】
【Special Ability: Wind Magic (MAX)】
【Special Ability: Void Magic (MAX)】
【Experience: 2146471(2200000)】

*The MC isn't the only one with a huge increase in experience from killing ogres on the 7th floor.

【Midu~ritto.Chizumagurol/5/3/7441】
【Female/14/2/7428 ▪ Dark Elf ▪ Lail Kingdom Commoner {Lilac}】
【Status: Blunt Trauma】
【Age: 17 Years Old】
【Level: 16】
【HP: 149(149) MP: 263(263)】
【Strength: 22】
【Speed: 36】
【Dexterity: 25】
【Endurance: 24】
【Unique Ability: Unit Organization (Lv. 8)】
【Special Ability: Infrared Vision】
【Special Ability: Inclination Sensing】
【Special Ability: Earth Magic (Lv. 5)】
【Special Ability: Water Magic (Lv. 5)】
【Special Ability: Fire Magic (Lv. 5)】
【Special Ability: Wind Magic (Lv. 5)】
【Special Ability: Void Magic (Lv. 6)】

【Experience: 589141(680000)】

*Since she hasn't been injured much since coming to Baldukk her Speed and Endurance are going up quite a bit. She practices her Unique Ability on days off with extra MP.

【Zenom.Firefreed/5/4/7416】

【Male/19/1/7402 · Dwarf · Firefreed Family Head】

【Condition: Good】

【Age: 43 Years Old】

【Level: 20】

【HP: 132(132) MP: 9(9)】

【Strength: 27】

【Agility: 10】

【Dexterity: 29】

【Endurance: 24】

【Special Skill: Infrared Sight】

【Special skill: Small Magic】

【Experience: 1175862(1260000)】

*Some decreases due to aging.

【Ralpha.Firefreed/25/12/7429】

【Female/14/2/7428 · Human · Firefreed Family Eldest Daughter】

【Status: Normal】

【Age: 17 Years Old】

【Level: 17】

【HP: 159(159) MP: 25(25)】

【Strength: 23】

【Speed: 29】

【Dexterity: 26】

【Endurance: 25】

【Unique Ability: Spatial Understanding (Lv.8)】

【Special Ability: Earth Magic (Lv. 3)】

【Special Ability: Fire Magic (Lv. 4)】

【Special Ability: Void Magic (Lv. 4)】

【Experience: 698632(810000)】

【Bernadette.Koloil/4/4/7429】
【Female/14/2/7428 ▪ Rabbit-People ▪ Sub-Baron Koloil Family Second Daughter】
【Status: Normal】
【Age: 17 Years Old】
【Level: 16】
【HP: 146(146) MP: 91(91)】
【Strength: 21】
【Speed: 31】
【Dexterity: 22】
【Endurance: 21】
【Unique Ability: Shooting Intuition(MAX)】
【Special Ability: Super Sense of Hearing】
【Special Ability: Earth Magic(Lv.4)】
【Special Ability: Water Magic(Lv.4)】
【Special Ability: Fire Magic(Lv.4)】
【Special Ability: Void Magic(Lv.5)】
【Experience: 662623(680000)】

【Torkelis.Kalstalan/13/5/7429】
【Male/14/2/7428 ▪ Elf ▪ Viscount Kalstalan Family Third Son】
【Status: Normal】
【Age: 17 Years Old】
【Level: 16】
【HP: 150(150) MP: 50(50)】
【Strength: 22】
【Speed: 29】
【Dexterity: 25】
【Endurance: 23】
【Unique Ability: Scale (MAX)】
【Special Ability: Earth Magic(Lv.3)】
【Special Ability: Water Magic(Lv.3)】
【Special Ability: Wind Magic(Lv.3)】
【Special Ability: Void Magic(Lv.4)】
【Special Ability: Infrared Vision】

【Experience: 626925(680000)】

【Gulinel.Akdam/2/7/7429 】

【Female/14/2/7428 · Dwarf · Rombert Kingdom Duke Rombert Territory
Registered Free Person】

【Status: Normal】

【Age: 17 Years Old】

【Level: 16】

【HP: 159(159) MP: 33(33)】

【Strength: 27】

【Speed: 19】

【Dexterity: 31】

【Endurance: 27】

【Unique Ability Mapping (MAX)】

【Special Ability: Wind Magic(Lv.3)】

【Special Ability: Fire Magic(Lv.2)】

【Special Ability: Void Magic(Lv.3)】

【Special Ability: Infrared Vision】

【Experience: 578456(680000)】

*Since she's gotten a slightly powerful magic spear she can deal more damage in a single hit and thanks to Miduchi's Unique Ability her experience gains is a bit more efficient.

【Sajes.Basutorial/13/12/7444 Sajes.Basutorial/4/7/7429】

【Male/14/2/7428 · Cat-People · Rombert Kingdom Duke Rombert Territory
Registered Free Person】

【Status: Normal】

【Age: 17 Years Old】

【Level: 11】

【HP: 121(121) MP: 13(13)】

【Strength: 17】

【Speed: 25】

【Dexterity: 18】

【Endurance: 18】

【Unique Ability: Resistance(Temperature)(Lv.2)】

【Special Ability: Small Magic】

【Special Ability: Void Magic (Lv.0)】

【Special Ability: Night Vision】

【Experience: 156546(210000)】

*He's started learning magic. After hearing about his Unique Ability the MC is creating ice for him occasionally to practice it but since it's a waste of mana he's fundamentally using it for magic training. Also, through the level up of his passive type ability the MC was able to identify it.

【Dadino.Zulu/3/6/7442 Dadino.Zulu/20/7/7422 】

【Male/24/5/7421 ▪ Lion-People Race ▪ Viscount Greed Family Owned Slave】

【Status: Normal】

【Age: 24 Years Old】

【Level: 17】

【HP: 157(157) MP: 5(5)】

【Strength: 29】

【Speed: 26】

【Dexterity: 15】

【Endurance: 25】

【Special Ability: Small Magic】

【Special Ability: Instantaneous】

【Special Ability: Night Vision】

【Experience: 783885(810000)】

【Maruso.Angela/15/8/7442 Maruso.Angela/12/8/7422 】

【Female/14/9/7422 ▪ Dog-People Race ▪ Viscount Greed Family Owned Slave】

【Status: Normal】

【Age: 24 Years Old】

【Level: 17】

【HP: 134(134) MP: 5(5)】

【Strength: 20】

【Speed: 28】

【Dexterity: 15】

【Endurance: 21】

【Special Ability: Small Magic】

【Special Ability: Super Sense of Smell】

【Experience: 753492(810000)】

*She's gaining quite a bit of experience from accompanying the MC and Miduchi in the dungeon on their days off.

【Lorence.Giberuti/5/5/7444 Lorence.Giberuti/23/10/7419】
【Male/1/9/7418 ▪ Dog-People Race ▪ Viscount Greed Family Owned Slave】
【Status: Normal】
【Age: 27 Years Old】
【Level: 4】
【HP: 107(107) MP: 6(6)】
【Strength: 16】
【Speed: 18】
【Dexterity: 10】
【Endurance: 15】
【Special Ability: Small Magic】
【Special Ability: Super Sense of Smell】
【Experience: 17712(18000)】

*Experience gain isn't much different from when he was a carpenter but he occasionally finishes off monsters when their HP is negative while gathering magic stones.

Chapter 183: Discord Theory

Year 7445, Month 4, Day 29

“Who did you say was goldfish shit!? Isn’t Ral the one that’s the goldfish shit!?”

“Ha!? I’m amazed you can say that, you opportunist! You just nonchalantly appeared later acting so arrogantly, stop staying around!!”

Miduchi and Ralpha are shouting at each other in loud voices.

“Just a moment, the two of you, stop it already!”

Bel is scolding them but they don’t seem to care.

“Opportunist!? Did you say opportunist? Who’s an opportunist!! Even though you’re a “blonde delinquent”! This Duke of shamelessness!”

“Ha..You don’t even have enough money to dye your hair? You poor person! Even though your own color is that of a rotting woman!”

The two of them are glaring at each other.

“Hey! Would you two stop already!”

Zenom yells. But, it didn’t have any effect at all.

“I..I..I..I’m not rotting!”

“No, you’re rotting~ Zombie woman!”

Zombie woman this is somehow. I wonder if Ralpha is dissing me in a roundabout way as well?

“Hey, Maruso, we’re stopping them!”

“Yes, Zulu-sama!”

Zulu and Angela got up from their seats in a hurry and started trying to hold back Miduchi and Ralpha from behind.

“Zo..Zombie! Are you really saying that, this shitty brat...Even though you’re not even decent at fighting you’re only first-rate at bad mouthing people! This”

“Not..even decent at fighting...Which mouth is saying that!”

Miduchi sure is unpopular. It's fine if you don't say that far right. But, it seems she was quite irritated being told zombie woman.

"Ral, you went too far!"

"Miduchi-san too, please be a bit more careful with your words!"

Gwine and Toris raised their voices trying to stop them as well.

"In the first place, you're also giving off a sour smell, you stink of puke!"

"Wha!? I haven't thrown up and I haven't thrown up puke!"

Tears have started to appear in Ralpa's eyes. No, you puke pretty often when you get drunk...

"U..Umm, th..the two of you, ple, please stop it! Please stop it~!"

Basutoral is in a fluster. Just this guy is making a monotone voice. He's useless. Giberuti is continuing his meal quietly while sighing in disappointment. Well if these two were to start struggling there's no way Giberuti could stop them.

"Miduchi-sama! Please stop already."

"Ral! I won't forgive rude remarks towards Miduchi-sama."

Zulu and Angela are still trying to hold them back from behind.

If you were to ask what I was doing, I was finally able to pass between the tables to get to where the two of them were. The two of them were trying to intimidate each other with their teeth showing. Are you two monkeys?

"Would you stop!"

I let out a roar and landed my fist on both Ralpa and Miduchi's heads.

"But, this girl is!"

"But, this person is!"

Be~quiet.

"You're loud. You're an annoyance for the other customers! If you really want to do it then take it outside, outside!"

After I said it the two of them calmed down but even after they they sat as far away from each other as they could. I lowered my head to the four from {Sun.Ray} while making a weak smile and after we finished our meals we left without staying long.

.....

Year 7445, Month 4, Day 30

I ate breakfast alone rather than with everyone else and then just like I went and bought some dried fish before quickly heading to a rustic inn on the edge of town to leave my horse before stepping foot in the dungeon. I took my time slowly clearing through to the 2nd floor and used magic on all of the monsters came across confirming the effects. Immediately after I went down to the 3rd floor I sang the national anthem and teleported to the place connecting to the fairy village and then dozed off while waiting for the time when the door opens. Since I forgot to buy a bento I'm hungry.

I thought about using fire magic to cook some of the dried fish but while it's no problem making a small fixed flame like a gas stove by continuing to use the spell {Flame Thrower}, I don't have a grill. Even when it comes to stabbing it with a knife and cooking it like that I only have one knife..I have the throwing needles. If I use these as skewers I guess it would be fine. Well if I eat one fish then my stomach should be able to endure.

The middle of the night, just before the date was about to change I made water and washed my face then at the same time as the date changed I put my hands on the door and stepped foot into the fairy village. The same as usual I cross about the pond to the island floating in the center and after pulling the stove magic tool out of the hollow tree I called out for Karl and teacher Mila.

"Pu..Ahahahahaha, so you're alone today? So you were rejected by Miduchi, how pitiful."

"Come now, Karl, you shouldn't say things that rub salt into people's wounds. Al, men aren't about their faces. Please don't get down over it. What~ in the end Humans and Dyurou are different races, it's not that easy to have children either way."

"I wasn't rejected! She just had some business and couldn't come along this time. Don't say such rude things. I won't give you any dried fish."

“Oh my, is that so? That was quite rude of me, but you’re in the wrong too Al. It’s because you just come along alone without saying anything. It can’t be helped if we misunderstand right?”

How do you expect me to give you advance notice~?

“And also teacher Mila, men aren’t just about their face, that’s certainly true but..I know that I’m not that particularly good looking but I didn’t think it was to the point of being said that far..”

“Ra..Rather than that would you please grill the fish?”

No follow up from teacher...

“Yeah, I’ll grill it now..And, which one is best to start with?”

“Wouldn’t starting with meineiji be best?”

“I guess so. Piru, pirurururu”

Teacher Mila called out to the other fairies. Soon after a lot of fairies gathered and started surrounding us. After a short while they finished eating the dried fish so I called out to teacher.

“Teacher Mila, I would like for you to teach me the spell {Remove.Curse} this time. Do you know of this magic?”

I need to say it before I forget.

“Hn, {Remove.Curse} huh, of course I know it. Are you cursed Al?”

Oh~ after all teacher knew about it. It seems that I’ll be able to avoid embarrassing myself. That’s great...

“No, it’s not me. Of course it’s not Miduchi either. A completely different person obtained a cursed sword and they’re charmed by that sword.”

“Ho~nn, is that so. But, when it comes to the spell {Remove.Curse} if you aren’t actually looking at everything about the cursed target then I don’t think you’ll be able to learn it..though I think even that is considerably difficult.”

What was that? In other words, that means a {Cursed.Item} is necessary? This is bad...

“Well, if it’s something like that then I have just the right thing. Wait just a moment.”

Teacher Mila said that before flying to the top of the tree. Ho...Thank goodness..I think?
Somehow I have a bad feeling about this.

“Ah, is Mila going to bring that out? Or will it be that?”

Karl is saying something but his words went in one ear and out the other. I’m getting a bad feeling about this. Soon after Mila returned with something like a ring in her hands. The ring has a diameter of about 2 cm and looks like a ring with no gems in it.

【Ring.Of.Poison】

【Mithril Silver】

【State: Good】

【Manufacture Date: 16/10/6715】

【Value: 1】

【Endurance: 35】

【Effect: Delayed Lethal Poison】

After all...It seems the bad feeling is going to be correct.

“This is a {Cursed.Item}. It’s a bracelet to us fairies though. Al, put this ring on your finger.”

Umm..it’s saying lethal poison but, that is...

“Ah, you had Identify didn’t you. There’s nothing worry about~ we’ll properly take it off before you die.”

【Effect: Delayed Lethal Poison; those who wear this ring will without exception be violated by poison through a curse. The poison is the type that drains stamina and every 1 minute it drains 1 HP. Obviously if HP reaches 0 you will pass out through declined stamina and if you ignore it beyond that you’ll eventually die. It’s possible to recover the lost HP through “healing” and such spells. Also it’s possible to temporarily neutralize the poison through the spells “Neutralize Poison” and “Counteraction” but unless you remove this ring through cutting off the fingers or some method the poison will be activate again. Once the ring has been removed the poison will no longer take effect.】

I had imagined that it wasn't the type of poison that kills instantly from the name but what an unpleasant item. I look at the ring on the palm of my hand while gulping.

"Here, would you just put it on already."

Teacher Mila is urging me on. I guess there's no choice but for me to gather my courage and put the cursed ring on. I wonder if we can't change it to a sword that charms you?

"What is it? Do you not like that one? Would a different one be better? But the other ones we have aren't really suited for learning the spell {Remove.Curse}. Since you lose once your senses. Endure using that one."

It can't be helped. I have over 200 HP right now. If it's within 3 hours then somehow or other..Oh~ I'll just confirm first.

"I understand. By the way teacher, around how long does it take for teacher to use the spell {Remove.Curse}?"

Hearing my statement teacher Mila raised one of her eyebrows while saying.

"What? Are you doubting my skill? Relax. I can take it off right away. In the past whenever Karl did something bad I would put this on his arm as punishment."

Hearing that I was relieved. Karl only has 20 HP. I take the ring in my fingers and put it on the ring finger of my left hand. I let go of the ring with my right hand and 10 seconds later something like small tentacles came out from the ring and moved around crawling into my ring finger as the ring tightened. It didn't hurt, but wha, what in the world was that!?

"Here, don't move. I'm going to use the spell {Remove.Curse} on you now. Make sure you remember that sensation well."

Teacher Mila said while putting both of her hands on the ring on my finger and concentrating. The blue spell light started coming out of her hands. That continued for about 1 minute and the tentacles that came from the ring into my finger withdrew back. In a hurry I took the ring off.

"The trick is matching your own mana up with the mana of the ring. After you've matched them up once, you follow that back and just like untying a tied knot you do the same thing for the mana of the curse inside of the ring. You should practice it a number of times before you get a knack for it."

"Yes.."

"If all your magic levels are at level 6 then you should be able to use it. That's why I'm sure Al can do it. Well, in the worst case if you struggle with it, I'll heal you along the way so feel free to relax."

Alright, I guess I'll try doing it. I put the ring on again and wait for the tentacles to come out. The tentacles crawl into my finger. Now then..I put my right hand over my left hand with the ring on it and start concentrating.

It took me around two hours before I was able to get any effect from {Remove.Curse} for the first time. After that I practiced it a number of times (of course, I recovered my HP each time) but Karl, teacher Mila, and the other fairies all went back into the hollow tree to sleep around 1 am. I was left alone to fight with the cursed ring eating into my finger.

In the morning, since I was starting to get hungry I ate some dried fish together with teacher Mila and the others when they woke up. After finishing eating I struggled with the cursed ring again. Getting a handle on it is extremely difficult and late into the night I was finally able to activate it in about one hour. In the end I ended up staying at the fairy village until late night again this time as well.

"Karl, teacher Mila, thank you very much again this time. By the way, if possible I was thinking about bringing even more people next time but is that okay? Obviously since the number of people increases I'll be able to bring along even more fish as well."

I look at Karl and teacher Mila's faces and they smiled broadly. Karl is flying around in circles as if depicting his joy and teacher Mila is smiling as well.

"It's fine as long as they don't rampage around here. If they won't harm our allies then they come at their own convenience."

"Of course, I won't let them do anything like harming everyone. I want you to teach them spells as well and we might end up staying over for a bit. I would like for you to let me test some new equipment here.”

“Yeah, in that case it’s fine.”

“Thank you very much. And also, one more thing. Would you please remain quiet about my Unique Abilities?”

This, is an important point. It can’t be forgotten.

“..I’m~ fine with that. But whether Karl can really remember it..”

Ge.

“Ahahaha, Al is as much of an idiot as usual. There’s no way I could remember something like that. Ah, were you rejected by Miduchi because you were an idiot?”

A winged insect is proudly holding it’s chest held high over how much it’s lacking the ability to remember things. That’s why I said~ I wasn’t~ rejected! I wonder if there’s some kind of impairment in Karl’s head? Putting that aside, if it’s possible I wanted to try making at least one prototype gun and bring it in here to have Bel test it out but I guess things won’t go that easily...Of course it’s necessary for me to practice with it as well. The diameter of the fairy village is about 1 Km and the sound shouldn’t leak out so I thought it was ideal for a practice grounds though.

Well, it’s fine to practice on the wide and bright 7th floor as well but since it’ll weigh several kg and including the ammunition it would end up being quite heavy. It’s troublesome carrying it down. I just thought it would be easier if I could do it here. Well, in that case then I guess it would be fine if I bring Zulu, Angela, and Giberuti the slaves? If I include Miduchi then it would five of us so we could carry in quite a bit of fish as thanks. No, I’ll stop after all. I forgot how much brains Karl’s lacking. Though I can’t really be talking about other people.

I once again politely thanked them and left the fairy village. By the time I left the dungeon it was late at night and when I confirmed the clock magic tool the time was already past 3 am. I pull back the hood I was wearing before nodding to Church-san who was guarding the tax collector at the entrance while grumbling how “it’s painful to practice spells” and then after fixing my hood I headed towards the inn I left my horse.

.....

Year 7445, Month 5, Day 2

I periodically fall asleep while riding my horse towards my company in the capital and arrived before dawn. It's only obvious in the case of restaurants but there's early stores open here and there as well. There's people carrying around night soil buckets, the people who collect night soil finished up their breakfast early and are running around gathering for fertilizer production on the outskirts. It seems they sell that to the villages? surrounding the capital. Though people with houses along the river seem to wash it away into the river but if you gather it up in a bucket you can make a bit of money off of it (around 50 Z a week for a family of six) so the only ones who do that are rich people though.

If it's this time then it's probably before the Yotlen family arrives at work. I stop in front of the store and tie my horse to the stake and it was just Dianne was opening the door and coming out. I guess she was going out to buy some breakfast. She's holding a pot and plate.

I've mentioned it before but fundamentally the people who live in the city of Orth eat their meals outside most often. They either go to a restaurant to eat or buy something made in a restaurant and bring it back home so there's just that much difference. Since the firewood that is required for fuel costs money and even the magic stones consumed for a stove cost a bit as well. Inevitably the restaurants end up grasping the stomachs in the area.

Most of the people who make their own meals at home are those with over a certain amount of income. Since there's ingredient stores aimed at restaurants and the few people who cook for themselves as well if they wanted to make it themselves it's possible but in the first place most houses don't even have the right facilities for cooking. The farther away from the city areas you get into the remote regions there's less to worry about in regards to fuel so most people end up cooking for themselves at home.

"Oh my, Al-sama."

Dianne called out to me while making a slightly surprised face.

"Hey, Dianne. Are you going to buy some food? Buy a portion for me as well."

I casually replied to her while handing Dianne two large copper coins I took from my wallet. If it's 2,000 Z then it should be plenty to feed the four people in the Ryogu family and I. If it's a full pot of stew with not much ingredients in it then you can get it for 400 Z or 500 Z. After that it's fine if she just buys some adequate bread.

"I understand. I intended to buy some stew but is that fine?"

"Yeah, of course. Is everyone already up? Is it fine if I enter the store?"

"Yeah, of course. Everyone is already awake."

When I entered the store and Rozural, Wendy, and Ruku were already up and making preparations to head to the workshop. We exchanged greetings and I told Rozural that if he doesn't have any particular business for today to remain in the shop and discuss with me how we're going to get over the next couple of months with just the stock we have remaining.

In about 10 minutes Dianne returned with a pot full of hot stew, a deep plate with five fried eggs, and carrying something like thick baguette bread. We all ate breakfast and while were enjoying some after meal tea the Yotlen family appeared to work.

"Ah, presichent~ go~od mornish~"

Kamnal ran over and greeted me with a lisp.

"Oh~ Kanna, have you been well?"

I pick up Kamnal who's soon to be five and spin him around.

"Really, Kanna, wipe your feet. You'll get dirt on the president!"

Anna warns him. As expected of an older sister. But, this much is fine.

"Here, stick your feet out..I'm sorry, president~"

Hanna is gallantly taking care of Kamnal as well.

"Yeah, it's fine it's fine, no worries."

I guess just Kamnal doesn't have any rubber sandals?

"Wendy, make some sandals for Kanna as well. One size larger or so."

“No..No way, it’s fine.”

Leila say that in a panic but someone who is related to Greed Company that deals in rubber, even if they’re a child, barefoot is no good. Kamnal is a boy after all, I need him to become a skilled sales clerk one day. Of course, Anna and Hanna as well.

“Yeah, I will take care of it.”

Wendy smiles while replying.

“Then, shall we head out?”

Ruku called out to Wendy and Dianne and the three of them started walking off to the workshop.

I stayed in the capital for two nights and went over various fine details with Rozural and the others. The customers who came to buy condoms would often ask when the next arrival of the new model would arrive. Everyone was well-dressed customers. Leila..you’re quite good.

.....

Year 7445, Month 5, Day 4

I arrived at Boil Manor and after leaving my horse there was no one inside of the inn. I wonder if they’re already out for lunch? Since it couldn’t be helped I left the inn to go out and eat something, since I didn’t particularly have any plans I decided to walk around the town of Baldukk looking for a random place to enter.

Then, a face I know came walking down from ahead of me. It’s Kaku.Dankel from {Black.Topaz}.

It seems he recognized me as well and walked over.

“Ya~ Dankel-san.”

“Ah, Greed-san, you appeared at just the right time..I heard you went to the capital?”

What is it, I won’t run away.

“Yeah, I had some business at my company. I just returned now. Ah, that’s right. I've finished gathering the necessary things. If it's convenient for you then how about tonight?"

"Oh~ that's a big help. The location is.."

Dankel made a clearly relieved expression while saying.

"I'll go over to your inn. Since it's necessary to tie up Balkemi-san and hold him down."

"I understand. Then what time tonight would be good? We'll make preparations and wait. Balkemi's inn is "Missuri". Do you know of it?"

"Yeah, it's the inn about midway along the 2nd street right. I think I'd like to finish it up before dinner so I'll head over around 5 pm."

"Oh~ that helps. With this we can go to the dungeon starting tomorrow. I'm sure our Anderson will be pleased as well."

I guess he isn't thinking about if I were to fail? though it doesn't particularly matter.

"No, please give my regards to Anderson-san as well. Well then, if you'll excuse me."

"Ah, that's right, Greed-san. It's kind of questionable if it could be considered a bonus to our thanks to you but it seems there's some kind of conflict between the human and dark elf in the {Slaughterers}. It might be none of our business but just in case I thought it would be best if I mentioned it to you."

Hohou.

"Eeh!!? Is that true!? What are those guys doing.."

I raised my voice in surprise.

"No, well it's a rumor so..It's not like I've confirmed it directly myself.."

I was told with an unfortunate tone of voice.

"I'm sorry, please excuse me for a bit."

I ran off as if I was returning to Boil Manor. This sure is troublesome...I guess I'll eat something at a random restaurant along the way once I turn the corner. Somehow I wanted to eat some sandwiches but I guess sobagaki is fine as well.

Author's Note:

“Remove.Curse” Abjuration.Enchantment.Charm

(Earth Magic Lv. 6, Water Magic Lv. 6, Fire Magic Lv. 6, Wind Magic Lv. 6, Void Magic Lv. 6, Consumes 30 MP)

The caster can release the target from one “curse”. In the case that the target is a living creature, it just releases them from the “curse” but in the case it’s a non-living creature it will completely destroy the target(excluding artifacts and relics). Removal of the curse requires contact with the cursed target or otherwise the target applying the curse. Furthermore, depending on the strength of the curse, there are cases where it requires more mana than listed above as well. The reverse magic “Curse {Beast.Curse}” allows the caster to place a curse on the target(limited to living creatures) for a number of hours equal to their level. The curse allows them to reduce the ability values of the target by an amount equal to the level of the caster. Ability values won’t drop below the bare minimum of zero. Ability values drop in the order of Strength, Speed, Dexterity, and Endurance. By pouring more mana into the spell you can influence what and how much of each abilities are decreased. However, in order for the spell “Curse{Beast.Curse} to take effect you need to concentrate for a time(even when the proficiency level with the spell increases this is separate from the time required to concentrate) of at least the targets HP (in the case of non-living creatures their Endurance value) times 60 seconds.

Chapter 184: Meat Stick 1

Year 7445, Month 5, Day 4

It was when I was eating a meal of ginger pork, soup, and bread at the restaurant “Saroku”. When I had my back to the entrance a new group of customers sat down behind me and started talking.

It seems they’re adventurers.

“Ribi, would you come with us to the dungeon tomorrow? Machi and I, and another four others we’ve already made plans with.”

“That’s right, Ribi, you should come too. You and that, what was it again? Ah, Pino. If she comes along as well then we’ll have 8 people, we can even go to the 2nd floor.”

Judging from the voices they don’t seem all that far from me in age. They’re still young, some of the lower classes of adventurers. I dip my bread into the soup and carrying it to my mouth while listening and they continued talking.

“Eh? Tomorrow huh...Who are the other four? If Zekkusu is together then I won’t go. That guy is unpleasant.”

“Relax, this time Zekkusu isn’t with us. Recently he was called out to by {Blue.Lightning} and seems to have entered their party.”

“Missu, is that true? If you mention {Blue.Lightning} then they’re a first-rate party that’s even been appearing on the 4th floor lately right! That fellow Zekkusu, he seems to have done well for himself..”

“Huh, what are you saying? If they’re willing to let someone like Zekkusu in their party then that {Blue.Lightning} shouldn’t be anything special right? Rather than that perverted bastard Machi, you’re far more reliable.”

“Thanks, Ribi. But, it’s true that Zekkusu is pretty skilled. Though I won’t deny he’s a pervert his skill with the spear is real. {Blue.Lightning} huh~ I’m envious.”

A cool name like {Blue.Lightning}, I’ve never heard of them before~ Well a party that’s just now appearing on the 4th floor is out of my range of interest so it doesn’t matter at all but the name of a color plus lightning sure is a powerful sounding name.

In the past, there was a party named Lighting Speed{Gale.Thunderclap} but I think it was last year? or the year before that? It seems they were wiped out in the dungeon. A brawny Laios man was the leader but one day they entered the dungeon and never came back out again. They were a party skilled enough that they were considered one step away from being in the top teams but I remembered thinking, when you're wiped out it really takes no time at all.

However, this restaurants pork ginger isn't very good. I threw the rest of the remaining pork into my mouth all at once, chewed and swallowed it.

"I want to enter the {Slaughterers} or {Verdure.Brotherhood} as well...I wonder if they'll call out to me.."

"Machi, that's a bit unreasonable. I've heard they're all first-rate. Since the {Slaughterers} are going to the 7th floor it seems...Even if you can brag about your strength, it's the 7th floor you know, the 7th floor. It's only obvious it's impossible."

"I already know that it's impossible. I just wanted to try saying it.."

"But you know, putting aside {Verdure.Brotherhood} and {Black.Topaz} isn't {Slaughterers} just made up of brats. I've seen them a number of times but the leader is just a brat as well..I wonder what's different between them and us?"

"Yeah, that leader brat..Greed was it...I saw him from nearby when he was eating at "Murowa" about a month ago but he sure had a shitty cheeky face... All of the other ones seemed pretty similar in that they were cheeky brats. After all it seems that Firefreed-san is the essential leader~"

"That's only obvious right. Don't they say that the {Slaughterers} core combat force is the leader's combat slaves and Firefreed-san and they're all outrageously strong? I'm sure Greed is just the leader because he has that Laios named Zulu and the Dog-person named Maruso."

"Well, I'm sure that's true. I don't know about that noble named Greed but he must have been quite rich. Since he was able to buy two of those sorts of amazing~ combat slaves..It's completely different from someone like me who comes from a remote Viscount family."

Well, I'm sure the public opinion is something like that. There's no way they'd easily be able to figure out our combat abilities and the only parties in Baldukk right now that have seen our combat are the top 10 or 20 parties or so I'm sure.

Though I say that, we never use magic when we're being seen so the only results they know are just those sorts of unrefined fist fights so there's no one out there who's seen the {Slaughterers} true combat potential in that true meaning.

I tear off a piece of bread and use it to wipe my soup bowl then wiped some of the ginger pork plate before eating it.
Even though the soup is decently good.

"Then that would mean that essentially the {Slaughterers} are going to the 7th floor with only three people who can fight.."

"No, as expected that's not the case right. It seems that leader and the other brats can fight decently as well. After all they can make it to the 7th floor and back alive, there's no way they're just baggage right."

"Ah..I guess~ that's true...I've seen them getting into a fight in a bar before. Two or three years back, no, I guess it was even further back...It was before Kalstalan and that Akdam dwarf woman joined. It's only obvious but they were even more of brats than now. They were fighting against the guys from {Twin.Gold}."

"Ah, I've heard about that before. They beat both of the twin Tiger-man from {Twin.Gold} half to death right?"

"Right, that's it. That woman named Ral was crazy..That woman, she uses an axe that doesn't suit that face of hers. One of them had their noses smashed and the other one had the edge of the axe shoved into their mouth and all of their teeth broke. Also, that Rabbit-people woman named Koloil was just laughing as she watched that. I got the chills."

"No, Ribí, didn't you just kick in and crush Mrioggu's balls last week..There's no difference.."

It's certainly true that Ralpa did some outrageous things but Bel has never laughed while watching over it. Don't dramatize it. And then, Ralpa's never used her axe while fighting..She hasn't right..She shouldn't have, probably.

Since fights between adventurers is a daily thing there's no chance of them complaining about it. The one who makes a complaint just gets made fun of and even though there should really be a lot of witnesses who saw it, since they're too afraid of retribution from the allies of the one the complaint was made against they generally won't come forward. It's different if someone dies but depending on the case even then they're sometimes ignored.

Just the bean tea is of a quality good enough that I have no complaints. This place isn't suited for coming to eat.

It would be best to make use of it as a cafe.

"Come to think of it while were talking about that Ral from the {Slaughterers}. Doesn't it seem like recently she's been fighting a lot with the Dark Elf in their party."

"Yeah, that seems to be the case. It's completely a rumor that one of them is going to end up leaving."

"Oh, Machi. Then, isn't that a chance for you. You might be able to enter the opened spot?"

"Oh~ as a matter of fact I was aiming for that. If one of them ends up leaving I intend on going to ask them to let me join."

"But you know, if Ral ends up being the one to leave then wouldn't Firefreed-san leave together with her? In that case the combat ability of the {Slaughterers} would largely drop."

"That's the problem isn't it~ If it comes to that then the choice will come up whether to either join Firefreed-san or the {Slaughterers} with the combat slaves, it's quite the difficult choice."

"Hmn, if you think about it overall, after all the {Slaughterers} side with the higher number might be better."

Oh, so they're aiming for an open seat? Certainly there's that way of thinking about it as well. Though we'll reject them all. No, if there was a considerably skilled person who didn't have any strings attached then it might be different though. I call over the waiter and pay 420 Z before heading towards the exit of the restaurant.

"H,Hey!"

"Eh? Ah, th..the {Slaughterers}.."

"After all since he's eating alone at a place like this then that means.."

"No, even if he's the leader in name only, there's no way he'd be eating alone at a place like this ignoring the discord between members right. After all isn't it just a rumor that someone will leave the party?"

"But you know, in the end he's just a brat right, couldn't it be he's just gotten sick of being together with a party that does nothing but fight?”

“I see, that might be true.”

So it’s even reached the stage where it’s talked about between this level of trash adventurer huh? Hmm, after all it seems there’s no need to group up again in a hurry. For the time being I’ll buy some random things at the general good’s store to camouflage the curse removal before returning to the inn.

.....

After finishing my shopping, returning to the inn, and relaxing for a while and the members of the {Slaughterers} returned in small groups.

“Yo, welcome back. Were you having lunch?”

I call out to the first ones to return Toris and Bel.

“A, Al-san.”

“Did you eat lunch?”

“Yeah, I just ate at “Saroku”.”

“The stew there is delicious right.”

“Yeah, they use good stock for their soup. Their baked foods aren’t very good though.”

..I just found that out.

“What about everyone else?”

“I think they should be returning pretty soon.”

“Though probably just Miduchi-san will come back late.”

While they were saying that I could hear the voices of Zenom, Ralpa, Gwine, and Basutorial. It quickly changed to the sounds of them climbing the stairs and they entered my room.

“Al. Everything is going smoothly on our end. Was everything fine in the capital?”

Zenom said.

“Yeah, Zenom. Though things might get a bit difficult for the company. If things continue like this then we’ll completely run out of stock in mid-August. I had them bring along quite a bit more than usual but..it's pleasant screams because the demand for rubber products seems to have increased."

"If business is booming, isn't that a good thing. Do you not intend to deal in any other goods?"

Gwine is saying it might be fine to deal in other goods than rubber products but it's difficult. The biggest problem is that I have no routes to stock up on things.

"..Different products huh...Al-san, I have an idea but..Would you mind listening?"

Basutorial was quietly listening to the conversation when he timidly came forward with something.

"Saji, you really..Though I have to wonder about that. Well, if Al says it's fine wouldn't it be fine? How about just trying to mention it? Though I like the original way more."

It seems there's already been some sort of conversation between Ralpa and Basutorial. Rather~ what original?

"Hn? If you have some sort of idea then let me hear it. If it's good then I want to try it out."

"Umm..It's a bit difficult to say but Al-san, that is..yo..you're making "condoms" with rubber right?"

It's not particularly difficult to say right? Everyone already knows after all.

"Yes, the Saya. It seems to have become a popular product and I think it's quite useful for the prevention of diseases."

The one who is probably receiving the greatest benefit from them in the {Slaughterers} with ears longer than an Elf said. Look, everyone is calm. Ralpa and Gwine already long since have known and while these two are former high school girls, since their life experience is quite long it's nothing to get embarrassed over at this point.

"..Yes. It seems that the price is reasonable and they're quite popular..Well that's fine. The problem is that thanks to those it's easy to predict that the bowel's of livestock are in a situation where they don't sell as much anymore."

"Hn? Do you intend to make "Sausage"? That's fine though since it's a food product the individual sale price is quite cheap and since things like preservatives and food additives are difficult to make it's not really suited for mass production. I don't think it will be very profitable?"

Well if it's a person who reincarnated from Japan in all likelihood they've probably thought of it? Since the bowel's of pigs and sheep are mostly used as a replacement for condoms so once they know the price I think in most cases they'd give up though.

"N~ It's true I thought of "Sausages" as well. Since we don't have a meat grinder we'd have to start from making one of those but in the worst case it's possible to buy some slaves and just have them keep chopping it up with knives as well. Since they're delicious, I wasn't able to think as far as food additives but if we smoke them before we sell them and make sure they definitely either boil or grill them before eating them then I think they'll be fine from food poisoning for a short while."

Come to think of it the representative of minced foods that is hamburger originated from a nomad race in the form of taretare steak and I've heard it originally dates back to around the 12-13th centuries. It seems that it was conveyed to Europe and turned into hamburger a lot later. However, judging from the way Basutorial said it there's something other than sausage as well.

"It's string. Originally stringed instruments made use of string made from grasses but on {Earth} they also tore up the bowel's of livestock, let them dry out, then picked out the good quality ones and made them into strings. Even on Orth there's instruments like the {Zither}, {Lute}, {Harp, and {Violin} but the strings of all of those are made from plants called makku or mizekku. Though that sound isn't too bad but.."

Come to think of it, Basutorial was a {guitarist}. I guess he's knowledgeable about things like that. There's probably an instrument shop in the capital. I'll try searching for it next time and bring him along.

"He~ string huh? I didn't know it was made from the bowel's of sheep. But, would that be profitable?"

Toris said. Yeah, if it doesn't make money there's no meaning. Though raising the level of civilization is a good thing but it's fine once I eventually make my own country and have enough leeway and money to pay for the arts. If he wants to have a musical performance~ then couldn't he wait until then? Ah, I guess he's not saying he wants to perform.

"I wonder about that..I've never played an instrument on Orth so I don't know but I think it would be better than strings made from plants but..Of course, I'm sure that alone wouldn't be very profitable. That's the reason for the {sausage}."

I just said that sausage isn't suitable for mass production. If we're just making them in small numbers there's not much profit to it right?

"Just a moment ago Al-san said that mass production is difficult because we can't store them for long periods but I have an idea."

He~? Mass production itself can somewhat be taken care of by reducing the amount of labor required if we can somehow make a meat grinder and streamline the process. Everyday around a stable 250,000 Z (1 gold Shu), no, I guess that's aiming too high. If it can earn profits of around 100,000 Z per day then it's worth investing in exclusive slaves and facilities.

However, it's a food product. And no matter how I think about it, it won't become a high class food product. What will end up being used is the garbage meat and internal organs I'm sure. If you're making it with pig's bowels then it depends on the length but each one will come out to around 50–100 grams, so wouldn't the sale price be at best 100 Z or so? Since there's stocking up as well you would need to sell more than 1,000 of those every day. Oh~ I forgot about the cost of buying the ingredients. If you think about the cost price ratio then you would need to sell something like 1,500 or depending on the case even 2,000 of them. The population of the capital is roughly 200,000 people. I wonder if they'd sell that much?

"As a matter of fact I had the chance to talk with Miduchi-san about various things the other day and I thought this might work. It seems that in Miduchi-san's country they're artificially cultivating a wide variety of mushrooms for food purposes but among those it seems there's quite a few varieties that didn't exist on "Earth".

"Well, I'm sure there are. This isn't "Earth" after all."

"Among those there's a mushroom called Soruhoggu and it seems it's normally purified into poison but it seems that one of the scrap byproducts made during the purification of that poison prevents the color of dead flesh from fading for a long period. Wouldn't that make it a preserving agent?"

..I can't deny that possibility but if we're mentioning a disposal byproduct produced during the making of poison then that's industrial waste right? Emotionally I can't really support using something like that..No, I just think it's a boring sentiment? But, the foodstuff company that I worked at used foodstuff that used as few additives as possible as their main line. Of course, zero is impossible. But I thought that it was necessary to eternally put effort towards making it as close to zero as possible. The moment you think, this is fine, or this plenty then you stop trying to put anymore effort in after that. I think it's no good if you're not always trying to put more work into it.

However, preservatives huh? The representative of that is sodium sulphite. It's easy to make with ion exchange but it's not like we have something like ion exchange resin or film(electricity can be made with magic)...I guess it's not as if it can't be done. I already knew zeolite was rolling around all over the place. There's no active volcano on the Jindal peninsula where Bakuddo is but there was a mountain of high quality sulfur as well and even carbonated water was springing up.

If I put some work into the operation then it's possible to sort out just a specified element as well. If I just select the necessary elements and pickle it with a zeolite then while I'm sure it would be inefficient but it's technically possible. Even when it comes to sorbic acid or sodium acetate I can technically make them. It might be possible to sell things that make use of those sorts of preservatives or additives as luxury goods in small amounts.

Ah, food additives being carcinogenic? It's fine as long as you don't eat a bucket full. It's not like you'll die right away. In the first place before using something like that it's fine if you just eat the sausage. Rather than that the large amounts of salt overused in the food of Orth is even more frightening.

But, even if we could do an ion exchange, I feel like using it for something like preservatives is a waste.

It seems like it would be much more useful in making the source of nitroglycerin. It would be better to have TNT after all.

“That, Sorubitoru something or other I don’t really get but if we can get our hands on the poison mushroom then it’s fine to start off with testing it out. Since I’ve seen glimpses of dark elves in the capital if Miduchi asks then while it might take some time but shouldn’t it be possible to at least get our hands on some? If it seems like it’ll work then I’ll invest some money into it. I want to eat some delicious “sausage” as well. In regards to the strings..if the “sausage” is profitable then you can do as you please.”

“By the way, what is that “sausage”? It seems to be some kind of food but is it good?”

While Zenom is left out, Toris, Bel, Ralpa, and Gwine the reincarnated people are pleased hearing about “sausage”. It seems it was unexpected to Ralpa for me to accept the idea and after making a slightly surprised face she licked her lips with a complacent smile. Really, she’s such a glutton.

“Ah, everyone already returned I see. I heard dark elf but is there something?”

Miduchi came back later than everyone else. When we summarized the explanation and since it seems she had already talked it over with Basutoral, she understood quickly.

“During the process of purifying soruhoggu with sorira a white powder really comes out but it’s not guaranteed that’s really a preservative. But, I think it’s worth testing. In our country of Lail Kingdom it’s strongly recognized as a powerful poison so no one thought of anything like that and I didn’t pay any attention to it either. It’s said that when they go and throw it away a goblin tried eating it and writhed around in pain before dying after all..But, if sorira is still mixed in with it then it’s only obvious that it died. It might be worth trying to feed it to a stray dog wandering around somewhere.”

She says while smiling and looking at me. I guess that means use Identify.

“Nn, that’s right. Then if you have some kind of connection write a letter or something and we’ll leave buying that mushroom to you. Also, tonight I’m heading to “Missuri” where {Black.Topaz} is waiting. You come along as well.”

Chapter 185: Remove Curse

Year 7445, Month 5, Day 4

Miduchi and I went together to “Missuri” and at the entrance the leader of {Black.Topaz}, Reddo.Anderson was waiting.

“Anderson-san, I’ve finished making preparations. I want to get to it right away but how is the situation?”

“Thank you for coming all this way, Greed-kun. We just finished tying up Vikkusu now. He’s rolling around in the room like a caterpillar.”

Sis Anderson looked at me with eyes filled with expectation. It should take about an hour but I think it’ll probably be fine. By the way the voice of someone cursing in a loud voice is echoing through the inn. It’s probably Barukemi.

“Is that so, that’s helpful. And also, I’ll say it once again but it’s possible it could fail and I don’t take responsibility no matter what happens even if it succeeds. That’s fine right?”

Just in case, I give one more warning. Since I practiced using a cursed ring and not a sword, I really don’t know what will happen. If they start saying something afterwards I’ll be troubled.

“Yeah, of course. Something like a {Retributed.Item} doesn’t matter at all. If Vikkusu returns to normal then something like {Magic.Items} we still have plenty of chances to find more.”

Well I’m sure that’s the case. That Vikkusu, the Dog-people named Vikkensu.Barukemi who uses a battle mace is one of the most skilled in {Black.Topaz} after all. After hearing Anderson’s reply I nod to Miduchi and then we walked through the entrance of “Missuri”.

We were lead to Barukemi’s room and the other members of {Black.Topaz} were watching over Barukemi as he was tied up with some rope and left rolling around. He’s cursing at his allies. The content is “return my sword” and “at least untie the rope”. When Miduchi and I showed our faces brought my Anderson the other members all left the room. Since I told them it was a spell, they’re making sure not to watch I'm sure.

After the members of {Black.Topaz} that were holding his body down left Barukemi started twisting his body trying to reach the bed where the sword was placed. There was a serious light in his eyes as if he was trying to save his precious family from a crisis.

"If you need anything just ask. Just as you can see the sword has been left on the bed."

"It's fine, we've already prepared everything we need over here."

"..Got it. Then I'm going outside to wait as well. When you're done please call us."

"Yes. I think it'll take at least 1 hour to finish. It might be a bit longer."

"N.."

After Anderson gave a short reply she looked at Barukemi for a short period but soon after turned around with her deep pink long hair in a ponytail swinging as she left the room and closed the door.

"Now then, shall we do this."

"Is there anything you need help with?"

Miduchi asked.

"Yeah, while I'm using the magic make sure this guy doesn't move away from my hands. If you place the sword on his side I think it'll be fine but just in case."

"Nn, got it."

After hearing Miduchi's response, I picked up the cursed sword on the bed and seeing that Barukemi started cursing at me in an angry fit so I crouched down and placed it right in front of his face.

"Barukemi-san, you like this right? I can't untie the ropes but use it as a pillow or whatever as you please."

"A, Ah. Sorry about that. This is my partner. If I don't have it I can't seem to calm down.."

While making an ecstatic expression Barukemi said that while rubbing his cheek against the sword and calmed down.

Just as I heard he can talk normally.

I went around behind that Barukemi and made sure I could grab the nape of his neck. Seems like there's no problem. But, it probably would be best to grab his ears. It seems the easiest to grab his tail but I felt like he would dislike that so I decided against that. In reality touching the sword would be the best but unlike the ring in the fairy village the curse is charm after all.

If I touch the sword then Barukemi would probably get agitated.

“Then shall we start. Take it out.”

Miduchi took out several glass bottles from the pouch on her waist. The contents are some spices and other grasses we had prepared ahead of time. Of course the spell {Remove.Curse} doesn't need anything like that. But, even if the spell succeeds it'll probably remain in Barukemi's memory. It's something like insurance I prepared to cover it up just in case.

I take a pinch of nutmeg powder in my fingers and start chanting the incantation(smile) “jugemujugemugokonosurikire” while touching various places on Barukemi's body. This time I started tearing up the roots of grass while saying “kaijarisuigyonosuigyomatsuunraimatsu”. Then I start rubbing the sap that came out of the root ends on Barukemi's face while he was confused while saying “fuuraimatsukuunerutokoronisumutokoro”. Suddenly Barukemi got displeased. Well it's only obvious though.

Well, it can't be helped paying any mind to him so I continue the ceremony. I tear up some leaves and throw them around his body while saying “yabukarakojinokabukoujipaipopaipopaiponoshuringan”. After “shuringannogurindai” is dipping some leaves in water and spices before pinching one of his ears. Though I say that, just lightly so it wouldn't hurt.

“Barukemi-san. I'm going to use magic. It's magic that will test your bond with that sword. If you can endure this then I'd be willing to offer my opinion to Anderson-san on that sword. How about it?”

“Ah? I don't know if its magic or something else but there's no way to cut the bond between me and this fellow. However, I'm grateful you'd be willing to put in a good word for me...Would you try doing it.”

Nn then I guess I'll get started....

.....

In the end the spell {Remove.Curse} took over one hour. After all there were some differences between a sword and a ring. In the end I said “gurindainoponpokopinoponpokonanochokyumeinochosukesan” before gathering all of the leaves and roots I scattered around.

Since the spell was long since over I already finished Identifying Barukemi. I confirmed his condition magnificently returned to 【Status: Normal(Bad Circulation)】. I took the sword out from under Barukemi's face as he we still tied up and laying on his side but I was able to take it without any particular problem. I guess the circulation is bad because I was pinching his ear the entire time he was laying there.

I nod to Miduchi and throw the sword on to the bed before taking my knife out and cutting the ropes used to tie Barukemi up. During that time Barukemi was just spacing out and whispering something in a low voice. Yeah, since he still has all of his memories I'm sure he's quite confused. Just an hour ago he was saying something like “No matter what the bond between this sword and I can't be cut.”

Miduchi opened the door to the room and Anderson came inside. The other members of {Black.Topaz} are peeking in from the doorway.

“Barukemi..Greed-kun, is he already fine?”

Anderson said in worried voice.

“Yeah, I think he's already fine. Right now he just seems to be confused. I think all of his attachment to the sword should be gone already?”

I said while looking at Barukemi who's still dazing out and whispering something.

“Barukemi-san...Barukemi-san!”

I wave my hand in front of his eyes and call out to him, shake his shoulders. Suddenly Barukemi came to his senses and the light returned to his eyes.

“A, Ah. I'm fine...However, why did I for that sword..Ah, so embarrassing..”

Barukemi's face turned bright red as he felt ashamed. I guess the fact that he's gone bright red is because his circulation has returned as well. It would probably best to leave things at that.

"Anderson-san. Here's the sword."

Miduchi picked up the scabbard of the sword I threw on the bed and handed it to Anderson.

"Thanks..{Status Open}."

After receiving the sword Anderson confirmed the status and in addition started concentrating while holding it. She's probably using the void magic {Detect.Magic}. It's alright. There's no problem with the sword. Though if you put it in your sword belt and hold it in your hand I think you'll be cursed again.

With everyone keeping an eye on things for a few minutes, Anderson finished the spell and put the sword back on the bed while saying, "There's still mana remaining in it so the sword seems fine as well."

""oo!!""

"Thank goodness..."

"That idiot Vikkusu.."

And just like that, all of the members of {Black.Topaz} who were watching over from the doorway took breaths of relief. Even though I already figured it would fine, I was relieved that there wasn't any particular problem myself.

"Vikkusu! How long are you going to keep dazing out, get a hang of yourself!"

"A, u, Reddo-sama! I'm very sorry! I'm already fine. I don't have that strange feeling anymore."

"Does your body feel strange anywhere? I see. Then that's fine."

After Anderson finished checking if Barukemi didn't have any other problems after the sword, she turned around to us and lowered her head once again.

"Greed-kun. Thank you. It seems like there's no problem with the sword and there doesn't seem to be anything strange with Vikkusu either. We were really saved. I appreciate it."

"No, you're welcome."

Yeah, well having the gratitude of {Black.Topaz} is somewhat useful, so it's fine. I was able to get some practice using the spell {Remove.Curse} on a sword as well. It's also important I was able to show it in front of Miduchi.

"Vikkusu, you really can't sleep with your feet facing the {Slaughterers} anymore."

"They healed our injuries once before as well."

"We're really saved thanks to you."

"No, really thanks."

The other members of {Black.Topaz} each offered me words of gratitude as well.

"Kaku, put away the sword. This sort of sword, there's nothing but harm holding on to it. It seems it would be best to just sell it off right away."

"However, Reddo-sama, it's a {Magical.Sword}. It might have some sort of amazing power.."

"It's fine. If we try testing it out we might end up giving birth to the next Vikkusu, it's fine as long as we can make a bit of money off of it."

"I see..Since it's a {Retributed.Item}, I guess that's true."

It doesn't have any particular ability other than charm. Since the Endurance is reasonably high it's decent on that end but in terms of Ability a normal infantry-use short-sword would still be better. Though if you make use of the charm curse from the {Cursed.Item} then it's not like you wouldn't be able to sell it for a price high but after that you would need to flee to another country, in that case it would be the wisest to just sell it at whatever price you can get or break it.

"Well then, we'll take our leave here.."

Miduchi and I were trying to take our leave.

"Ah, Greed-kun, tomorrow night, I guess, come to "Dorureon" at 6 pm and give my name. I'll talk about all the information as compensation at that time. Would that time be convenient for you?"

"Yeah, there's no problem. I understand. Then I'll see tomorrow night."

I said that before we left “Missuri”.

.....

After returning to Boil Manor and putting away all our props it had already become a good time so we went to eat dinner. Was it “Pegizu” today? Rather than a restaurant that place is closer to a slightly chaotic bar. When we arrived at “Pegizu” everyone else was already seated at tables outside eating their meals.

“Sorry about that~ we ended up a bit late.”

“No, we just arrived a short while ago as well.”

Toris taps the bench beside him while saying. Just like that I sat down to the left of Toris and after ordering some beer and cooked beans from the Cat-people brat who came out, I started reporting in whisper.

“I was able to safely complete the request from {Black.Topaz}. With this I should have sold a favor to them as well. Tomorrow night, I think I’ll be able to get a bit more detailed information on {Sun.Ray} at Dorureon.”

“Today I kept an eye on that one inn but there was no one coming in or out.”

Zulu reported as well. That one inn is the inn that the Rindobel couple of {Sun.Ray} uses. A bit of distance from there is a reasonably large bar where you can keep lookout on the entrance of their inn. I have my three slaves taking shifts observing from there. It seems that when members of {Sun.Ray} discuss things they often go to the inn the Rindobel couple use or at least that’s what I heard from Viruhaima of {Verdure.Brotherhood} the other day.

“I heard some rumors when I was eating lunch with Toris yesterday. It seems like they were talking about us. Some adventurer looking pair that I don’t know was talking about Ral and Miduchi-san.”

Bel said while tilting her beer mug.

“Yeah, I just heard something similar at “Saroku” at lunch. It seems it’s become quite the rumor.”

“Somehow it feels like Al-san got the short end of the stick..”

Toris said that apologetically. So those rumors were also about how I’m not properly managing the party..It can't be helped right.

“Well, that was something I already predicted. I don't pay any mind to all of it. Well it's still just started. I'm sure {Sun.Ray} wouldn't move so easily either. It's necessary to be ready for things to drag out a bit. Rather than that, what about Basutorial?”

“Yeah, though it's just the contents I tried testing it out a bit. Since I brought it along should we try grilling it?”

When Basutorial said that Ralpa and Gwine raised some cheers.

“Oh~ that sounds good. Let me try eating it.”

The waiter brat brought out the food we ordered. It see Miduchi ordered a beer as well. It seems that the food Miduchi asked for takes a bit of work. He only brought out my cooked beans. Basutorial took out the lump of minced meat that he had wrapped in a bag and started negotiating something with the brat. Because of how monotone he was the other day he was removed from the plan. I already told him during the day that he doesn't have to do anything so just focus on making the contents of the sausages. However, for him to come up with a prototype in just half a day. I wonder what's going on with the recipe?

Basutorial stood up and went together with the brat further into the restaurant.

I guess it's only natural. I look at the blonde hair watching Basutorial and knowing she's looking forward to taste testing, admired this fellows attachment to food.

Shortly after the bacon fry Miduchi ordered came out. Miduchi and Gwine were explaining the deliciousness of sausages to Zenom and when everyone started to get restless hearing that, Basutorial finally came back out. On top of the plate was something like sizzling minced pork and on the side there was something long and narrow wrapped in a cloth.

It seems he didn't grill all of them but formed a portion of them into the shape of sausages and boiled them still wrapped in the cloth.

When we ate the one that was grilled it was salty. Since both spices and seasonings were used, the taste itself wasn't too bad. It's probably just a mistake in the mixture. But, the one that was boiled seems to have had just the right amount of salt content removed as the flavor was decent.

“After all if it’s not packed into intestines then it’s vague.”

The woman with her long hair dyed blonde said arrogantly. However, all of us reincarnated people including Basutorial and I were nodding. That snap texture is really where it needs to be~ And it’s probably because he used the stomach meat from a pig but there’s not much fat and the color is bad as well. Adding to that it’s crumbling as well. It’s not like there’s something like mixed spices and salts already made. There’s no particular need for food coloring but it really could use some phosphates as a binding agent.

“I’m sorry, I tried cutting it down as small as I could to around 2 mm but it ended up crumbling apart..”

Basutorial said while disheartened but since there’s no meat grinder it seems he just cut it up and diced it with a knife. It’s not unreasonable that he can’t make proper minced meat.

“Is that so!? Isn’t this delicious!”

Giberuti is praising it without restraint. If you were to ask if it’s good or bad then it’s not bad. It might be good to let Giberuti join in the making of the sausages later as well. Incidentally, it seems Zenom, Zulu, and Angela were somewhat pleased with them as well. It’s badly made but it’s probably their first time eating something like minced meat.

“Wai..Wait, that’s my..”

It seems Ralpa stole a portion of the boiled meat stick that Miduchi was going to eat from the side.

Even though you’re complaining you’re still eating it I see.

“Heeee~ it’s because you’re so carelessly eating something like bacon. If you aren’t going to eat then I’ll take it.”

Take it? you’ve already swallowed it down...
So today these two are going to fight over food...

Chapter 186: Feeling Left Out

Year 7445, Month 5, Day 5

I finish my daily running and then after eating breakfast again I went alone to the other side of the outer crater to practice spells. It still takes me quite a bit of time to use the spell {Transmute.Rock.To.Mud}. Even then I was finally able to shorten it down to just 140 minutes so you could say the results of my training are showing quite a bit.

Along the way I ate the sandwiches from my bento and just kept drilling in the training until close to evening before returning alone to the town of Baldukk in brisk steps the same way I came. Since I'm riding a horse, the expression brisk is regarding my excellent war horse.

Honestly speaking I don't really feel too good about this, it can't be helped if I get a bit depressed about it.

After returning to Boil Manor I changed into some nice clothes and headed towards "Dorureon". Though we're sub-Nobles, sis Anderson is the daughter of a Viscount family and it's a formal invitation to a place as an expression of gratitude so I thought I needed to dress up properly. I finished changing into the clothes I made at the end of last year for standing as witness on the day of judgement, left the room and just as I was coming down the stairs, Miduchi and Gwine were chatting in the lobby.

"Ah, you're going now? Have a safe trip."

"Ah, be careful, Al-san."

"Nn, I'll be careful on my way back...I'm sure things are troublesome on your end but make sure you do things right as well.."

These guys, it's nice they seem to be enjoying themselves so much everyday... I'm sure again today I'll be called a "incompetent leader who can't control his own members"...It can't be helped though.

.....

A short while before the time I arrived at "Dorureon" and Anderson was already waiting. I was lead by the boy to a private room and after all Anderson came out to meet me with a decent outfit. Of course, it's not something like the type of dress you'd wear to a party. It's the same for me but since she's also left her house I doubt she has those sorts of useless clothes either.

Her long pink hair is carefully tied up and she was wearing a shirt with a collar, a first-class coat, tight pants, and leather shoes(not our product made of rubber. Traditional leather shoes and they aren't at the level of boots but are like basket shoes).

I'm wearing something similar. Though just my shoes are rubber-sole leather shoes. I shake hands with her as she came out to greet me and I guess some doubts appeared on my face, she started explaining.

"Ah, I called out Viruhaima as well. Since he was technically the one who brought you into the discussion after all."

So that's the reason there were three lunch mats prepared on the table. That old man, even though he was completely useless other than bringing me into it, he still gets treated at "Dorureon"...Well, it's not like I'm the one who's paying and in the first place I came to receive the promised information on {Sun.Ray}. I guess it's strange that he wouldn't be on the spot.

"I told Viruhaima to come at a time about 30 minutes after I told you. I wanted to talk together with just the two of us first. I'm sorry."

Huh? Ha~ though that's fine.

"I understand. Either way we're not going back into the dungeon until the day after tomorrow so there's plenty of time. And, what did you want to talk about?"

I take my seat while replying to Anderson. After I sat down Anderson took her seat at the head of the table as the host.

"First off I wanted to thank you. The matter this time, really thank you very much. I appreciate you saving Vikkusu."

She told me it yesterday as well but once again she politely lowered her head.

"And, with this matter I've once again been made aware of it but even though you're young you're really quite something. I knew you were a powerful sorcerer but it's only obvious that the {Slaughterers} grew so rapidly."

Yeah, well...

"As a matter of fact, I have a niece. She's the daughter of my older brother who inherited the house. This year, she's 16? Or 15 huh? She'll turned 15. If it's fine with you, would you like to try meeting her once? If it's your level of skill then I think you could become the head sorcerer of the Viscount Anderson family. If you get along well with my niece and get married you could even become a Viscount. I'm sure you still haven't married right? Since you're originally a sub-Noble, I think you're just the right talent."

I spontaneously made a bitter smile.

"Ah, you don't need to worry about it. In the marriage is just something for appearances after all, it's fine if you have someone else you want to get married to as well...I don't think the treatment of our head sorcerer is half bad. The current person is an old man who's close to 60 already so I don't think he'll last much longer and his child isn't all that skilled at magic it seems. In the first place, even that person made it as a Viscount. Since he doesn't show his face at all recently during the training with the knight group, I think it's just right."

Hmn.

"If I've brought bought such a talented sorcerer then I should be able to marry in as a sub-Baron in the territory as well. Though I think it would be difficult because I'm already at such a late age but if it's just something for appearances I don't think it's impossible. If you're worried then I think you could make the other members of the {Slaughterers} into squires as well. If it's someone with as much power as you have then I'm sure my older brother would throw his hands in the air in joy.."

If you think about it with common sense then it's not a bad option. Rather it's almost like a chance has rolled in. But, the only thing I know about Viscount Anderson's territory is it's located in the group of Northern territories and it's somewhat stable. It's not half bad but something like a Viscount in a place like that is outside of consideration for me right now.

"Fufu..Anderson-san. You're joking...Please don't flatter me so much. I'm just a bumpkin from the backwoods.”

“Oh my, I don’t think that’s the case though.”

Well, since she’s got to the trouble of assessing me so highly. I should at least do some splendid lip service I guess.

“I’m grateful for such a rare and magnificent chance but I think I’m too unskilled to serve the Viscount Anderon family with their pedigree...and, I think there are still plenty of others who are far superior to myself.”

“..That doesn’t sound like anything but sarcasm.”

Oh my~ I didn’t say it with that sort of intention though...

“Well, putting that aside if possible I’d like you to think about it.”

“Ha..”

Anderson quickly fixed her posture and continued her words.

“Putting that aside, until Viruhaima comes please let me hear just this much. Greed-kun, do you, have some kind of grudge against {Sun.Ray}? No, since I hate {Sun.Ray} as well that doesn’t particularly matter but you know. Honestly speaking, I don’t hate {Sun.Ray} but the leader the Rindobels. I still hold a grudge for stealing one of my members as well..”

“I don’t particularly have any sort of grudge.”

“Then, why? You’re intending to crush them right?”

If I say it like that then I guess it’s not strange for it to be taken that way. Though I say that, I think that crushing them is hitting the mark a bit too close.

“No, I’m not particularly thinking about crushing {Sun.Ray} itself even the tiniest bit. Just, as a result I think that there’s a slight possibility remaining that it could develop into a conflict, that’s why I made such a request.”

This is true. I can’t deny the possibility that as a result they’ll be crushed or close to that but I’m not actually thinking about crushing them. The trick for how the Rindobel couple is recruiting people honestly doesn’t matter at all either. It’s fine if they want to use whatever trick or scam they want.

“Well, it’s fine. Just as promised no matter what happens between you and {Sun.Ray} we'll remain unconcerned with it. We were in a position where it wouldn't have been strange for you to request something even more after all."

"No, I'm relieved to hear you say that. Thank you very much."

"Stop that, the one who needs to give thanks is me."

"No not at all, let's continue talking about this matter later when Viruhaimasan arrives.."

The boy brought out some tea. It's not the scent or taste of the bean tea I like but it's tea that uses expensive leaves and has a pretty good scent.

.....

On my way back from "Dorureon", I was satisfied with my estimate of myself that I was able to get a good result. Since I didn't have many requests on my side, I got a bit sick of being asked every little thing about it, but I'm sure both Anderson and Viruhaima were a bit worried about it as well. Since it's too cheap as compensation for {Remove.Curse}, they think there's some important point to it that they still haven't realized yet.

Of course that's the correct answer. Though it's something that can't be called important to them but it's fine as long as they don't pry into the problem with {Sun.Ray} or the internal conditions of the {Slaughterers}, and spread the rumors that we wanted then just that's fine after all.

Incidentally, I was told, "Are you an idiot?" by them. It's not like I don't think that way as well but it's fine. My reputation among other adventurers isn't worth even a single Z and in the first place the one who came up with the summary wasn't me. Though thinking of the safety I am the one who changed the actors as well as amending some key points. If things go well then while I'm sure it's only for a small portion of people it'll completely flip around. No, I guess at best it will just return huh? Even then that's not enough to exchange for a reincarnated person.

On my way back, I was looked at with eyes of pity by a group I didn't know that seemed to be adventurers.

Shit. Those guys, I wonder what in the world they did this time?

.....

Year 7445, Month 5, Day 12

This week, we explored the dungeon for another week again and today is Saturday and a weekend. In preparation for the three days off starting tomorrow, it's about when everyone starts to let their guard down. We're smoothly increasing our combat experience against Ogres. Though we've gotten considerably used to it, when fighting against an opponent who could kill you with just a single blow from their club, you're not allowed even a moment of letting your guard down. I call out to everyone in a strict voice to be careful and with Giberuti's handmade bentos we stepped foot into the 7th floor.

Until noon we defeated 8 Ogres and additionally 30 or so goblins before eating lunch. In the afternoon, just the same we walked around searching for ogres and we arrived at the teleport room to the 8th floor just past 5 pm. By the time we sold the magic stones we gathered and returned to the inn the day had long since ended.

When we returned to inn there was a message that the {Humidifier} magic tool we obtained a while back was sold. The sale price ended up exceeding 120,000,000 Z by just a bit. Even after removing the commission cost, taxes, and giving out bonuses 80,000,000 or so still remains in my hands.

Once I get my hands on the money I need to pay out the bonuses.

.....

Year 7445, Month 5, Day 13

"Just stop with that already! Why do you get up in my face like that every single time!"

"Shut up, shut up, shut up!"

They've started again.

"You're the one who needs to shut up, this baldy!"

"I'm not bald~! Can't you see this beautiful blonde hair? What pitiful eyes you have. Ah, were they just for decoration was it?"

"Just stop with that already! You're a bother to everyone around us! Al you say something too!"

Zenom's temper explodes.

"Ye..Yeah, you two really can keep at it without getting bored...Just stop already.."

I scold them with an shocked and weak smile on my face.

"Really, Al-san you should tell it to them more clearly! The two of you just stop it already, the food will taste worse right!"

Gwine joins Zenom and enters between Miduchi and Ralpa.

"Master, you should properly discipline your subordinates.."

Zulu, even you're saying something like that...

.....

Year 7445, Month 5, Day 14

While we were eating dinner, Miduchi and Ralpa started fighting over something stupid again. It was while I was talking with Basutorial and Giberuti over the method to make sausages I could remember. Stop getting in my way...

It might just be my imagination but Bel and Angela seem to be looking at me with cold expressions as well.

"Ha~ ..Really just stop already!! You're loud! Ralpa, you I'll fire you!"

"Ah! You're playing favorites with just Miduchi again. That's unfair!"

"Ha!? It's only obvious since you're the cause right!?"

"Hmph, even though she's just an opportunist.All because I'm Al's woman right? Ah~ I sure am jealous being favored just for that!"

"Ha!? I'm his wife! What? We're you in love with Al? That sure is pitiful you weren't even properly considered as a partner!?"

"Huh? What are you saying? This rotting thing! I don't have bad taste like you!"

"Hmph! Aren't you just pent up from your man drought? Once the "sausages" are complete you should lower your head to Saji right!!"

Ah, really...

"Every single time~! You pieces of trash! Just shut up already!"

““You’re the loudest one!””

Just forgive me already.

Look..old man Viruhaima is pointing and laughing out loud at us from the store across from us.

Shit.

.....

Year 7445, Month 5, Day 15

Evening, it was when Giberuti and I were out shopping for entering the dungeon the next day.

“And you know, they all raised their voices saying “You’re~ the loudest!” and tears started to appear in his eyes~”

“Are you serious, how pathetic~ gyahahaha”

Shit..For me to even be made fun of by this trash at the bottom...

“Master, please endure it.”

Yeah, I already know, Giberuti, it’s fine if you don’t make such a worried face. I always maintain my composure.

.....

Year 7445, Month 5, Day 19

“Let’s go..“Mefurubisu”!”

We teleported into the 7th floor. Shortly after we teleported, we all raised our vigilance in the directions we decided on before-hand from every side. It seems there’s no monsters around.

“Alright..Gwine, where are we?”

After confirming our surroundings are safe, I asked Gwine.

“Yes..We’re here.”

Gwine pointed to a spot on the map Bel spread out.

“Here huh..Ralpha, what’s the direction?”

“Nn, we’re facing West.”

Ralpa replied smoothly after jumping.

“Got it. Then let’s go this way. We’re going with {Wedge Two} and 5 meter gaps.”

With Miduchi at the lead, Zenom and Toris about 5 meters behind her on both sides, then another 5 meters behind that Ralpa and Zulu have fortified. On the sides with an equal amount of space Angela, Gwine, Bel, and Basutorial continue.

I’m about 5 meters behind Miduchi.

Now then, shall we do some earning.

.....

Year 7445, Month 5, Day 22

“You dropped another bean, how pathetic. Pu..pathetic.”

“What? You picking a fight again?”

Miduchi is making an irritating expression I want to hit while making fun of Ralpa.

“No..I was just showing pity for a poor young girl who can’t even properly use “chopsticks”?”

“Ha? Didn’t you just make fun of me as being pathetic right now?”

Hey now, this time it’s about chopsticks...

“Hey, you two, be quiet at least while we’re eating!”

““You’re the loudest one! In the first place can you not do anything but yell!?””

Sh..Shit. It’s true I’ll admit there’s no art to it but...

“Miduchi-san and Ral you both calm down. The two of you are too irritated. How about we go to the capital later? I’m sure if you play to your hearts content you’ll blow some steam.”

“Ah, the capital is it! Toris-san, is it alright if I go along as well?”

“Yeah, Gwine, of course it is. Zenom-san how about you too?”

“Oh~ that might be good occasionally...I just wanted to buy some smoked meat as well..”

“Kalstalan-sama, would it be alright if I go along as well?”

“Yeah, Zulu, it’s only obvious. Maruso and Giberuti how about you two as well?”

““Is it alright?””

“It’s fine. I’ll cover the cost of the carriage and lunch even. Let’s enjoy ourselves today!”

“U.Umm..I want to buy some meat so..”

“Yeah, Saji. There’s some good butchers in the capital. Let’s go together!”

“Well, Toris, you’re quite generous today.”

“Ha ha, stop that, Bel. I’m still on the end of the nobility after all. I need to properly think about everyone.”

“Ah, that’s right, Saji, if we’re going to the capital then even if it’s not a butcher I know once I can introduce you. Though it’s a store run by dark elves I’ve never been to either..”

..This feeling of being left out. Though you might say it can’t be helped, this is harsh. Really harsh...

I hate myself from last month.

Chapter 187: A New Place To Sleep

Year 7445, Month 5, Day 23

Since the members of the {Slaughterers} went out to the capital yesterday before noon intending to stay the night, they still haven't returned today. Therefore, I'm eating breakfast alone this morning. When I was eating some eggs on bread alone at a table while making a bored face someone sat down while saying "Excuse me."

""Good morning, Greed-san.""

"Hn? Yeah, good morning."

It was Faruergaz and Hirosukol. After the two of them greeted me, they were trying to say something but having trouble with it. Recently every time we meet they say something similar so I'm a bit fed up with it expecting the usual topic but it's something I was already prepared for from the start. I'll listen to it any number of times.

"Are you alone today?"

"Yeah.."

You can tell just from looking right. I'm all alone. Ah, somehow I'm exhausted.

"Just a bit, this is some advice but while it's only obvious you need to show a resolute attitude to your subordinates tolerance is also important. I think it would be fine to close your eyes to some things."

"I guess.."

Well, it's a completely sound argument. Even if you don't say something like that I already know, is what I want to say but it doesn't particularly matter.

"Recently, it seems like everyone is acting strange, so it just bothered me.."
"I don't have any intention of prying into the internal circumstances of you all but if something happens feel free to call out to me without hesitation. If there's something we can do we'll cooperate."

"Yeah, I'm very sorry for causing you to worry. However, it's alright, I'll somehow manage something.”

I replied with a weak smile. Recently, I always think it but somehow Hirosukol’s way of speaking somehow feels stiff. If he drinks a bit then it returns to the feel of when we first met but since a short while after the start of the year I feel like he’s been putting in effort to speak politely. And then this past month or so I feel like it’s started to get mixed up a bit.

Even in the {Common.Language} there’s something you could call words of reverence (It’s not something I learned in a school like Japanese language, so it’s just my own word for it) and you can make use of those while matching your way of speaking up with the other party. In his case, either he’s bad at using them like that or otherwise he doesn’t want to use them, I don’t really get it though.

I guess you could say it feels kind of like the dialect from a remote area in Japan are mixing up with honorifics or so? That or I just don’t know the way the words of respect are spoken in that remote dialect. It can’t be, I don’t want to think he’s looking down on me at this point. It’s been close to half a year since they started entering the dungeon. They entered {Sun.Ray} about midway through last month, they should have gone together with them to the 3rd floor and maybe even the 4th floor. Or as expected maybe they haven’t gone that far yet? It would be strange if they don’t understand what kind of position the {Slaughterers} are in among the adventurers this town yet.

Ah, I have no intention of telling him to say everything in honorifics. I just found it weird how he’s mixing dialect and normal speech together and his way of speaking is strange so I wish he would just pick one, I guess. I don’t think it’s anything to be punished over requesting that much between the differences between them and us though.

After that, I continued to eat breakfast with the two of them while accompanying their boring conversation that bordered between preaching and a warning. It was just as I started to feel like speaking politely over every little thing was getting troublesome that I was finally released. The bean tea of this place is considerably different from others and has a unique direction to it that I like so I wanted to slowly enjoy it but it can’t be helped.

After eating breakfast it would have been fine if I went to the edge of the town to practice the spell {Transmute.Rock.To.Mud} as well but recently I've felt quite stressed from all the trouble so I decided to enter the dungeon along and use cannon-type spells on groups of goblins and gnolls to relieve some of it. However, even when I used the spell {Audible Clamor} to try and lure some monsters time passed by with none appearing, in the end I had to shoot the cannon into nowhere and return to the town feeling restless.

When I teleported from the 1st floor to the entrance room it was just as some faces I knew came out of the small room in front of me. It's the dwarves from {Gehenna.Flare}. They're all wearing the usual flashy equipment with ornaments of black and orange like flames that look like a bunch of villains.

"Hn? Alone? Isn't Gwine-han with you today?"
"It must be magic practice right, our Nokkusu and Daniela occasionally do it as well."

The leader of {Gehenna.Flare}, Heggusu.Whiteflame started talking to me. Shut~up. All you guys ever talk about is Gwine-Gwine...Call out on Zenom occasionally as well. Although, because Zenom is weak with alcohol I'm sure he wouldn't accompany you though.

"Yeah, today she's tomorrow with the other members playing in Rombertia since yesterday."

"Eh..Seriously...Shit, if the leader hadn't said something like going to the dungeon last week we might have been able to go and play together with Gwine-chan as well.."

"That's right, that's right, we didn't earn much this time because of that idiot leader after all.."

"No way~ didn't we earn quite a bit?"

"But, we retreated right away when the ice monster was the opponent.."

"There's no way we could win right, no way against the ice monster..unless we do something dangerous.."

"Well it was a good decision. No one was injured after all."

"That's right, thanks to that we can meet Gwine-han alive."

"Don't say it yourself..""

..These guys, it's nice how they always have so much fun.

"I think they'll return tonight. Should I tell them the store when they return?"

"Oh! We're going to be in "Pegizu"!"

"Really, our leader is so useless. Wouldn't you exchange just the insides with the leader of the {Slaughterers}~"

No..but, just exchange the insides, these guys really are fussy over dwarves~ Even if it was possible I don't want to be a short-legged dwarf though. Ah, though I guess it's because I have Japanese mixed in, I'm short-legged among my family. However, even then going off the standard from my past life I think I have long legs. Come to think of it, I feel like all of us reincarnated people have somewhat shorter legs than the average for our races. Since Toris and Miduchi are still elves, they look quite good in terms of appearance but I'm sure they're adding to lowering the average leg length of their races as well.

In the future when I'm King, I'll have them record in history books that I had long legs. Though I don't think anyone would write it.

"No way, that's cruel..Everyone, don't say such cold things.."

"It's a joke, don't take it seriously."

"Yes, I'm the type that takes things seriously.."

"Stop getting depressed, you can have the right to sit next to Gwine-chan."

"Ohi~ that's great. I've started to feel better."

"..The men from our group are always like this right."

"Really, even though there's two women this good here, they won't even look our way.."

"Women? Hey, Garun, did we have women in our party?"

"No, no clue. Gwe!!"

"Ouch!! Hey, Daniela, Mashu, I get it, I get it already so stop."

I always think it but what's with these guys. They almost never talk to anyone other than dwarves with insanely~ grim appearances but thanks to Gwine when they occasionally talk and it's always this. Somehow I feel like my irritation has faded...

.....

After that, when I was eating lunch alone and I guess it was no good that I was at a table on the roadside, the leader of {Verdure.Brotherhood}, Roberto.Viruhaima and Basu from the same party walked by me. These two both have long legs and are cool as well...It doesn't particularly matter though. I'm not bothered over it.

"Yo~ Greed-kun. What's this you're alone huh? That's right, I'm sure you have plenty of things to think about, it's quite lonely being a leader. Ah, also, we always have seats open for you or that dark elf from your place if you plan to leave, just say something."

Old man Viruhaima made an unpleasant smile while he started talking to me in a loud voice. Shit.

"No way, that's impossible right, I've heard that even when they're like that the {Slaughterers} have quite the firm unity.."

Basu looked at the old man like he was surprised.

"Hn~ I wonder about that? Looking at how they've been recently and this guy, he's being looked down on quite a bit. I'm sure he's just thinking about things in regards to the party right now as well."

What are you doing sitting in the seat across from me at your own convenience...

"No, not particularly.."

When I replied with no expression on my face and the old man brought his face close to mine and said in a whisper, "It's become quite the rumor." I already know, something like that.

"Then, well, give it your best you all don't dissolve in mid air!"

Even though he just sat down, Biruhaima stood up and patted me on the shoulder before leaving together with Basu. Basu turned around a number of times while making a strange and apologetic face.

.....

"Al-san, we returned just now."

Close to the evening, when I was relaxing in my room everyone came inside.

“Oh~ welcome back. Was it fun in the capital?”

“We went to take a look at the temple in Rombertia. It’s big and splendid.”

Miduchi said with a smile on her face.

“We played the dog races as well. It was my first time doing it but it was quite interesting!”

Ralpa has something weird winded around her neck. Isn’t that hot?

“Ral won quite a bit. She made enough to buy a Myunku fur muffler!”

Gwine laughs out loud. The furs of Myunku are reasonably expensive but it’s just reasonably. That muffler probably wouldn’t be more than 200,000 Z (20 silver coins) during this season.

“Ufufu, I always wanted a natural fur muffler.”

There’s nothing but natural fur on this Orth, is what I thought but I decided to stay quiet. But you know, you might be saying something like that, but I know you’ve always been using the muffler you exchanged presents with Bel in the past. It’s not like something like Myunku fur is so expensive you can’t buy it after all, you sure aren’t honest.

“Rather than that Maruso managed to win on the dark horse. Ral’s was the result of a number of races but Maruso won 70,000 in just one try.”

Zulu happily said as well. However, it seems that Angela profited quite a bit. That’s great.

“Umm, master. This, it’s something insignificant but..”

Angela said that while taking a small cup out from the bag at her waist. It’s light green and has a slightly detailed design with a handle on it.

“Eh? You’re giving it to me?”

Glass itself is common but it still costs quite a bit. I’m sure this easily could cost 20,000 Z.

“Thanks, I’ll take good care of it.”

“No, I just happened to profit a bit..That is, it’s just a bit of my feelings of gratitude.”

Feelings of gratitude..Ah, the provision of saya. But, to Angela 20,000 Z should be a considerable sum of money. I'm happy for those feelings.

"Ah, that's right, Gwine. It seems that {Gehenna.Flare} are drinking at "Pegizu" today. If you feel up for it then stop by there."

"Ah, is that so. I wonder what I should do.."

"It's fine for just one night. If you feel up for it since they went through the trouble of inviting you, at least show your face."

"Nn..I understand. Then later I'll go to "Pegizu"."

Gwine's beard has already exceeded 6 cm in the length. Though her cheeks are still sparse, no matter how you look at her she's a splendid dwarf already. Recently as expected I've gotten used to it.

It seems that Basutorial and Giberuti are talking about something in the corner of the room. It's probably a discussion about sausage.

"..Alright. It seems like everyone's safely returned, let's go and eat dinner. I'm going to "Rabei". Tomorrow morning during just the morning we'll check our formations."

I said that, stood up, and as I was going to leave the room.

""Somehow, that is..We're sorry for thinking up something strange.""

Toris and Bel said while making apologetic faces. It's fine, I was the one who said I'd leave the plan to you, I'll follow through with the basic line of it. Though I still regret that I was the one who amended it.

"Don't worry about it. There's things that can be learned from here as well I'm sure. Rather than that, are the preparations already done on that end?"

"Yeah, about that but it seems it will take a bit of publicity so..When would be good? I think that the temple would be fine as long as we contact them the day before or so though."

"Thinking about that is your guys job as well. Once you've decided let me know."

""Yes.""

I left the room and headed towards “Rabei.”

.....

Year 7445, Month 5, Day 29

The second day since we entered the 7th floor. Close to the evening, in a place about 500 meters from the teleport crystal to the 8th floor. This should be the last combat for today, I declared that even if the ogre is weakened not to use ice.

“..From the right..now!!”

”..Hmph!!”

“Goo~~~!! Ggaa~~~!!”

After the ogres left arm was cut off and send flying by Miduchi’s scimitar and it was waving it around sending blood flying to the left, Zulu landed a clean with his bastard sword. Since he’s holding a shield at the ready it was an attack with just his right arm but it seems he damaged it quite a bit. I guess that was the final blow because after that the ogre fellow backwards and stopped moving.

“Now, stab it!”

“Ya~~~!!”

“Uo~~~!!”

While properly guardian with his shield, Toris used his shield to bash the body of the ogre blocking it’s club while instructing Gwine and Basutorial to stab the ogre with their spears as the one in the middle died.

“Beku.nosu.nimuru.fon.saizu.ka.doren!”

Ralpa chants the incantation for {Flame Arrow} while parrying the club the ogre on the right was swinging with her axe and shifted it’s trajectory. Simultaneously a fire arrow hit the face of the ogre who was thrown off guard. Unable to endure it the ogre let out a scream and grabbed it’s face with it’s right hand while swinging the club in it’s left hand around blindly.

Zenom rolled in at it’s feet and stole the ogres mobility by smashing his {tomahawk} into it’s angle. The ogre couldn’t but fall to it’s knees and ended up being cut on the right side from Angela who was able to sneak in past the right arm that was holding it's face. It's arm droops down. However, don't forget about the existence of Angela' shield. Though I'm sure she isn't suited for it~

Soon after, dobo...along with that sound a {Stone Javelin} stabbed in from below the ogres jaw. It's probably Bel's magic.

After confirming that all of the ogres had died, I ordered them to gather the magic stones while thinking for a bit. I can already relax while they're taking on three at once. This time it was a group of five but I finished off one from a distance with a spell and then while they were approaching, Miduchi and I killed one more. Even then they all managed to counter attack the three others that had gotten close.

Soon after the battle started since Miduchi cut off the leg of the ogre on the left side, Gwine was able to switch to backing up the center, and Bel was able to switch to backing up the right side right away. It was pretty good timing for making decisions on switching who to support.

I wonder if they can take on four (2v1) pretty soon?

.....

Just like this May ended, we passed through June, and it was just as things started to get hot in July.

I sold Zulu, Angela, and Giberuti to Toris.

Zulu was 10,000,000 Z.

Angela was 9,000,000 Z.

Giberuti was 3,500,000 Z.

~and it came out to proceeds of 22,500,000 Z.

I guess it was for the sake of confirming the rumors of the naming ceremony at the temple in Baldukk, several dozen people who seem to be adventurers were there watching us.

About half of them were faces I know.

“For him to really do it..”

“It's quite bold..”

After that I was invited by Viruhaima and Anderson and drank to my hearts content.

I cleared out of my room in Boil Manor and changed my base to “Kairugu’s Inn”. Starting tomorrow I’m a solo adventurer. Since the registration of employees for Greed Company is all in the capital there’s no need to hurry. Rather, employees of the company and adventurers are different things. I’ll get along in my own way as an individual adventurer.

I’m lonely.

I miss the warmth of another person.

Since I’ve already separated from Miduchi, I’m sure no one would complain if I go to play at the brothels for a bit...
No, I won’t go at every little chance though.

Chapter 188: Scout

Year 7445, Month 7, Day 2

Now then, while I was unpacking my bags enduring through the headache from a hangover in my room at “Kairugu’s inn”, I started thinking about what I’m going to do in the meantime. First off I need to start with this, a decision on what’s been piling up in that regards. I was worked to death dealing with countless people who came by starting early this morning.

As expected it’s my limit just making it to the 7th floor alone. If you just look at my combat power then I’m sure I can go even further but I won’t last on food. I can make a bed from dirt so that doesn’t matter at all but I would need to walk around with a blanket as well. Well, it would be fine to group up with them on the 7th floor but it would be troublesome if we ended up running into {Sun.Ray} in the teleport room on the 5th floor...In the first place I have no intention of going to the lower levels alone though.

For the time being it’s gotten a bit late but I guess I’ll go and eat some lunch. I have an appointment as well. And just as I was thinking that it seems I have a guest. I can guess what their business is but just in case I’ll learn their name and face. It’s a pain but I’ll at least show my face.

..After all it was an invitation to a second-rate party. They came along with their entire party. They offered splitting the compensation up evenly and the leader would cover all necessary expenses. However, even if you suddenly say that, is what I said and didn’t reply right away. After all I don’t have much time until my first appointment.

In order to arrive for my lunch appointment with Viruhaima of {Verdure.Brotherhood}, I walk to the intermediate open restaurant named “Henkusu”. Along the way I caught a glimpse of Basutorial walking down the road with his arm around Catherine’s waist but it seems they didn’t notice me. The two of you, making such a happy face...

Midway through last month Basutorial purchased Catherine and freed her the next day. Now both of them are fresh new Registered Free People of the Duke's Territory. It was something cheap at only a tens of thousands of Z but they even exchanged rings. They do quite the stylish things for being cats. Now they're even saying things like making songs of love and going out together to the side of the lake in the east with an instrument something like a cheap guitar. Judging from that state of theirs it seems they're going to the lake again today. It seems like they have a bento as well. Rather~ do some training with the spear. Well, they're newlyweds after all so I guess it's fine.

I spit to the side of the road and after putting both of my hands into my pockets, I walked with a worn-out posture on my way to "Henkusu". In a short while I arrived at "Henkusu". An open terrace might sound cool but it's just a bunch of tables sitting out on the road and old man Viruhaima was sitting at one of those with his right hand raised towards me. He has a lit cigar in his left hand.

"Ya~ Viruhaima-san, please excuse me between yesterday and today.."

I make as menial of a face as I can while greeting him and take a seat.

"Oh~ just as I was wondering who it was, if it isn't sub-Noble Greed that's become a {vagrant}. Lowering your head to a commoner like myself doesn't suit you~"

He said that was an tremendously irritating face. This old man, he's completely enjoying himself. The boy came out right away so I ordered some lunch and Viruhaima ordered the same thing.

"That's quite harsh. Well please don't say something like that..and, about the matter yesterday but"

"Oh~ about that. That's fine. We'll cover the entry tax, all food and consumables used in the dungeon, inn, and expenses along with 30 a month. Plus 5% of the magic stones gathered. Other than that when it comes to items we obtain, we all vote. We put points on everyone from the person we thought was the most useless to the most useful. The one who got the highest points gets 10%, the second one gets 5%, the third gets 4%, the fourth gets 3%, then it falls 0.5% each one after that. It depends on the number of people but if we include you then with a total of 9 of us then even being ranked eighth gets 1%."

Those are considerably good conditions if you think about it as a top team. It's close to exceptional if you just take into consideration that he's covering the cost of the inn.

"How many times do you enter?"

"You already know right?"

"Please let me confirm just in case."

"Twice a month, 8 days."

"How much do you earn each time?"

"I can't say that until you've already joined. But, you can at least live a decent lifestyle."

It's said that the top teams earn an average of 500,000 — 2,500,000 Z in magic stones each time they enter the dungeon. It's information I heard from the old man at the magic stone store so it's not completely trustworthy but I doubt it's largely off. On top of that there's also finding items that become earnings for adventurers. Since there's some months where you can't find any sort of items at all they're often not included in the calculation but it's different for the top teams. Of course, it's not like the top teams are finding items every time either but the minimum condition for a top team is that they find at least one valuable item(sales in the 100s of millions) in a year.

Since they enter the dungeon twice a month that would make their average magic stone earnings 4,000,000. 5% in other words 200,000 Z would be my income. A monthly income of 500,000 Z. 6,000,000 Z annual. Since I'm a noble I don't have the 10% tax that commoners have and I don't have to pay the 1,000,000 Z annual individual tax Free People have to pay either. It's fine to think of it all as expendable income. In addition, there's expectations of finding at least one bonus item a year and if it's a {Magic.Item} or huge gem or gold ore then you can live quite the easy life.

Certainly you could say the conditions are good. But, really, this old man, his tone of speech is like a Yakuza. He's terrible at it.

"Also there's one more condition."

“I’m listening.”

“The armor that’s being made at your company. It seems you’re the official merchant for the first knight group right? Sell it to us with a relative discount.”

Viruhaima takes a puff of his cigar while sitting back.

“Putting aside the armor, 5% huh..”

“Ah~ Do you have some kind of complaint?”

“No, not particularly. I’ll take it into consideration. The response will be..”

“I’m sure you already know but we enter the dungeon every month on the 5th and 20th after all. If possible I’d like a response in 4 days or the day after tomorrow. Well there’s no need to hurry. It’s fine 14 days later as well.”

“Got it.”

After that the two of us ate lunch while making idle chat and then I left the store. Next is “Mokkusu” was it...

.....

At “Mokkusu” I was invited by the semi first-rate party {King Tiger}, then at “Pegizu” from the same semi first-rate party {Eternal.Companion}, and finally an invitation from one of the slightly more decent second-rate parties called {Prime Rose}, even though their party is one made up entirely of women they requested my participation but I politely turned them all down.

Since I had a bit of time to spare until dinner so I was thinking, I wonder if it’s about time? When I returned to “Kairugu’s inn” and as expected there was a group of adventurers waiting for my return. Among those there was obviously some faces I knew and faces I don’t know.

“Hey, I got here first. I have the right to negotiate first right!?”

“Huh? Like I care, idiot. There’s no way Greed-san would even bother with your third-rate party, so jsut leave!”

“Hey, move!!”

“Greed-sama, conquer the dungeon together with us! These Boton siblings will accompany you!”

“Who are you all?”

“Umm, please let me through..I’m next.”

“We the {Black Bears} will offer up 30% of all items found!”

“Hey did you all say there was only three of you just now. That’s just splitting it up evenly. That’s so cheap~”

“Umm, Greed-san, how about us? We’ll offer two peoples share to you!”

“Umm, wait a minute, stop talking all at once..”

“We’ve come from Viscount Yoraizu’s knight group! We’d definitely like for you to take the job as commander~~!”

“You old man don’t get it~ He’s someone who quit being a leader because he got sick of it?”

“Ouch!! Don’t push!”

“Ah, really, my schedule for today is packed so..”

“Greed-san, please listen to us!”

“How about {Sun.Ray}?”

“Eh..”

The mob that was in my surroundings completely shut up.

“How about {Sun.Ray}?”

Faruergaz repeated the same words while wearing his plain but well-tailored clothes. Since I couldn’t see the tall Hirosukol he was buried in the crowd and I didn’t notice him. I could have sworn the two of them would be together the same as usual. So they were homos..No, I can’t come to a conclusion yet. I let out a single sigh and turn around to face Faruergaz. With the gold cloth on his right upper arm, Faruergaz was looking at me with a serious expression. This guy, I don’t usually pay any attention to it but is he normally wearing that cloth on his arm...

“Faruergaz-san..Is that a formal invitation? Just now, I put a decision with {Verdure.Brotherhood} on hold. And then, tonight after this I’ve promised to listen to {Black.Topaz} at “Rosun”. If it’s {Sun.Ray} then I wouldn’t mind discussing it but was that just now the leader Rindobel-san’s idea?”

I look at Faruergaz’s eyes while saying it.

“..Unfortunately it’s not a formal invitation. However, I think that our leader will definitely accept it. Even when it comes to me, that is, I feel that it would be best to have more allies..”

Grandstanding huh...

“Well then please return once it’s become something formal. I’ve come to talk, I don’t know what you’re talking about~ those sorts of possibilities are troubling after all. Please excuse me.”

I said that and pushed my way through the adventurers into my inn. I sit down on the chair in my room and I was thinking of relaxing and having some tea but I’ve been drinking tea for the past while. It’s not like I’m thirsty so it’s not necessary. I stand up from the chair and without taking my shoes off roll over onto the straw bed.

..It’s a bit off from Toris and the others expectations. Though I assumed that sooner or later {Sun.Ray} would try and recruit me but it was unexpected that Faruergaz would come without even getting permission from the leader. Honestly speaking, even I didn’t expect I’d be called on by so many parties myself.

Most likely, I did think that some second-rate parties would call out to me. The people below that would either give up from the start or show constraint towards the higher ranking parties that were calling out to me first and not move right away. That’s why I went with {Verdure.Brotherhood} first to try and give them a glare.

We were thinking that if {Verdure.Brotherhood} and soon after {Black.Topaz} make their move then {Sun.Ray} would move as well. The abilities of the {Slaughterers} has fallen because I left. I’m sure no one accurately comprehends my power but at the very least I’ve acted as the leader of the {Slaughterers} up until now. It wouldn’t be strange to be estimated that I have more power than the average adventurer.

Even putting aside skill levels and mana, since the fact that I can use magic itself is known, it can already be expected that the {Slaughterers} will lose some of their strength from me leaving for that portion. It’s not just a simple shift in leaders but since my leaving was accepted it could be thought that just losing my level of combat potential isn’t fatal for the {Slaughterers}. It’s fine to look at it as if they still have enough potential to continue adventuring on the 7th floor.

However, on the other hand, if I were to participate it's possible that the forces of {Verdure.Brotherhood} and {Black.Topaz} could increase a bit as well. It's the same for simple combat strength but rather than that for these two parties that haven't gone to the 6th floor until now, gaining me who has experience on not just the 6th floor but also the 7th should be big. The possibility of them coming to the 6th floor increases even more.

They're originally parties with high levels of skill. Right now it's just by chance that {Sun.Ray} went ahead to the 6th floor but in the first place it's said that both {Black.Topaz} and {Verdure.Brotherhood} are more skilled than {Sun.Ray}. If one of those two were to recruit me then sooner or later they'd show their faces on the 6th floor. Just the same as {Sun.Ray}, even without me they have enough skill to make it on the 6th floor if they tried after all.

When that time comes, {Sun.Ray} will largely have three options. One is to not do anything and just watch the state of things. However, this is too conservative. It's on a different level from just waiting for {Verdure.Brotherhood} and {Black.Topaz} to naturally increase their abilities and make it to the 6th floor after all.

The second option would be for {Sun.Ray} to pick me up as I've become a vagrant and use me to reinforce their own ability. Toris and the others read out and came to the conclusion that this one was the highest possibility.

The third option would be to try and recruit members from the remaining {Slaughterers} now that their leader has left. This is an effective hand to drop the strength of the {Slaughterers} who were quite literally the top until now and at the same increase their own combat strength but excluding Giberuti the porter and the newcomer Basutorial there's still 8 others. No matter how I think about it absorbing 8 people all at once is unreasonable. Depending on the case it's possible for {Sun.Ray} to just become in name and they would be taken over by the {Slaughterers} from within. Not to mention they have the achievement of throwing out their leader once already.

If they just try to recruit a couple of the useful ones then leaving them full of holes, it will just come down to {Verdure.Brotherhood} and {Black.Topaz} taking the remaining members and strengthening themselves as well. Depending on the case even {Gehenna.Flare} could rise to the surface. As a result it's possible things could even worse than the other two options. Well, while it's similar to the situation the {Slaughterers} was in before they stood out, the stage for that isn't the 5th floor but the 6th floor which only a former {Slaughterers} member would know. If it's accidental then it's still fine but there's also the possibility that some intentional trouble could come as well. Therefore, Toris and the others read that the third option is the one they have the lowest chance of picking.

I guess it's about time for me to go...

I get up from the bed and started towards "Rosun" for my appointment with Anderson.

.....

Anderson had her long legs crossed with her elbows listlessly on the table tilting a wine glass while waiting for me at "Rosun". So courteously it was even a table along the side of the road.

"Ah, Greed-kun, sorry about calling you out. Take a seat."

Just as she offered I took a seat across from her and ordered something from the waiter. Since Anderson seems to be drinking something white(They're not classified differently between white, red, and roze wine. If you were to ask it's closest to roze) so porae should be good. After that I asked for some light appetizers, bean soup, and bread.

Some wine was poured into the glass prepared at my seat and Anderson started talking.

"Even if you don't do anything 55 a month. After that 5% from the magic stones gathered."

Oh my~ Putting aside the entry tax, I guess the inn cost and consumables are on my own bill. Well even then you could say it's a plenty high amount.

"What about {Magic.Items} and ores?"

"It depends on the case. We split them up depending on the time. Though we've never split them up for 10% before. On average I think we're handing out around 3%."

Well, that's still plenty.

"I see, that's quite the good conditions.."

"Well, take your time and think about it."

I pick through the appetizers that were brought out while Anderson said with a relaxed expression.

I open my mouth while picking through some kind of shellfish that I don't really know.

"About how often do you enter the dungeon?"

"..We haven't particularly decided but around twice a month. The duration is between 7 and 10 days. I get into contact 3 days or so before entering..Oh my, just as expected it seems."

A group of three entered the restaurant and sat down at a table a bit away from us.

It doesn't need to be said but it's the Rindobel couple and Zemyunel from {Sun.Ray}. We matched up the timing for when all of them were on their days off yesterday and today after all, so things are quite busy.

Other than that, Feruergaz and Hirosukol are there as well. Though they seem to be watching over things nervously as onlookers, I guess?

Chapter 189: Joining

Year 7445, Month 7, Day 2

I talked about some random things that sounded appropriate until we finished our meals.

In the end Anderson brought her face close to mine from across the table and whispered “Well, we’re in debt to you after all. I’ll do most of what I can but..I want you to give your best” before standing up from her seat and after elegantly paying the bill she left the store.

I was sipping some tea while watching the boy clean up the tableware and a voice called out to me.

“Is it fine, over here?”

Just as I predicted, it’s the wife of the Rindobel couple, Meiria.Rindobel. Laios. Commoner. 43 years old. Level 17.

“Yeah, if it isn’t Rindobel-san. Please do.”

I’m still sitting but I point to the other side of the table while acting politely. Since she got my permission the Rindobel couple sat down in front of me. The husband is Koritto.Rindobel. The same Laios. Commoner. 45 years old. Level 17. Unlike his wife who can’t use magic, the husband has void, fire, and water magics. The elemental magics are at level 4 and the void magic is at level 5. He can use them at a decent level. You could say he’s a first-rate sorcerer.

And then, next to me, the Dog-people Binsukol.Zemyunel sat down. He’s a commoner as well. 27 years old. Level 17. It’s not that the Rindobel couple’s level is low for their age but you could say Zemyunel’s level is high. Though I say that, Viruhaima who’s a bit younger than them is level 19 and close to 20 and the deceased leader of {Bright.Blade} was a bit older than them but was level 18. If you think about the fact that Anderson who was just here a moment ago is level 18 then they’re a bit low.

“Greed-san. I’ll ask you straight out. Do you have any interest in joining us {Sun.Ray}?”

Koritto made a small smile as he said. I always think it but {Sun.Ray} sure are well-mannered and use polite tones of speech so I get a good feeling from them.

“I’ll take it into consideration based on the conditions. If I can profit more than acting as a guide then I would have no complaints.”

I said it partially as a joke while shrugging my shoulders. It’s a joke that’s often said among the {Slaughterers}. The normal cost of a guide changes between the day and the floor. The market price is 100,000 Z for 1 day on the 1st floor. Other than that there’s also the entry tax for the guide and splitting things up evenly between the number of people that are considered the basic fee. It seems that some of the skilled guides even require calculating themselves as two peoples cut worth of compensation. And then, after they leave the dungeon, while calculating the bill the guide will pay back the amount for the food and consumables they used. Or at least that’s the usual pattern.

Although, normal guides fundamentally have their main work places on the 1st floor and rarely~ the 2nd floor. It’s extremely rare for a party that goes beyond the 3rd floor to make use of guides. Since the expenses start to get really high, even if they do make use of it them it’s at best the first time the party steps foot on the 3rd floor in order to be extra careful.

If you think about it like that then the amounts {Verdure.Brotherhood} and {Black.Topaz} offered me sound appropriate but if we were supposing I’m the one that’s the guide it’s too cheap. Well, since it’s not like something like a guide with power on the level of the top teams exists, so it can’t be helped.

It seems that the top teams take about half a day to clear through the 1st floor, then after resting for several hours, they spend another half a day to clear through the 2nd floor. By that point already it would be annoying trying to calculate the total if I were hired as a guide so it would be necessary to get a guarantee of 300,000 Z for one day. If it comes to taking a full day for the 3rd and 4th floors then 1,000,000 Z for three days. After that, if we spend five days on the 5th floor then my total guaranteed amount would reach 3,500,000 Z.

Since the top teams on average only earn about 2,000,000 Z in magic stones each time they enter the dungeon, unless they were to find some valuable {Magic.Item} it would put them in the red.

“Ufufu..That’s quite harsh..Though if we were to hire you as a guide I’m sure we’d gain experience more valuable than money. But, rather than a one-time thing like a guide, we were wondering if you would enter as a proper member.”

After thinking about it for a moment Meiria said with a bitter smile. By the way, it seems that Zemyunel found my joke to be funny and is having trouble holding back from laughing.

“Fufu..Well then, please let me hear the conditions. I think you already know but right now I fortunately have been called out on by {Verdure.Brotherhood} and {Black.Topaz}. After I’ve already heard their conditions please let me take into consideration what you offer.”

“Would it be alright if I ask what the conditions both of their parties offered to Greed-san?”

I honestly told them the conditions that both of their parties offered to me. Hearing that they exchanged glances and then made an offer to me.

“We’ll cover all of the necessary expenses including your inn, and pay 60 a month on top of that. When it comes to income from magic stones in your case we’ll split them up evenly. Other than that, in the case we obtain any items, after calculation we’ll pay 10%.”

Ho~ this is quite something..They sure are giving me a high appraisal for someone who was chased out of their previous party. It’s a cut almost like the parties wandering around on the 1st and 2nd floors. It was only for a moment but Zemyunel made a slightly surprised face as well but soon after nodded as if he understood. I’m sure it’s an even higher compensation than him. Though it’s only obvious. Or rather, it would probably be best to think that they’re quite troubled with clearing on the 6th floor.

“That is quite..the good conditions..”

They most likely intend on absorbing all the knowledge they can from me, then after a few months either throw me out or get rid of me. I guess that’s twisting it too much huh? Though it’s possible they could try to cut away at my compensation based on any mistakes I make while exploring with them.

“We enter the dungeon roughly twice a month. Taking into consideration the earnings from that month, I tell the members our plans for the next month at the end of the month. This month it’s 8 days from the 6th and 8 days from the 20th, otherwise 9 days that we have planned.”

“I have no objection things around there.”

It seems that you’re properly taking the day off for the 18th of this month which is the day the sub-moon Neitari has a full moon I see.

“Well then..”

“Well, please let me think about it for at least one night. I’ll give you a reply at latest tomorrow.”

The Rindobel couple lowered their heads with a slightly disappointed expression. When she saw me Meiria continued her words in a whisper.

“Also..if you were to join us there’s some special and good information that we can offer you.”

“Ho? What is that?”

“..There’s no mistake it’s something that’s good. You could say it’s indispensable to adventurers.”

“Fumu, is it a profitable story?”

“I wonder about that. As expected we can’t tell you anymore than this unless you join us but..”

“Yeah, I guess that’s true. That was quite rude of me.”

I apologize and lower my head and Meiria lowered the tone of her voice another couple levels. I’m sure even Zemyunel can’t hear it.

“In just a mere two years? No, three years, Greed-san made the {Slaughterers} into the top adventurers in Baldukk. This time was quite unfortunate..No, it seems things ended up with quite bad luck for your but I think quite highly of you. Above all else I feel like you have the same scent as me..”

She whispered to me with her eyes narrow and then said “Well then, I’m waiting for a response tomorrow night.” and stood up from her seat. Zemyunel told me the inn they’re staying at and then left together with them.

It seems they said something to Faruergaz and Hirosukol on their way out but the three of them left soon after leaving those two.

I watched that from the side while thinking, up until here it’s almost exactly as Toris predicted.

At the same time I tried thinking about what would happen from here on out if it was Bel or Toris just as the first plan had. If it was either of them would things have been fine up to here? No, it can’t be helped thinking about that. It’s no good. There’s no meaning in them becoming pieces. There’s no problem in terms of stress and thought process but from here on out as many special maneuvering (smile) soldier roles will fall into our hands as we need. There’s not much meaning in letting them experience things as an underling. I want to let them gain experience in places where a single failure won’t end up lethal. People learn from failure after all. And also, if things even shift a slight bit from the plan, in a weird direction it could put their lives in danger. Well I’m sure they’re fine on that end though.

In the case of Ralpa, who for some reason was stubbornly volunteering, things might have been fine up until now but I can’t see anything but ruin a bit further beyond. No, in her case she probably wouldn’t have been able to endure the stress and I can’t deny the possibility of her running off somewhere while screaming “Uo~~” to relieve it. Ah, I feel like she’d drown herself in alcohol first. What point would there be turning her into an alcoholic? She was rejected for personality reasons. If Zenom was there then I feel like they would somehow be able to manage it but it’s possible things wouldn’t go as planned for both parent and child..Primarily in terms of the number of people in {Sun.Ray} and the compensation. In the first place, Ralpa is the one picks the most fights in the {Slaughterers} and if they avoid her because of that then they might not even call out to her so there’s no meaning. Though they might look like that she’s also unsuitable because they’re not that easy to deceive. It doesn’t matter who but I can’t relax if there’s no one on her side to hold the reins.

If it was Miduchi then it would be a bit better. In terms of being able to leave naturally she's the next most convenient after Toris, Bel, and Gwine. But, at the same time she's also the one they'd be the most suspicious of. After all she's my woman. In the worst case, she could be placed in a considerably dangerous situation. Even then with Miduchi's abilities it's very possible she could cut through safely but...After all if Faruergaz and the others who are there were to say something like, "That Miduchi is Greed's woman.", then I'm sure they wouldn't call out to her in the first place.

Gwine can't be taken out no matter what because of her Unique Ability and there's not a very high possibility that {Sun.Ray} would call out to Basutorial. Since Basutorial has some connection to Faruergaz and the others, if he were to make use of the fact that he's a newlywed he might be able to negotiate with them through pity but in terms of actual abilities he probably wouldn't be accepted. Or rather, it would be most natural for Basutorial to leave making use of his marriage but Faruergaz and the others would probably just say something like stop being an adventurer and start up a business. Adding to that we already know very well that he's lethally bad at acting.

Most likely I haven't given off an impression that I was "easy to deceive" or at least I'd like to think so but I do seem quite greedy, and there's also the matter of the shower on the 5th floor and how we saved their members in the past, so I think I'm the most appropriate for them to predict that I'd properly work if they give me a decent amount of compensation. Even if they were to think that I have some kind of objective I can't imagine they'd think the leader himself would leave the party he raised up that far. It's normally something you have a subordinate do. Things around there, Toris and Bel seemed to have been overlooking as well~ Though I'm happy they were trying to take my position into consideration though...

It took us quite a bit of time for it look like they naturally lost faith in me and I left but if I think about it for the sake of Toris and Bel's experience then it's still within a permissible range. If we make it to a good point from here before things fail then they should have learned quite a bit. I'm sure that will become a greater asset than anything else.

Of course, I previously told them there was a possibility it would fail.

However, even then they said they wanted to challenge it for their own growth. Though I might have been brought on it a bit as well but that spirit, is good. When I told them that if they can carry everything out smoothly then I'd supply them with Saya for free they got even more motivated. Give it your best trying to make good use of me to get some results.

Ah, I only know the essentials of the rough outline of the plan itself. Since the point I decided to become a pawn myself I've tried not to listen to it. If I listen to it then with my personality, I can't help but point out the parts that are lacking or missing and I might end up saying something to other members of the {Slaughterers}.

The only things I heard some amount of the details of was up until here, where I was called out on and join {Sun.Ray}. Even if I were Rindobel, I would try calling out on myself after leaving the {Slaughterers} as well. After this it's just a matter of when, how, and what kind of instructions they'll give to me? Well, if we go through Greed Company then while there's a bit of time lag we can still communicate.

.....

"Greed-san, is it fine to take a seat here?"

After standing from their seats, Faruergaz and Hirosukol came over and called out to me.

"Feel free."

The two of them sat down in front of me and were going to say something at the same time but tried to show restraint for each other, after exchanging some glances, Hirosukol opened his mouth.

"Greed-san, how does it feel to have a reckless dream torn apart? Ah, it's definitely not that I'm looking down on you."

"Hey, Fio"

This is quite something..However, I still can't make a decision on this.

"Nothing particularly. I still don't think it's completely collapsed after all. I just need to quietly keep working towards the things I can do from here on out as well.”

Without a single movement in my expression I replied immediately.

“Ho...So it isn’t just making excuses...But, quietly indeed..”

“Fio, stop it already. That’s not what you really want to say right? Why do you always try to charge at him so much like that..”

“Ah, sorry, Rodrick. Greed-san, I’m sorry for saying something so rude. Please pardon me.”

Well, I don’t really mind it that much, so it’s fine.

“No, there’s no problem. Please take it to mind.”

Hearing my words Hirosukol made a slightly relieved expression. I guess, he just unintentionally put it into words?

“No, we’re really sorry about that. Really this guy..”

Faruergaz started lowering his head together with Hirosukol who was next to him before he started talking.

“Since we started as adventurers here, you’ve given us a lot of advice when we didn’t know anything and were struggling. I’m really grateful for it. This time that is..things ended up quite unfortunately but..”

“It should be best to talk about things from here on in “Japanese”. Do you have any objections?”

While Faruergaz had started talking, Hirosukol cut off his words and proposed switching to speaking in Japanese. Since there’s no particular problem I nodded. After he confirming that they exchanged glances and Hirosukol started talking.

“Greed-san, just like this human relationships are quite difficult. I think the matter this time has become quite the good medicine for you. From here on out you should have a change of heart and put in effort to gain the trust of others from the start.”

“I’m very grateful, for the advice, Hirosukol-san.”

“Putting that aside, there’s no way you could enter the dungeon alone either way. It’s not limited to just us yet but sooner or later you’ll probably end up becoming a member of one of the {squadrons}. Since we have the debt from being in your care and we're the same Japanese people, I'd like if you join us."

Hirosukol said just {Squadron} with an English pronunciation. Well it's not like all of the nouns in the {Common Language} are in English so he might have just brought out an English word with a close meaning.

"Certainly, the Rindobel couple offered me quite the attractive conditions. Is it alright if I ask about {Sun.Ray}? Ah, obviously only as much as you can talk about."

"Yeah, of course. It's not strange to say that we're here for that sake. I intend to talk about the details of every we can talk about.."

Relying on Faruergaz's words I tried asking several questions but the content didn't shift too far from common sense. It's only obvious though. However, it seems that they were only told about the God Notes just the other day. I was told not to tell anyone else but they specially told just me out of the friendship between the same "former" Japanese people.

That's quite the light mouths they have and..Well, it doesn't seem like they've realized the trick so from just the information they heard you wouldn't think someone loses out. Although, they themselves mentioned that they "had quite the light mouths" for saying it and I think they were just telling me out of good will. Incidentally, it seems they had a reasonable amount of knowledge about the God Notes and as expected even they saw the appeal in gaining the blessing of a super-high end healing spell.

We've used the {Cure} type spells in front of them a number of times but I've never shown them {Cure All}. Let alone that, it doesn't seem like they can properly tell the difference between {Cure Light, {Cure Serious}, and {Cure Critical}. I wonder what kind of face they would make if I said I could use {Cure All} hundreds of times?

.....

Year 7445, Month 7, Day 3

One day later, early in the morning, first I went to Viruhaima and the {Verdure.Brotherhood}'s place and turned down his invitation.

“Well, judging from your state it seems that things went just as planned. Just like I said before, I don't like {Sun.Ray}. I have no intention of cooperating beyond this but in the case things end up in combat inside of the dungeon when we're nearby I'll at least offer a helping hand. Of course, not for a free though.”

And he said that before saying “Well, give it your best to give me some good laughs, pitiful sub-Noble Greed who lost his faith and was thrown out” and started laughing out loud. You really..if this was Ralpa she'd have long since started swinging her fists.

Next I went to {Black.Topaz} to turn them down as well.

After that I went to “Mogorito Manor” the Rindeobel couple's favored inn which I had Zulu and the others watch in the past and had the brat there call them for me.

“I'm glad you made your decision. Thanks, Greed-san. No, Greed-kun. This is our emblem. Put it on your arm or something.”

He said that and handed me a thin cloth dyed gold. They sure have good preparations...I tried to coil it around my left arm right away but I couldn't coil it well with one hand. Since I didn't want to use my mouth to coil it, I ended up wrapping it around my neck like a necktie.

“Ho~ that's a cool way of tying it. It seems like you can do it alone, maybe I'll have everyone do it that way?”

Korritto said in admiration. No, it's fine right now but inside of the dungeon it would be dangerous around the neck right.

“In any case come on in. Meri was looking forward to you coming as well. We have some things to talk about as well.”

The middle aged man winked at me while inviting me further back into the inn. It pissed me off how the wink strangely suited him.

Well, I wonder if with this I'm a member of {Sun.Ray} as well?

Chapter 190: To The 6th Floor

Year 7445, Month 7, Day 3

The Rindobel couple's room was on the highest floor of "Magorito Manor" on the edge of the 3rd floor. After being let into their room I was offered a seat on the sofa. It was a considerably high-quality sofa and felt quite comfortable to sit on. The wife of the couple Meiria prepared some tea and the husband Koritto prepared some roasted beans to go with the tea before they sat down on a sofa across a small table from where I was sitting. Unlike Viruhaima of {Verdure.Brotherhood} it seems they don't have a slave to assist with their daily necessities.

Meiria noticed the golden cloth tied up around my neck and smiled satisfactorily.

"Greed-kun, I'm glad you made your decision."

After repeating the same words he said just now Koritto shook my hand and following that I also shook hands with Meiria. We did some simple greetings and I formally confirmed my treatment as they explained each one of the rules of {Sun.Ray}. Since there wasn't a lot of them I was easily able to remember them. There wasn't anything in particular that was different compared to the average party but there was one large characteristic.

On the days we don't enter the dungeon, everyone morning it's recommended that we make a visit to the temple individually before eating lunch. It's not an obligation but I was told it's strongly suggested. I already knew about it but when I tried asking the reason and I was told, "God exists everywhere on Orth. Since it's a place where that God? can rest temporarily, if you're lucky you might stop by when that God is taking a break there." Things around there were things I already knew from investigating them and there's no particular problem with the things they're saying. It's very ordinary and something that's said to be only obvious. If it's something on this level then even old lady Shaymi in Bakuddo said it.

“And then, it seems that Greed-kun can use all of the types of elemental magic right. What are their levels?”

It’s a question that’s only obvious from someone who manages the party. I’m sure even I have an obligation to answer.

“They’re all at 4. Though void magic is 5..”

Other adventurers have seen me using attack spells up to arbalest during combat in the dungeon. However, I haven’t shown missile (shown, or rather, it’s been seen before. Though I killed everyone shortly after), it would probably sound more truthful if I make it that I can use at least {Cure Critical} rather than carelessly under reporting.

Hearing that both of the couple’s eyes went wide in surprise. It’s only obvious. It’s not at the level of super but it’s a level that’s plenty to be considered first-rate. Furthermore I’m still in my teens after all. Though I’m sharper than a knife.

“..Th..That’s quite amazing..So it’s just as rumored huh..”

“So you were a first-rate magician..But as expected..{Cure All} is impossible..”

“Yeah, that’s right. It’s strange saying it myself but there’s no mistake in thinking it’s first-rate...Even though that’s the case..those guys..that damned dark elf..they all..drove me out together..”

Partway through I started mumbling to myself with a dark and lifeless expression. Ah, I might be able to make it as an actor..If humans get desperate~ they can really do anything I see...Well, recently I’ve gotten plenty of practice making similar expressions, quite literally to the point of being sick of it. I’m already completely a veteran of making this expression while just acting...Old man Viruhaima said, “That really~~ suits you! It feels good just watching! If it’s like that then I’m sure you could make it even you quit as an adventurer and join the theater in the capital! I’ll be your patron so change occupations!” while pointing and laughing at me as well.

“Greed-kun, you shouldn’t be making such a face. I’m sure you still have various complaints but..”

“That’s right. In the first place it’s something that’s already over right? You should start thinking about things from here on out.”

Both of the Rindobel couple made their most charming smiles towards me. But, their eyes weren't laughing. Hmph, "the same scent as me" indeed...

"No, that was quite rude of me...I guess so. What's important is from here on out."

I tried to make a completely different and cheerful expression and nodded in exaggeration.

"But, for them to turn their back's on you even though you're that skilled with magic, it must be true that there's a lot of magic users in the {Slaughterers} right.."

"Yeah, there's a reasonable number. The dark elf woman can use techniques on the same level as me and the elf male can use magic as well. The female Bunny-people has magic at a considerably high level as well. Adding to that the dwarf woman and human woman can also sue magic a somewhat decent level."

There shouldn't be any need to say anything about Basutorial.

"It's just as we heard..I guess that's the driving force for how you could kill monsters to that extent.."

"Well, that's certainly true.."

"We only have five people on our end. But since we're splitting our parties into two in essence there's even less.."

I already know. The husband in front of me, the human man (if I remember correctly he was the son of a noble named Binnodo.Gekudo), the Wolf-people woman, and after that's Faruergaz and Hirosukol right? I've investigated at least that much. Adding to that, the fact that all of them are nothing special as well. The only one who could be considered first-rate is just the husband and since the human male is less than Toris he's about at a normal level, the Wolf-people woman is only at a level slightly better than Hirosukol. It seems like they would struggle quite a bit in the dungeon.

In order for me to accompany them right away starting from their next time exploring the dungeon, it seems that tomorrow we're training to check our formations. For the time being I thought that the same as Faruergaz and the others I would be told to enter the team with Zemyunel as leader next time but it seems that I'll be going to the 6th floor together with the Rindobel couple.

Even if I have experience as the leader of the {Slaughterers} and I've been to the 7th floor for them to suddenly keep me on their side? I read them as starting out a bit more carefully though...I guess that means they feel safer having those who could be dangerous within their sight.

Since tonight's dinner was acting as my welcoming party, everyone in {Sun.Ray} went together to eat. The restaurant was a place not in my memory up until now called "Gonru". It's a restaurant that's close to a cheap pub. It's strange to say since I'm having them treat me but holding a welcoming party at a place of this class, are they poor people.

Just as party reached it's middle stages, it finally reached an atmosphere where I could move from my seat so I took a bottle cheap wine and started going around pouring alcohol for the other members. Newcomers should at least do this much right. It's fine even if Orth doesn't have this sort of culture right. In addition I can naturally talk with everyone after all. When the alcohol starts circulating and everyone is feeling tipsy and good I go around lowering my head to all the members and greeted Hirosukol and the others at their table as well.

"Faruergaz-san, Hirosukol-san. I'm looking forward to working with you from here on out."

"Yeah, we are too. Even though it's fine if you didn't come to greet as politely as this.."

"Oh~ as expected you're an adult. Well drink up."

Faruergaz said that while offering me a cup of alcohol for the one I just poured for him. I finish off the alcohol I was poured in one go. Seeing that Hirosukol poured the next bit of alcohol into my cup(it's a store with no wine glasses even), and when I finished that one off again in one go he got cheerful in high spirits. Just a bit it's not amusing. I guess I'll use {Neutralize.Poison} later. Alcohol this cheap will only make you drunk in the bad way after all.

"Ah, that's right. Rindobel-san and the others never mentioned anything about a contract. Is it really fine not to exchange contracts?"

I already knew the answer but I tried asking partially as a joke. Suddenly Hirosukol's face changed as if he wasn't amused anymore.

"That is..Only obvious right...It costs money and there's no one around who signs contracts for every little thing after all.."

"Fufu, Greed-san please forgive us already. It's not like we've signed anything like a contract either."

It won't hurt even if I say it a bit sarcastically right. But, I was a bit relieved. It seems that these guys have already gained at least that much common sense. Since I had already confirmed that they didn't exchange contracts when they joined up with Kumiru and Ruttsu who are drinking beside them, I didn't think they would demand a contract when they entered {Sun.Ray} but I'm relieved. Also, you two is it fine if you don't confirm whether or not I actually canceled my contract? Well, even if you ask there's no way to answer other than that I did cancel it.

.....

Year 7445, Month 7, Day 5

We're entering the dungeon tomorrow. As a matter of fact the other day, I reported the current condition to Toris and the others. About the precise days we'll be entering the dungeon and the members who can use magic and such. I'll know in an instant if I use Identify but they wouldn't know until you can check their status. At the same time I told them I was put into a different part from Faruergaz and the others as well.

The method of contact is simple. It's just a matter of sending letters written in Japanese through my company but it would seem strange if a messenger for my company was coming and going so often and they might get suspicious of it. Just for the first time. If it's just the first time then looking from the outside it's only obvious that I would be trying to get into contact with my company after leaving the {Slaughterers}.

After that, it's only obvious but I've left my war horse in the care of the brat of "Kairugu's Inn" that I'm staying at right now and normally that brat takes care of the horses for the place. He washes them, feeds them, and depending on the case takes them for walks around the town.

I handed the brat some money and just the same had them hand the brat at “Boil Manor” some money so it’s easy for them to exchange letters when they’re both out walking my and Miduchi’s horses. On the contrary if they were to go so far with being suspicious of me to keep lookout on both my inn and “Boil Manor” then they probably wouldn’t have accepted me into their party in the first place. It seems that’s how Toris and the others imagined it. I have no objections on that.

Well, it maintains a reasonable level of safety and the logic passes. Even if through some reason the letters were to be found and they read them, the only ones who would understand the content is reincarnated people and even if Faruergaz and the others see it in some meanings it’s just a matter of them finding out the truth. Adding even more to that the letter is written in invisible ink that requires holding it over a flame so from a glance it just looks like a white piece of paper. If you burn it after reading it then no evidence will remain.

In the first place since paper is expensive unless it’s someone with a reasonable amount of money they wouldn’t use it so often. When it comes to adventurers at best for something like making a map of the dungeon? Well I’m not the central piece for the job this time. It’s limited to nothing more than just a single safety method. I’m just conveying the movements of {Sun.Ray} on to everyone.

.....

Year 7445, Month 7, Day 6

I’ve stepped foot into the dungeon with the Rindobel couple and the other members of {Sun.Ray}. I’m not carrying my bayonet but rather just the normal long sword form. Including me the party is full with 10 members.

We spent more than half a day only killing the room bosses as we cleared through the 1st floor, then with three hours of rest in between we cleared through the 2nd floor the same way. Our earnings up until here are only the magic stones from the times we had no other choice than to fight and the boss of the room on the 1st floor {Gargantuan Spider} and the bosses of the rooms on the 2nd floor, an {Owlbear} and {Crimson Centipede}, which is just an insanely huge bright red centipede.

When it comes to traps they try to take detours around them to avoid them as much as possible, that sort of thoroughly safe policy. It seems they try to avoid casually walking along the side of pitfalls like we do as much as possible. As expected I feel like that's taking it a bit far but this is probably a normal adventurer.

For the remaining bosses, I guess it's either because we repeated teleporting a number of times to pick a good location, or we only hit ones with slow movements, so we ended up just remaining careful as we got as close to the monster room as possible before running through all at once to avoid them. Just once we tried to take a detour to avoid a group of gnolls but were unable to and they started pursuing us. However, even that we just shot them with spells and arrows from a distance until they retreated. I finished off two of them the spell {Flame Bolt} as well.

There's no problem with the command of the Rindobel couple during combat. Though this is only obvious with them being one of the top teams. However, I was annoyed over how much time they used confirming the safety after the combat, then collecting the arrows, the magic stones, and such. Taking detours to avoid combat and running through the boss rooms to avoid combat as well, I understand the feelings and aim but..even if they repeat teleporting so many times it's rare that the same area will come out again so I didn't feel the need to be so concerned over it.

But, well, this is just my logic and not common logic. Even the current {Slaughterers} occasionally get injured by room bosses on the 1st floor. It's just my feeling that's strange that I'm convinced you can use healing spells at any time and normally. In the first place, the leader isn't be but the Rindobel couple. I should obey the policies of the leader unconditionally.

If the leader makes a completely foolish choice and furthermore there's leeway in time it might be okay to call them out on it but I should think that something like that can be done in either the teleport room or in a situation where I'm definitely sure there's no monsters around.

Even during my period in the SDF the first thing I was told was "commander's aren't mistaken". Commanders always make the correct decisions and don't make mistaken decisions. That's why if you do everything you're ordered without missing anything then you'll win, is what it means. Of course, even if they're a commander, it's not like a God or anything else, since they're just a human this viewpoint itself is a mistake. The instructor and assistants all immediately said "this is strange" pointing out the contradiction. However, even if it is a mistake, and there's some reason to doubt it, the subordinate must never voice those doubts in the middle of combat. The ones who can propose things like that to the commander are just their aides, or if the commander is someone high-ranking then that's the role of the staff officer after all.

Then what should you do in the case that you've clearly been ordered to take action on said mistake? and there was an idiot who asked that question. The instructor started grinning without hesitation and said, "Give up and die since you had bad luck". Well it was a joke but it's not exactly a mistake. And then the instructor also said this. "If you don't want to force those sorts of feelings on your subordinates then frantically learn things and make sure you always give out the best decisions. If you do that then they'll think that by following your orders things will definitely go well. If it comes to that then..even if you gave out a mistaken order then the subordinates who believed in you can die while still believing in you from the bottoms of their hearts. However, if you don't want to hold responsibility over the lives of strangers, of your subordinates that much then you're not suited for a job as leader. I feel bad making the citizens pay taxes to spend on someone as useless as that so you should write up a letter of resignation right away."

If you pardon the opinions of those below you then a commander will be made light of. Adventurers aren't a military organization like the knight group but they risk their lives in combat and they're similar to an army in the fact that they're a group with the purpose of achieving their goals through combat. It would be fine to consider them a small army. Of course, almost at a probability of 100% the objective of them would be more trifling than that of a real army.

If a commander has been made light of once, then after that others will make light of their orders, and there's the fear that someone might not obey their orders when it's crucial. That's why armies proceed with things under the premise that higher ups never make mistakes in their decisions. Putting aside the matter of whether that logic itself is correct or not.

Well, it's talk about my preparedness from here on out. The Rindobel couple is properly making sure to take every step necessary to keep us safe and prevent exhaustion as much as possible. As expected of the heads of one of the top teams for many years I was able to reconfirm that they're excellent leaders. Though I still don't have much to go off as samples but even then their orders and decisions during combat give off the sense of relief that a mature adventurer gives.

And then the first day ends, roughly 30 hours have already passed since we entered the dungeon. The date has long since changed and right now it's around noon on July 7th. We finally arrived at the teleport room on the 2nd floor and are getting some rest. Other than us there's several adventurer parties camping and resting.

"Greed-kun, how was things today? Are you tired?"

I ate the food that wasn't good at all, didn't have any bulk to it, and was tasteless and just as I was about to go to sleep, Koritto started talking to me. Up until here, along the way I slept for about two hours in the teleport room on the 1st floor but other than that I've always been tense inside of the dungeon, there's no way I wouldn't be tired.

"Well, I'm sure this is about right. No one was injured today and I felt relieved with Koritto-san and Meiria-san's command and orders."

"Really~ is that so. We're relieved to hear you say that as well."

Koritto made a brought smile after clearly taking a breath as if he was relieved. It can't be helped, I'll accompany him for a bit.

"Also everyone moved quite briskly. I'm pleased I was able to participate in a good party as well."

"Oh my, you sure do say pleasant things."

The wife Meiria joins the conversation. It would suck if this drags on...But, this is a good chance as well. Sooner or later gathering information is necessary so if I can gather some of it this time then that means I have that much more to report to Toris and the others after I leave the dungeon. Pawns mustn't be negligent in putting in the labor.

"No, as expected I was just showing admiration that you were one of the top teams that has existed for quite a while. There's some things that are done differently with the {Slaughterers} so I was a bit perplexed though.."

"Yeah, since we have no leeway to fit in a porter to carry luggage after all..Honestly speaking, if Santosu hadn't died a short while back we wouldn't have thought about inviting you."

Yeah, that was part of why we chose this timing as well. We were a bit nervous whether you might buy a slave or invite someone else. But, it's someone who screwed up and got injured even under that sort of proper command. I'm sure it wasn't a big loss even if they die.

"Also, since we're not as skilled as the {Slaughterers} we can't clear through the floors in a short period of time as well right? I was worried you might think it was irritating."

"Not as skilled, there's no way that's the case! I think that everyone is plenty skilled. In the case of the {Slaughterers} they just plunge forward because there's a lot of sorcerers. I think that the skill of everyone here is higher."

In terms of caution towards traps and the ability to avoid combat as adventurers, the {Slaughterers} can't even reach the feet of {Sun.Ray} in skill. On the point of aiming for the lower floors of the dungeon safely, {Sun.Ray} is far superior to the {Slaughterers}. Although, this is still the 2nd floor. There's not many opponents that the top team would struggle against. I've only seen the orders the Rindobel couple can give out while completely calm and composed.

"Is that so..But I think that people will be injured from here on out. Greed-kun if you get injured say something right away. It's not as good as you but my husband can use healing spells as well."

"Yes, I'm in your care at that time."

"Yeah, we are as well. We can't afford to lose a person who can use {Cure Critical} after all. I'll heal you with the highest priority."

“Now then, Greed-kun, you...It will probably get even more harsh from here on out so you should sleep while you still can..”

Fu~ with this I'm finally released, and I was only relieved for a brief moment. The other members of {Sun.Ray} started talking to me.

“Hey~ ya Greed-san. Around how much do the {Slaughterers} earn? I heard a rumor that it exceeds 100,000,000 a month in just magic stones but there's no way that's true right?”

This sure is annoying~ really. In the first place I've already talked about things like that several times since the other day. Everyone who talks to me go straight to this...Let's share information between allies a bit more.

“Once we started making it to the 7th floor there were months when it was over 150,000,000 as well..Well, it almost never went that far though”

If we think of the time with the {Larva Purple Worm} as separate then there's still months where we enter the dungeon four times in a month so I said it a bit on the reserved side. Most of it's already known so there's not much meaning in trying to hide it.

The one who whistled was Rokasuto.Keinesutan, a male elf nicknamed Rokko. His level is 15. 29 years old. In terms of physical abilities he's close to his peak so his ability values are reasonably good. He's one of the front line of this party and uses a long sword and buckler shield.

“Then in that case I'm sure the cut is amazing~ as well right...It seems like it would be easy to get your hands on..”

“Get your hands on..What would?”

“Hn? A, ah, a..a much better weapon. Like a long sword from the sword merchant Fuggusu.”

He tried to cover it up in a bit of a panic before Rokko made an awkward face.

Incidentally, sword merchant Fuggusu is a sword making specialist blacksmith that has a workshop on the edge of Rombertia. He's well known for making high class swords with a beautiful design and is the primary blacksmith of the second knight group as well. The prices are around 3,000,000 — 4,000,000 Z for just one long sword. They cost 3–4 times more than the price of a normal weapon made in Baldukk. In some meanings it's a store that the adventurers who use swords yearn to visit.

“No, I wonder about that. Since the swords from sword merchant Fuggusu are pretty popular. It seems it's not unusual be left waiting for even a year. There's probably no choice other than buying one at a weapon shop in order to get your hands on it sooner. In that case they'd probably be at a price you can't easily buy right?”

The wife of the Rindobel couple was on her side as she glared at Rokko with a cold expression but when she realized that I was looking she looked in a different direction and burrowed into her blanket.

“Ah..Yeah. If you buy one at a weapon shop, ev..even the cheap ones will cost 5,000,000 I'm sure...It seems like the expensive ones even make it to 8,000,000..”

Well, as expected swords of that class, only a handful of them are sold each year I'm sure. If the weapon shop doesn't take at least that much profit then I doubt it will work as a business. As far as I know, only Viruhaima, Anderson, and Meiria of the Rindobel couple are using long and short swords made by sword merchant Fuggusu. Also, it's cheeky but Angela's broad sword was made there as well. Although, Angela's sword was originally one used by someone in {Bright.Blade}.

Come to think of it Toris was going to try and order one last year it seems but gave up when hear about the one year wait. Though I have some attachment to Toris's long sword for the time I was in it's care when I fell to the 14th floor.

“Keinesutan-san, there's tomorrow as well, let's rest pretty soon. I'm the lookout in three hours.”

.....

Year 7445, Month 7, Day 10

We finally arrived at the teleport room for the 5th floor...It was a long journey... We took over double the amount of time it takes the {Slaughterers} to get here.

The 1st and 2nd floors took half a day so they were still fine but 14 hours to make it through the 3rd floor, 16 hours on the 4th floor, and when it came to the 5th floor it took close to 20 hours. During that time, other than the times we're in the teleport room at longest we only one 30 minute break and other than that we're always remaining tense.

Even though we spent that much time, we only fought in a boss room once on the 5th floor when there was an altar. The boss that was summoned was just four ghouls nothing special so I finished off two in no time at all with {Stone Javelin} and of the remaining two I cut down one with my sword to easily gain victory but. After the combat the shrine on top of the altar that opened was empty just as expected.

Two people ended up suffering minor injuries against the gargoyles but after the combat Koritto healed them with {Cure Light}. I offered to use healing magic as well but I was declined in order to save mana so I just ended up carrying their luggage and left them alone. I was only finally permitted to heal them when we arrived at this teleport room.

But you know, advancing through at such a small and stingy pace accumulating all that stress makes combat against the zombies of the 4th and 5th floors where you move your body around all that much easier. Though I say that, even that was kept to the bare minimum and in most cases we just run to gain some distance or detour around the monsters detection range.

Countless times, I wanted to say that there was no need to avoid combat to this extent but I somehow managed to bear, and just like that I endured without saying it. The moment we arrived at the teleport room on the 5th floor, since I haven't taken a shower in five days I was about to put my bags on the floor and stagger to the shower room but the Rindobel couple is probably first here I'm sure. Rather than that is food. It's crude but {Sun.Ray} has a kitchen setup here as well so I can finally have a decent meal.

All of the members of the party were happily taking out the ingredients that split up to carry and lining them up. We carefully lined up some pumpkin, carrots, vegetables that last a while, a block of bacon, and confirm the remaining amount. Since we had planned to enter the dungeon for 8 days this time, it's fine as long as it lasts another 3 days. I'm happy that I can have warm meals here in the morning and night.

.....

Year 7445, Month 7, Day 11

Starting today we're on the 6th floor. However, as far as I know there's almost no traps you can take a detour around on the 6th floor. Just as I was thinking, they'll show me what they can do, before we departed there was a meeting(?) where they asked my opinion.

"Now then, Greed-kun, I want to hear a bit of your opinion. The opinion of you who hasn't just gained experience on the 6th floor but also the 7th floor. I think you'll definitely give us an effective suggestion but.."

"Even if you ask me for my opinion..In regards to what? I just heard about your method of advancing on the 6th floor but it's fundamentally the same...If I were to raise one point then, it's not that you get close to the traps but if you don't pass through the sides of them, then it's difficult to proceed to the 7th floor."

"..So you have to pass through the side of them.."

"I didn't know that.."

"But isn't that dangerous?"

"Yeah, last time didn't Bogusu and Yuriel die when they got caught in the trap?"

"That's right.."

"I don't want to get near it.."

"But, we heard that when they saved Ginger and Binsu they passed through the side."

"So it wasn't just because they were in a hurry.."

"Everyone, you're too loud. Be quiet for a bit! We can hear the opinion of a reliable person after all!"

Meiria warned everyone. There's no a single person in {Sun.Ray} that was underestimating me even though I'm a new member but there was the atmosphere at first of how great is a leader who got thrown out of his own party. However during the combat along the way to here, since I didn't say a single word or complaint and just casually walked to here holding some baggage their attitudes softened quite a bit.

Now at the very least when it comes to everything other than the abilities to command and manage, it's safe to say no one is looking down on me. In other words, I've arrived at the position of while I'm unsuited (maybe) for being a leader but I'm reliable as an ally.

Everyone focused their attention on me after hearing Meiria's warning. Even if you say that~ I don't really have much else than that to say...Ah, come to think of it I guess I should say this as well?

"After that, it's completely unknown when monsters will teleport in so you need to remain cautious of all directions at all times and I think it would be best to change the formation for the 6th floor I guess?"

It wasn't just one point.

"Ah, we hadn't mentioned that far yet. As expected we have an exclusive formation we change to for the 6th floor as well. We don't have the heavy luggage anymore and we're more nimble after all."

Of course that's the case. I'm sure you just had another casualty several months prior so there's no way you wouldn't have changed the organization for the 6th floor right.

"However, we were able to hear a valuable opinion. In that case it seems like no matter where we end up teleporting to this time we should keep advancing...Greed-kun, this is the map we've been making of the 6th floor. After we teleport to the 6th floor if possible I'd like to hear your opinion."

"I understand."

Come to think of it they still haven't showed me the map since I entered {Sun.Ray}. Up until we cleared through the 5th floor I caught sight of the Rindobel couple periodically checking the map and consulting for a short while a number of times but I haven't seen the map itself.

"Everyone is ready right. Alright, then let's go..Mezoredoo"

Author's note:

Sun Ray.First Part Members:

Koritto.Rindobel(45)*can use magic

Lv. 17, Laios, male, spear

Meiria.Rindobel(43)

Lv. 17, Laios, female, long sword

Harukein.Fumizu(30)

Lv. 17, Human, male, battle mace

Rokasuto.Keinesutan(29)

Lv. 15, Elf, male, long sword

Kamain.Mishausu(28)

Lv. 16, Hobbit, female, bow, short-sword

Kevin.Firestarter(27)

Lv. 16, Dawrf, male, Battle Axe

Mifesu.Ransun(25)*can use magic

Lv. 15, Wolf-people, Female, Bow, Infantry sword

Kyumire.Biosukol(25)

Lv. 15 Tiger-people, female, Spear

Jerutodo.Ramiresu(25)

Lv. 14, Wolf-people, male, Spear

Alan.Greed(17)*can use magic?

Lv. 26, Human, Male, Long sword

Sun Ray.Second Party Members

Binsukoru.Zemyuneru(28)*second party leader

Lv. 17, Dog-people, Male, Spear

Virginia.Nyuman(28)*first party sub-leader

Lv. 15, Human, Female, Spear

Binnodo.Gekudo(25)*can use magic

Lv. 14, Human, Male, Long sword

Hisurura.Harurein(21)

Lv. 12, Elf, Female, Bow, Infantry sword

Rotorikku.Faruerugazu(17)*can use magic

Lv. 8, Human, Male, Long sword, spear

Fiorentso.Hirosukoru(17)*can use magic

Lv. 9, Tiger-people, Male, Long sword, spear

Sannose.Kumiru(22)

Lv. 11, Human, Male, Long sword

Rutsogu.Samyueruga(21)

Lv. 11, Human, Male, Spear

Dendoru.Sumaisu(26)*Rorikku's slave

Lv. 9, Laios, Male, Battle hammer

Karieru.Makusu(24)*Rorikku's slave

Lv. 8, Laios, Male, Battle axe

Chapter 191: Boar

Year 7445, Month 7, Day 11

We {Sun.Ray} teleported into the 6th floor and we immediately scattered and raising our vigilance in every direction.

After confirming the safety of our surroundings, the Rindobel couple confirmed the arrow on the pedestal of the crystal rod and looked for the number written beyond that. They found it right away. Right next to “OneEightVI” the number “34” was written on the wall in the {Common.Language}.

It seems that {Sun.Ray} has come here in the past as well.

After confirming the number on the wall the Rindobel couple started discussing something in a whisper while looking at the map.

Soon they called out to me.

“Now then, Greed-kun. If you have a map of the 6th floor I’d like you to show it to us.”

He~ you’re really saying that. In my own opinion I have the feelings that it would be unpleasant for you to make it to the 7th floor but even thinking about things in a favorable light in order to clear through a group of ogres on the 7th floor you at least need someone with Miduchi’s level of mana or else things will get quite severe so them making it to the 7th floor itself doesn’t matter at all. What I find unpleasant is the fact that we’ll no longer be able to monopolize the teleport room on the 6th floor. Although it’s not like it belongs to the {Slaughterers} or anything else so you could say it’s a mistake that I find it unpleasant in the first place.

“Unfortunately, I don’t have it.”

“Ho? A man of your level wasn’t able to keep it hidden when you left?”

After all they saw through it huh? I shrug my shoulders once and take out a map container that just looks like a slightly long flask hanging on my waist from a glance. The map of the 6th floor is inside of here. It's one of the things I made sure everyone has because of the teleport traps. Of course, the content is the same as the one the {Slaughterers} use as is.

“Well, I don't mind showing you. This is the map of the 6th floor. Although, I was only able to take just this one when I left as I thought the 6th floor would be the most difficult. However..”

Not just the Rindobel couple but the entire party went stiff as they were paying attention to me.

“I won't explain every little thing. I don't feel like going that far and I haven't promised that much.”

“Yeah, we already know that. It's fine if you just show it to us.”

Maps of the dungeon are a shared asset for a party of adventurers. Normally they aren't thought of as something that belongs to any one person. Of course, if the party itself is made up of only one person then it would be different but normally you can't produce a map of the dungeon without borrowing the help of your allies. It's safe to say there's almost no cases of people handing the maps they used up until then over to a new party once they leave the old one. Normally when you leave your previous party you're strictly checked to make sure you aren't in possession of anything like a map and they're confiscated.

In the case that all of the members of the party end up joining a new party it's only obvious that the map information is still owned by them. In this case, rather than saying they joined the party, rather it's close to multiple parties merging but that only happens in the case both sides don't have a large difference abilities.

For example, in the case where Faruergaz and the others joined {Sun.Ray}, because of the large gap in their abilities, rather than saying they merged or combined, it's clearer to say they were absorbed. In these sorts of cases, I've heard that most often one of the conditions of being absorbed is to hand over the maps and information to the more skilled and powerful adventurers. Normally the number of people itself becomes the difference in power.

If the party ends up having some discord and splits up then there's cases where both sides keep the map information as well but it's extremely rare for them to split up where both sides still have an equal amount of power. In comparison to that cases like me where the leader them self gets thrown out are rare in number but it's not like there's none at all. I've heard that even in those sorts of cases the maps are confiscated without exception as well.

Among the adventurers who enter the dungeon the authority of the leader is powerful but that's precisely why, someone who isn't suitable as a leader, or who's lacking the ability to manage the other members will easily be blamed and either forced to change or thrown out. No one would think that it's possible to stay alive long or find a huge treasure in the dungeon under an unreliable leader right.

On the contrary, precisely because the authority of the leader is powerful everyone wants to take up that position. People want to train with an adequate party, go independent, and then make their own party with themselves as the leader because of that. Particularly when it comes to the party leaders of the higher ranked adventurers in Baldukk their income becomes enormous. I think you already understand but a precise map is one of the most essential things for challenging the dungeon of Baldukk and it wouldn't be strange to call it of the greatest importance.

The fact that they're holding an accurate map will become that adventurers, that party's power. There's a lot of adventurers who see the dream of one day becoming independent and producing their own hidden maps. I'm sure that it's the same for this {Sun.Ray}.

“Well then, here you go.”

After taking the map from me Koritto looked at that and quickly started making a difficult face. That's only obvious. All of the numbers on the map are written in Arabic numerals. We somehow were able to get Zenom and the slaves to learn just the Arabic numerals. We read out the number written on the first wall we teleport into on the 6th floor and have them confirm our current position on the map. In the worst case if someone gets caught in a teleport trap, they need to search out a similar terrain from the map they're holding so it's not necessary for them to learn numbers in kanji to make it to the teleport room on the 6th floor.

“It..It’s filled in this much?”

“Am..Amazing..”

“..Is this a pitfall?”

“..It seems like this is the symbol for teleport traps.”

“..I wonder what this symbol means?”

“..Since it resembles a pitfall isn’t it a pitfall..like a pitfall with spikes or something?”

“..None of the rooms have which boss is in them written down..I guess that means there’s no meaning since they’re killing all of them?”

“..But, these characters, I’ve never seen before, I wonder what language it is... It’s not Southern Ragudarious {Masasoirisshu}. Maybe it’s the {Migudarious} language?”

“..Mu..It seems that our current location here. The terrain seems similar to on our map.”

“..That’s right. It seems to be here.”

“..In that case..Fumu..It seems like we could even make it to the 7th floor.”

“Greed-kun, I think were here right now but do you think we could make it to the 7th floor?”

Even if you show me on the map you’ve just put back in my hands, there’s no way I could respond so quickly...

“..Nn, it seems I’ve come here in the past as well but..Well, I’m sure we can make it.”

“Dear, ahead of here we usually..turn back at the teleport trap here right..I think it’s worthwhile going.”

“Nn, I guess so..Alright, let’s try going huh? Then, everyone, let’s go.”

I fold up the map they returned to me and put it back into my map container. At the very least the fact that I’m in possession of a map of the 6th floor has been confirmed but this is a message to Faruergaz and Hirosukol as well. Well, it could be taken as a message to anyone else as well. I wonder who will notice it? It wouldn’t be strange for anyone to notice it though.

With Harukein.Fumizu nicknamed Hulk using the battle mace and Rokasuto.Keinesutan, nicknamed Rokko who's using a long sword at the front, the Rindobel couple in the middle, and me at the rear we started proceeding through the dungeon. Since you never know when a monster will teleport in on the 6th floor the rear is the most dangerous and exhausting. It took the shape of pushing the harshest job on a newcomer just as would be expected of a newcomer but since it's only obvious I don't have any particular complaints.

Just, if they wanted to make use of my magic then I think they should position me closer to the middle. If I'm at the rear when a monster appears from the front, as expected it's difficult to use attack spells in a hurry with all the people in the way.

.....

We've advanced about 1 Km heading towards the 7th floor. Along the way, no {Cave Boars} have teleported into us up to here but we were attacked by groups of {Vampire Bats} a number of times. We're killing all of them with bow and magic but the exhaustion of the magicians is intense. Though if I were to just rapid fire missiles I could finish them all up in a few seconds to ten seconds or so while yawning. I used {Flame Arrow} a total of five times and landed all of the hits. But, Koritto and Ransun each fired three and two shots of Flame and Stone arrows but each of them only landed one hit. Their aim sucks.

In order to recover our mana we remain cautious while splitting breaks up into a total of about an hour before advancing again. This is the reason we're so slow. It can't be helped though.

And then, we approached the first monster room. According to Meiria who's standing at the front and checked the room, the enemy is just one {Cave Great Boar} that's resting. But, since I was in the rear in a situation where no one would see my face (my eyes shining blue), I used the spell {Detect.Life} and there were three reactions. Though it's possible that two of them aren't {Cave Great Boars} and just {Cave Boars} as well.

Whatever the case when the {Cave Great Boar} stands up high it's height easily exceeds that of an adult over 4 meters high. It's length reaches over 4 meters as well. Just think of it like taking on an opponent the size of a six-seat van. If you're pierced by its tusks even if you can avoid instant death there's no doubt you'd be seriously injured on the verge of life and death. Even from just a body slam Zulu was sent flying and on top of three bone fractures, he stopped moving.

After she confirmed the boss of the monster room, we returned about 200 meters away on Meiria's instruction and were given a simple strategy. First off Koritto, Ransun, and I will preemptively attack with attack spells. Simultaneously Mishausu will shoot it with some arrows. If we're lucky just that will be enough to defeat it but unless it hits a vital organ that's pretty much impossible. Next Haruku and Rokko will go in with their shields ready and build a line with Meiria and Firestarter using their sword and axe behind them. Behind that Biosukol and Ramires will charge in with their spears.

Ransun and Mishausu will continue attacking with the bow after that while Koritto tries to find gaps to attack with his spear while maintaining general command. I need to fight at the front line while trying to retain as much mana as possible. If circling around everyone is helplessly difficult then I can look for an opening to use magic after that.

Honestly speaking, I think it's the right answer to not use a scout on the 6th floor where boars are wandering around but since the {Cave Great Boar} is going to the trouble of resting for us, even if there's not much control to it at the start we should attack it all out before it notices us. If we let it stand up and start moving around it's huge and it has quite a bit of power so it's reasonably troublesome. Just wandering around in front of the monster room stirs up the air and raises the chances it'll reach their nose. And also, the attack spell I was instructed to use was Javelin. It seems they're taking into consideration encounters with monsters afterwards with preserving my mana but I'm sure it won't make much of a difference and unlike the {Slaughterers} we only have three people who can use magic.

I think we should hit it with the most powerful attack spells we can right now. Judging from the level of elemental magic he can use Koritto should be able to use arbalest type attack spells as well. If just Koritto and I were to use that class of attack spell to land hits even if it doesn't hit a vital organ we'll quickly gain the advantage. Additionally Ransun should be able to use {Stone Javelin} as well. Even though that's the case he was instructed to use the attack spell {Stone Bolt}.

Even if you focus on the 7th floor, if someone gets seriously injured here~ won't it be terrible?

Well, it can't be helped. It was after we all confirmed the strategy for charging in and started to slowly approach the monster room again. We could feel the vibration from the footsteps of a large animal from the monster room. Ah~ it noticed us. What do they intend to do? With this? I glanced to the side at Koritto's face but he still just has his lips shut. Meiria who was standing in front opened her right hand and raised it before closing it. The signal for stopping and gathering.

We all gathered together slowly while making sure not to make any noise and while Koritto and Meiria were surrounded by everyone they whispered discussing something quickly before giving out new orders.

"It seems that we were noticed. Since it can't be helped we're changing the strategy. The members who are charging in first are the same. However, Haruku and I will go from the left and Rokko and Kevin will go from the right as we split up and charge in. Kimu you follow in soon after Haruku and I. Jeru you back up Rokko and Kevin from behind."

"In regards to magic if you three think you can hit it then use it. If it seems impossible then between Haruku and Rokko, Greed-kun you take the lead and I'll back you up with the spear. Kamu and Misu even in that case you two should back us up with the bow when you get a chance."

Well, there's not much else than that. Splitting up into three groups could be just right considering there's three opponents as well. If we approach a bit closer then they should clearly be able to hear the footsteps of multiple opponents after all. Though retreating in that case is all an option. It's not suitable for the image of a top team with their powerful combat potential but. It's not like anyone is looking either way.

Since there's nothing good that will come from agitating the opponent, we split up into three groups, and quietly started advancing like that.

After proceeding for a short while and it's only obvious that you can clearly hear the sound of multiple footsteps from the monster room. Everyone can clearly comprehend there's definitely multiple opponents. On my right side Koritto raised his left hand and raised three fingers before quickly opening his hand and lowering it ahead. Free combat between each of the groups and the opponents we find huh? Lowering his hand ahead is the signal for everyone to keep advancing. I wonder if he's noticed the fact that there's three opponents the same number as we have groups? Even so, it's quite the firm decision.

.....

There's already no more than 5 meters from the monster room. We can't see any monsters in the range we can see. I wonder if they're hiding on both sides of this entrance? Everyone fixes their hold on their weapons. Koritto and I will charge in first with me remaining cautious of the left and Koritto of the right, if there's only one opponent in that direction or none at all then we quickly turn around and participate in the battle on the opposite side.

I wait for the signal. 3, 2, 1, now!

I rush into the room and look to the left, and it's there! Two {Cave Boars}. Then in that case the {Cave Great Boar} should be on the opposite side. Rokko, Kevin, and Jeru pulled the unlucky number on their end.

I set my aim on the right boar of the two on the left side and charged at it. Obviously the boar is furiously dashing as well.

I cut at it while passing by it.

I run the long sword in my right hand along it's side as I run.

I run along making sure not to overtake Meiria, Haruku, and Kimu who were running in a position ahead of me from where we charged in. After all if I were to be at the front both of these two boars would aim for me.

The two boars came running over here at a furious speed.

Even these {Cave Boars} while they're not at the level of {Cave Great Boars} they're still quite huge and have a lot of force behind them.

The one on the right is my prey.

I run through the middle of the two.

I hold up my long sword in my right hand so it's easy to use.

If I cut it from the shoulder to it's front right leg then it should make Koritto's job easier with the spear.

There!!

Just look, this magnificent sword play!

No, I'm just cutting with all my strength though.

I felt the response of doing heavy damage with that attack in passing.

I feel like I hear a scream echoing out.

I quickly turned around to the right and while Koritto is taking it on with his spear I'll stab it from it's ass!

After cutting along from the left, this time I went from the right side, in other words if I make it's right front leg useless then it'll be powerless. I aim for the joint of it's back right leg from behind it's ass and sliced it in half. {Cave Boar A} quickly couldn't sustain it's weight and fall to the right in a pile of blood and dirt. Here, I'm done with you, this is about right. I guess next is either B or Great.

Shortly after thinking that, I heard some shouts from B who was on my left when we charged inside. Haruku is using the shield to skillfully parry the {Cave Boars} charge and it seems while it was troubled over changing directions he circled around to the side of it's head.

"Hmph!!"

With a thud Haruku's battle mace hit the back of the {Cave Boars} head. On the side Meiria landed a thrust into one of it's eyes. Kimu is stabbing it's shoulder with her spear. It seems like they'll take a bit more time to finish it off but there shouldn't be any problem.

Then in case the one who needs backup is the main dish the Great.

I immediately start running.

Bumo~ a large boars voice echoes out.

“Shit!! Ouch~!”

Rokko is rolling around while holding his stomach and training to endure the pain. It seems like he’s bleeding quite a bit as well but I can’t tell the details. There’s no time to use Identify.

Kevin is swinging his battle axe desperately as if to not let the huge boar get close.

Jeru is trying to hold his ground with the spear while back up Rokko but he seems to be drawing back from fear and unreliable.

There’s already several arrows stabbed into the body of the Great and it also seems to have been injured by attack spells as well. Though just from a glance none of them seem to have done much damage. I was about to yell “Just ignore that and back me up!” to Koritto but he seems busy trying to finish off the boar I half killed and above all I don’t have that sort authority.

I took off running at my full speed but I didn’t make it in time.

Kevin was sent flying along with his axe. Even then while he’s a small dwarf he didn’t let go of his battle axe but it seems he hit his back badly.

The one who stood at the front in Kevin’s place was me as I quickly swing my long sword and lightly cut the nose of the huge boar. With this it’s anger should be focused at me. But, well I’ve experienced fighting against this fellow to the point of being sick of it since last year. I have confidence I can win against it even one on one. If I just evade all of it’s attacks and continue hitting with my own then eventually it’ll run out of stamina and as a result I’ll win. It’s the truth. Though it’s difficult.

What’s scary would be if another {Cave Boar} were to come teleporting in at this moment and just that but it doesn’t seem like they can teleport into the monster rooms so I’m probably safe on that end. We’ve had something intrude while we were in the middle of fighting in the past but they were all jsut ones that teleported outside of the room and then wandered in from there.

“So..Someone..He..aling..”

Rokko seeks help in a voice that’s about to disappear as he crawls in his own blood. It’s unfortunate but wait just a bit longer. It would be good if someone else comes along after finishing off the {Cave Boars} while I'm holding out but while I say that this great boar will die in a matter of time as well. I'll properly heal you up after that.

I make a half grin with just one cheek and after finding an opening on the center of it's head I was able to lightly cut it. It seems the back up from the arrows is still coming and there's already around 10 arrows in it's body. If you're going to do it I'd prefer if you aim for the eyes but I guess that's a luxurious desire from someone other than Bel.

Jeru who circled around from the side thrusts his spear. It doesn't seem to be a vital spot but he did a reasonable amount of damage and the great boar is trying to charge at me again even though it won't hit. I make a light smile while easily evading that and cut along the surface of it's body. Since it didn't hit, it stopped it's charge, and while it was changing directions I gave it a heavy attack.

And then, it's movements gradually started to dull. High class creatures with a lot of nerves like boars hate pain. In order to eliminate the one hurting it, it tries to charge at me again. When I calmly evaded that charge and..look, a line of spears held by Jeru, Koritto, and Kimu. Without hurrying I went to it's ass and cut at the base of it's back legs with my sword before jumping away. Shifting places with me Haruku hit his battle mace into the same place on the back leg.

Since he saw the center of gravity of the great boar start to shift, Haruku raised a war cry of, "Uo~~!!" while hitting with his mace a couple more times. That's quite the skill. If it wasn't Ginger or Gekudo at that time but this guy then I would have gladly dropped him into a slave...

It's started to get quite a bit weaker. There shouldn't be any more need for me to bear the full brunt but it's not worth easily letting these guys gain some experience points either.

"Move out of the way."

I said that to Haruku to get him to step back and then stabbed the long sword made from Special Forged Steel by Arnold and my father in between the gaps in it's ribs aimed at it's heart with all of my power. When I kick off and pull my sword back out and the great boar starts convulsing as it falls to the ground. I wipe the blood and oil off on it's dirty fur, I want to use water magic but I endured it and just wiped it with a hand towel on my waist before putting it back in the scabbard.

Everyone is looking at me and cheering.

Ah, I have to disassemble it to gather the magic stones..This is going to be annoying~

I guess I have to dirty the sword I just wiped clean again...

"Koru, Gureed-kun, Misu you three check up on Rokko and Kevin. Everyone else let's gather the magic stones."

Thanks to Meiria declaring that I didn't have to dirty my sword again.

"Pl..Please help..gobo...I..I don't want to die.."

Rokko was heavily injured with a large hole open in his stomach. A bit of his intestines were coming out as well. The injury is too complex so {Cure} and {Cure Light} would at best just stop the bleeding. Even {Cure Serious} is vague whether it would close the wound, {Cure Critical} is necessary I'm sure. I've decided my own MP to be 39 that I'm willing to use in front of everyone. It's impossible to use {Cure Critical} twice.

I used {Flame Arrow} five times against Vampire Bats on the way here. If I think about the recovery from taking a break then there shouldn't be any problem if I use {Cure Critical} once. Incidentally Rokko's wound is a considerably serious wound and while his maximum HP is 110, right now it's just cut below 20. If the bleeding doesn't stop he won't even last an hour.

"Rokko! Give it your best! If we can just stop the bleeding.."

Misu ran up to Rokko's side and crouched down.

"Rokko! Ah, Shit!! Meri-san! I..Is really no good if it's my Note!?"

"I..I have a bit of the unnamed kind! If we can just stop the bleeding even now..It's no good.."

Jeru and Kimu are worried about Rooko even though they were ordered to gather the magic stones.

"Nn Mi..Misu..Ju..Just a bit more and, th..the third time I, would have..gathered them..though..”

“Don’t move!”

Misu started concentrating with her hand on Rokko’s wound.

Leaving Kevin who hurt his back alone I called out to Koritto’s with a shout of, “I’ll use it”, and took off my glove while forcibly crouching down across from Misu. It seems like Misu’s {Cure Light} had effect on the wound and just the bleeding stopped but for a wound this large it’s like water on a hot stone. And with that Misu’s MP cut 6. It won’t recover anymore. Though the wound with his intestines coming out closed.

I carefully push his intestines back inside of his stomach and after putting my hand on his wound for plenty of time..as expected it’s not a hobby of mine to watch someone pale and suffering as they cough up blood in front of me. I took about 20 seconds to use {Cure Critical}.

“..A, Ah? Ama..Amazing..The wound is closing..That’s amazing! Rokko! Rokko! You’re already fine! You can relax!”

Misu is calling out to Rokko.

I wonder what I should do about my right hand covered in Rokko’s blood...

Even if I wipe it with a hand towel it won’t completely come off after all...

Chapter 192: Fitting In

Year 7445, Month 7, Day 11

After that, we rested for about two hours in the monster room to recover mana and then I used the spell {Cure Critical} on Rokko again. Though his wound has completely closed I'm sure the pain is still remaining but since I can't use healing magic consecutively right now it's something that can't be helped. It seems that Koritto is using {Cure Light} a number of times on Kevin who hurt his back.

Since we were able to hold back the pain to the level where we can start moving again, we decided to continue advancing just like that.

After advancing for a short while and we could see the first teleport trap since we teleported into this area on the 6th floor. The rock with the strange patterns carved into it are on both sides of the passage. After glaring at their own map Koritto said "that's it." and pointed his finger.

Everyone is gulping as they swallow. I'm sure they're afraid. It seems that other than the two I previously saved, no one has tried passing through the side of a teleport trap and the ones who remained that time still can't forget the fear of their allies suddenly disappearing from in front of their eyes.

"..I'll go ahead first."

I took the chance to say that and then walked ahead alone. There's nothing to it at all. It's not like you'll get caught up in the trap just by passing through the side of it. It's fine to proceed carefully as well but if they're that afraid of it then we wouldn't be able to advance anymore.

I walk to the trap at a steady pace and then briskly just walked through the side of the teleport trap. Then I turned around and looked at everyone else who was watching me from about 30 meters behind.

I remained like that for a short while but they're just looking at me and no one seems to intend to move.

Look, it's not scary~

I let out a sigh and thought about throwing a rock at it or something but it might end up teaching them the precise range the trap activates within so I stopped. I'm sure they'll figure it out eventually but even we spent quite a bit of time investigating it. If you all want to know then put some work into it. What~ it's not all that much trouble at all.

I made a blatantly obvious large yawn and started scratching my cheek and I guess he thought I was looking down on him, Koritto made a mortified expression before moving. But, rather than approaching the trap he remained against the wall. It's fine even if you don't go that far. After Koritto passed through then one more, two more, and the rest of them passed through in order with stiff expressions as well.

After everyone had finished passing through to this side, we went back into formation again and started advancing forward.

.....

Year 7445, Month 7, Day 12

In the end we finally managed to clear through the 6th floor and arrive at the teleport room on the evening of the next day. Someone else ended up getting injured every time the {Cave Great Boar} and {Quad-handed Apes} appeared in the monster rooms so we took a bit of time for using healing spells and resting to recover mana.

The shower, simple kitchen, beds made of dirt, and foot bath of the {Slaughterers} were all still remaining in the teleport room in the same form. In addition I thought Giberuti might be there but no one was around.

The members of {Sun.Ray} were dumbfounded seeing how much more comfortable the room was than the one on the 5th floor but for the time being we took turns going to the bathroom and other things before gathering at the side of the teleport crystal in the center of the room. I just placed my bags on the ground and went out to go to the bathroom as well. In addition I also took the time to carve today's date and time into the wall in Arabic numerals. I'm sure someone will notice it sooner or later. It should remain for about a month.

When everyone finished going to the bathroom and naturally our attention gathered on the Rindobel couple. They shook their heads horizontally and said, "As expected we won't last any longer. Let's return to the 5th floor." before grabbing the crystal rod. I guess that means they'd rather rest in the room we left our food and bags over here.

Everyone was making somewhat relieved expressions as they grabbed the crystal rod.

"Return us."

In an instant we teleported into the teleport room on the 5th floor and after everyone gathered at {Sun.Rays} camp we lowered our bags and started taking off our equipment before sitting down. For the time being we took a simple meal and during that time it seems we're going to make some food that takes a bit of work. I was leaning against the wall while slowly biting at the cucumber supplied to me but no one came to talk to me and they were just glancing over here occasionally while whispering about something.

After a short while, a voice was raised that meal preparations were finished. All the members who were resting including me gathered at the center of the camp. I received pork and vegetables cooked together, called kafu, which is like a badly made version of potof in my bowl and then some bread. And then we pray.

"All, Wind, Flame, Earth, Water, and then this dungeon. On the other side of the Toriwii, oh Gods of the world of loud bells, oh Myooya, once again today we offer up our gratitude for the blessings that give us life..Teson"

Well, the content itself changes a bit depending on the region it seems but it's a common prayer towards the temples. Teson is something like Amen and connects words together kind of like God, "So be it". The members of {Sun.Ray} often like to add this to things they say as well.

In the houses with deep faith it's used in place of "thank you for the meal" and said in prayer in the morning and at night as well. I prayed in the same way while biting into my bread and sipping the soup of my kafu which wasn't very good, I wonder if they were stingy on the spices. We had planned to return to the surface tomorrow but I wonder what they plan to do? After eating and taking showers in order everyone other than the lookouts fell asleep right away. I did as well though.

.....

Just past midnight, I was woken up to change shifts for lookout.

Just the same as the {Slaughterers} they have lookouts shift in groups of two. Shifting every 2 hours is the same as well. There's 10 of us but since the leader's the Koritto couple don't keep lookout we secure 6 hours of sleep time. Haruku and I were on lookout.

"Greed-kun. That I would be keeping lookout together with you in {Sun.Ray}.."

Come to think of it, previously this guy requested to join the {Slaughterers}. It was Greed-san at that time but since I entered {Sun.Ray} he started using -kun. It's quite a well-mannered team in how they don't just completely drop honorifics. Although, I'm sure it's just that I still haven't fit in because I just entered though. The other members are all calling each other by nicknames after all.

"You never know what will happen in the world right.."

"By the way, we were really saved by you today...Though I don't think anyone would have died but if you weren't around we would have had to retreat after the first room I'm sure."

Hn, I guess so. Though I doubt have some doubts about whether no one would have really died if I wasn't there. As expected maybe it wouldn't have made it to the point of death? I'm sure the number of injured would have increased even more and it would have taken a lot more time to clear through the 6th floor though.

"I'm glad above all else that I was able to be of use. However, if you were to ask my honest opinion continuing on the 6th floor is just a bit..that is~ a bit early I think?"

Since it was around the end of April I guess roughly two months ago..The guy named Santosu who was able to use magic decent died. It seems he was from the capital. According to Haruku, it seems thanks to that {Sun.Ray} lost a lot of their ability to go from one battle to the next in the dungeon. The Rindobel couple weren't able to find someone they thought was suitable as a replacement magician.

Well that's only obvious. When it comes to a magician who has multiple elemental magics at over level 3 then unless it's one of the semi-first rate parties then it's unlikely. And then, once they enter a party on that class it's not that easy to pull them out. All adventurer parties treasure their magicians. Particularly the ones with a high level of water magic that can use healing and produce drinking water, they're popular everywhere and offered good conditions. Even if they are a top team it wouldn't be so easy for them to recruit them from another party.

Also, {Sun.Ray} was originally one of the top teams that had a low ratio of magicians. If you mention numbers then in the past they had the same as other top teams five people but during that time they only have 16 members. Since they exchanged members who enter the dungeon in rotation, they would always end up with 10 members including at least four magicians to explore. After they heard rumors you could find large gold ores on the 5th floor they switched their team organization to two parties of 8 and stopped with the rotation.

Even then at first, it seems that things proceeded pretty smoothly.

And then, the team that the Rindobel couple wasn't a part of lost two members at the same time on their first time going to the 6th floor last summer. Furthermore one of those was a magician (it seems it was Gekudo's littler sister Yuriel). After that they had no choice than to just kept exploring unable to replenish their magicians. It seems they temporarily switched back to rotations at this point as well. At the same time, they tried recruiting some new members not just limited to magicians but time just kept moving forward without them accepting anyone.

The reason this Haruku said he wanted to join the {Slaughterers} in February was because at that point he didn't think there was a future for {Sun.Ray} so he contacted us all on his own but as expected I think this might be a lie. If you think about it normally, would a veteran member, furthermore a man who has a decent level of skill really try to run to a different party just because things got a bit difficult in terms of the members? It seems pretty unlikely.

Excluding that portion I'm sure the details he just talked about are true but it's only natural to think that it was either an instruction from the Rindobel couple or even if it was his own decision he probably had some other expectation when he made contact with us.

Well, putting that aside, it was such a time that they met and got acquainted with Faruergaz and the others. While {Sun.Ray} had been reduced down to 14 members at that point they came to know of Faruergaz and the others party of 6 that had 2 magicians and was still still wandering around the 1st floor. Furthermore both of them were said to be true knights.

Making it even more delicious the upper limit of two teams is 20 people. If these 6 people were to enter then they'd be able to organize two teams again. Not to mention both twos would reach full members and their total number of magicians would become six people. Adding to that it seems that they had purchased the detailed map of the 1st floor was the deciding factor but if you were to ask me, I think that one of the deciding factors was also that he was Count Faruergaz's eldest son.

As a result of discussing things a number of times, their entire party ended up joining {Sun.Ray}. That's why they split them up into a party centering around younger newer members and the clearing party with the veteran members at the core, while they intended to let the younger party slowly gain some experience as they raise them. It was such a time as that when one of the magicians in the veteran party ended up dying.

Even if they were to move one of the magicians from the newcomer party up, their skill at using spells wasn't enough to be considered veteran. It might have been fine to move over the last magician they had but as expected in that case let alone the 4th floor the party of younger members might even struggle on the 3rd floor.

Shortly after that, I was kicked out of the {Slaughterers}. Since it seemed like the leader of the {Slaughterers} could use magic quite well and there was also the achievement of cooperating over the shower in the teleport room of the 5th floor as well. Since I saved there members in the past {Sun.Ray} didn't hold a bad image of me. Fortunately there was nothing that ever occurred that would have put us on bad terms either(Trying to send Haruku in itself wouldn't have directly connected to a breakdown in our relations.

And we turned him down after all).

Thus they tried offering a reasonable amount of compensation but thanks to the negotiations with the leader couple going well I ended up joining.

"Well, thanks to that I personally think that we were saved from you joining us."

Well that's true. The fact that one of the magicians from {Sun.Ray} died at the end of April was just as good of a chance for us as well. Though it's not a good thing to be pleased over someones dead but it was really good timing. It's not like I particularly had any sort of influence on the death of the magician named Santosu nor was I on friendly terms with him. Though thanks to him we have to change our plans a bit but as a result there's no mistake things were a bit easier. I'm deeply grateful to him for being useful to us. Though if you were to ask, I think it's more unfortunate for the other members of {Sun.Ray} who knew his face and talked with him when I think of their feelings.

"No, not at all. It was the perfect timing for me to join everyone at the bottom seat so I'm grateful for that. I have a reasonable amount of confidence in myself but after all it's difficult alone."

"Nn, that's only obvious I'm sure. I can't really say it in a loud voice but even I have my own objective and dreams as well. But, after all I found it to be impossible alone the same as you.

Particularly when it comes to this deep into the dungeon, there's no way to make it here alone."

Come to think of it previously, Haruku mentioned something like he was thinking about going independent was it? That portion might have been true. I'm sure each and every person has their own expectations and even the way of thinking is different. Even when it comes to parents and siblings, the intentions of each of them could go in separate ways or clash at times. I don't know the history of Orth very well but even on Earth there were countless instances in history where parents and siblings fought and killed each other. Much less when it comes to strangers, whether it be Orth or Earth, I'm sure there's not a single day where people aren't killing each other somewhere.

In my case, it could be said I have tremendously good luck that there's not a single sign of something like that for now. Thinking that I should just show my gratitude to someone.

.....

Year 7445, Month 7, Day 13

According to schedule we should return to the surface today.

Judging from things yesterday it seems impossible to make it to the 7th floor in one day. Though if no one were to be injured and we didn't have spend time waiting for mana to recover then we'd probably be alright but it's not something that we can be so optimistic over. I wonder what they'll decide to do?

"In any case let's try teleporting into the 6th floor. If it's an area with an altar room then we intend to challenge it. Regardless we still intend to pull out today just as planned."

Koritto declared that and everyone nodded in agreement.

"Greed-kun. If it's alright with you but could you confirm our location on the 6th floor? If possible I'd like to go as efficiently as possible."

It's nothing special to me and while we might struggle we won't lose so it's fine.

However, it might seem a bit unnatural if I just obediently accept it here as well.

"..Efficiently, is it...Well, if it's just informing you whether or not we've teleported into an area with an altar room then.."

I naturally move my hand to the map container on my waist while acting as if I don't completely agree with it and responding.

"Yeah, that's plenty. It's a big help, well then shall we go?"

In the end we arrived at an altar room this day and while we struggled a bit against the summoned boss of the room we still properly defeated it but after all the result was an empty shrine. When we returned to the surface it seems that the team of younger members lead by Zemyunel dug up a chunk of {Amethyst} on the 3rd floor. It's a large find that will reach 4,000,000 Z in sale price. The young members boasting was annoying. But, we were unable to find any items other than the magic stones. It can't be helped right.

.....

Year 7445, Month 7, Day 14

Starting from today until the 19th we have a full week off. During the time we were in the dungeon this time we the first part of {Sun.Ray} earned 2,240,000 Z in magic stones. Since I get an even cut that's 10% or 224,000 Z. The magic stones were sold in the morning and after lunch I went to "Mogorito Manor" to receive my wages from the Rindobel couple.

"Greed-kun, as expected of someone who was the leader of the top team. You worked quite splendidly. I really think it was great that we recruited you. We're counting on you next time as well." Koritto said that and praised me. They really have such good manners.

I thanked them for my wages and when I excused myself to the entrance of "Mogorito Manor" Meiria followed after me.

"If you have time, how about dinner tonight?"

"Eh? Ah, I understand. Where should I go?"

"I guess so..You can pass through under the name {Sun.Ray} at "Mikkusu". Come at 6:00."

"I understand. 6:00 indeed. By the way, do we always eat together with everyone like this after leaving the dungeon?"

Since they're using the name {Sun.Ray} to pass through to a private room then it should be a gathering of members. It's not unusual for parties to have things like this after making a profit. Thinking that I tried asking but it seems that's not the case. Then, while it's not at the level of "Dorureon", since it's a restaurant {Sun.Ray} is treating me at, I wonder if it's a meeting of leaders?

.....

When I returned to "Kairugu's Inn" Faruergaz and the others were waiting for me. This morning, when we were cashing in the magic stones, they told me they wanted to discuss the rules of {Sun.Ray} this afternoon. They received their wages from this time this morning. When they announced the times they'd be giving out wages this morning mine was the last one so I ate lunch separately.

"I'm sorry about that, making you wait."

"No, we just arrived now as well. Well shall we go?"

Faruergaz said that before taking the lead as he walked down the street. However, we passed by several restaurants (an alternative to cafes) and came out to the outskirts of town. When I asked, "How far do you intend to go?" they just avoided my question. And then, we all stepped foot on the hills leading to the outer crater. Well then? I wonder what this means? As expected I have no idea what's going on. For starters I think it's unlikely but if they were trying to assassinate me it's too unnatural that they'd let me remain at the very rear like this...

After we climbed up the hill a bit we all ended up taking seats on appropriate rocks.

"I'm sorry about calling you out to a place like this. But, we didn't want anyone to hear the details of what we're talking about. This place has a pretty good view as well, if anyone were to approach we would be able to tell right away."

Faruergaz said while making a slightly apologetic face.

"Also, just in case we'll also talk in Japanese. So it would be fine even in the case that it's overheard."

Hirosukol said following that.

"..It seems to be an important conversation right. Neither

Kumiru-san and Samyueruga-san are around nor are your slaves after all.."

When I replied like that the two of them gravely nodded.

"Yeah, we discussed it with them as well but putting aside Sanno and Ruttsu, but fundamentally my two slaves are just {Yes-men} so they're not very good for consultation with. Even when it comes to Sanno and Ruttsu they're still pretty young as well. We can't lightly talk about the fact that we were reincarnated either and in the first place those two have some parts that are too softhearted.."

Hirosukol started talking while looking at me.

"I want to ask frankly but Greed-san. What is your real objective for getting so close to everyone? Honestly speaking, if you were a pure Orth person then we probably wouldn't have held any doubts about you at all either. And then, you would have been very welcome."

".."

"We think that it's unbelievable you could split up so easily from Japanese people you met at long last. It's a confession but I don't like you. However, even then you're Japanese people. It's difficult to separate. That's why we started challenging the dungeon, we didn't want to go separate ways from the side of you all, is our true feelings."

Oh, he said it quite honestly.

"And also, if possible we also wanted to join together with you all, is a part of it as well. Unlike Nomu-san, I don't particularly dislike you though...Ahaha, excuse me. But, even I, thought was strange. I thought there's definitely some sort of objective behind it."

Faruergaz said a joke while still making a serious expression.

"I see.."

Toris and the others also predicted that these two would be suspicious of it. And they also thought it would be a poor plan to keep pretending to be white as well. In my own personal opinion I think it doesn't really matter even if I were to continuing insisting on white here. I thought I would talk about it based on how they come out with it the next time we talk. But, there's no meaning inserting my thinking in here. I might offer advice but it's not my role to be making the decisions this time.

"Well, it's only obvious I do have an objective. Just as you say, there's no way I would split up with other Japanese people that easily right?"

"..I thought that was the case...And, what's the objective?"

Hirosukol said somewhat disappointed. I wonder if after all he really does just hate me and thought it would serve me right if I was actually thrown out? or is it still just my own self-centered delusion?

"That, do I really~ need to say it?"

"Certainly, we don't think we have any right to force an answer of you. No, or do we? In any case we'd prefer if you do answer. It's not just us but Sanno, Ruttsu, Denda, and Karimu, there's no guarantee their lives couldn't depend on it as well. I'd like for you to give us an answer here with no objections so we can relax.

Otherwise do you intend to harm us in some way?"

Faruergaz looked at me with a bit of a glare while saying it. Hmn,

I guess he was able to change a bit?

"I guess so..at the very least we aren't thinking of anything that would progressively endanger you all at all. It's strange saying this but I was able to imagine from the start that I would end up exploring the dungeon in a different group from you all. And also, it bothers me just a bit but if you thought that way then why do you try to invite me like that at that time? If you thought I was plotting something, then wouldn't it have been better to just ignore me?"

It's not as if I don't feel like I'm answering a question with another question but for the time being I already replied so it should be fine.

"I was originally against it..The one who invited you was Ko..It was Rodrick's own decision."

Ho? So they weren't a single rock?

"Just now, I might have said it like that but I thought that you don't have any intentions of harming us either. In that case I thought you might have some other objective. No matter how I think about it this situation is a minus to you after all.."

"That's right, since we don't know what that is that's why I thought we should ignore you. I thought it would be best to keep an eye on things."

Well, that's only natural. It should be something that any Japanese person thinks of normally. It's only obvious different from the other people of {Sun.Ray} and the Rindobel couple.

"The result of our consideration..we were suspicious of whether or not you were planning to make a huge profit off of the hidden fortune of {Sun.Ray}. Ah, I don't know if there's really something like a hidden fortune. Please don't misunderstand. Also, I think that this is the most likely possibility but..are you investigating the method they obtain the temple notes? Since we're strictly sworn to secrecy even among {Sun.Ray} I don't know how you found out about it but depending on how you do it you could make a huge profit from it I'm sure. Although, I only found out about the temple notes recently myself as well but..when I found out I was strangely able to understand. Ah, so the aim was this huh? is what I thought."

"Yeah, that's right. If you can do business then even if there's a bit of dishonor to it you can quickly knock it away. I'm sure you could make a huge profit. But, that's something that the Rindobel-san's came up with after great pains. They're people that are quite intelligent compared to most on Orth."

Oh~ they've gotten closer.

"I see..if you're speaking about the temple notes, then I guess you mean the ones where if you collect a lot of them then they'll use healing magic on you, those notes was it.."

"That's only obvious. What else is there? Since they take so much trouble they're often overlooked but for adventurers they could be a great foundation to rely on in times of need. Even you think so too right?"

"I wonder about that..In any case I have no intention of harming you all and my objective is nothing that would endanger your safety. I don't know if you would be willing to believe me but if you don't then there's nothing more to talk about."

"Well, if it won't do any harm to us then I have no intention of saying too much. We're pleased with our allies in {Sun.Ray}.

According to what we heard about the dungeon this time you participated quite actively and even saved them in a dangerous place. I think it's fine to trust in those words. As expected it seems to have abilities suitable for someone who was one of the top adventurers. However, if you intend to cause trouble for Rindobel-san then.."

Hirosukol said in a threatening way.

"Thanks to Rindobel-san we were able to make it to the lower floors all at once. If we were to say it truthfully then you could say Rindobel-san is our benefactor. Greed-san, don't forget that we're watching."

"..I'll take it carefully into consideration."

After that we talked about some normal adventurer stuff that was unrelated to {Sun.Ray} before returning to the town. However, you two, while you were saying things like that you're still listening to everything I say. When I tried saying that sarcastically they looked a bit embarrassed.

Chapter 193: Business?

Year 7445, Month 7, Day 14

After separating ways from Faruergaz and Hirosukol I returned to "Kairugu's Inn" once and wrote a report including a letter to Toris and the others before putting it into the harness. After that, I used {Cure} on Rokko, Kevin, Jeru and the other injured people twice each, and other than that once on Kimu who had a minor injury. Around the time I finished that it was getting to close the appointed time so I started on my way towards "Mikkusu". After arriving at "Mikkusu" just as I heard they took a private room. The Rindobel couple was already seated when I walked inside.

"Excuse me, I'm sorry for making you wait.."

I lightly lowered my head while sitting down in the comfortable chair I was offered.

"No, it's still a bit early of a time so there's no need to lower your head so respectfully over everything."

Koritto smiled while saying. Meiria rings the table bell to call the boy and ordered today's dinner course for three people.

"You're fine with wine right?"

I was asked about my drink so I replied by nodding. But, if they're only ordering three peoples portion then I guess that means no one else is participating but us. I could have sworn it was a meeting between leaders but...

We killed a bit of time making idle talk over pointless things and once the appetizers and wine were carried out we got into the main topic.

"Greed-kun, I said it this afternoon as well but you did great this time."

"Yeah, as expected of someone lead one of the top teams, it was quite the good job."

"You're full strength is good and so is your bravery. Adding to that you're first-rate as a sorcerer as well."

"We made quite the good purchase."

Well, I don't feel bad being praised but how many times is this already. I'm already starting to get a bit fed up. I already can't do anything but make a dry smile. Do I really look such a mindless idiot who wants to be praised that much? Though I'm already at an adult age, maybe it just can't be helped since from their age in their 40s I just look like a brat?

"Obviously I'm sure you understand as well but magic is..particularly healing magic is extremely important to adventurers. However, even if you use magic to heal injuries they don't easily return to complete recovery and many people end up being in the care of healers even after they return to the surface."

Well I guess that's true. Even if you were to take an attack to the arm and the flesh tears while the bone fractures. Putting aside the detailed reason, in order to do something about an injury on that level you would need to use healing magic at least twice. Since it's necessary to use magic once each for the muscle and the bone fracture. Just now I said "at least twice" but this is really the bare minimum and depending on the degree of the injury it's normal for twice to be insufficient.

If this were a cut to the abdomen and even your internal organs were injured then it's often that you need to have healing magic used even more than that. Since it's unusual to use healing spells consecutively like that generally they just use healing magic on the most serious wound or important internal organs and it's common to just ignore the rest. Going off the example from just now you would use healing magic to only fix the bone fracture and leave alone the cut wound to the muscle and skin itself.

Even if I say leaving alone the wound itself, as long as it's not far too dirty, or the bleeding itself wasn't too heavy then it's uncommon for someone to die with that as the cause. There's even blood clotting medicines after all...But, while it's only obvious really leaving it untouched is a problem as well. It takes an extremely long time for it to completely recover and it's only obvious but it hurts.

Going off the example from before if the muscle itself were to be cut then even if the bone fracture were to be healed until the muscle is healed the arm would still be useless. Even if just the bone fracture was healed there's not much meaning to just thinking of "using your arm", and if they really just ignore it then the muscle might never recover leaving them with a disability.

That's why there's a mountain of people who are under the care of healers and medicine even after they leave the dungeon when injured. Even if there's someone in the party that can use healing magic, if only one person was injured then a normal magician might be plenty to heal them but if there were multiple people injured then they'll quickly run out of mana and in the end need to be in the care of a healer.

Since you can receive any level of healing magic for 50,000 Z, so it's still seen as the better option than enduring the pain and living in fear of a permanent disability, and it's not like it's extravagantly expensive either. If you have them use healing magic once, on one spot, for one type of wound then at the very least you can relax that you won't have any major disability. The only ones who would think of it as too expensive would be poor people with no money at all. Incidentally what type of healing spell the healer uses is something they decide after seeing the wound so the patient them self can at best express their wishes.

I used not just {Cure Critical} but the simple {Cure} and {Cure Light} a considerable number of times while in the dungeon this time myself.

"..I guess so."

"Since the pain still remains it often takes a considerable amount of time for the healing to be over as well."

Meiria said with a light smile that left me with a strange feeling something was off while she ate the delicious looking bacon and vegetable stir fry appetizer.

"I guess so."

"If it's a high class healing spell then their injuries will recover with a considerable speed but there's not many who can use healing spells at that level after all."

Koritto made suggestive sounds towards what his wife was saying while bringing some fish broth to his mouth. Ah, it seems they can properly use the knife and fork even though they're not nobles. I showed a bit of admiration. I mean previously they were just grabbing their food directly with their hands like everyone else a while back.

"I guess so."

"Besides, even if you say they're skilled at using healing spells, it's not like they can use it on them self either."

Meiria said it again while drinking some delicious looking wine.

Well, normally it's impossible right. If the wound is light then it seems there's people who can do it but for the most part there aren't any.

"I guess so."

Since a while ago I've just been repeating the same line.

"It seems your techniques with magic are considerably high but even then it's not like you've become able to use {Cure All} yet right?

Ah, do you know the healing spell {Cure All}? It's the ultimate healing spell that's said to requires all of the magic special skills at level 5 or above to be able to use. If you just have this healing spell used on you once then the pain from the wound will be reduced to less than half in an instant and even if you don't use healing spells after that it recovers you to almost fully healed."

".."

I made a slightly bewildered face. Do they really think I'm lacking common sense to that extent?

"Oh my, judging from that face it seems like you didn't know."

"Oh? That's a bit surprising.."

Ha? I know it. In the first place, I can always use that magic at the master level. Well, whatever.

"Since you're still young it might not be unreasonable that you wouldn't know it. But, putting aside the details of it's effects you should at least remember the name of the ultimate healing spell. In some meanings it's common sense after all."

"Iguesso.."

It's fine already. This wine is a bit bitter.

"Those who can use the spell {Cure All} around here is..other than high ranking sorcerers like the Royal Court Sorcerer there's almost none. It seems that a dark elf healer named Tukerin in Rombertia can use it as well though. It seems he has quite a few emergency cases and reservations so even if you were to go to Tukerin's place if he doesn't have mana at that time then he wouldn't use it on you."

That's only obvious. In the first place when it comes to a town with that size of a population I'm sure there's no end to the number patients (?) either way. There's no guarantee that he'd always have the mana remaining to use {Cure All}. Though I say that, if what Miduchi said was true then I think he would still have enough mana remaining to use it a couple times. But well, I'm sure this is something like an intro to bringing up the matter of the God Notes. It seems that Faruergaz and the others only just heard about it a short while ago but I wonder if they're in such a hurry to tell me about it because they're worried my magic skill levels could reach level 5?

"I think that Meri said it the other day but the welcome news we were talking about is this sort of thing."

After that the story they told me was as expected in regards to the charms from the temple, I was told in great depth just how important of a thing it was. Hmmhmm and it was just as nodding in agreement was starting to become a bother, the conversation finally moved forward. It seems they can get their hands on them at a considerably fast pace through some special route. But, I guess you could say it's only obvious, it seems that you need to make an offering at a higher price than usual. Previously, it was almost the exact details that Miduchi and I had guessed.

"That, even if it doesn't go to the point of making a company, wouldn't it be possible to make it into a business geared towards adventurers?"

"I really would like to do that but for the time being it's not like we can prepare a large enough number to make it into a business. And also, if it's how excellent you are then I'm sure you understand but the other party has their conveniences as well. We were only able to shorten it this far because we slowly earned their trust a bit at a time. It takes at least double the normal amount of money of 200 per one after all..Depending on the season and circumstances we've even been told 300."

"Well but after all it was just as I thought, as expected right...I'm glad that we could finish the conversation this quickly.."

Conversation this quickly you say..The one who dragged it out this far was you all...I haven't done anything but make noises that I'm still listening.

"Even if we were to just take adventurers as clients it's not like we could sell that many of them as well and even as we are right now we can't get our hands on all that many. That's where we thought we'd like to borrow your power."

"You have your own company right? I don't know the details but it seems you deal in rubber products right. Don't you have connections with some of the nobles in the capital?"

Ah, well, I guess so. If they were to think of it as a business then even if they deal with poor adventurers they wouldn't be able to sell for much. Even then I'm sure they could get a fixed amount of profit and you could say they could make plenty to be called a large sum of money compared to normal people. Since it's important to make use of the mobilization power with numbers to go and buy the notes in the first place. Ah, I guess "go and buy" isn't the right way of expressing it huh? It's not something they've gained as a result of a business transaction where they paid the offering as compensation but limited to just the temple trying to return some of their feelings towards the offerings. Whatever the case, if you were to put it in reverse then you could say precisely because their mobilization power was limited they were only able to do business within the party itself.

"There's a lot of people in the capital and there's a large number of temples as well."

"If it comes to a company that sells luxury goods to nobles then it should be trustworthy as well."

I see now. Including the information I learned in the dungeon this time I was able to figure out that they aren't completely committing fraud. However, prior to that the way they split up the teams for the first party, or rather the inclination that I noticed in the members they split up was bothering me. That I was placed in a position at the front is, well fine. I'm a newcomer and the former leader of the top team, I can agree with it because they needed to confirm my true abilities in combat in the dungeon in the true meaning. But, while we were in the dungeon this time I was able to identify a group which is compelled into sacrifices and a group fortified with skilled members that won't easily be injured.

This time, excluding the exclusively support Kamu and Misu who use the bow and spells, we were split up into largely three groups. Koritto and my group. The group of skilled members Meiria, Haruku, and Kimu who wouldn't suffer significant injuries. And after that was Rokko, Kevin, and Jeru who you could call a decoy group. Though it's still possible that it was just a one-time thing as well.

However, fundamentally while we were exploring and fighting we were split into these groups. Even if you're splitting up into groups, normally you take it into consideration so there's not a large difference in power between each of the groups. Even more so when it comes to the 6th floor where you might end up getting caught in a teleport trap if something unexpected happens so the abilities of the members that are split into groups should be carefully taken into consideration.

They shouldn't know whether if you get caught in the teleport trap you'll be teleported together with others or not. Since they don't know that, it's only natural to take into consideration the possibility of several people teleporting at the same time. Even more so since they had the actual example of Gkudo and his little sister Yuriel ending up teleporting to the same area last year.

Saying it honestly, even I think that you won't end up being teleported together, just from what I can imagine and it's not like I have any sort of evidence or conviction that's actually the same.

Most likely, these three decoys are fundamentally easy prey. Up until now, when they just had one team with members rotation they probably had someone take up that role as well I'm sure, and now that they have things organized into two teams the second party might be a good fish tank for training new decoys when they need to be replenished. It's hard to call it a very desirable method but it's difficult to point out that they're clearly doing anything wrong.

I guess the Rindobel couple would like to escape from these sorts of methods and in some meanings deal directly with a major company.

Toris, Bel. It seems to be a bit different from your expectations.

However, it doesn't particularly matter. Rather than a complete success I personally would prefer if there's a failure somewhere along the way they can learn from. For that sake something like the lives of {Sun.Ray} members aren't a big loss, no matter how much my reputation falls or I'm made fun of by others, if we go to the 9th floor and end up finding a huge treasure then I'll have countless chances to make up for it later.

In any case it's not a problem that I can give an immediate reply to either way so I should just stop it at earning some time for now. I repeated the answer "Please let me think about" while avoiding an answer until we ended up splitting ways. It's only obvious but I was told that all of the current members know about the temple notes so if I find it strange I can ask anyone about it and confirm if they really work but they asked me not to tell any of the other members about the important parts relating to making it a business from tonight's discussion. Also, it's only obvious but in regards to the temple notes as well, I was strictly told not to discuss it with anyone other than the other members. Even if you don't say it, it's not something you would normally talk about I'm sure.

.....

After returning to "Kairugu's Inn" I went to the stable to check my horse for instructions from Toris and the others and then I immediately left the inn again. But you know, they need to write things out a bit more concrete, this gives me too much room to think on my own. Also, they want a reply by tomorrow morning, that's too much of a hurry. That's reduction in points.

..I wonder who would be good. It's already past 8 pm so there might already be some members asleep. In that case..I don't know about the ones who have their own home but the one's who would be most likely to stay up late at night are..searching random bars is troublesome.

I steadily walk through the town of Baldukk with the lights from restaurants and bars along the street, for the time being I'll try checking the inn where the person I'm searching for is staying. It's not a very high class inn. An inn that costs around 3,000 Z per night. I tried asking the owner or head clerk or whatever if they could call out the person I'm searching for. It's only obvious but I told them that if they're sleeping there's no need to wake them up.

However, in a few minutes the person I was looking for invited me to their room. The room was lit up by a lighting magic tool and judging off the time it took for them to come out and their clothes they probably weren't asleep.

"What's the matter at a time like this? Greed-san."

The person I was looking for, Binnodo.Gekudo asked me with a questionable face while offering me some tea.

"No, I'm sorry for stopping by so late at night. There was a bit of something I wanted to try asking about..I tried thinking about who would be best to ask in regards to it but I thought that you might still be awake.."

He's from a sub-Baron family. According to information from the Identify sub-window the sub-Baron Gekudo family are the governors of Matoson village in the King's Direct Territories. I can't tell as far as the state of business for Matoson village but I thought it wouldn't be as poor as Bakuddo was in the past. In that case it's possible they would make use of lighting magic tools in their daily lifestyle. Even if not a magic tool I thought it wouldn't be strange for him to stay up late with the light from a lamp. It seems it was the correct answer.

Though I say that during this season he'll still end up waking up tomorrow morning at 4:30. I need to leave before 9 pm at latest. There's not even an hour left.

"Binsu-san. As a matter of fact I just heard about the temple notes from the Rindobel-sans."

Hearing my words Binsu's questionable face changed to understanding.

"Ah, so that's what it was. I get it now. If it's the first time you've heard about the charms then I can understand the feeling of wanting to confirm it in a hurry...This is mine. Originally I had a more proper one but that time last year..that is, I ended up using it."

What Gekudo showed me wasn't a God Note or anything at all, it was just something like a security note carved into something like cheap parchment. It seems to be something the Rindobel couple wrote. The fact that 2,000,000 Z was left in their care is written on it. The date is December of last year.

"This is?"

"Yeah, it's something like proof of the offering in order to obtain a charm from the temple. In one or two years I'll receive a proper charm from the temple in exchange for it. Amazing isn't it?"

He said as if boasting about it. Well it's not as if I don't understand those feelings.

"Ho..After all, it will really end up becoming a charm from the temple right.."

"In regards to that I'll give you my guarantee. Since I've actually used one before myself. It's thanks to the charm that I was saved at that time. If it wasn't for that then I would have ended up having to rest for 2-3 weeks."

I don't know if it's 2,000,000 or 3,000,000 but I guess not having to rest from one of the top teams for that level of period would certainly increase the chances of getting your hands on an amazing treasure. And also, depending on the case just having the amount of suffering from pain reduced is something you can't buy so easily with money. It's not like it will directly come in handy in the dungeon but since the effects you gain from it are real if you just think about it normally, it's certainly something considerably good to have as insurance.

"Do you find it strange? But, I'm quite grateful for it. I think that being able to enter the dungeon again without taking such a long break will connect to increasing everyone's chances of staying alive. Ah, no, it's not like I want to brag that my power is that great. Even if I'm like this I'm an end-user as a magician. There's times when a difficult battle could be made easier thanks to my magic. Also if someone gets injured then I can at least use {Cure} on them.."

So his allies don't fall into a crisis, huh. He has quite the splendid way of thinking. As expected of someone who received the education of a sub-Baron family. No, it's not like I have any basis for it though.

"Also, this is something I'll specially show since it's Greed-san.

This is the charm that Yuriel had before she died last year. Though it ended up meaningless since she wasn't able to make it out of the dungeon alive.."

"That is..I'm very sorry for not making it in time."

"Ah! No! I'm sorry as well for saying it in such a strange way! I didn't mean it in that way!"

While Gekudo's face turned bright red as he went into a panic I calmed him down saying I didn't mind it and used {Status Open} on the God Note he handed me.

【Proof: Yoranfinu.Gekudo Sub-Baron Second Daughter】

Nothing particularly strange comes up with 【Identify】. Though it's not like this itself would be what uses {Cure All} on you so I guess that's only obvious.

Well, if they're handing over real ones just as they stated in the first place then it's not fraud. You could still call it expensive but it's normally an item that would take you at least 10 years to obtain. You say it's only obvious that it's expensive. I was able to gain some proper proof. Of course, the possibility that Gekudo is trying to deceive me isn't zero as well. It's not like I've seen the real thing taking effect on Gekudo in person nor have I actually gotten my hands on a charm and tested it out either.

However, I can't think of any reason why Gekudo would even go to the point of using his little sister's God Note to deceive me but to him it's still possible he feels a greater debt of gratitude towards the Rindobel couple than to me.

However, there's no end once you start doubting everything. A probably that's close to zero isn't worth taking into consideration

I'm sure. If you were to worry about things like that then you wouldn't even be able to take a step outside and for the time being

I think he's someone who feels indebted to and wouldn't try to deceive me. Even if that actually ended up being the case then it's just a matter of me not having an eye for people and if I end up suffering heavy losses or losing my life as a result of that then I was just that much of a person.

And while I say that, this is my way of thinking from my impression of Gekudo and not that of the Rindobel couple. It seems that even after one or two years from taking the money they don't hand over the God Note. 2,000,000 or 3,000,000 is a large sum of money. If the person ends up passing away before they hand over the God Note then if they were to offer it at their grave (if something like that actually existed) or search out their bereaved family to return the money they took then they could hold their chests high without any blame for Fraud.

I apologized once again to Gekudo for visiting so late and after politely thanking him I left the inn.

I returned to "Kairugu's Inn" and including the details of the proof I found out and my own opinions I wrote a letter and put it into the harness of my horse.

Author's Note: (Translator: small note about healing spells giving bad experience towards magic skills compared to attack spells)

Chapter 194: Training

Year 7445, Month 7, Day 15

The next morning, when I opened my eyes I went to the stables and checked the harness of my horse but the thing I wrote last night was still where I left it. I guess it's only obvious since the brat of the inn can't just take the horses out for a walk in the middle of the night.

I heard that {Sun.Ray} spends all of today training. It's training on the outskirts of town but the location is different from the {Slaughterers}. When I did some running as I headed towards the vacant lot at the end of the 8th road that I heard about and several people were already there doing forms.

When I got closer, it was Faruergaz and the others. I don't see Ruttsu or the two slaves anywhere. Even then since they arrived quite a bit early and are warming their bodies up they must be quite serious about it. I offered them morning greetings and then after grabbing a wooden sword in the corner of the vacant lot started doing forms as well.

Soon after the other members start to gather but quite a few are still missing. There's three people from the first party that aren't participating and even four from the second party. According to the Rindobel couple they can't train because they're injured. Hearing that I realized, it's certainly true if it was that then it would be impossible. However, it came out as a topic for a bit yesterday when I was talking with Faruergaz and the others but I guess everyone other than Sanno was injured? It would have been fine even if they didn't hide it. Though I guess they weren't hiding it.

Right now it's 5 in the morning but after training for about two hours like this, I'll have some breakfast and then if there's still some time leftover I'll return to the inn once and use healing magic on the injured people. After that I'll return back here by 10 and train until 3 pm or so before we break up. Of course, I was requested that if I have the leeway in my focus to try and use healing spells on the injured during that occasion.

I see now, I guess using healing spells on other people on the days off isn't an obligation. I didn't realize this until I was told about it. Certainly using magic requires a reasonable amount of focus. Even if you were to be told to use up your long awaited day off putting in hard work for the sake of your co-workers, you've already healed them once so they won't die, and it's not like you're currently in the dungeon and it will connect to a drop in combat forces so I guess some people disagree with doing it? Though I say that, if I think about it calmly using healing spells is like acting a healer who normally gains 50,000 Z per spell used. Though they're members of the same party just using it on them for free is..and I guess you could say it's that sort of stingy nature.

If that's the case then things would be quite bloodthirsty.

We confirm our simple formations and just like the {Slaughterers} split into two groups for separate offense and defense training. I thought it would be 7 people on the first party team and 6 on the second party team but Koritto split off from the first party team to act as referee. Our numbers are equal. Well then, shall we do this?

In front of me while I was on guard with my wooden sword is Sanno, aka Sannose.Kumiru who's also holding a wooden sword on guard.

"Ehe..I've thought this from a short while ago but you know. Greed-kun, have you met me somewhere before? Quite a while back~"

"..I think that the first time I've properly greeted you was after I entered {Sun.Ray} though?"

"Hn...That's right isn't it. Don't mind it, I'm sure it was just my misunderstanding."

"Yes."

After Koritto gave out the command our training started. But, it's something I knew to some extent from entering the dungeon the other day but I was troubled right away. Putting it simply the second party members of {Sun.Ray} are quite weak in terms of abilities. Even the leader of the second party Zemyunel isn't anything special. I wonder if it's because it's combat versus people, they're slow to step-in, and the large swings with the sword and thrusts with the spear stand out. It's considerably better than Basutorial but they're attacks that excluding him even the weakest Gwine could endure for a short while. If it was Angela wouldn't she be able to just endure them all to the end if she doesn't forget her shield? I need to make sure to go considerably easy on them. It seems that it's no good to directly attack the opponents body. Since they'll get injured.

Although, it's not like we'll actually end up fighting against people so those large swing attacks could end up hitting and aiming for doing heavy damage itself isn't a bad thing. But, right now we're split into groups doing practice matches versus people so isn't it somewhat important to match the training up to the opponent? Even if we were to take practice matches versus people seriously I don't think there's much meaning to it but I wonder what level of monster just this level of training is assuming? There's a question mark over my head.

In the middle of that, as expected of Faruergaz and Hirosukol the two who received investiture as true knights they seemed several levels better than the other members. Starting from watching the distance between them self and the opponent, the way of carrying their legs, the timing of attacks, the way to swing their weapons, all of their movements have proper training behind them and were splendid. If you were to ask which, then I think Hirosukol is above due to the advantage in his physique. It seems like he has more technique than Toris and Zulu as well. However, his fighting style as an adventurer is still lacking. If you look at it in the case of abilities as an adventurer then unless it's a humanoid monster he might even fail in comparison to Angela.

Previously, a short while after Toris and the others joined us we obtained some information about the training of {Verdure.Brotherhood} and went to do some reconnaissance. Their training wasn't something like this. Obviously, since we're up assumed to be against monsters in the dungeon the attacks were often large swings with power in them but the practice matches between members were more how do I put it, intense.

During the training of {Verdure.Brotherhood} they would put in some feints and try to confuse the opponent, make gaps and put in a sharp attack there. The one who is on the receiving end was serious as well and skillfully controls their shield, I think that the splitting of roles was done properly. Though it's training against monsters, both the {Slaughterers} and {Verdure.Brotherhood} wracked their brains in training under the assumption of fighting things more powerful than monsters.

In comparison, in the case of {Sun.Ray} the second party seems to be considerably below the first party as things already are. Their attacks are too obvious. Ah, since recently our training has been done under the assumption of fighting ogres it might have naturally gotten close to versus humans. Though ogres are huge, they're still humanoid, and their height is close to three meters, but there's rarely ever any individuals that are actually three meters. They can skillfully make use of their clubs and occasionally while they're crude some of them come out using shield-like things as well so naturally the one taking on the role of the monster differs from other monsters in how they use the sword and shield considerably seriously.

Even when it became the first parties turn to go on the attack, it was attack training that matched up with the abilities of the second party members. Of course, the level of technique is going up though. Nevertheless, just this level huh..I guess that means the combat experience of the {Slaughterers} who fight countless times everyday in the dungeon is above. Well, you could say it's still better that they're just doing training. The only adventurers in Baldukk who do any proper training are the ones who are above second-rate and showing their faces around the 4th floor and the majority of adventurers don't even bother training. On days off they really are just (injured) resting, or playing around.

Just like that we trained for around two hours switching offense and defense a number of times and temporarily split ways for breakfast. I quickly ate some food and then went around Rokko and the other's inn using {Cure Serious} on the three of them one at a time. Since I left a bit of a gap to recover MP in-between, well there shouldn't be any problem. Just in case I tried checking my harness but the fact that my horse was still in the stable meant that the report was still in it as I left it. It seems it would be best to hope for some new instructions around this evening. Additionally I decided to add a new report with the combat ability of each of the members of {Sun.Ray}.

Just before 10 I returned to the training place of {Sun.Ray} and this time it centered around the members of the first party instructing the members of the second party on how to move in the dungeon without making noise, or how to suddenly start dashing from there to escape monsters. Hohou, I can learn from this. We've never done anything like this even once.

Following that was training for when we advance in unknown territory. And training centering around the spear users over methods to discover pitfalls, crossbow and alarm traps was performed. This seems pretty much the same as us where we would proceed while hitting the ground with a stick but they had a trick to their way of hitting or rather, they only take one step forward after hitting from left to right in the shape of a fan that sort of extremely stupid form to it. To be more accurate hitting at a fixed speed and angle guarantees moving at the maximum speed maybe, I couldn't close my opened mouth.

Among them, Faruegaz, Hirosukol, Sanno and the others let alone {Sun.Ray} they're newcomers that have only been entering the dungeon for about half a way. Just like that they were making serious expressions while receiving advice from senior adventurers about things that we've overlooked until now like how to tie up clothes or luggage with rope so the flask at your waist won't make any noise or to prevent the sound of clothes when moving. Ah, these sorts of things, we just covered up in the {Slaughterers} with some appropriate rubber bands.

Come to think of it there's no members in {Sun.Ray} that use heavy armor like banded-mail or splint-mail compared to the other top teams. Everyone uses leather armor. I wonder why? It doesn't particularly matter though.

"How is it? {Sun.Ray}?"

Haruku called out to me.

"As expected of everyone. After all there's reason for being a top team. The training details even cover down to the fine details. Ah, that's right, I'm sorry for saying something rude like the 6th floor was too soon the other day. Since we ended up being ambushed and someone was even seriously injured, it seems that my opinion was a mistake. I apologize."

I'll just wash it away by saying some random flattery.

"..It's a bit different from just doing combat training right? I think it's important to pay attention to all of the members like this. You should properly learn from it as well."

Hirosukol said in a cynical tone of voice but there was no malice in the smile on his face. Judging from his state I guess he meant it as advice for me. By the way, I wonder what the bento for lunch today is?

“That’s right, there’s quite a bit for me to learn. Ah, Hirosukol-san, just now you forget to hit the right edge once, please be careful.”

“Mu, I..I see. Sorry about that..”

“Right, you should take one step forward while moving like you’re grabbing the upper side of the stick with your left hand and it’s faster.”

“Ah..Like this?”

“Nn~ after you finish hitting with the right end it would be better to step off with your left foot. Simultaneously the area you just hit previously is safe so place your foot there..it’s no good if you don’t remember the places you hit. You need to learn to do this without thinking about it.”

I was assigned to the normal department of the JSDF but when I was in SDF university I received the basic training of the engineering department. It was only once but I was trained in how to use the mine detector that was just introduced at the time that was like a vacuum cleaner. These are all words I heard from the drill sergeant at that time though.

The bento for lunch was porridge (not tasty), and some cooked pork (crude seasoning), and raw cucumber for vegetables (it was thin). But, there was plenty in amount, so I was able to properly fill my stomach.

We continued with our training into the afternoon. Each member has a part of their body designated and the one who is called out falls over with that part injured. It’s training for quickly changing the formation in the case that an ally falls over. I was amazed that there were rules for how to fall as well. Is there really meaning in going this far? Ah, since they often have people getting injured I guess there is meaning huh? Or rather, I also feel like it might be considered important training as well but after all I feel like it’s meaningless as well.

Well, something like how to fall doesn’t matter at all but they properly do training to change the formation I see. It’s said that when someone falls over in the dungeon it's the most dangerous time for adventurers. It causes the other members mental unrest and is a direct fall in combat potential as well. In those cases rather than trying to take a formation to follow-up with that in a fluster it's not a theory but there's actually truth to making the body remember so you can reflexively do it when it actually happens, I've thought once again that it's something necessary. It's certainly something worth taking the time to perform.

After that was first-aid training. Ah, it's not the healing of wounds. Ah, no, I guess you could call it that as well. When an ally is injured, often times you'll use healing spells to do the initial healing but it's something that takes into consideration running out of mana in combat and being unable to use healing spells. Temporarily moving the one who fell to a safe place to prevent them from getting in the way, during that time a simple method to stop the bleeding, as well as exchanging information on the most effective way to use blood stopping medicine at that time, and it ended up almost like a course.

Combat is certainly important but adventurers have a mountain of other important things than just combat as well. There's a saying among adventurers of "Just because you're smart doesn't mean you'll become first-rate but if you aren't smart as well you won't make it as first-rate." I was like this when I first came to Baldukk as well. Thinking of the efficiency I used wind magic to make things easier maybe I've forgotten my initial resolutions since being taught effective spells by Karl and teacher Mila.

But, if I think more carefully about it, it's only obvious that it's better to make use of everything I can. It's fine if I just put effort on my own stage.

However, I never properly knew the details of other parties training up until now so finding out a bit of the actual state of things is a good learning experience. It's nothing much special at all and if I just figured that much out then that's plenty. Adding to that, I was able to understand that there's a lot of people who can't even make it as second-rate because they don't even do things like this.

.....

After training, we returned to town once and I went to use healing spells on Rokko and the others once more. With this they should already be completely healed. Since I had time until dinner I went running and when I returned to my inn there was instruction from Toris...Ho~ that's quite extreme. I feel like it may hurt the conscience a bit but it's not a bad hand to play. Since I've heard a similar story from Miduchi before they might have made reference of that as well.

Well, even without that story, it wouldn't be strange if anyone of them were to think of it. However, these details, they sure are rough at using people. Well, it's a good thing to try and make the maximum use of the pieces you can use. Looking from their side, they probably assumed that I could easily do it, and I'm sure I actually can. It seems the {Slaughterers} are entering the dungeon starting the day after tomorrow. Also, they intend to finish making preparations 8 days later by the 23rd of this month. They must have included a bit of flexibility. They intend to put quite a bit of work into it. However, I feel they're overdoing things a bit. This is, another deduction in points.

After taking a shower and changing it was just as I was leaving the inn to have dinner at a random place when Jeru, Jarutodo.Ramiresu came looking for me. It seems he came to invite me to a popular restaurant among the members of {Sun.Ray} as thanks for the healing spells I used before.

The two of us walk through the streets of the town of Baldukk as it gets darker and arrived at the restaurant "Foton". It was a cheaper place than "Gonru" where we had my welcoming party. So this was the place that {Sun.Ray} always use as a gathering place. If the gathering place is at this level then I guess it makes sense that "Gonru" would be the level for a welcoming party for new members.

The other members of {Sun.Ray} were inside the restaurant and all ordering their own meals from the menu. Jeru and I joined them and I started drinking some cheap ale that seems to use less hops than beer. Ale isn't half bad either but I guess my own personal taste leans more towards beer being delicious because I'm a former Japanese person.

While I was eating some thinly sliced bacon and washing it down with ale and the Rindobel couple appeared making the restaurant almost completely reserved by {Sun.Ray}. They sat down at the same table as Jeru and I were drinking and after ordering the same ale and some food they started talking to me.

“Greed-kun, how was the training?”

After taking a sip of ale Koritto said.

“No, as expected of the training of a top team. Everyone was moving energetically, I found it quite admirable.”

“Oh my, you say quite pleasing things.”

Meiria said that a bit happy.

“I don’t feel bad hearing Greed-san say that.”

Jeru was happy as well. Jeru continued asking me.

“By the way, Greed-san. Is it really true that the magic stones of ogres on the 7th floor really sell for 800,000 each?”

With Jeru’s statement the conversation that was going on around my table stopped.

“..It’s true.”

“Uo~ So that was true!”

“Even if we wanted to ask it was difficult.”

“I wanted to ask as well.”

“Amazing~ 800,000 from just one!”

“After all what the magic stone dealer said wasn’t a lie huh?”

It was an uproar like agitating a bee’s nest. They must have been restraining themselves and unable to ask during my welcoming party. But, even if they don’t ask if you investigate it you can find out, so they probably thought it wasn’t worth asking.

“I’ve heard that ogres are considerably strong monsters but can they easily be defeated?”

Koritto asked.

“I wonder about that. I don’t think they’re as strong as they’re said to be. They’re something like a slightly larger Hobgoblin. Of course you can’t let your guard down with them. In actual fact among my previous allies there were several people who defeat them one on one. It was to the point where I thought everyone might be fine. Ah, of course I can defeat them as well.”

I didn’t speak any lies. If he uses the paralysis poison then now I think even Basutorial can defeat one alone.

“Eeh!!? Is that so...This is, there’s no other choice then to try going..”

I didn’t miss the instant Meiria’s eyes turned into dollar signs.

“But, the problem is the 6th floor right..”

It seems Koritto is a bit cautious.

“Ah, in regards to that. I think if you put me at the lead then we can clear through a bit easier.”

When I said it casually like that and the couple opened their eyes and objected to it.

“No way, that’s dangerous.”

“That’s right, if something were to happen to you..”

I guess they’re worried they wouldn’t be able to sue my company. The things they’re saying sound splendid but I’m sure they’re calculating things in their heads. Though if they hadn’t tried talking to me about things in regards to my company I wouldn’t have thought this either. Talking about things so lightly is the reason you’re easy to read.

“This is something I suggested realistically but I’m proud of the fact that I have quite a bit of combat experience on the 6th floor. If you want to place breaking through the 6th floor as the first priority then I don’t think there’s any option other than making use of me. I think it would be good to at least let me try taking the lead once. However, I’m quite grateful that you’re willing to take my safety into consideration.”

Well, with this I should be able to stand at the lead. It’s just a matter of skillfully guiding them.

.....

Year 7445, Month 7, Day 16

Starting the next day we started to put emphasis on personal combat training aimed against ogres. Just as we predicted. I spent the entire day using {Cure Critical} on the two slaves, Ruttsu, and Hisu from the second party. With this they can return to the battlefield starting tomorrow as well. Thanks to this I received words of deep gratitude from not just Faruergaz, Hirosukol, and Sanno but the leader of the second party Zemyunel as well. Well, it's fine.

.....

Year 7445, Month 7, Day 20

Just like this time continued to pass by and today is already the day we enter the dungeon.

The first thing we ran into on the 1st was a group of four orks so I used {Stone Arrow Missile} (there's no way of telling the stone bullets apart in the dark dungeon so no one can tell it's a missile) to destroy one of their heads, then after that charged in and from a position my allies can't see used {Air Blade} with my left hand and used the sword in my right hand to wipe them out in no time at all and I was yelled at after that. They said to move more carefully. Yeah, I get what you want to say. I was getting full of my head because I wanted to blow some stress. Sorry. I'll move more carefully.

The amount of time it took for us to clear through the 1st floor with me at the front was..8 hours. We made it through the 2nd floor in close to the same amount of time of 8 hours as well. The fact that it takes {Sun.Ray} even more time even though they have a map(especially since it's a map based on the one Gwine made of the 1st floor) is just a courtesy, I guess you could say.

.....

Year 7445, Month 7, Day 21

If you were to ask my opinion I took things extremely slow and cleared through the 3rd floor in over half a day. Even then if you were to look from {Sun.Ray}'s standpoint it's an abnormally fast pace. As expected I was told some complaints. According to them, "There's no guarantee that traps that aren't shown on the map won't increase." That might certainly be true but that's just a method of teaching with no basis right. I've never heard of it happening after all. Putting it frankly, if you take too much time out of fear of monsters and taking detours it ends up taking far more time.

.....

Year 7445, Month 7, Day 24

After repeating to teleport into the 6th floor around 20 times, we picked a route with not many monster rooms. After that I walk about 50 meters ahead of the party alone and after that I use the spell {Detect.Life} to count the number of monsters in the boss room while pretending to scout. Since I gave the advice, "it would be best to use attack spells as much as possible from the start" the Rindobel couple was pleased that as a result there weren't any serious injuries.

Just as planned there wasn't anyone inside of the teleport room on the 6th floor that it took us 20 hours to reach.

There's a reddish-brown worn-out cloth covering the pot in the kitchen. Is something inside? is what I was thinking but I'm sure there's nothing in it. Giberuti isn't around after all.

Author's Note: some comments on the amount of pain and relief from various healing spells. Summing it up 0 = no pain, 10 = able to act normally, 50 = somehow able to defend and move while exhausted, 70 = barely able to walk, 100 = completely incapacitated from pain, the actual numbers changed base on HP, etc.. factors.

HP = hit point recovery rate. P = pain recovery rate.
The parentheses is the amount of pain recovered for each time it's used after the first. The efficiency falls even more when a different person is using it after the first.

- "Cure" HP 5%, P3(1)
- "Light" HP 10%, P 10(3)
- "Serious" HP 25%, P30(10)
- "Critical" HP 50%, P45(15)

“All” HP 90%, P70(21)

“Heal” HP, pain, disease complete recovery.

*Cure Light and Cure Serious’s water magic bonus don’t apply to pain.

Chapter 195: Carnivorous Plant

Year 7445, Month 7, Day 24

So we're carrying it out huh? I think while looking at the reddish-brown worn-out cloth that acts as a signal. I can't really get motivated for it but it can't be helped. I wonder who to chose..One or two people, depending on the case three people is fine as well. Since Misu can use magic as well, she's a definite choice. After that I guess someone as young as possible would be best.

"Shall we camp out in this corner over here?"

Koritto said to everyone. Hearing that, we all quickly started preparations to camp. We lower the blankets we were carrying and take the food out of our bags gathering it in the center. One of the members took out a simple miniature stove that makes use of magic stones, and after placing a small pot on top, Koritto created some water as they started making soup.

I guess everyone is tired sitting in a deformed circle, they're just quiet with their attention on the flame and the pot.

Since the pot and stove are small it's certain that it's somewhat difficult to sit around it but Kevin, Jeru, and I were sitting outside of the circle.

Kimu is skillfully cutting up bacon and cabbage on top of a small cutting board before putting it into the pot with some salt and seasonings. If it's the size of that pot then each one of us will only get about a tea cup amount of it. During that time Misu was cutting off slices of ham from a smoked block of meat. Well, it's raw ham. You put this together with Rikke leaves a type of mustard, and put it between galette bread together with mayonnaise before eating it. Incidentally the leaves of Rikke can last for 10 days without withering if you dig them up along with the roots so they're a leafed vegetable that is familiar between adventurers. They're a bit bitter and not very good but since they have a good texture they're preferred. My biggest complaint is I wish they would wash the leaves before preparing them to be eaten.

Jeru takes the pre baked galette from the mountain of food (they've completely gotten hard) and hands out one to each person. My role is to hand out one cucumber to each person. That's right, I was designated for cucumber duty of {Sun.Ray} along with Kevin. Since they're always eating just cucumber in my impression I thought it was an honorable role but that wasn't the case. Even then since it's being left to take care of the important food so I thought that to comfort myself.

Since they're reasonable heavy and quite bulky it seems everyone hates the duty. One per person, per meal. Since there's 10 of us we consume 30 per day. Since we usually bring an extra amount just in case it totals up to over 300 of them. Though they get lighter everyday, they're not the wilted ones handed out during training but the large and splendid kind. Ah, for a period of time Bel and Gwine were saying they were zucchinis but I think they're cucumbers. If you try eating them you'll understand.

The soup is finished.

Kimu goes around pouring soup into everyone's cups and the preparations to eat were completed. We pray as usual and then it's time for the enjoyable meal time. While we're still exhausted it's the same for every party that everyone starts smiling during meals.

"Now then, everyone is about finished eating right..Then, Greed-kun, could you please tell us about the 7th floor once more?"

Meiria instructed me to talk about the 7th floor which I've talked about a lot up until now. I guess it's like a final review or something.

"I understand. The appearance of the dungeon completely changes from up until now on the 7th floor. Here, on the 6th floor the ceiling is extremely high but since there's plenty of light it's almost like the middle of the day. That's why different from the 6th floor you can see up to the ceiling. As far as I know there's no place like on the 4th or 5th floors where a portion is pitch dark so it's probably not necessary to bring along light."

I sip a mouthful of the soup from the cup in my hand.

"Since that's the case the field of vision is good but just as I previously talked about the passages of the dungeons are several times wider than up until now. In those passages there's trees growing every several hundred meters or so apart so while the field of vision is good, it's not like you can see far into the distance. The places with no trees growing are like plains or wastelands, or full of sand, there's various types. Also, we were never able to find any type of trap."

"Are the only monsters that come out really just Goblins and Ogres?"

Kimu said. She has her long tiger striped tail coiled around her sides and stomach.

"That's right for what appears in the passages. Though just the same as the floors up until now when it comes too boss rooms different monsters appear but I only know of the place that is full of sand and something like a fish lurks inside of that sand. Since it seems that move through the sand if we want to avoid going to that room then we'll need to teleport a number of times."

"Yeah, I remember that. We're depending on you to be careful that we don't end up teleporting into a place that leads to there."

Rokko's pointed ears are twitching restlessly as he said that.

"Of course. After that, in regards to the ogres weaknesses but they fundamentally aren't any different from humans. You could call their eyes, noses, the head from the neck above, or their chest where their heart is a weakness. If they bleed out a lot then they quickly get weaker and die. If you just think about it as taking on a slightly large person then there's not a big problem with that. Since the target is big I think it should be easy to hit with the bow but hits to the legs or arms won't do much damage at all. Please try to aim for the vitals like their face. If there's someone fighting in front of you then approaching plenty close so you don't miss the vitals is one option. If the first one we encounter tomorrow is alone or..up to just two of them then I'll take them on alone. Please use that as a reference."

"Yeah, tomorrow it's our first time going to the floor. Let's rest already for today. Relax and get some good rest."

With Koritto concluding things my discussion ended. It's the details that I've talked about countless times these past few days.

Though this time it was a summary.

"Ah, that's right, there's a shower here as well but is it fine if we use it?"

Why are you asking me? I'm a member of {Sun.Ray} right now but. Ah, I guess we never talked about cooperating to manage the shower on the 6th floor.

"..I think it's fine since there's only benefits that come from sharing it on the 5th floor as well."

"Hn, after all that was the case. Well, just in case."

If the {Slaughterers} complain you intend to make it my fault? But, even if I was still in the {Slaughterers} it's not something that will run out, I wouldn't complain over something like using the shower...In the first place I intended to take a shower myself.

Koritto and I created some hot water and we all took showers in order and after feel refreshed we did maintenance on our weapons and leaving the lookouts all rolled up in our blankets.

.....

Year 7445, Month 7, Day 25

Everyone checks their own equipment and then we teleported into the 7th floor. It's only obvious but the surroundings are the usual 7th floor and there's nothing particularly different. There was nothing like Goblins or Ogres nearby that noticed us or we noticed them first either. It's a bit nostalgic, I can feel the sensation of {Party-ization} as well. Everyone is raising their voices in surprise over the spaciousness and brightness. It was such a time when the order "Jump" came up in my head. Hmn, I guess that means preparations are complete. I quickly checked the pedestal of the crystal rod and look at the rock which the arrow points towards.

There's no sign. Let's return.

"This isn't a good location. Let's return."

We return to the 6th floor and teleported to the 7th floor again.

This time was no good as well huh?

We repeated teleporting a number of times. Just once along the way there was five Goblins about 10 meters away but when Haruku swings his weapon menacing them and they noticed or numbers they ran off somewhere.

And it was the 13th time we teleported. We teleported into a forest. When I checked the trunk of the tree the pedestal pointed to "four100117" was carved into it. And then, right beside that a red string was tied to a branch. This is the right place. I look around the surroundings and there's a knot in the bushes on that side as a sign. So that's the direction huh?

"This is a good place. It's one of the areas where the monster room will have trees growing and be a forest. Shall we go?"

Most likely there's only four monster rooms on the 7th floor. In the center is the teleport room and around 1 km to the North, South, East, and West of that there's large 500 meter or so rooms, the East and West are desert and the North and South are forests or thickets. Up until the end of last month what we had investigated by the point I left the {Slaughterers} was just over 80%. There was just over 150 teleport destinations. Of those around 100 of them end up as dead ends and you can't make it to the 8th floor. In other words, you can't get to the monster rooms either. The remaining 50 locations are connected to the monster rooms at some point. I think there's probably around 200 teleport destinations in all. It's only my intuition but it's believed that eventually around 80 locations will connect to the monster rooms. And, even further around half of those are connected to one of the East or West monster rooms.

Since there's also preparation and confirmation as well we've only completely identified around 10 places at the correct answer. In other words, if you teleport around 20 times then you should get to the right place at least once. It was good luck that we were able to arrive at the correct place in half of that this time.

"Well then, please follow after me about 50 meters behind so you don't lose sight of me. If I raise my right hand then that means there's an enemy that I can handle myself ahead. When that time comes please watch how I fight. If I raise my left hand then it's an enemy that I can't deal with alone so I'll retreat."

After everyone nodded I started advancing at the front.

Since there's no traps we can proceed forward quickly. Though I say that we can't be negligent in our caution towards monsters so our speed still falls a bit but it's still an incomparable speed to the other floors. Occasionally I use the spell {Detect.Life} to check ahead of me.

And around 15 minutes after we started moving. When we had advanced around 500 meters. I was able to detect life roughly 200 meters ahead. The number is two. Since they're low in numbers it's not goblins. Judging from the distance they're probably in the forest a bit ahead of the brush in front of me. Making it even better that forest has some pretty thick vegetation growing close to it.

I raise my right hand and waved it ahead. I can see everyone keeping up about 50 meters behind me. After seeing me raise my right hand they stopped in place it seems. I quickly returned to everyone and whispered.

"It seems there's some in the forest beyond this brush. I got a glimpse of their backs as they entered the forest. I'm going to ambush them after this, when I finish off one of them I'll retreat to the plains and fight the remaining one there. Please remain in this forest while watching what it's like."

When I said that there was a reply of "Got it." as I turned around and started forward again.

I crouch down as I pass through the brush and carefully stepped foot into the forest. There's still close to 100 meters in distance from the ogres. In our activities on the 7th floor up until now we've confirmed that ogres don't recognize us until they either catch sight of us or we approach within 30 meters or so. Even when it's ogre mages if we don't approach closer than 100 meters then they don't notice us.

Around 50 meters ahead where the forest opens up there's two ogres leaning on the trunk of a tree as they doze off. I take the glove off my left hand and cut it lightly with my sword to draw some blood. After smearing my blood on the blade of my sword I quickly healed the cut and put my glove back on. I take some throwing needles out of both of my gauntlets and put some paralysis poison on the ends of them before finishing preparations. I continued to hold on to one of them just like that. Then I started slowly using a spell. The type is {Ice Javelin Missile}. However, I'm pouring some mana into the warhead and changing the shape.

Like a long, thin, razor blade.

After deciding my aim I send the razor blade flying.

I may not have needed the {Missile}.

The razor blade that immediately reached it's target sliced through

Ogre A's neck as it was dozing off from the right side to the left sending a shower of blood scattering around.

It wasn't instant death but it probably won't even last another 10 seconds. And then, I quickly threw a rock at Ogre B. Ogre B opened it's eyes with that and after seeing me it grabbed it's club that was rolling around by it's side and fiercely charged at me. After all ogres are idiots. When Ogre B approached to an appropriate distance I threw the throwing needle with paralysis poison on it and after confirming it hit I turned around and ran at full speed back to the North.

I quickly jumped out of the forest and when I returned to the plains I had my beloved long sword in my hand with blood on the blade. It seems the poison still hasn't taken effect as I can hear the energetic footsteps of Ogre B about 10 meters behind me. It's probably impossible for a normal person but even if it's an ogre it should be at it's limit just trying to keep up with my full speed dash.

By the time I had moved to about midway through the plains I noticed a change in the footsteps of Ogre B.

Now then, I'll slowly take my time cutting you down.

When I turned around, it must have thought I was tired from running and stopped, I passed through the side of Ogre B as it swung it's club and cut the side of it with my sword while quickly moving around behind it and cutting the back of it's knee. Ogre B's scream rings out. I quickly cut the arm on the reverse side and after wounding I put a bit of distance between us. An ogre that can't use one arm and one leg isn't anything more than a target. Even more so since the paralysis poison should have started to circulate.

Without letting my guard down I just keep cutting it when I see fit and the movements of the ogre gradually get worse.

Is it about a good time?

I run past Ogre B's side and after turning around behind it I thrust into it's chest around where it's heart is with all my strength. I can feel the ogre start to convulse as I kicked off it's back to pull my sword out.

After wiping the blood off my sword I put it back in it's scabbard.

Without pulling out the throwing needle, I pretended to be wiping the blood off as I placed the weight on one foot and embedded it deep into the arm muscle of the ogre. And then, with a smile I looked in the direction everyone should have been watching from.

Soon after everyone approached and started to take the magic stone out of the ogre's chest.

After they wiped the blood off of the magic stone from Ogre B they got excited seeing the color of it.

"There's one more rolling around in the forest over there that I ambushed."

And when I said that they were greatly pleased.

Just like this when there was only a few ogres we all attacked and when there was a lot I would ambush them and reduce their numbers as we continued to advance forward. Of course, I'm using throwing needles so they don't notice the important points. Just as would be expected of one corner of the top teams, if all of {Sun.Ray} takes them on then they're able to defeat a few ogres without problem.

Twice, there was someone who was unable to evade and ended up being grazed but since they weren't seriously injured, I quickly healed them with {Cure Critical}.

Since there was a sign placed at the split paths which we had decided on before-hand without getting lost we were able to arrive at the monster room just past noon. According to {Party-ization} the {Slaughterers} should be on standby around 150 degrees on the opposite side from the entrance of that room.

"Now then, I'll go scout things out first. Once I know the numbers of the opponent I'll return once to report. After that, I'll circle around along the wall of the room. Let's discuss the timing of the ambush once I return to report."

While we were having lunch and recovering our mana I proposed it.

We've defeated 10 ogres up until here. It seems like the members of {Sun.Ray} are completely blinded by the money.

I went to scout and used the spell {Detect.Life}. There's 11 reactions in the center of the room. This is good.

After killing time for a bit I slowly returned and gave my report.

"I said it before as well but the room is circular and has a diameter of about 500 meters. In the center there's 11 ogres. It seems they aren't moving so they're either sleeping, resting, or dazing out. If we're going to do this then I have an effective strategy though"

When I reported like that to Koritto everyone made delighted expressions hearing it. Right. If you can take out a total of over 20 ogres in less than half a day then it's a large profit after all.

"Fumu, what kind of strategy is it?"

I crouch down and draw out an illustration while explaining. I draw a large 1 meter or so circle and put 11 stones in the center of it.

"First, I'll carefully move along the way to the opposite side of the monsters. Everyone will enter the room and then please advance around 100 meters. If you carefully move while crouched down and not making a sound from one tree trunk to the next then you should be able to approach within 100 meters of the ogres without them noticing."

I place nine pebbles around 20 cm from the circumference. At the same time I put one pebble on the opposite side of the 11 in the center at about 20 cm from the circumference.

"This is me. Just like this I'll circle around the opposite side and slowly approach within range of using magic. Since I'll be moving a bit carefully it might take some time. However, once I enter the valid range to use magic I'll use my most powerful spell the level 4 fire magic {Flame Arbalest} to finish off one in a single hit. Well~ if I hit one that's showing it's back to me in the back of it's head then I can kill it."

I said that and moved my pebble to about 15 cm from the 11 pebbles in the center and then after moving to within 10 cm I took one pebble from an ogre outside of the circle. Yeah, if I hit them from directly behind in the head with a javelin then I'm sure that should kill it.

"In that case, once the ogres realize they've been ambushed they'll come towards me or should try to come towards me. Depending on the case they might get confused and start just wandering around though. If it comes to that then I'll hit them with one more shot of {Flame Arbalest}. As expected if it comes to that then they'll realize which direction I am. And then they'll come towards my direction to kill me."

After seeing everyone understands from their faces I continue.

"If it comes to that then the ogres will have their backs to everyone else. There I would like for Koritto-san to please hit them from behind with {Flame Arbalest} as well. If things go well then with that we would have taken down three of them, even if that's not the case we should definitely be able to finish off two."

I said that while taking another of the 10 remaining ogre pebbles out of the circle.

"Together with Koritto-san, Misu-san please hit a different ogre in the back of the head with {Flame Javelin} as well. If Kamu-san and Misu-san shoot arrows at the ogres in the same way even if that doesn't defeat them we should be able to injure them."

I take one more ogre pebble out of the circle.

"The essential point is that after I hit them with {Flame Arbalest} we need to get them to this point as fast as possible. Well, since ogres are as stupid as goblins it shouldn't be a problem even if we end up a bit behind though. There's 8 ogres remaining at this point. If we attack the ogres from two directions then they should split into two groups."

I split up the ogre pebbles into two groups of four and one group is in my direction the other group in the direction of everyone else.

"Until the four ogres approach everyone should please do as much damage as possible with magic and arrows. There might not even be a single one that falls over but it's important to weaken them. If it comes to this then everyone can take on four ogres with over double the numbers of nine people. If they're weakened then you should be able to win even easier."

I throw out the four ogre pebbles that went in the direction of everyone else.

"And, I will be focusing on running around. I think you already understand but I'm faster than ogres. They won't be able to catch up to me so easily but I'll still be running around in the area everyone isn't at in order to keep from losing sight of everyone one. Once everyone finishes defeating the ogres please finish off the ones chasing me. There's no problem~ I'm used to it after all. I'll show you can I definitely run around for 20 minutes or so."

I move my pebble around randomly and move the four ogre pebbles with that following me.

"But, Greed-kun, isn't that placing just you into the dangerous role..Ah, but certainly you were fast at running. I'm sure you're used to it as well so I guess it's alright..Also, it's certainly true that ogres weren't as strong as I had heard."

Haruku looks at the stones while saying.

"Yeah, and if I'm the only decoy then it's easier for me as well."

I pat my legs.

"Greed-kun, I really think it was great that you entered {Sun.Ray}."

Koritto made a pleased smile as he said it to me.

..Probably several of them are ogre mages. And also, if ogre mages are included at best only about 1/3rd of them or three will chase after me I'm sure. After all not just magic but arrows will come flying from the direction everyone else is in. Even if it's impossible for the ogres to notice there's more people there the ogre mages will quickly make such a decision. Additionally, the ogre mages fire off spells with level 4 void magic.

"Then, after resting for a bit longer I'll depart. I think I'll probably have circled around in 20-30 minutes or so. My {Flame Arbalest} is the sign. Please don't overlook it."

I said that while drinking some tea.

"Hey~ Kimu, isn't Greed-kun amaz~ing.."

"Yeah, he's taking on the dangerous role of decoy all on his own and it's quite wonderful how even though he's still young he's able to think up such simple methods to defeat the ogres making use of how stupid they are. I think it would be best for Jeru to learn something as well."

"Gu..But I guess that's true.."

Now then, it depends on the flow of events but I need to pick the person who's going to become a sacrifice for Toris and Bel. I erase my expression while thinking. If I think about anything unnecessary I feel like I might show a strange expression. This is a place where I'm being tested as well, not just for the sake of Toris and Bel but for the sake of my objective, whether or not I can leave someone innocent or an ally that I'm acquainted with to die. If we can't learn anything from here then almost all of these guys will die pointlessly.

Chapter 196: Dilemma

Year 7445, Month 7, Day 25

Koritto and Meiria are making somewhat difficult faces while talking about something and moving the pebbles over the circle I drew of the room. Che..Don't be thinking about unnecessary things. And, while I say that...

The last contact I received before we entered the dungeon, the {Slaughterers} were supposed to standby in the teleport room on the 7th floor until we came to the 7th floor and smoothly started to advance. Only after they gained confidence that I started moving through {Party-ization} were they supposed to move to the side of the monster room with a group of ogres they had investigated before-hand and only then were they supposed to standby there.

If you were to think of the monster room in front of me as a clock then we're at 6:00 and the {Slaughterers} are fortified at around the 1:00 direction. Since there's people vaguely moving around as well right now when I'm not in the room they might be relaxed and eating or something. Since I've always been tense the entire time I'd prefer they not casually be slacking off and eating. I guess that's a false accusation huh? They'll at least food right.

After we arrived at the monster room I was supposed to somehow negotiate a suggestion that lets met act alone and group up with the {Slaughterers} once, then if there's any discrepancies in the predicted circumstances I would have to report on them in a short period of time. In the worst case if I can't take action alone then while the {Slaughterers} are on standby at the entrance of the monster room they would recognize my approach and hide themselves as they confirm my situation.

In the case that I'm not alone I received contact from Toris that when I approach then even if there's a bit of discrepancy, unless there's a sign from me that a fatal problem has occurred they would just watch as we pass by like that. Of course no major problem has occurred that would influence Toris and the other's plans so far.

Come to think of it I wonder if they're fine with their remaining mana. This morning, we teleported into the 7th floor at around 5 am. The time we finally started moving was around 5:30 am. Since it's just past noon now over 7 hours have passed. Along the way up to here, even if you were to run into ogres as long as you use the paralysis poison you don't need to make use of magic so if you were to use mana it's at most for looking out with {Detect.Life}.

"..do-kun"

Toris's void magic has reached level 4 but since he can't use fire magic in the first place he can't use {Detect.Life}. The only ones who can use it are Miduchi, Bel, and Ralpa the three of them but the spell absolutely consumes 10 MP. The amount of time it takes to recover that much is 50 minutes. It becomes 40 minutes if Miduchi holds on to the handle of her sword but holding on to the handle for 40 minutes straight is unreasonable right. Even if the three of them take shifts using it once every 10 minutes(I think there's not much meaning using it more often than that) then the total amount of mana consumed would be 60 per hour. Compared to that the amount recovered is 36, that's only 12 per person. Since 7 hours have already passed even if we deduct the portion that's been recovered doing simple calculation the total would be 170..No, that's if you were to count everyone's MP. Since the upper limit of Ralpa's MP isn't very high she should only be able to use it once an hour, Bel would be twice, and I guess Miduchi would be three times? Bel would be consuming 8 per hour and Miduchi would even be consuming 18 an hour. Thinking like that then wouldn't both Miduchi and Bel have almost no mana. But, even then I guess you could say they have a considerable amount remaining?

"Greed-kun"

"Ah..Yes. I'm sorry, I was spacing out."

"Yeah, it's fine, don't mind it. However, it's quite something to be able to space out on the 7th floor. Would you mind coming for a short while? Everyone else gather as well."

A~a. Toris, Bel, judging from their state then it seems that as expected it was unreasonable.

"We tried thinking about the strategy from just now a bit but we want to revise it a bit."

Just look. These two have been the leaders of a top team for over 10 years. There's no way they would so easily accept a strategy that dangerous. Since you all know quite a bit about my power, you didn't take into consideration the feelings of someone who doesn't know right? Certainly in order to show them plenty of my power, I followed Toris's instructions and flaunted my skills quite a bit in defeating ogres but there's no way something like that would be enough right. Well, this is experience as well. This is another deduction in points but I'll follow up this time.

"Everyone listen closely as well. Though I say revise it's nothing too big. We just want to increase the number of people who circle around behind the ogres. Ah, it's not like we don't trust you Greed-kun. I don't want you to misunderstand that."

Koritto said.

"We'll split our numbers up into six people and four people. Rokko, Kevin, Jeru. You all circle around behind the ogres together with Greed-kun."

Meiria continued to add on.

Ho? That's quite the firm decision. There's meaning in me taking action alone in order to get into contact with the {Slaughterers} as well but leaving combat forces for {Sun.Ray} was a bit part of it as well. Well, if you were to ask me then regardless if it's {Verdure.Brotherhood}, {Black.Topaz}, {Gehenna.Flare}, and of course {Sun.Ray} as well there's no difference that I'd prefer for them to quickly get wiped out if they intend to come to the same floor as us. Since they're in the way of us getting our hands on some treasure.

However, Rokko, Kevin, and Jeru huh? For them to magnificently take off the injured sucker members and push them on me even here. It's just what I think but this couple, they normally behave that way so no one will retort them on it but their true nature, it looks to me like they're ruthlessly trying to send their allies, or otherwise the suckers into their place of death. I'm sure they'll say it right. An appropriate sounding reason for it. Well, I am looking forward to what they'll actually say even.

"Greed-kun, please circle around behind the ogres together with them. And then, we'll have you finish off one ogre with the first attack spell. With that as the signal, Misu, Kamu, and I will use attack spells and bow to finish off two more ogres. Up until here it's the same."

Koritto said while moving the pebbles in the same way as I just did.

"The problem is the next part. Whether or not the eight ogres will really split into two groups, honestly speaking we thought that was doubtful. For example it can be thought that they could completely ignore one side and all end up going to the other but there's not much of a problem in this case. The side the ogres don't come to can just attack them from behind with spells all they please and the advantage will quickly return to our side I'm sure. The problem is in the case that only one or two of them end up going to one side and six or seven end up going to the other."

I know right~ Normally you would worry about something like this.

Well, if it was just ogres then they're idiots so they would really split up jsut as I said in half but when there's ogre mages you really don't know how things will end up. Most likely I think they would just send one or two towards me since I was alone. After that the ogre mages would send the remaining normal ogres(probably 3-4 of them, depending on how things go five) towards the main group. In other words, I think they would split into three groups. The theory of ogre mages is for them to back up the side that has larger numbers with magic.

If ogre mages had better heads that could predict based on past experiences then they would send around two of them to {Sun.Ray} which has larger numbers to keep them in check and then use all of their forces to finish me off since I'm alone. Then after they finish me off they could hit the main group with all of their forces. Although, this is something would differ based on the terrain at the time, the positions of the ogres, and the situation so I can't say too much. But, since the Rindobel couple is obviously intelligent they're worried about this I'm sure. At the very least they've reasonably recognized my individual combat power. They're probably afraid that even with my high combat power I could end up being surrounded by ogres and end up useless. Honestly speaking, even I don't know if there's definitely ogre mages mixed in with the ones in the monster room. In the first place I don't even know if they're ogres. I haven't Identified them. The trees are in the way from approaching close enough to see them so I would have to get considerably close. Since the vision in the forest is bad I would almost definitely have to enter the detection range of the ogre mages and at that point there would be no more plan or anything about it. If we hadn't already gone over the process for attacking under the premise that we would be noticed then we would bring into close combat all at once I'm sure. Unfortunately the only one who can remain hidden while taking action without problem during that short period of time while scouting is just Miduchi. Though I say that, I'm sure this was already investigated by Toris and the others and since there's no contact, I'm sure it's probably ogres.

In the case there's no ogre mages, if I were to speak my true feelings then even if I don't rely on something like magic or paralysis poison, if it's just at the level of six or seven ogres then if I lure them into the forest I have confidence I can slowly cook them up alone without a single scratch. However, I'm sure the Rindobel couple doesn't know my abilities are that high. They probably think I would just spend 20 minutes running around from four of them but they probably think it would be difficult for me if six or seven of them surround me all at once.

I think it's only natural for them to think I alone could take on six of them based on what they saw of me taking on two at once from the front with no tricks up to here. Well, I made sure all of those situations took place in the plains or wastelands so everyone could see them. I intentionally didn't do any other fighting than ambushing in the forest or thickets. When it comes to taking on multiple ogres as opponents the forest and thickets with trees all over the place is actually easier. As long as I'm alone that is.

The most important point of the strategy this time is "the decoy member who circled around needs to stay alive as they lure the ogres". At the very least they need to remain alive while moving around until the main group finishes defeating the ogres, if they can't continue to lead them around then there's no point to it.

"If it's only one or two that goes to Greed-kun then there's no problem. We already understand you can easily win at that level.

But, as expected wouldn't things get hard if it's six or seven of them? We would be troubled if you were to die."

The statement of the Rindobel couple shows they properly understand something close to the fundamentals of the two Lanchester's Laws.

As expected they have just what it takes to lead a top team.

They're on a different level from the other adventurers of Baldukk who can't think of anything but fighting in the dungeon. Including Zulu and Angela, the majority of the adventurers only have the level of understanding of an elementary schooler. Though even they've showed a remarkable level of progress while being in contact with reincarnated people so I'm sure they'd understand something at this level right away now.

"I'll be fine."

I already know but just in case I need to properly say it.

In other words, what they want to say is that they would be troubled if I die before doing any damage to the ogres at all. It's not particularly like they're worried about my life. As proof of that look, just look at that expression. Both of the couple are completely blinded by their greed. Well even if we just defeat 21 ogres today then that's 17,000,000 Z or so. It's the same amount of sales as two cheap magic items. Of course their eyes would change colors. In order for them to think this way and make them think ogres are easy to deal with, I intentionally dragged them out into wide open areas and make use of paralysis poison in a way where it takes some time to take effect, it was quite difficult making sure they only ended up having to fight against just one at a time.

However, it's already a strategy they've decided on so it's not beneficial to get any pickier with it than this.

"No. It's fine to think of Rokko and the others as Greed-kun's escort. I'm sure that Greed-kun will primarily end up using attack spells but going from the timing at best you'll only be able to the first two attacks and even at best three hits right? You might end up missing other than the first one you use for the ambush and after that if you were to be injured it would be bad if you can't use healing spells anymore."

Including me the four of us on the detached force reply with consent.

"If six of them end up going in your direction then Rokko and the others you all somehow try to hold out with Greed-kun. In that case, we'll probably only have to deal with two of them though so we should be able to finish them off quickly. In the case that six of them come to us, if it's just two then you have Greed-kun as well so he should be able to defeat them quickly just the same.

After that it's fine as long as you come to back us up."

"Yeah, we've already fixed out that ogres aren't a big deal at all.

It's alright."

"Ah, if we have Greed-kun then we can even manage if seven of them come~"

"There's no problem even if we defeat all of them right?"

Rokko and the others are powerfully saying. Well, if they're coming to my side then I guess these guys are fine as well huh?

"Oh, Kevin, you've come out quite big that you'll defeat them all.

I'll put my hopes on you."

Misu said as if teasing him but her face was quite worried.

"Oh~ unlike that idiot Rokko I still have my charm after all. Even if I were to get seriously injured I can rest easy."

"Ah, Kevin's came last month was it? I used mine up last year the same as Rokko after all..Koritto-san is my charm still not ready?"

"Sorry about that, Jeru. You've already had to wait for over a year but..it seems there's some trouble with the funds to work around it.."

"Eeeh..Even though added an additional 300,000 in the spring as well.."

Jeru bit his lip as if he was troubled.

"How about paying even more on top of that again? I've done it such as that as well."

Haruku said it as if giving Jeru advice. After all this guy as well, is he one of the collaborators with the Rindobel couple?

Come to think of it previously, this guy was the one who tried to join the {Slaughterers} as well.

"..An addition huh..I guess it can't be helped~ If I pay again can something be done about it?"

Jeru looked at Meiria with an expression as if begging her.

"That is..I can't say anything in that regard. But, it might be better than not doing anything at all."

"Is that so..Meiria-san, when we return I'll pay out of the compensation this time~ That's why I'm depending on you for one quickly. Please try making the request somehow."

"Don't say anything too unreasonable..But, if we have the additional funds then it's easier to ask. Since it seems we'll have earned a reasonable amount this time, I'll try putting in a good word for you as well."

"Ehe..I'm in you care. Koritto-san."

Somehow it's a conversation where I really start to pity Rokko and the other two.

.....

..Since we took a break, I guess it's about time to depart

huh?

"Then, we'll head out. Since I intend to move carefully until we arrive in the position on the other side it might take over 30 minutes."

"Yeah, I understand. In a bit longer we'll approach carefully as well. Hiding behind the tree trunks and crawling below the foliage even. There's no need to hurry. It's fine for you to slowly take your time. In any case we'll remain on standby over here until your ambush."

With Koritto's response as the sign to depart we walked off with the wall on right side. Of course Rokko, Kevin, and Jeru are properly following behind me as well. In the case that the ogres are the room boss, they generally don't notice you as long as you're walking along the outer edge of the wall. Strangely enough, even if you walk in the forest with almost fallen leaves the sound doesn't reach even 50 meters ahead and since there's trees growing all over the place the field of sight is extremely bad. The ogre mages are sensitive enough to presence that they can notice from 100 meters away but from the outer wall to the center there's 250 meters. It's easy to even just walk through without fighting. In order to circle around the ogres we need to walk in a semicircle around this circular monster room. The diameter of the room is roughly 500 meters so we end up needing to walk close to 800 meters. Adding to that if we were to walk half of it, 700 meters or so we should pass right in front of where the {Slaughterers} are waiting.

Though there's almost no need to stand on end, even then we continue walking while being careful to not make as much sound as possible. I think we've already walked close to 500 meters. In another 200 meters or so we should arrive at the waiting point for the {Slaughterers}. If there's some thicket or rocks then they should be waiting behind those without standing out. It could be possible that Miduchi or so would find us and tell everyone else that it's not just me as they all remain hidden looking over here. Soon after I stepped foot into the room everyone I could detect with {Party-ization} gathered into one group and I could tell they weren't moving at all.

It was when the four of us were carefully moving forward. I felt an abnormality in {Party-ization}. But, what is it? These movements. Even though they were moving at all up until now it's as if they all started moving attentively in a panic.

This, is it combat!?

The same moment I thought that the order "Format it" appeared in my head.

This order means that some kind of large trouble has occurred.

I instantly used the spell {Detect.Life} but the only reaction I got was that of us {Sun.Ray}. It's only obvious. Both the boss of the monster room and the {Slaughterers} are too far away they're beyond the detection range of {Detect.Life}.

"Giooo~tsu!" "Father!!"

They're too far away so it's just a mumble but I can hear the roars from a monster. It's probably an ogre. After that, it was just vaguely and furthermore difficult to hear, but that was, Ralpa's voice! Did something happen to Zenom!? Zenom's presence still remains on {Party-ization}. However he's not moving. Ralpa is close by his side it seems.

"Is it the voice of a monster.."

"Since we can hear I guess it's close by?"

"Since ogres are idiots they might be fighting over a goblin."

"No, it's possible it's the {Slaughterers} as well."

"Che..It would be good if they don't get in the way though.."

Everyone is saying whatever they please. They're standing still looking towards the center of the monster room. If we can hear it from here then that means the bosses of the monster room should be able to hear it as well. The {Slaughterers} were gathered together at an entrance of the monster room just the same as the main group of {Sun.Ray}. They aren't 20 meters away from the entrance of the room. Also, they shouldn't have smeared paralysis poison on their weapons yet as well.

Since they couldn't know when I was would move, if they smeared the poison on their weapons too early then it would just dry and be more difficult to absorb into the wounds reducing the effect significantly. During the time I came up to here the paralysis poison I put on my throwing needles has dropped in effect considerably as well. It was quite troublesome reapplying it without being seen by everyone else.

The orders "Abort it." "Make it possible." and "Fainted." continue to enter my head.

There's a high chance that the plan is suspended, the details mean that someone was seriously injured to the point of being unable to continue fighting.

In a matter of moments I organize the situation in my head.

It's pretty much settled that the {Slaughterers} were ambushed by some monsters while on standby. Since they have people who can use {Detect.Life} it's unlikely they overlooked an ogre approaching from somewhere. This is, that. The revival or replenishment of monsters. The whirlpool of fog-like stuff occurred and some monsters were born there. I don't know the terrain is like over there but since there's a lot of vegetation in the monster room in front of me the field of sight should be pretty bad. If they were in one of the wasteland like areas with rocks all over the place then there's plenty of light so if they even just a bit of distance away it would be difficult to notice the fog and light.

Most likely, several ogres revived at the same time nearby and they were ambushed. Working under that assumption someone suffered a serious injury as well. Whether it's just Zenom or there's even more is unknown. They should be reasonably low on MP as well, this is bad...

Adding to that, it's possible the bosses of the room could have noticed. Though I can't be sure of that much. Toris and Bel's idea is already suspended from the point this order came from Miduchi. It doesn't matter whether {Sun.Ray} ends up getting wiped out or whatever happens but the moment the {Slaughterers} ended up suffering any damage it's already a huge failure. It's hard to proceed in this situation but there's already no choice but to abandon Toris and the others plan and proceed with my own method. However, that was really the worst possible timing I can think of. How should I go about turning this situation around...I was able to organize up to here within one second and made my decision. "Everyone, I'm very sorry. I'm going ahead. Everyone you should run back as fast you can and get away from the room! You should still plenty be able to make it in time."

Without waiting for a reply I switched over to dashing at my full speed. Those fools, they were told to not separate from me. Make sure you properly...come along late! Rokko and the others followed after me in a panic but I steadily pull apart from them.

I quickly accelerated to my top speed. Toris has stopped moving. Probably Gwine as well. I felt something snap in my head. Remain calm. It's fine for the heart to burn hot but cool down the consciousness. The trees flow behind me as if they're flying. Right now even with my sword in hand and my rubber protectors equipped I'm sure I'm faster than the recent {Usain.Bolt}. Zulu from once upon a time is no longer a match.

"Miduchi!!" Who's voice was that? Ralpa huh? I can't see anything outside of my field of sight other than straight ahead.

Shit..Just now {Party-ization} stopped working! Miduchi was either knocked unconscious or suffered a serious injury to the point where she couldn't even maintain her Unique Ability or..I don't even want to think about it but she died.

I bit into the end of the glove on my left hand and pulled it off.

It's not good, stop getting too hot. Aim to remain calm.

I won't be able to use magic anymore.

If I turn around that corner then it should be right in front of my eyes.

Make it in time!

I turn around the corner and jump over the rocks lined up in front of me while firing off consecutive {Stone Javelins} from around two meters high. The MP efficiency will drop a bit but in order to maintain the balance of my body I need to omit pointless movements. From around the brow of my forehead stone spears are launched off one after another. It's fine even if they don't hit.

The {Slaughterers} were fighting with ogres. There's a lot of ogres. One, two, anymore than that is fine as a lot.

There's no time to even being using Identify, I jump over Miduchi who's laying on the ground and after going to the side of Toris who I felt the reaction from last and I quickly stuck my hand into the gaps of his banded-mail while using {Cure All}. I guess he was done in by an ogre but it was good luck the metal ring was crushed.

Since he's looking over here and trying to say something it seems he's conscious. When I whispered in a small voice, "leave the rest to me" he relaxed and closed his eyes.

Following that I forcibly stuck my hand below Zenom's armor as he was laying face down and used {Cure All}.

I think that Zenom had just lost consciousness. Since Ralpa was in the way taking off about half of Zenom's armor so I kicked her in the ass to move her out of the way.

""Al-san!""

"A begyu!!"

"Mas-reed-sama!"

I immediately returned back to where Miduchi was and put all my power into it to tear off her leather armor. Her left side was largely and unnaturally dented along with her leather armor. I quickly used {Cure All} two times, three times. Incidentally her breasts were safe. Her heart wasn't damaged. When I used Identify her condition was Reflex Seizure. Thank goodness.

I quickly stood up and gave orders one after another, "Angela to the left! Basutoral you back her up! Gwine you fall back just like that, Bel back her up! The idiot, get to work already!" while charging at the ogre that Gwine was taking on as she covered for Zulu.

There's already no time to hesitate with using magic. I cut the side of the ogre that was swinging it's club at Gwine as she retreated as I passed by it and after circling around I put my left hand to it's wide back while using {Air Blade} consecutively. Since it fell to it's knees I made use of the fact that it could reach and stabbed my long sword in where it's heart should be.

I pull my sword out while ordering Bel once more, "Bel, take care of Zulu!", and charged at the two Angela was taking on.

"Nu~ryaaaa~!!"

With a flash of fighting spirit I cut the back of the knee on the left leg of the ogre on the left and making further use of that momentum went to cut the back of the knee of the right leg of the next ogre as well. However, it's reaction was better than I thought and it avoided it. I suddenly stopped while lowering my upper body and above the top of my helmet I heard the sound of wind being cut as a club passed over.

"Ah, Sla..{Slaughterers}!"

"Why are there ogres here!?"

"Is that, Greed-kun?"

It seems the three suckers finally circled around the rocks and arrived.

After raising my upper body I lightly cut the side of the ogre that was swinging it's club and this time it started to swing at my feet so I jumped to evade it. I quickly used the end of my long sword to cut it's throat. Blood spurted out of it's neck like a fountain.

The ogre let go of it's club in a panic to try and hold down it's throat when I cut it's stomach in a straight line this time causing it's intestines to spill out.

I quickly looked towards the other ogre who's left leg tendon I had cut and Angela was parrying it's club with her buckler and I watched as Basutorial thrust in with his spear aiming for the gap that created. Gwine followed up by trusting her spear into it's heart with a powerful step in as well. At the same time the {tomahawk} Ralpa thew stabbed into the ogre's face.

It should already be fine. When I looked around there was the corpses of five ogres rolling around. I guess they defeated one?

No, two before I came along huh? One of them had it's arms and legs completely cut off. Miduchi probably did it. Gwine is going around finishing off the ogres that still haven't completely died. Bel raised her face after she finished using heal spells on Zulu and after confirming Toris was alright she walked towards me.

Angela quickly came and knelt in front of me with her head down while saying, "Greed-sama, thank you for the assistance in such an emergency." Just now, didn't you mistake master and Greed-sama. Don't be making such a satisfied face.

Ralpa who was still in the posture of throwing her axe ran over to Miduchi in a hurry and covered her body with the remnants of the leather armor I tore off. It seems she's checking her pulse at the same time. Well, it's fine. She's properly looking at Miduch after all.

Basutorial looked over the surroundings for just a bit before kneeling beside Angela and lowering his head while saying, "Thank you very much." This guy, has he still not escaped from his slave disposition?

Gwine came to my side at almost the same time as Angela and lowered her head while saying "Al-san, we were saved. Thank you very much."

Soon after Bel arrived as well and offered me her gratitude just the same and after that said, "If we can be useful in some way please order us." She was making an apologetic, pathetic, and slightly afraid expression.

"Hey, you, Koloil-san was it? For you to not have realized an attack from ogres, the {Slaughterers} have fallen to the ground I see."

Kevin put his battle axe back over his shoulder again while saying.

"Stop it. It's not strange for these things to happen. And I don't hate the {Slaughterers}. I even think with this I was able to repay some of my debt to them...And while I say that it was Greed-kun who repaid it though, huh? I didn't do anything at all.."

Jeru said to Kevin.

"Right now isn't the time to be saying something like that right?

Greed-kun, what should we do?"

Rokko warned the with a composed voice and put the attention on me.

Right, we need to hurry.

"It's possible the boss ogres could have noticed. It wouldn't be strange for Rindobel-san and the others to have come out as well.

Though I say that I'm sure they haven't advanced very far. We should take over the ogres from here. The ones who will take over the role as decoy will be me and the members of the {Slaughterers} here that can still move. Everyone else follow a bit behind me.

That's fine with everyone from the {Slaughterers} as well right? I won't let you disagree. It's necessary for you to work at least that much."

"Eh? But, is it fine? Things like the cut will be troublesome.."It's fine. I won't recognize them making claim on that. It's even possible they could have ruined our plan after all."

I interrupted Rokko as he started talking and said. It's a considerably forceful reasoning. In the first place, no matter what sort of plan {Sun.Ray} was going to take it's unrelated to the {Slaughterers}. It's not like they tried interfere after combat had already started or steal the prey from the side. It's not strange for there to end up being combat anywhere in the dungeon other than the teleport room in the center of the floor.

However, that shouldn't be amusing for {Sun.Ray}.

"You could say the original cause is that I reflexively ran in and saved them. We'll have them return that debt to us here. Let's have them pay it back to us by working for free. All of the magic stones within the room belong to {Sun.Ray}."

I forcibly declared that and looked at the {Slaughterers}. Even if we were to follow the original plan, the chances of accomplishing aren't completely zero but they've certainly decreased. Forcing the {Slaughterers} to work for free and increasing the number of people who take on the danger shouldn't be a minus for {Sun.Ray}.

"Bel remain here and look after the injured people. Ralph, Gwine, Basutorial, Angela, come with us. I'll work you hard."

Bel was looking at me with an expression like an abandoned puppy but quickly seemed to understand.

I'm sure you're not composed right now and above all else it's necessary for you to heal the people who are fallen. Endure it.

"Since we don't have any time let's hurry. I'll advance at the front leading them. Everyone else please follow about 20 meters behind. I'm depending on your backup once the combat starts but there's no need to overdo things. Well then let's go."

After I said that to the three suckers, I turned around and we started following the arc towards the center of the room. From here on out things are improvised. I need to try and do things well. Even if I don't say anything the members of the {Slaughterers} followed with me at the head in the formation {Wedge One}.

Author's Note: TL: note on the time for monsters to respawn being longer the higher level the monster. It roughly doubles in seconds, at around level 10 monster it takes 512 seconds, and for {The Gazer} at level 25 it takes 16770000 seconds, or over six months. (Though in the settings {The Gazer} spawns at level 21) <-- that's just for after the spawn fog starts until it appears.

The time between when the fog starts to appear is 10 hours + the floor level. 1st floor = 10 hours, 6 floor = 15 hours, etc...

Chapter 197: Triage

Year 7445, Month 7, Day 25

While I started walking off, I don't want to hurry too much. It's a plan made on the spot so I want to think if there's any rough ends remaining. But, it's also a fact that there's no time. After I started walking without even advancing 50 meters a group of ogres got caught in my {Detect.Life}. After all it seems we caught their attention from the sounds of combat over here. With a few seconds between I used {Detect.Life} once more. It feels like they're slowly and carefully moving from the center of the room to the direction we are located (going clockwise the direction of 12-1).

I clench my fist and after raising my left hand I raised everyone's caution. I quickly opened my left hand and after shaping it like an O I waved it from front to back. It's a signal for the {Slaughterers} that "the opponent is approaching us". Since it's not my right hand it also signifies that we can't see them yet as well. The three suckers have no idea what's going on I'm sure but it's fine as long as the fact that something is happening is conveyed.

Ah, shit. I want to properly have a meeting and go over a plan but there's no time to be taking it easy and I don't want to cause an unneeded misunderstanding with the three suckers of {Sun.Ray} as well. Even if I just talk about a genuine versus ogre plan it would be troublesome if they misunderstand. Since idiots believe in whatever they want to believe. The three suckers should understand the series of events they saw but I don't want that to give the other members a strange impression when they hear about it later.

In reality I'd prefer to hide around here and aim to ambush the ogres when they approach but this time things won't go so easily.

We slowly advance and close the distance. I want to advance another 50 meters before they notice us. I tried using {Detect.Life}.

They're still 180 meters or so away. I raised the speed of advance and moved another 30 meters ahead. I tried using {Detect.Life} again. The distance should have already cut 140 meters. If we advance another 30 meters ahead then they might notice us before we can hide.

It can't be helped so after advancing another 20 meters I hit in a thicket of bushes that was in just the right place and gave everyone else the order to hide as well. When I turned around it was just as the three suckers tried to hurry and hide behind some nearby bushes and trees after seeing the {Slaughterers} movements.

I tried looking in the direction the ogres were approaching from with Identify vision but there's too many things in the way so I can't get a look at them. I'd like to at least confirm the number of ogre mages. You can't tell the difference between ogres and ogre mages from just looking. Only when you check their status or otherwise use Identify can you determine they're ogre mages from their magic special skills.

It's probably impossible for them to not notice us before I can get a glimpse of them~ In that case, it should either be one of the ones in the center of the group or near the rear, or at least I can only make that sort of indefinite judgement. If I can at least see them giving out some sort of order then I would be able to guess that's the ogre mage but there's no time to be leisurely waiting around I'm sure.

My aim among the already largely reduced options is for the main group of {Sun.Ray} to somehow end up in a melee and suffer serious injuries that won't be fatal. Hopefully multiple people, if possible including the Rindobel couple, and ideally everyone. Ah, it doesn't particularly matter if the three suckers end up injured or not. And, then I'll have the Rindobel couple do a triage.

There's already no other option than that. For that sake I need to at least start things out a bit flashy in order to get closer to the original plan and tell them that combat has started.

I can't properly convey my will to the other members of the {Slaughterers} but they should already understand the original plan has failed. I'm sure Angela and Basutorial won't say anything unnecessary unless I give some sort of order. I can relax in regards to Gwine as well. The problem is Ralpa but since I just kicked her in the ass a short while ago she'll probably remain quiet for the time being. She will right? If she doesn't then as a punishment I'll force her to kill all of the members of {Sun.Ray} before things become even more troublesome. If it comes to that then the reincarnated people won't be swayed to my side anymore though. Additionally we'd have to ambush the second party of {Sun.Ray} on the 3rd floor and finish them all off including Faruergaz and the others.

Ah, after all I think I would have been able to relax more if I had left Ralpa and brought along Bel. From an unexpected negligence

(though I feel saying that is harsh) they were ambushed by ogres and starting with Zenom and Toris, Miduchi, Zulu, they were all done in so there was no shit or anything about a plan anymore. I'm sure I'm under shock as well and above all else it hurts that I didn't have any other option than to leave Bel for healing.

I order everyone to remain on standby there while quietly sticking my head out from the bushes. I looked in the direction of the center of the room but after all I can't see any ogres. I use {Detect.Life} again and they're about to cut the 100 meter point in distance. It wouldn't be strange if they noticed anytime now. Since they'll notice even if we just ignore them, it's a higher priority to close the distance even just a bit more and make sure the distance between the ogres and the main group of {Sun.Ray} is closer.

I give everyone the order to charge and run off all at once. I guess my head has already cooled down, unlike before I can see the trees clearly.

.....

There.

After dashing close to 70 meters all at once and I discovered the group of ogres about 30 meters ahead. It's only obvious but they've already noticed me as well. I jumped over the bushes landing and at the same time I looked as far as I could see behind the ogres and used the spell {Audible Clamor} to make it seem like someone was running through the bushes. Of course the sound won't reach my ears but I'm sure the ogre mages would notice it. Simultaneously I used the spell {Flame Arbalest Missile} aiming at the ogre around the center.

The one that turns around or reacts should be the ogre mage. It seems the one I aimed at was the ogre mage. The instant it noticed my {Flame Arbalest (Missile)} it imprudently hid behind the back of a nearby ogre. If I put some effort into it then it's not as if I can't still hit but putting aside a slight change in the trajectory, if I shift the trajectory of it in a showy way then I won't be able to claim it's {Flame Arbalest} anymore. Since the flaming spear stands out, there's a high chance the three suckers can already see it.

Since it can't be helped I just let it continue forward and shot through the face of the ogre used as a shield.

Also, it seems that a different ogre mage from the one I aimed at turned around and pointed from behind several ogres. I'm sure the ogres can't determine if we're the decoy or the main group but they'll come to attack with a reasonable number. If it's the level of being vigilant for ambushes from behind then it's only obvious for ogre mages.

It seems I can manage one more shot.

I aim at a different ogre with it's club in hand running over here and sent one more shot of {Flame Arbalest Missile} flying. However, the true aim of this one was the ogre mage(probably) that is behind it and seems to have stopped moving to concentrate and use magic.

The flaming spear moves in a slight arc to pass by the side of the ogre while I take out my sword and move to make sure I don't lose line of sight, it continues flying towards the individual that seems to be an ogre mage and beautifully hit it in the chest. It probably won't instantly kill it but I think I sealed it's magic and I'm sure it won't be able to move much either way. But, if I stand out this much then there's no way the ogres that were paying attention over here should set anyone other than me as their first objective.

"Aa!!"

"It missed.."

"Che!!"

I heard those sorts of voices from behind when my flaming spear passed by the side of the ogre that was coming towards me but soon after,

"Ooh!!?"

"Amazing!!"

"I thought that was the case."

and their voices changed to that. They sure in good condition, the three suckers.

Angela runs past my right side and silently charged at the ogre that was coming towards me. On the opposite side Ralpa advances while keeping her body low and when she passed in front of me she took up a position to cover Angela's blind spots. I advance to about five meters behind Angela on the left side as well and slow down the following two ogres that came charging. Since I went through the trouble of standing out I need to make sure to stay near the front where I'm easy to target. I need to take my time and drag things out here. The spectacle I got a glimpse of through the gaps in the ogres was one or two ogre mages behind the three ogres in the front looking carefully to their rear.

There's nine ogres remaining capable of combat. It seems they're sending half of those to the rear and half over here. And, while I say that after all the ones dealing with things first is the ogres and the ogre mages are still standing in the center giving out orders intending to back them up with magic.

Since I'm standing at the front taking on two of them alone, it must have thought I would be easier to deal with so another ogre came along. But, it must have seen that Basutorial and Gwine were fortified right behind me or were being careful because it moved to take a detour in a different direction.

"We'll hold that one done!"

I heard Rokko's voice. At the same time I felt their footsteps move from behind me to the left side.

"Don't try to do anything unreasonable!"

Just in case I called out to them but since I was focused over there and one of the ones in front had an opening, I couldn't help but reflexively hit with a serious attack while evading it's club. I ended up cutting deeply from it's left side up through it's right breast. I avoid the ogre that let out a showy scream and started rolling around as it holds the wound, a~~a, and regretted what I did.

"Oo!! As expected! Everyone, follow after me!!"

"O!"

"Even I can!"

The three suckers were facing off against the ogre that tried to take a detour around the left side. Putting that aside, since there's only one ogre remaining in front of me, it's true that I've regained quite a bit of leeway. I carefully maintain the distance between the ogre, since Gwine and Basutorial are keeping it in check, I used the spell {Audible Clamor} again to cause a sound to appear in the far distance. At the same time I threw a throwing needle at the ogre the three suckers were facing off against. I'm sure it won't be very effective but it's better than nothing. The ogre mage reacted immediately and while scolding it's subordinate I could tell it sent some over there. At the same time I noticed that one of the ogre mages started concentrating. I wonder if I should seriously injure it and completely seal it's magic? No, there's still another hand I can play. I immediately went around the side of the ogre in front of me and jumped out to a point that stands out. A stone spear came flying at me at almost the same time. The timing is important.

"Waa!!"

I swing my sword and pretend as if I'm cutting from below while creating a small {Anti-Magic Field} the size of my palm and received the stone spear with that erasing it. Since everyone is in the middle of combat it was already in my prediction that no one could see anything more than me cutting away at it in the middle of the air with a divine level of sword technique. Since fall of last year, when we're training incantations in the dungeon I practiced it together with Miduchi.

I thought I would hear voices of admiration from everyone but that wasn't the case. Gwine and Basutorial are still busy trying to keep the energetic ogre in check to follow me up while I'm doing meaningless things and it seems Angela has landed a number of attacks but none of them are fatal blows and the ogre is still plenty energetic so she's not in a situation where she can look elsewhere. Ralph has her back facing me and is supporting Angela. The three suckers are frantically trying to take on one ogre and already no longer paying attention to my actions.

"Gioo~ooU!!"

Seeing it's magic erase only the ogre mage raised a voice of resentment while glaring hatefully at me. So you're the only one huh, that recognizes my worth...But, ogre mages have considerably good heads. I'm sure it'll notice right away.

"Keep at it!!"

I left those words while cutting the back of the left knee of the remaining ogre and at the same time as it fell to one leg and glared at me I charged towards the ogre mage. Ah, judging from Angela and Ralph's state they should be able to keep that up forever. Since Gwine and Basutorial are using spears against an ogre that can't use one of it's legs they should be alright as well. No one cares about the three suckers. Since there's three of them I'm sure they'll manage somehow. If one of them were to be seriously injured, I'm sure Gwine and Basutorial would finish things up right away and go to heal them.

Since it's realized that using magic is pointless against me, it went to aim at someone else but it was necessary for me to approach it to seal that.

Ahead of me a flaming spear came flying and was evaded by one of the ogres that went to the rear.

It seems they finally arrived.

"Guge~ouo~gyaru!!"

"Gu? Gu!!"

It seems the ogre mage gave out some kind of order and I heard the sound of ogres running off to the rear. At the same time the ogre mage that ordered it moved to follow behind them. The direction I was heading has one ogre mage standing on guard with a club glaring hatefully at me, one that seems to be an ogre mage that I hit in the chest with the flame spear still screaming, and the corpse of the first ogre that I killed that was used as a shield.

Idi~ot, as if something at your level could fire off a spell that fast.

I smiled seeing the ogre mage that tried to start concentrating but gave up right away.

It tries to use the club in it's hand to attack me as I approach running along.

I roll to avoid the wide swing and circled around behind it while cutting it's right knee.

"We've already defeated three of them. We're taking on four right now! Four of them are heading that way!"

Just in case I shouted in a loud voice warning them.

"Ah!"

This voice is probably Koritto. It took the shape of an assault but the four ogres that went towards the main group of {Sun.Ray} are just the quota I had mentioned at the start, or rather I've already taken responsibility for the things I said. If they can hold out for around 30 seconds after hostilities start then it should be about a good time.

I leisurely avoid the club the ogre mage is swinging on one leg and lightly cut it's arm. At the same time I used the spell {Air Hammer} right in front of the ogre smashing it and while it was flinching with it's eyes closed I stabbed my sword into it's right chest. I quickly jumped back and after finding another opening cut at it. It seems that the Ogre Mage that took my {Flame Arbalest Missile} to the chest is still alive but considerably weakened and already on the verge of death. It's just for a short while but I can relax and fight here.

I glanced back in the direction I came from and it was just as Ralpha jumped to swing her axe down on the right shoulder of an ogre. After taking an attack from the axe the wound almost seemed to burst open sending blood flying in the surroundings. Gwine and Basutorial are fighting safely as well. I'm sure they could already finish it off at anytime if they want. It seems that the three suckers have wounded the ogre somewhat and they're all still moving energetically.

"Gobu!!"

""Haruku!!!""

""Haruku-san!!""

"It..It's no good. Hi, retreat!!"

""No way!!?""

Oh my~ are you really going to retreat abandoning your wounded allies so easily? That's unexpectedly cruel. But, it's also a good strong decision to avoid being wiped out as well. However, for Harukein.Fumizu to be the first one taken out. I did wonder how a battle mace with a reasonably short reach would do against ogres but I guess first off was you huh? Since he can use the shield skillfully I thought he would hold out a bit longer. But, his voice was quite small. I wonder if they're a considerable distance away?

"Kamu, come back! We're retreating!!"

Meiria's reprimanding voice echoes out.

"But!"

"Agu!!"

"Meri!!!"

""Meri-san!!!"

"Shit!! It can't be helped, hold out!!"

The two front line members using the long sword and battle mace were injured. Is it about a good time? But, I see that he decided not to retreat anymore the instant his wife was injured. It's quite self-centered but I guess that's the nature of people. It's not worth criticizing them over. Rather than something like that this situation is ideal. I wonder if you could say I'm loved by God?

"Ha!!"

I let out a small breath while cutting the left upper arm of the ogre mage and while quickly turning around I cut it's left knee.

"Go~e!!"

With both of it's knees done in, completely kneeling on the ground the ogre shrunk to about the same height as me.

"Shaa!!"

I quickly thrust my sword into it's throat and pulled it out. I'm sure my body is already bright red from blood spray.

"Hurry up and finish them off!"

I shouted that behind me and thrust my sword into the heart of the ogre finishing it off. I immediately took off running towards the main group of {Sun.Ray}.

"I'm heading to back you up now!"

I shouted like that while holding my sword up and dashing.

About 100 meters away a blood-stained battle was taking place.

Haruku is collapsed facing the ground, Meiria is leaned over with her back to a tree while holding her side. In the vicinity of that there's three ogres holding their positions and a bit to the rear is what seems to be an ogre mage yelling gyagya giving out orders.

{Sun.Ray} has completely lost their proper front line with power while Koritto and Kimu are standing at the front line desperately trying to hold the three ogres in check with spears. Misu and Kamu have taken up the role of attackers with magic and bow.

Of course the three ogres aren't unharmed either but it's not like they're using paralysis poison so they're still in good condition.

The ogre mage has started concentrating. I could only confirm Kimu but she's making an expression close to despair.

"Uooo~!!"

I raise my sword above my head and swung down cutting the ogre mage from behind with all of my power.

"Gyaaa~!!"

A raspy scream overflows from the ogre mages mouth as the concentration for it's magic is cut off. While it was flinching I cut it down to size and then stabbed through it's heart from it's back finishing it off before running to the main group. The ogre on the right suddenly threw the club in it's hand at Misu in the rear and it ended up hitting her in the stomach when she was aiming with her bow. Koritto thought it was his chance to thrust with his spear but he was blocked by the ogre in the center and it was parried.

There the empty-handed ogre on the right lunged forward and grappled with him.

"Gooo~!!"

Koritto raises a battle cry. The Laios skill, Instantaneous
huh?

While Koritto was brushing away the club with his spear, the ogre in the center grabbed the spear Kimu thrust forward with its left hand. There it was stabbed with an arrow but its movements only dulled just a bit and it pulled the spear as if it was nothing at all. The ogre on the left swings down its club intending to crush Kimu's head.

"Kimu!!"

Someone shouted but I'm sure none of them will make it in time anymore.

Excluding me when I use wind magic on my back and fly over in an instant.

"To~!!"

I flew into the ogre on the left body slamming its left shoulder shifting the trajectory of the club it was swinging and immediately swing my sword towards the back of the ogre in the center.

"Aa!!"

Even then it seems that the ogre's club swinging towards Kimu crushed her right arm as it's bent in a strange direction while Kimu is holding her heavily injured right arm and writhing around on the ground in pain.

It's alright, you won't die from just one arm.

"Seah!!"

The ogre that I rammed into was stomping it's feet without knowing what even happened as I stabbed it through the heart. I quickly kicked off pulling my sword out and moved around keeping the ogre in the center in check while cutting the ogre that Koritto was grappling(!) with. It's fine if I can just get the ogres to focus on me.

"Ha!!"

I immediately jumped to the side evading the attack from the ogre in the center.

"Fmph!!"

I saw Koritto punching an ogre. Even if you have Instantaneous, attacks with your bare hands won't do much damage. Rather~ this old man is an idiot. He might just be too agitated and all the blood is rushing to his head. I need to hurry. I cross swords with the ogre in the center as it was swinging it's club at me, I wonder how much longer it will take to defeat. There's no time to spend thinking.

"Ri~aaaa!!"

I swing my sword considerably frantically and tore up the arm of the ogre in the center. The ogre's face twisted in pain and it seems to be cursing something. I calmly evade it's attacks and swing my sword. I land my attacks one after another and I don't think it took much time at all before I sliced it's throat.

I immediately turned to face the ogre on the right but Korrito's right arm was being held by the ogre's left arm as he was being hit.

I changed my stand to quickly thrust my sword into the ogre's side but Ralpa came flying in smashing her {tomahawk} into it's head killing it instantly.

"The other side?"

"I sent Angela and the others over there. As expected I'm sure they're already finishing up."

Ralpa replied while swinging her {tomahawk} to get the gray matter stuck to it off.

"Go and take a look."

Ralpa obeyed without showing any sign of complaint and went back.

After all it seems she had some thoughts on it as well.

"Misu! It's already fine! Kimu you calm down as well!"

The only one unharmed Kamu screamed while looking at Misu's condition.

"Gwa..Hea..healing.."

Koritto looked up at me from the ground while saying with the left side of his face swollen and his right arm that was grabbed bent in an odd direction.

"Why didn't you come even sooner!"

Weakly but even then firmly Meiria started telling me off.

"I gave it my best but even then I'm sorry for arriving late to back you up."

I crouch down by Haruku's side and turn him face up while saying.

"There's four people that need {Cure Critical} as soon as possible.

Meiria-san, Haruku-san, Kimu-san, and Misu-san. Who should I use it on? I've used a considerable amount of mana in the combat up to here so I'm already at the limit."

It seems Meiria was hit with an attack spell. When I used Identify her condition was Stab Wound. That's unlikely to be from a club. But, while it's true she's seriously injured she should be fine even without {Cure Critical} right away. I thought Haruku only took an attack to his waist but it seems his ribs were stepped on after that as well. His condition is Blunt Wound and Organ Rupture. It would be best to use it on him. I'm sure Kimu is in pain but honestly speaking if it's just one arm then even if we ignore it for a short while it won't endanger her life. Misu is..in the same condition as Haruku but not as seriously injured as him it seems.

"Mu..I guess that's true..I guess so, then, Mei"I think that Haruku-san is in more danger!"

When Koritto tried to say something he was interrupted by Kamu's shout.

Chapter 198: Accusation

Year 7445, Month 7, Day 25

"I'm asking the reason why you didn't come even sooner!

Gu..Ow!!"

Oh my~ I guess it's no good even if I try to cover it up by apologizing. Though I say that, even under unexpected circumstances

I fought the best I could, even that was close to my best effort though~ Of course if I were to go all out with my full strength then I could freeze everything all at once in ice or use attack spells on the level of {Heavy Catapult} class with {Missile} and made it before even a single person was put in danger.

"It's because my abilities are too low. I'm very sorry I wasn't able to meet up to your expectations."

"Stop, Meri. Right now isn't the time to be saying something like that! Greed-kun, I'm fine so quickly heal Meri! There's a hole opened up in her stomach!"

Koritto tries to calm down his wife who's suffered a serious injury and already can't make normal decisions while saying. As far as I can tell your injuries are pretty bad as well though.

"Greed-kun! On Haruku-san! Quickly!"

Kamu shouts. She's suffered a pretty serious injury and is in a dangerous condition but judging from her state she should still last a while longer. But, I've probably already dragged it out plenty. Rather~ someone say it. {Sun.Ray} must have never taken this much damage all at once before. Everyone is considerably panicked.

"I'm alright, look at Haruku-san."

Kimu holds her crushed right arm while saying.

"U..wu..It hurts..Hurry up and heal me!!"

"That..That's right! Greed-kun! Listen to what the leader says!"

I ignore the yells of the Rindobel couple, Meiria and Koritto and crouched down to the side of Haruku who I just flipped over and while ignoring the shouts from the Rindobel couple on the other side I took about 20 seconds to use {Cure Critical} on Haruku. For the time being his Ruptured Organs should be considerably better.

This time the Rindobel couple started a married couple fight.

"Then you use healing magic!"

"You can tell right! It's impossible for me right now."

"Why!? I'm, seriously injured!"

"Even I'm heavily injured! There's no way I could use something like magic!"

I ignore the Rindobel couple who's quarreling and went to Misu before using {Cure Serious} on her, then turned around crouching down expressionless by Meiria's side as she was raging and used {Cure}.

"Since it couldn't be helped I used {Cure Serious} on Haruku-san, Meiria-san, Misu-san please endure with just {Cure}."

It was just then. The three suckers arrived.

"Oh!? What in the world is this!"

"Did anyone die!?"

"We finished up things on our end, Greed-kun."

"Rokko, Kevin, Jeru! You're all safe right!? Any injuries?"

After checking Haruku's condition Kamu looked up and raised her voice half in surprise and half in joy.

"It's only obvious we're safe. Something like an ogre if you just remain calm while you're doing it we already knew things would be fine."

"That's right~ I finished it off with my axe!"

"Kevin didn't you only end up hitting just that last time. I attacked it way more times with my spear."

Behind them Gwine and Angela followed along. Since they were a bit of distance away they were difficult to notice but they have good timing. I used Identify and their MP was full. I meet glances with them and say.

"Gwine, I'm relying on you for healing! There's five injured people!"

"Eh? But.."

Gwine might have just come along to check on things. Right now, since I'm a member of {Sun.Ray}, she might be thinking about healing the injured {Slaughterers}.

"I'm begging you! There's even someone who's life depends on it!"

Angela whispered something to Gwine in a small voice. I'm sure she's just saying something like listen to what I say.

"I understand."

After saying that Gwine trotted over and first spent the expected

10 seconds or so to sue {Cure} on Haruku, then additionally Kimu, Meiria, Koritto, and Misu. During that time I asked Angela to once go and check on the {Slaughterers} and if everyone can move to bring them here or if not then bring back contact from them.

"I think that using {Cure} once more is probably my limit."

With slightly frightened eyes she asked me who to use it on one more time.

"On me."

"On me."

"Use it on her."

I ignore Meiria and Koritto while pointing at Kimu.

"Greed-kun, I don't really want to have to say things like this but listen to what the leader says."

Koritto said that warning me but I've never heard from anyone in {Sun.Ray} that you're the official leader. Though judging from the atmosphere when they first came to negotiate with me and how they're always giving out orders inside of the dungeon, it's easy to guess that the couple is the leader. I wouldn't put it into words because it's way too difficult as an excuse though.

"Right now we're not in the middle of combat and we just finished defeating the monsters of this room just a moment ago. I think this is a situation we can relax for the time being. First off, I thought it was only obvious to start off healing those who were seriously injured."

I said as if I was a bit surprised.

"Don't say such selfish things!..Ouch! It's troubling if you don't follow our orders."

"That's right! In the first place whether or not it's a serious injury is something I the leader decide."

"In the first place, what did you just say to that Dog-people just now? If the {Slaughterers} can move then bring them, what are you selfishly deciding all on your own!!"

"Yeah, I agree completely. I'm grateful that you got her to heal us but would you please stop with the selfish behavior?"

I shrug my shoulders hearing that and reply.

"That is..I'm very sorry. I'll drive the {Slaughterers} away if they come. Since there's other people who can use healing spells, I just thought they might be useful but.."

"Say that first!"

"In that case it's a different matter! Hurry and go call them! It's not like you're of any use remaining here either way so go and lower your head to the {Slaughterers} if you have to!"

Oh~ that's convenient for me. The two of them are agitated and completely losing themselves after suffering somewhat serious injuries. I think the only reason they can shout that loud is because Gwine and I healed them but I'm sure they've already forgotten that.

"I understand."

I said that and turned around leaving Gwine as I ran towards the {Slaughterers}. Along the way I encountered Angela who was on her way back and brought her with me back to the {Slaughterers} as well. It seems that Miduchi's consciousness isn't returning. Well, if I go then it should be fine.

.....

This is something I heard from Gwine afterwards but it seems the situation had turned into this during the time I left, got the {Slaughterers} and came back.

"Hey now, what is it, what in the world happened?"

That sort of question came from the three suckers. Hearing that Kamu explained the circumstances the main group of {Sun.Ray} fell into.

It seems that after we left the main group of {Sun.Ray} departed a bit early. It seems the reason they left early was in order to approach carefully they decided to take their time remaining vigilant. However, it seems they couldn't seem to approach the ogres. This is probably because the room boss ogres started to approach our direction. After a short while when they noticed the combat had started from my spell Koritto gave out the order to advance in a hurry.

It was inside of a deep forest but as expected the light from {Flame Arbalest} stood out. After they advanced Koritto started with firing off an attack spell. Following that it seems that Misu and Kamu used magic and bow to attack as well but they supposedly all missed other than Misu's attack spells.

Even though they were supposed to match up the timing, since Koritto missed with his first attack it seems Meiria made some complaints. But, soon after that my warning reached them. Since only four ogres were heading towards the main group, {Sun.Ray} thought it would be easy for them so they put Meiria and Haruku as the front line, Kimu and Koritto would back them up with spears, and Kamu and Misu would provide support with bows, if possible then Misu would also use magic to back them up, they decided to attack with the formation we originally planned on.

That was good during the time hostilities opened up. Meiria and Haruku confidently met the enemies and Kimu still had composure as well. The reason being because only three of them came to the main group and one was just shouting gya~ in the back not approaching. However, the individuals they were against were all unexpectedly fast and things quickly changed over to a hard fight. But, they assumed that just the same as up until now they would start to get weaker right away so Meiria and Koritto called out while calmly dealing with them.

But, that quickly ended up meaningless. Haruku was defeated by one of the ogres. As expected it was difficult for Meiria alone to take on three ogres. Koritto gave out the order to retreat but it was when Kamu claimed they should save Haruku, since Meiria ended up paying attention to Kamu, she ended up taking a hit from an attack spell from the ogre that was in the back they had forgotten about up until then.

In order to not let anymore victims than that appear {Sun.Ray} decided to stand their ground and fight desperately. It seems they were also hoping for me come running and rescue them as well. Shortly after I appeared and defeated the ogre that uses attack spells, then soon after arrived at the main group. However, it was then that Misu ended up falling over after being hit by a club that was thrown, Koritto ended up grappling with an ogre as well, and Kimu ended up having to take on two ogres alone.

It was obvious that if I hadn't quite literally came flying to make it in time then Kimu would have died. I finished off the two ogres that Kimu was taking on and it was then that the ogre who was focused on Koritto ended up taking an attack to the head from the woman from the {Slaughterers} and died instantly, all of the ogres that the main group was against were wiped out.

Hearing that the three suckers said that they took on one of them and in the end were able to defeat it without reinforcements from the {Slaughterers}, also, it seems they even started bragging about how they circled around and even rescued the {Slaughterers} who were in the middle of combat as well. Obviously, Meiria criticized those three.

It seems she even said that they didn't just ignore the {Slaughterers} and come to rescue them right away was betrayal of {Sun.Ray}. However, if you think about the timing of the series of events it's certainly true that the {Slaughterers} were in combat before {Sun.Ray} ambushed the ogres and even if they were to have ignored them the {Slaughterers} could have won without a problem but in the worst case if the ogres defeated the {Slaughterers} the ones who would be pincer-ed would be {Sun.Ray}.

Furthermore, I supposedly noticed that one step ahead and immediately ran to rescue the {Slaughterers}. During that occasion I even told them to return and group up with everyone. The three suckers didn't know that it was the {Slaughterers} in combat at that point and since they thought it might possibly be a dispute between ogres they followed after me. Of course, it's also because they were ordered to escort me.

They couldn't catch up to me at all as I took off running at a tremendous speed and when they finally arrived on the spot the combat had almost completely finished. Leaving just one person to look after the injured {Slaughterers} I forcefully added the ones who could move to our forces and immediately headed to the South (6 o'clock) where the room boss was. Just as reported there were 11 ogres there. It seems the ogres were moving to the North(the direction of 1 or 12 o'clock where the {Slaughterers} were fighting) from the center of the room.

Just as planned I finished off two with magic then cut another one down in no time at all, and after finishing off the one that was even further in I headed towards the main group. How would it have even been possible to go and rescue them any faster than that, the three suckers went on talking like that. However, even then Meiria tried to insist that it's only obvious for them to put priority on rescuing the leader of the party who is the brains and gives out the orders, but it was then that they pointed out the magic only came flying after the the decoys had already started close combat even though it was originally planned to attack them at the same time.

There Koritto noticed the disadvantage in their claim so he started saying that if something unexpected happens you should return and report it first. I can't say anything to that either. However, even if the three suckers would have returned there the {Slaughterers} had already entered combat and they said they couldn't even tell if that combat had developed in a way that was an advantage or was an unfavorable situation. In the first place, they had no confidence on whether or not it was even the {Slaughterers} in combat. Even if the {Slaughterers} were carrying out combat in their favor, they might have ended up starting combat with the room boss first and it was possible our prey could be stolen. Even if it was unfavorable while the winning ogres might not have grouped up with the room boss it would have still ended up a situation where ogres were alive and right nearby and in that case it's possible they might have intruded during combat with the room boss. It's the same even if it wasn't the {Slaughterers} who were in combat and just a dispute between ogres or ogres and goblins. Even if they were to return they insisted that they should have at least confirmed that far.

On top of that, it may have been thanks to my intrusion that the {Slaughterers} won, then not only did I forcefully push the role of decoy on them, I even deprived them of their right to the magic stones of the ogres in the room, so they claimed I ended up creating a development that was favorable for {Sun.Ray}. We ended up with more forces than originally planned and furthermore there was no need to pay any compensation to those increased forces. There's rarely anything as convenient as that. In the first place, we accomplished our roles as decoys plenty, is what they said.

When we returned it was just as the conversation reached that point.

.....

Thanks to Bel's treatment Miduchi regained consciousness and opened her eyes as well. Bel ended up healing Zulu's injuries as well and for the time being it seemed like there would be no problem even if left alone. Miduchi still had over 100 MP remaining.

"Basutorial, Angela, keep a close lookout to make sure no one comes, one minute is fine."

After I said that I used {Cure All} on Zulu consecutively and completely healed him. Just in case I used an extra {Cure All} on Zenom and Toris and their injuries were completely healed.

Miduchi's injuries I had already completely healed so now that her consciousness has returned, there's no problem. Ah, it seems there's still some dull pain but that should disappear pretty soon as well. However, I need them to be able to use magic. I guess I'll use {Cure All} a couple more times.

"Toris, Bel, I'm sure you already understand but the plan is already suspended. I'll save the details for later. Right now it's necessary to recover as much as possible. I'm sure Bel doesn't have much mana remaining but look after Zenom and the others. Toris and Ralpa you come along with Miduchi and I. Other than the situation that you were saved by me when you were ambushed don't say anything unnecessary. Toris you alone think carefully about the things you need to say. Since you're the leader. After that Miduchi you don't need to use healing magic until I say. Ah, after that, make sure that you all spend plenty of time casting it. There's no time. Everyone else gather the magic stones from all of the ogres and bring them along. Then, let's go."

Accompanied by the three of them I returned to where {Sun.Ray} was.

.....

"You're slow!..Ouch!"

Meiria raised a shrilling voice while criticizing me.

"I'm very sorry. Toris, Ralpa, please heal her."

"Eh? Weren't you defeated?"

"You were defeated as well right?"

"You can already use magic?"

The three suckers each said.

"The remaining magician used healing magic on us. Since she has an extremely high amount of mana. It's already fine. We can even use magic."

Toris replied as if it was nothing at all. Toris and Ralpa obeyed my words without showing any dissatisfaction in their expressions, after crouching on Meiria's side Toris used {Cure Serious} and Ralpa used {Cure Light} to heal her. The pain should have softened quite a bit. Following that just as he requested they used healing magic on Koritto as well.

After that, I told Toris to use {Cure} on the other injured people.

As expected with that they should have gotten quite a bit better.

"Haruku-san, if he has that many healing spells used on him then he should already be fine right?"

"How about Misu?"

"Kimu, is there still quite a bit of pain?"

"I'm already fine, let's go to the temple when we return."

The three suckers and Kamu were calling out to each of the injured.

"That's right! We have the charms! Didn't we hand out charms to everyone! It's fine even if you put off healing for later."

"Yeah, particularly Haruku he should have two of them. It's not like he'll die right away, it's only obvious that you start healing from the leader."

While the Rindobel couple was each saying that Kamu let out a sigh and said.

"The charms are certainly something wonderful but they can't be used unless we go to the temple. If we don't make it in time aren't they completely meaningless..In actual fact last even Yuriel had a charm on her."

Everyone focused their attention on Kamu. Since it's not urgent situation like just before and there's no particularly pressing matter now, there's no problem with disputing that itself. However, while it could be explained away in the continuing disorder right after combat finished but right now it's completely taken on the shape of conflicting opinions.

"..Ffu...It still hurts quite a bit...Let me say it as well."

Haruku started talking.

"Koritto-san, Meiria-san. You two, were those sorts of people I see..Honestly speaking if Greed-kun hadn't use healing magic on me there then I might have died. Though I left them in the room on the 6th floor but it's certainly true that I have two charms. Since I luckily have never even needed to use them once until now.."

He had Rokko hold his upper body up and when Haruku somehow managed to speak that far he started coughing. But, he quickly continued his words.

"Thanks to the {Slaughterers} just now I was somehow able to recover to the point where there's no need to worry. As expected I still haven't completely recovered but..even then I was able to escape the dilemma. I heard all of the conversation from just now. In the first place, if you two can yell that loud then there's already no need to worry right.."

He started coughing again for a bit. I secretly exchanged glances with Miduchi.

"I still have plenty of mana remaining. I'll use a healing spell.

Please relax and lay back."

Miduchi advanced forward and crouched by Haruku's side while saying.

"Ye..Yeah, sorry about that. I'm saved.....oo!! This is amazing."

After Miduchi used {Cure All} on Haruku she immediately went to Meiria's side and used {Cure All} on her as well.

".....Eh....Ah.."

On Koritto beside her as well.

".....O...Mu.."

On Misu as well.

".....No way....It's unbelievable.."

On Kimu as well.

".....Aaah!!....This is the same as with the charm?"

"As expected I'm about at my limit. But, with this I think you should already be close to completely healed. In a short while almost all of the pain should disappear as well."

After she said that she lined up besides Toris and Ralph with an expression as though she was exhausted from concentrating. Well, she won't come over to my side.

"This, is it {Cure All}?"

Misu asked Miduchi. Miduchi silently nodded. Seeing that Kamu and the three suckers were completely surprised.

"Huh?"

"What was that?"

"You're lying right.."

"Thanks, that is, you used quite a bit of mana right?"

"If it's like this then something like the charm is unnecessary.."

"So..So the {Slaughterers} had this sort of amazing~ sorcerer."

"Hey~ Kalstalan-san. Let me join the {Slaughterers}."

"Wha..Me..Me too!"

"Oooh, me too!"

"Just before I finished off that ogre! I'm more useful!"

Now then, from here on a bit of acting is necessary. Make sure you do it well. Thinking that it was just when I was about to exchange glances with Toris.

"You're loud! Shut up. First off just like with Kamu you should start by thanking them. You..Kalstalan-san was it? I'm sorry about that. I was really saved. Thanks."

When Haruku thanked the four {Slaughterers} starting with Miduchi then Misu and Kimu each started thanking them as well.

"It's fine. And then, in the first place if you hadn't saved us when we fell into a dilemma then we might have died as well after all.."

Toris looked at me while saying that. After that he continued lowering his head to me.

"Al-san. I was mistaken. You're a person that we need. The reason the harmony in the party was disturbed was originally because of these two fighting. Due to the events this time these two have greatly reflected and I'm sure that jsut the same as me they realized that we need you. This time, the only reason we {Slaughterers} are still alive was because Al-san came along and took command."

Eh~~ are you seriously saying that here? I guess it's fine though.

If you're going to do it then I wish you would have at least saved it for a slightly more dramatic scene...

"We need you. Last month, please forgive us for abusing Al-san's kindness and looking down on you. Please return to us. Look!"

Toris put his hand on the back of Ralpha and Miduchi's heads while forcing them to lower their heads to me. Gwine is lowering her head as well. Don't do that here..Do it on the surface. This is troubling...

"I don't want to hear that sort of talk right now. Save it for later."

I coldly declare and then look at the Rindobel couple, Koritto and Meiria. They're the only ones who haven't thanked the {Slaughterers}. Toris is making an expression like he failed. Well, that expression isn't all that unnatural right now.

"Wha?"

"What is it? That look?"

The two of them looked at me with looks of discontent.

I immediately returned my glance to Haruku and started talking to him.

"Haruku-san, there's something that I thought was a bit strange."

"What is it?"

"This winter, when I was still acting as the leader why you come and ask to join the {Slaughterers}?"

I said while looking at Haruku quietly. He made an expression that could be taken as self-derision. At the same time a change appeared in the expressions of the Rindobel couple.

"Haruku!"

Koritto raised his voice.

"Let's stop already. We've been together for five years but now that a person who can use the real {Cure All} has appeared it's already impossible right. Raizakku, Kemi, Misa, Rinkosu, Maraiyu, Fedo, Jakki, Dagurun..everyone was used conveniently by you two and died. How much did you suck out of them...Greed-kun, the matter this winter was.."

"What do you intend to say!?"

"Shut your mouth!"

The Rindobel couple suddenly stood up and tried to charge at Haruku.

Chapter 199: Shield

Year 7445, Month 7, Day 25

"Gwine! Ralpa!"

Toris immediately commanded. Almost as if pulled along the two charged at the Rindobel couple. Gwine is holding down Meiria and Ralpa is holding down Koritto. Both of the couple has plenty of strength but even if they're Laios, we just finished healing their serious injuries now. They were easily able to hold them down it seems. If you were to ask what I was doing, then I was reflexively observing Meiria's state. Her face was twisted unattractively with regret.

"We only just used healing spells on you. Though it wasn't anything life threatening, it doesn't change the fact that it was a serious injury. Please rest for a bit."

Miduchi said with an indifferent tone of voice while looking down at the Rindobel couple as they were held to the ground.

"I'm very sorry for causing an uproar while you were in the middle of talking. I won't let anyone interfere with Al-san's conversation."

Toris apologized to Haruku and I.

"Let go!"

"Let go of me!!"

The Rindobel couple is struggling under Gwine and Ralpa. Kamu who was dumbfounded seeing this development on one side of Haruku walked forward and crouched down near the Rindobel couple.

"Koritto-san, Meiria-san. I'm interested in what Haruku-san was going to say as well. Please be quiet for a short while."

"Kamu! What are you saying!"

"That's right, don't be fooled! Hey, Rokko, Kevin, Jeru! Get these two off of us!"

As expected they excluded Misu and Kimu who still needed rest(?).

"Eh? Ah?"

"What's going on?"

"D..Don't ask me."

The three suckers can't keep up with the sudden developments.

"Rokko, Kevin, Jeru. Switch places with them and hold the Rinbodel-sans down. Make properly sure they can't move."

Misu looked up at the three suckers and said while still sitting down.

"Yeah, we're depending on you three since you're still unharmed. My arm is still..I think I can manage it in a bit longer though."

Kimu said with her back to a tree while rubbing her right arm.

"O..Oh~ Leave it to me!"

"Now, let's change places."

"Sorry about that. Leave the rest to us."

Since for the time being instructions came to the three suckers on what they need to do they happily took over the role of holding down the couple from Gwine and Ralpha.

"Hmph..Additionally put a gag or something on them while you're at it..And, sorry about that...First off, Greed-kun I'll reply to your question. After that I want you to listen to my story for a bit.

Everyone else, that's fine right? Listen well.."

When Haruku said that the Rinobel couple started making a disturbance again. Seeing Kevin and Jeru holding them down, Rokko took a hand towel from his and Kevin's waist and sealed their mouths with it. That sure is filthy~

"In regards to me trying to join the {Slaughterers}, that was one of the plans that the four of us, Koritto, Meiria, Bin, and I drafted. Putting it simply we were testing the {Slaughterers}. Just now, Rokko and the others said they wanted to join the {Slaughterers} as well but every time the topic of the {Slaughterers} came up we couldn't stand it..Though to be more accurate the ones who couldn't stand it were those two and Bin...Last year, the first time Bin acted as a leader and we challenged the 6th floor, I'm sure many of you can remember it right?"

The members of {Sun.Ray} exchanged glances while nodding. Though everyone..was making uneasy faces.

"Last summer, I think there's a lot of members who remember the uproar when we ended up finding a route to make it to the teleport room on the 5th floor that only goes by three monster rooms...Ah, it will be a slightly long story. Greed-kun, and also the members of the {Slaughterers} I'd like for you to be patient and listen for a short while. And then, as a result of investigating that route, we confirmed three teleport destinations that can reach it. In other words, if you put some work into teleporting from the 4th floor to the 5th floor then it's not like you can't make it there. Do you remember the night we finally made the decision to go to the 6th floor?"

The members of {Sun.Ray} all nod in unison.

"There's no way I could forget. There was an uproar that we would finally overtake {Verdure.Brotherhood} and line up shoulders with the {Slaughterers}, we could become the number one in Baldukk."

Jeru muttered.

"Yeah, that's right. Additionally, remember back to the people who were selected at that time. It's fine that Bin was the leader. He and I would often switch out after all. Well, with Bin as leader and I as the sub. It was Bogusu, Ginger, Binsu, Yuriel, Jeru, and Hisu those eight. I'll talk about why those members were selected after."

The three suckers started listening with serious expressions. Misu, Kimu, and Kamu were making shocked expressions.

"That time, when we ended up getting caught in the teleport trap, we got separated from Bogusu, Ginger, Binsu, and Yuriel. Jeru, you were there too. You remember right?"

"Yeah, like I could forget.."

Jeru bit into his lip while making a mortified expression as he held Koritto down.

"The {Slaughterers} saved Ginger and Binsu. At the extraordinary price of 500,000 per person. Additionally you even went to the trouble of carrying Yuriel's corpse. I was happy at that time, Greed-kun."

"No.."

It's nothing much. No, it's nothing too special. Though it's fine if you say even more.

"There was nothing we could do about just Bogusu but when we returned to the surface there was no other choice than to tell Rindoel-san and the others just as it happened. Bogusu and Yuriel.

Since we lost the two magic users, and our numbers were reduced, for a short while after that we had no choice other than to enter the dungeon with a full party of members. Though this was just returning to originally so it's not really related..Ah, sorry about that."

Seeing Haruku cough here and there Toris took out his flask and handed it to him.

"I, thought about it. We're no rival for the {Slaughterers}. You carelessly saved the members of a different party on the dangerous 6th floor and it's not like you pushed that favor on us either. Even though it was a cheap sign of gratitude that didn't match up to the danger you went through you smiled and accepted it without a single complaint. Even though you should have gone through a reasonable amount of trouble to carry the materials in you let us use the shower at no cost. Regardless of the fact that most of your members are still at ages close to children, your abilities are extremely high. Though it's also because a number of them can use magic but you're earning the most in Baldukk and stepping food on the most dangerous floors. If you really wanted to I thought something at our level you could have easily make light of us without even trying."

He~? That's quite the high assessment.

"But, Koritto-san and Meiria-san, and also Bin were different. Most likely, I think that everyone was the same. Several years ago, Meiria-san said it right? Aren't you mortified that a group where 1/3rd of the members are still brats is earning more than {Sun.Ray}? like that. Even though it was only obvious that Koritto-san was mortified as well...Well it wasn't just limited to Koritto-san, I'm sure anyone would be mortified. Even I was. However, I realized it at that time. The {Slaughterers} are somehow different from normal adventurers..Then there's the matter this time. The Rindobel-sans easily tried to abandon me."

..Fumu.

"It could be that there was others who knew the same as me but you didn't want to accept it right? Everyone was saying it normally right...Well it's fine. In any case since our combat forces decreased it had already become difficult to enter the dungeon with multiple parties. We wanted to replenish our forces from somewhere but there's no way taking in the riffraff around there would be much of combat potential. If they don't have at least the abilities of a top team then they might end up slowing us down after all.."

"Well, I guess so."

"I know."

Someone muttered.

"In any case we somehow wanted to replenish our forces. There what we set our sights on was the {Slaughterers}. Was it near the end of the last year? Around the end of summer the dark elf sis joined you followed by another young fellow right? The young Cat-people guy. Up until then we heard rumors that the {Slaughterers} might split their party into two as well but since there were 10 people, we couldn't be sure of it. However, after seeing you enter the dungeon with 11 people we were convinced of it. If it's this then if things go well we might be able to pull out one or two members."

The Rindobel couple started struggling again but they're still being properly held down.

"The Rindobel-sans, Bin, and I discussed it a number of times. In any case there was no starting it unless we investigated things. While were investigating things we found out that you were reasonably familiar with those knights who came along. You often ate meals together with them right? That's why first we decided to get close to them. Since it was certain they were true knights after all, they should have a reasonable level of abilities as well. We even thought that depending on the case it might be good add them to put our forces back into order."

Haruku took the rubber cork off of Toris's flask and drank a couple of sips.

"..Fu..Even though Rodrick and Fio were true knights, since they were newcomers as adventurers the Rindobel-san's were easily able to approach them. However, it seemed like they didn't really understand how strong the {Slaughterers} were either. There we decided to try testing things out. We thought of sending someone in and then trying to invite them from inside. You can already guess the method to invite members right? It's the charms. The fact that I had real charms was one of the deciding factors. After that, we got the information that you were looking for a combat slave who can already use the shield skillfully. Conveniently I had a bit of confidence in my ability to use the shield. It's something that's often said in the rumors right, something like a group of softhearted, brainless brats would easily accept it was it right?

Koritto-san."

Koritto is silent, he's not replying at all.

"I thought it was impossible. I could feel it when I talked to Greed-kun previously. There's no way you would make someone like me into a companion, even more so I thought you were such a fool that you would get caught in this sort of trap. Of course I said that.

But, since Bin said that if it succeeds we profit and even if it fails we might be able to shake you up so I had no choice but to do it. However, the {Slaughterers}..saved Binsu and Ginger. You saved them for an amount of money that was almost free. You even let us use the shower on the 5th floor. In the worst case if you chose to accept me I intended to say something about it. That's why I was even relieved you turned me down. After that even when I was told to go again I just pretended to do it."

Honestly speaking, I did find it strange he backed off awfully easily and didn't come again after that though...Since going off the timing Faruergaz and the others joined {Sun.Ray} several months after that I didn't think too deeply about it. So it was that sort of thing huh?

"It dragged out a bit long but just now was my reply to Greed-kun.

Next is..in regards to the members selected for going to the 6th floor the first time...Hey, Rokko, tie up those two with some random vines."

It was just then, Zenom and the remaining members of the {Slaughterers} started to arrive as well. Zulu came over to my side and knelt before handing up the magic stones.

"We appreciate the rescue. Greed-sama. In regards to saving us, I bow before you offer my gratitude. These are the magic stones of the ogres we were up against. Though it's something meager, please accept them."

When Zulu said that, Zenom, Bel, Basutorial, and Angela who came along as well lowered their heads. Angela and Basutorial are kneeling. Matching with that Toris, Ralpha, Miduchi, and Gwine also lowered their heads to me again.

I received the five magic stones from Zulu and just like that place them in front of Koritto and Meiria.

Rokko was using his knife to cut off some vines from a nearby tree and using that to tie up the Rindobel couples legs and arms. Of course, he was borrowing the help of Kevin and Jeru as he did it.

Haruku looked at their state with a slightly sad face before starting to talk again.

Is it about time?

"Starting from here is a story that is unrelated to everyone in the {Slaughterers}. However, I don't think you'll lose out listening to it. Just as everyone knows, I joined {Sun.Ray} a bit over five years ago. Before I entered {Sun.Ray}..when I was even younger I had my own party. We didn't have a second name, we were just a normal six member party. There we ended up screwing up and I lost my five members. There was an idiot who fell in a pitfall on the 3rd floor, while we were trying to save him we were ambushed by monsters. We fought desperately but in that combat four people died. The one survivor and I escaped the dungeon as our lives depended on it. However, we didn't have any money. I ran into the healer but they would only use healing spells four times. That fellow had taken spears all over his body and needed even more healing.."

Someone gulped.

"..Since it couldn't be helped I decided to sell myself as a combat slave. The ones who bought me were a party that was earning a decent amount at the time called {Twin Gold}. The person who was the leader there bought me. I was 10 gold coins. It's a good price right? Eh? Why did I go that far? Ah, the one who was injured was my little brother. In any case, thanks to that my little brother was saved. I brushed my chest in relief that time. But, with me the {Twin Gold}s had just 10 members. There was no room for my little brother to enter."

Haruku drank some water.

"..Feeling apologetic towards me my little brother tried frantically to enter the dungeon and earn money to buy me back. But, as expected alone..Since it couldn't be helped he gave up on the dungeon and started being a normal adventurer. Ah, he's still alive. The one who bought me was Koritto-san. He bought me and released me right away. It was just by chance but the {Sun.Ray} at the time caught a glimpse of {Twin Gold}s combat in the dungeon. It's strange saying it myself but during that time my combat abilities were quite something. Koritto-san probably wanted my power and had expectations there. I was grateful. I thought I wanted to be useful to these people. I thought I would even do whatever they asked. I was only thinking about doing whatever I could to be useful to them and pay back my debt as soon as possible."

..My throat has started to get dry as well. I'll drink some water.

I took out my emergency use bag and drank some water from a flask that resembles Toris. It's bad. I filled it with water from the well before I entered the dungeon but that was already three days, no, I guess four days ago. I guess it's still better it's not rotting.

"This is where the charms everyone knows about becomes related. The time when I found out about the charms, I thought that if I just had this at that time I wouldn't have had to become a slave. At the same time I didn't think that the Rindobel-sans were making spending money with it at all. It takes time but if you can get your hands on the real then then they'll use an amazing healing spell on you. It's something that normally you can only get after visiting the temple for 10 or 20 years. Though that takes a bit of time, you can get your hands on it this fast. Even if it's expensive, I thought it was only obvious if they earn a bit of profit from it. Everyone else thinks so too right?"

All of the members from {Sun.Ray} are nodding. Is it still not yet?

"That's why I didn't just pretend not see it, I even cooperated. At first, I just thought that those who wanted the notes but ended up suffering serious injuries before they recieved them were just useless as members. We even sucked all we could get out of them before attacking them from behind in the dungeon and finishing them off. Eventually, I finished paying off my debt and my body returned back to normal but even then my gratitude to the Rindobel-sans didn't fade. Since {Sun.Ray} had already become a corner of one of the top teams and we were earning quite a bit as well, I continued to think that if the Rindobel-sans took a bit of a large share from that it was only obvious. But, the price of the reward just kept escalating. Since I luckily never suffered any serious injuries up until here I got off with just two of them but..Jeru, you, how much did you pay in reward for the charm you've asked for right now?"

"If I remember correctly it was 4,000,000 around last May, 500,000 in the summer, after that was..Another 50 and then 30 in the spring for a total of 5,500,000."

Jeru counted on his fingers. The answer was incorrect but as expected I guess he can do addition.

"At first it was just 2,500,000. Now they start off taking 4,000,000, and then it costs even more additional money. It's a good business but if there's a person in Baldukk who can use the real {Cure All} then it would bankrupt. It's already impossible Rindobel-san."

Haruku said while looking at the Rindobel couple and soon returned his glance to everyone else before continuing.

"You get it right? Everyone is suckers. Of course, if you can properly be recognized by the Rindobel-sans for your combat abilities then you can escape being a sucker. It was the same for me and Bin, and after that Misu and Kamu as well. And, if you gain even more of their trust then you can become a leader like Bin and I. In the past, there was also Maraiyu and Misa. Both of them unfortunately were killed when we ran into the ice monster on the 5th floor. Bin and I were their successors."

I took another sip of water. Since it's after doing some physical activity your throat dries quite a bit.

"Try to remember back on it. Bin and I were often saying to pay money for the sake of the charms right? We suggested that it was reassuring just holding on to them right? It's not particularly like we deceived you. It takes time and money but it's certain that eventually a proper charm will come back. However, it's only for the people who can manage to stay alive with their own abilities for a year or two after they join."

Things get noisy. Koritto and Meiria are still caterpillars.

Huh?

"For the time being we were still one of the top teams. Since just like this we've come to the 5th floor, and now it's the 6th and 7th floor but we required people with over a fixed level of abilities to enter our party. However, it was just that. If we were to use some extreme logic then they're fine as long as we can use them as shields when we're on the deeper floors. Of course if they're a sturdy shield then it's greatly welcome. Here remember back to the members that went to the 6th floor last summer. Since that was the first time. Putting it frankly, investigating the 6th floor was the primary objective. How many monsters are in what places? What kinds of traps and how dangerous they, that was the primary objective of the investigation. Of course even if we say it's dangerous it would all be pointless if we end up completely wiping out. A reasonable combat formation was necessary."

However, this Haruku, he really just keeps going on and on talking.

Is it a grudge for almost being abandoned? If they had really retreated right away at that time then it's certainly true he almost definitely would have died after all.

"However, including the ones that died, our members at that time.

Remember back. It's a floor we were stepping foot on for the first time. Don't you think it's only obvious to go with your best members and furthermore a full party of 10? It would have been only obvious to go with Koritto-san, Meiria-san, me, Bin, Misu, Bogusu, Kamu, Binsu, Kimu, and Rokko. It would have been best to have as many magic users as possible but as expected Yuriel and Santos weren't quite there yet...Among those less than half of that only four people actually went to the 6th floor. That time, wasn't it because Jeru and Hisu said they wanted to go. Yuriel was because as expected there weren't enough magic users, Ginger is..That is..I think that Greed-kun already knows but she's my woman after all."

Jeru froze up with his eyes wide open. Rather~ I didn't know that.

It's good I didn't demand her body...Though I didn't have any intention of it. Though because of Ralpha I ended up having say a stupid joke. Ah, I guess he also felt indebted to the {Slaughterers} because we saved his woman as well. Though it already doesn't matter at all.

"That was shortly after Jeru paid 4,500,000 Z. Hisu had paid over 4,000,000 as well. Incidentally, Rokko had been saying he'd pay, he'd pay but he still hadn't paid yet and Kimu had only just received her charm...Do you get what I'm trying to say? Originally, you all were sacrifices for when an absurdly strong monster appears in the boss room. Ah, of course it's still true if you were to return safely then that's all the better though."

Ah, I might have started to feel like going to take a piss...

"But already, everything doesn't matter anymore. Even though I worked so hard for them that easily, they abandoned me like useless trash, and just like this we even found out there's a person who can use {Cure All}. It's already over for {Sun.Ray}..I'll confess everything when we return!"

It was then that Meiria started furiously writhing around and simultaneously she tore through the vines tying her up with sheer power and took the hand towel stuck in her mouth out. Instantaneous huh...

Since her actions were far too sudden when everyone was shocked and couldn't move, I was the only who noticed Meiria hadn't used her racial special skill yet and was being cautious of it. Meiria was probably being patient until the pain disappeared.

I gave her a round kick to the face and when she fell down I sent a kick flying with my ebonite tipped boots towards her mouth. Then I stuck my long sword in front of her eyes.

"Keinesutan-san, I'm sorry for the trouble but could you please tie her up again?"

I smiled and said to Rokko. After all this guy is the one who got the vines and tied her up.

We waited until Rokko finished tying her up again.

"Now then, it seems like the story is already over, how is everyone's injuries? Since Meiria-san was able to move, I think that quite a bit of the pain should have disappeared but.."

After all it seems they've recovered quite a bit.

"Since it's a waste let's gather the magic stones from the ogres.

Since the five over there belong to {Sun.Ray}, our earnings for today are 26 of them. They're worth quite a bit, these things."

After I said that I took the initiative to go around gathering the magic stones. Since we split up while doing it we finished gathering them all in a bit over 10 minutes. The {Slaughterers} seemed out of place but it was necessary to keep lookouts for Koritto and Meiria, and if it's them there's no chance of them breaking through so I left them to keep watch.

"Then, shall we return? Ah, everyone from the {Slaughterers}, thank you for your help. I would like to continue with a friendly relationship from here on out as well."

""Al-san..""

Toris and Bel were making faces like they were about to cry. What are you remaining quiet, there's something for you to say right.

"Please come back."

Miduchi advanced forward and said. I already heard that. In reality you're the one who should be saying it first right.

With a severe expression I just stared at everyone in the {Slaughterers}. The members of {Sun.Ray} are just silently watching over.

There's no helping it just having a staring contest.

I let out a single sigh and opened my mouth.

"I said to leave that discussion for later.."

I said that while positioning it so the {Sun.Ray} is behind me and can't see while winking repeatedly.

It seems Miduchi realized it.

"I understand, we'll slowly talk over that matter when we return to the surface...Also separate from that, everyone from {Sun.Ray}, I can certainly use {Cure All} but I'd like to avoid unnecessary chaos. Would you please remain quiet about the {Cure All} from today? If anyone were to come asking me to use {Cure All} on them that would mean one of you ended up exposing it and from that point on {Sun.Ray} would become our enemies. Of course, we wouldn't do something like attacking you but you should take care of your good health and remain careful when walking alone inside of the dungeon."

That's right. Even in the first plan that was something Toris or Bel were supposed to say. You too as well stop making faces like you've suddenly remembered it.

"..That's certainly true. Got it. I promise not to say anything. We have one request to make as well."

Karuku replied. Now that the Rindobel couple is restrained he's naturally acting as the leader.

Though it's certainly true there's no one else suitable for it.

"We intend to hand these two over to the knight group when we return to the surface. Of course, we have other members as well so we'll decide on that after discussing it with them though. In the first place since we don't even know what kind of crime they could be accused of so we might end up lynching and killing them. Though that's the same for Bin and I as well. If we luckily don't end up being killed I'd like you to act as witnesses for my testimony.

Right now other than Greed-kun, there's no other nobles here."

"In regards to that we'll promise as well."

Toris replied.

"Also, in regards to our leader but you'll return him when we return to the surface right?"

Bel said with a tearful voice. Hey now, are you an idiot? Exactly how shocked are you.

"The one to decide that isn't us. Ask the person himself. Right now, {Sun.Ray} has in essence lost it's leader so no one would blame him for leaving. And also, at the very least until we return to the surface it seems he intends to act together with us after all. I'd like him to act as testimony from a noble that was a member of {Sun.Ray} during the day of judgement as well. Additionally, in order for us to make it back to the teleport crystal to return on the 7th floor we need him as an escort. Since it's certain that these two have already recovered from their wounds, we never know when the husband might try to use magic. We'll need his help at that time as well."

After we split ways with the {Slaughterers} we returned the path we originally came from. Of course, we took the map from the Rindobel couple so there's no getting lost I'm sure. There's landmarks as well.

"Ah, I'm going to take a piss really quick."

I said that and turned around to enter the bushes when Rokko grabbed my arm.

"Sorry but do it here. It would be a problem if you use magic when we're not looking as well. Misu is saying she still hasn't recovered her mana after all."

..It would have been great if I hadn't had a drink of water. As expected I wasn't forced to do it with everything seen but being at a distance where the sound can be heard is unpleasant. If it was the large one then even the smell would reach...

Chapter 200: Exposure

Year 7445, Month 7, Day 25

On our way back since we took the same path we came it was a bit easier than the way here since we didn't encounter any ogres. In regards to the Rindobel couple but putting aside the wife, the husband is a magician. On Rokko's suggestion Kevin and Jeru broke the fingers on both of his hands to make it so he can't use magic. Also, in order to prevent the two of them from exchanging looks or discussing things we properly left a distance between them as we brought them along.

During the time we were returning everyone was asking Haruku various questions. But, it's only there was some things that Haruku didn't know either. During those times they directed the questions to the Rindobel couple but neither of them would give a reply.

On the way, Kamu who wasn't remaining quiet without joining the conversation the same as me said to everyone.

"This time, by chance I wasn't injured. That's why I might not have the right to say anything. But, if we had made even a single mistake I think the chances were high I would have suffered a serious injury as well just like that. Though since Greed-kun is here I don't think I would have died...But, I can't forgive what the Rindobels did...I think I've paid 7,000,000 for two charms up until now. I used one of them but I still haven't received the other one.."

Hearing that Misu replied.

"It's unrelated whether you were injured or uninjured. In the first place didn't we already hear that this wasn't something that just started this time. On the contrary if it weren't for this time then I think we would have been preyed on forever. Right now, even this moment I feel like my insides are burning up to the point I want to hit them with a {stone Javelin}."

Rokko and the three suckers are saying, that's right, that's right, as well and pushing the Rindobel couple.

"Kevin, Jeru, stop doing such dull things. We can do that sort of stuff as much as we want later. Rather than that we need to properly remain cautious...Though I don't think they can do anything at this point. I won't recognize these two as leaders anymore. Even Bin I can't think of as an ally anymore."

Kimu said as if spitting it out. Hearing that everyone made angry faces while agreeing.

It took until evening for us to return to the place we teleported into the 7th floor.

A short while before we grabbed the crystal rod to teleport to the 6th floor Haruku said to me.

"Greed-kun. After this if you were to return to the {Slaughterers} there's no one who would blame you. No, in the first place I'm sure there's no one with the power to blame you... If possible, I'd like for you to stay in {Sun.Ray} and bring everyone together but I don't know what will happen to those two, including myself and Bin. I think the chances are even high we could be lynched and killed.

..Ginger might throw a rock at me as well...Honestly speaking, if the four of us end up leaving {Sun.Ray} our combat forces will drop to the floor so there's probably no merit to remaining. It's difficult to say anything unreasonable. Since the {Slaughterers} have already say they want you to return, I think it would be more intelligent to ignore this {Sun.Ray} and return...Since you're still young I'm sure you have your own pride but it's the best when they're still lowering their heads like that. I think it would be best to just honestly return."

It was a bit unexpected that he would say this far.

"Even if they decide to lynch you, you just intend to silently obey?"

I wonder if he obediently intends to abide by the judgement of the members?

"..As long as they properly think about the order..If everyone wishes for a lynch then I intend to silently obey. I don't know what Bin will do but he's not the type to just quietly be finished off. I'm sure he'll resist. That's why, we need to get to the point of restraining him. If I'm the last one of the four to be killed then I intend to just quietly die. Now that I've already exposed everything to the public, also, since I was the first one who confessed all of it, I'm sure that's my responsibility."

Before we noticed everyone had gathered around us and was listening in on what Haruku said. By the point we arrived here Koritto and Meiria, the Rindobel couple were tied up again by both their arms and legs. We've properly gagged them as well. Hearing they might be lynched fear appeared on their faces but no one tried telling them to relax.

"It's just right, everyone make sure you listen well. Alright, don't forgive me. Don't misunderstand. I'm not doing this because I want everyone to pity or sympathize with me, even more so it's not like I'm reflected on my actions up until now. I've just snapping at this couple on the spot for cutting me down after all these years. Everything these two two have built up, I just wanted to destroy everything. Don't forget it. I'm a man that in the past killed his own party members from behind who had done nothing wrong at all."

After saying that he took a breath and continues his words.

"..From now on everyone, for the time being look to Kamu for instruction. Rokko is older but since you're too much of an idiot, even if it's only temporary give up on leader. In terms of ability Greed-kun is fine as well but he only just entered {Sun.Ray} after all. If he blatantly tries to approach then it's possible Bin will get cautious."

He said that and grabbed the crystal rod while everyone looked daunted. Four of us including me forced the Rindobel couple to grab the crystal rod while they were struggling.

"Barruhato"

And then we teleported into the teleport room on the 6th floor.

.....

The {Slaughterers} were waiting in the room. Since there's only a distance of about an hour from that monster room to the teleport room on the 7th floor, it's only obvious they would arrive here faster than us. After the {Slaughterers} confirmed that I safely was able to return here and they said "We're going ahead" while looking at {Sun.Ray} gathering their belongings and teleported to the 5th floor. I feel like we'll end up meeting them again around the 4th floor.

"They were worried about you right."

Misu smiled at me.

I just shrugged my shoulders while gathering my bags as a reply.

"Kamu, confirm the plan."

Haruku said to Kamu. If we're unlucky then it's possible there might be other parties on the floors above this. Even the remaining three top teams, it's not as if they don't come to the teleport room on the 5th floor at all. It would be troublesome if we end up being overheard while talking after we teleport. It's best to think that this will be our last chance to discuss things without anyone else definitely overhearing us.

The discussion centers around Kamu and we went over the arrangements to restrain Zemyunel.

The time right now has just passed 6 pm.

The members of the second party of {Sun.Ray} are most likely still searching for ores on the 3rd or 4th floors while using the teleport rooms there as a base. It seems that judging from the time they'll return to the room at latest in one or two more hours.

We confirmed the procedures in both cases of whether they've already returned or haven't returned yet. Since it's the teleport crystal room you could say the salvation is that there's not much need to worry about anyone interfering. There's no way other adventurers who were already in the room would meddle after all.

In any case, we considered restraining him without giving him a chance to say anything. Centering around Kamu the ideas were gathered together. Fundamentally Misu will(it's only obvious though) act as if she doesn't know anything and freeze even just one of Zemyunel's legs in ice, with his movements largely dulled Rokko and the others will lunge at him, remove his equipment, and tie him up.

At first the role of freezing him in ice was thrown to me but if a newcomer like me were to suddenly do that, putting aside Zemyunel himself, Ginger, Binsu or the others who don't know the circumstances might react so I said that refusing it.

I had the feeling that if things came to that Hirosukol would gleefully point his sword towards me after all. If I'm careless he might end up using an attack spell. If I'm suddenly hit with an arrow type attack spell from close range even if it's me I can't evade it and if it hits the wrong place I might suffer a serious injury. Pardon me from something like that.

We broke Koritto's fingers again when they still haven't recovered causing him to pass out and chipped away at his will to resist again before we teleported consecutively into the 5th and 4th floors. Just as I guessed the {Slaughterers} were on the 4th floor but I just lightly nodded towards Toris. It seems it's fine for them as long as they can confirm I'm safe. Other than that, there was equipment in the corner of the room that probably belongs to {Gehenna.Flare}.

Kamu, Misu, Rokko, Kevin, Jand Jeru those five went ahead to teleport. In the worst case, if the second party is in the 3rd floor teleport room then they'll charge as Zemyunel first and restrain him. If we all teleport together he might see the Rindobel couple tied up and be suspicious of it after all. After waiting for about 5 minutes the remaining five of us teleported. When we teleported to the 3rd floor there was an uproar. There the five of us teleported in late. If you teleport in from a lower floor you end up being placed in random places that are open around the room. Kimu ran over to Koritto who's legs are tied up and kicked his still broken fingers that were tied behind his back. I quickly looked around the room and after discovering Meiria stuck my sword to her as well.

Zemyunel has his right leg solidified in a large block of ice like a jerry can and Rokko is on top of him punching him. Ginger and the other members of {Sun.Ray} who don't know the circumstances are trying to stop that. Misu is holding out her right hand with it stretched out to hold those second party members in check. Under Kamu's order Kevin and Jeru are knocking Zemyunel about quite a bit as well. And then there's 20-30 outsiders watching and jeering that on from a distance.

"Greed-san! What is the meaning of this!?"

Faruergaz shouted but I didn't even turn to look at him.

"Shut your mouth, brats!"

With Haruku's roar the tumult all of the members of second party of {Sun.Ray} were making stopped in an instant.

"Is it a {Coupe}? Or an hijacking? Regardless I'd like an explanation that I can agree with!"

Hirosukol said in protest but from just a single glare from Haruku he shut up.

Rokko and the others are using the rope they prepared to tie up the Rindobel couple and Zemyunel together.

"I'll explain things now so remain quiet."

Haruku said that and went to the side of Zemyunel who is gasping from beating beaten half to death by him and sat down. I guess he's saying to tie him up as well. Urged on by Kamu, Rokko and the others tied up Haruku without even making an apologetic face. I guess that's only obvious, after all I'm sure they hold a grudge.

.....

Haruku exposed everything he knew.

"This is just about all of the outline of it..Sorry about that, Ginger. I was this sort of man."

Haruku made a smile that could be taken as self-derision and turned his eyes away from Ginger.

"Everyone, you can feel free to lynch us or hand us over to the knight group, whatever you want. I won't complain even if I'm lynched and killed right here and now. It's fine if you hand us over to the knight group but I don't really get what kind of crime it would be. But, since Binsu is here after all. If you were to make an accusation I think the knight group would listen to it. I'm sure it's not like the preparations have been made for your charm yet after all."

Binsu aka Binnodo.Gekudo is the third son of a sub-Baron family.

His litte sister Yuriel aka Yoranfinu, who died last year was the second daughter was it? If I remember correctly the punishment for fraud in Marquis Webdos territory was 1 lash with the whip. Though I don't know if it's the same in the royal territory but I doubt it would be much different.

However, I don't know when it's a case where the victim is a noble.

I'm sure it'll get a bit heavier but I don't think it would go to execution. Most likely the number of lashes would increase. They might demand an even larger fine? I don't know if it changes when it comes to principal offender or accomplice either. I feel like it probably wouldn't change.

But, if Binsu's accusations are recognized then if the other members of {Sun.Ray} who paid money accuse them as well then theirs might be accepted too. Obviously the number of times they're lashed with the whip will increase and the fines will increase as well. I don't know how much wealth the couple has amassed but I'm sure not just a few hundred million will be enough. They probably can't avoid being made into debt slaves. Prior to even that if the lashes increase enough it's very possible they could die before that.

But, rather than something like that the problem is what to do right now. Though I say that, I have no intention of saying anything unless I'm asked.

"The money for the charms..What's going on with it!"

Binsu yells. It's only obvious.

Even he's been continuing to pay money since the time he wasn't rich. 2,000,000 was it? It's cheaper than the other members but even that's 2 gold coins. It's plenty to consider a large amount.

"Binsu, calm down for now. Let's discuss what to do. After that, it's just temporary but I'm the current leader of {Sun.Ray}. Listen to me."

Kamu is calling out not just to Binsu but to Hisu and Ginger as well.

"Rodrick, Fio, Sanno, Ruttsu. How about you all? You all heard about the charms last month right. Did you already pay for them?"

She continued calling out to Faruergaz and the others.

"Ah, that is, I paid 2,000,000..Also, 4,000,000 for both of my slaves.."

Faruergaz replied with a pale face. Seriously 6,000,000....That's not even a joke anymore...

"Uu..I paid 100 as well.."

Hirosukol replied with a pale face as well.

"I..I did 500,000.."

"I did 500,000 as well.."

2,000,000 for these three huh? In terms of damage they're probably the lowest.

"When did you pay?"

It was near the end of last month for everyone. Roughly one month ago.

"The amounts are all over the place but the number of victims increased by four..Haruku-san. Do you think they've already started moving to obtain the charms?"

Kamu crouched down on the side of Haruku who was tied up and left rolling around while asking.

"They might have already started moving for about one persons portion. But, most likely they haven't even properly started moving yet...I've already spoken everything I know. If you want to know anymore than this ask the person them self."

Haruku replied with his hands still tied up behind his back.

Hearing that Kamu sighed once, nodded that that's true, and then stood up.

"Kevin, take off Koritto's gag."

Ordered by Kamu, Kevin took off Koritto's gag.

Kamu pulled out the dagger at her waist and stuck it in front of Koritto's eyes before crouching down again.

"Answer my questions. I won't forgive any lies. If I think it's a lie then I won't forgive it either. I won't forgive remaining silent as well. First off, have you already started moving to obtain the charms with the money you gathered from everyone?"

"..Obviously. I haven't deceived anyone."

"Got it. Then, then you've already used all of the money you gathered from everyone as labor expenses is what that means right?"

"That's right.."

"I'm sure that you can't say anything but that. That's fine. If you said something like you still had it then that itself would be fraud after all."

"That's why I said I haven't commit any fraud. Rather than, let me say one thing."

"That's no good. I already know that you're good at talking. It's fine as long as you answer our questions."

Kamu flatly replied and continued.

"How did you move in order to obtain the charms?"

Around this point there were voices raised in question from the surrounding adventurers. In regards to charms and maneuvering around. I'm sure it's already common knowledge that there's internal discord between {Sun.Ray} but in regards to the cause for that, they must be questioning it because even when it's being talked about right in front of their eyes now they can't understand it.

Misu who was watching over the four rolling on the ground stepped up and glared at the surroundings while saying.

"You're all too noisy, don't interfere in our business. If you can't remain quiet then go off and earn on the 3rd floor or return to the surface."

Somehow I completely had the impression of her as a loose person but as expected of a member of a top team. With just a single line and glare she silenced the masses. Rather, I'm sure it's because no one wants to make {Sun.Ray} into an enemy after all.

After confirming the surroundings have gotten quiet Kamu started interrogating Koritto again.

"Who do you have making maneuvers for the charms? Which temple is it?"

After all it was just as I imagined, they gathered up and bribed some appropriate individuals and had them line up at the temple it seems. However, I guess they were afraid of it being exposed by the adventurers, they were doing it across multiple temples in Rombertia. They also said since the cost of buying it isn't fixed there's a difference in the amount they charged for it. Though I think that's not the case. I'm sure they just made it cheaper for nobles right?

"What was that about having special connections! There's nothing special or anything at all about that!"

Jeru shouts. However, the fact that they were able to think of it, put it into practice, and get their hands on a reasonable amount of real ones is something that honestly deserves praise. In the first place, you all paid money because you accepted that didn't you?

"After this we'll investigate whether you were really in the middle of maneuvers and even if you were in the process of it whether you properly paid all of the money from everyone. I'm sure if it came to hiring people then you should have someone in the capital gathering people as well right? Tell me their location and how to get into contact with them."

She said that while trying to ask about the contractor that dispatches the labor but he stubbornly wouldn't reveal it. Though there might really not be one. Just from what I've confirmed they always make the day of a full moon a holiday but for {Sun.Ray} close to half of the month is a holiday. It wouldn't be strange even if they went to the capital and called out gathering up the poor and broke themselves.

"I've already told you everything! We haven't deceived anyone!

That..That's right! Rather than that, Greed! You bastard! You're the one trying to deceive us right!"

Huh? The fact that I left the {Slaughterers} just in appearance doesn't count as deceiving. The ones who misunderstood at your own convenience and invited me is you all. I never said a single lie in regards to the ogres as well. I just didn't talk about the information that they're weak to paralysis poison or that ogre magicians might be mixed in as well. I didn't think they would ask about something like that pinpoint but in order to avoid the clatter later in the off chance they do ask I think I did said "that might be the case".

"Deceived? What in the world are you talking about?"

"The ogre magicians! I won't let you say you didn't know! Even though you explored the 7th floor all the time with the {Slaughterers} over there..you should have known about them!"

"Ha? I was wondering what you were going to say but that? Then on the contrary I'll ask you but you've been an adventurer for over a decade so I won't let you tell me that you didn't about the existence of ogre magicians, ogres that can use magic. Or else what is it? If humans, elves, or dwarves ever appeared as enemies in the dungeon, do you really think they wouldn't use magic?"

Since it seems ogre magicians often attack the caravans carrying food along mountain roads in Kanbitto to the East, isn't there quite a few people here that know about them? Everyone who doesn't know about ogre magicians please raise your hand."

After I said that I didn't just look around at the members of {Sun.Ray} but at the adventurers surrounding us. Previously, it's something that the members of the {Slaughterers} talked about before we challenged the 7th floor for the first time. Let alone ogre magicians, the only ones who didn't know about ogres were I who came from the remote country side, and Bel and Zulu who were born in Devas. Though it seems Gwine didn't know how strong ogres were. Since she was a merchant that only circled around the royal territory, so that's not unreasonable.

It's only obvious for Zenom who had actual experience against one, Toris and Angela knew the name as well. Also while they had never seen an ogre mage it seemed like they had at least heard of them. Just as predicted the number of people who raised their hands was low enough they could be counted. In {Sun.Ray} including even Faruergaz and Hirosukol, everyone from the first and second parties knew about them.

Well, I'll admit it's sneaky. Since it seems that ogre mages only appear on the mountain roads in the space between Kanbitto and Rombert so if you were to see a group of ogres other than there you normally wouldn't worry about an ogre mage being mixed in with them. However, it's already been investigated that they're known as an extremely powerful monster. There was plenty of time to investigate them..I killed one for the first time last year after all.

"Also, if you'll allow me to add to that but this is the first time I've genuinely fought against an ogre mage. When I was in the {Slaughterers} we almost always ambushed them and finished them off before they could use magic. Ah, even if you check their status it only shows them as ogres. Only after you check that they have magic special skills can you identify that they're not ogres but ogre mages."

I said that and shrugged my shoulders.

"That's right, what Greed-kun is saying isn't strange. We just assumed that ogre mages wouldn't appear other than in the North of Mount Kinru. Well I also feel like it would have been nice if you had at least said one word about them though...And also, wasn't all of the information that Greed-kun explained to us correct? It's the same for his movements and combat abilities. Even this time it was a group of 11 ogres with ogre mages mixed in that we attacked but I heard that Greed-kun was the one who defeated all of the ogre mages.

He even defeated them right in front of our eyes. It wasn't just the ogre mages but even most of the ogres were defeated by him alone. Out of 11 ogres there was he defeated 7 of them himself. I even saw him defeat another 1 or 2 of them shortly before that as well. Didn't he even try to take on the most dangerous role of decoy by himself at first? I don't want to say something like this but isn't it strange that even though you all had six people you weren't even able to defeat one of them! If Greed-kun hadn't gone over wouldn't you have even been wiped out!?"

Rokko said. Did he see me cut down the ogre mages magic? No, I guess if he checks the status of it while collecting the magic stone afterwards then you can tell huh?

"..In regards to that we're equally at fault as well..Since Misu, Kimu, and I were all in that group after all..I wonder if it was just strangely strong individuals that came.."

Kamu said. I guess she was able to carefully observe since she was in the back firing arrows?

"There's no way that's the case right. Even the ones we were up against weren't any different from the ones up until now. And also, even the ogres that went over there were quickly finished off by Greed-kun right? They're the same."

Kevin said. Oh~ I'm sure the effect wasn't very good but I did hit it with a throwing needle after all. It's movements got a bit duller right?

"Though if I think carefully about it, since it was a room boss it wouldn't be strange if there was a slightly strong one mixed in as well."

Kimu said. Ah, I guess there's that way of thinking about it as well. But when it comes to the room bosses on the 4th floor, occasionally you get {Ork Zombies} instead of {Ghouls} but they're no different from the ones in the halls. Of course, the ogres are the same ones as the halls as well.

"And also, just as Greed-kun said at the start, only half, four of them came over to us.."

Misu said. Yeah, I'm thankful for the praise but that was completely by chance. I mean it's not like I can do things to that point. Though it is true that I made sounds in the rear of the ogres urging them to remain cautious of the rear though.

"..Something like ogre mages doesn't matter at all. We've gotten off topic from the charms but the problem during the combat with the ogres was that they tried to retreat right after Haruku-san collapsed. It was clear to everyone that he was still alive. Also, it was clear that Rokko and the others were still fighting on the other side as well. Up until there it wasn't clear at all if there even were any ogre mages. Since they never used magic. Well, even if everything up to there is fine, following that right after Meiria was injured by the ogre mages magic you suddenly said something like holding our ground. Retreating after one person is taken out, then remaining after it's two people isn't that strange?

After that, after the combat, the order for healing was clearly strange as well.."

Kamu summarized it all together...I thought that Koritto wouldn't be able to answer back to that but when he said, "Meiria is a leader. It's only obvious that leaders and everyone else are different." it just poured oil on the fire. Those words themselves aren't mistaken but isn't that when someone other than the leader says it right. I don't know why but for some reason it reminds me of customers who say, "the customer is God". Simultaneously I also remembered a manufacturer that said the "seller and buyer are equal". It's the same as those, while they all might be the truth, there's people who are allowed to say it and people who shouldn't be saying it. Even in our past life among splendid members of society there were a lot of people who would say things like this so it's not strange for Koritto to say it but I wonder if somehow I wanted the people of Orth to remain simple?

Hearing that not just Ginger, Binsu, and Hisu but Sanno, Ruttsu, and Faruergaz and the others all were enraged. A short while after their conversation continued, Jeru started talking as if he was irritated.

"It's already fine. I'm grateful to Haruku-san for helping us realize it but after all I can't forgive this. In the first place, I don't like how they're acting so composed. You know I'm sure its just, since they still have plenty of unsigned charms remaining they thought they could cover it up. Though things won't go that way. Just now I remembered, Santos's portion.

He died in April. You know, he was born in Rombertia. I've gone to his parent's house before as well. Since three months have already passed since then, you have no way of covering it up. Did you properly send the money that Santosu paid to his family? Of course it's fine if it's a charm as well though. Ha..Judging from that face I'm sure you didn't pay them. These people, I can't forgive them. Even if we push them out on the day of judgement, since either way it's not like our money will come back, let's just finish them off here."

After saying that he stuck the end of his spear to Koritto's chest.

Though I thought about looking for the timing to bring up the matter regarding Santosu.

Ginger is looking sadly down over Haruku.

Haruku was making sure not to meet eyes with Ginger.

Chapter 201: Gamble

Year 7445, Month 7, Day 25

Now then, I wonder what we should do about this. I don't think there would be punishment even if we just quietly watch the four of them get lynched but just watching a lynching isn't really a hobby of mine either. In the first place, they're pieces gained with such trouble..though I guess they're not that much but..so it's necessary for them to work a bit more.

"Please wait just a minute! Do you intend to lynch and kill them here!?"

I said to Jeru as if I was a bit flustered.

"Yeah, that's right. I can't forgive these two! Of course Bin and Haruku are guilty as well. There's no doubt these guys were playing us the fools and living the good life!"

Jeru has completely gotten emotional...Though it's not unreasonable. Of course, it's the same for the other members of {Sun.Ray} as well.

"Come now. Even if you don't get that angry they can't run from you. Putting aside handing them over to the knight group, wouldn't it be at least good to get back the money for the charms you never received? If it's like this then, something that could be returned won't come back."

I said that and nodded while looking around at everyone's face.

"Also, putting aside whether or not they were deceiving you, there's one point that I found strange. Why is the amount different for each person? I would like to hear a clear answer in regards to that."

"I heard that it's because the amount of money needed for the maneuvers differs at that time but.."

Hirosukol replied to my question. Faruergaz is nodding as well.

"Nn~ is that so? Faruergaz-san and you all, did you all pay together?"

""Yeah.""

"What was the cost per person?"

"We were told it's 2,500,000 Z. That's why we still haven't paid the full amount but.."

Well, it might really be worth that amount if you can make a complete recovery from serious injuries that put you on the verge of death. Things around that area will differ based on values in regards to injuries and the amount of money they have so I can't say anything. However, since they still haven't paid all of it, it seems Faruergaz and the others are about out of money I'm sure. I think Hirosukol probably questioned riding Faruergaz's back even for the charm so the 1,000,000 he paid was probably his private funds. In regards to Sanno and Ruttsu I think it's probably the same.

"..A total of 15,000,000 Z for six people is it..That's quite the amount of money. By the way Keinesutan-san has paid over 5,000,000 but is supposedly still in a situation where it hasn't come back yet. Adding to that it seemed like it was still going to require paying even more. I've heard that Ramiresu-san and Harurein-san paid over 4,000,000 as well. I haven't heard whether these two already have received a charm or not though. Gekudo-san paid 2,000,000 as well, and you haven't received it yet right? Ah that part doesn't particularly matter. Even if the price changes based on the time. Just, I found it strange how the difference in price was far too large."

Hearing my words Rokko, Jeru, Haru, and Binsu were remembering back to the amounts they paid.

"I'm sure even if we ask they won't give us a proper answer but the actual amount required for getting the charm is probably not even 2,000,000. They probably either demanded more money from people who were quietly waiting and didn't demand it from the ones who seemed loud or looked for an appropriate time and really handed over the charms they prepared. How about it, Koritto-san, Meiria-san?"

The Rindobel couple was just sulking with a sullen look and didn't say anything. Although, Meiria is still biting on a gag so she can't speak either way.

"I think it would be fine to take the fact that they're remaining silent as accepting it. Well, if you look at their faces it's obvious. Now then, the problem is the money that everyone paid them. As expected it's this amount. I think they would be concealing it somewhere. The temple is suspicious I'm sure. I'll explain as there might be some people who don't know but while it costs some money who you can store things at the temple. Of course even money is fine. They'll safely store things up to a fixed size away. If you were to lynch them here and kill them the money won't come back. Even then if you're fine with it, then I won't say anymore than this."

"..I understand, if we still haven't handed over the charm and you want us to return the money, then we'll return it...But, think of the charms as being something you'll never get your hands on again."

Koritto said. The first part was probably because he wanted to keep his life but the latter part was probably his goal.

"He's saying this but do you still intend to continue?"

Jeru withdrew his spear.

"Is that fine for everyone else as well?"

I confirmed that everyone in {Sun.Ray} had nodded.

"Well then, Mishausu-san, I leave the rest to you."

Kamu made a surprised expression when I threw the conversation to her but quickly tensed up.

"For the time being, shall we return to the surface..But..you all, be grateful to Greed-kun..Since it saved your lives...Ah, also before we return we need to confirm this as well. If we're not going to lynch them here then we need to decide what to do."

After she said that she looked around at everyone. But, no one is saying anything and just looking around.

"Greed-kun, since you had a reason enough to stop the lynching, didn't you have some kind of idea? Would you please tell us about it?"

"Not really, it's not like I have any special idea. It's just that I thought even if you hand them over to the knight group like this the money wouldn't come back..However, even if everyone's money comes back, it's not like you would be fine with that right? Since I'm sure it's largely a matter of feelings as well."

"That's certainly true."

"That's why, what's important is to first get the money back. After that it will come down to how to dispel those feelings. But, the conclusion has almost already been decided here. That you wouldn't forgive them. However, I can't get rid of the feeling that you're being controlled too much by momentary feelings as well. If we return to the surface with them still restrained once then then they'll become the third party, if possible it would be best to have a different third party other than the knight group look after them and during that time to recover the money or come up with the means to recover the money but how about it? There's not much meaning in rushing with it right?"

"If it comes to watching them then I think the knight group is good though?"

"That's fine as well but if it comes to that then most likely I can't imagine they would let them go to retrieve the money they're hiding somewhere."

"Then, who do you think would be good?"

"I'm fine with it as well. Fortunately I'm still a newcomer to {Sun.Ray}. I haven't suffered anything that could be called damage. You could say I have almost no relationship or interest in these four. Ah, of course we can also hire people to make sure they won't run away. Fortunately everyone from the {Slaughterers} who are hoping for my return are waiting over there with hopes of being employed after all."

Partway through I faced the {Slaughterers} while talking.

"Al-san, if you'll return then we won't mind doing anything. Please give us any order."

Toris said that and lowered his head to me. The onlookers got a bit noisy again. That's right, say it properly in a place like this.

"Nn, I can't promise you. But, if you want me to return then show me that you can be useful. I guess so, for the time being we'll hire you all for 10 Z (1 large Shizu) per day. Mishausu-san, I'm sure there's no problem with the {Slaughterers} in terms of abilities. Even in the worst case they won't let them get away. The expense is..nothing special so it's fine if we make it my treat but it's better to do these things properly. I'll bill you later on."

"Pu..If you're okay with that then it's fine. Let's leave these four in the care of the {Slaughterers} afterwards. Is everyone fine with that?"

It seems there's no objections. I thought Faruergaz or Hirosukol might be against it but there was no need to worry.

They were making expressions drained of life.

Since we finished our conversation we teleported to the surface.

.....

After listening to my prediction we all left the dungeon and walked straight to the temple. There's two temples in Baldukk but the small one currently has no priests(someone comes on full moons) so the only option is to go to the large one. The 20 of us walk through the town of Baldukk that's become completely dark until we arrived in front of the temple.

The Rindobel couple including Bin and Haruku are tied up with rope but the 16 of us are surrounding them fortifying the area, no matter how you think about it escape is impossible. In the first place Koritto's fingers are broken. I broke Meiria's teeth.

Zemyunel was beaten up quite a bit and has his tail between his legs. Haruku is the only one who's as energetic as he was since he was healed but no desire to flee can be seen in him. Even if they were to try and run in this situation they would just get caught right away and dragged back though.

The temples don't run business 24 hours so we ended up setting up camp in front of the temple like this until tomorrow morning. Of course with everyone. Since I didn't pay any money and don't have any grudge I wanted to return to the inn to rest but I read the atmosphere and decided to endure it. On the way here Faruergaz sent his slaves to go and buy some food.

In the morning, after confirming that the members of the temple arrived at work Koritto along with his escort Kamu entered the temple.

The priest or whatever at the entrance used {Status Open} on Koritto and said the words we told him to ahead of time. "I'm cancelling the contract on my locker so I'd like you to bring all of the contents of it". The only one allowed into the locker is the person them self after their {Status} has been confirmed. Other people even if they're family aren't allowed inside. However, if you cancel the contract then it's a different matter. Since it's just a matter of bringing all of the contents of it, there's no need for the person them self to go.

Shortly after they returned with an inflated sack that we had prepared ahead of time.

It's not as if I don't feel like this is overdoing things but since everyone's worries are quite natural(Since there's no meaning if Koritto intentionally limits the amount of money he takes out and says "This is all the money we have remaining.") I decided to remain silent without meddling.

Since the Rindobel couple's room at "Mogorito Manor" was too cramped Kamu paid 10 silver coins and reserved the usual "Foton" from this morning. Everyone returned to their inns once in order and went to grab their certificate of payment like things. Kamu said to come back quickly without doing anything unnecessary. That is~ this sort of situation after all. There's no way they'd be allowed to relax and take their time or take a shower.

We counted just in case but Koritto and the others entire fortune in just gold coins was over 190 pieces. If you include gold Shu as well then it was close to 200,000,000. Even if you force them to pay back all of the damage at the current point that leaves 160,000,000 remaining. It's not as if there wasn't anyone who tried to put their hands on that but Kamu stopped them with a glare.

"Now with this, there's already no one who hasn't gotten the charm or their money back right? Everyone's definitely gotten their money back right?"

After everyone nodded to her, Kamu returned the money to the sack again. After that she gave the certificates of payment or whatever to Misu and had her burn them.

"We returned all of your money. This is fine right?"

Koritto said to Kamu.

Kamu ignored those words and told everyone.

"Now then, we finished adjusting the money. However, I think everyone already knows we can't finish things with this. Just like Greed-kun said yesterday, I'm sure some time is necessary to cool our heads down."

She said before looking closely at Faruergaz's two slaves and sat down on a chair while saying, "You two, I'm sorry but could you go and call out the {Slaughterers}? Once they get here everyone can rest for a short period."

However, if it's this time then most of the {Slaughterers} should be running. They'll probably be running for another hour or so. Since it couldn't be helped I said, "Most like they're in the middle of training right now. I think they'll return within another hour or so. After that they should have breakfast so I think that would be the easiest time to catch them. If they wait in front of Boil Manor then they should all come back once." Since Zenom doesn't go running. As expected I doubt they would go and eat breakfast scattered after that.

Everyone has quite a bit of fatigue built up but if it's just this level then if they were thinking of clearing through the 1st or 2nd floors without me then it would still be easier having less targets to be cautious of. For the time being we had some breakfast and waited for the {Slaughterers} to return. Just in case the two slaves bought some breakfast and went to Boil Manor early with it in hand.

After leaving watching the four to the {Slaughterers} we all returned to our inns and it was decided we'd return here again in the evening. It seems that Kamu and Misu are going to take turns remaining. Since they're both women I'm sure they at least want to take a shower, either their sense of responsibility is too strong, or their anger is..being a leader is hard right.

.....

Year 7445, Month 7, Day 26

After resting plenty until evening I leisurely walked back to "Foton" again. I'm finally going to be released from this unpleasant situation. I wonder what I should do to punish Toris and Bel who were the center of making the plan, I let a variety of pleasant ideas run through my head while walking through the town of Baldukk as it turns to evening.

Oh, there's a delicious smelling scent. I wonder what I should eat when I arrive at "Foton". But that place, no matter what you eat it's not very good. It's a place that's only redeeming feature is the price is cheap after all...While thinking about such fruitless things and walking down the road there were several faces I know walking from in front of me.

It's Vurihaima and others from {Verdure.Brotherhood}.

"Yo~ Greed-kun. It seems like things have gotten quite crazy on your end."

"Ah, Viruhaima-san. Well, there's no need to worry. Things will end up however they go."

"Greed-kun, he's making this sort of face but don't mind it.

Recently all our leader has talked about is you. We were starting to wonder if he's a maiden in love. Here, feel free to head off already. Right now, things are difficult right?"

Basu cut off Viruhaima as he was about to continue saying something and told me to go ahead.

Ever since the incident with {Bright.Blade} I've been able to talk quite friendly with him but unlike old man Viruhaima he's a man who is just as he looks with a good atmosphere to him. Taking advantage of his words, I quickly passed by and entered the door of "Foton".

It seems I was the slowest one. Though that's the case it seems most of the members arrived at a time not much earlier than me and were drinking some disgusting ale and eating cheap food.

"Everyone's gathered right. Everyone from the {Slaughterers}, thank you for your cooperation. It could be possible we might contact you again tomorrow, I'm very sorry but at that time we're relying on you again. If there's no contact then don't worry about us."

Kamu said that and politely lowered her head to the members of the {Slaughterers} who were lined up in seats along the wall.

"It seems I was late, I'm sorry about that."

I lower my head to everyone and sit at the edge seat while ordering some beer, cooked beans, and roast pork.

"Now then, everyone has gathered. And then there's no one here except for {Sun.Ray}. We can talk freely."

Kamu stood at the side of the four who are sitting on the bare ground, with her hand at her hip as she starts talking. Since Kamu is a gnome her height is considerably low. Though her face and figure are those of a splendid adult but I'm sure if you saw her from a bit further distance away she would look like either an upper grade elementary or middle school student, it just looks like a class president with a good physique is talking.

"Please wait just a minute."

The one who said that, stood up, and glanced at me was Hirosukol.

Is he going to pick a fight with me about something again?

"Is Greed-san a member of {Sun.Ray}? It seemed like they were saying something about him returning to the {Slaughterers} again yesterday though.."

Ah, that sort of thing. However, I wonder what it is. Even with how gentle I am, I'm starting to get pissed off.

If you want to fight then I'll be your opponent at any time.

"Hey, Fio!"

Faruergaz pulls on Hirosukol's sleeve. Furthermore, some stifled laughs came from the members of the first and second parties of {Sun.Ray}.

"Fio, I've already that you don't really like Greed-kun. But you know, I don't know about the future, but right now Greed-kun is a member of {Sun.Ray}. I'm sure there's already people who have heard but it seems you don't know. In addition, I'll tell you about this time starting from the beginning. Since I want everyone to sort through the situation once more let's discuss things well."

After saying that Kamu started talking about all of the events that happened on the 7th floor from the start. Everything from when we teleported into the 7th floor until we returned. The parts she doesn't know (the fact that the three suckers and I saved the {Slaughterers} who were partially collapsed from an ogre ambush and the ambush we did on the ogres after that) were appropriately followed up by the three suckers. It seems it was only Faruergaz and the others that didn't know about things around there. Did they stupidly honestly just return to their inn and sleep?

The one who directly exposed the details about the things the Rindobel couple were doing this time was Haruku but if you were to look for the cause of that it was originally because the Ridnobel couple decided to abandon Haruku when he was on the verge of death. That decision itself wasn't definitely not something to be praised over but having said that it's not something that people who weren't on the spot have any right to talk about. The problem is right after Meiria was hit with a spell from an ogre mage they immediately flipped that decision over.

The first point that can be raised here is whether the decision to retreat the moment Haruku was defeated was proper. Before Haruku was defeated I had already given them the warning, "We've already defeated three. Right now we're fighting four more! Four are heading that way!" and everyone heard that. At that point it's already not just a matter of abandoning Haruku alone but the result could end up abandoning the four of us in the decoy group as well.

At this point the decoy group had gained the cooperation of four members of the {Slaughterers} and were fighting in favorable conditions but since Koritto and the others didn't have that information so the decision to abandon the decoy group as well was recognized by everyone. Just, in my opinion if there were three unexpectedly strong ogres in front of me and a veteran front line warrior gets defeated in a single hit then even if I have other allies further in, I can't deny taking into consideration retreating once to prevent anymore damage and then reorganizing. Of course I have no intention of progressively agreeing with it either.

Next is the time when Meiria was defeated by a spell from an ogre mage. Certainly I didn't mention anything about the ogre mages. But, they arrived at the conclusion that I can't be blamed for that itself. The problem is, there was a power monster called an ogre mage that they didn't know about until then but even after they established the fact that it was included in the group of ogres, just because Meiria collapsed he withdrew the order to retreat and chose resistance. Even though the forces on our side were reduced and the fact that there was an ogre mage included in the opponents forces became clear, so it's safe to think that they were more powerful.

Furthermore it was a 180 degree change of plans in an extremely short period of time. Everyone expressed that they couldn't agree with this decision. In regards to that as well, I thought that people have that portion, since Meiria is Koritto's wife, I thought it was just a matter of her being more important to him than the other members. Although, if you look at it from the standpoint of a leader who has responsibility of stranger's lives then how about it? and I can't just agree.

Well, on my end things came to me like a revelation at that point.

The situation was far too convenient after all. Even if you just look at those two points their faith in the Rindobel couple would plummet. Even though he can abandon his allies, he didn't just not abandon his wife but even after confirming an increase in the opponents forces he chose to continue fighting, so it was like forcing his allies to stand in their place of death.

And then even though it was an almost completely hopeless situation, when I crushed even more of the opponents forces and broke through, completely turning the dangerous situation around, they spit out unreasonable words towards me. Seeing and hearing all of that Haruku exploded. On that momentum he ended up exposing all of their past wrongdoings.

Well, in my opinion I had somewhat predicted their past and current wrongdoings though I didn't have any confidence in it. It was just at the level that Haruku might have been cooperating with them to some extent, I didn't think that they were progressively sending allies in to die or attacking them from behind. After Haruku was crushed by an ogre and face down on the ground in pain, I used the spell {Suggestion} on him while lifting him up but the effect it displayed far exceeded my expectations. Since I used the hole I have opened in my glove for using Identify to make contact with him there was no need to worry about any light leaking as well.

It was my own expectation that Kamu would tell them off about abandoning Haruku and then if that could be planted into Haruku the Rindobel couple would lose some of their cohesive power, or something like that, adding to that if I could put emphasis on my great efforts in saving everyone from a crisis then Haruku would be grateful to me, if things went well he might have adored me, then it might not be bad to take advantage of that and hijack {Sun.Ray}, or at least that's what I was thinking. Even in the worst case I thought I would be able to pull out Haruku and return to the {Slaughterers} with him.

Well, he was far more useful than I had calculated but it's not like Haruku him self reformed from the fact that he was betraying everyone so I don't want that sort of person as my ally and now I have no intention of recruiting Haruku. Even if I could save him I don't feel like it. That goes the same for Zemyunel who's sulking as he's still got a gag in his mouth.

"..In the end it was the Rindobels that exposed it themselves.

Haruku was stunned by that and ended up confessing everything. Different from that, Greed-kun saved us from a crisis. He made use of his quick witt and put a favor on the {Slaughterers}, though there is a part where he forcefully made them cooperate but it's certain that we were saved thanks to that."

"I'm sorry, everyone, Greed-san. Fio is..Greed-san had"I'm very sorry! I said something stupid to Greed-san as well. Please forgive me."

When Faruergaz was about to say something following up for him, Hirosukol covered it up with a large voice while apologizing. It's fine as long as you understand...

After that as a result of everyone talking it over, we came to the conclusion that the charms of everyone who was able to get their money back this time and whether or not they were already moving towards obtaining them was an important point. What was the focus point there was the method to obtain the charms. Even if we asked Koritto and Meiria they would just evasively try to smooth words over and not give an answer. Though if they've already started moving to obtain them I think there's not much meaning in hiding the contractor. Well, they probably weren't moving though. Since Haruku said they would spend about a year or two watching over things to see if they could be useful, or something like that, I think it's not impossible they wouldn't be able to say it. Since Kevin was getting irritated he proposed torturing them and we managed to get them to spit out the method to obtain them. After all it was just as I imagined there was no intermediation contractor. On the day of the full moon they would go to the capital, call out to poor people and the broke, hand them some money and have them line up. It seems they would buy back the wooden tags they came out with for double the price they paid. In order to confirm things like that it will take some time. There's no full moon until the 17th of next month. In the end it became necessary to confirm things by wandering around near the temple in the capital and the poor people areas this day.

In any case we ended up going to the couples inn "Mogorito Manor" and dug through their room to find the wooden tags they had been buying from a while back but we were only able to discover 340,000 Z worth of wooden tags. Not to mention of that 100,000 Z worth was charms signed to Meiria when you use {Status Open} on them. This ended up being the deciding factor, even though they had received a total of more than 30,000,000(Even taking out the 10,000,000 Faruergaz and the others who it hadn't even been a month since they paid over 20,000,000 had been paid since quite a while back) the fact that they only had this few a number of charms was established to be nothing other than fraud.

We sent a messenger to the knight group and confirmed what kind of crimes they could be accused of from the official in charge of judicial affairs. And then, after all it was charges of fraud, not to mention the fact that two nobles (Gekudo and Faruergaz) were included was seen as a problem. Since they were caught in the middle of the crime and there's a lot of testimony they would definitely be charged with the crime. Additionally, if they really hadn't delivered any money to the family of magician who died in spring Santosu, then no matter what they say they wouldn't be allowed any excuses.

Also, in regards to the act of attacking someone from behind in the dungeon in the past, the response was they had no choice other than to ignore it. Since there's a lot of unclear points about the situation at that time and since you can't easily tell if it was a monster or a person in the dungeon, in the first place even if you call them parties they're not official recognized as allies(they're just people entering together at their own convenience, so they can't deny the possibility that it was a dispute over how to split up some treasure) so that point was the reason. Also, even if there was a noble who ended up as a victim unless there was testimony from another noble who saw it, they probably wouldn't make a decision based on just the testimony of a Free Person like Haruku so they had no choice but to ignore that one.

However, the punishment for the crime of fraud against a noble was severe. Even when their peerage was the lowest sub-Nobility it adds 10 lashes with the whip on top of having all of their assets including real estate confiscated as a fine, and even included exposing their heads on the prison gate. Furthermore, in regards to the two accomplices who weren't the main offenders they couldn't say anything until the judgement but most likely they would get the same punishment.

For that sake, right now we've handed over the four to the knight group as suspects. On that occasion the bag of their assets excluding the money they were owed, Kamu handed it over without touching it. According to Kamu in order to continue as a leader of adventurers the most important thing is trust between allies, so if she were to put her hands on the money there, she wouldn't be able to gain their trust. Well that's certainly true.

Furthermore, it's something I found out later but the Rindobel couple owned several houses in the capital.

Normally they were lending them to people and taking rent. They must have dreamed of living in one of the better of those houses when they retired.

.....

Now then, the problem is me. After we handed the four of them over to the knight group, in front of the gate to the knight group station, I said to Kamu and the remaining 15 members of {Sun.Ray} that I would be leaving the party. This is a gamble. But you know, everyone's expressions when we obtained the magic stones from ogres, their faces when they were showing admiration for my combat abilities, their faces moved to tears when I magnificently ran up in a crisis and saved them, it's just my prediction but...

Chapter 202: Success and Failure

Year 7445, Month 7, Day 25

"I see..After all..I thought of it on the 6th and 7th floors. That Greed-kun was far stronger than any of us in {Sun.Ray}. Let alone, with the matter this time {Sun.Ray}'s combat potential fell quite a bit. It was quite irritating right?"

That was the reply from the temporary leader Kamain.Mishausu after hearing my words that I was "withdrawing".

"..Those guys from the {Slaughterers} that we fought together with on the 7th floor, they were strong.."

"Yeah, just as rumored that Dog-people combat slave named Angela was considerably strong but that axe user woman, Ralpa was it? She was even above that."

"Also, there was those two using the spears, the dwarf woman and that Cat-people guy newbie, they were fighting calmly against an ogre as well.."

"I guess if you can't at least do that much then the 7th floor is harsh."

"Even when they were like that if they get ambushed suddenly a number of them can get taken out~"

"..That's right, though, those magic stones were amazing~ We got 26 of them this time right?"

The three suckers, also known as, former three suckers are talking.

"It can't be helped..If those four end up disappearing then our only decent front line members are Rokko, Kevin, and Fio..It's not as if there aren't any other but they're considerably lower compared to those three after all.."

Ginger, also known as Virginia.Nyuman said disappointingly. Hearing that Kimu, or Kyumire.Biosukoru said, "We really want at least of our party to be made up of a strong front line right.." and the surrounding atmosphere turned gloomy.

Other than Hirosukol who's name was just brought up there's Faruergaz and the others, Rutsogu.Samyueruga uses the spear, and his two slaves are all capable of standing on the front line.

However, there's no other way of putting it than that their abilities clearly fall in comparison to the other three. It's only obvious for the 7th floor but even then 6th floor is probably impossible. In other words, if things continue just like this then {Sun.Ray} will be at their limit on the 4th floor. It's not as if the 5th floor is completely impossible but you can guess they would struggle quite a bit and depending on how things go they might even have to prepare for some sacrifices.

""Umm,""

Both Mifesu.Ransun and Hisurura.Harurein were about to say something but showed restraint for each other and choked up on their words.

"Umm, even then I would like it if Greed-kun remains together with us. Of course this is simply my hopes. I mean, if you're with us then just that is reassuring."

Misu properly looked me in the eyes while saying it. Her wolf ears stood on end and her tail shook.

"Yeah, I thought so as well. It's not like I've seen Greed-kun fighting but just from what I've heard, you have a lot more skill than even Haruku, Bin, and Meiria. If a person like that were to leave what would happen to us in {Sun.Ray}? Depending on how things go someone might die?"

Hisu raised one of her beautiful pure blooded Elf features that is her eyebrows up while saying it to not me but Kamu. Well, what she's saying is true.

"I already get what everyone is saying and want to say. But, try thinking about it for a bit. Just now Jeru said it. The number of magic stones we obtained on the 7th floor this time was 26. Though we still haven't sold them yet so I don't know how much they'll be worth but just from what I could tell, they'll all add up to easily over 10,000,000 Z..I guess so, I've never seen something like that and I'm sure it'll largely exceed it. If they really have a price of 800,000 Z each then they might actually make it to 20,000,000 Z...This, we earned it in just a single day on the 7th floor. If Greed-kun returns to the {Slaughterers} then he'll become the leader again right? In that case he can expect a considerable share. If we could promise him conditions that are even more appealing then that he might have room to think about it though..If I think like that then I can't stop him."

Kamu said instructing everyone.

"Then, wouldn't it be fine to have Greed-kun be our leader?"

Binnodo.Gekudo said it as if he thought of something completely great.

"Even then I wonder about that..Since our members are lacking in abilities, I'm sure it would be more difficult remaining with us.."

When Kamu replied like that the three suckers questioned, "Did you want to be the leader that much? It's not as if I don't understand though.."

"It's not particularly as if that's the case. But, even I have some desires. The more earnings there are the more a good leader profits. However, I don't have even the slightest bit of confidence I could bring everyone to the 7th floor. More so, with the remaining members..Let alone the 7th floor even the 6th floor is completely impossible..The 5th floor might be dangerous as well."

Kamu replied while looking down. I wonder if it's about a good time~

"..Can I speak for a bit? It's strange saying this but it's already possible to obtain the charms in a short period of time. It's fine if you just do the same thing the Rindobel-sans did."

When I said up to there everyone's eyes were sparkling as if to say, "I completely forgot" while talking to the person next to them. I still haven't finished speaking.

"I'm sure it'll cost quite a bit less money. However, even then I think that would at best be one or two of them every few months. You might not be able to rely on them very much. Those of you who went together with me to the 7th floor the other day please try remembering. It's certainly true that the charms are reliable but they're useless unless you can return to the surface right?"

Several of them remember how Miduchi forbid them from speaking.

"It seems some of you remembered...Like I said just now, after this I intend on returning to the {Slaughterers} but if there's anyone who wishes, no, it's fine for the {Slaughterers} to take up of all of you together. Of course, I'll be splitting the parties based on true skill. Please pardon me for a slightly impolite way of putting this. It's strange saying this but with everyone's current abilities, normally not a single one of you would be accepted into the {Slaughterers}. I think this would be easier for you to understand after seeing my work. Please don't glare at me like that, Hirosukol-san. I properly asked to be pardoned at the start."

Don't make that sort of face. I get your feelings though. No, the reason I'm putting it this way is because I really feel bad about it. However, even if I say it in flattering words it can't be helped. I thought it would be better to say it properly from the start.

"In that case, it would take the shape of the {Slaughterers} absorbing {Sun.Ray}. Yeah, I don't mind it at all so it's alright. I can already guess how other people will talk about it. But, I don't really see it as a problem. If they have any complaints then it's fine if they say it directly to my face. Well, rather than something like that, please let me talk a bit about in the case you accept my idea."

Kamu, Misu, Ginger, and Binsu were saying that if I did something like to the {Slaughterers} and then we absorb {Sun.Ray} I would be slandered as "Greed joined {Sun.Ray} in order to absorb them from inside." Of course~ I'm sure there will be people who say things like that. But, people like that don't matter at all. If they want to say it just let them say as they please. A certain portion of it is the truth after all, regardless of whether I complain or not, the people who want to believe in rumors will believe in it.

In the first place even when things were going smoothly for the {Slaughterers} I had a mountain of slander and defamation said against me like "He's been carried by Zenom and the two combat slaves" or "Even though he's just a brat with no skill..They're just letting him act as the leader because he's a noble and has a company so he's convenient." Even further back it was even "they're just digging through the monsters other adventurers defeated." and those sorts of harsh things were said about us.

Even if some more variations of that started to appear at this point what is there to it? Ah, the thing that was said just a while back, "he's lacking in management abilities for a leader", those sorts of slander actually hit home a bit though. Compared to that something like, "He did something in order to achieve some objective" is still better to hear.

"Of course it will be the case, I'll split up the teams based on true skill. Judging from the number splitting into a total of three teams would probably be appropriate. I'll say it honestly.

Currently there's no one here that I think would make it in a team aiming past the 7th floor. It might be different if you were hiding your true abilities during the time we were training together though. That's why just the same as you have until now I would have everyone split into two groups. For each of those two groups, I'll send out one or two members, including myself from the {Slaughterers}. Of course someone who can use healing magic. Fundamentally I'll have you obey those people but after repeating that several times, if there's anyone suitable for it then I think I'll start to have that person act as the leader of the team."

There were several people who were making openly discontent faces.

That's only obvious. Since normally the leader is the one who decides the compensation.

"And, in regards to the compensation but in the case that we send the leader from the {Slaughterers} during the time you enter the dungeon with them, other than that leader being counted as two peoples worth of share, the earnings will be split up evenly among everyone down to the 1 Z. If there's no helping some from being leftover then that money will be used to buy food for the next time. Ah, we count combat slaves as one persons worth as well but obviously that compensation will be paid to the owner. Furthermore, we calculate the leader as two peoples worth but that leader would only be paid for one persons worth. The remain one persons worth would go to me but things like food, consumables, and the entry tax will all be covered by me. That's why most of it will end up disappearing I'm sure. Well, I need at least that much of a profit. I'll talk about the reason later but I think you'll be able to accept it."

Surprise was showing on everyone's faces other than Faruergaz and Hirosukol. These two probably think this is only obvious so it can't be helped. However, the only adventurers who make use of these conditions are fundamentally those who just came to Baldukk or adventurers who have only just started and don't earn much income, nothing but newcomers. It's because they don't have enough experience and they don't have any of the harsh combat experience on the lower floors so they don't understand the importance of a leader.

Therefore, to members of a top team like {Sun.Ray} it's an extremely unexpectedly method of splitting up the compensation. If you were to ask me, rather than carelessly trying to make claim on the leader, everyone other than the leader obtaining a reasonable amount of money, that sort of method which just looks impartial is what I wanted to use. If I say it like this then not only is there no high income benefit to being the leader but you would have to worry about the other members assessment and the responsibility so I thought it wouldn't be that easy for anyone to want to claim the role of leader.

"I'll without a doubt get the leader dispatched from the {Slaughterers} to agree to this. Also, if it comes to that then it's also true that persons income will decrease from being with the {Slaughterers} so there's no guarantee that the same person will always be the leader. Including myself, several of us will alternate shifts."

Since this was completely natural they just honestly nodded to it.

"However, from here on is the important part. For a short while I'll keep an eye on things like they are now. But, after that if there's someone among everyone that seems like a suitable leader then I intend to request for that person to be the leader of that team. In that sort of case, that person will decide on the compensation. What I want you to understand here is that in order for that person to act as the leader of the team they must be able to get everyone in the party to accept the method of splitting up the compensation. If even one person has complaints then I won't use them. It's fine for the leader to decide on whatever method for the compensation that they want but please think that you won't be able to take a method that will cause any complaints. Also, even in that case though, just when it comes to dispatching members for the current {Slaughterers} we'll request an even share of the compensation."

I clear my throat.

"After that, I'm thinking of purchasing several new combat slaves.

I'm thinking of putting those sorts of slaves into the teams with everyone else but in that case, fundamentally it's fine if you don't take into consideration the compensation for those slaves.

I'm sure their abilities will be low after all. But right now, the combat slaves in the {Slaughterers} have suitably high abilities so I'll request compensation for just them."

I said it like a joke but everyone was nodding. It sure is easy when there's no one with proper experience as a leader around.

"Also, as a privilege for {Sun.Ray} being absorbed by the {Slaughterers}, I'll adopt everyone as guards for Greed Company. As expected I won't go to the point of paying wages though. However, when it comes to calculating and paying the troublesome taxes with the government office the company will take care of that. And also, in the worst case but if you were to suffer a serious injury in the dungeon and unfortunately be able unable to work as an adventurer anymore, just like that we'll let you work for Greed Company and properly pay wages based on the work you do.

If you're feeling uneasy about these things then all of the details

I explained just now it's fine to write up a formal contract with them. In that case we'll create three contract documents, one for myself, one for you all, and one to leave with the government office for in the worst case. If I end up not abiding by the conditions I just stated then it's possible for you to make a claim of that with the government office at any time. Please think that things like that are the reason why I'm demanding one persons worth of compensation as well."

Everyone was amazed at this. Rather~ I can't imagine there's anyone who wouldn't feel these details are appealing.

"If you're able to accept these conditions then we'll accept you as members of the {Slaughterers}. If there's anything you don't understand then I answer your questions. Depending on the case it's possible to change the conditions as well. Also, this will be the last but if no matter who looks it can be decided that you have an adequate level of skill, if I recognize that, and further the person them self wishes then it's also possible for them to move to the current {Slaughterers} team as well so things in that are depend on everyone's effort. It's fine even if you don't reply right now.

However, since it's necessary to think about things from here on out after this, please give me a reply within this month. Of course, it's fine for you all to discuss things between yourselves. But, it's a bit selfish of me to say but if at least a total of five people don't decide to pick this option then there's not really any merit for our side so in the case that the number of those interested is too few we might turn it down as well."

When I said that far I looked around at everyone's faces. Surprised faces, happy faces, various faces.

"Well then, I'm sure it's difficult to discuss things with me around, I'm returning to my inn. I'm hoping for a good reply."

I said that, turned around, and started walking off.

Obviously the place I'm aiming is the favorite inn of the {Slaughterers}, Boil Manor. I need to talk to everyone.

After that I need to scold Toris and Bel and for the time being, tell them I'm going to push command over {Sun.Ray} that I intend to absorb as well. Right now there's 15 members of {Sun.Ray}. Even if we send one person in each team that's parties of 8 people and 9 people. Sending one more person than that to each to act as an advisor might also be a good idea. Ah, even then the members of the {Slaughterers} that we dispatch still receive the same compensation as now. I intend to give them 2% of the amount the main group of the {Slaughterers} earns. The portion they earn from {Sun.Ray} is travel compensation.

The only one we absolutely can't exclude from the {Slaughterers} is Gwine. Also Giberuti I guess. It's no good if the team that goes to the front line can't eat good food.

.....

Year 7445, Month 7, Day 28

Since yesterday one after another members of {Sun.Ray} have been coming to the inn I'm staying at "Kairugu's Inn". There's even those bringing along two or three people. However, just Faruergaz and the others haven't come yet. Since it seems that since yesterday morning they've been outspokenly discussing it, I guess they just haven't resolved themselves yet. Even if they take into consideration the details I told them when we met at the end of last year I think it's a reasonable good proposal.

Putting that aside, since there was something that was bothering me, before we forget about it I had the members of {Sun.Ray} who intend to move parties start running around to gather evidence on the Rindobel couple. Though, I say that there's not much to do at all. Just confirming with Santos, who was born in the capital, his family to see if the money was returned. Then after they've confirmed it tell the knight group the location of his family and have them confirm it as well. Then go out to the poor people area of the capital and if possible find multiple people who were hired to purchase the charms and get a proper hold on their locations.

Ah, I've already properly made contracts with them. It's contract version 3. Since some of them couldn't read letters either, it cost a bit of extra expenses having a scribe write it right in front of us but well~ that much should be fine.

.....

Year 7445, Month 7, Day 29

After breakfast Faruergaz and the others came. Faruergaz, Kumiru, Samyueruga, the three of them were making slightly exhausted expressions.

"Greed-san. There's something I want to ask first. In reality there's several things I want to ask and confirm as well but this time the most important is just one thing. I would like you to please reply honestly."

I don't know if it's because he's lacking in sleep but his facial color is bad and his eyes are glaring as he lowered his head and asked me. Really, what is it already, so trouble~some~

"I don't think I've done even a single thing to be liked by you, I think. I've complained, said sarcasm, I think at every little thing I've said things that you would find unpleasant. Just, there are somethings which I thought I had screwed up after I already said them as well. There were times when I didn't realize it until after I was told my Rodrick and Ruttsu as well..I think I was an unpleasant person. Why would you include such as person as me when inviting us into your group..It's something I've found strange in regards to the matter this time. It should have been fine even if you absorbed {Sun.Ray} excluding just me. I still think eve now that it wouldn't have been even the slightest bit strange if that was the case."

His way of speaking has gotten strange again.

"I tried thinking about how you might be thinking about it in my own way and guessing it. I was able to narrow it down to the three answers. The first one is about Rodrick. He and I have been together for a reasonably long time and are on good terms. He was born in the Faruergaz family. Is it because you don't want to hurt his feelings? One more is..That is, because you and I have some things in common maybe? The last one is both of those. By all means, I would like an answer."

Hirosukol's face was completely serious. The three holding their breath as they watch over had considerably serious expressions as well.

"At the end of last year, do you remember the time when we first met?"

"Yeah, that time I said quite a few unavoidable things.."

"Faruergaz-san do you remember as well?"

"Yeah, I remember. We were greatly rude at that time.."

I let out a short sigh and put the answer into words.

"It seems that both of you have forgotten..That time I had intended to consider the two of you as friends but..Is that a reply to your question Hirosukol-san?"

""Ah..""

The two of them made slightly spaced out expressions and soon after their faces went red from feeling ashamed.

I won't forget. At any rate, no matter what the reason or with what expectations they had, since the first time I reincarnated over here it was the first time I said something like, "I want to become friends." That time~ after that I felt a cold sweat inside wondering if anyone would make fun of me. Of course there was no one disagreeable enough to do something like that.

"Ah..I..I'm very sorry! I'll go and cool my head down a bit.

Everyone don't mind it and continue with the conversation...I'm very sorry, Greed-san. After I calm my feelings down a bit I'll come back again!"

Hriosukol said that at a rapid pace and without waiting for a response ran out of the room...How young~ it seems like youth~

"Greed-san, Fio...I'm very sorry that he left at his own convenience in the middle of the conversation."

Faruergaz lowered his head apologetically to me. Sanno and Ruttsu were dumbfounded.

"Probably around tomorrow, I think he'll come again alone. I'm really sorry but for right now would you please just leave him be? I think it would be best to just let him have some time alone for a short while. No, even I couldn't imagine he would suddenly run out of the room.."

Faruergaz said with a faint smile on his face. Even he's probably thinking that was quite young~ of Hirosukol, or something like that. Also, if it's just something at this level, it's not even worth bothering over at this point.

"No, please don't humble yourself that much, Faruergaz-san. And, what should we do? Should we continue?"

"Yeah, of course. We're looking forward to working with you."

Just like this I was able to safely get remaining members of {Sun.Ray} in my hands. Happily ever after.

.....

Year 7445, Month 7, Day 30

It wasn't happily after all. It wasn't happily at all.

Hirosukol disappeared. I don't know if it was yesterday, last night, or this morning but before anyone noticed he moved out of his inn and disappeared!

Rather~ when I heard the fully story in detail it seems it was yesterday evening. He cleared out of the inn and supposedly even left behind a farewell letter as he departed. They only noticed just past noon today, since the deadline for their reply to me is reaching it's limits Faruergaz went in intending to invite him for a walk and was going to pull him out at that time and his room was completely empty. In a panic he came to me and obviously I wouldn't know. I gave him the advice that an employee of the inn should know and I joined Faruergaz as we went to the inn, they said it was yesterday evening, most likely while we were eating dinner when he left. And then, two farewell letters, he left in the care of the person at the inn.

One of them was to Faruergaz. The other one was to me. The content wasn't all that different.

It was words of apology to Faruergaz and I, he particularly included quite a bit of details on how he was too embarrassed to show his face. The letter to Faruergaz said that most of the members of the {Slaughterers} are Japanese people so things shouldn't end u[badly for him, since I won't do anything like that either he should just relax and earn some money, is what he wrote. And then, as a conclusion on whether the two of us could become appropriate friends, or until he thinks we can he wanted to put some distance between us, is what it said.

After I was handed this by Farerugaz and read it, the thing I thought was that I was glad it wasn't the opposite, that sort of unpleasant thought. If Faruergaz and Hirosukol were to run away in the opposite then even if I had to split up into a grassroots, I would have had to hunt him down and make absolutely sure to kill him, otherwise several years later or several decades later, it would have been to the point where I wouldn't be able to feel safe sleeping at night.

Since from the very start I haven't thought of some illusion like every reincarnated person we encounter would become my ally, so I won't feel a sense of loss on the level of Faruergaz but even then a shock is a shock. It's the same as losing a reincarnated person from right under my eyes that could have become a powerful piece on the level of high end replacement for Zulu in the future.

Furthermore, it seems like Faruergaz was beaten down by the sense of loss but it seems he wasn't all that depressed over it.

"In a long life, these sorts of things happen as well..I guess.

I've already purchased two combat slaves, Denda and Karimu. I need to take responsibility for them until the end...I don't really want to sell them. Also, I feel like abandoning Sanno and Ruttsu to go and search for him is different as well. I'm sure Fio doesn't wish for something like that either. Looking after them is the responsibility I was entrusted by Fio."

And then, for some reason he looked up at the sky with his back to me while whispering, "Che...So you intend to just go around looking at places on your own just as planned..This debt is expensive...Nomu-san.."

If you were to ask what I was doing, I was looking at that Faruergaz's back while, "Ah..Even if I try to go after him now..I don't know which direction he went and if he conceals himself in the capital for several there's a lot of people so there's no way I could find him..I'm lost...The other day, even though I said it to everyone in the {Slaughterers} so arrogantly, this happens..This is quite uncool~ I wish you would pardon me from these things..." just worrying about myself.

Chapter 203 (Reverse)

One day near the end of the April, Sajesu.Basutorial returned alone to Boil Manor while holding a cheap lunch under his arm. He practiced using magic a number of times this afternoon and after that thought of killing some time practicing with the spear. Recently his life has been fulfilling and everyday is so enjoyable he can't help it. He's been secretly calculating it but his debt should be paid off after they enter the dungeon next time. All of his income after belongs to him. If it continues at his current pace then he should be able to save up a considerable amount in two months. He'll be able to buy his beloved Cathy, Catherine.Enforu he left behind in his home town of Rockfall Village and then release her from slavery. I've already eaten after all, let's get a wood practice spear and head to the vacant lot at the edge of town. Later his spear teacher Gwine should show her face as well. In her past life, she was a high school girl 10 years younger than Saji but in their current lives she's the same age and his senior as an adventurer. She's also his teacher that teaches him the spear. Though that can be said, in terms of skill with the spear his employer Al, the noble Toris, and his combat slave the former soldier Zulu are a bit above her in skill with the sword as well. Recently, it's something the noble who's employing me, Al often said, "Remain conscious over the increases to body level" but I've somehow come to understand it. At first it was my limit just being able to nervously follow after everyone but recently I've become able to progressively take part in combat so you could say it's proof of that.

Thinking that Saji (in any case, let's put some guts into the afternoon training right now and give it our best) returned to the inn but Saji noticed the foreign noble Bernadette beckoning him against the railing leading to the rooms upstairs.

The place he was called out to was the room of the front line pillar of the {Slaughterers} Zenom and Ralpha's room. If their leader Al is ever absent they always seem to gather in this room. Since it's a family room and slightly larger with a bit more room is probably one of the reasons for that as well.

Other than Zenom, Toris was in the room. Including Bel and Saji that's four people. The other occupant of the room that is Zenom's adopted daughter Ral and Gwine, and of course the leader Al nor his girlfriend Miduchi are nowhere to be found. They're probably still eating.

"What's going on?"

When Saji asked that an unexpected answer came back.

"Faruergaz and Hirosukol's party, they ended up being absorbed by {Sun.Ray}."

(Ah, so they ended up being able to enter a first-rate party as well, that's great.)

From Saji's point of view they're his benefactors. It was somewhat close to forcibly but it was thanks to them that he was released from the serf ranking. I guess because the circumstances of their meeting wasn't very good, Hirosukol seems to have some kind of feelings towards Al, their relations don't seem to be very good though.

"It hurts that {Sun.Ray} managed to take the reincarnated people.."

"Yeah, it seems that Al-san left too much room between them as well. They ended up being taken first.."

"Even if you say something like that...I can't bring myself to like those two. They said that Ralpha and Gwine were being cheated? Not to mention right in front of me. You all heard it too right."

(Ah, that's right. They said they were just being deceived and used, was it...Even if they didn't know the details that was considerably harsh. Well, even if I was being deceived I'm completely satisfied being allowed in the {Slaughterers}. If it wasn't here then there's no way to make this much money..)

Just like that the remaining four reincarnated people joined us. It seems that Ral and Gwine pulled Al and Miduchi out while they were still in the middle of eating.

After that it came down to a discussion over how to pull out those those two but a visitor came. When Saji went out to deal with them it was a messenger from {Verdure.Brotherhood}.

There Miduchi and the leader Al left.

On that occasion he left things regarding this matter to Toris, Zenom, and the others and said for everyone to try thinking about what to do. First off what we talked about was how far to go with our objective.

"At the very least I want to make those two into allies."

Toris who naturally fell into the position of speaker said. His hair is neatly trimmed up and dyed a deep green color.

"That's right. Also, it would be unpleasant if they said something about it all the time so a situation where they're the ones who ask would be good."

Ral's long beautifully dyed blonde hair sways as she adds.

"In that case we need to sell them a favor through some form."

Bel who's deep blue hair has grown to about halfway down her back added something just a bit constructive.

"Even if you say sell them a favor.."

Zenom with his pink hair and abundant beard said.

"Since they're adventurers I guess it would come to saving their lives or something like that. Even I feel indebted towards Toris-san after all."

Gwine said with her shoulder length dyed yellow-green hair and her beard still black. Bel looked at Gwine with a difficult face but no one seems to have noticed. Or rather, since Gwine switches preferences all the time it's already publicly known she's always attracted to someone so no one would pay much attention to it every time.

Just the other day Saji had the barber of the {Slaughterers} Bel cut his hair and dye it deep blue as she touched his sideburns(?).

Somehow or other, he got the feeling that he was doing something to hurt his benefactors. Of course, it's not as if he's against it. He thought that if they could group up that would be nice. Also, he's already used to the fact that there's no ears in the place they should be but this is the first time in this lifetime that his hair was so carefully cut so the good touching sensation of his sideburns has become a habit for these past few months. After that they spent a few hours discussing it but couldn't seem to come to a conclusion. Along the way Miduchi returned but the leader Al just showed his face for a bit and then went out again.

During dinner Toris explained things to Al. Saji listened to that as if it was something from a far off world.

"First, in regards to the objective but our objective is to take in those two. And then, as a side matter, we think it would be ideal to have them lower their heads and request to join us."

Toris skillfully started his explanation after taking a sip of beer.

"The rough plan for that sake is for Bel or I to sneak into {Sun.Ray}."

Hearing that Al stopped his hands that were eating and urged him to continue.

"Through the information we heard the other day we've found out that {Sun.Ray} is doing fraud or an act close to that. We'll expose that and have them become indebted to us. We heard from Miduchi-san but it seems that Al-san predicted their trick right. According to that it should be impossible for them to put it into practice with a small number of people. Also, it's natural to think that there's an accomplice in {Sun.Ray}. Wouldn't it be Zemyunel or Fumizu or somewhere around there? If we don't have a member or two join them then I think it will take a tremendous amount of time to gather anymore information than this."

Al was listening with a difficult face.

"Obviously, they'll need to skillfully leave the {Slaughterers}.

Also, if it isn't just once person that leaves then they might be cautious of and see through them. The best candidate would be Saji but as expected if it's Saji there's anxiety remaining in the worst case. Also, the only ones we need to absolutely avoid are the leader Al-san and Gwine. I think the reason why is easy to understand without explanation.

Also, Zenom-san is unnatural as well. Consequently Ral isn't a suitable choice either. And if it were Gwine or Zenom-san then rather than {Sun.Ray}, I can't imagine {Gehenna.Flare} would just ignore them. Maruso and Zulu wouldn't work unless Al-san sells them first and there's no guarantee that {Sun.Ray} would be the ones to buy them. Most likely all of the top teams would be scrambling for them and it would already be no good. Prior to that I can't imagine they would agree to it either."

Before long all of the other members had stopped eating and were listening in. Obviously they already knew about the details that were being reported but it's because Al's facial color wasn't very good.

"That leaves three people remaining. Bel, Miduchi-san, and myself. If we think about combat in the worst case then Miduchi-san is suitable but since Bel and I were the ones who brought it up we should volunteer for it. Thanks to you both Bel and I have gotten quite skilled at using magic and can brag about having a considerably level of combat ability so I think we can pull through most situations. If it takes the shape of us fighting and breaking up then we should be able to naturally leave without being suspected is also one of the reasons."

A bit of admiration appeared in Al's eyes but he quickly changed back to being expressionless.

"The summer of last year, just before Miduchi-san joined us, {Sun.Ray} lost two members of their forces. Even though Faruergaz and the others, those six joined them but I'm sure they won't be capable of much on the 5th or 6th floors. That's why, we think that they'll end up splitting into two parties and entering the dungeon again. Well, a first party that is active centering around the 6th floor and a second party that at best makes it to the 4th floor. And also, it seems that {Sun.Ray} has had quite a bit of attachment to the 6th floor when they enter the dungeon recently. Although, I'm sure they just want to go to the 7th floor beyond that. That's why even though they have 20 people right now but if someone who has experience on the 7th floor like Bel or I were to leave we think it's very possible they would call out to us right away."

"What if they don't call out to you?"

"If it comes to that then there's no helping it, we'll just have to lower our heads and return. It's necessary to go over the plan once more but most likely I don't think that will end up the case."

"It seems you have confidence."

"Of course. In regards to just this portion, I think that there's no doubt they'll call out to us. Also, other than the newcomer Saji, if any of us were to join {Sun.Ray} it's only obvious but we'd be put in the first part I'm sure. I think there would be a lot of chances to be near the side of the leaders, the Rindobels."

"And, you're going to sneak in, gather evidence, and then expose that right in front of them?"

"Yes. That time I think will be the best timing in a room on the 4th or 5th floor when it's difficult for anyone to intrude."

"Got it. That goes smoothly. After that Faruergaz and the others find out about it as well. But, I wonder if they would really come to us with just that? Wouldn't things just end up several members including the leaders of {Sun.Ray} being driven out? During that time, you or Bel a reliable member in the dungeon is still a part of {Sun.Ray}?"

Al said that rejected the idea everyone came up with.

"I understand. Well then, we'll add one more plan that we thought of previously together with Bel and Zenom-san. After infiltrating them, it will be only obvious to go to the 6th floor right. That time, we'll bring them to the 7th floor. Obviously, we'll support them there with all our power. Since they're a top team as well if I accompany them and we take our time recovering mana and moving forward a bit at a time then it shouldn't be all that difficult to go to the 7th floor."

"And?"

"We'll lure them into an ogre mage room on the 7th floor. If we use paralyss poison on the ogres along the way then this shouldn't be all that difficult. During that occasion if we have them misrecognize the true strength of the ogres then I think that would be even better. Then, since there's always around 10 ogres in the ogre mage room they should easily fall into a crisis. There Al-san and the others who were on standby nearby would gallantly appear and save them. It would be fine as long as we show off the appeal of our combat strength in full.

If we do that then I'm sure Faruergaz and the others will be shocked they can't enter the first party of {Sun.Ray}. If they find out the value of the ogres magic stones at that time it's only obvious they would be envious of us. Even if those two don't think that way Kumiru and Samyueruga would definitely think so. If we invite them there then I think it would only take one try. And then, the person who was infiltrating can just take the shape of turning their back on them after the combat on the 7th floor and return then I don't think it would be unnatural."

"I see now..Are Zenom and Bel of the same opinion?"

"Yeah."

Being asked by Al, Zenom replied right away.

"I think we should go over it a bit more into order to make sure things go exactly as expected."

Bel still had some plans. Incidentally, that plan was even more brutal, and everyone who heard it including Al were backing away from her over the details.

"No, you..that far..Rather~ if it's just a matter of making those two into allies we could spend a bit more time getting familiar with them and wait until they open their hearts to us. It's not like we need them right away.."

Al gets blocked on his words he's saying to Bel.

"But it's a valid method. If it's this then depending on the case we could crush {Verdure.Brotherhood} and {Black.Topaz} using a similar technique as well. Aren't they ideal as practice for it?

Also, you said you would the matter this time to us right? Since it's best to make effective use of chances I though we should make the most effective use of it but..It's hard for me to imagine but Al-san do you have some kind of camaraderie going towards the other adventurers?"

"As expected I've never thought of them as comrades even once. Even at best competitors, in essence they're potential enemies right?"

"That's great..I'm relieved to hear you say that. As expected of Al-san..No, that was rude of me. It's only obvious. Well then, I would like to proceed with my idea."

"Nn..Since I already said I'd leave it to you all, I don't have any intention of commenting on the rough outline you've decided on. However, I have a condition. First off, including Zulu and them, make everyone agree with it. After that, since I'm leaving the matter this time to you all, it's no good for you to be the ones infiltrating. In the first place if you're using that plan as the base then there's too much danger to it. I'll take on the role of infiltrating. Think up a method. There's no need to worry about my external reputation. Ah, no, I'd like for you to worry about it a bit. If possible I'd prefer it not exceed the level of everyone looking down on or abandoning me because I'm lacking in ability. If it's just that then I have plenty of chances to recover it later on. Also, since I'm leaving the outline to you, you don't need to explain things to me other than the rough idea. Think of me as a pawn and show me you can make good use of me."

Al insistently used the words "since I've left it to you".
"Thank you very much. Even if it's these sorts of small places Toris and I wanted to gain experience in commanding."

"Yeah, got it. That's certainly something important after all.."

"Well then, I would like to go over the fine details. Excluding Bel no one else other than Zenom-san and I would know the discussion from just now so we'll explain it once more but that's after we return to the inn."

"Got it. Then, I'll leave this matter to Toris. But, it's not like we need to hurry with it, don't overdo it by doing anything too cruel."

"Of course."

With Toris's reply the discussion ended.

"Bel, you, are really intense unsuitable for your face.."

Ral was dumbfounded as she whispered to Bel sitting next to her.

"Is that so? There are times I'd like for everyone to think about it more seriously though..Of course even I don't think that this method is very good. But I think it's effective. Since you're not always going to be a child either I think you should rethink that boring pride and disposition. Right now, where is Ral living? This is a warning from my true feelings. I won't say it twice. It's fine if you take some time so think carefully about it."

Bel replied in a whisper.

After dinner, when we returned to the inn, excluding Al the details were explained to everyone and putting it simply, it was making use of the ogres on the 7th floor and wiping out all of {Sun.Ray}'s first party leaving just a few members (leaving just one person is ideal) alive. The outline of exposing the crimes of the leader couple of {Sun.Ray}, in this case gathering evidence wasn't seen as that important. It's a secondary objective. After they were wiped out it's fine as long as the witness gives testimony about the {Slaughterers} combat power and how it couldn't be helped they were wiped out.

After {Sun.Ray} loses over half of their upper party members since Faruergaz and the others aren't that skilled they'll end up in the position of a second-rate party. If things come to think then it's normal to think that the remaining few skilled members would move over to a half first-rate party and the half first-rate parties should invite them as well. It was believed to be very probable that if just one of them leaves the rest would follow after. If, there's not many movements then one or two people, if they seem useful it's fine if the {Slaughterers} calls out to them, if according to the secondary objective they had already exposed the evidence of the dead leaders crimes then we could just expose it to them without forbidding them from speaking. One way or another the {Slaughterers} is a super first-rate party that has gathered quite a bit of attention in Baldukk. It's easy to predict that if the {Slaughterers} were to call out to them the number of people trying to recruit them would intensify quickly.

If things come to that then even if we just leave things be, we could call out to Faruergaz and the others as a side. It's expected that they would feel considerably helpless at that point as well.

After all just when they thought they entered one of the top teams before much time had passed most of the upper party members die in the dungeon.

The ones who saved them for a crisis of really being completely wiped out was the {Slaughterers} with an overwhelming combat force. Even if Hirosukol has some feelings on it if he's not an idiot he should jump at the chance. Rather, it's believed there's not even any need for us to go to the trouble of calling out to them. And then when Saji joined us, we put that much emphasis on the contract. Obviously they'll enter into a formal contract and then it's fine if we just make it so they can't leave of their own free will. During that time if they know the compensation of the {Slaughterers} there's no way they wouldn't be swayed.

"But you know, they might not be swayed by money. Look, don't they say there's things in the world you can't buy with money?"

Ral brought up that doubt but everyone got a chuckle over it.

"But, as a reason for why they wouldn't be swayed, isn't Faruergaz-san the eldest son of that Count Faruergeaz? He should have a lot of money right? I wonder if the compensation of the {Slaughterers} will be enough?"

Gwine is saying something that sounds reasonable for someone from the capital. However, there was some chuckles over that as well.

"Ral-san, Gwine-san. It's certainly true that Rodrick had a lot of money. But they should have spent quite a bit of it. They bought those two amazing looking combat slaves along with the equipment for them, I don't know if their financial sense has gotten too light but they got too heated over pointless gambling in the capital as well. And also, I can declare it but there's no one in the world who won't fall for money. As long as Al-san isn't the revenge for the parents of those two at least. If it was just a half-assed amount then that might be the case but the compensation of the {Slaughterers} is quite literally a different set of digits."

Saji fumbled with his words as he started to talk as well.

"Since I've only spent a few months or so in Baldukk I can't say anything too big but putting aside myself, I think that everyone else income is comparable to the leaders of the other top teams. Since those two were able to receive investiture as true knights at a young age their abilities are reasonably high. But, for that sake at least..if I remember correctly it was two or three years..I forgot but they had spend a number of years living in the knight group as squires. Prior to that they were children under the care of their parents you know? Not to mention one of those was a high ranking noble with no troubles at all and the other was a commoner family that had leeway in it's lifestyle.

I'm sure, right about now they're seeing and finding out various things in the world for this first time. It's not a dormitory system like the knight group where as long as you seriously study and train you automatically receive food and money. I'm sure they're understanding that about now. At the same time the appreciation of money as well."

